LIGHTNING'S WORK

Lightning has done considerable lamage throughout the surrounding country lately. Night before last Geo. Foxten, Merlin, had a steer killed, and last might the barn of Archibald D. Duddy was struck by lightning and quite badly damaged, but no fire occurred. John O'Neil also had some sheep killed last night. All the above are insured in the Gore Fire Insurance Company.

The Public School Board held a spe ial meeting last night, every member being present. Nothing special was ione, the object of the meeting being to pass the teachers' salaries before the holidays.

Miss Florence Nichol applied for a position on the city teaching staff. The application was fyled. The Building committee reported progress on the work which is going on under their management.

The Model school committee asked that the engaging of a teacher for the fall term be left to them with power, fixing the salary at $160. That $5 be charged each pupil, $2 of which will go towards the maintenance of the Model school. Mr. Robertson for the managers of Tenders will be received for the work by the managers, who will re-port at the next special meeting. The managers of McKeough school, Messrs, McCorvie, Heyward and Mc-Keough, also reported on the work to the strain involved. There is needed on McKeough school, which included kalsomining, fixing of eavetroughs, repairing the furnace and also repairing of the sanitary conditions. This last is much needed, and as spoken on by all the managers.

Mr. Robertson thought that this vould be a good move. "The first year I sat at this board," said he, "I condemned the sanitary onditions of McKeough school, and D am glad to see that the present managers are taking the matter up. I would be willing to forego some of the stended improvements to the Central school if this matter goes through. proposed work will cost about $1,000, but it is greatly needed and

KING'S CONDITION FAVORABLE NO PRESENT CAUSE FOR ALARM

His Majesty Passed a Good Night and is now Doing as Well as Could be Expected-Asked for the Prince of Wales After the Operation.

Special to The Planet.

London, June 25, 11.27 a,m.-Anxious suspense over the condition of King, Edward VII., shared, as is evidenced by shoals of telegrams from abroad, by the whole civilized world, hardly will be much lessened by the bulletin issued by the attending physicians at 10.30 o'clock this morning.

"His Majesty was very restless and had no sleep during the early part of the night, he obtained some sleep, however, after one o'clock this morning; is free from pain and no untoward symptoms presented."

June 25, 4.45 a. m.-Secretary Frederick Treves, Sir Francis H. Laking and Sir Thos. Barlow, remained at Buckingham Palace all night.

The Associated Press learns that about midnight last night his majesty enjoyed some refreshing sleep. It is not likely any further bulletin of the King's condition will be issued before 7 this morning.

But should any complication occur, such as septic peritonitis or blood poisoning it is feared his majesty's present physical and nervous condition would prove unequal consequently intense anxiety as to the outcome. The King's doctors believe that his majesty would have been dead before now except for the operation. His condition became so alarming last night that at one time it was feared death might ensue before the surgeon's knife could

Intense swelling of the extremiies, accompanied by alarming symptoms of mortification constituted the emergency which deanded immediate operation. To the last the King tried to avoid this, and he was willing to be carried to the abbey for the coronation ceremony in order that it should occur as arranged. The influence of Queen Alexandra was enlisted, however, and at an early hour this morning the royal patient was prepared for the operation which, even in the skillful hands of England's best surgeons, was fraught with grave danger. ON THE OPERATING TABLE. Shortly before two o'clock his majesty was moved from his couch to the operating table and the anesthetić was administered. Sir Frederick Treves made the incision near the patient's grion and carried it upwards, with an outward slant, for nearly four inches. The obstruction was removed and a tubing was placed in the affected intentine. King Edward's first words when he returned to consciousness were to ask for "George" and the Prince of Wales, who was waiting in the next room, was immediately admitted to his father's presence.

While the operation was being performed the great central court yard of Buckingham Palace, so lately the scene of such brilliant gatherings, was utterly deserted and an impressive silence reigned through-out the building. The equerries talked in whispers, servants tip-toed about and the tension grew al-most unbearable. Then the word was passed around "all_kad gone

OLD PROPHECY RECALLED.

