Mill Dam Broke Away.

Last Friday night the waste gates at Witter's upper mill pond partially collapsed, allowing the big dam to break away. The water came down with a tremendous rush, but fortunately the trouble was noticed very soon after it commenced, otherwise both of the lower dams would have been washed away also. As it was, the water did considerable damage to stock at the Hamel furniture factory, where it stood during the big rush at a depth of twenty inches on the basement floor. Mr. Witter's loss will be very heavy, as the rebuilding of the waste gates and filling in the washout with gravel will cost upwards of $1000. Mr. Witter has already commenced making the repairs.

The summing up in North Haron gives J. W. King, Progressive, the narrow margin of 94 over George Spotton, the Conservative candidate. Mr. Spotton is asking for a recount before a Judge, and confidently expects, owing to numerous errors by inexperienced deputies, to win the seat. Mr. Spotton refuses to admit defeat until every ballot is scrutinized by a Judge. Mr. Spotton has sounded the note to his followers to be ready for the fight which may be upon them in a few months.

Meyer of Elmwood will preach, followed by communion service. On Monday evening at 7.30, Mr. N. Schwalm will read the church history of the fifty years, followed by addresses by the pastors. All are cordially invited.

Frost "Cooked" Winter Apples.

Last week's severe frosts, did a tremendous amount of damage in this section, and throughout the greater part of the province. There was a heavy crop of winter apples, and it safe to say that from ten to twenty thousand barrels of the choicest Northern Spies have been completely destroyed by the frost in this township. Winter apple picking is not usually done before the first of November, and the frosts coming about October 25th, when the bulk of the fruit was still on the trees, completely destroyed all the unpicked crop. As a consequence, the price has jumped from $1.50 per barrel to nearly $3.00 in this section. The mangold crop has also been seriously injured, and the farmers are busy this week lifting the balance of this crop. Many have not taken up their potatoes, but they are all busy at the job this week.

SOUTH BRUCE GOES BACK TO LIBERAL COLUMN

Progressive Cause Weakening Badly

CONSERVATIVES HAVE BIGGEST GROUP IN HOUSE

By a decisive majority of 603 votes Dr. W. A. Hall of Walkerton, the Liberal candidate, was elected to the House of Commons for South Bruce. The outstanding feature of the contest was the weakening of the Progressive cause. Mr. Findlay, who represented this riding for the past four years, and was elected in 1921 by 4762 votes, nearly lost his deposit this time, being low man with 2128 votes.

Mr. F. W. Lippert, the Conservative candidate, was well supported all through the riding, securing good majorities at Walkerton, Chesley, Teeswater and Formosa. In the rural polls, however, he was headed off by Dr. Hall.

RED BLOODED MEN AND WOMEN

Get More Pleasure Out of Life and Are of More Use in the World Than Sickly, Rundown People.

There are people who lack the red blood to give color to their lips, warmth to their hands and brightness to their eyes. These people tire easily and cannot compete in school, store or shop with the more energetic. Their blood being thin they are nervous and do not sleep well. Arising in the morning unrefreshed they begin each day badly and miss much of the pleasure of living.

To become active and energetic, like most red-blooded Canadians, these people need a blood-building tonic.

A tonic that gives strength, that revitalizes weak nerves, that increases the appetite and aids digestion will put color in the cheeks and lips and give vigor to the step. That means new joy in living, increased usefulness and longer life.

Where ever you find a person who has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills faithfully you find an enthusiastic friend of the tonic that has made life mean more in many ways. These blood-making pills have been used by three generations of Canadians and in almost every community, however small, can be found those who owe health and happiness to this famous household remedy.

Weak and Run Down.

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louie Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says:—"About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run-down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking only six boxes I am as well and strong as ever. I can walk and run without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my stand-by in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always find pleasure in recommending them to anyone needing a tonic."

Help for Nervous People.

Are you pale and weak, tired most of the time, out of breath on slight exertion? Are you nervous, is your sleep disturbed so that rest does not refresh you?

Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need the help of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mr. W. W. Francis, of Calgary, Alta., says of this tonic. "After returning from overseas," writes Mr. Francis, "my whole system was in a badly run down condition. I became nervous, irritable, pale and lost weight. Of course I was given treatment and recommended many tonics, some of which I took, but with no apparent result. At last I could not even sleep. My sister, who is in England, wrote and urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I can scarcely say how glad I am that I took her advice. My friends were surprised at my complete recovery, but I assured them it was due entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I now always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

Keep Your System Toned Up.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills assist digestion, correct the lassitude, the palpitation of the heart, shaky nerves and the pallor of the face and lips that are the results of thin, impure blood.

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. Get a box and begin this treatment now.

Send for These Health Books.

Two useful books, "Building Up the Blood," and "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., if you mention this paper.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box.

The Frontier College.

The first calendar of the Frontier College strikes a new note in education. This institution endeavors to relate an Arts course to life, and is therefore designed to open the door of opportunity to manual and other workers, hitherto neglected.

This institution claims, and with a good deal of reason, that too many of our young people have been sent away from home to acquire an education. This has detached them from the busy work-a-day world, and unfitted them for the daily round and common task of earning a living and helping their families and neighbors.

