To Cancel Franchise. To Cancel Franchise. Following a short consideration of the report submitted by the special commit-tee appointed to investigate the local gas situation, the board of control yesterday decided to cancel the franchise of the National Gas Company after giving thirty days' notice. The civic officials claim that the company has not lived up to its agreement; that it has failed to serve the people along the line; that the people are not getting gas at 374c per 1000 feet, and that the company is selling a portion of its product to another company, mak-ing it doubtful if Hamilton is receiving half of the stated supply. It is expected that the courts and ask for a war-time de-cision. The employment of women as street car conductors in this city will shortly be the drastic measure adopted to aid recruiting. This announcement was made yesterday. George E. Waller, general superintendent of the Hamil-ton Street Railway, is considering the matter and it is believed that in the course of a week a call will be made for women to act as conductors. immense booty in Erzerum, and that the Turks had collected all the provisions for Asia Minor within its walls, intending to use it as a base of operations east and north. The bulk of the Turkish garrison escaped, for in the the Russians did not wait to surround the city, but walked over its ram- rushed to his assistance. The engine parts. The fortifications were elaborately and skilfully prepared by the German commander Posselt, and they embodied all the elaborate resources of modern artillery and engineering. The heavy reinforcements which were being hurried up to relieve the city did not arrive in time. Altho the Russians do not say so, it is pretty sure that these fresh troops would be utterly disorganized and demoralized by the stream of fugitives from Erzerum, one of the hardest experiences which any army has to encounter. It is expected in Petrograd that the Germans and Turks will have to evacuate Trebizond.

Writing of the statement of Mr. Tennant, to enquiries as to the total German casualties that the German lists up to Nov. 30, 1915, have given the total of 2,524,460, of which 484,218 represented killed or died of wounds, 384,198 represented the severely wounded, 27,674 represented those who had died from disease, and 381,145 represented the missing Hilaire Belloc says that this statement drew the utterly false conclusion that these represented the official British view of the total German losses up to the end of November-that is, during sixteen full months of fighting.

Mr. Belloc adds: "Now, the British war office never intended so farcica result. It was not giving its own calculation. It was merely giving the German official total. It knew that this official German total of Nov. 30 referred to a date many weeks earlier. It knew that the lists even so were incomplete. It knew that the only doubt about total German dead loss up to the end of November is whether it is about three and one-half millions or about three and three-quarter millions-the only real discussion in the matter is on the margin of the quarter million. The war office also knew that not a man in Europe who is following these things with attention (out of the hundreds of men so engaged) would put the German absolute losses of the first sixteen months of the war at less than 3,200,000, while very few would put them as high as 4,000,000-tho the French general staff, in its detailed and exhaustive calculations, based upon the widest possible range of evidence, is not short of that figure.'

Mr. Belloc points out that it has taken the Germans three months to dribble out their losses in the great allied offensive in the west at the end of September. These lists give not much less than 300,000 men. The total number, he says, will probably pass that figure.

The immediate importance of Erzerum's capture by the Russians is that it cuts the main Turko-German communications with Mesopotamia and Persia. There is another route over the Syrian desert from Damascus but the movements of large forces over this road would be gravely hampered by lack of water, and adequate motor-transport would be gravely hampered by lack of gasoline, vast stores of which would have to be collected in advance. If the Russians decide immediately to push their campaign against Turkey to its logical conclusion, the Turks will need all the forces that they can muster to prevent the loss of their dominions in Asia. The position of the Germans is that they cannot send sufficient reinforcements to Turkey to be of much use to the Ottoman Government, for Salonki remains unsubdued on their flank, and they dare not weaken their forces on the principal fronts or their defences will be crushed like an egg-The whole of Germany and Austria-Hungary might come tumbling shell. about their ears like a pack of cards.

From the rapidity of the Russian advance, and the speed with which they captured Erzerum, it is plain that they are present in vastly superior numbers. They defeated 100 Turkish battalions on the 60-mile front in the centre, they took Erzerum with its garrison of perhaps 100,000 men by storm. They also defeated strong Turkish forces to the east of Erzerum and strong forces to the northwest. In all, the Grand Duke Nicholas must have one million men under his command. It would not be surprising if he had a million and a half of soldiers.

12 The storming the Turkish base for an invasion of the Caucasus works irreparable damage to the Turks and Germans in the loss of war material, for they had collected immense supplies in preparation for an invasion of the Caucasus and the Caspian region, in which are situated the chief Russian oil fields. The loss of this area would have been serious, as it would have crippled the whole Russian army-transport system.

* The Bagdad railway, which is routed to the south of Armenia, has not een completed over a gap of 300 miles, and the threat of the Russian advance to the south may interrupt the work which the Germans and Turks are rushing on the uncompleted sections. The operations in this region, if pushed forward, will convert it into a principal theatre of the war. It would seem so from the transference of the grand duke to the supreme command on this front. When London newspapers denounced this procedure as unfair to the grand duke, and objected to making him a scapegoat, it was hinted in semi-official circles that the whole criticism was based on a mistaken view of the situation. This intelligence is almost sufficient to confirm the presumption that important events will probably tread on the heels of each other in Asia Minor.

> DISTRIBUTE INSURANCE ON LIVES OF SOLDIERS

Has Been Found That Money of City Has Been Going Into Wrong Channels.

At an early meeting of the board Controller Thompson intends to move that a policy be laid down in regard to the distribution of the insurance placed by the city on the lives of solliers. It has been found that som of the money has been getting into channels that were never intended, and in view of the heavy liability incurred by the city owing to the insurance companies not taking the risks, the controller believes that a policy should be laid down with a view to reducing the expense to a minimum. He is against advertising for relatives in all parts of the world, pointing out that in many cases the money is turned over to people to whom is is a "windfall," people who perhaps have only seen the insured man once or twice in his life, and who were never dependent on him. The idea is to see that the money is only phid to those who are actually.

