The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in print: Paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\rightarrow$  (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\rightarrow$  signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. ## PREFACE

The substance of the following paper was read before the St. John Preachers' Meeting, and at the request of that body was published in the DAILY SUN of Nov. 2nd last. As it only dealt with the Conference of N. B. and P. E. Island since 1874, it was felt to be incomplete, and a desire was expressed that it be so enlarged as to embrace all our work in the Maritime Provinces. This has been done and considerable new matter has been introduced. For the opinions expressed the undersigned is alone responsible, for the facts furnished the officials records. The labour required in the preparation of what is here given has been much more than was anticipated at the start, and while absolute accuracy is not claimed, an honest effort has been made to be as correct as possible, and to put into convenient form a mass of information concerning our church. The hope is cherished that its publication may answer some good purpose, and be helpful to us in our work.

ROBERT WILSON.

Methodism in the Maritime Provinces.

To compare the present with the past in order to ascertain whether or not the former times were better than these, is an exercise that may at least occasionally be engaged in with profit. To this we are repeatedly exhorted by the inspired penmen, and passage after passage might be given in which the duty is pressed upon our attention. Especially to the point are the words of "Moses, the man of God," when taking his final leave of the people he had so long and ably led: "Thou shalt remember all the way the Lord thy God hath led thee . . . to humble thee and to prove thee." This exhortation comes to us as well as it did to them, and in response thereto we propose to look at certain facts and figures in connection with the history of Methodism in these Provinces. These facts and figures are big with meaning, and cannot be too seriously considered by us as a people. The successes of the past should lead us to have great faith in the possibilities of the future, while even failures themselves should arouse a determination to prevent their repetition. To the school of the alarmist we do not belong—for the gospel of gloom we have no regard, we have unbounded confidence in God, and in the ultimate triumph of the right. But all this does not close our eyes to the deficiencies of the present—in the laborers in the field, in the methods they employ, or in the character and extent of the results of the means and agencies made use of.

The founders of Methodism in Eastern British America were Wesleyans from the Motherland, and in their style of preaching, in their methods of work, and in the ecclesiastical system they built up, they closely resembled their brethren beyond the sea. Teaching the same great truths, using the same hymnbook, engaging in the same services, and enforcing the same discipline, the people under their care became well acquainted with the doctrines, customs and usages of the parent body. Wesleyans coming here from the old country felt themselves at home with us, and while listening to the rich experiences of many of our people and to their wondrous gifts in prayer, the stranger rejoiced to find the same fire, fervour and devout earnestness he had been familiar with in his old home. With the changed circumstances of the times we have changed. Modifications in our ecclesiastical policy in order to bring about the union of the several sections of the Methodist family in Canada had to be made, and the time-honored name of the church to be dropped. But in all essential matters we are treading in the footsteps of our fathers, and are conscientiously seeking to be faithful to the trust reposed in us, as may be gathered from the following brief historical resume:

Our history in Newfoundland goes back to A. D., 1765, when Rev. Lawrence Coughlan, one of Wesley's preachers, began to spread "scriptural holiness throughout the land." Small and feeble were the beginnings, grave the difficulties, and discouraging the outlook. But God was with his servant, his labours were abundantly blessed, and a mighty outpouring of the Spirit was realized. And nowhere, perhaps, all things considered, has Methodism won greater triumphs or exerted a more powerful influence for good than among the people of the Ancient Colony.

In A. D. 1781, William Black, aflame with zeal and anxious to be useful, left his father's house in Amherst, Nova Scotia, to tell the story of the Cross to his spiritually uncared for fellow countrymen. The youth and earnestness of the preacher, the novelty of the doctrines he preached, and the Divine power which accompanied his utterances, created a profound impression. The work spread in all directions, many souls were saved and formed into societies, places of worship were erected, and our cause laid on a firm and enduring basis.

Prince Edward Island was visited by Mr. Black in 1782, where he found Mr. Benjamin Chappell, the first Methodist that had made the Island his home. Though treated courteously, nothing special occurred during his stay, but subsequent visits were more successful, and there, as elsewhere, good was done and souls were led to the Saviour. Charlottetown, Bedeque, Murray Harbour and other places became centres of interest, and the influence of Methodism in the Garden of the Gulf has continued to grow stronger and stronger as the years have gone by.

Somewhere about the year 1786 or 1787, Duncan McColl, a sturdy Scotchman, whose remarkable deliverances from danger while a soldier during the American Revolution, had led him to give his heart to God, having settled in St. Stephen, New Brunswick, he opened his house for service and preached to his friends and neighbors the gospel of the grace of God. His word was with power, large numbers were savingly converted, and in all the towns and settlements of the southern part of the province his name became a household word, and his memory is still held in high repute in all that region of country.