With the first reports of the illness of King Edward came allusions to an old prophecy said to have been made many years ago that he would reign but would never be crowned. In the postponement of the coronation cerenonies which were scheduled for Thursday, the superstitious will see confirmation, although it is to be hoped that the royal sufferer may soon be sufficiently restored to proceed with the coronation as mapped out.

Prior to coming to the throne at the death of his mother, "Victoria, the Good," last year, Albert Edward was London, June 24. - King Edward known as "the first gentleman of is in a room facing the beautiful Europe," an admirer of pretty women, an enthusiast in sport and a tactful diplomatic heir to the throne. He was never bookish, always much in-If to-night's progress is maintained clined to society and the pink of po-

Born on Nov. 9, 1841, Albert Edward became Duke of Cornwall at once, and was known as "the little duke," during most of his babyhood. He had measles in 1853, and gave them to the entire royal family, including his father and mother. In 1871 he was stricken with typhoid fever, and for many days hovered between life and death. On his convalescence in 1872, he attended a thanksgiving service in St. Paul's London, with 13,000

In 1849, as Prince of Wales, Albert Edward first visited Ireland, later journeying to other sections of the United Kingdom, In 1855 he travelled in France, in 1857 in Germany, and 1858 in Italy, where he was the guest of Pope Pio Nono and in 1860 made his celebrated tour of the United States, during which he was received in Washington, Detroit, Chicago, New York and other cities. In 1863 Albert Edward married Princess Alexandra, daughter of King Christian, of Denmark. To them five children have been born: Albert Victor, who died young; George Freder-ick, now Prince of Wates and heir ap-parent; Princesses Louise, Victoria, While Prince of Wales, King Edward was only known as a pleasure seeker -the soberer side seldom peeped out. Since his accession to the throne, it is said he has become one of the hard-est workers in his kingdom; so much so, in fact, that his present illness is to a degree traceable to his industry and refusal to take needed rest.

It is also said that the popular impression concerning him has always been wrong-that during his life he has been a hard worker, nearly every waking moment being occupied with social and official duties, such as corner-stone laying, military reviews, court receptions and similar functions. The strain of preparing for the cor-onation has been a severe one, and repeated reports have been current that the King's health was impaired

PRINCE OF WALES. Prince George of Wales, second, but eldest living son of King Edward, and heir apparent to the throne, is said to be, next to his royal father, the most popular member of the royal family. Prince George is now 38 years old. His elder brother, Albert Victor, the Duke of Clarence, died in 1892, and George took his place in the succession. George's training has been altogether naval. In 1883 he became a midshipman on board the Canada, with the North American squadron. with the North American squadron. In 1885, after passing the examinations with great credit, he was promoted to a lieutenancy. His first command was that of the gunboat Thrush on the West Indian station. WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25.

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

"The King is ill, so ill that the poronation has to be postponed. Such was the startling story that the cable and telegraph wires told yesterday all over the civilized world, and the civilized world stood stunned. The suddenness of the unwelcome news of the trouble of our King astounded and even the enemies of the Empire sorrowed for our sovereign in his time of trouble and his loyal subjects who suffered because he suf-

Throughout the British Empire the report was charged with awful apprehension and aroused a feeling of fear and dread of possible terrible consequences, too awful to be given tangible form even in thoughts.

Not alone in England, but in all the colonies and dependencies of the British Empire did the sad news of the King's serious illness astound and prayers were offered for the safety

The year of mourning for our tate beloved Queen Victoria, was to close VII. The placing of the Crown upon the noble brow of our sovereign was to be the signal for general and national rejoicing. It was also to introduce the most brilliant pageants that have ever atto knit the colonies and motherland in closer ties. They were to attend the coronation, marching with linked

1 The eyes of Europe and the whole world were directed towards England and this grand spectacle, and the whole foreign world marvelled and envied the British their splendid King, Head of the Nation, and Administerer of just laws.

In expectation, and glorious anticipation, the British people made merry and rejoiced and Europe and the world envied. On the very eve of the coronation ceremonies Providence, greater even than a British King, deigned to interfere. Nothing could prevent the coronation but God himself, and He saw fit to do so.

