REFORMING OF POLITICS DIFFICULT.

A Post-Graduate Course Needed to Round Out a Man's Training.

George Ade Talks of the College Man's Ideas of Political and Social Reform-Obstacles in the Way.

Once upon a time a Member of the Graduating Class advanced his left Foot and talked for fifteen minutes about "The College Man in Politics." Some 400 other Seniors in various fresh-water Institutions had sprung the same scholarly Discourse, including Gestures. But this Young Man thought he was breaking new Ground. Irresponsible Fire Companies

[From the Monetary Times.] The retirement of several sound companies from the fire insurance field in the United States, and the formation of weaker ones to take their place, is commented upon by the Bankers' Magazine, of New That monthly considers a warning needful for bankers who accept the stock of insurance companies as collateral security or who have loans upon property protected by fire insur-"It will be advisable to carefully investigate insurance stocks or policies before accepting them as se-curity for loans, etc." The following article from the Insurance Herald is in the Banker's Magazine for Sep-

"It may, we think, be predicted with safety that history will repeat itself and that the fire insurance companies which have retired, and which may retire in the near future will be replaced by a crop of new companies. The unprofitable condition of the fire insurance business during the two and more years past, and which has forced companies which ventured too much on limited resources out of the business, is not likely to deter optimistic people, who have or can control capital from going into the insurance business. The promoters and the stock-holders of new companies have the average supply of human nature of that special brand which leads a manto have confidence in his own ability to avoid the mistakes of his fellows and to achieve success where they suffered failure. Already we hear of a half score of projected companies, east and west, Chicago and New York naturally representing the greater number. Some of these, or others later on, will doubtless be equipped with ample capital and surplus and managed by competent underwriters will be a welcome permanent addition to the ranks of existing reliable companies. Another class there will be which, with small capital and large ambitions, will attempt to spread out over a wide field, write freely if not recklessly, and after a year or two of venturesome endeavor will end their tribulations by reposing in the re-ceiver's bosom. Still another class, already in a state of 'pernicious activ-ity,' consists of the wildcat contingent, which we always have with us. These fake concerns will take advantage of the present indisposition of the reliable companies to take big lines, however good, and their refusal to cover some risks at any price. These fellows, with elegantly engraved policy and letter heads and ingeniously devised false statements of resources, may be expected to do an unusually good stroke of business with credulous property owners who are looking for a chance to supply the shortage in their partially protected lines. There will no doubt be interesting develop-ments and some surprise in the insurance field during the next few months but in the end there will be plenty of good companies to do the business if adequately paid for it."

Shipwrecked Men 38 Days on a Raft at Sea.

Horrible Stories Told by Survivors From the Lost Bark Angola.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 31 .-- Adrift for thirty-eight days on a raft without food or water, two of a party of an entire shipwrecked crew live to tell a frightful story of murder and canni-Through the investigation here of Chief Inspector J. W. Aiken, of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, into the claims of the relatives of First Mate Darius Campbell that he was murdered by one of his fellow-cast-aways and his body thrown into the sea, the awful story is revealed. It has now been established to the satisfaction of the insurance company that Campbell was aboard the raft, and on the presumption that the story as related by the two survivors is true, will pay to the widow the amount of the insurance. the insurance. Strangely, the story comes all the way from Singapore, and is told in affidavits.

Darius Campbell was first mate aboard the bark Angola, which sailed from Nova Scotia for Cavite, departing from the latter port for Singapore in October of last year. Capt. Crocker, a Nova Scotian, was master of the ship, and besides Campbell the bark carried a second mate and crew of 16

IN A TYPHOON.

On Oct. 17 the ship was struck by a typhoon and driven upon a reef, where she pounded to pieces. The reef was calculated to be situated about 60 miles southwest of Manila, and about 150 miles from the coast of China. All night long the doomed ship pounded on the reef. Next day at 5 o'clock the ship began to break up on the port side, but she held tightly together on the starboard side until the 21st, when it was decided to leave the vessel on a rudely constructed raft fashioned from the wrecked part of the port bulwarks.

TOOK TO THE RAFT. Eight men cast off from the ship on this raft, the other members of the crew having left the ship earlier on a smaller raft. This raft, with its passengers, has never been heard from. The larger raft drifted 38 days and

First Mate Campbell, who had handed his life insurance policy to his wife before sailing on the last voyage of the ill-fated Angola, and kissing her good-bye, left the little home at Avon-dale, Nova Scotia, saying: "Good-bye, my wife; it will be many a day before I will see your face again. Keep this parchment; it's the policy on my life, and if you don't get letters from me regularly, you'll know something has hapened." With Campbell on the raft were Hjalmar Jonasson, a Norwegian, and Miquel Marticoreno, a Neapolitan, the only survivors.

Relating the thrilling story of his and his shipmates' experiences, Jonasson THE PROVINCIAL said: "We had put off from the wreck of the Angola without food or water, trusting to God to be saved. The storm was still raging, but abating, Five days adrift without food or drink, and three of the men became delirious and leaped into the sea. AWFUL SCENE. The frenzied Frenchman leaped upon the body of our murdered mate, and seized an arm of the dead man in his teeth. We were weak and for a moment unable to interfere. One of our men screamed at the Frenchman. The maniac rushed upon the sailor and again raised the axe. Then the second mate tripped the murderer, and grab-bing the axe dispatched the Frenchman on the spot.

"The next day we shoved the body of first mate overboard. During that day two of the sailors went crazy and jumped into the sea, leaving Marticoreno and myself alone on the raft with the body of the French sailor. I don't remember much after that, but I do know that I ate some flesh which Marticoreno gave me."

Newark, Ohio., Oct. 31 .- James Marlatt, of Cambridge, was snot and almost instantly killed by Ira Gilbert, aged eighteen, of this place. The shooting was accidental.

