FIRE DOES DAMAGE OF $7,000,000

Hawkesbury Lumber Company Is Scene of Disastrous Blaze.

TOWN IS MENACED
Wind Blowing in Opposite Direction Saved Residences.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Hawkesbury, Sept. 9.—More than fifty million feet of lumber, property of the Hawkesbury Lumber Company, Limited, was destroyed by fire, which broke out this morning in a pile at the west end of the island on which the company's yards, mills and houses are located, just opposite the town, in the Ottawa river.

At a valuation of $60 per thousand, the loss is set by R. L. Blackburn of Ottawa, managing director, at $7,000,000, which is stated to be well covered by insurance.

At noon today the entire yards had been swept and the lumber destroyed and the fire was under control. Luckily for the town of Hawkesbury, the wind was blowing in an opposite direction for the great draft from the cauldron of fire carried huge burning planks as high as two hundred feet in the air and for long distances. The town of Grenville, on the Quebec side, was showered with embers and dust from the burning lumber.

Enemy Hostility in Stronghold Sections Increasing Each Day.

Associated Press Despatch.
Fez, French Morocco, Sept. 9.—The French official communiqué issued last night dealing with the hostilities between the French and the Moors says:

"Enemy hostility continues increasingly active in the western area. The Moors have brought up artillery with which they are shelling Issoul and Tafant."

"In the sector held by the Spanish troops the enemy attacks have not developed to any great extent, but more reinforcements are being concentrated there by Abd-el-Krim. The central portion of the line is calm at present as is also the eastern section. The Ninth corps, having strengthened its left wing, has effected a junction with its center near Babtaza."

Fish Bowl Starts Fire; Also Extinguishes It

"Do not leave your goldfish bowl exposed to the sun" is the warning of one Londoner who knows.
About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of Harry Clark, 40 Cathcart street, a fish bowl was standing on a wicker table. The sun focused its way through the bowl, and caused the table to take fire. Mr. Clark's son, Norman, who was in the house with another of the children noticed the table smoking, and extinguished the blaze with the water in the bowl.
The glass bowl started the blaze, but also provided the water to put it out.

Anonymous Well-Wisher Sends Mayor a Silk Topper; Aldermen Are Mystified

To Be Worn at Intervals to Insure Re-election, is One Theory.

REPOSES AT CITY HALL
Some Believe It May Be Cast Into Federal Political Arena.

What message, sinister or well-wishing, is contained in the black velvet contours of the high silk hat which mysteriously presented itself to the mayor at council session last night?

Found beside the seat of high control from which the chief magistrate regulates the city, the symbol of culture and correct dress was not disturbed until aldermen prodded the hat out of the box and found a letter from "A Citizen." Whether or not the note struck awe into curious hearts, its contents were not divulged, and as far as is known the mayor is guarding the missive.

The mayor himself, what does he think? His worship denies knowledge of the unsolved riddle. "I know nothing about it. I know nothing about it," he replied hurriedly to a friendly question about the silk topper.

One alderman sees the hat as a talisman, which if worn at intervals between now and the next municipal elections will assure its bearer of good fortune. But this view is not general.

It is surely a symbol that the mayor will need a new platform if he wants to step into the ranks of the chosen this time.

Then again, one bloc of municipal officials is whispering that the silk hat is what the ideas of March were to Caesar. It is an emblem of futility, they say, and future events will have no bearing on the carrying out of its fantastic portent.

In the meantime the hat has been transferred to the mayor's sanctum, where it rests in silence, waiting for its solution. It may yet be cast into the federal political ring.

Ernest Nichols Chased Shenandoah Around Farm Yard Before Capturing It.
STORY FOUND TRUE

Associated Press Despatch.
Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 9.—A hero of the Shenandoah disaster last Thursday morning was found today among the native sons of Noble County. He is Ernest Nichols, a little, grizzled farmer, residing near Sharon and who grabbed the navy's giant dirigible by the nose ring and pulled it to the ground.

After sales began drifting over the countryside about a man who had helped to stop the plunging of the Shenandoah's nose over hills and valleys when it broke from the middle and aft sections, the board of investigation which is handling all phases of the disaster, probed the story, found it true and then cited Nichols "for the good job and great service" he had done.

Interviewed later, Nichols told the following narrative of his experience:

"I was in the house when my neighbor called up on the telephone and said an airship was headed for my house and that I had better stop it. I ran out and here it came right through our orchard headed straight for the house. After drifting all that way after it broke up, it was getting close to the ground.

"It sure was coming right toward my house. I looked up and there was my oldest boy sticking his head out of the up-stairs window. I knew I had to stop that thing or the house would be smashed and my kids be killed. Then, too, I heard the fellows up there (in the Shenandoah's drifting nose) yelling 'Grab hold, Grab hold, Turn her south.' So I grabbed hold of the cable that was hanging down and drew it around a fence post. The post snapped right off. I grabbed the cable again and threw it around an old maple stump. The stump had two prongs on it and I thought sure it would hold, but it didn't. By that time the nose was close to the ground that it knocked off the top of my shed and then bowled over a grape arbor. I kept following it and finally threw the cable around a tree.

"Soon my kids came running out and we helped tie it up. Then the men climbed out."

Extremists in Second Resolution For Shop Committees Are Successful.

Associated Press Despatch.
Southborough, Eng., Sept. 9.—The radical wing of the trades union congress met with another reverse today when its proposal for a reduction in the number of unions and the formation of one big union was defeated by a half-million votes.

Representatives of several of the larger unions spoke against the proposal. Ben Tillet, secretary to the political and international department of the transport and general workers' union, one of the strongest supporters of the proposal, twitted the delegates with being conservative minded.

The extremists later were more successful when a resolution was adopted by a majority of one million votes calling for shop committees in all workshops and declaring such committees "indispensable weapons in the struggle to force the capitalists to relinquish their grip on industry."

Several freight cars were derailed. None of the passenger coaches left the tracks.

The injured are: Henry Atkins, engineer, and Michael Baldwin, fireman, both of this city. Both have fractured skulls.

The woman injured was en route from St. Catharines, Ont., to Mexico. She refused to give her name and her injuries treated. The passenger train was en route from Toronto to Niagara Falls.

RANKIN HAS BEST CHANCE

Welland Liberals, Though, Are Vigorously Pressing Claims of W. M. German, M.P.

By E. C. BUCHANAN.
Special to The Advertiser.
Ottawa, Sept. 9.—Dr. W. A. Rankin of North Perth is running a neck-and-neck race for the remaining vacant Ontario senatorship. The closeness of the contest is delaying decision as to which of them wins.

Last week Dr. Rankin had the appointment almost in his pocket. Then, just before the list of appointments was to be released, his was recalled. Heavy pressure on the government from Welland in behalf of Mr. German was what intervened.

It is understood that Mr. German has let it be known that he will not resign and that his appointment to the senate would be in the interests of the party's candidate in the riding.

The pressure that is being exercised in support of both candidates for the vacancy is furnishing the government with a problem. Having had the prize almost in his possession, Dr. Rankin is thought to have a little the best chance.

His appointment may be made on the return of Premier King to Ottawa at the end of the week, but it may be deferred.

For the Manitoba vacancy, created by the death of Senator Bradbury, Dr. Malloy of Winnipeg, former member of the legislature, is the most prominent candidate.

He has strong claims to consideration. A leading aspirant for the remaining vacancy is ex-Premier Foster. There is a possibility, however, that Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state, may resign and take the place. There are many applicants.

Paris, Sept. 9.—The long-heralded Franco-Spanish offensive against Abd-el-Krim's Rifian tribesmen and their allies has begun and will soon be in full swing, it was said in official quarters today.

The Spaniards after their successful landing on the shores of Alhucemas Bay yesterday are marching on to the south.

CHECK FOR $8,000 IS SURPRISE

London Firm Gets 40 Per Cent Dividend as Hearst Company Creditor.

PROMOTER ON TRIAL
Joseph X. Hearst Says Investors, as Well as Creditors, To Be Paid.

A check for approximately $8,000 was received this morning by a London lithographing firm, as a 40 per cent payment of their account with the bankrupt Hearst Music Publishers of Canada, a Winnipeg firm which went bankrupt some time ago.

Spoken to by Joseph X. Hearst, promoter of the concern, will appear for trial this week on a charge of fraud. He declares that ultimately he will repay every dollar of the investors and creditors' money.

The amount received here represents part of the cost of publishing the several musical hits which the company circulated before bankruptcy. The London firm did all the printing and publishing for the concern. Two brothers, officials of the lithographing company, invested a considerable amount in the enterprise, but at that condition they never expected the stockholders to get a cent, but was pleased that the firm had received some compensation.

KNOLLWOOD HAS GARBAGE SERVICE

Collectors Make First Trip Across C. P. R. Tracks With Wagons.

In accordance with the decision made at the council last night, a garbage wagon actually made its appearance in Knollwood park this morning. The residents of the park could hardly believe their eyes, when it crossed the C. P. R. tracks. Previously it had shunned the other side as forbidden territory. Very few had their refuse ready for the collection.

The collection is the end of a long agitation by the Knollwood Park Ratepayers' association. A promise to start it was made at the first meeting of the association, but apparently forgotten. A few skeptics point out that the municipal elections are drawing near, and the garbage wagon which has been broken down for a period of six months, pending an official inquiry in Great Britain into the existing machinery for the representation of seamen on the waterfront, has not yet been replaced.

The alteration of the constitution of the seamen's unions so as to insure that such representation shall be adequate.

The seamen's strike was the result of an announced wage reduction of £1 per month. The strike, however, was not recognized as official by the National Sailors' and Firemen's union, which accepted the cut in wages. J. Havelock Wilson, who is at present in Canada, is president of the union.

Mike's Return To Taxi Rows Brings Bills, Jail Threat

Mike Tagney's fisty battle with taxi drivers last night was just a repetition of his many past exploits against London's night life and the police.

Tagney came to the city yesterday from Crumlin. He became intoxicated, and late in the evening hired a taxi-cab to take him home. After a five-mile drive he reeled from the motor car and declared himself to be penniless and unable to pay his fare. The fight followed and in the fracas Tagney broke a door and a window. The taxi driver managed to bundle Mike into the rear seat of the cab, however, and proceeded to the police station.

Tagney was placed under arrest not only because he was drunk, but because two bottles of liquor were found in his hip pockets.

A taxi bill of $12 confronted him when he appeared before the magistrate this morning. Damages to the motor car and the remainder was made up in his fare to Crumlin and back. In addition to the taxi bill the police charged him with an account against him for $50 and costs for an offence against the O. T. A. For non-payment of the account he was sent to a drunk charge he is always mixed up in a taxi cab fight. The police told the court this morning. "He gets taxi drivers to take him home and then always refuses to pay."

