When the Emperor Entertains

When the Emperor William gives a state ball, "permission to dance is given only by order, and the privileged have for many days to rehearse the intricate steps of the state minuets prescribed. Woe be it if they make any mistakes, for a dancing master sits aloft in a gallery recording the faux pas of his pupils."

says M. Maurice Lendet, see that "no one couple dances longer than is fair, so that everyone may have his turn." In this way everyone may have an opportunity of dancing each number of the programme, yet the floor never seems overcrowded.

PERFECT WALTZERS Dancing as it is seen in the famous White Hall is the perfection of art, a triumph of trained skill. Nowhere in the world can such minuets be seen; nowhere such a gathering of perfect waltzers.

BRILLIANT COURT SCENES But uniforms are by no means confined to army men. Every member of the Court has, of course, the dress which indicates his rank; professors of the great universities wear their violet or red robes, and the foreign Diplomatic Corps adds another brilliant touch to the scene.

apartments. Everyone of the ordinary matters to which he attends is dealt with in the early morning hours, so that he can devote every thought during the day to his royal guests.

IN THE WHITE SALOON As to the royal palace in which he gives the state balls, it has been remarked that it eclipses in magnificence almost any other in the world.

American Immigration Already this early in the season the rush of immigration to Western Canada is unprecedented. A majority of the new settlers are Americans with a good deal of money.

Fresh Water From the Ocean Menama, the principal port of the Bahrein islands, the center of pearl fisheries, gets its fresh water from the ocean.

Cause of Boils Explained Even in health there is a large accumulation of matter in the system, which is not destroyed, breaks through the skin in the form of pimples and boils.

Lord Charles' Intentions It is not at all certain that Lord Charles Bessford's active career in the Navy is over.

Canadian News Kingston, Ont.--The C. P. R. has purchased 125,000 ties at places along the Kingston and Pembroke Railway line on Frontenac.

Orangeville, Ont.--W. R. Kent, who was injured in the Caledon wreck, is suing the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation for $2,600 at the local assizes.

Wendland, Ont.--Harry Evans of Toronto, charged with having attempted to pass a fifty dollar Confederate bill at Port Erie, was discharged.

St. Thomas, Ont.--The town of Waterford is in a quandary. For some time back there has been considerable sickness in the place, those affected having a rash which resembles smallpox.

North Portal, Sask.--Returns for the month of March at North Portal show that 3,783 people and 726 cars of settlers effects passed through that point.

Mrs. W. R. Palmer Still Cherishes the Hope That Husband, who was Mated On the Alacrita was Not Lost

New York, April 16.--There are two brave women in the city in whose hearts hope will never die for loved ones who sailed away on a ship that brought up, in the language of fiction in the "port of missing men."

It was two years ago on Good Friday that the British three-masted ship, Alacrita, of the Anglo-American Oil Company, sailed from here to Port Elizabeth, Delagoa Bay, and Hong Kong Baltimore and New York.

At Prince's Bay, Staten Island, live the mother and sister of H. Nicholson, a young A. B. who fared forth into the unknown. He also was on the Alacrita. Regularly, month by month, as the seasons roll by, the sailor's sister calls upon the captain's wife to ask:--"Is there any news?"

Take Father Morriscy's "No. 10" (Lung Tonic) And Be Sure

that it will cure your cough, cold or lung troubles. It is the very same medicine which the priest-physician himself prescribed so often and so successfully during his lifetime, and thousands are the cases it has cured.

Take it—or give it to the children—with confidence, because it is absolutely free from opium, morphine or any other harmful drug. Many cough medicines are loaded with these dangerous ingredients, but Father Morriscy would not use anything that was not perfectly safe even for a baby.

"No. 10" contains nothing but Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams—combined as only Father Morriscy knew how to combine them. Keep a bottle in the house as a safeguard against all troubles of throat and lungs. Trial size 50c. per bottle. Regular size 50c.

At your dealer's.

A MENDER OF MEN

"Father John," said Dandy Halson, sinking deep into the comfortable saddlebag chair which the Vicar of Brigsbury seemed to keep for his guests use, not his own, "you're the same run card you were at school, I can't size you up anyhow."

"Oh," said the vicar, with a cheery laugh, "don't look on it in that light, old man. It's a very great pleasure to me to have you. You've got to believe that, Tom."

"I've got to believe a lot that I won't believe then. Nice little thing our nurse Fanny! She rather takes my eye. No objection, I hope?"

"She is a very good girl," said the vicar. He moved from the hearth, before which he had been standing, "So good a girl, Tom, that I hope" (he lingered a concordance on his sermon table)—"I hope you will forgive me if I say I had scruples in asking her to come. Tom, you must respect my scruples and—"

Dandy Halson's teeth met with a snarl.

"That's good," he muttered after a brief silence. "Upon my word, you righteous gentlemen are keen and discerning the notes in the eyes of the rest of us. I'm not to make love to her, then?"