It may be that the Almighty has only thus interfered to teach us all a lesson. Were we not too arrogant? Were we not too proud and boastful? May it not be that through our King, Providence has aimed to teach us all a lesson? We have in our blindness, boasted that we ended the war, that we caused peace throughout the British possessions. We have boasted of the brilliance of the Empire. We have boasted of the greatness of the coronation ceremonies, that they would outdo in splendor all previous coronations. Then, God, forgotten, sees our infatuation and bring us to a realization of the frailty of life.

The whole of the British nation was shocked on learning of the King's illness and that an operation was necessary. All day long bulletins of his condition were eagerly awaited here and Chatham, is no exception to all other places in the British empire. The slightest news was eagerly sought for When it was learned that the operation had been successfully performed a sigh of relief arose from the Empire, It is to be sincerely hoped that the King of England will recover

No doubt those in authority were moved to defer the coronation indefinitely so that the King might have nothing to worry about and would retiently, even as, in his patience, King Edward VII. has taught us all forbearance. Let us'all earnestly beseech Providence to spare us our ruler and may we all pray "God Save our King."

AMERICAN TEXT-BOOKS.

It is not so many weeks ago that we pointed out that American school books were superior to Ontario school books, The correctness of The Planet's contention has been proven. The Minister of Education has just authorized the Canadian editions of three American text-books. These are:-1-A Junior Geography, "Our Home and its Surroundings."

2-An English Grammar. 3-A new First Reader, called "A Modern Phonic Primer."

Of course, The Planet is always right, but it is flattering to have its assertions endorsed by the Ontario Liberal Government.

We are waiting to hear what apopen with the coronation of Edward in connection with the postponement.

CONTRACTS SHOULD BE BINDING.

Toronto Star. The peace and security of business would be increased if the contract as to wages entered into between unions and employers were as legally binding between individuals, and could be carried into court for enforcement, It is a matter difficult of adjustment, serious consideration.

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost conscientiousness and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception. The auxieties of the sick and their relatives are traded upon in the most shameful manner; impossible cures are promised; many preparations are absolutely worthless, and some are positively dangerous to health.

As a consequence, all proprietary remedies are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

FRANK OLIVER ON THE PEACE. Edmonton Bulletin-Lib.

Just how the loyalists of South Africa will look upon the peace terms can only be conjectured but it is amply evident that Britain is more generous to her enemies than just to her friends. The loyalists of Natal and of Cape Colony, staked everything, and in many cases lost everything, to uphold the empire. Now they find that the newest and latest development of imperial policy is to buy off its enemies and ignore its friends. As to the British taxpayer who furnishes the but so important as to be well worth fifteen million dollars indemnity, it may be said that it is better for him to pay that much and have peace than to continue paying possibly ten times that amount for the continuance war. If the case is put that way it becomes clearly a peace by purchase and not by conquest. But there is an-other way of putting it. The British taxpayer has spent untold millions in the war to uphold the prestige of the empire, knowing well that he could not in Africa and win in the rest of the world. That prestige lost in South Africa, was lost all over the world. And now by paying to secure peace, he sacrifices all that he has already paid to secure prestige.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. B. E. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kaus. "In the fall of 1899 I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of bead; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened for weeks with mishap. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicines. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly realized that I was sick when this baby was born and she weighed twelve and one-quarter pounds. She is now eleven months old and has never known an hour's sickness; at present she weighs thirty-seven pounds. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