Three Blowouts Hit Car at Once

Hon. Arthur Meighen in Address at Wingham Scores Government's Record. OUTLINES HIS POLICY

Claims Money Being Squandered to Keep C. N. R. on Its Feet.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Wingham, Sept. 9.—In a speech which was at one and the same time a reply to charges made by Premier Mackenzie King at North York, and a declaration of the policy of the Conservative party on the major issues, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen today opened his election campaign. Mr. Meighen repeated his declaration that the present government is "feeble and futile," lacking in policy on the main problems of the day, and quite unable to carry on the business of the country in a successful manner.

The Conservative leader satirized that portion of the prime minister's speech in which Mr. King blamed him for being "the principal cause of the country's calamities." "I make this statement in the hearing of thousands, and I ask each of you if it is not absolutely true; of the half million or more people who have left this dominion to make a living during the regime of Mr. King, there is not one human being of the lot of them who moved away from his home land because of any words of mine," Mr. Meighen asserted. "They went, practically every one, because they could not stay. They had to live and they went where work was to be found."

Once again the Conservative leader declared his belief that the great subject of policy in Canada was tariff policy. Mr. King had "flicked this issue," but "it is the people of Canada are not going to be befuddled by the twisting and shifting practices of Mr. King," added Meighen, who continued that "a sound and strong and definite protective policy is the only means by which we can live and prosper."

In the matter of senate reform the government had not a single proposal which it dare make, and until Mr. King told the country what he proposes to do, it is all moonshine to be talking about the supposed issue of senate reform."

Would Cut Rail Outlay.
By the government's railway policy Canada was being mortgaged. Under Mr. King's government the debt of Canada on the national system had increased by $234,000,000—three-quarters the whole debt of Canada in 1913. "Mr. King does it, because he is supplying money by the fact he has supplied it. He deliberately rushed the whole system into a bog," Meighen declared. "If the present government was returned to power the gulf would soon be reached. I will not say that I will stop these new capital investments with a strong and first month's notice. There will be no more Scribe bills, no more skyscrapers on Yonge street, there will be no more extravagant courses and radio systems here, there and everywhere; there will be a determined effort to get the last dollar out of the property we have, and not waste adding blindly to our obligations and our troubles."

Meighen opened his speech by referring to the fact that the gathering was in a sense the first Conservative meeting of the campaign. "For four years we have been assured times without number by the prime minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, that his government was dealing in a masterly way with the nation's problems, or if not dealing with them, was just about to start to deal with them, and was supported in the house of commons by large majorities of what he described as men of liberal thought," said Mr. Meighen. "On Saturday last, however, he got a lot nearer the truth, and in a long oration in North York he confessed to the people of Canada that they could not deal with the problems of the nation at all, and the only way to deal with them was to have a sufficient majority in the house of commons. For that reason, he said, there must be an election."

Whole Country Relieved.
"The whole country is relieved, because there has at last come to an end the most sterile parliament this nation has ever known, and the people of Canada are relieved still more because they feel themselves called to the end of the most feeble and futile government this dominion has yet been called on to endure."

"The speech of a government leader opened a campaign if it is to be of any value should review the actual accomplishments of his government and constitute a clear declaration of principle and a declaration of policy for public approval. From the first to the last Mr. King's speech

STEAMER SAGAMO DAMAGED BY FIRE

Superstructure of Vessel Burned While Lying at Gravenhurst Dock.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Gravenhurst, Sept. 9.—Damage estimated at $75,000 was suffered by the steamer Sagamo of the Muskoka Lakes Navigation and Hotel Company, when fire this morning destroyed a great section of the vessel. Known to patrons as the "40-mile cruiser," the Sagamo was at its dock here being fitted up for the winter, the summer sailing schedule having been completed a few days ago. The fire broke out about 10 o'clock, but all made their escape in safety. The Sagamo was built in 1906, at a cost of approximately $200,000.

The superstructure, with the exception of the dining-room in the after part of the boat, was destroyed by the fire, but practically no damage to the engine and other machinery.

South Africa Suffers From Seamen's Strike
Basis for Settlement is Being Sought by the Government.

Associated Press Despatch.
Cape Town, South Africa, Sept. 9.—A possible basis for the settlement of the unofficial strike of British seamen, which is having serious results owing to the delay in the shipping of South Africa's maize crop, may be found in the offer of the government to pay the cost of the strike, pending an official inquiry in Great Britain into the existing machinery for the representation of seamen on the waterfront, has not yet been replaced.

PERMANENT PEACE IS EUROPE'S HOPE

League Circles Radiate Optimism in Belief Germany Will Talk Security.

Associated Press Despatch. Geneva, Sept. 8.—Optimism in allied circles regarding the prospects for the reconstruction of Europe on a basis of permanent peace in agreement with Germany received a new impetus today.

An early meeting between the foreign ministers of the allied powers and of Germany to discuss the security pact now seems very assured, and it probably will be held in some Swiss city early in October. That Dr. Stresemann, the German foreign minister, will attend, seems definitely assumed by the allied statesmen, and this afternoon, Premier Painlevé and Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, of England, went by automobile to Aix-les-Bains, where they apprised Premier Baldwin, of Great Britain, of their decision to invite Dr. Stresemann to such a conference.

The suspension today of sessions of the assembly of the League of Nations to permit organization of that body's machinery made it possible for the three allied leaders to make this journey.

It was learned tonight that the first meeting with Dr. Stresemann, which Premier Mussolini of Italy probably will attend, is likely to be followed by others, thus permitting careful reflection on any thorny point which may arise during the first contacts.

At present the allied leaders have no intention of convoking a great

GAIN OF OVER 100 IN STOCK ENTRIES

There Will Be Over 700 Head of Livestock On Exhibit at Fair.

Getting toward the bottom of the pile of entries at the Western Fair office, the staff was able last night to estimate the number of livestock to be shown at this year's exhibition, and found an increase over last year's totals. The number of cattle is greater by 131 head—there will be about 700 in the various classes—which means that all the increased accommodation provided will be required, and perhaps a little more.

There will be 87 more sheep than last year's fair. The number of swine is greater by 55 and horses by 20.

Western Fair will not only live up to its reputation as a great stock show, but is evidently going to set a new record and force the directorate to think about further enlargement of stable accommodation for the 1926 show.

TURKEY DEMANDS MOSUL PLEBISCITE

Plan For Suppression of Slavery Sponsored by British Delegate.

Associated Press Despatch. Geneva, Sept. 8.—New complications in regard to the Mosul question arose suddenly tonight, when Tewfik Ruzhdi Bey, the Turkish foreign minister, issued a statement declaring that Turkey would never agree to accept the decision of the league council unless it is consonant with the existing treaties. It is reported that Turkey will demand a plebiscite for the disputed territory. A project for a protocol aimed at the suppression of all forms of slavery was introduced in the League of Nations assembly today by Viscount Cecil of the British delegation.

Erindale, Sept. 8.—Premier W. L. M. King is determined to show a firm hand in dealing with Canada's huge problems. He will face the issues of the day with a working majority and the full support of the people or he will again appeal to the people.

Addressing electors of Peel county here today, Premier King declared that problems of the dominion must be settled with a decisive hand. Group government or a party administration cannot hope for successful settlement of these issues, he said.

He pressed, as he has pressed at previous meetings since he opened his Ontario campaign, for a substantial majority to enable the government to carry out its program on the tariff, on transportation, on immigration and in reform of the senate. Then he intimated that if the government's majority in the next house was not sufficient, he would ask for dissolution a second time. "If," he declared, "we were again faced with the situation that confronted us in the last four years I should ask for another dissolution of parliament to get this matter straightened out, until we get a majority sufficient to meet the country's needs."

STANDS BY UNION JACK.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press.

Erindale, Sept. 8.—Possibilities of a second general election hovered over the Liberal picnic, at which Premier King addressed the electors of Peel here today. The premier made it clear he would not work without a clear majority.

The picnic was held in the spacious grounds of the country home of Percy Park, Liberal candidate in Peel, and had the air rather of a garden party than of the stereotyped political picnic, although Mr. Parker apologized to the audience for the election act he could not even offer them a "bun."

The occasion was marked by the first public appearance of Hon. George N. Gordon since he was sworn in as minister of immigration. Mr. Gordon described Mr. Meighen, Conservative leader, as suffering from "astigmatism of thought" and defaming the industry of Canada until people were afraid to go into trade.

Mr. Gordon said that the Conservatives had never been so limited as it is today. He cited the companies as having increased their stock by a million dollars. "We are on the upward trend," he declared.

Both Premier King and Mr. Parker were emphatic in their belief in the flag. "I stand for the British flag, baptized with the blood of our sons," Mr. King took opportunity to refer in some detail to the famous order-in-council of some months ago, which authorized a committee to report and study on a distinctive flag for Canada. "The committee," stressed Mr. King, "had no authority to change the flag; it was merely authorized to study and report; and as for himself, he was not at the meeting of the council and did not know the order-in-council had been passed until he read it in the newspapers. The defence department had sent in a request for authority to study and, in response, the order-in-council was passed."

"Our Tory opponents," went on Mr. King, "did not hesitate to do that unpatriotic thing, traffic with the flag for purely political party purposes. They tried to make it appear that the Mackenzie King government was trying to devise a new Canadian flag, when Mackenzie King did not even know that the order-in-council had been passed. I saw what the Conservatives were doing; I informed the house of commons that the order-in-council would be rescinded, and that there would be no adoption of a new Canadian flag without a resolution from parliament itself."

"I am proud to live under the Union Jack," the prime minister proclaimed. "It is my flag. For twenty years the Union Jack itself—not the ensign—has flown in front of my country home; and this is the position I hold."

Trade is favorable.

Mr. King claimed that under the Liberal administration, and despite Mr. Meighen's "blight of pessimism," exports had increased, while imports had gone down. In the year ending July 31, 1922, the total exports of Canada amounted to $767,000,000; in the next year, $894,000,000; in the year ending July 31 last, they reached the colossal figure of $1,098,000,000.

Mr. Meighen has said there must be a protective tariff to keep out imports. Yet, although the present government had not increased the tariff, imports had declined. In the year ending July 31, 1922, they were $730,000,000; in the next year—before the Liberal policy had really got to working, they increased to $880,000,000.

In the following year, instead of an increase in imports, there was a decrease to $850,000,000.

By July 31, 1925, they had dropped

DRURY MAY ENTER FIELD.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—Former Premier E. C. Drury is to become a candidate in the coming federal elections, according to a rumor that was current among Progressives who arrived in town this morning. No mention was made as to the riding that Mr. Drury would contest if he ran, but popular rumor had it that he would be in the running.

ESSEX LIBERALS ARM.

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, Sept. 8.—A candidate to represent West Essex Liberals is to be chosen in the riding of Essex on Saturday, Sept. 19, at Windsor. The date for the convention was named today by Albert Gordon, secretary of the Liberal association of West Essex.