On Wednesday morning, reb. s, last at 7.30 a.m., just as I was about to arise, a detective rang the door bell and asked my servant if Mr. Field lived here, that he would like to see him. On my ap-pearance he said he had orders to take pearance he said he had orders to take me to the court house, which is a pr.son with law courts, etc., attached. He said I could take my breakfast quietly and accompany him. He took a seat in the salon while I, well knowing my fate, was getting ready with a heavy heart to accompany him. I left the house and all in it in the hands of a servant and I never saw my flat again excepting for two hours which were granted to me after much red tape to collect some articles together to take with me; even then i was watched by two d tectives who s'ood by me when I was in the act of packing. acking.

It has frequently happened that every hing in the parcel has been con-fiscated and the poor prisoner goes off with empty hands. The worst and most scandalous feature in the camp was the way the sick were treated. Many times I have seen poor sick fellows carried on the shoulders of their fellow prisoners to the doctor, who refused to attend to them unless they came or were brought. This used to infuriete us. "Operations upon the ground itself are of necessity the first steps in outdoor rose culture," said Mr. Bryson. "Inferior soil conditions will very often make the growing of roses a losing proposition, altho skill and perserverance and energy can get wonderful results. The best soil for outdoor roses is without doubt a strong holding argillaceous loam, so tenacious a to almost touch clay in some of its more inviting forces. To understand this more fully I might add that a few soils that are called brick clay when wet turn into strong, stiff soils when dry. But remember that I have seen prize roses grown in soil so light that it could be drifted like sand in dry weather." Mr. Bryson described at length the manner in which roses should be pruned, to what depth they should be planted, and how they should be fed. He concluded his lecture by giving a formula for feeding roses, which consist-ed of eight parts water, four parts molasses and one part ammonia and a shovel full of soot. He explained that altho he had used the formula very successfully an amateur might not find it so successful.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 19.

Mothers, Sons and Husbands Recruiting has been fairly satis-Toronto in the last few It is to be remembered, of ourse, that earnest effort has been expended in trying to persuade men to do their duty. This necessity has and patriotism of all British subjects was such that they would spring to arms the moment the opportunity was offered, That belief was the basis of basis of our non-militant and non-militarist social fabric. It was the basis of our belief that "Britons never, never shall be slaves."

There are so many Britons nowadays indifferent as to whether they would be slaves or not, that it is necessary to inspire them with the ideals which make freemen, and fire their hearts and stiffen their backs against the time when slavery is suggested as their portion. It seems to be a dreadful irony that British subjects, born under the flag that braved a thousand years, educated in the little schoolhouse, or the big one as it may happen, and brought up under the impression that bravery and courage, not to men-rent files of German papers received in London at the end of eighteen months of warfare in The British Weekly last to hand indicates the sources of comfort open to the subjects of the kaiser, and also the causes for anxiety on their part. It is wise to understand the interior attitude of our enemies, and no doubt much of our apathy is due to the fact that we do not fully appreciate the strong reasons the Germans have for complacence over the results of the war so far. Our chief satisfaction lies in the future, and it is necessary that we should do all that we possibly can to realize the possibilities of the future in our own behalf. To sit motionless and allow the opportunities to slip away, to to refuse to do our, full duty with posal, means that the war must be prolonged indefinitely, and that we must suffer more and more by its prolongation until we awaken to the necessities of the case. The longer we wait and the more we shirk the heavier will be the burden we shall eventually have to bear.

Sir William Robertson Nicolls finds half a dozen points out of which the Germans extract comfort for themselves. The first is the Dardanelles failure. Captain Persius says that this tragedy stands unparalleled in the history of war. This will unquestionably be the verdict of history. There is no palliating it. The less we have to say about it the better.

Next to this is the encouragement which the labor men in England are been a disappointment. Formerly affording to the German people. Strikes we lived in the belief that the loyalty and short outputting, shirking and slackness generally, are the contributions of the British people to the German cause, and undoubtedly the Germans are thankful for such help. In opposing the compulsory service bur voluntary system. It was the bill, Rev. Dr. Clifford has done much to inspire the enemies of British liberty to continue their battle against what most of us regard as civilization. Better German victory than British victory won by compulsory service, is the view taken by the venerable preacher of the kaiser. We should accept the omen and make war with a better and his followers. To this it has been aptly retorted heart than ever and summon every that the Empire of Germany and the available man to the ranks with the Empire of Britain are two entirely dif- call of freedom. The money invested on the ad-vice and urging of unscrupulous brokers, who often try to obtain lists of death claims from the insurance companies, did not accomplish the purpose of the policyholder. To offset this condition, the monthly income insurance which had been de-vised promised to revolutionize the present system, providing a regular monthly income from $10 a month up to the beneficiary for his or her whole life. Such a contract would keep a son from actual want or would care for an old and faithful servant. NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Dutch steamer Alphard arrived here today with the captain and crew of the schooner Mabel D. To remove roughness, chaps, freckles, blotches, or any complexion difficulty, the best thing to do is to ermo e the skin itself. This is easily, painlessly and in-expensively done by the application of ordinary mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in he original one-owne mackage. The wax absorbs the defective outer skin, a little each day, gradua ly bringing the second layer of skin to the surface. The pores are uncogged and the face breathes in the life-giving oxygen. The new skin is beautifully soft and spot. Just apply the wax as you would cold cream, only not rubbing it in. In the morning wash it off with warm water. It's the most effective complexion treat-ment known.