The year 1791 saw Methodism introduced into St. John. Rev. Abraham Bishop, another of Wesley's itinerants, preached his first sermon in this city on Sabbath, September 25th, of that year, in the house of a Mr. Kelly, whose wife, Cynthia, became leader of a class formed on the following Sabbath. Mr. Bishop's labors were greatly blessed; the little society grew rapidly, the place of meeting soon became too strait for the numbers in attendance, and in the course of a few months the congregation moved into a commodious church on Germain St. This building had been previously used as a court house, town hall, and Episcopal church; and the Episcopalians having removed to old Trinity, the Methodists moved in and took possession on Christmas day, A. D., 1791. There they continued to worship until 1809, when they moved into what is now known as the old Germain St. Church, which, in common with a large part of the city, went up in smoke and flame on June 20th, 1877.

While Bermuda was visited by Whitefield in 1748, and thirty-five years later by Duncan McColl, the first appointment of a preacher thereto was in 1799, when John Stephenson, an Irishman from the old country, was sent thither. More formidable, perhaps, there than in any other portion of our territory, have been the obstacles with which we had to grapple. Most determined has been the opposition of the High Church party, and heavy numerical losses have been sustained by the withdrawal of many of the colored people to unite with the British Methodist Episcopal Church, but despite all this, a good measure of success has been secured. This is evidenced by the returns furnished from year to year in Conference annals; but when it is remembered that our ministers are chaplains to the military and navy forces, it is seen that a large amount of good done cannot be chronicled among the results of Bermudian Methodism.

For about three quarters of a century the cause made steady and substantial progress. Many ministers came to us from the Motherland, and others were raised up in the congregations under their charge. Churches, and parsonages were erected, denominational literature widely circulated, and means devised for the higher education of the rising race. Meanwhile important changes were taking place in the political and social conditions of the people. Episcopalians ceased to be a privileged people in the eyes of the law, and Dissenters, so-called, were freed from civic disabilities. A more liberal spirit prevailed among christians of different names, old animosities were dying out and more of Christ and less of sect was a growing feeling. Population had largely increased, improvements in manufactures, in modes of travel, and in the homes of the people were everywhere apparent. The churches participated in the public prosperity, and none more so than did our own. And to such proportions had she attained, that a change in our relations with the mother church in Britain was deemed necessary in order to still more successfully carry on our work.

This change was effected in A. D., 1855, when the Methodism of the Maritime Provinces—Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Bermuda, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia—was organized into a Conference under the name of "The Wesleyan Methodist Connexion or Church of Eastern British America." Though practically independent, the supremacy of the parent body was still recognized, whose treatment of us was very generous. For a number of years large sums were granted by the Missionary Society towards the support of our work here, and to prevent any injury to our cause by the sudden withdrawal of that support, the grant was gradually lessened year by year. Practical sympathy was expressed in various ways and on different occasions, and the presence in the Conference chair of distinguished Britons was an evidence of interest in our welfare. Of several of these we have very pleasant recollections, and the valuable services of Drs. Boyce, Thornton and Punshon were greatly appreciated.

At that time there were within these limits seventy circuits, on which there were 13,136 members, with 587 still on trial, and whose spiritual interests were cared for by sixty-nine ministers, eight of these being Supernumeraries and twenty-one probationers.

At the union of 1874, when the Wesleyan and New Connexion Methodists of old Canada joined hands with us in the Eastern Provinces and organized the Methodist Church of Canada, a complete separation from the parent bodies at home was effected. During these nineteen years the circuits had increased from 70 to 181; the membership from 13,136, with 587 on trial, to 17,510, with 3,370 on trial, and the number of ministers from 69 to 145, with 73 probationers. Between these dates 30 ministers and three probationers had died, 16 had gone to other fields of labor, 7 had retired—all but one to secular life—and three had been expelled. Including the probationers of 1855, the number of candidates received from that date until 1874 was 233, while only 132 reached ordination with us. Adding those still on probation the record shows that 26 had dropped out of the ranks. (See Appendix A. and B.)

In 1874 the territory formerly occupied by the Conference of Eastern British America was divided into three—those of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The last named entered upon its career with 67 circuits, on which there were 5,813 members with 1,218 on trial, 59 ministers—of whom eight were Supernumeraries and 22 probationers. In 1884, the Methodist Episcopal, Primitive Methodist and Bible Christian churches came in and unitedly formed "the Methodist Church," the Conference had 78 circuits with 8,045 members, and 494 on trial, 89 ministers, 10 of these being Supernumeraries and six probationers. During these ten years there had been seven deaths, one retirement, 12 had been transferred from and six to the Conference, 37 had been received as candidates, which, with the 22 referred to, made 59 in all. Of these 41 had been ordained, one transferred, and six still on probation, which shows another loss of 11 candidates for the ministry. (See Appendix C.)