Arrangements for the meeting are to be made next Saturday. On the same date Liberals of South Essex are to choose their candidate at Kingsville. In the west constituency members of the party say it is uncertain whether Albert F. Healy will run again. He is in California, but is expected to be at Saturday's meeting. His most likely opponent, should he stand for re-election, will be Col. C. C. Robinson of Walkerville, Conservative, whom he defeated two years ago. The Conservatives name their candidate at the contest will be Eccles J. Gott, Conservative, of Amherstburg, and probably George P. Graham, Liberal, minister of the riding of Essex.

Raymond D. Morand of Windsor has been chosen to oppose Dr. C. Odette of Tilbury, the Liberal candidate. Dr. Morand is a Conservative.

SEE FURTHER CHANGES.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—Should the present government be returned to power, it is likely to be further re-adjusted, two ministers, Hon. Charles Murphy and Hon. Dr. Beland, are it is understood, are in office only until then be some re-casting of portfolios.

LESUEUR IS READY.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Sept. 8.—R. V. Lesueur, Conservative member for this constituency, and who defeated Senator F. P. Pardee in the election of 1921, said today that his name would go before the Conservative convention for nomination. This means that Mr. Lesueur is practically certain to be the Conservative standard-bearer.

The situation in the Liberal camp will be more definite following the convention which has been called for September 17 at Sarnia. Possibilities for the honor of candidate include W. T. Goodison, Mayor James Barr, ex-Mayor Geo. A. C. Andrew, Dr. J. R. Gregor Brown, and Donahue.

It is generally conceded that it will be a straight two-party fight in West Lambton.

In Essex Lambton, J. E. Armstrong of Petrolia was recently given the Conservative nomination, and the probabilities are that in this straight also the Conservative will be the one to be considered possible that B. W. Fansher, the present U. O. E. member, may join the Liberal party and run under its banner.

Another puzzle in connection with the Liberal nomination for East Lambton is that of I. Greenizen, Petrolia lawyer.

SOUTH PERTH RALLY DAY.

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, Sept. 8.—The announcement of the date of the election on Saturday by Premier King has started the political pot boiling in North and South Perth in true election style.

It was confidently expected that Dr. J. P. Rankin, M.P., would have been gazetted senator. Another rumor that would have met with the approval of both parties here. There is still a possibility that he may receive the third appointment, but definite information has been received to the contrary.

May Face Difficulties.

A point of interest in connection with the announcement is the effect on the North Perth Liberal convention, which is to be held in Milverton tomorrow. Should Dr. Rankin get the third senate seat, he would be obliged to retire, which is not unlikely, the convention will be faced with the problem of picking a new man.

There are good men plenty to pick from, and among these are F. W. McNeil, former Liberal leader in the Ontario House, Mayor Tom Brown and John Stevenson.

The announcement was made this morning that the conservative nominating convention would be held at to $817,000,000. While exports had gone up, imports had gone down.

On the tariff, Mr. King held that the proposed advisory board would do much to protect the one hand and free trade on the other. Agricultural and manufacturing interests would be able to confer to see if some policy could not be found which would be fair to both east and west.

No tariff policy is entitled to be called national unless it had the interests of the nation at heart," he said.

Mr. Gordon, speaking of immigration, declared he had the word of the prime minister that an active immigration movement would be inaugurated which would bring in people of the right class.

Senator Pardee, speaking as a member of the upper house, thought some reform of the senate would do good.

Premier Makes Plain His Firm Opposition To Any Suggestion of Annexation.

IS UNTHINKABLE

King Cheered To the Echo by Directors of National Exhibition.

SPEAKS ON TRADE

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—Stating in forceful and eloquent language what it means to be a citizen of Canada, of the British Empire, and of the world, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, premier of Canada, stirred the two hundred men at the C. N. E. luncheon today to an outburst of enthusiasm rarely seen at these gatherings.

The premier, though a bit hoarse, was in good form, and delivered one of the most notable speeches ever given at an Exhibition luncheon. He was given a great ovation to begin with, accompanied to the singing of "For ne's a jolly good fellow," and three cheers and a tiger, and at the end of his brief speech, the whole gathering rose again and cheered him to the echo.

The premier made it abundantly clear that he stood for a Canadian first citizenship. In being true to himself Canada would be true to the British empire, and some of the beneficial influence in all the world.

Annexation Not Thought of.

As for annexation to the United States, he said, Canadians were not thinking of it. Turning to the U. S. consul, Howard Shantz, he said, "and might assure my friend, Mr. Shantz, that it would be just as reasonable for the United States to be annexed to the British empire, and if anything, that should come first."

He appealed for international amity and friendship, and spoke of the honor given Canada in the choice of a Canadian, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, to preside over the league of Nations.

At the same time, in speaking of Canada's first place in the British empire, he declared that the empire was a real league of nations, bonded together in ties of love and loyalty, and setting an example for the world to follow.

In the same way Canada and the United States, with 110 years of peace and no weapons of war on their frontiers, gave a lead for the world to follow.

"Helping Our Fellowmen."

"All down the ages there have been two ideas struggling with each other, the idea of the militarist and the industrialist," he said. He quoted Pasteur, the noted scientist, who said in 1890 that there were two contrary laws working in the world, one of blood and death, and the other of peace and work and health. The seeking violent conquest of one by the other was the welfare of man. To one seeking the welfare of man, the welfare of the world was the welfare of one man, and to the other the saving of one life was a great victory.

"There lies the significance of our international relations. Human society is built on principles of help, and that is the rest of the British empire, that shall ultimately prevail." (Applause.)

Products Go All Directions.

Then he touched on Canada's industrial and trade status. "Our products go all directions," he said.

Another puzzle.

The picking of a Conservative standard bearer will also be a somewhat difficult matter since several names are available. First, there is H. B. Morphy, K.C., who formerly represented the riding of Ottawa as a Conservative, and Dr. J. A. Beatty, H. W. Strudley and J. C. Makens, K.C., of Stratford, D. A. Dempsey, of Ellice, president of the Ontario Conservative association, Dr. James Moore, Listowel, and Dr. P. L. Tye, of Milverton, are all possibilities.

In South Perth there is already a Liberal candidate in the field, Capt. F. G. Sanderson. On Friday of this week the election campaign will be a Conservative one, and there is also being placed in the field. Then in addition to that there is a rumor current that the Conservative candidate who meets with the approval of the temperance forces, that a fourth, or dry candidate, will be placed in the field.

A number of men are mentioned as likely Conservative candidates. Among them are: Dr. Michael Steele, of Stratford, who was the last Conservative member for that riding; J. W. Graham, C. Richardson, St. Marys; W. Graham, Blanshard; Dr. W. J. M. Armstrong, Mitchell, and S. J. Monteith, Downie.

MEIGHEN'S PROGRAM.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—Tomorrow afternoon Wingham, North Huron constituency, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, will open his election campaign. Mr. Meighen's speech, it is expected, will be in the nature of a reply to many of the charges made by the Premier King in his initial speech at Richmond on Saturday last. It is thought, however, that the Conservative leader will do much to answer the charges made by the premier. He has declared that the prime minister lacks a policy on four of the major problems of the day. Mr. Meighen will, it is expected, indicate his policy on some, if not all, of these problems in his speech which will sound the keynote for the Conservative speakers throughout Canada.

Mr. Meighen will be accompanied by Senator G. D. Robertson, former minister of justice, and Premier King's opposition leader and his party go to Bethany for another meeting the following day. Meetings will be held at Leamington and Amherstburg on Friday, and at Chatham on Saturday. Mr. Meighen will go to the Maritime provinces next week.

ducts go out to all the world. You see, at the center of the export trade has grown tremendously in the last few years. Then he gave these export figures:

1922—$707,000,000.
1923—$894,000,000.
1924—$1,066,000,000.
1925 (part)—$1,098,000,000.

Thus in three years we have an increase of 43 per cent. in our exports. Is there any Canadian who can feel other than a great pride in such an increase?

Favorable Trade Balance.

Then he went on to show the favorable trade balance that Canada enjoyed. The imports had dropped in the last few years as these figures showed:

1923 $850,000,000
1924 817,000,000
1925 817,000,000

As a result, the balance of trade which was only a little over $6,000,000 a few years ago was now $288,000,000. Canada was importing less and exporting much more.

It was this friendly commerce with other nations that was helping to give Canada status in world affairs, he said.

To the consuls of the various nations who were present (the consuls man had read a long list of nations represented) Premier King said, "I wished to give an expression of the heartfelt goodwill of Canada. The cultivation of trade and friendship would only result in good to the countries concerned and to the world at large."

Making a passing reference to Mr. Shantz' remark as to the premier's father and his own being friends in Waterloo county, Mr. King said, "I think to the C. N. E. directors that if they wanted good exhibits they should go to that county, where they produce good things in all lines."

Have Duty to World.

"What is Canadian citizenship?" the premier asked. "In a word, it is service in some form or other; public service to the country to which we belong. But there is, I believe, a larger citizenship—the citizenship within the British empire (Applause). We also have another citizenship, a world citizenship. There is the responsibility to world affairs in which we as Canadians must play a part."

The premier referred to the change in this day at the exhibition from a day for American visitors to an international day, and emphasized the growing representation here from other countries.

He returned to the subject of citizenship and pointed out that while some people advocated only an empire citizenship and some a Canadian citizenship the onus was on those advocates to show how the citizenship they urged would benefit the world more than the other. Canada were withdrawn from the British empire," said he, "it would probably mean that Australia would be withdrawn, that one by one the colonies would be left by themselves. Does anyone believe that it would be good for Canada?"

Have Envious Position.

"I say," he went on, "that if we believe in a league of nations, we cannot too strongly emphasize the league of nations that exists in reality in the British empire. (Applause). Our Canadian citizenship has placed us in an enviable position that we can join with the rest of the British empire to give an example to mankind."

WILL ENFORCE ADOLESCENT ACT

Toronto Officials Will Not Grant Work Permits to Boys.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Sept. 8.—Following his recent intimation that the adolescent school attendance act would be more strictly enforced, Premier G. H. Ferguson, who is also minister of education, today concurred in the view of the chairman of the Toronto board of education that permits for boys under age wishing to avoid the regulations of the act, will have to be passed on by the government.

Chairman McBrien, stating that it was useless for boys under 16 to apply for permits to work today said that "unless we enforce the act the Ontario government has intimated that the Toronto board of education will not receive grants to the sum of $300,000 which come to us."

First Time in History of Presbytery That Such a Plea Made.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Sept. 8.—When Mrs. W. A. D. T. L. McKerrill, said he thought it was the first time in his experience "that a lady has spoken in support of a call in this presbytery."

"Perhaps it is an indication of what is going to take place in the future," the moderator said.

NEW HOTEL STOCK CAMPAIGN WILL BE PLANNED TONIGHT

Committee Workers to Discuss Details at Luncheon This Evening.

PROMOTER PLEASSED

Heavy Vote in Favor of Both the Bylaws was a Surprise.