Marlatt, who was engaged to marry Gilbert's sister, came here to spend Sunday with her. He and Gilbert decided to go hunting for a short time, and after Gilbert had cleaned his gun he laid it down. Marlatt, unknown to Gilbert, loaded the gun. In the meantime, while waiting for Gilbert to get ready, Marlatt secured Gilbert's bicycle and was riding up and down the road when Gilbert came out with the gun in his hands. Seeing Marlatt on his wheel, Gilbert threw up the gun, and saying "Hike her up," pulled the trigger. The gun was discharged and Marlatt fell.

Government Will Enlarge the Lock at Port Carling-Railway Progress of Rainy

Toronto, Oct. 31.-In view of the greatly increased summer traffic on the Muskoka lakes, the Provincial Government has decided to enlarge the lock at Port Carling, connecting Lakes Muskoka and Rossea: In order to have it completed in time for navigation next summer, the work will be proceeded with at once. The present length of 133 feet will be increased to 170 feet. The cost is estimated at $12,000. As the work is wholly local, and affects several municipalities, who have urged that the improvement be made, it is within the jurisdiction of the provincial authorities. It is understood that the steamboat companies contemplate enlarging their vessels to keep pace with the improvements in the railway and hotel services.

RAINY RIVER RAILWAY PRO-GRESS.

Provincial Engineer McCallum will leave early next week to inspect another 100-mile section of the Ontario and Rainy River Railway, which has just been completed. The line is now finished for a distance of 175 miles west from Stanley Junction, and for 50 miles east of Beaver Mills, and has been inspected 125 miles west of Stanley. The intermediate gap will, it is expected, be completed before the end of the year.

MEN SCARCE. Angus McLeod, M.P., of Brace-bridge, a lumberman and director of the Spanish River Pulp Company, in an interview this morning laid stress on the scarcity of men in Northern Ontario. The con-struction of the big pulp mill of the Spanish River Pulp Company at Attwood has been much hindered by lack of men. More could have been got only by importing labor, and from that the company was deterred by the alien labor law.

BOOM AT WHEATLEY.

Wheatley, Ont., Oct. 31.-The villiage f Wheatley on the L. E. and D. R. R., is booming, owing to the recent strike of oil and gas. The new well was shot on Tuesday last, showing a deposit of oil and a splendid flow of gas, which has sufficient pressure to supply the full needs of the village. Estimates are already being prepared for the piping of the village, which, it is said, will reap a revenue of $30,-000 a year alone for gas supply. A gentleman from Lima, Ohio, who is said to be acting in the interest of the Standard Oil Company, visited that those who used Peruna had the Wheatley this week and pronounced the oil of No. 1 quality. No better, he said, has ever been found on the

Mr. Gladstone and Anarchy.

Nineteenth Century and After, Mr. J. G. Holyoake gives his views on anarchy. He is an "advanced thinker," and his name has for a whole generation been connected with what is called "free thought" in politics and religion. He deals with the matter in his own intelligent, discriminating style. Before coming to his view, which is certainly worthy of careful attention, we note the following important state-

"Some years ago, when our Government was asked to enter into a European concert to repress anarchism, Mr. Gladstone asked me what I thought of such a step, saying his disinclination to it was because the modes of procedure in some countries were such as up is that of population. The census would revolt the English people, and England, if it entered into the concert, would be committed to the approval and be understood to sanction whatever occurred. It was impossible not to agree in this view. Every country has means of dealing with the evil in question, if it has prudence and patience. Every anarchist is known to the police, and in every group there is a lies in higher hands and other manners

The following remarks show Mr Holyoake's own standpoint: "Anarchism arises from the despair of the good and the malevolence of the bad. There are two kinds of anarchists, just as there are two kinds of Tories. The social kind seek power, that they may control public affairs for the good of the people, which they believe they can manage better than the people themselves. The political Tories seek paramountey and authority for pride or interest, and are indifferent or hostile to the welfare of the people-not counting them of consequence. In like there are anarchists who seek by reason to supersede public government by self-government - a slow, long-lasting task. There is another and brutal class of anarchists, who are animated by resentment, and the baser sort by vengeance. They seek to destroy the representatives of order or government." "Whoever puts this dismal doctrine into effect must be arrested, and the repetition of the offense made impossible or improbable." But note: 1. The awful belief that murder is a mode of progress is not peculiar to anarchists. He thinks that Carlyle did harm by his glorification of force.

2. "Because some anarchist goes mad, that is no reason why society should. One man's insanity is not cured by another becoming insane." "Public perturbation only inflates the assassin with self-importance and incites the emulation of the obscure." Yet the ministers of repression must have discriminating eyes.

3. "The objection to government and lawful order is simply a reversion to the savage state. Mr. Auberon Herbert and the philosopher of absolute freedom cannot make anything else of it. The savage life is wild, brave, defiant and full of original activities-but very inconvenient to others. Its ceaseless watchfulness, vicissitudes and tra-The irreconcilable philosopher who is out of it, thinks he would be better in it. Let him try it. The opportunity is open to him. There are savages of the purest type who will be glad to receive him-and eat him when their meals run short."

Another Forward Movement.

Two weeks ago Dr. Joseph Parker addressed, in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, a representative body of Congregationalists, supposed to number about 5,000. His theme was "The United Congregational Church." Dr. Parker advocates the New Congregationalism as opposed to the Old Independency. This means an approach to the union which Presbyterians and Methodists possess. Some who do not like his scheme call it Presbygational, that is, as they think, a futile cross between the two systems. However, Dr. Parker has the power of creating enthusiasm, and his scheme will at least get a fair hearing. He would abolish the word "chapel," and have over every so-called chapel the legend, "The United Congregational Church." "I want our colleges to be more than local institutions. I want them to be colleges of the United Congregational Church-not separate or solitary institutions, which anybody may found and maintain and dispose of."

He next proposes "A New Income Tax," that is, that congregations should tax themselves ten per cent on their income, so as to give a pension of done honorable work.