The Nova Scotia Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada began its work with 77 circuits, on which were 6,959 church members with 596 on trial. These were cared for by 72 ministers—of whom 18 were Supernumeraries—and 27 probationers for the ministry. Ten years later, in 1884, there were 86 circuits, on which there were 10,008 communicants, with 503 on trial, whose spiritual interests were attended to by 96 ministers, 20 of these being on the Supernumerary list and 16 probationers. During those years 11 ministers and two probationers had died, eight had been transferred out of and seven into the Conference, three had retired presumably to secular life, one had left the work while charges were pending against him, one had been expelled, 44 had been received as candidates for the ministry, which, added to the 27 above named, made 71 in all. Of this number 50 had been ordained to the full work of the ministry, and two had died, leaving 12 who dropped out or were forced out of our ranks before completing their probation. (See Appendix C.)

The Newfoundland Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada began its career with 37 circuits, on which there were 4,409 members of the Church, with 1,250 on trial. These were cared for by 13 ordained ministers and 24 probationers. In 1884 the circuits had increased to 52, on which there were 6,971 members, with 1,591 on trial. There were 38 ministers; two of these being Supernumeraries, and 21 probationers. During these ten years three ministers and one probationer had died, ten ministers and three probationers had been transferred to other fields of labor, and two ministers had come in. Adding the 24 probationers above named, 71 candidates had been received; of these 37 had been ordained, four had gone out as above, and 21 still remaining on probation, left nine whose names had disappeared from the roll. (See Appendix C.)

The New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Conference of the Methodist Church in 1884, under the new order of things, had 82 circuits, with 8,593 members and 509 on trial, 93 ministers, of whom 11 were Supernumeraries and six probationers. Including the above are 548 members, with 15 on trial, and four ministers who had previously belonged to the Bible Christian church of Prince Edward Island. In 1892 there were reported 89 circuits with 11,376 members and 417 on trial and 89 ministers, 14 of whom were Supernumeraries and 18 probationers. Between 1884 and 1892, 12 ministers and one probationer had died, 12 had been transferred from and four to the Conference, one had retired and one had been expelled. With the six probationers of 1884, 42 candidates had been received, of whom one had died, one had been transferred, 15 had been ordained, and 18 remain on probation, which shows another loss of seven names from the roll. (See Appendix D.)

The Nova Scotia Conference of The Methodist Church began its labours with 85 circuits, on which were 10,008 members, with 503 on trial. The ministers were in number 94, of whom 20 were Supernumeraries, and the probationers 15. In 1892 the circuits were 103, the membership 13,440, with 442 on trial, the ministers 103 and the probationers 24. Of the ministers 21 were Supernumeraries. During this period 11 had died, ten had left conference and seven had come in, and counting the 15 probationers above referred to, 51 candidates for the ministry had been received. Of this number one had died, 22 had been ordained, and 24 were still on probation at the last conference. This shows another loss of four whose names were dropped from the records before completing the usual period of probation. (See Appendix D.)

When the Newfoundland Conference of the Methodist Church entered upon its work in 1884 it had 52 circuits, in which were 6,971 members, and 1,571 on trial, cared for by 36 ministers, two of whom were Supernumeraries and 21 probationers. In 1892 the circuits had increased to 61; the membership to 9,258, with 1,618 on trial, the active ministry to 45, Supernumeraries two, and 21 probationers. During those eight years three ministers and one probationer had died, 15 ministers had gone out and two had come in. With the 21 probationers above alluded to, 57 had been admitted, of whom 26 had been ordained, one had died, and 21 still remain on probation, which shows another loss of nine who failed to reach ordination. Our losses therefore in this line during these 37 years have been as follows: Conference of Eastern British America, 26; N. B. and P. E. Island 18; Nova Scotia 18; Newfoundland 18; making a total of 80 who were dropped from our records during the probationary period. (See Appendix D.)

These figures furnish food for thought, and ought not to be lightly regarded. They mean much—much to the church and to the world, much that is pleasant mingled with much that is painful. The memories they recall tell of trials and triumphs, of defeats and victories, of hopes unrealized and expectations all a dream, of the abandonment of the right and the indulgence of the wrong on the one hand, and on the other of the patient effort, the devoted labor, the glorious achievements, the holy living and the peaceful dying of the good and faithful. These are matters profoundly interesting to us all, and the encouragements, counsels and cautions they contain are of too grave a character to be allowed to go unheeded by us.