Plans for the local stock campaign in connection with London's new million dollar hotel on Federal square will be materially advanced at a luncheon meeting of all committee workers at Smallman & Ingram's tonight at 6:15 o'clock.

James G. Trainer, vice-president of the Lynch Construction Co., New York, promoter of the hotel, and W. A. Lyman, vice-president of W. W. Ahlshlager, Inc., Chicago, architects for the building, arrived in town this morning for the preliminary conference with John S. Moore, manager of the London & Western Trusts Company, preparatory to attending the committee meeting tonight.

With Mr. Trainer and Mr. Lyman in the city it is confidently expected that details can be finally arranged in connection with the sale of the preferred stock which could not otherwise have been settled in an official way.

The interruption of the Labor Day holiday and other matters may possibly be considered by the committee tonight in discussing the advisability of holding over the stock campaign until after the Western Fair. The decision in particular will be reached at the meeting of the committee tonight.

J. J. McFadden, chairman of the hotel campaign committee, will preside at the luncheon, assisted by Clarence R. May, chairman of the sub-committee named by the larger committee to shape some of the details to be arranged from the local end as it pertains to the campaign.

Speaking at the Advertiser this morning Mr. Trainer expressed his gratification with the splendid vote on the two hotel bylaws last Saturday.

"It was a larger vote than I had anticipated," remarked Mr. Trainer, "and this fact, together with the fact that only two subdivisions voted against the bylaws, proved that the work of the local committee had been most faithfully carried out. To well and faithfully carry out the work of the local committee has been the aim of the campaign, and it is gratifying to find that the majority on the bylaws was in view of the reports we had heard before the vote as to expectation being taken to the fixed assessment."

"Mr. Lyman and myself are here," concluded Mr. Trainer, "to do all we can to help the committee here put across the stock campaign as successfully as they did the bylaw campaign."

Many improvements to fair buildings Grandstand Capacity Has Been Increased Over One-Third.

London fair is not yet a serious rival to the National at Toronto, but improvements to the fair grounds, which have been made within the past year point to the fact that in the not distant future this may become a possibility. Changes on the grounds this year are numerous and varied. The horse and cattle barns have been greatly improved. The front, formerly unsightly board structures, have been replaced with attractive pressed brick entrances and it is hoped another year to rebuild the entire barns running back from these fronts. The interior of the barns has also been improved and accommodation for increased entries provided.

In front of the grand stand the changes are more considerably enlarged and put in place to furnish space for the staging of more elaborate attractions than the fair has had in the past. The grandstand seating capacity has been increased over one-third by the erection of splendid new bleachers on the north end of the covered stand.

EXPANSION EXPECTED IN CITY HALL BLOCK

Hall Itself Good Enough for Years to Come, Dr. Stevenson Says.

London's city hall is plenty good enough for some years to come, according to Dr. H. A. Stevenson. Nevertheless, business expansion in the city hall block is confidently expected by Dr. Stevenson, who lauds the endorsement of the new hotel project.

"Once there were five or six hotels in this vicinity," points out Dr. Stevenson. "One was needed badly, without much accommodation for the tourist at any place between Clarence street and the eastern city limits."

Dr. Stevenson suggests that business expansion will go east on both sides of Dundas street and does not believe the armories building will impede progress.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERK'S HEARING IS POSTPONED

Lloyd McLeod, well known London railway mail clerk, who was arrested at Simcoe last week on a charge of rifling the mails was again remanded this morning. He comes up for trial on Tuesday.

The alleged robberies took place on the mail clerk's car between St. Thomas and Canfield. On Wednesday last he was taken from his car and lodged in the Simcoe jail on a charge of stealing letters. It is understood that no mail matter of any description was found on his person at the time of his arrest.

LONDON SCHOLAR STUDIES ABROAD

Gilbert Tucker Sails For England to Take Post-Graduate Work.

Gilbert Tucker, son of Rev. Dean Norman Tucker of St. Paul's cathedral, sailed from New York this morning on the steamer Aquitania for England to take a post-graduate course in Cambridge university. Mr. Tucker is one of London's most brilliant scholars, and his present course in economics and history at Cambridge comes as the result of his winning the provincial scholarship in graduating for his degree as master of arts from Western university.

In addition to his arts course, Mr. Tucker studied medicine concurrently with the arts course, and has successfully completed his third year for the degree in medicine.

The post-graduate course in Cambridge will be an interesting one, periods of instruction and lectures will be alternated with two-month periods of research in the historical archives of old London. Mr. Tucker will complete his studies in England in June, 1926.

UNION BANDSMEN CALL MEETING

Will Place Details of Dispute Before the Fair Committee.

The officials of the bandsmen's union will meet the attractions committee of the Western Fair board at 8 o'clock this evening in an effort to come to some understanding concerning the matters which have disrupted negotiations between the fair officials and the union bands in London.

It is the wish of the bandmen to place all of their cards on the table in a fair way, so that the attractions committee will see both sides of the dispute before final arrangements for fair week music have been completed.

The bandmen, it is understood, think that some consideration for their status as ratepayers should be given in settling the matter, and an appeal on these grounds will be made tonight.

On the part of the fair board the feeling is one of hope for an early and friendly conclusion to the dispute which has kept these two bodies apart. Frank Harley, chairman of the attractions committee, stated yesterday that the committee does not wish to act in an arbitrary manner, and on this statement the bandmen and others interested pin their hopes for a mutually satisfactory settlement.

BOARD MUST APPROVE FINAL SCHOOL PLAN

Trustees Face Lengthy Session on East London Problems.

Owing to yesterday's special meeting of the board of education failing to materialize for want of a quorum the regular meeting of the board tomorrow will necessarily be a lengthy one.

Consideration must be given at the meeting to the approval of the final plans prepared by L. E. Carrothers, superintendent of buildings and repairs, assisted by T. A. Munford, local architect, for the new east London collegiate institute. Provided the plans are approved steps will be taken to call for tenders immediately in order that a start may be made on the work this fall. The delay occasioned already means that the school can not be opened next September, as at first anticipated, but that it will have to remain over until January.

A decision will likely be made as to the use of Sir Adam Beck's name in designating the school, whether the Adam Beck Memorial school, the Sir Adam Beck school, or whatever name is to be chosen.

Considerable business of a routine nature will complete a full agenda.

ACCELERATOR AGAIN.

DEAN ADDRESSES ALUMNI MEETING

Former Huron College Students Gathered Here for Annual Reunion.

Recalling the theological school days of 1872 and the years following, the Very Rev. Dean Tucker, D.C.L., spoke last night at the annual meeting of the alumni of Huron college. His subject was "Reminiscences of Church Life." About 40 members were gathered in the historic buildings on St. George street.

"We are a little family of clergy gathered about tables and I am going to speak freely of the life of the clergy woven into the church," said Dean Tucker.

The students of today were largely the same as they were 50 years ago, said Dean Tucker. They were largely human. The colleges then were not as they are now. Dean Tucker attended a school known as "Divinity Shanty." He recounted stories of those school days, terms filled with study and after hours given over to athletics and practical jokes of the students.

Dean Tucker mentioned in his anecdotes the names of well known personages in the national theological life of the day, the Lord Bishop of Hamilton, the Lord Bishop of Algoma, and the Most Rev. Lord Archbishop of Nova Scotia. They were all mentioned as starting out to study that they might proclaim the word to the dominion.

The earlier students were not disposed to choose the way, but to go where they were sent. The call of the bishop was the call of the church and the call of God.

The dean said that God could overrule all things for the better. He could do what he pleased. He could tell what he had hoped to do to Western Canada so that he could tell what lay beyond the Red river. That was when the C. P. R. was pushing toward Winnipeg. He had hoped to see the Indians and the buffalo and did go west and it was one of the most important incidents in his life.

In June, 1886, Dean Tucker returned to Montreal to assist Dean Carmichael of St. George's in Montreal. It was one of the happiest positions. For there he learned that the dean should be and tried to carry out the ideal of the brotherhood of the ministry of the Christian church.

The minister also spoke of the times of his days when some bishops did not like to part with their clergy, but wished to jealously guard them in the confines of their own diocese. Just some adventuresome exponent of the gospel from the outlying parts ask for needed help in the hinterland.

Bishop Williams spoke briefly of the contribution of the alumni to the buildings of Huron college. They had raised funds for the heating plant, re-commissioned them on their work saying that the work they had done was the least of what they would accomplish in the future.

The Rev. A. C. Wright occupied the chair.

Session Postponed Until Sept. 22, Rev. John McNair, D.D., Announces.

Announcement was made today by Rev. John McNair, D.D., clerk of the London Presbyterian presbytery, of the postponement of the meeting of that body called for Sept. 15 to one week later at New St. James' Presbyterian church. Dr. McNair explained that the date had been changed on account of the Western Fair and for other reasons as well. Incidentally the meeting falls on the day for the inaugural of the London United church conference in Metropolitan church here.

Co-incidental with the announcement gave out that five calls will be considered by presbytery when it convenes, as follows: Rev. F. W. Gilmore, B.A., Atwood, called to Elmwood avenue church, London; Rev. Peter Jamieson, Port Stanley, called to Long Branch; Rev. Mr. Cameron, Michigan, called to Wallaceton and West Lorne; Rev. James Hagen, Toronto, called to Bethel; Rev. Peter Mathieson, London, called to Kintyre.

Rev. James MacKay, B.D., London, moderator, will preside, after an extended absence on holidays.

ALL AVAILABLE SPACE IN BIG BUILDING GONE

Unprecedented Demand by Exhibitors Pleases Fair Officials.

The sale of the last space for display purposes in the new Manufacturers' Building at Western Fair this morning marks another step in advance. This is a new record, the leasing of all available space, and with exhibitors being offered substitute space in other buildings, the officials who sponsored the erection of the new building find complete justification for the expenditure of money, which at that time was considered a large amount for Western Fair to shoulder.

Secretary Jackson is proud of the increasing popularity of Western Fair as indicated by the unprecedented number of entries and predicts something beyond the usual standard in the satisfaction which the 1926 fair will give to Londoners and those who visit it from outside points.

TRACK CROSSING IMPROVED.

Hundreds of motorists who pass on Ridout street at Bathurst, have noticed the improvement that has been made at the L. and P. S. tracks. Previously at this track crossing the road has been very rough. The city has repaired the road at this spot and it is now in good shape. The road between Wellington and Clarence streets, on York street, has been under repairs for several days, and is still closed to traffic.

Early Strike Settlement Is Prediction of Miners; Fuel Famine Ridiculed

Londoner Visits Scene of 'Anthrax Tie-up in Pennsylvania.

NO DEMONSTRATIONS

Much Fuel is Being Moved From Mines With Strike in Progress.