"Tom, old man," said the vicar, turning upon the friend of his boyhood, "do be just to yourself. It isn't too late. It's never too late to thank God, while it lasts."

"Oh, bunkum, Jack! I'm not here to be preached to!"

The vicar of Brigsbury suddenly believed that calm, passionate demeanor of his, which for a whole week had astounded and often irritated his erring friend.

"Tom, old man," he said tensely, with a hand on the other's shoulder, "don't mock me. I can't bear it. I'm a man, like yourself, with plenty to fight against, and I need to be prayed for quite as much as any one else. For old-time's sake and for your own, don't sneer at me, and let me tell you this. I love Miss Downing."

Dandy Halson said no word to stop him. He moved his head and smiled as he watched his friend and host from the room. Alone he wheeled softly.

"There's still balm in Gilead," he remarked. "I call this sublime. It saves the situation and makes me feel better. Tom Halson, your not the broken-down bulk you reckoned yourself a good while back, and you've been closed quite enough with Good Samaritan intentions and moralities. Another week or two and he'd have had me on my beam ends like Master Southey, with no strength in me for anything but mandarin banalities. What a fellow to follow to lead—patching up his wretched fellow-creatures, they'll stand it, or kill it. And, little by little, the barrier of the consciousness—"

"The Master Southey betrayed herself as a woman with quite ordinary and (as Halson reminded her) perfectly natural notions of self-interest.

"Why shouldn't I love her?" he asked, cheerfully. "And why shouldn't you bank a hundred pound for making two folks happy, to say nothing about the good you'll do in removing undesirable temptation from the vicar's path?"

These questions were too profound for Mrs. Green, but she stroked her chin and seemed to appeal for more persuasion. Finally she gave way.

"Very well, sir," she said, "I will do my best. My master has so often said he is not likely to marry that I—"

"Think, interposed Dandy Halson, laughing, "it will be doing him a real good turn to keep him from breaking his promise? First rate, Mrs. Green. Then it's agreed. A hundred pounds down for you when I marry—Miss Downing."

Nurse Downing was at the vicarage solely for his service. She had soothed him through three bad turns and played ministering angel to perfection. No wonder he was stirred by her gentle brown eyes and devotion to high ideals of self-sacrifice. But it put him in a fix. All immediate restoration to his old powers of will and manly self-restraint would remove all reasons for her sojourn at the vicarage. On the other hand it was absurd to think of wooing and winning such a girl (she was of good family and very refined) with the taints of his degradation still about him.

"What should I do without you, nurse? he whispered as if in gratitude for the mere toilet viager of her attentions.

Nurse Downing was impressed by his words.

"I think you could do very well without me, Mr. Halson," she said. "I am sure you have only to make the necessary effort and—you will be all right."

"Ah! said he to that. "Little you know. But I mean to try."

"Nurse," he said one evening when she had been reading to him (the vicar was at a parish meeting) "it's awfully nice to listen to you, but take a rest and listen to me for a bit, will you?"

He had attractive manners when he chose to exercise them, and he looked his best this evening. He had taken pains with his toilet of late. Both the vicar and Nurse Downing had accounted it a good sign.

Today, in his game-leather shooting suit and crimson necktie, he was a man whom most women would have listened to when he spoke of love.

He broke it to her cautiously enough.

"Why shouldn't we make a match of it?" he said, with sudden impetuosity, after the preliminaries.

Nurse Downing's eyes were not upon him at first. She seemed a little agitated; pale now, after a quick blush, while she gazed at the fire. But at the plain question she looked up at him.

"Mr. Halson," she said, "you don't mean what you are saying."

"Do I not?" he cried. "Try me, and you'll soon find that I do, every syllable. I've done nothing but think of you—Fanny. Why shouldn't I call you Fanny? It's a jolly name, and you're the one girl in this little island for me. Two thousand a year, my dear, ought to be good enough for us; and, with you to look after me, I'd run as straight as a good 'un for ever and ever. Your people are hard up, the vicar tells me. Well, my dear, you'll be doing them a good turn as well as me."

That touched her.

"Please, Mr. Halson," she entreated, "don't say anything more about it."

She put the book aside and rose, looking thoughtfully at the door.

"I won't then, my dear," said he, especially as there's nothing more to say. It's for you to think it over. Come, take pattern by our most excellent vicar himself—and—even if you can't love me just yet, sacrifice your sweet self for the good of others."

She glanced at him again and glided from the room.

"Fanny!" mused Dandy Halson, complacently when he was alone.

IF YOU HAVE CATARRH

Remember the best Catarrh medicine that money can buy is Catarrhzone; it cures quickly and permanently when all others fail.

The remedy doesn't exist that will cure Catarrh as quickly as Catarrhzone. It relieves the most stubborn cases in a short time, and drives the disease so thoroughly from the system that it never returns.