"United," represents a principle; "Congregational," a method; and "Church," a brotherhood; so that the title is itself a policy, and points to a real forward movement. "I believe in a well-considered forward movement in every department of responsible life. Never forget that the years ago, a bold and almost startling forward movement." suggestions as to the constitution. The | tain definite results.

details we need not discuss, but it is inspiration to find a man, after 50 years of service, attempting with so much vigor and hope the role of ecclesiastical statesman. The Daily Chronicle sympathizes with Dr. Parker's ideal, and thinks it stands in the same range as the creation of the Dominion of Canada, and the Commonwealth of Australia; but it goes on to suggest that this yearning for union casts doubts upon the wisdom of those early Independents who broke away from the National Church. It is rather other people might be called in question. At present there is in the air a feeling after union, and that, if wisely guided, may be a good thing.

Industrial Canada.

This is the title of a neat pamphlet bearing the authority of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and presented as a souvenir to the journalists accompanying the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York on their recent visit to Canada. The subject matter of the booklet is a survey of Canadian industries, an account of which is presented in a concise and comprehensive form. Relating to the material progress of Canada, the first subject taken returns during the past seven decades show that the population of the Dominion has increased fivefold. In the year 1831 Canada contained 1,101,685 people; the last census enumeration placed the population at 5,338,883. Considering what seems to be a fact, viz., that Canby or a fool. What more can the post of ada is entering upon an era of great industrial prosperity, we have every reason to expect a comparatively larger increase in the next ten years than in any previous decade.

> There has been a great expansion in trade, especially during the past decade. The total number of dollars' worth of exports in 1868, the year after Confederation, is placed at $57,567,888; in the year 1888, the amount was $79,-23,667, or an increase of $21,755,779 in twenty years. The figures given for the current year are $198,018,404, which means an increase of $118,694,737 during the last fourteen years. The increase in our import trade has not been correspondingly so large; a fact which goes to show that our facilities for supplying the home demand have also mproved. Our total import trade in 1868 amounted to $71,985,306; in 1900, to $180.804.316. In the year 1868, our imports exceeded our exports by $14,417, 418; according to our latest reports, the amount of our export trade exceeds our imports by $17,214,088 The development of railway trans-in the progressive history of the Dominion. On the railways have, to a large extent, depended the settlement and development of the interior of Canada. The first railroad was built in Canada in the year 1837. It was only fifteen miles long. Twelve years later Canada had a mileage of only in an extremely diminutive teapot fifty. Today we have greater railroads as compared with our population than has any other country in the world. Our mileage has increased from sixteen in 1857 to 17,657 in 1900. And the railway earnings were increased twelvefold nearly since the year 1856. Dealing with the industries of Canada, which naturally fall under five different groups, namely, fisheries, mining, lumbering, agricultural and manufacturing, we find, for the most part, the same progress as was noticed in connection with the railway development of the country. Our fisheries are second to no other in the world. Our 5,600 miles of sea coast, not to mention our inland waters, render it possible gedies contain no time for progress. for Canada's output in this industry to continue in ever-increasing volume. In 1900 the Canadian fisheries gave employment to 79.863 men, and for the year previous the total value of the fish taken was $21,891,706.

Much has been written on the subject of the forests of Canada, which constitute one of the most valuable resources. Our export trade in lumber, which in 1900 amounted to $29,663,668, dollars in nine years, not taking into consideration the home trade.

As a field for mining investment, of the world. The opening up of the Yukon district and of New Ontario has proved a valuable addition to the mine resources of Canada. The total mining output for 1900 was $63,000,000, as compared with $20,600,000, in 1895. Yet we are scarcely on the threshold of our mineral inheritance. However, Canada, with its vast fertile areas is still destined to take the lead in agriculture. About 45 per cent of our population are engaged in agriculture, not to mention those who are more or less concerned with it as millers, meat packers, or cheese or butter makers. The value of our staple farm products has nearly doubled within the last five years. Without going into each special branch of our manufacturing industries it might be stated that there has been a phenomenal increase here. The exports of manufactured articles have increased over ninefold since the year 1868. With such an abundant supply of raw material provided by the four industries named, there is no reason why the manufacturers of Canada £50 a year for ministers who have should not occupy a very important place among similar industries of the world. Among the most recent inventions in the domain of agricultural science, is an instrument for determining the degree of soil fertility. Anonymous Letters Again.

General Buller, it seems, owes his fall to the stabbing of anonymous correspondents. He kept reading what these assassins of a good name said regarding him, and paid so much attention to their misrepresentations that he felt called upon to rise in his might and demolish them in a public address. Then he told so much about his own work and the work of others late in the day to discuss that, and if in the army in South Africa, contrary it was discussed the wisdom of many to the recognized rule that soldiers are paid to fight, not to "orate," that the Government of Great Britain was compelled to take notice of his offense and to retire him on half pay-a fate which might be welcomed by him by and bye, but which must be decidedly unpalatable to a high-strung warrior like General Buller, when compelled as a punishment.

Thus once more is exemplified the evil of the anonymous attacks on public men, or, indeed, upon any one. Mayhap if General Buller's assailants had all fought him in the open he would have been moved to say that their attacks because inspired by well-known motives, answered themseives. They chose to attack him from behind the hedge of anonymity, and he was sufficiently nettled to hit back. and get into the kettle of hot water that has so badly scalded him.

Yet in a well-regulated community, the anonymous writer, who attacks his fellow and says nasty things about him, under the screen of secrecy ought not to be paid any attention to If what he says is true, and he is warranted in saying it, he should not be afraid of his identity being known; he should be made father his attack. And if he does not write truthfully the. person attacked can well afford to treat it with contempt. This is what General Buller ought to have done, and if he had done so, he would not be in all the trouble that has come to him

Rudyard Kipling, in a letter to the Spectator, states that the appointment of Generals Buller and Wood to command the first and second army corps, 'suggests a revival of certain impenitent and unlearned methods which the Government many times assured the nation as abandoned forever. It seems to indicate that, in spite of the pledges of government, the whole army machine is to be hauled back as soon as may be to the old ruts of impotence, pretense and collapse. Men say that the chosen commanders are not quite in touch with the real army, which with a little tact and seriousness, might so easily survive. It is portation forms an interesting chapter | not the triviality or ineptitude displayed in this matter that apalls, but the cynical levity.