Citizens resident in the mining district of Pennsylvania do not regard the present strike of coal operators in that area with gravity, according to Harry Bradford, Canadian National Railway conductor of this city, who has returned from a holiday spent in Harrisburg, Pa., and neighboring cities. Mr. Bradford declares that unlike their Canadian neighbors, the strikers do not consider that their action in dropping work will cause a "death of fuel this winter. They predict an early settlement of differences and a speedy resumption of labor.

While on his holiday Mr. Bradford had the opportunity of observing the strike, and informed the Advertiser that the men are very orderly in fighting to gain their point, and aside from the fact that there are many idle workers to see visitors would never suspect that a strike so widespread and embracing such a large number of miners is in full sway.

Men Are Confident.

"There were no demonstrations or lawbreaking incidents during the several days which I spent in the heart of the mining district of Pennsylvania," he told the Advertiser Tuesday. "The men seem to be enjoying a holiday, and are confident of winning. Several with whom I talked informed me to this effect. They do not predict an early settlement, and laughed when I spoke of the concern felt by Canadians over the possibility of a coal famine, and the fact that strikers seemed to possess sufficient funds to provide them with pleasure and recreation during their time off. The theatres being filled, and everyone having a good time."

"While I was in Harrisburg, the state capital, a large deputation of strikers was present upon the several days that they were in the question which might be fully presented. These union officials were quite orderly, and that is the policy in this strike having a good time."

Being interested in railway work, Mr. Bradford noted that despite the fact that the strikers had several days coal in stock, they were being interested in railway work.

Much Fuel Being Moved.

"Although I do not know what the normal transportation of coal amounts to during the year," he said, "I noted the great number of trains loaded with anthracite and soft coal which were being hauled to the mines working in the district. Solid trains, all long ones, consisting of anthracite coal only in some cases, while others were all soft coal, and to be continuously moving on the Pennsylvania and on the Reading lines. This may be fuel loaded before the strike, or it may be what is now being brought to the surface before the men quit work."

"Most of the people down there have acquired the supply of winter coal at a price about one-quarter what we in London pay," he concluded. "Possibly that accounts for their unconcern over the approaching cold weather, but all agreed that the strike will not be of long duration."

Mr. Bradford, who resides at 513 Simcoe street, returned to London a few days ago.

LONDONER SPEAKS IN BRITISH METROPOLIS

Dr. Hubert Pocock Says Osteopathy Is Making Great Strides in Old London.

Dr. Hubert Pocock of Toronto has just returned from a six weeks' tour in Europe, made by over a hundred osteopathic physicians who attended the international convention at Toronto in July. Dr. Pocock organized the tour, which was made as much in the interests of the profession as for a vacation. The visiting osteopaths were busy every day in the city of London, and the British osteopathic association acted as hosts at the big social functions. Dr. Hubert Pocock took a prominent part in the conference, and was widely reported in the British press, and Punch commented on it in the famous first page of "Charivari" with its columns of breezy skits on current events.

Osteopathy, says Dr. Pocock, in recounting the happenings on his tour, is making great strides in the old country. The space was filled by the newspapermen by the sayings and doings of the delegation from across the Atlantic, and the splendid welcome they received from leaders in many spheres, gave convincing evidence of this. The same condition was evident in Paris, where the osteopathic physicians received a day's recognition. The places visited by Dr. Pocock and his fellow-osteopaths were Glasgow, Edinburgh, the Trossachs, the English lakes, Stratford-on-Avon, London and Paris, most of the time being spent in London, where the visitors snatched as much time as possible for sightseeing from that devoted to professional conferences and social engagements.

Mr. Meighen's Many Appeals.

The election campaign is already under way in the province of Quebec, and it finds Armand Lavergne one of the lieutenants in the Meighen following. The Montreal Gazette reports one of his meetings as follows:

"Mr. Lavergne charged the French-speaking Liberals in the House of Commons with having failed to uphold the rights of the French language throughout the country. In this respect Mr. Lavergne stated that Hon. Mr. Meighen was a better defender of the French language than he had stated at London that, if returned to power, he would endeavor to make the teaching of French obligatory in all the provinces."

There have been several inferences placed on Mr. Meighen's address in London. Some of his apologists have claimed he meant only a graceful compliment to Mr. Gauthier, whom he was very anxious to keep in good humor that he might return to Quebec enthused by his sojourn with the Conservative leader whom he had so recently joined. It is significant that Mr. Meighen, despite all the publicity and newspaper comment that followed his London statement, has offered no explanation. He was apparently content to allow the word to be carried back to Quebec that he was the chief exponent of the obligatory teaching of the French language in all the provinces.

Mr. Meighen now has his opportunity to speak up and rebuke Armand Lavergne. He knows that the federal government has no authority at all in the arranging of what is to be taught in the schools of Ontario or any other province. That is a matter over which each province exercises chief authority, and yet the Conservative campaign is being so shaped that Mr. Meighen is being pictured in Quebec as the man who can secure obligatory teaching of the French language.

Armand Lavergne, in making his Montreal speech, is following the lead given by Mr. Meighen himself, who seems to have an address for each province. When he was appealing to the electors in the St. Antoine by-election, he was reported as follows by the Montreal Star:

"When this dominion girds up its loins and prepares to make commercial war upon the United States and commercial war upon Great Britain, then we will be in a position to look after our workmen."

Will Mr. Meighen make that statement when he appeals to the voters of the province of Ontario, or was it something he had for the Quebec audience alone? For the leader of a party that has made such free use of the British flag in past elections, it would not sound well in this province, therefore the chances are that it will not be used here.

When Mr. Meighen was in London he brought with him L. J. Gauthier, and the London Free Press reported that he referred to the Progressives as "reds and communists and radicals." Mr. Meighen was with Mr. Gauthier on the platform; he heard what he said, and there was no word of protest, so it is fair to assume that he approved of the statement. Mr. Meighen is going to run for a seat bordering on the west, Portage la Prairie. No doubt during the campaign he will go farther west with his speaking tour. Will he carry the sentiment of the London Conservative rally into the fight in the west? Will he tell the people there that he took with him to London a speaker who called the westerners "reds, communists and radicals," or will he discard that for an appeal that will sound better in the west?

Mr. Meighen is in a peculiar position. In Quebec he declared himself in favor of commercial war on Great Britain; in Quebec he is now heralded as the man who will make the teaching of French obligatory all over Canada, and in Ontario he became a willing party to a cry that sought to set the east against the west.

Municipalities Also Need Money.

The city of London has already been presented with a bill of $205,743.79 for its share of public highway constructed outside of the city limits. London pays a portion for the road east as far as Thamesford, which seems to be an excessive distance in that direction; on the Lambeth section it is assessed for the road to about two miles beyond that village. On Richmond street the city will pay its share out past St. Johns, and the same rate, 25 per cent, for the Hyde Park road.

When these roads come to the city limits the government pays nothing for construction or maintenance, although city streets become just as much a part of the highway system as any other section of the road.

Neither the city or county has access to any of the revenue to build its section of the road. The province takes all the money that comes from automobile licenses and all the revenue from the three cents per gallon tax on gasoline. The ratepayers in the city have to provide the miles of highway through the city and a portion of the cost for seven miles out in the country, and in so doing they have no access to the funds derived from the taxation of automobiles that use these streets.

This point was urged at the recent session of the Ontario Municipal Association. It was pointed out there that the tax on gas was exceeding expectations, and the feeling was that the government should either decrease the tax or refund a portion of it to the municipalities where it originated.

The provincial government has become so thoroughly entrenched in the field of taxation that should come within the scope of municipal revenue that it is becoming increasingly difficult for the widely-scattered municipalities to centralize their efforts to regain the ground lost. Premier Ferguson admitted some time ago that the province was invading municipal fields of taxation, but the only reason he could put forward for a continuance of the plan was that the province needed the money. The municipalities can say the same thing with just as much truth as the province, and they have the added advantage of having prior claim.

If the Municipal Association can make of itself a center where concerted action can be taken on behalf of the municipalities to get back some of the revenue the province draws from the municipal field it will be performing useful service.

Not Sure About the "Push."

There is a serious note of pessimism running through despatches telling of the contemplated move in Morocco by the Franco-Spanish troops against the Rif. A short time ago it was stated with a certainty that amounted to an open boast that with the new forces and equipment France and Spain were prepared to put into the campaign Abdel Krim would be on his knees, his so-called capital, Ajdir, would be captured, and the Moroccan episode would be closed before the rainy season set in in the mountains in October.

There is no comparison between the two opposing forces, nor yet in the resources on which they have to draw. France and Spain have at their command white and native troops, all of them well trained, armored tanks, artillery and aeroplanes. The Rif has little except expert riflemen, skilled horsemen, hardy, and possessing an intimate knowledge of a country much of which has never been mapped.

But modern war equipment is of advantage to those possessing it only when it can be brought into use. From where the French are at Kifane it is only forty miles as the crow flies to Ajdir, yet in between are two wooded mountain ranges, five to seven thousand feet high, entered by tortuous ravines. Into this country the French must go, but they cannot take either tanks or artillery. They must meet the Rif more on the primitive basis of man to man, and it is a venture that appeals strongly to the mountaineer defending the country.

It is not at all probable that the Franco-Spanish troops can force the issue to a conclusion in the short time that remains before the rainy season sets in, and if that supposition is correct the invading army would be forced to come to a standstill, content to hold the ground it may gain until operations could be started next May.

Meanwhile the French chamber will be in session, and the socialist element there, so necessary to the life of the government, is opposed to the Moroccan war. It is not likely there will be any report of final success to create enthusiasm to set against their disaffection. French leaders in the field have a nasty situation to clean up before they can dictate terms in Morocco, and French leaders at home will have an equally trying situation to face when they come to explain it to the elected representatives.

If We Keep On.

The Detroit Free Press has been doing a little shivering on behalf of the Canadian people. It points out that Britain, with 40 million people, has a house of commons with 600 members; that United States, with a population of twelve times that of Canada, has a house of representatives with 435 members, while Canada with a population of nine million, has a commons of 235 members.

The Detroit paper goes farther, and points out that if Canada keeps on increasing the size of its membership in the commons every time the population increases, by the time it reaches the present population of United States it would have a parliament with three thousand members.

Such a figure is, of course, out of the question, and though at first sight it looks ridiculous, it suggests that it would be well for us to make arrangements to head off any further increase in the membership of the house of commons. The feeling is very general that a smaller number at Ottawa would serve the purpose of representative government just as well as the present numerical strength. We are carrying too great a representation both at Ottawa and in the provincial legislatures.

Steve's Thrifty Now

He hollers at the folks at home how they must cut expenses down, yet all the time it looks to me how Steve's the biggest sport in town.

'Twas just a month or so ago that Steve was speakin' unto me, about the way his money went and wonderin' where the fault could be. He said he had been keepin' count, and he'd a notion of his own, that it was costin' far too much the way the people ran his home.

So Steve he read the riot act and told them what he was about, and how they'd have to trim their sails and learn the art of doin' without.

For if they kept on like they was the ballin' would be trackin' him, and then they'd have to pull their belts and live in ways most powerful slim.