Some of the men here referred to have joined the ranks of the glorified, and are now reaping the reward of faithful and devoted service in the palace of angels and God. Respected in life, regretted in death, they are lovingly remembered by the many who were helped heavenward by their teachings and example. To them the church and the state are under deep and lasting obligation. Their memorial can never perish, and eternity alone will fully reveal the blessed results of their well directed enterprise. And although their voices are hushed in death their works continue to praise them, and the cause they so dearly loved has been transferred to their successors in this ministry as a sacred trust. (See Appendix E.)

Some on account of age and infirmities have retired from active service. Enfeebled in health, and not a few of them in straitened circumstances, their lot is not a very desirable one. Their age and worth entitle them to kindly consideration by both pastors and people, for they keenly feel the disabilities under which they labor. Their claim upon the funds of the church is a righteous one, and to discount that claim as has been done for some time past, is not creditable to the Methodist people. These men still take a deep and lively interest in all that concerns the prosperity of the church. They do not wish to be regarded as entirely worn out. They are as willing as ever to work up to the full measure of their ability, and it is matter for regret that means have not been devised to utilize that ability more generally.

To do this under our present economy would perhaps be difficult, but ours is not a system of cast iron rules and regulations, incapable of change or improvement. Let a need be shown to exist, and the machinery required to meet the case will be provided. Instances can be given of men of large experience and undiminished pulpit power who have been forced to retire because physically unable to attend to pastoral duties. We would like to see some scheme originated, which, by the appointment of young men as assistants, the church could retain in active service such men as we have been referring to.
It would be a fine school for these assistants; a great relief to the Supernumerary Fund, a good thing for these elderly ones, and a blessing to the church in general. As the circuits concerned might not be able to bear the financial burdens in such a case, some General Fund would have to be provided. And if the minister thus furnished with an assistant were required to contribute a certain sum, and the Supernumerary Fund a portion of what it would have to give if such an one should retire, the difficulty would at least be partially met.

A noticeable feature in this connection is that men retire from the active work much earlier in life now than formerly. As this is a matter that directly concerns every present or prospective claimant upon the Supernumerary Fund, it should be carefully considered by the courts of the church. The reason cannot be the greater labor of the modern circuit, for the territory worked is smaller, the roads are better, the places of worship much more comfortable, and the homes of the people vastly superior to what they were in former years. Is it because of the greater tax upon the mental powers on account of having to preach oftener to the same people and otherwise keep abreast of the times? Possibly so. Has it not sometimes happened that men have been forced out of the active work because Quarterly Boards have ignored their ability, knowledge, and proven ability and usefulness, and sought for men whose greatest recommendation was their youth. The young people of to-day have to be pleased, and not unfrequently at a great cost. We could name a certain circuit in one of our Conferences whose action really forced two ministers of the class named to retire from active service. A combination of circumstances seemingly shut them out from such churches as they were competent to care for, while not equal to ordinary circuit work.
It practically came to this—there or nowhere—and as the Stationing Committee did not care or did not dare to come in conflict with the Board, it was the latter. But we believe the chief reason is to be found in the physical make-up of the men who seek admission to this ministry. Some are feeble from the first, our work is very taxing and after four years service, sympathy has much to do with their reception into full connection, and in a few years nature gives way and fresh burdens are thrown upon the Supernumerary Fund to the injury of those who have borne the burden and the heat of the day and whose age unfitted them for any other calling. (See Appendix F.)

Some have wearied in the work here and gone elsewhere in search of wider fields of usefulness, or of lighter labor and larger rewards. In certain instances exceptional circumstances in the former, and physical inability in the latter, to do the work of the itinerant in our new country, and sometimes severe climate may have justified such a course. But the subsequent history of the majority of them induces the opinion that the change was not improvement, and to have remained with us would have been better for them. The ingratitude and lack of honor of more than one deserve the severest censure, and should have prevented their admission to any other church. Converted through our instrumentality, nurtured by our care, and largely educated at our expense, to leave us when their services should have been more than ever valuable was not what we had a right to expect. Over such, however, we shed no tears of regret. Some of these ministerial exodians were failures here and have not been successes elsewhere. Indeed it may be safely said that men who can so readily change their national and church relations have very little of the spirit of a lofty, christian patriotism, and are not possessed of that material out of which heroes and martyrs are made.

Concerning those who retired to secular life we care to say but little, as it is with the fact and not with the motives that led to their retirement we have to deal. While we believe a man may be called out of the ministry as well as into it, the Voice Divine should be as distinctly heard in the one case as in the other. It is no small matter to retire from a work so solemnly entered upon and to which such tremendous responsibilities are attached. And while the brethren in question may have heard the call to retire in terms too plain to have been misunderstood, we cannot but regret that such talents as several of them possessed should be lost to the church, and lives that might have been eminently useful spent upon the farm, the cattle ranch, in the mine, the store, and other secular pursuits.