.................. LETTER BOX

Mr. Editor: Sir,-By request of a number of your subscribers the writer was asked to call the attention of the farmers to the combine of the great majority of the threshers. They now think they have the farmers at their mercy. If union is good for them, why not for the farmers. Now let the farmers in each threshing section meet and form themselves into a joint stock company for their own benefit, and purchase a threshing outfit and put these usurpers out of the business for all time to come. Why business for all time to come. Why not purchase the machine ourselves, for we have to pay for it in the long run, as well as find employment for those fellows who are now going to dictate to us what we will pay a bushel for chaff and dirt filled in by carelessness, and why not give em-ployment to our neighbors sons, for they can, in many cases, spare the time for the threshing season. This should be the means of forming the farmers in a union for their own pro-tection and would not cost $17 to become a member. Suppose the farmers purchase a machine, shop, and foundry, one or two in Canada and several in the United States, and bind themselves as these threshers have done. I mean to go at it systehave done. I mean to go at it systematically and have an organizer and organize Canada and the United States and then what would this little combine of the machine gain by their move. Do not let us buy or employ any of these parties who have been in this affair. I do not believe in combines or strikes, but if it is good for the threshers, it is good for the farmers, and they should take hold of this matter, and at once see their own interests protected, and see that politics should be kept strictly out of the farmers' society. Now there is a good chance for some live man to help himself as well as the farmers.

Raiph, as usual, had the full conndence of his father in all his plans. A perfect understanding existed between the two. The law of hereditary qualities was strikingly illustrated in the essential likeness between the characters of this precious pair. Ralph was less mature and experienced in mere craft, but in cool, calculating, mercenary spirit he was not a whit behind his father. In fact, while the parent retained a certain affectation of virtuous motives even in the p sence of those it was not necessary ) deceive, and while discussing plans of the most unmitigated villainy—a habit quite common with those who have pursued a progressive course in dishonesty from an original standpoint of hesitancy with Ralph there was no such pretension of respect for virtue where its use was not required. He had been so early initiated into the arts of trickery and dishonesty that the habit of equivocating with his conscience had never been formed. The only difference between the two men was that Ralph was the honester and more direct rogue of the

They understood each other perfectly. The elder Saybrook greatly admired Ralph's nonchalance and directness in any equivocal work, while the latter did not fall to return a full measure of admiration of his father's craftiness and skill. Each worshipped with ardent zeal a certain deformed idol of Respectability, whose chief supports were wealth and position, and each was equally inured to the idea that a certain amount of moral crookedness was necessary and laudable in the pursuit of wealth and power. Ralph had been away on some business duties in a neighboring village at the time of the arrival of Claude's letter; but, on his return, his father lost no time in communicating to him its elcome contents.

They sat down to discuss the letter in the little law office. "Everything continues to work favorably," remarked the elder Saybrook. "The result so far shows that I have not made a single miscale 'ation. I think I have seen my way preus clear, and, by my knowledge of the young man's character and purposes, I have been enabled so far fairly to discount the future. I suppose I should be satisfied. I know I ought to feel confidence in myself. But I am terribly nervous and anxious. Every day's de-lay grinds me. Oh, for a chance for my bold stroke! Ah, Ralph, if I could only control political events for a week! But, won't do to be visionary. I have ev / reason to congratulate myself on securing the removal of that old dog of a Carl Crum. Ha, ha, how, nicely my bait took! Mind you, Ralph, I did not show any open enmity or dis-like, or make any demand for punishment for his treatment of me. I simply related the circumstances in such a manner as to suggest that, although I had been curtly received, I was rather amused than annoyed at it, and only grieved in any way that I should have failed of hospitality under the roof of such a dear friend. You see how well it worked. Ah, Ralph, delicacy and keenness are the true weapons of a diplomatist. If I had bunglingly shown my hand, and demanded satisfaction for being insulted, I should probably have failed in my purpose. But by suggesting the truth with a cheerful my point without in the least see face and artless manner I have gained serve it. You see it-eh, Raiph? "Yes, yes," answered the young man; "It was a very neat stroke. But who are you to put in old Crum's place?" "There is a point that puzzles me," replied the elder, corrugating his brows. "It is hard to pick out just such a man as I want. It will be necessary to select samebody we can trust to a considerable extent, and yet he must not be too sharp for us. I have thought over every person at all available, and I don't know but that, on the whole, Leb. Sackett is our man. He is shrewd and serviceable, if we can only trust him far enough. But, really, there is nobody else who will do at all. I rather think we must take him. I fancy I can manage him well enough. What do you think, Ralph?" "Why, I think he is just the man, if we can only make him available. But I have some doubts on that score. I have heard him talking several times on the subject of the stories they tell about Rolff House, and it struck ma that he was rather inclined to be superstitious and give credence to the wildest tales of the popular fancy In that case, it might be hard to i uce him to enter a house that its surface. that case, it might be hard to i uce him to enter a house that is reported to be haunted.