Druggists habitually recommend Catarrhzone in preference to other remedies, because they know it is the best, and every progressive doctor prescribes it for the same good reason.

Catarrhzone is a rational, common-sense treatment that finds favor with everybody. It cures by the inhalation of medicated air, which comes into contact with the mucous surface of all the breathing organs. It gets at the source of the trouble, kills the germs and drives every vestige of catarrh right out of the system.

It doesn't matter how deep-seated or chronic your case may be, Catarrhzone can cure it. Even though a thousand other remedies have failed, don't give up hope till you have used Catarrhzone. It has cured other cases probably worse than yours, and will cure yours if it gets a chance.

Mr. Dutcher Law, a prominent citizen of Italy Cross, N. S., says: "I experimented with hundreds of catarrh remedies and found the majority to be worthless, dismal failures. Catarrhzone was the first to give lasting relief; it cured me and I am with pleasure testifying to its merits as a cure for Catarrh of the nose and throat."

(Signed) DUTCHER LAW.

You are sure to derive the most pleasant results from Catarrhzone. It has been tested many times and never found wanting. Every druggist in Canada sells it. Complete two months' treatment guaranteed to cure costs $1, or a trial size 50c. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Kingston, Ont.

In the town of Ballinagh lived a butcher who was famed for selling tough meat. A countryman went in one day to purchase some.

"Well, my good man," asked the butcher, "is it for frying or boiling you want it?"

"Neither," replied John; "it's to make hinges for the stable door."

A Magnate's Soliloquy

Yes, I have attained the ambition of my adolescent period.

I am rich. I am fabulously rich.

I wonder how it all happened.

Once I thought I never would forget those days of bitter struggle.

But, alas! my mind is a blank.

I must have lost it somewhere.

I do not remember.

I cannot recall.

Seems to me we did several things of importance.

But I could not say without referring to the books.

And the books are lost, strayed or stolen.

I do not remember.

I used to think I'd take my grandchildren on my knees.

And tell them about it.

But now I can't.

Not any more than if they were cross-examining attorneys.

I just simply don't remember.

THEY'RE COMING BACK

Canada's outlook for 1909 is encouraging. Not only has another rush of immigration set in from the other side of the Atlantic, but the "invasion" from the United States, there is reason to believe, will break the record. The Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg, Mr. Bruce Walker, estimates that at least 70,000 people will cross the international boundary line during the year to settle in Canada, bringing with them $70,000,000. Since the year opened 64 cars of settlers' effects have entered this country at Gretna, Man.; during the month of March, 485 cars of settlers' effects entered Canada over the Soo line, while since Jan. 1 to the knowledge of the immigration officers, settlers and their families numbering 1,360 persons have left the Pacific States bound for Canada. Among them are no doubt many Canadians who fifteen or twenty years ago felt compelled by adversity to leave the land of their birth to seek homes under the stars and stripes, but the great majority are farmers who, though they have done well in the United States, realize that Canada offers greater opportunities to people of their class than any other country under the sun. They have the advantages over most European immigrants in that as a rule they possess considerable means which not only aid directly to the wealth of Canada but will enable them more readily to take a large part in the development of the country.—London Advertiser.

THE PRINCE ON POWER

The Prince of Wales, in a recent remarkable address at Marlborough House, said: "Experience has shown that even in the case of firms having an established reputation and world-wide connections, attempts to discontinue advertising have usually been followed by a diminution of the sales effected." As the Prince of Wales points out, every man knows the power of advertisement in ordinary business. Great concerns have been made by a decisive and ingenious use of the Press, of the colored poster, of every device which makes a vivid appeal to the eye. There was a time when even this was unnecessary, and the shopkeeper was content with the name and the sign over his door. The steps by which passive methods of waiting for custom have given way before active methods of seeking it, would deserve a more curious description than they have ever yet received. What happens now we know. Advertisement draws orders as a magnet attracts iron filings. It is impossible to win success without adopting the habits of the age. The historian of the future, turning back to our newspaper files, will get as much assistance from the advertisement columns as from the news itself when he attempts to describe the manners of our time. The various processes of capturing public interest in things which are for sale can no longer be dispensed with. Advertisement is almost as much the breath of business as air is that of the individual. Modern enterprise can no more expand without it than a man could make himself heard by the use of his ordinary voice in a crowd full of people shouting through megaphones. When competition has to be reckoned with the state of the case is plain. Those who do not advertise will be displaced sooner or later by those who do, when the rivals concerned have similar articles for sale, and are directly bidding against each other.—Montreal Standard.

The Council had some new faces at the board at the meeting Monday night, and these new members will be called upon to get a grasp of town affairs during this year, and no doubt will be assisted by those members who have profited by experience in other Councils. Mayor McGee, who has been made the first citizen of the town, will be called upon to suggest plans for the improvement of town affairs, and having the necessary qualifications will, no doubt, prove of real worth in the important position for which he has received the confidence of the people.