"It is to be hoped," says the New York Outlook, "that sensible people will not overestimate the importance of the extremely diminutive tempest which was let loose by the action of the President of the United States in inviting as his guest at his dinnertable in the White House a gentleman who is the head of one of the most important educational institutions in the United States, who has received the highest honors from the oldest university in the country, who is a person of liberal education, and who Boyhood. has been welcomed abroad in circles from which some of his critics would be ruthlessly excluded. This criticism is in no way representative of the read South-the South of intelligence, generosity and true breeding; it is a survival in a few persons, who have not had opportunities of large contact with the world, of a prejudice which has been antiquated these many years, and which to cultivated people abroad is incomprehensible. The President of the United States is a gentleman who may be trusted to maintain the best social traditions much more thoroughly than most of his critics, because he is more familiar with them: he may also be trustshows an increase of over five million | ed to maintain the right of an American gentleman, even if he happens to be President of the United States, to select his own guests and invite Canada is fast becoming the cynosure whom he chooses to sit at his table. THE NEW PRESIDENT. A Prayer. The following poem, by Clinton Dangerfield, is reproduced, by permission, from advance sheets of the November Century. Not for the silent chief whom Death Gently and sedulously keeps Within a spiendid calm; naught mars His well-won laurels where he sleeps. Rather for him who newly stands Half startled on a slippery height, Like a strong falcon which some hand Unhooded rudely, whom the light

Dr. Edward Everett Hale is just beginning to publish in the Outlook a series of papers under the title, "Memories of a Hundred Years." These papers, it is believed, will mark the culmination of Dr. Hale's literary career. They will be elaborately and profusely illustrated with portraits and facsimiles of letters from eminent men. Dr. Hale's own memories, together with those of his father, and his father's father, as left in diaries and letters, cover events of the full century. In the introduction he says: "I live in a alrge, old-fashioned house which is crowded from cellar to attic with letters and other manuscripts, with pamphlets, and with newspapers. Here are the diaries and correspondence of my own generation, of my father's and ther's, and of their father's mother's. Boxes, drawers, cabinets, secretaries, closets, full of 'your uncle's papers,' or 'your grandfather's,' or ais.' The articles will appear in twelve sucessive monthly numbers of the Outlook, beginning with the November issue. ($3 a year. The Outlook Company, 287 Fourth avenue, New York.)

A worthy exponent of the Thanksgiving season is the November issue cf Success. Its cover is a masterpiece by the celebrated Lyendecker. It represents a father, mother and son praying in a church, while the Angel of Plenty hovers over them. The figures are touchingly lifelike, and the color-scheme is a fascinating compound. Among other things, an important contribution to this number is a paper by the re nowned poet, Edwin Markham, entitled "America Is Still Rich in Poetic In-spiration." Mr. Markham tells the poets of this country that in their own land ies the inspiration that made Dante and Milton live through the ages. Mr Markham also contributes a Thanks giving poem, replete with charming philosophy and simplicity. The last verse is as follows:

Father of Life, I thank Thee, too, For old acquaintance, near and true-For friends who came into my day For faith that held on to the last;
For all sweet memories of the past—
Dear memories of my dead that send Long thoughts of life, and of life's end took the loneliness away; That makes me know the light conceals A deeper world than it reveals.

Sydney Brooks opens the November Atlantic with a brilliant article on Europe and America, in which he describes the continental attitude upon two great points of international importance: our policy of reciprocity and the Monroe doctrine. Representative S. W. McCall conutes his memorable Dartmout address on Daniel Webster, from which the Atlantic uses valuable and vital parts which have not been exploited by the daily press. In Modern Murder Trials, Charles E.

Grinnell,, a distinguished member of the Suffolk bar, makes a special study of some recent memorable trials, their method and conduct, their newspaper treatment, and the question how far the general interest in such cases is legitimate or morbid. Paul E. More makes a real contribution to Hawthorne criticism in his treatment of the ever fascinating subject of The Solitude of Hawthorne, and Kate M. Cone sketches the curiously precocious history of Cotton Mather's younger brother, Nathaniel, under the title A Colonial Henry A. Clapp concludes his brilliant theatrical reminiscences with descriptions and criticisms of Salvini, Adelaide Neilson, Christine Nilsson, Janauschek, and other artists, closing with a strong appeal for a free American theater.

The opening feature of the November Canadian Magazine is a profusely illustrated account of the duke's tour across the continent. Nor is this account an ordinary one. It is entirely different from anything that has appeared in any of the newspapers, and is full of historical references and quaint imaginings. The illustrations are reproductions of photographs of the chief events connected with the royal reception at Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa. The reproductions are perfectly done. The second feature of the number is a series of three sporting articles. Capt. R. K. Barker reviews the rowing season; John Hall, secretary of the Canadian Cricket Association, reviews the season's cricket; while Mr. F. J. Campbell, secretary of the Lake Yacht Racing Association, writes of the various yachting events of the other very interesting articles in the issue, including one on "City Government in Canada," by Dr. Morley Wickett, Ph.D. Short stories, the usual departments, and superb illustrations make up what is a most interesting and valuable issue of the national periodical

HOGS KILLED AN OLD LADY

Her Mangled Body Discovered in a Field Near Ridgetown.

A Boy Crushed to Death by Street Car at Merritton—Husband and Wife Found Dead.