Steve has some youngsters going to school and they've two miles or more to go, but he don't give them carfare now, and so they hoof it, Jane and Joe. Around the house he's cuttin' down on what his missus wants to buy, he's feedin' liver to his folks instead of juicy beefsteak pie.

And when there's clothes to get there now Steve reads the riot act some more, and hollers out his warnin' note about the ballin' at the door.

They never ask no one for tea, or have some folks on Sunday night, for Steve he fears they'll eat a bit, he's nailed the lid down good and tight. His home's a sad and cheerless place, like wind-swept trees on late in fall, he's got them workin' on the job of cuttin' all expenses small.

But when Steve goes to work himself he travels same as any man, he puts his frame-work on the seat and rattles in his pink sedan. I notice how he smokes a lot and hands 'em out to them he meets, and always has some fellow too when he goes out to get his ears.

I seen Steve just the other day a-readin' of the daily news, another chap was chasin' round and shinin' up on Steve's shoes. You'd think to see him come down town a-wearin' all the latest shades, and having all his trousers pressed as sharp as safety-razor blades—you'd think that Steve had in his house a sack of ducats on the shelf, and when his folks they needed some why each would go and help himself.

So he's for cuttin' down at home and usin' up the things they leave, but not so much for startin' in to try the scrimpin' plan on Steve.—ARK.

Daring Thieves Commit Six Robberies At Fingal In Early Morning Hours

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Sept. 8.—With unparalleled audacity, thieves committed six robberies in Fingal and Iona Station about 3 o'clock this morning, and escaped with a miscellaneous assortment of automobile equipment, chickens and clothing. Breaking into the garage of Arthur Robb, Iona Station, five automobile tires were taken, after jacking up the car. This is thought to have been the first depredation. Proceeding to Fingal they entered the property of Roy Stevenson, and cutting down a clothesline without even troubling to remove the clothespins, they made off with a complete outfit of baby's clothing. The adjoining clothesline of Samuel Meek was also cut down. All Mr. Meek's automobile tools were taken from his garage. At the home of Eli House a crate containing 60 fattened pure-bred Wyandotte hens was stolen. Then Gerald Moore's garage was broken into, a $20 spotlight and all his tools were taken, as well as some new clothing which had been left in his car. Finally, George Carter reports the loss of about 60 chickens from the roost.

Citizens of Fingal are discussing the naming of a vigilance committee. How the marauders managed to plunder the whole neighborhood without awakening the residents is a mystery. Not even the squawk of a chicken was heard. Mr. Fordham states, however, that he was awakened about 2 o'clock by a suspicious motorcycle at the time.

Buster Finds Chatterer's Mushrooms And Decides To Leave Them Hidden

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

At first Buster Bear couldn't make out just what Chatterer was doing. He didn't see just what it was that Chatterer had in his mouth. He only knew that Chatterer was carrying something up the tree, and he felt reasonably sure that that something was something to eat.

"I'll wait and see if he comes down again," thought Buster, and he waited. He didn't have to wait long. It was only a minute or two before down came Chatterer, and he scurried away as fast as his little legs could take him. Buster couldn't see where he went, but after waiting a few moments Buster heard those little scurrying feet returning. Then Chatterer appeared, and this time Buster saw what it was that Chatterer was carrying.

"A mushroom!" exclaimed Buster under his breath. "Now what is that red-footed scamp doing with those mushrooms?" He waited until Chatterer had climbed, left the mushroom and gone for another. Then he quickly moved over where he could look up in that tree. At once he discovered mushrooms wedged into the forks of that tree, and he knew that they were put there to dry. Buster chuckled to himself.

"That scamp is laying up a store of good food for the winter," said Buster. "I won't bother him now, for I am not hungry; besides, there is plenty of other good food. But I'll just keep this tree in mind. About the time I'm getting ready to go to sleep for the winter a dinner of mushrooms will taste first rate. By that time those mushrooms will be dry and sweet. They will be even better eating than they are now, and they'll be right here waiting for me when other food is hard to find. Yes, sir, I'll keep this tree in mind for my last meal before I go to sleep. This is one of the best ideas I ever had. Usually I have trouble in getting that last meal, and usually it doesn't amount to much. With my stomach full of nice, dry, sweet, delicious mushrooms, I ought to sleep well. I hope Chatterer finds ever and ever so many more. I'll keep an eye on him from now on."

Now Buster was so interested in his day dreams that he quite forgot he was standing in plain sight staring up in that tree. Back came Chatterer, and the first thing he saw was Buster staring up in that tree. Chatterer forgot he had a mushroom in his mouth. He opened it to scold Buster and call him a scoundrel.

"Who are you? A word from me and you'll be out on the street, a homeless pauper—the day will come when you'll beg for my kisses—"

"You cur!"

"How dare you?"

"Take your slimy hands away from me, you beast—"

"One kiss, I say—just one—"

"I say—GO—"

"Oh, those eyes—those fascinating creature—those luring lips—how can I resist you? My soul burns for just one kiss—"

Chatterer scolded until Buster was out of sight.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel existed. Chatterer scolded until Buster was out of sight. Then he stopped scolding as abruptly as he had begun. A thought had popped into his head. What if Buster had seen all those mushrooms he had stored up in that tree? Chatterer sighed. It was a deep, heavy sigh. "I must move them," said he. "It's a big job, but I must move every one of those mushrooms. I never would have another easy moment knowing that Buster Bear knows where they are. It is a great pity that I can't put them away in my storehouse, but they would rot there. I've tried it before, and I know."

Down scampered Chatterer and away he ran to make sure that Buster Bear had really gone away. It didn't take him long to find that Buster really had. Then Chatterer raced about through the tree tops, jumping from tree to tree until finally he found one that suited him. He could get to it from the trees where the mushrooms were without ever going down on the ground. He wasted no time. He moved all those mushrooms. He didn't leave one in that tree where Buster Bear had found them.

"There," said Chatterer, as he put the last mushroom in place. "If that fellow is thinking of stealing my mushrooms, he'll have to think again."

MARION KEITH DISAPPOINTED IN CITIES OF THE HOLY LAND

Finds Reminders of Christ Only in Rural Parts and Orphanages.

NEED TO BE TAUGHT

Oriental Impress Visitor With Need of Foreign Missions.

Mrs. D. C. MacGregor, just back from a trip to Europe and the Holy Land, appeared in the doorway of her home, yesterday afternoon, once more the gracious hostess of St. Andrew's manse. In her hand she carried a tiny statue of purest white marble, a miniature reproduction of the famous original, The Thorn, dug up in Haydian's villa, and now a treasured possession of Naples. Her trunk had just arrived and one of her chief concerns was to see whether this precious bit of art had survived the long journey.

It was typical of what she brought back to Canada from her journeyings—an attitude of mind which saw beauty in the ancient places of the earth, even though she found them cluttered with the ugliness of modern commercialism and the filth of oriental custom.

The statue was purchased in Florence, which she terms a "back-woods sort of town." It was on a ramble through its queer little dusty streets that she paused before The Thorn, and pausing, must have it. Everywhere she turned she found art treasures, and was impressed with the patience of the workmen who spent long hours in the intricacies of their art.

"Such an amount of work!" she exclaimed to one old Florentine. "Dis is not work," he said, "dis is poetry." And there she had the secret of it.

Beautiful Athens. Most of all was she impressed with the beauty of Athens. "Oh, the ruins of Athens!" she exclaims, now that she is back home again. "It is too bad that men went so far along the road of art and then slipped back again."

"Even though it is in ruins, Athens is yet the most beautiful thing that man has ever made." It was the Marion Keith of her that made her want to stay in Athens, that made her want to stay in the streets of Jerusalem. And she admits that the Marion Keith of her now wants to write a story all about it. And she has promised herself that there will be children's stories, at least.

Only nine days in the Holy Land. And yet such a nine days! On June 21, their ship neared Jaffa, but no land was yet in sight. It was a pilgrimage they were taking, so the company assembled in the saloon for prayers. Just in the midst of their little service, the word came that land was in sight. And it was fresh from their knees that the party gathered on the deck.

Like Pink China. Mrs. MacGregor says that she had never before seen anything like her first view of the Holy Land. The bare rocky mountains gleamed like pink china.

They were disappointed, however, in Jerusalem in its filthy, narrow streets, teeming with people, and its tawdry-looking shops, crowded with almost every spot of sacred interest in the town. After climbing up and up and up, over precipice after precipice, through the narrow streets of the outer town, Mrs. MacGregor and her party came to the old wall of Jerusalem and the Jaffa gate. Just alongside they found the great gap in the wall, made by the Kaiser, who found the Jaffa gate too narrow for his triumphal entrance. They were glad to learn that when Allenby later entered the city he chose the narrow Jaffa gate, rather than the roomier entrance from the wall by the German army.

Mrs. MacGregor describes vividly the queer little streets, with their trains of camels, tinkling bells and donkeys, and with their many, many people, sitting as they buy and sell their wares. The Biblical expression,

The dainty woman is ashamed of Corns

Corns show a lack of personal care and daintiness. . . Any woman will look after her feet. A lady will take just as much care of her feet. A blemish there is just as much of a personal reproach. . . A dainty woman keeps her feet so exquisite that they could be viewed at any time, without the faintest embarrassment. . . There one discovers the breeding of a woman. She is peasant or princess according to the degree of her foot-daintiness.

china in the strange bright sunlight, giving the whole scene an almost ethereal appearance. As she moved from one quaint town to another, she never lost the impression of queerness which it seemed to have for her.

Her Sunday on the Sea of Galilee stands out most clearly from all of the rest of her trip. After spending the night in Nazareth, and crossing the lake, she took boat and crossed the lake. Dr. Wishart, moderator of the Presbyterian church of the United States, who was of the party, conducted a little service just before the ship pushed off from the shore. And throughout the whole sail the party strove to get as near as possible to the days of Christ. All about them the lake was a strange intense blue, just like a living thing, and the hills about seemed to be made of pink china. The ship found anchor at Capernaum and here Dr. D. C. MacGregor conducted another little service. The aim was to make the service simple and as like as possible to the services which were held on the shore two thousand years ago.

Mrs. MacGregor's party was impressed with the quietness of the country. They were told that the last robber band had been ejected and the strife had ceased.

Enter Jerusalem. They were disappointed, however, in Jerusalem in its filthy, narrow streets, teeming with people, and its tawdry-looking shops, crowded with almost every spot of sacred interest in the town.

After climbing up and up and up, over precipice after precipice, through the narrow streets of the outer town, Mrs. MacGregor and her party came to the old wall of Jerusalem and the Jaffa gate. Mrs. MacGregor describes vividly the queer little streets, with their trains of camels, tinkling bells and donkeys, and with their many, many people, sitting as they buy and sell their wares. The Biblical expression, Blue-jay is the delightful way to end a corn. A tiny cushion, cool as velvet, fits over the corn—relieving the pressure. The pain stops at once. Soon the corn goes. Blue-jay leaves nothing to guess-work. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each downy plaster is a complete standardized treatment, with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn.