BY THE WAY

Oh, rainy April!

Municipal house-cleaning!

Have you sowed your early peas?

And the eloquent speeches thrilled every heart!

In the matter of streets, let us make a good showing this year.

There will be a game of hockey today, if the ice is in condition.

Alderman McKenzie "scored" highest in the aldermanic election.

Smile and the world smiles with you. Get fooled, the laugh is on you.

A nurse says kissing a baby is a crime, and a good many bachelor uncles will agree with her.

Agitation has been started for a new federal building. It is not improbable that the project will go through, for "land knows" we need one.

The friends of Robert Wetmore are pleased to learn that he is on his feet again. The genial "Bob" has been very ill, but is now able to sit up and walk around a little, and in a short time will be able to walk out.

The Maine legislature did one good thing, when it so amended the game laws that the governor is privileged to suspend all hunting permits during a season of drouth, or in times of special danger from forest fire.

Mayor Lawrence retires from office with a record of interest in the affairs of the town, that is highly creditable to him. While not always supported in many of his measures of reform, he will lay down the reins of office with a service that justified all that was expected of him.

Windsor Record:—Robins are said to be scarce this year. They become scarcer in fact each recurring year. Down south they are ruthlessly slaughtered in myriads for the table of the epicure, and their extinction is only a question of time. It is a pity that the real robin of Europe, a dainty little bird, could not be introduced into Canada. The "robin" known is a thrush.

Now that the Postal Department at Ottawa is announcing surpluses, extending the service, increasing employees' salaries and otherwise showing progressive administration, there is one important reform that should not be overlooked, and that is the abolition of the burdens imposed upon weekly and other newspapers mailed from Canada to points in the United States.—Moncton Transcript.

"Seventy thousand American settlers will come to Canada this year," said Commissioner Walker of the immigration department. "They will settle on 21,000 homesteads, an increase of 100 p.c. over last year." Nearly all of these settlers are going into northern Saskatchewan. This is the real "annexation" to be looked for. But in 10 years it will easily mean 1,000,000 people.

Kincardine Review:—A loaded cartridge has been found by the police in a yard near the Kinross residence in Hamilton. The inventory in the Kinross case, therefore, stands as follows:

|            |     |
|------------|-----|
| Theories   | 479 |
| Clues      | 23  |
| Suspects   | 17  |
| Cartridges | 1   |
| Arrests    | 0   |

A London physician at a meeting of a medical society stated that extraction of teeth was unnecessary. He was enabled to cure the most desperate case of toothache, he said, unless the case was connected with rheumatism, by the application of the following remedy to the diseased tooth: Alum reduced to an impalpable powder, two drachms; nitrous spirits of ether, seven drachms; mix and apply to tooth.—London Globe.

"What has happened to me?" asked the patient when he had recovered from the effects of the ether. "You were in a trolley car accident," said the nurse "and it has been found necessary to amputate your right hand." He sank back on the pillow, sobbing aloud. "Cheer up," said the nurse, patting him on the head, "you'll soon learn to get along all right with your left hand." "Oh, it wasn't the loss of the hand itself that I was thinking of," sighed the victim. "But on the forefinger was a string that my wife tied around it to remind me to get something for her this morning, and now I'll never be able to remember what it was."

Engineer Bennett, of the Public Works Dept., has been at L'Etete and other sections on a tour of inspection. He left for St. John on Thursday evening's train.

The Debating Club held a pleasant session Monday evening, and decided that the warrior was of greater benefit to his country than the statesman. Aid. McKenzie who has been honored by the citizens electing him a member of the new town government, led the forces in support of the statesman assisted by Rev. H. I. Lynds and S. L. Lynott. Mr. Wm. Seelye, who is looked upon as a peaceable citizen, quite surprised his hearers by a speech that would indicate a great knowledge of military tactics, and expressed the opinion that the warrior was the true type of heroism. His speech evidently made a deep impression on Dr. Alexander and Col. Leo McGrattan, who supported him. These gentlemen announced, to the world that they are ready to shoulder their muskets, at a moments notice and demonstrate, that besides supporting the side of the warrior, they are warriors themselves. Mr. H. R. Lawrence, who acted as Judge, and whose residence is in the suburbs, thought it proper that the protectors of our homes and firesides should have the decision this evening. The Marshal escorted the speakers on the side of the statesman to their homes.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The ice in Lake Utopia disappeared on the 24th.

Mr. Chas. Brine will build a cottage at Lake Utopia this spring.

Beginning next Sunday vespers will be held at 7.30 in the evening.

Sch. Francis Goodnow cleared last week, with a big cargo of pulp for Norwalk.

The newest and prettiest line of post cards in St. George, can be found at A. G. Brown's.

Capt. Milliken and Thos. R. Kent are painting and preparing their boats for the summer season.