Ridgetown, Ont., Oct. 31 .- Mrs. Jas. Robertson, an elderly lady, of Botany, tal. Dr. MacMahon went up to her room met with a horrible death yesterday. She went to the pasture about 10 o'clock in the morning to salt the sheep, and while doing so, it is sup- on her face. There were discoloration posed, she was knocked down by a ram. While lying on the ground the unfortunate woman was attacked by a drove of hogs. It is not known whether the sheep or the hogs killed her, but when found by a neighbor woman, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the body was terribly torn, one arm being entirely rent off and the other nearly so. Great holes were eaten in her sides, and her lungs were also torn out. The accident happened too far from the house for her cries to be heard. Mrs. Robertson was 84 years of age

KILLED BY STREET CAR. St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 31.-Willie Montonio, an eight-year-old boy, was crushed under the wheels of a street car in Merritton yesterday, and life was extinct before he could be released from the trucks. The boy was playing on the track, and as the car rounded a corner, an elder brother pulled him out of danger, but as his brother let go the little fellow laughed and rushed back on the tracks. The car was by that time within a length of the reckless boy, who went beneath the wheels. The body was terribly mangled. BOTH DEAD.

Toronto, Oct. 31. — John Armstrong, aged 55, a marble polisher, and Jane, his wife, aged 54, were found last evening in their home at 54 Defoe street, dead. Armstrong had hanged himself. The cause of Mrs.Armstrong's death is not known. Armstrong, until a short time ago, worked at his trade. Of late both have been drinking heavily. About 6 o'clock a son, Herbert, aged 16, came home, and going to the cellar, saw his father hanging from a scantling about six feet from the floor. His feet were touching the floor. Herbert cut him down and ran for a doctor, who on arriving found life extinct. While he was in the house a married daughter of the couple remarked that Mrs. Armstrong had been in bed upstairs for days, and should be sent to the hospiand found her lying in bed, partly dressed, and dead, rigidity having set in. She was lying with her face forced pillow and with blood marks and blood on the body. Whether she died from natural causes or from injuries inflicted by her husband, is at present a matter of conjecture. They

Besides Mr. Fournier there were on the automobile H. B. Fullerton, an official of the Long Island Railroad; H. J. Everall, Arthur Lewis and two newspaper men named Batchelder and Guery. All were more or less injured, and it is feared Mr. Fullerton was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured. He was also badly hurt about the legs and his face was frightfully cut. Mr. Batchelder also was severel injured, though the doctors say he will probably recover. All of the men hurt, except Mr. Fourier and Fullerton, were New York newspaper men. They were taken to a hospital at Minota. Batchelder's initials are A. G.

LOUIS VON GUNTEN'S CASE. Chatham, Ont., Oct. 31.-Louis Von Guenten, the watchmaker, of this place, who met a mysterious death in Detroit, probably took $25 with him to that city. On Wednesday he counted out this amount in the presence of W. K. Merrifield, remarking that he was going to take the money with him when he went to Detroit on Saturday. Opinions here vary as to whether or not he met with foul play. His nephew, A. H. Von Guenten, is satisfied that violence was attempted, but that his uncle died from a fall. The old man was greatly addicted to liquor, but had been sober for a month until Friday afternoon, when he began drinking again. He kept it up Saturday morning, and was considerably under the influence of liquor when he left here at 4 o'clock that afternoon. The watchmaker was unmarried and lived alone. He had few friends, mostly old men, who would drop into his shop to chat. He often said it was his loneliness which drove him to drink. Twice drink drove him to the London asylum.

Andier's Petroleun Emulsion CURES CHRONIC LUNG AFFECTIONS

The strongest proof of the value of Angier's Petroleum Emulsion in the treatment of Chronic Lung Affections and Consumption is the fact that it is prescribed extensively by eminent lung specialists, and is used in large consumption hospitals. It restores appetite, improves digestion, assimilation and nutrition. Helps increase the weight, and a greater vitality and power of resisting disease is secured. It soothes and heals the pulmonary mucous membrane, and enables the lungs to repel disease germs and to withstands the harmful influence of adverse climatic conditions. Unlike cod-liver oil it is pleasant to take and agrees with the most delicate stomach. It has great power to relieve coughs, night sweats and diarrhoea. INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION. We take this occasion of recording another personal experience with Angier's Petroleum Emulsion which your may be interested in. Same was prescribed by our editor, Dr. Fisher, for one of the Century's staff last spring with unusually satisfactory results. The patient had taken a deep cold which settled upon the lungs, and there was already pronounced dulness in one lung when the Emulsion was prescribed. Within a few weeks the incipient trouble was all over through a strict adherence to Angier's.—Medical Century Pub. Co., New York.

CAUTION:—ANGIER'S is the original Petroleum Emulsion and is made with a special oil obtained from particular wells and carefully purified by our own process. Imitations made with ordinary petroleum cannot have the same effect, and besides being useless, many of them are dangerous for internal use. ANGIER'S Petroleum Emulsion costs a trifle more than imitations but it is reached for it. It is for sale at all tions, but it is vastly superior and werth many times the price asked for it. It is for sale at all druggists. Two sizes, 50 cts. and $1.00 a bottle.

A Homespun Heart.

Hal Reid's pretty rural drama, "A Homespun Heart," received satisfactory presentations yesterday at the new Grand Opera House, at matinee and night performances. The play is a good one of its kind, and the audiences who witnessed it appreciated to the full the excellent touches of alternate humor and pathos with which it abounded. The quality of the play was such as to make those who witnessed it look forward with interest to Friday night's presentation of "At Cripple Creep," another of Mr. Reid's lays. Those worthy of special mention were Miss Blanche Warren, little Beatrice Howard, and Messrs. Harry L. Dunkinson, Fred Monley and Chas. W. Porter.

The Railways.

It is stated at Fort William that extensive improvements are contemplated by the C. P. R. at that point next year. A Montreal dispatch says: Relations between the G. T. R. and the Rutland Railway, the South Shore Railway and the Quebec Southern Railway have reached a stage where the Grand Trunk has refused to bill any more business for these lines and it is likely that within a short time the three roads mentioned will be running their trains into the P. R. Windsor street station, thus completing the rupture. The three roads are believed to be practically under one management now.

Mr. Frank W. Morse, third vicepresident of the Grand Trunk Railway, is in Chicago, attending a conference of western railway men regarding the abolition of free passes. The Grand Trunk has not yet decided whether it will be represented or not at the conference of the eastern lines, which is to take place at New York shortly, on the same subject. Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific are now exchanging views on the matter, and some joint action may be taken by the two roads.