"Oh, leave that to me," interposed the elder Saybrook. Nobody has been hurt yet by spirits at Rolff House, and I don't think Sackett will decline a liberal compensation to do as we want him to."

"You are the best judge," replied "I shall endeavor to see him within a day or two," pursued the father, "and I shall sound him carefully before comnitting myself to any agreement with with this understanding, the conver-sation on the subject closed.

True to his word, Anthony Saybrook promptly sent for Leb. Sackett, and the next day that cerulean individual put in an appearance at the law office.

"But do you believe these stories, "Well, I've heard 'em on good authority, and perhaps I've seen a me things myself. All I can say is, w. re there is so much smoke there is pretty, sure to be some fire."

"But if the common run of people are so superstitious, Mr. Sackett, as to be afraid of ghosts in Rolff House, surely a man of your strong mind and keen

"If you mean to offer me the place," interposed Mr. Sackett, "I'll say that I ain't to be seared by ghosts or hobgoblins of any kind. I never knew 'em to hurt anybody. I've studied demonology for ome years; and we have some secrets in our family that everybody don't know. 'Ghosts ain't very pleasant neighbors, perhaps, but I'd rather have them than most men." "Well said," replied the lawyer, with pleasant smile. "And to some right you would perhaps be just the man I want; and your knowledge of shost matters might be of some use to me. With the ice thus broken, the two talkers soon arrived at a satisfactory agreement, by which it was arranged that Leb. Sac* + was to take the place of old Carl Crum in Roiff House.

CHAPTER XIV. As the weeks slipped by, and it be came evident to Rosa Bruyn that her lover had either neglected to write to her, or that some obstacle had inter-vened to prevent her from receiving his letters, her anxiety and distress became very plainly visible to her watchful mother. Yet the good matron feit debarred from saying anything to her on the subject. If more letters had arrived, she was not awar of the fact; for farmer Bruyn had maintained an im-perturbable silence since his first hasty action in destroying Claude's letter. strong, wilful na-Like most men tures, he rarely changed his mind when once he had deliberately formed a purpose; and ..eing fully resolved to break up the relations of his daughter with Claude it probably did not occur to him to give himself any further thought about the matter *xcept to vigorously execute his first-formed purposes. Meantime, Rosa became instinctively sware of some influence on the part of her parents as the cause of Claude's sie. Her fait n him was too strong and trusting to cause her to credit for an instant the idea that he would deliberately desert her. It is true, she had had a premonition that his absence is Europe might lead to the cooling of his affection toward her; but she considered it possible only as the re-suit of long absence and the slow and almost imperceptible growth of indif-ference as he formed new associations not doubt that he had fulfilled his promise of writing to her. Why had she not received his letter? There was no marked change in the conduct of her parents towards her; yet a slight her parents towards her; yet a slight increase of maternal tenderness and watchfulness, and a studied avoidance of all topics relating to Roiff House or its young heir in her presence, were prophetic to her mind of the real cause of the difficulty. She knew that her father had never really liked Claude, although his objections had never been clearly stated, and while she could not suspect him of any such action as declearly stated, and while she could not suspect him of any such action as deliberately and secretly destroying his letters, she yet felt a painful conviction that he had taken some means to forbid or prevent Claude from communicating with her.