Sch. Dorothy docked at the public wharf Saturday. She carried a cargo of brick for the Pulp Co.

Your spring outfit will not be complete without a pair of Tan Oxfords. Franley Bros. have them in a variety of styles and reasonably priced.

James J. Oliver, L'Etang, has bought the Walter Justason property, and after some improvements and alterations are made on the house, he will move in.

The roads are very bad and people living any distance from town do not care to travel much. As a result business is not as brisk as it will be when roads dry up.

Mr. Morrissy, in reply to Mr. Lowell's enquiry, said the government is looking into the matter of the bridge known as New River Bridge over New River, carried away. It will be rebuilt.

The granite works of H. McGrattan & Sons present a busy appearance. Business is good and there is every indication of a prosperous season. This firm will erect monuments in any part of the country.

Parties getting rid of dirt should refrain from using the road leading to the river bank as the dumping grounds. The condition of this road is a disgrace and offenders are leaving themselves liable to a heavy fine.

Friends will regret to hear of the affliction that has fallen on Mr. Jones Stuart, a former resident of this town. Cataracts on the eyes threaten to destroy his sight. An effort is being made to have him taken to Boston, where an operation will be performed.

The annual chorus of the frogs began last week. It lasted but one evening and was not general, in fact they were heard only on the Upper Mills road. An observant citizen, who keeps his eye on the pond, opposite Drageorgian Hall, says frogs, living there, are equipped with horns, they push the frost out sooner than their brothers of other parts of the town and are better singers.

Several fish-filaking machines have been received by Eastport factory owners this spring, and it looks as if the old-time hand method was to be done away with, the recent improvements over the old machines said to have perfected them to an extent that will make them satisfactory workers and great labor savers; and it is said that all the city factories are to be equipped with them the present season.--Eastport Sentinel.

The showers of Friday evening last did not all fall on the earth and ran off to join the "flowing river." In Drageorgian Hall good wishes and kind feelings were the sponsors for a shower of useful, ornamental and dainty gifts which friends poured on Miss Florence McGee, whose marriage takes place today. The occasion was made a merry one. Dancing was indulged in till a late hour and a lunch of coffee, cake and sandwiches served.

From indications at the present time, the sardine canning season in this section for 1909, ought to be one of exceptional success, provided fish of suitable quality and quantity can be obtained. Last season's pack is about cleared up, very few of the packers now having any of the 1908 pack on hand, and the market is more promising than it has been for some time. Former out-of-town employees are beginning to come back to the city, from all points, many moving their families here and putting up with all sorts of inconveniences from the great scarcity of houses. But the little spurt of fish just now on is not likely to be long lived, and some long waits are probably in store for those who come to can.--Eastport Sentinel.

The little book sets forth in a few well chosen words the advantages offered by Lake Utopia, for a summer outing. Spalding & Bros. is Director, and is assisted by the following college men: Council Ben. S. Wallis, Yale University. Harry E. Mowen, New York University. Robert J. Bach, Marquette University. The hours of the day will be spent in swimming, fishing, hunting, playing base-ball, tennis and golf. Special lectures will be given in the evenings and musical entertainments around the camp fire will make it pleasant for the boys. Trips over the country will be taken every week. Instructions are given what each boy should bring. Tutoring will be individual work, so that each boy may receive instruction in any branch desired. A large number of boys have already been booked for the outing. The camp opens June 25th and the season lasts until September 8.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain condition. Nerve diseases—constipation also.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the selection of that now very popular stomach remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and ease to Dr. Shoop and his patients. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and other complaints, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and assemble recommended.

FOURTEEN POUNDS IN TWO MONTHS

Remarkable Gain Made by Terra Nova, Cape Breton, Woman

"Father Morrissey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) has wrought some wonderful cures. Here is a typical case, as described by the patient herself:

"During the Fall of 1906 I contracted a severe cold, which settled upon my lungs. After being treated by two physicians of high standing my condition was not any better, but in fact getting worse. My friends began to have serious doubts about my recovery. I had heard of Father Morrissey's remarkable career as a medical adviser, and wrote to him explaining my case. A few days I received an encouraging letter from him, and some of his "Lung Tonic," and immediately I began to improve, gaining fourteen pounds in two months.

I strongly recommend his "Lung Tonic" for Colds and any form of Lung Disease."

Yours sincerely,
ANNIE McDONALD.

From a Woman's Point of View

As soon as children are big enough to sit up, let them begin to amuse themselves. The mother or nurse who spends hours every day keeping the baby's attention occupied by building houses with blocks or cards, beating on the coal shuttle with the tongs, turning a music box or pulling a small vehicle with an automatic bell, is unconsciously taking one of the best means of dwarfing baby's imagination.

Of course it is hardly fair to cut ones self off from any play with the children. To gallop in harness to get on all fours and play bear, or hide behind the window curtain and play boo, is to leave all care behind and forget that there is any trouble in the world.

