Lines to a Lady in answer to the question WHAT, WHEN, AND WHERE IS LOVE.

· Sav what is love !"-a spirit blest-A something undefined, . That lingers in each tender breast, And fills each puret mind.

And this is love—a still small voice, That whispers " I am sad," Whene'er the some-one of my choice, Seems otherwise than glad Say when is love!"-when scarce we dare, The tender thought impart; When hope still struggles with despair, For empire in the heart.

And then fair Lady, one oft feels Love's raptures most divine, When one the nectar'd treasure steals, From lips as sweet as thine!

"Say where is love!"-where is it not! 'Tis now within thy breast, And when thou'lt change thy single lot, Twill make thee doubly blest.

And such is love :- a joy remote-A curse-a blessing too. A kind disease whose antidote, Is happiness in view.

Tis gentle woman's ruling power; A sceptre kindly given;
A light that cheers the darkest hour; An attribute of Heaven.

Some of the peculiarities of that great and powerful current known as the Gulf Stream, are its temperature and colour. Its colour is the blue of the Panic, and not the green of of the Atlantic. Its temperature is higher than that of the other tropical seas. The color is not that of the turbid Mississippi and the other large rivers flowing into the Gulf of Mexico, out of the fathomless depths which the gulf stream flows. Its temperature is not that of the neighboring waters. Whence then are color temperature derived? According to this correspondent, the color is derived, with the stream itself, from the Pacific, he affirms to be far down beneath the Great Isthmus, separating that ocean from the Gulf. He maintains that the Isthmus was tunneled by the action of volcanc fires,

Rice Milk.—This dish is an excellent one, and very simply and quickly made. After washing a pint of rice in two different waters, boil it well with about half a pound of raisins from which the stems have been carefully picked. Pour off the water and mix a quart of rich milk with the rice. Let it boil for about five minutes, and after mixing with it four table spoonfuls of brown sugar, beat two eggs, until they are light and pour them into the milk, stirring it all the time. After the rice and eggs are well mixed together, they should boil from three to five minutes. If they are not well stirred, the eggs will form a custard on the surface, which is not desira.

GENERAL EDUCATION.

A strange idea is entertained by many that them dissatisfied with their condition in life.

But what would be said were any of the St. Andrews, April 7, 1847. powers of the body to be in a certain case disused? Suppose a man were to place a bandhands—or to attach a ponderous weight to his legs—and, when asked the cause where, to school inform the Public, that Turion in reply, that the glance of his eye might make above fustitution is now given at the follow. to use and not to abuse, that their abuse is no ar ument against their use, and that this suspension of their action was just as contrary to the wise and benevolent purpose of their Creator as their wrong and guilty application? Does this reasoning fail, when applied to the mind? Is not the unemployed mental faculty as opposed to the advantage of the individual as the unused physical power? Can the difference between mind and matter overturn the ordinary principles of reasoning and of morals? Besides, how is man to be prepared for the duties he has to discharge? prepared for the duties he has to discharge?