Girl as she was, and of a tender and almost timid nature, Rosa possessed an unusually clear and sagacious mind, and she was not long in concluding that her father would not have taken any her father would not have taken any sudden and decided stand against Claude's relations to her without some definite reason for it. All her nature was -somed in the consideration of the to her all-important question that lay at her heart, and no event or inci-dent was so light but that she considered its relation and bearing to the secret she was seeking to solve. Her father's frequent visits to lawyer Saybrook's, and the reports that reached her ears in regard to that individual's opera-tions in managing Claude's affairs, did not escape her attention, and, with an intuitive preception of the truth, she was led to believe that some scheme of the plotting lawyer was at the bot-She was net only confirmed in her suspicions, but a new cause of anxiety was caused her by the growing attentions of Ralph Saybrook toward her. He had managed to meet her several times, manifesting a marked polite-ness and attention whose import could not be mistaken, and on two or three occasions be had returned home with her father from the village in the evening, and passed a couple of hours in special converse. Such attentions as these could not be misinterpreted, and Rose's anxiety was increased by evidence she perceived that not only was there a plot to rob her of her old over but also to give her a new one. Her nature was not an aggressive or complaining one. It was her dispo-sition to suffer and endure rather than to eppose and protest. Full of appretension and dread, she yet resolved to quitely waif events until her fears became more clearly resolved and her duty more apparent. Meantime, she wrote to Claude again, complaining of his silence, and desiring to know the reason of it. She little knew that, by collusion with the postmaster, her own letters had been confiscated by her fathers as well as those of Claude.

The truth was that Anthony Sayrook had succeeded in so thoroughly working on the prejudices of the old-farmer as to greatly intensify his an-tipathy to Claude. Knowing his utter-ignerance of art and inability to appreciate Claude's ambition, he frequenthim passages from Claude's letters that were in the somewha strained and affected style of the liverature of the time. The glowing descriptions of art galleries, palaces and temples, the comments on the g' ter and lexury of Venitian life, and the lively accounts of carnivals at festieals, all tended to convince the unse-phisticated farmer that are was leading a life of wildest dissipation and extravagance. And as the shrewe hawyer was not above ad'ing a word or even a phrase here at there to give an equivocal meaning to some inne-cent or indiscreet phrase, the virtuous indignation of the stern and wrong-headed old man was wrought up to the highest point. He considered that henceforth he would be fully justified in resorting to any and every means to stop communication of his daughter with Claude, and to that end paid a visit to Mr. Ronk, the postmaster, and ecured co-operation in suppressing any further correspondence between the young couple. It was a day when de-spotte powers of parental control were ecognized, while the postal laws and lations were new and crude, so that no one in the community would have perceived anything irregular in a parent confiscating the letters between a daughter and an objectiona a suitor. The reports soon spread around the neighborhood that Claude was leading a most disreputable life in Europe, and the Saybreoke father and son, by many cunning devices, in many ways added to the popular gossip.

Constipation clogs the body and clogs the mind, Constination means that corruption is blood with its foul emanations, befog ging the brain with its tainted exhalations. Constipation is the beginning of more diseases than, perhaps, any other single disorder. The consequences of constipation are legion, Headache, pain in the side, shortness of breath, undue fullness after eating coldness of the extremities, nervous ness, indecision, lassitude, dizziness sallowness, flatulence, and a score other ailments are directly caused by constipation. Cure constipation and you cure its consequences. The quickest cure of this evil is obtained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets They are small in size but wonderful in result. # Fence Builders Who Think

The London Fence Weaving Machine is a comparatively new thing to the fence builders but it is fast becoming indispensable as a money and labor saver, especially since Fence Slats are so hard to procure,

With this machine you can build a fence of No. 9 Galvanized Orimped Wire, 10 wires high with No. 13 Galvanized Cross Wires, for less than 35c a rod, after the posts are set

Compared with any ready made fence with the same number of wires, in the market, it will be tound to be heavier and stiffer and at very little over half the cost.

You can buy them at the great Hardware Emporium at the East end, from Geo. Stephens & Douglas, General Hardware & Implement Merchants.

FINE CONCERT

Excellent Progam at Opening of St. Joseph's Hall-- Miss Webster's Debut.

St. Joseph's Hall, which has been but recently crected by the Young Literary Society of St. Joseph's church, was very fittingly opened last night by one of the finest concerts which have been put on in Chatham

When the new Separate school was built, instead of having the old one torn down, th centerprising men who compose the club, commenced to work on the scheme of having the old school made into a concert hall. It was a great undertaking, and one which incurred a great deal of expense but these men were quite equal to the occasion and as a result they are in possession of a in the manufacture of buggies and fine hall with a capacity for seating 750 people. The hall is very gorgeously decorated inside and presents a very bright appearance.