But to keep baby amused every waking moment of the day is quite another matter. The best children in the world are the ones who make their own amusements. They are the most inventive and their originality frequently develops into a self-reliance that affects their whole character.

The baby who is left to discover that the world is very full of things, and delight the nursery a place of intense interest and the counterpart a region of mysterious charm, will not demand to have his blocks piled up 50 times a day in order that he may ruthlessly knock them into a mass of ruins.

Then, by and by, when he is older and comes to the age of picture books and lead soldiers, things are more real to him than to the child who has always been amused. When he marshals his regiments in fighting array it is not for a sham battle.

He is a general, and in his mind he sees before him the great plain which is to be the battlefield. He hears the blast of the trumpets and the beat of the drums and the nursery walls are hidden by clouds of smoke. As he turns the pages of his books the people step from their places in the picture and become human.

Then in that blissful time between supper and going to bed, when mother reads aloud, the beloved faces of his favorites, that he has learned by heart when there was no time for anybody to read to him, fill the room.

The marquis of Caliman, Puss in Boots, Alice and Jack the Giant-Killer the Red Queen and the March Hare, King Arthur and his Knights, all the beloved pageant pass before him, and he smiles at each old friend until his eyes close in dreamless sleep.

A despairing housekeeper remarked the other day that she thought women should be fined for writing misleading letters of reference, as so many do in order to stand well with the intelligence offices, giving a list of virtues and accomplishments that are quite non-existent. They evidently think this form of fibbing commends them to servants who might not be willing to engage with them if the truth were written of their cronies.

To fix the standard of one's physical measurements and make one's figure conform to it is an ideal many women have dreamed of. Now and then some woman makes efforts, in the way of dieting and Turkish baths, to realize it.

Does the Mind Rule the Body?

Does the Mind Rule the Body? asks and answers Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the Saturday Evening Post.

"One of the dearest delusions of man through all the ages has been that his body is under the control of his mind," he writes. "Even if he didn't quite believe it in his heart of hearts, he has always wanted to. The reason is obvious. The one thing that he felt absolutely sure he could control was his own mind. If he couldn't control that, what could he? Ergo, if man could control his mind and his mind could control his body, man is master of his fate."

"Unfortunately, almost in proportion as he becomes confident of one link in the chain he becomes doubtful of the other. Nowadays he has quite as many doubts of uncertainty as to whether he can control his mind as about the power of his mind over his body. By a strange paradox we are discovering that our most genuine and lasting control over our minds is to be obtained by modifying the conditions of our bodies, while the field in which we modify bodily conditions by mental influence is steadily shrinking.

THE SICK IN MIND

"For centuries we punished the sick in mind, the insane, loading them with chains, shutting them up in prison cells, starving, yes, even flogging them. We exercised their demons, we prayed over them, we argued with them, without the record of a single cure. Now we treat their sick and ailing bodies, just as we would any other class of chronic patients, with rest, comfortable surroundings, good food, baths and fresh air, correction of bad habits, gentleness and kindness, leaving their minds and souls practically without treatment, excepting in so far as ordinary, decent humanity and consideration may be regarded as mental remedies—and we cure from thirty to fifty per cent., and make all but five comfortable, contented, comparatively happy.

"We are still treating the inebriate, the habitual drunkard, as a minor criminal, by mental and moral means, with what hopeful results let the disgraceful records of our police courts testify. We are now treating insanity by the removal of alcohol and the giving of gas juvenile crime by the establishing of playgrounds, poverty and pauper surroundings, living wages and decent surroundings, and all for the first time with success.

"In short, not only have all our substantial and permanent victories over bodily ills been won by physical means, but a large majority of our successes in mental and moral disease as well. Yet the obsession persists, and we long to extend the realm of mental treatment in bodily disease.

"That the mind does exert an influence over the body, and a powerful one, in both health and disease, is obvious. But what we are apt to forget is that the whole history of the progress of medicine has been a record of diminishing resort to his power as a cure.

DIMINISHING RESORT TO MENTAL AGENCY

"Instead of being an untired remedy it is the most thoroughly tested, most universal, most ubiquitous remedy listed anywhere upon the pages of history—and it may be frankly stated, in civilized countries, as widely discredited as tested. The proportion to which it survives in the medicine of any race is the measure of that race's barbarism and backwardness. Today two of the most significant criteria of the measure enlightenment and of control over disease of either the medical profession of a nation or an individual physician are the extent to which they resort to and rely upon mental influence and opium. Psychotherapy and narcotics are, and ever have been, the sheet-anchors of the charlatan and the miracle-worker.

A Mender of Men

Mrs. Green came in soon afterward and he ascertained that she had said all things possible in his favor. He would have pressed her for particulars but that he already believed success was within his reach; nor did he care to think that such success might be more due to Mrs. Green than to him self.

He took his cap and went out. He walked three miles to the Havercombe railway station and rejoiced in his strength in passing three roadsides inns without wanting to drink anything.