Again poor Rosa began to weep. Some-how this plan of traveling about with Rosa Stanly had a certain fascination for Elsie Carew. She felt as disappointed, knew that this was Lady Chase, although as sad, and almost as humiliated as Rosa herself. How delightful it would be to get away for ever from this county of Surrey and those two grand family man-all the events of yesterday to her mind. It was still very early, though, scarcely light, and Elsie, yielding to a sense of weariness, fell again into slumber. This time she was yisited with one of those morning dreams which an old superstition asserts to be prophetic. Elsie found herself in a great crowd, hurrying she knew not whither; all the people in the crowd were hurrying likewise. There was a great sound of shouting—an immense excitement.

her ear; "the wedding of Lord Hammond. They were going to be married in St. Martha's, at Allanbury, but now they are to be married at Notre Dame."

Elsie, in fact, was in Paris, in a great English-speaking crowd. The incongruity did not strike her as remarkable. Nothing astonishes us in our dreams. Another moment and Elsie was in the center of the glorious church which she remembered so well. All the crowd stood in rows to see the wedding procession pass.

Instead of a splendid bridegroom and a blushing bride Elsie saw a black hearse with waving plumes, drawn by two black horses, drive slowly over the marble floor horses, drive slowly over the marble floor between the marble pillars. Lady Chase walked by the side of the bier, wrapped from head to foot in a great linen sheet of dazzling whiteness; only her pale face and silver hair were visible.

A sound of wailing and weeping was in the air, and then the great bell tolled with an awful solemnity that made Elsie shudder. The crowd rushed away from her; the hearse seemed driven up the her; the hearse seemed driven up the

They are really my great-aunts, being mamma's one, "I the clothes fall off the bed on a doorstep without a cloak to cover really you know."

I will get up and dress and have a walk, and try to throw off this horrible feeling." Elsie took a bath in the adjacent bathroom. She dressed and put on her hat and jacket, then looked at her watch. It was not yet seven, and a deflicted moving for a walk. She crept I am plain, you are pretty. I think I know which of us has the best of it, though. Well, I won't keep you up longer, dear. Go to bed and sleep well; I shall not sleep, or if I do, my dreams will be sleep, or if I do, my dreams will be sleep. A housemaid was already astir.

"You had better take a little sal-volatile." suggested Elsie.
"Ah, yes, nerves, iśn't it! Doctors and people call these sorrows and troubles nerves and excitability. Why don't they say "My dear young lady, you were foolish to believe a man could ever fall in love with a girl who squinted!" Rosa hunghed hysterically.
"Take some sal-volatile, however," persisted Elsie, and she mixed some for Rosa, went into her splendid room with her, saw her safely stowed away in her. saw Owen Hammond approaching her in hot haste. She drew herself up and steeled her heart against him. Flirt, false, heartless that he was, devoted to her or to Pauline Bracegirdle as the fancy took him. How Elsie wished that she could really despise him from her heart! How handsome he was; how pale was the dark young face; but his fine eyes flashed.

AT THE AQUEDU

Very Interesting Sport Provided in Yesterday's Racing Feature.

THE AQUEDUCT RACES. New York, Oct. 31.—There was some spirited racing at the Aqueduct yesterday. Only two decided favorites won, both at odds-on, but well-played horses took the other four events, each being at 5 to 1. The Bayview handicap was the feature of the day's sport. It was such an open affair that four horses closed about equal favorites at 5 to 1. These were St. Finnan, Flora Pomona, Demurrer and Potente. When the barrier went up King Pepper was left, and just after the start Demurrer went to his knees, throwing Garrigan, who fortunately escaped injury. The horse went on after his field, riderless, and passing one after another, came down through the stretch with the leaders and finished in front by a length. St. Finnan won, ridden out, from Otis, who had made all the running, with Lady of the Valley third. The favorites to score were Kilogram, in the fourth, and Oom Paul, in the last. Both won easily. A new barrier was used, in the way of a rubber band, stretched across the track, but with poor results, as in four of the six races one or more horses were left at the post. Redfern, the jockey, has signed a two-year contract to ride for Col. James E. Pepper, at $9,000 a year.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 31.—The 3-year-old bay colt Tertimin, pacer, has been sold by the Flemings to W. P. Stein, of West Virginia, for $7,000, the highest price ever paid for an Indiana bred colt. He is by Jersey Wilkes, dam by Abdallah Woodford. He went in 2:244 as a 2-year-old. This year he has paced a mile privately in 2:08, and a half in 1:004. TURF NOTES.

In the pacing brigade the fastest 2-year-old last year was Alice Mapes (2:14%); this year Miss McClintock (2:17%) holds the record. Last year's fastest 3-year-old pacer was The Hero (2:14%); this this year Miss McClintock (2:17½) holds the record. Last year's fastest 3-year-old pacer was The Hero (2:14½); this year the best of that age is Silver Coin (2:16½). The 4-year-old record for last year was held by Bonnie Direct (2:05½); this year Audubon Boy (2:06) is the fastest. The best of the aged pacers last year was Prince Alert (2:02); this year Anaconda and Little Boy share the honors, each having paced in 2:01¾. Bonnie Direct (2:05½) was the fastest new pacer ors, each having paced in 2:01%. Bonnie Direct (2:05%) was the fastest new pacer of last year; Shadow Chimes (2:06%) holds the honor for this year. There is not a great deal of difference in the best records of the two years. In the coit divisions last year's records are slightly the best, while this year's records lead in the division for aged performers. Even with division for aged performers. Even with slower than those of last year, both pacers and trotters have been able to win more money this year than last, a fact that will have considerable influence on the prices that will be paid for good racing material this fall and winter. Instead of Rosa and Owen there sud-Alix (2:03%), the trotting queen, whose death was noted a few days ago, was in some respects the most remarkable trotter the turf has known. Her record for three consecutive heats in a race, 2:06, 2:06¼ and 2:05¼, is still a world's record, and no other trotting mare seen on the o approach her retirement has been able approach her record of 2:03%. at Memphis last week, and goes into winter-quarters an unbeaten horse, with $13,800 to his credit in purses won. Just how fast the son of Joe Patchen could have paced a mile had he been driven to his limit is a matter of conjecture, for in his races he has never given any indication of his speed limit, winning only by the narrowest of margins, whether the time was in 2:05 or in 2:10. Like his famous sire, he saves himself as much as possible, and will not pace away from his opponents, only far enough in adhis opponents, only far enough in advance to beat them. McHenry says he is by far the best pacer he has ever driven, and that means a great deal, when is remembered that he has driven John Gentry (2:001/2) and Anaconda (2:013/4). aking into consideration Dan Patch's soundness, great speed and invincible courage, he must be counted upon as a courage, he must be counted upon as a two-minute prospect for next season. The list of new 2:10 trotters for this year is probably complete now, and it shows that just eleven horses have added their names to that select list. This is three behind the number that entered the list last year, and the fastest one this year, Chain Shot (2:06½), is a half second faster than the fastest one of last year, Lord Derby, that entered the list with a record of 2:07. Only four trotters that were in the 2:10 list at the beginning of