The program last night was put on by Harry Rich a clever entertainer, assisted by local talent. Mr. Rich's selections were all of a humorous nature and were well given. He received such applause from the audience.

The local talent included Miss Webster vocalist, Tommy Hurns, violinist, W. E. C. Workman, pianist, W. Chrysler, vocalist, and the Ladies' Mandolin club. Too much cannot be said of Miss Webster's solos. Although she has been in Chatham but a very short she is already a great favorite with all who love pure singing. She has indeed a marvellous voice, well under control, and full of sweetness and sympathy. She was well received last evening and it was indeed a disappointment to the audience that she she did not appear oftener on the pro-

Mr. Workman on the piano is a marvel and fairly captured the au-dience with his execution, and artistic playing. His touch, and the tone he brings from a piano are perfect, while the expression given to his renditions is also of a high standard. In the second part of the program he gave a vocal solo, "Death's Army," playing playing the accompaniment himself. In this selection he showed up wonderfully as a piano accompanist, in fact it would have been hard to find his equal as such, 5.

The mandolin club, composed of Mrs. J. R. Walker, and Misses Mc-Lean. McLaren and Scott, provided good music and were enthusiastically encored after each selection.

Tommy Hurns, an embryo violinist, was really good and secured a warm spot in the hearts of his audience. Perhaps the most amusing part of the program was the Irish Fandango, by the Separate school boys. They all came out at first and recited "Home for our Holidays," and as an encore did some clever step dancing.

The boys performed their parts like old stagers.

DOWSLEY CO.

A Few Facts and Figures About Chatham's Spring and Axle Works.

manufacturing city and there is industry of which she should be more proud, or from which she will derive more benefit than the Dowsley Spring & Axle Company. This firm came here about the middle of January and have now in operation a plant which employs on an average of over 40 men.

There is no doubt but what time Chatham will be universally known as a carriage city, the credit of this will, to a large extent, be due to the Dowsley firm. Springs and axles are a very essential thing carriages, and the Dowsley patent spring is now being very largely used in most of the first class carriages. Companies, therefore, who are contemplating the erection of new carriage factories will undoubtedly prefer to come to Chatham, where they can have their springs and axles manufactured and delivered at their very door as it were, before they would go to another town and pay extra freight on these goods. Then, too, Chatham's good shipping facilities also make it a very desirable location for these factories. In the face of all these facts there In the face of all these facts there are some people who are spreading the report that the Dowsley people are not living up to their agreement with the city and are employing a less number of men in their factory than their by-law provides for.

A representative of The Planet called on A. M. Dowsley at the factory yesterday, and upon inquiry as to yesterday, and upon inquiry as to the rumor was shown the pay roll of the company, which showed that ever since the factory has been in operation an average of over 40 men have been employed each week. Last week they employed 44 men, besides the superintendents. In an interview

Mr. Dowsley said:
"Our pay roll last week amounted to $332.40. Of course this varies a little other weeks, sometimes it is more and occasionally a little less. Last week, however, was a good average. The reason of the occasional decrease is that frequently some of the men are laid off for a day or the men are laid off for a day or two with injured members. We always have 40 men employed and generally more. We have been working all night all winter till a week or two ago, filling orders. This, of course, gives the employees a chance to earn more wages. from $1.25 a day to $3.50 a day, according to the amount of labor a man can do. We have several men in our employ earning about $20.00

"The way these rumors start is by men coming here, having been dis-charged as worthless by other fac-tories, and impose on us. We, of tories, and impose on us. We, of course, have to discharge them as soon as we find them out, and they do all in their power to harm us." Mr. Dowsley then showed the Mr. Dowsley then showed the reporter through the factory. No one can realize the immensity of the concern without visiting the factory.

Next fall the Dowsley firm intend to double their facilities and they will then employ about 75 men.