"As for you, Madam Ellen," he said to himself with a smile, just outside the station, "I hope we are comfortably dead to each other. Even if not—"

And then Nemesis and his proper fate were upon him in the form of a sprightly lady who had but just left a passing train. She was in fine furs and smiling.

"You!" he exclaimed stopping dead. "Good morning, Tom," she said calmly. "I've found you at last. You naughty, naughty boy to run away from your fond wife like this! What have you been doing?"

He seemed about to faint but did not. His inclination to rave and call her names also passed from him, and presently they were together on the platform of the little station, and he was like wax in her hands.

"We'll take the next train away, Tom, if you please," she had said resolutely. "You can write to your parson friend for your luggage. I'm not going to lose you again if I can help it."

The programme was duly fulfilled, and if Dandy Halson felt ashamed of himself and humiliated he was wise enough to hide his feelings.

But even before the train started, such beliefs as he had about Nurse Downing were all discredited. The vicar had returned from his parish meeting and been struck by the expression of Fanny Downing's face.

"What is the matter, he asked; and she had hesitatingly requested a few words with him.

She told him of Mr. Halson's proposal quietly and without enthusiasm. "What ought I to do?" she asked him wistfully.

"Do you love him?" asked the vicar. "He was much the more agitated of me, no I do not love him, but—and then human nature in John Graeme swept all before it.

"Ah! he cried, "I am glad. You cannot marry him. It would be a sin. I love you more than—Fanny, Fanny (he stretched his hands toward her), could you love me? Tell me that it is possible and earth will be almost too happy for me!"

There was no need for her to tell him.

A message from Havercombe did much to increase John Graeme's peace of mind, even though at the time it perplexed him. He knew little about his old school friends private life, and would have been both shocked and angry had he been told that Halson had come to him at Briggsbury as much to escape from his connubial responsibilities as to have his nerves and general habits mended.

Mrs. Green was even more perplexed and subsequently annoyed.—Phil. Telegraph.

The Small Boy

Nothing is better calculated to ruin a small boy than for him to have two homes, to either of which he is permitted to go at will. If mother reproves or chastizes him for his naughtiness, he takes his hat and goes over to grandma's or auntie's house. There he is received, cajoled, petted and permitted to remain a day or two, or perhaps a week. Then because of some overt act, he is reprovved, and he picks up his hat and goes off home, where he is kindly received and no reference had to his former misconduct. In this way he is permitted to oscillate between two homes, all the time developing his disregard of the restraints of rightful authority. Trained in this way, he grows up self-willed, has no regard for the rights or wishes of others, and unless some remarkable freak of grace interposes to check his wild career, he is pretty certain to land in the penitentiary.

Safeguards for Young Men

Now, what are the safeguards of young men. The first safeguard of which we want to speak is a love of home. There are those who have no idea of the pleasures that concentrate around that word "home." Perhaps your early abode was shadowed with vice and poverty. Harsh words and petulance and scowling may have destroyed all the sanctity of that spot. Love, kindness and self-sacrifice, which have built their altars in so many abodes, were strangers in your fathers home. God pity you, young man. You never had a home, but a multitude of young men can look back to the spot that they can never forget. It may have been a lowly roof, but you cannot think of it now without a dash of emotion. You have seen nothing on earth that has so stirred your soul. A stranger passing along that place may see nothing remarkable about it, but oh! how much it means to you. Eresco on palace wall does not mean so much to you as that brook that ran in front of the plain farm house and singing under the weeping willows. The bargain gateway swung open by porter in full dress does not mean so much to you as that swing gate, your sister on one side of it and you on the other. She, gone fifteen years ago into glory! The scene coming back to you today as you swept backward and forward on the gate, singing the songs of your childhood. But there are those who have their second dwelling place. It is your adopted home. That also is sacred forever. There you establish the first family altar. There your children are born. In that room flapped the wing of the death angel. Under that roof when your work is done, you expect to lie down and die. There is only one word in all the language that can convey your idea of that place, and the word is "home. We never knew a man who was faithful to his early and adopted home who was given over at the same time to any form of wickedness. If you find more enjoyment in the club room, in the literary society, in the art saloon, than you do in these unpretending home pleasures, you are on the road to ruin. Though you may be cut off from your early associates, and though you may be separated from all your kindred, young man, is there not a room somewhere that you can call your own? Though it be the fourth story of a third class boarding house, into that room gather books, pictures and a harp. Hang your mothers portrait over the mantle. Bid unholy mirth stand back from that threshold. Consecrate some spot in that room with the knee of prayer. By the memory of other days, a fathers counsel, a mothers love and a sisters confidence, call it home.

Preventives—those Candy Cold Cure Tablets—will safely and quickly check all colds and the Grip. Try them once and see! 48-25c. Sold by all dealers.