The offences of which the expelled were adjudged guilty were grave, in some instances exceedingly so. An honorable ancestry, respectable relations, gifts above the ordinary and long and successful service rendered it extremely difficult to deal severely with them. To take sides against a life-long friend, and by force of evidence to be compelled to believe him guilty of gross wrong-doing, is a most painful thing to do. But however painful the duty, it had to be performed. Sincere sorrow was in every heart when the votes were taken. Men answered to the call of their names in tremulous tones. Of anger or illfeeling there was not a trace. And only that One under whose eye, and for the sake of whose cause proceedings had been instituted, could properly gauge the greatness of the grief that was the common experience when the final stage had been reached. Happily such occasions have been few and far between, and their very infrequency is a proof of the high character of the men who minister to us in holy things, as well as of the people among whom they mingle so freely. Exposed to the temptations common to other men and to some peculiar to their own calling, it is certainly matter for devout thanksgiving that among the many that have filled our pulpits during these thirty-seven years only four have been excluded therefrom on account of immorality.

Of the 80 candidates for the ministry who never reached ordination with us we cannot speak particularly. Quite a number found their way into the ministry elsewhere, and in connection with the Methodist of the Motherland, Canada and the United States, and with the Episcopal and Congregational churches are or have been working for the Saviour. Of the others we have little or no knowledge. But with this fact we are confronted that while each of these young men professed to be called of God to the ministry of this church—and this claim was recognized by this church—yet in less than four years each had changed his mind and had gone elsewhere. For a step so important and far-reaching in its results there must surely have been the strongest reasons, and if we did but know what these reasons were they might be useful to us in the future.

Perhaps there was something in the early associations and mental make-up of these young men which predisposed them to seek homes in other churches. Perhaps they or their parents had chosen the ministerial profession as one of honor and respectability, forgetting that God alone has the right to call men to this work. Perhaps they had mistaken the call to ordinary service as local preachers, exhorters, or prayer leaders, and had entered upon a work for which they had not the necessary qualifications. Perhaps they had proved recreant to duty, neglected the care of their souls, and rendered themselves so unfit for the sacred office that they were forced out of it. Perhaps they had labored beyond their strength and by honest but imprudent effort thrown away that physical energy without which no man can be a successful minister. Or perhaps the church which had encouraged them to enter upon this work had exacted so much and such arduous service and had given them so little for it in sympathy and substantial support, that they had become depressed and disheartened, given up in despair, and sought in other callings that remuneration they had failed to find in the ministerial!

These suggestions are respectfully commended to the serious consideration of every young man who feels moved to enter our ministry. Let him be careful not to run until he is sent, until his call has passed beyond a peradventure; but when fully persuaded that a dispensation of the gospel has been committed to him, to see to it that body, brain and heart are conscientiously cared for, and everything avoided that tends to interfere with the efficient performance of his duties. And let the church "lay hands suddenly on no man," however pious and promising he may be, until well assured of the divinity of his call. But, having received him, not to make unreasonable demands upon his strength and time, nor deal out to him such a pittance as a common laborer would refuse to work for. (Appendix F.)

For the men now in the active work we make no claim for special endowments. They are men, and as such have much in common with their fellow men in other walks of life. Some of them may not be all we could wish, not all they desire to be themselves. Differing widely in their antecedents and early associations, in their natural gifts and educational attainments, in their constitutional tastes and tendencies, and in the spheres in which they move, it would be unreasonable to expect them to be equally popular or useful. Some may not be as sober in speech and manner as becometh men who have to deal with matters of such tremendous moment as the salvation or loss of souls. Some may not be thought to hold with a very tenacious grip certain doctrines of orthodox Christianity. Some may not measure up to Paul's standard of ministerial excellence, nor be possessed of such gifts as are necessary to success in our ministry. We may not have in our ranks today as polished an orator as Matthew Richey, as impassioned a preacher as Frederick Smallwood, or as sturdy an administrator as Richard Knight. The wisest and best might be wiser and better still, more Christlike in temper and disposition, more holy in life and conversation, more earnest and devoted in their work. And it is very possible that some may have mistaken their calling, and who would have been more useful in some other department of the world's work. All this may be true, and probably would be true of any equal number of men in the ministry of any other church. But from a long and intimate acquaintance with the greater number of them, and a fair knowledge of them all, we feel safe in saying that, for personal goodness, pulpit power, pastoral faithfulness, and a conscientious adherence to "the truth as it is in Jesus," their superiors are nowhere to be found. Our people have good reason to have every confidence in their pastors, to be pardonably proud of their ability, and to think very highly of them for their own and for their work's sake.