That word hacking is expressive to those who have experienced the aggravating constant cough, which is called a hacking cough. Sometimes it is the result of a cold, or of grip, and sometimes it is a consequence of catarrh, which unchecked volved the lungs in disease. Such a cough finds its cure in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which cures bronchitis, obstinate coughs, lung disease, hemorrhage, and conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, lead to consumption. "For twelve years I was a sufferer from catarrh and was treated by one of the best physicians in the State of North Carolina, who said the trouble had reached my lungs," writes Mr. J. M. Patton, of Clotho, Transvivania Co., N. C. "I grew worse every day until I tried Dr., Pierce's medicines. Will say Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cured me, and to-day I am well and hearty, and I will say further that my former physician, Dr. W. M. An interesting comparison is that of the best records of this year and last. The fastest 2-year-old trotter last year was Walnut Hall (2:20%); this year Prelates (2:15½) holds the record. Fereno (2:10%) held the record for 3-year-old trotters; the best this year is Peter Stirling (2:11½). Boralma (2:08) headed the 4-year-old division last year; Eleato (2:08%) is the fastest this year; Eleato (2:08%); this year Cresceus (2:02%) holds the record. LASTED TWO ROUNDS.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 31.—"Australian Jimmy" Ryan was last night knocked out in the second round of a 20-round contest at Music Hall by Jack Root, of Chicago. The fight was for the middle-weight championship of the west, and Root was a decided favorite. Ryan, who has but one eye, forced the fighting, but Root blocked him throughout, and in the first round had him at his mercy, and hammered his on the blind side continually. Ryan forced things in the first half of the second round. THE TRIAL OF BURGLAR RICE!

Prisoner Testifies in His Own Behalf-Says Boyd Shot Jones.

Outline of the Defense-Jury at St. Catharines Acquit Murphy of the Charge of Mansiaughter.

Toronto, Oct. 30 .- At today's session of the assize court the first witness in the Rice case was Dr. Powell, who made the post-mortem examination upon the prisoner Jones. He was ross-examined at length by Robinette, who tried to snow by him the improbability of Stewart's story. Two bullets had struck Jones, one lodging in the arm and the other entering at the left side of the groin and passing down back and across to the right side. Mr. Robinette maintained that the bullet could not have taken this course if Jones had standing up. Dr. Powell replied that it was hard to theorize about the course of a bullet through flesh. He had thought at the time of the examination that Jones had been sitting down when shot, but added that he might have been in some position lower than the man firing.

In re-examination Mr. Guthrie brought out the point that deflection of the bullett might be caused by the tissues. There was nothing in wounds inconsistent with Stewart having fired from the back, as related evidence. Had Jones been shot in the back he could scarcely have got up and walked around. Witness admit ted to Mr. Robinette that Jones might have been dragged by his friends. Dr. George A. Peters gave evidence, saying that nothing in the condition of the wounds was inconsistent with Stewart's story.

Evidence as to the post-mortem upon Boyd's body was then offered by the crown. Dr. Caven gave evidence as to the injuries sustained by Boyd, the wound being on the right side of the head. In his opinion this went to show that the fatal shot was fired from the north side of the hack; in other words, from the side where Rice was. The best Mr. Robinette could do on cross-examination was to get Dr. Caven to say that if Boyd twisted around so as to face south, he might have been shot by Jones or Rutledge.

Dr. George A. Bingham corroborated Dr. Caven's evidence. He added that he had examined Jones both before and after death, and that there been no signs either on the clothing or on the skin of powder burns, such as might have been expected had the shooting taken place in the hack. RICE ON THE STAND.

In the afternoon Rice himself Fook the stand. After relating the circumstances of his life, and of trial, in August last, he told of the shooting affray, in which Boyd was killed. He had no idea that the package of revolvers was to be thrown in to the cab, and when it did come, he did not know what it contained. He said there was a scramble between Stewart and Rutledge, and the shoulders of the two men were pressed against each other, Rutledge using his right and Stewart his left shoulder, both men facing to the south. He said: "Boyd had grabbed my left arm and Jones pressed himself back into seat, pulling me back with him. Boyd let go of my hand, and put his foot against my chest, and at the same time drew his revolver and shot Jones. Almost immediately there was another shot from my right, and saw that Boyd was killed. When the second shot was fired I turned, and Jones handed me the revolver, saying 'Take this, I'm hit' Stewart and Rutledge were still struggling, but when Jones handed the gun, Stewart threw up his hands, and said, 'Get out.'" Rice then described their leaving the cab. When they were going away he fired the revolver a couple of times but aimed low down, not at any one. He shot from the natural instinct to escape. He denied having tried to kill any one on the street car. With the exception of his own story no evidence beyond medical testimony was offered on behalf of Rice. Dr. Forbes E. Godfrey made a state-of the prisoner Jones by Boyd was en-tirely consistent with Jones' wound in the groin. "I think the post-mortem report corroborates that story," he said. He added that the revolver must have been held higher that the point at which the bullet entered the have gone down so low.