Things That Attract Men

A bright girl who writes and asks if I will tell her what are some of the principal qualities in girls which most attract men. I think the word "attract" is not correctly used by my correspondent if she will allow me to say so, for often the things in a girl that attract men are possessions of doubtful value in any maiden.

What attracts a man is one thing; what will hold him and command his respect is another.

A girl's smile, for example, attracts a man, but an even temper retains him. Intelligence attracts a man, but strength of heart rather than of brain is what he desires.

A pretty gown attracts a man; the knowledge that it was inexpensive delights him.

The girl who does little things for others attracts a man; he will do great things to please her.

A knowledge of how, when, and where to be a little stately attracts a man; an appreciation of the folly of frivolity wins his respect.

A smart little tongue may attract a man, but deference to his opinions gains his affections.

Kindness in women—not their beautiful looks—will win his heart.

About Prominent People

SERGEANT-SURGEON TO KING

Such is the official designation of Sir Frederick Treves, whose recent lecture on radium has again brought his name prominently before the public. Sir Frederick is popularly supposed to have invented appendicitis, and it will be remembered that he operated on the King for that complaint in 1902. An interesting story, by the way is told in the Pall Mall Magazine concerning a curious tip which Sir Frederick once received. A sailor from Norway had been operated on by Sir Frederick in hospital. His life had been saved, and he had gone his way with the hundreds of others, who, as a rule, never call even to enquire who was the surgeon who "did the thing." Late one evening a timid knock brought Sir Frederick himself at that unusual hour to his door in Wimpole street. A tall, gaunt sailor in threadbare attire asked if this was where "Mr. Treves lives." At his earnest request, though somewhat under protest, he was allowed to enter. He at once proceeded to get out a jack-knife, and from the lining of the leg of his trousers he cut out a small gold piece and offered it to Sir Frederick. He had tramped all the way from the docks to Wimpole Street with his thank-offering.

BARRY PAIN'S BATH ADVENTURE

Mr. Barry Pain, the famous humorist, is as clever at telling a good story as he is at writing one. Some time ago he was present at a gathering of artists, and in the course of the evening he rose to make a speech. "Gentlemen," he said, being present at a gathering in which art is so largely represented, I feel it incumbent upon me to say a few words concerning the subject of painting. Speaking personally, my only efforts in that direction were on an occasion when I enamelled our bath. My friends said to me, my dear fellow, its no good your going in for painting unless you're prepared to stick to your work." Well, concluded Mr. Pain, amidst the laughter of his audience, "I did."

MADAME ALBANI'S GRACIOUS ACT

The fact that Madame Emma Calve recently sang at the bedside of a doctor who was ill and had expressed a desire to hear her magnificent voice recalls a similar incident in the career of the famous Canadian prima donna, Madame Albani. Some years ago, when she was on a visit to Norwich, an old gentleman, who had formerly heard her sing, "The Last Rose of Summer," wrote to ask if he might hear it again just once more before he died. Although he was a total stranger, Madame Albani was so touched at his request that she went straight to the bedside of the invalid and cheered his last moments with her wonderful rendering of the beautiful song.

Rheumatic poisons are quickly and surely driven out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy—liquid or tablet form. Dr. Shoop's booklet on Rheumatism plainly and interestingly tells just how this is done. Tell some sufferer of this book, or better still, write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. for the book and free test samples. Send no money. Just join with Dr. Shoop and give some sufferers a pleasant surprise.

From a Woman's Point of View

A shy little girl should be subjected to a special kind of treatment that she may overgrow the tendency which will be found a great disadvantage in later years.

The first important step towards helping a child of this kind is to give her self confidence, even if you run the risk of making her vain and conceited. She needs a little wholesome praise to make her feel that her playmates will like her. Make her look as attractive as possible, and tell her that she is attractive; see that she is trained in all the arts and graces that she is make her attractive; send her to dancing school.

An inexpensive and delicious salad has a head of lettuce, cut in sections that make "nests" four grated hard boiled eggs, over which are laid thin strips of red Spanish pimentos. The French dressing is made with the oil chilled until it is like syrup, with tarragon instead of cider vinegar, and paprika instead of ordinary pepper. A little onion juice and powdered sugar are stirred in at the end of the blending, and the dressing is poured on at the last moment.

stopped in 20 minutes fire with Dr. Shoop's Group Remedy. One test will surely prove. No vomiting, no diarrhoea. A safe and pleasing syrup—50c. Druggists.

Not a drop of Alcohol

Doctors prescribe very little, if any, alcohol these days. They prefer strong tonics and alteratives. This is all in keeping with modern medical science. It explains why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is now made entirely free from alcohol. Ask your doctor. Follow his advice.

Unless there is daily action of the bowels, poisonous products are absorbed, causing headache, biliousness, nausea, dyspepsia. We wish you would ask your doctor about correcting your constipation by taking laxative doses of Ayer's Pills.