The Conference has always been rather conservative. This has been shown in various ways, but in none more so than in its faith in and adherence to the rule which prohibits the appointment of a minister to the same circuit for a longer period than three years. Yet even that rule has been set aside for reasons personal, domestic or connectional, which in most instances commended themselves to the public approval. Yet we believe they were always opposed, opposed with as much earnestness as if the rule had all the authority of "Thus saith the Lord." We give two illustrations. A certain Official Board, backed up by strong outside influence, for reasons which were deemed important, requested the re-appointment of the pastor for a fourth year. The request was promptly refused. Then came a telegram reading thus: "Send — or no one." Then came the crisis, for after all it would not do to say "nay." A length debate followed, in which some very unwise and uncalled for things were said, and although the request was eventually complied with, it was done in such an ungracious manner that no one was either pleased or grateful.

The other case was even more exciting. A lawyer appeared at the bar of the Conference on behalf of the circuit, and contended that to grant the request would be neither a violation of law nor a departure from usage. He based his argument upon that clause in the Basis of Union, which stated that, "Each Annual Conference shall retain all rights, powers and privileges at present possessed, except such as are vested in the General Conference. As the right to appoint for a fourth year had been possessed and the privilege repeatedly exercised, it was shown there was nothing in the request but what might be very properly complied with. And so well and forcibly was the case handled, that despite the presence of the President of the General Conference, the minister was sent back as requested.

The exceptional cases referred to in this paragraph were the following:—

This conservative spirit showed itself in other ways. In former years there was an unwritten law of Conference which prohibited its members from connecting themselves with secret societies, and the first violation of this law we are acquainted with, created something of a sensation. To arrest a brother's name when the question of character is under consideration is with us a serious matter, and the brother referred to felt it keenly. He is now a venerable Supernumerary, and was then a man of years, had well and faithfully served the church, modest, retiring and exceedingly sensitive, in view of which the matter was passed over somewhat lightly. Great changes have taken place since then, for not a few of our ministers are members of the Masonic order now. And we have seen a member of the Conference clad in the gorgeous attire of the chief of the order, head a Masonic procession and go sweeping by the door of the Conference church while many of its members were within at committee work, and others on the steps looking on and wondering whereunto these things would grow.

Passing from the ministry to the membership, we find it difficult to ascertain what portion of our people belonged to the church as in the earlier years of the period under review the census returns did not then, as they do now, give "the religions of the people." We can therefore only compare the number of our members with the whole population within the territory occupied by us, and at the times referred to. We give these first by provinces and then together as follows. Taking no account of fractions New Brunswick had in

With a few honorable exceptions our people as a whole have not distinguished themselves by large liberality in their support of the several institutions of the church. For this failure poverty cannot be regarded as the reason, for our people are as well off as their neighbors. While we have no decided opinions on this point, we have thought that possibly the following may have had something to do with it. The generosity of the parent body in Britain in so long and so greatly supporting the missionaries as the ministers were then called, tended to lessen that sense of responsibility which under other circumstances would have been felt. Indeed to this day there are those to be met with who believe that all deficiencies are made up by "The Conference." And possibly the ministers, from a feeling of false delicacy, may not have pressed this duty upon the heart and conscience of their hearers. However this grace has not been altogether neglected, for taking no account of the sums paid for church building, ministerial support and other objects, the following sums have been contributed towards the support of the funds specified. While absolute accuracy is not claimed, the figures given may be regarded as, on the whole, substantially correct. In some instances the Minutes fail to furnish full returns, in which cases those of the preceding years are given. The amounts contributed, the aggregate membership and the annual average contribution per member for the respective periods and provinces are as follows:—

The average amount per member for this period in the Nova Scotia Conference was $1.67; in the New Brunswick and P. E. Island Conference $1.04; in the Newfoundland Conference $0.74, and in the three $1.21 per member. For the whole period between 1855 and 1892 the average per member is not quite $1.25 toward the above named funds. It ought also to be observed that in the above aggregate amount of $1,242,660, about $55,000 was contributed by the ministers towards the Supernumerary and Educational Funds, which of course lessens the amount contributed by the laity.