Dr. James Spence, Wallace Schmuck and Coroner J. A. McConnel followed. Dr. McConnel was an exceptionally good witness, and a phrase of his which pleased the defense was "the bullet and Rice tell the same story."

The case for the defense was closed

Despite the apparent conclusiveness of the crown's case, the prisoner's counsel is putting up a hard fight. The defense take the line that Jones or Rutledge shot Boyd. An attempt is made to discredit Stewart's story in several particulars. The constable swore that only one shot, that which killed Boyd, was fired in the hack. This statement has been contradicted by several witnesses.

The legal point about putting Rice on trial before he has served out his term for burglary will not be raised until the prisoner is about to be sentenced, should the verdict be against

The county authorities are evidently determined that Rice will be closely guarded while in Toronto this time. He is brought to and from the jail in a closed hack, in which sit three constables with loaded revolvers. Immediately behind this rig follows an open carriage carrying a guard of three more armed officers. Wire screens cover the windows of Rice's Newaygo, Mich., Oct. 30. — Abraham Stees, for many years a resident of this neighborhood, shot and instantly killed himself by sending a bullet into his breast. The deed was caused by jeal ousy. Stees is about 36 years of age married, and has three children. The couple had been married about fifteen years, but of late their domestic life has been unhappy, and Stees has several times accused his wife of unfaithfulness. The murder is the result. Stees was arrested. His wound is serious, but he will doubtless recover. A peculiar coincidence in connection house, fifteen years ago, occurred double murder for the same cause. A man named Armstrong found his wife at home with another man and killed them both with an axe.

WERE WEDDED IN BALTIMORE.

Mr. Chas. Macbeth, Formerly of London and Miss Madge Lyons Made One. The Sunday Morning Sun of Baltimore, Md., contains the following announcement: "The marriage of Miss Maggie Lyons, daughter of Mrs. B. Maffit Lyons, to Mr. Charles William Macbeth, formerly of London, Canada, but now of Detroit, took place at 6 o'clock last evening at the Forest Inn, Walbrook. The event was one of much interest, as the bride has not only been much admired socially since making her debut, two winters ago, but is also widely known for her musical abilities. The groom is a son of Lieut .-Col. Macbeth, of London, Canada. In his profession of civil engineer he is now engaged in the construction of the longest proposed electric railway in this country-that to run from Detroit to Chicago. He is a graduate of the science department of the University of Toronto, and a prominent member of the Kappa'-Alpha fraternity. The entire color scheme of the wedding was yellow, the bril'iant hue harmonizing most becomingly with the rich brunette beauty of the bride. All of the apartments thrown open were lavishly decorated throughout with palms, yellow chrysanthemums and yellow wax lights. The bride wore a lovely gown of white point d'esprit over white satin, a tulle veil attached by a coronet of orange blossoms and pearl ornaments. She carried a shower ouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Philip Douglas Lyons. The maid of honor and only attendant of the bride was her sister, Miss Nahalie F. Lyons, who was gowned in white organdie and lace over light-blue taffeta, and carried a huge bouquet of chrysanthemums. The man was Mr. Charles R. Hunt, of Lon-don, Canada, and the ushers were Mr. John W. Hobbs, of London; Mr. Garner Wood Denmead, Mr. Walter Post Duvall and Mr. Paul Frame, of Baltimore. Rev. Dr. C. Ernest Smith, of St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony. A reception followed, the whole lower floor of the inn being brilliantly lighted and decorated for the guests, who were received by Mrs. Lyons in black and point d'esprite over black satin, pearl ornaments and bouquets of violets. Later in the evening a supper was given by the bridal party and the members of the two families only, after which Mr. and Mrs. Macleft on their wedding trip. route for Detroit they will visit the Pan-American Exposition and other points of interest. CITIZEN.-If the city grades a street or lane, and exposes the fence posts 16 or 20 inches above the level of said grading, at whose expense should it be to put it in proper order again? Ans.-Legally, the corporation bear the expense, but the courts do not encourage the enforcement of small claims where disallowed by the officials and require street proof of damage in excess of private benefit by the public improvement to the street or lane.

A Simple Remedy Which Will Inter est Catarrh Sufferers.

Symptoms: Moisture; intense itching and stinging, most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors

In its earlier stages catarrh is more of a nuisance than a menace to the general health, but sooner or later the disease will extend to the throat, bronchial tubes and even to the stomach and intestines. Catarrh is essentially a disease of the mucous membrane, the local symptoms being a profuse discharge of mucous, stoppage of the nostrils, irrita-tion in the throat, causing coughing, sneezing, gagging and frequent clearings of the throat and head.

The usual treatment by douches, snuffs, salves, etc., often gives temporary relief, but anything like a cure can only be obtained by a treatment which removes the catarrhal taint from the blood and the disappearance of the inflammation from the mucous surfaces.

A new remedy which meets these requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tab-

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membranes only. They can hardly be called a secret patent medias they are composed of such valuable remedies as Sanguinaria, Hydrastin, Eucalyptol and similar cleansing antiseptics, which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous surfaces the catarrhal poison.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, taken internally, allowing them to dissolve slowly in the mouth; in this way they reach the throat, fauces, and the entire alimentary canal.

If desired, they may be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However, when there is much stoppage of the nose, a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use of these tablets will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of

Dr. Brement states "that the inter-nal treatment for catarrh is rapidly taking the place of the old plan of douching and local application, and further says that probably the best, and probably the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition, and all the really efficient remedies for catarrh are contained in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tabets at 50 cents for full sized packages. Ask your druggist, and if he is honest he will tell you that there is no safer, more palatable, more efficient and convenient remedy on the mar-