LEPER MISSION BRINGS SPEAKER

W. H. P. Anderson, General
Secretary of Organization,
Will Be Here Friday.

The mission to lepers is being brought before the public this week through the visit of a prominent man, W. H. P. Anderson, of England, the general secretary of this great society, who will address a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mr. Anderson has just returned from a world tour of inspection of the various stations of the mission, and is passing through Canada at the present time on his way home.

Already the mission is well organized in this city. A vigorous auxiliary has as its president Mrs. J. W. Jones, of 777 Wellington street, and the secretary is Miss Ella Davis, 515 William street, and both of these women can give comprehensive information concerning the mission.

Help All Classes.

There are few organizations of a philanthropic character which will commend themselves to the sympathies of all classes of people as fully as the mission to lepers. Founded over 50 years ago by an honored missionary of the Presbyterian church in India, the tiny seed has grown into a great international and interdenominational organization, which knows no distinction of race or creed when it seeks to alleviate the sufferings of the millions—for the numbers do indeed run into these vast figures—of lepers scattered all over the world.

Probably among all the types of suffering humanity there is none so terribly afflicted as the leper. The physical agony is often severe; the visible symptoms are revolting; a sense of degradation must be an inevitable accompaniment; added to this is a social ostracism, and thus the soul must become an easy prey to darkness and despair.

Essentially Christian. Hence the mission, which is essentially Christian, brings to the leper a message of hope to the soul, and hundreds of lepers have found spiritual light at the foot of the cross. At the same time, it gathers the lepers into communities, where their material well-being can be cared for, and where all the resources of medical science can be brought to bear upon this fell disease.

The physical agony is often severe; the visible symptoms are revolting; a sense of degradation must be an inevitable accompaniment; added to this is a social ostracism, and thus the soul must become an easy prey to darkness and despair.

Seeing that it is now being conclusively proved that leprosy, far from being infectious, is not hereditary or congenital, the policy is adopted of segregating the untainted children of leprosy parents, with the hope that hundreds of young lives have been saved from the risk of infection. The writer knows the case of one such untainted boy who served with distinction in the British ranks in Mesopotamia.

Mr. Kennedy reviewed the temperance situation of the past and the present, laying stress on the fact that although the bars had been removed, nothing had been put in their place. There was a certain class of men who had found their social life about the bar. That class of men had now no place to congregate. It was up to the temperance forces to provide them with a means of continuing their social life.

Strangers coming to the city had often found friendships in the bars. The temperance forces should hold out a helping hand to such, now that there were no bars.

Mrs. May Thornley brought the meeting to a close by reading a pledge before the members. During the summer the members have been busy getting these pledges signed by both active and honorary members. Those signing the pledge agree to vote according to their convictions on the temperance question, without regard to party.

Plans were made for a series of home cooking sales to be held in the market place view to raising funds. Fifty dollars was voted toward the budget fund.

Superintendents were appointed as follows: Social service, Mrs. Ida Harrison; railroad literature, Miss M. Barter; medal contest, Mrs. Rich. Crouch and Mrs. A. R. Kennedy; soap wrappers, Mrs. Reid; scientific temperance, Mrs. J. D. Omond and Miss Cannell; evangelistic, Mrs. T. R. Wright; fruit and flowers, Mrs. Shaw; parlour meetings, Mrs. Morley and Mrs. W. P. Young; militia and soldiers' comforts, Mrs. S. R. White; law enforcement, Mrs. May R. Thornley and the sub-committee; little white ribbons, Mrs. Hueston; temperance in Sunday schools, Mrs. Dundas; anti-narcotics, Mrs. W. H. Turner.

Plaidist, Mrs. H. Kerr; treasurer of budget fund, Mrs. Della Cottam; music committee, Mrs. J. J. Goodman; Mrs. Amy Patterson and Mrs. McVicar.

District committees London West, Mrs. Goodwin; Mrs. McTavish and Mrs. Mitchell; London North, Mrs. Amy Patterson, Mrs. W. J. Wray and Mrs. McVicar; London East, Mrs. C. B. King, Mrs. A. R. Hound and Mrs. St. Clair; house committee, Mrs. H. A. Chapman, Mrs. W. G. Young and Mrs. Patterson.

Mrs. W. J. Carson read the scripture reading.

WARD 3 W. C. T. U.
HAS FINE SEASON

Mrs. Thornley and Miss Simms
Speak at First Fall Meeting.

The first of the fall meetings of the Ward 3 W. C. T. U. was held yesterday afternoon, and was featured by splendid addresses from Mrs. May R. Thornley and Miss Simms, of the Pentecostal Mission. Mrs. Thornley's talk was on "The Electors' League," while Miss Simms gave an inspiring talk on "Prayer," pointing out the proper attitude toward God.

The members brought in excellent reports regarding the signing of the Provincial Electors' League cards, which are being distributed by the W. C. T. U. workers. They state that a fine response is being made to their efforts.

Owing to the removal of Mrs. Werner to Detroit, where she will reside, Mrs. (Rev.) Bradshaw was appointed to fill her vacancy as corresponding secretary.

The delegate to the Provincial W. C. T. U. meeting, which is being held this year in October, in Pembroke, was appointed. She is Mrs. Hawkins, the president, and Mrs. A. E. Tutt will be the alternate.

Make Jam and Jelly from All fruits Fill your preserve shelves with fruits now coming on in plenty

"Isn't it wonderful how Certo relieves you of all worry about putting down enough preserves, in spite of the shortage of early berries?"

"I'm going to fill my preserve shelves with wonderful jams and jellies, so easily made with Certo from later fruits. Certo makes them from all fruits you know, including peaches, plums, quinces, grapes and apples.

"I get 50% more jam or jelly now from the same amount of fruit. All the fruit juice, all the flavor goes into the jam and jelly glasses instead of being boiled away into the kitchen.

"Just one taste of these delicious jams or jellies and you will say good-bye to the old, long-boil method. They are indeed delicious!"

"No more wasted batches of fruit. No more long boiling. A one-minute boil is all that is required. I just follow the Certo recipe and make my jams and jellies quickly, easily, economically. Certo never fails!"

"Yes, you really must try Certo with the later fruits. Fill your preserve shelves with jams and jellies to enjoy during the winter months."

GREEN PEPPER

2 level cups ground green peppers and juice.
6 1/2 level cups (2 1/2 lbs.) sugar.
1 1/2 cups cider vinegar.
Discard the seeds of, and grind quite fine, about 1 dozen medium-sized green peppers, putting them through the grinder twice. Drain off some of the juice and pack the cups solid with the ground peppers, using just enough juice to flood the cups level. Discard balance of juice. Bring sugar, peppers and vinegar to hard boil in a large pan and set aside where it will keep hot for 15 or 20 minutes uncovered, stirring occasionally. Bring again to a full, rolling boil and boil for 2 minutes, remove from fire and stir in Certo. Stir and stir repeatedly for just 5 minutes after taking from fire, to cool slightly. Then pour quickly and seal hot.

Tommy Ryan, World's Bantam Championship Contender, To Fight Here Sept. 16

Chicago Battler Signs To Meet Ryan At Arena In 10-Round Main Go

Ryan On Trail of Goldstein, Whom Many Thought He Beat in Gardens.

TO COMPETE CARD

Tommy Ryan of McKeesport, Pa., who last year gave Madison Square Garden a terrific fight for the world's bantamweight championship, is expected to fight here at the London arena Wednesday night of fair week. The supporting card has not been definitely lined up, although it will measure up to the main go, which represents the biggest fight in the world.

Ryan's 1924 campaign, which opened several weeks ago, is intended to land a second world title. He has been fighting a splendid impression with his fast and accurate boxing, and many think he should get another crack at the world's title early this coming year.

Chris Lewis, who pilots Clements, says that the latter has been cleaning up all comers in the northwest. He has met such good ones as La Hood, Phil O'Dowd of Colma, Maxberry, Mickey McKeen, Donald of Butte, Montana, and Altona, the champion of the world. Clements has been a hot act with Vic Foley, Canadian bantamweight champion, and is expected to meet him at the London arena.

He wired his acceptance of terms last night and added that Ryan, who is he thought to be a southpaw with a crutch and a style that is generally considered as a K.O. in his last appearance here, is a return to the ring. Ryan, who is a southpaw, and Tommy took the count, two good pairs of welter men, being sought, and a pair of lightweights are practically signed. These are Mickey McDonald of Hamilton, and Joe Gardner of Buffalo.

DIAMOND GLINTS

In the old days of the Canadian league, Billy Crystal pitched for Hamilton and the Cubs. And although he was a southpaw, he could pick runners off first base better than any pitcher ever seen in this part of the country.

Max Carey, the greatest base-stealer of the present day, found out, to his sorrow, that Crystal was a marvel at that game. He was asked what catcher he found it especially difficult to steal on. His answer was:

"I don't disagree with the pitcher rather than on the catcher. I know that there is a catcher back there ready to throw, but if the pitcher is the world can stop you. So I figure all catchers about the same and do my worrying about the pitcher. I found to be about the hardest pitcher to work. But the most skillful pitcher I've ever seen was a runner to get a base, you've never heard of, for he never reached the major leagues. His name was Billy Crystal, and he pitched for Erie in the Central league when it was with South Bend. The year after I joined the Pirates, we played Erie in an exhibition game. I warned our fellow players to be on their guard. The first man to get on and he merely leaned toward second base. He wasn't off more than three feet or four feet. Crystal, who was a left-hander, whipped the ball across to him. Until the first baseman had the ball you couldn't hardly tell whether Crystal had hit or not. He was a tiny chap and didn't have the stuff to go in the majors."

Cy Trappell will do the hurling for Niagara Falls in the return game against Beavertown at Scott park today, according to a bag received from the Power City, and if the Niagara Falls management does not switch to Phil Boya at the last minute, Hamilton fans are in for a pitching treat.

Trappell has speed, and so has Bert Gibb, so Saturday's game has every indication of a pitching duel. The Niagara Falls-Pittsburgh Dalhousie series staged two weeks ago for the Niagara district title, it was Trappell who pitched Caratages to victory over the Port squad, and Hamiltonians who saw the final game of that series say that Trappell is the Boya's superior as a moundman. The Niagara Fallsites have said to his credit, being every bit as big as Bert Gibb, who will oppose him.

He won the second set 6-2, but he was defeated in the third set 6-4.

O. Rechnitzer won from Arthur Ford by 6-2, 6-4. Each game was evenly contested, but in practically all styles of play the winner had an edge which brought victory in deciding points.