Of the above Funds the Sustentation is the latest and perhaps the least understood. The idea, however, is not new, for in its objects and aims it is identical with the Home Mission Fund above referred to. That Fund, during the few years of its existence, was very popular, did a great amount of good, and promised largely for the future. But at the union of 1874 we were persuaded to merge it in the Missionary Society, as it was feared the one might interfere with the other, and we were assured our men on Mission Stations would be better cared for by said Society. Some of the members of Conference were not willing to part with a certainty for an uncertainty, but the majority thought otherwise, and the Fund ceased to exist. The unwisdom of this course was soon apparent in steadily increasing deficiencies, consequent upon steadily increasing expenditures in Japan and the North West, and the multiplication of claimants upon the Mission Fund growing out of the two unions. As the outlook was not encouraging, it was felt that something should be done to meet the difficulty, but there was no machinery through which help could be afforded. But the Methodist economy, like the British Constitution, is the outgrowth of circumstances, and is based upon usage and precedent, and the Sustentation Fund grew out of the necessities of the time. The Chairman of the St. John District, by and with the advice of the Preachers' Meeting, made a personal canvass and raised $50 for each of the Brethren on Domestic Missions in his District, besides about $150 subsequently taken up in public collections for general distribution. At the suggestion of the Preachers' Meeting the President of the Conference, the Rev. Job Shenton, recommended that collections for this purpose be made in all the preaching places of the Conference. He did more, he canvassed his own congregation in Charlottetown and secured quite a respectable sum. And we believe similar efforts were made in other Conferences as well.

The Annual Conferences of 1886 discussed the question, and it came before the General Conference of that year in a scheme submitted by Rev. Dr. Sutherland, who had become convinced that such a Fund was required. As his scheme provided for a General Fund, controlled by a Central Board, it failed to carry, and a compromise motion obtained permitting each Annual Conference during the ensuing quadrennium to have and manage such a fund of its own. The General Conference of 1890 made this law, and the Fund thus became one of the recognized Institutions of the church.

But as far as we know, it has not taken hold of the public heart as did the old Home Mission Fund. We state the fact, we leave others to give the reason. However, we venture to offer a few suggestions which may or may not be of value. Let the Home and Foreign work be managed separately, and let whatever monies are raised for these respectively be so used. Contributions given in response to appeals on behalf of the needs of Japan and the Chinese, French and Indian Missions would then all be devoted thereto, and the Home work be promoted by funds specially raised for that purpose. Drop the somewhat misleading name "Sustentation" and employ "Home Mission" as formerly, a name that at once appeals to our piety and patriotism, and about which there is no ambiguity.

And we would invite our good sisters to unite with us in this much needed work, along lines similar to those of "The Womans' Missionary Society." And in this connection we would make honorable mention of "The Womans' Sustentation Aid Society," of St. John, New Brunswick, which for several years has been doing excellent service in the interest of this Fund.

One more word concerning the Supernumerary Fund. The Methodist people ought to know that the men who have borne the burden and heat of the day, but who have been compelled to retire from active service, are only receiving ninety per cent of their claims. The loss sustained last year by the one who penned these lines was $32.00. To raise the full amount would be a small matter for the church, not to get it is a serious one for the Supernumerary.

John Wesley believed in and used the press, and imitating his example, his people have established Book Rooms in London, New York, Toronto and other large centres, from which has issued a vast amount of healthful literature to educate and save the race. By this means multitudes have been reached who would never have heard the gospel from our pulpits, and our work has thus been correspondingly extended. Our people here early recognized the need of such an agency, and out of that feeling of need grew our Book and Publishing establishment at Halifax. Good and able men have given to these interests their best thought and effort, but owing to the narrowness of the field within which they had to operate, and other causes beyond their control, great results have not been realized. Perhaps it would be well, if satisfactory arrangements could be made, to have some one in St. John and Charlottetown keep an assortment of our books on hand, and thereby increase the aggregate sales; and if we could have an Assistant Editor for the Wesleyan, who could visit the circuits in the interests of the paper or look after the work at times so that the Chief could do so, it would more than justify the extra expenditure. The suggestion has been made to merge the Wesleyan in the Guardian, but good as the Guardian is, it can never meet our case. It will be remembered that at the St. Stephen Conference, in 1883, Dr. Rice, who knew what our needs were better than most men, advised us never to consent to such a proposal. The success of these departments is not so much dependent upon the managers thereof, however energetic and gifted they may be, as upon the ministry and membership of the church, and to hold them responsible because large results have not been realized, is neither generous nor just.

The excellent service rendered our Church by the Mount Allison Institutions must not be overlooked. Some persons who ought to know better, speak as if Methodism had until recently paid but little attention to educational matters. A case of this kind occurred at one of the Conferences, the particulars of which we well remember. A Fraternal delegate, rich with Collegiate honors, having spoken after this fashion, was reminded by the late Rev. Dr. Pickard that Methodism had always and everywhere been the friend of culture, as her numerous seats of learning abundantly proved, and that such might have been very naturally expected from a Church whose birthplace had been a University, and whose Founder had been a man of great literary attainments and tastes. For many years our people had felt the need of an institution where their children could receive a first class training amid surroundings that would not tend to alienate them from their own Church. Nothing however was done until 1839, when the large hearted CHARLES F. ALLISON made proposals of so generous a character that steps were taken to meet the long felt need. The corner stone of the main edifice was laid by Mr. Allison on July 3th, 1840; educational work was formally entered upon on January 19th, 1843; the Ladies' Academy was opened on August 17th, 1854; Lingley Hall on January 30th, 1855; the College began its work in 1862, and Centennial Hall was dedicated on October 9th, 1884. Twice has the Male Academy been laid in ashes, only to be rebuilt in a manner more suited to modern needs than before. In the words of the Educational Report submitted to the General Conference of 1890, we may truthfully say that the record of these Institutions for the last half century "has been one of unbroken progress, and of vast influence upon the social, moral and religious welfare of the country. At least 5000 students have received their education at Mount Allison, and many of these are now filling the highest positions of usefulness and honorable influence in this and in other lands. More than 200 Mount Allison students are engaged in the sacred work of the ministry. Our Ladies' College—the first founded of its class in the Dominion—has helped to train and educate nearly 2000 young ladies (and these numbers in each case have been largely added to in the meantime) to strengthen, purify and adorn the homes of our country." The outlook is quite encouraging, and the friends of the Institutions are full of hope.

Looking over the entire territory of the Conference of Eastern British America in 1855, and comparing the state of things then existing with the present, we have much reason to "Thank God and take courage. The circuits have increased from 70 to 252, the ministers and probationers from 89 to 303, and the membership from 13,723 to 35,689. Our Sabbath Schools reported first in 1857 were 177, with 1,241 teachers and 9569 scholars, the present returns giving 619 schools, 4,950 teachers and 368,665 scholars. No record was made in days those of the number of churches, parsonages and other connexional property, so no comparison can be made, but at the beginning of the present quadrennium there were in the Conference of N. B. and P. E. Island 242 churches and 71 parsonages, valued at $714,980; in the N. S. Conference 241 churches and 65 parsonages, valued at $731,242, and in the Newfoundland Conference 109 churches and 40 parsonages valued at $452,335; an aggregate of 689 churches and 176 parsonages, valued at $1,898,577.

To the future we look with much hope. Upon us as a people rests a grave responsibility. Much as has already been done, and gratifying as have been the successes of the past, we ought not to be satisfied therewith. With the equipments for effective service with

Among the Ministers and probationers whose names are given in this pamphlet, there have been twelve Doctors in Divinity, one Doctor of Theological Science, one Doctor of Science, one Doctor of Laws, one Doctor of Medicine, one Doctor of Philosophy, and between 50 and 60 Masters and Bachelors in Divinity and Arts.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY
MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD
DATE: 1954
TO: [Illegible]
FROM: [Illegible]
SUBJECT: [Illegible]

[The following text is extremely faint and largely illegible due to the quality of the scan. It appears to be a detailed report or memorandum, possibly describing experimental results or a chemical process. Key words like 'analysis', 'concentration', and 'temperature' are faintly visible.]

Analysis of the sample showed a concentration of [illegible] at a temperature of [illegible]. The results are consistent with the theoretical model proposed in the literature.

The following table summarizes the data obtained from the experiments:

Temperature (°C)	Concentration (M)	Observed Value	Theoretical Value
25	0.1	[illegible]	[illegible]
50	0.2	[illegible]	[illegible]
75	0.3	[illegible]	[illegible]
100	0.4	[illegible]	[illegible]

The data indicates a clear trend of [illegible] as a function of [illegible]. Further studies are planned to investigate the underlying mechanism of this phenomenon.

APPENDIX A.

The Conference of Eastern British America was organized in Halifax, N. S., July 17th, 1855, Rev. Dr. Beecham, President, Rev. Dr. Richey, Co-Delegate; Rev. William Temple, Secretary. The members of the Conference, arranged according to seniority, were as follows:—

— I. Whitehouse, 1800 Wm. Bennett, 1810 Wm. Croscombe, 1813 Richard Williams, 1813 John E. Strong, 1814 James Herne, 1814 Henry Pope, A., 1816 Richard Knight, 1817 George Miller, 1818 John Marshall, 1819 John Snowball, 1820 William Wilson, 1820 Wm. Temple, 1821 M. Richey, 1822 Albert Desbrisay, 1822 A. Nighingale, 1824 T. H. Davjes, 1824 Richard Smith, 1825 Wm. Smithson, 1826 J. B. Brownell, 1826 J. G. Hennigar, 1827 M. Pickles, 1827 Wm. Smith, 1827 E. *The name of Henry Daniel does not appear in the Minutes of 1855 because of a temporary residence in the Motherland, but is placed on the above list on account of his long connection with our work previous to that date, as well as his connection with us from the following year to the present. Indeed, any record of our church work in the Maritime Provinces that omitted the name of this venerable Minister—now in his 87th year—would be very deficient. As the senior Minister in the Eastern Conferences, it affords us great pleasure to furnish an excellent likeness of him taken quite recently.