The most interesting play of the day was provided in the mixed doubles events when Col. and Mrs. Eric Reid defeated Miss Tuck and Ford after a hard fought three-set battle. JACK MILLMAN WINS

Dr. J. V. Ross and O. Rechnitzer entered the semi-final round of the tennis singles championship during yesterday's play in the city of London tennis tourney. Ross had a tussle in defeating Paul Rechnitzer, a junior player, taking the first set after a marathon contest which went to the score of 10-8. He won the second set 6-2, but he was defeated in the third set 6-4.

O. Rechnitzer won from Arthur Ford by 6-2, 6-4. Each game was evenly contested, but in practically all styles of play the winner had an edge which brought victory in deciding points.

The most interesting play of the day was provided in the mixed doubles events when Col. and Mrs. Eric Reid defeated Miss Tuck and Ford after a hard fought three-set battle. Coogan's Twenty-Fifth Win Is 5-2 Victory Over Orphans.

TECS ARE OUTHIT

London won another of those games from George Orme's Colts yesterday by a count of 5-2. Coogan, hurling with ease, equalled the winning mark in 1921 by getting Lefty Carmichael, the victor of the season, to leave the game in the fourth inning. Coogan's victory was a double blow to the Colts, who had been leading the league in wins, and a double blow to the Colts, who had been leading the league in runs.

ACES BEAT HAMS.

Special to The Advertiser. Hamilton, Sept. 8.—The Clippers were on their feet today, and made no less than 11 errors in the game against the Aces, who won by a score of 12 to 4. The visitors did not have a hit in the game, and made their total of 12 errors, two of which were home runs. The Clippers could do nothing against them, and were lucky that the score was not larger.

VEHICLES LOSE TO VOLVES.

Special to The Advertiser. Bay City, Sept. 8.—Bay Sutter's superb pitching was a big factor in the Wolves' 6 to 2 victory over the Flint Voles here Tuesday afternoon. The little fellow allowed three hits in the first eight innings, and added two in the ninth before Flint counted scratchy infield blows, which made for one run. The other tally came from a double by Sutter in the second. Bay City scored easily and was never worried. Marty Fielder lead the local attack with three hard singles and a double.

WE COME BACK!

By GEORGE AHERN.

JABS AND JABBER—

Tommy Ryan of McKeeseport was a lucky find for the opening card of three to be staged at the arena before the ice is put in.

Bobby Ebor, who has amazed the talent with another astounding comeback, may be seen here again this fall. Ebor in action, when he is making the long, painful climb back to fame, is something that will carry any fight card over. Those who have seen him in his recent fights claim he is the Ebor of old.

He is going to train in Toronto for his fight with Jackie Johnson at Danny Johnson's new Reliance club. Danny Johnson will be remembered by many as the Canadian expeditionary forces as a writer who gave Joe Attwood, afterwards champion of the Canadian forces, several stirring battles.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, in an interview with John B. Kennedy in the current issue of Collier's Weekly, announces that when he returns he will go into the brokerage business.

We'll start a firm as Jack Dempsey & Co. when I'm through," the champion states. "I've already drawn up partnership with Maurice Shevitt of New York, and in a few years I'll be permanently trading stocks and bonds instead of boxing and booze. I've learned a good deal about the investment business through my own operations, and with Shevitt I'll make a life's work out of the game."

Dempsey admits that he's made money as much as people think. "But not half as much as I do," he says. "I do get big money, but I don't begin to enjoy half of it by the time I get through with the managerial split, income tax and training camp expenses. It will cost me from $100,000 to $150,000 to get ready for a fight with Willis. In my opinion George Tunney has a better chance than Willis. I expect to see the new champion a young chap like Tunney."

Thistles Beaten

5-2 by Brownies

In a well-played girls' major league softball game at the Federal Square last night, the Brownies emerged victorious over the Thistles by a 5-2 score. The hard hitting of the victors was the chief reason for their success, as they scored three times by the Thistles.

Thirty-two teams in all will be in this league, and they will play on Tuesday nights.

The following are the officers: President, D. M. Stevens; vice-president, J. A. Sherritt; secretary, H. L. Scheidtmann; assistant secretary, J. W. Soutare; treasurer, W. T. Carter.

A full meeting of the league is requested for Friday night, Sept. 11, at 8 o'clock, in the Arcade committee rooms.

DIAMOND GLINTS

Kitchener and London meet again today. Orme will hardly be able to play, but the Colts are not alone the Winless Wanderers—they are the Switchable Swaggers.

On Friday Gallagher and Deloof, whom the fans have been practicing every position, may give an exhibition of playing two positions at once. Gallagher will play first base and short, and Deloof will probably play third base and right field.

It looks at times as if George Orme is trying to invent a one-man ball team.

Will Coogan be sold? That's a question that all the fans are pondering. He hasn't been grabbed already, but it seems a mystery. Coogan apparently has everything that should be in a pitcher. This year he has been at his best with a fighting ball, and he has been a real find.

Coogan used to give the fans an impression of a careless, easy-going pitcher. He was a real find when he broke into organized ball, but he has been a real find ever since. He has been a real find in every position he has played, and he has been a real find in every game he has played.

Three or four of the Tecs are due to go somewhere. Harris's pitching record, when he gets it fully compiled, should make good selling talk.

QUEBEC IS CALLED ANCHOR OF CANADA

Sir James Aikens Lauds Spirit of Province—Plead For Unity.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Quebec, Sept. 8.—Unity on the part of all the provinces in the dominion was the keynote of the addresses delivered here this evening at the reception tendered by Hon.
Mr. Perceval, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, to the lieutenant-governors of Canada. Among the speakers were Sir J. A. M. Aikens, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, Col.
the Hon. Harry Cockshutt, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, and Premier Taschereau.

Hon. Harry Cockshutt said that the drawing together of the different provinces was greatly to be desired in Canada. He touched on the need for nation-wide development.
"The future," he said, "is one of great prosperity, one of contentment in which the men of the north will stand out." He made a plea for honesty and truthfulness.

Sir James Aikens said the unfortunate thing was that Canadians did not understand each other. He dwelt on the Elgin treaty enacted in the United States many years ago and said that this treaty had been responsible for confederation, for it had forced the four provinces to join forces, and from these four provinces had evolved the nine provinces which composed the dominion today. But the country was not in its infancy, in "go-cart" days.

ernment stating that at noon today

Associated Press Despatch.
Simla, Sept. 8.—That the British in India are merely thieves and robbers, was one of the bitter taunts made against the government whose administration was condemned by practically all the Indian speakers today when the legislative assembly resumed the debate on the resolution of Sir Alexander Muddiman, proposing the acceptance of the majority

Death Wins Race With Speedboat

Canadian Press Despatch.
Port Arthur, Sept. 8.—A race with death in an attempt to save the life of Mrs. Arthur Silverstein, 17-year-old wife of a fisherman, ended in failure. Seized with convulsions at a lonely fishing station, the young woman was rushed in a motor-boat 45 miles through storm-tossed waters to Port Arthur, where she died soon after reaching hospital. Her unborn infant was also found dead when an operation was performed.

recommended a relaxation of the control of the secretary of state over the government of India in purely Indian affairs. An amendment to the resolution, which was moved yesterday by Motilal Nehru, the leader of the Swarajists, providing for fundamental changes in the constitution and the administration was adopted by a vote of 71 to 45.

Jinnah Gour, the leader of the independents, was loudly applauded when he declared, in alluding to the question of Indians in the services, that he could produce 10,000 youths who were suitable to receive the king's commission.

Dr. Datta, who said he was speaking in behalf of the minorities—Indian Christians, the depressed classes or outcasts and the Aborigines—declared they must make terms with the majority, as it was useless to trust the government.

Sir Alexander Muddiman, in reply, stated that Motilal Al Nehru's amendment meant the virtual repeal of the government of India. He wanted to know if the terms were final. Supposing the government accepted them, what would the government get in return?

"Co-operation," replied a chorus of voices.
Sir Alexander emphasized that the only way to make constitutional advance was through the goodwill of the British parliament, and pointed out the many difficulties arising from the backwardness of the electorate.
He admitted that the amendment declared that the Swarajists and the noted that they had agreed for the first time and that it was deserving of the utmost attention, but he contended that it was useless to approach parliament in the manner suggested.

DOMINION FLOATS $75,000,000 ISSUE

Government Concludes Year's Financing Program With Internal Loan.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, Sept. 8.—Announcement has just been made by Hon. J. A.
Robb, minister of finance, that the dominion government has concluded its financial plans for the year by disposing of a new issue of $75,000-000 fifteen-year 4½ per cent bonds through a strong Canadian syndicate, consisting of Dominion Securities Corporation, Limited, Wood, Gundy & Company, A. E. Ames & Company,
Limited, and National City Company, Limited, the Bank of Montreal, the Royal Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The bonds are being offered today to the public through practically every bond dealer and stock broker in Canada, as well as through chartered banks. In arranging for this long-term financing in Canada rather than in another market, the government has followed the policy that has been almost rigidly adhered to during the last several years. The Victory Loans of 1917, 1918 and 1919 were planned for the Canadian market solely and the refunding loans of 1923 and 1924 were offered in the same manner.

Short Terms in U. S.
Short term financing, such as one-year note issues, have been placed in United States, where the demand for such short-term bonds is so strong that such borrowing is cheap.
These short-term notes, however, are of interest only to the large financial institutions and others who definitely require the return of their money within a very short period.

It is understood that the proceeds of the new issue will be used for refunding purposes, including the refunding of $42,000,000 of tax-free bonds, which will fall due on December 1 next. In this matter also, the strict policy of retiring tax-free bonds by the usual taxable issue is being followed.

The maturity of the bonds is fifteen years. In other words, they run for the same number of years as the 1924 maturity bonds when issued in 1919, and which have become so popular among investors of all classes.

Interest Return Is 4.75.
The new bonds are being offered at 97.25 and interest, at which the interest return is over 4.75 per cent.
Because of the success of the 1923 and 1924 refunding loans, it is believed in financial circles that the present issue will be quickly snapped up.

Investors who were fortunate enough to have purchased the 1923 issue of refunding loan bonds have had the satisfaction of watching their bonds rise in value by more than four points, while those who purchased last year have also witnessed a substantial improvement upon the price paid. It is a fact that all Dominion of Canada issues floated since the war are now selling at a substantial premium over the original price.

Color All Important In the Autumn Modes

Upturned Brims and Irregular Lines Lead

Nearly all the autumn displays one sees have one salient point in common: There is color! Lovely tones, doubly effective in the rich fabric and exquisite trimming material an extra generous season has given us. Of course, there are plenty of black hats, too, as in every season, but they are never somber, because the materials are so rich and because there is so much metal to relieve them.

The colors of the hour are all the new brown tones, and there are many of the beautifully becoming wood green shades, and blues.

The shapes for the dress hat are the large, drooping hat, and the "pirate" hat, whose brim turns smartly off the face.

The sport hats are for the most part small with the brim turning somewhere, made of felt, velour, and the new duvetyne.

The latest fall hats, answering to the descriptions above, are on display.