The Frontier College has broken new ground, and studiously avoids competition with the older universities. It seeks to create an interest in the homestead, farm, camp, shop and other forms of isolated employment so long overlooked.

There can be no question that the time is ripe for such a university. In a country like Canada where manual workers are needed most of all, and where this class will settle in large numbers in the future, it is necessary to bring education to the worker rather than take him away from his work to obtain an education elsewhere. For matriculants who have the ambition, energy and capacity to study alone, courses of study are outlined therein, and due provision will be made so that candidates may write their examinations locally.

Perhaps one of the most interesting features of the Frontier College is the fact that no boy or girl living in the city can win a scholarship. These are offered as a premium to encourage a "trek" back to the land. Substantial fellowships running from $100 to $500 are offered to young men and women who go to the frontier and combine manual labor and a few hours of teaching with private study. This is something decidedly new in education and every fair minded person interested in Canada will wish the experiment successful.

Fuller information may be obtained by writing to the Frontier College, Toronto.

A Veteran Motor-Car.

A motor-car, built in 1905, which is said to have travelled 500,000 miles, figures among the assets of a motor mechanic in the bankruptcy court at Washington, D.C. It still runs, but not on the original tires.

It is calculated that the machine has travelled an average of eighty-five miles a day for the sixteen years of its life, or, allowing rest on Sundays, about 100 miles a day. It has run the equivalent of twenty trips round the world at the Equator.

The relic, which will be sold to satisfy creditors, has been appraised at $25,000.

Because He Could Work.

Among those who are interested in improving the condition of the physically defective—cripples, the deaf and dumb and the blind—no experience is more common than the desire, in many cases the eagerness that these unfortunates manifest to help themselves by doing such work as still remains possible to them.

The most intelligent effort is now directed, not so much toward establishing institutions where the physically defective may be cared for free, as to teaching them occupations by which they can support themselves in self-respecting industry.

This desire for independence is seldom so simply and so touchingly demonstrated as it was in an incident in which Miss Helen Keller recently figured.

Not long ago there came to Miss Keller a letter from an unknown correspondent in the West. The handwriting was precise and laborer, the phrasing homely, and in the letter, wrapped in paper, with a care that spoke eloquently of the meaning of money to the writer, was a dollar bill. "Dear Helen Keller," the letter read, "I have heard about you, and I am sorry for you. I send you a dollar, because I am deaf and dumb, but I can work and you cannot. I work in a factory and have a good job the year round. I wish I had your picture. If you have a picture that has been printed somewhere in a paper of a magazine and would send it to me, I should think a great deal of it—I would not ask for a photograph, but any picture that has been printed."

A heart as tender as Miss Keller's, but with less insight, might have dictated the return of the money, since her circumstances made the gift quite unnecessary. But instead, with intuitive understanding, she accepted the humble gift in a graceful letter in which she told the unknown giver that it would afford her much pleasure to "buy something with the dollar for herself." She also sent a large photograph, with her signature on it.

In a little while there came this reply: "Dear Helen Keller: Your letter and picture were both received on the 18th of May. You do not know how happy I am. On reading the letter and looking at the picture a thrill of joy came over me. O my friend, I cannot find words to express to you the thanks I feel. May God bless you for your kindness. Inclosed in this letter you find a dollar which is yours to use as you please; and also a postage stamp to replace the one you put on the picture you sent me. I cannot find it in my heart to allow you to spend a cent for me, as I can work and you cannot."

Could one find anywhere a nobler tribute than this to the dignity and worth of labor? To be able to give is the finest thing in the world, and to be able to work is to earn the power to give.

The Divine Art.

What art, like Music, can express Our thoughts and feelings, sad or bright? A solace sweet when in distress, In happy hours our chief delight!

From morn of Life till eventide, At every stage—in joy or pain, In hours of gloom, of pomp and pride, Music supplies th' appropriate strain.

In infancy—soft lullaby; The wedding march for groom and bride; And, when is breathed Life's long last sigh, The solemn chant at quiet grave-side.

What Art is there can charm away Like Music, haunting doubts and fears— Make heart and spirits light and gay, Or move us to the point of tears?

Sweet melody at close of day A soothing sense of peace imparts; Both prince and peasant own the sway Of music—Queen of all the Arts!

New Delights.

Day after day I find some new delight: It was the grass that pressed upon my cheeks, That shed a touch as soft as Death's, when he Comes to a sleeping child that never wakes.

And now the wind and rain: it was the rain That made the wind reveal his breath at last; But 'twas the wind that, traveling high and far, Furrowed the heavens with clouds from east to west.

And when the night has come, perhaps the Moon, With her round face all shining clear and bright, Will ride the dark, humped clouds with camel's backs— And end my day with that last new delight.

A Marvellous Thing.

Did you ever stop to think, what a marvellous thing a day really is, and what wonderful opportunities for happiness it holds? Every morning we wake to a new miracle, a marvellous world of beauty, overflowing with possibilities. The grandeur, the mystery of it all ought to entrance every human being. To think that each morning we are ushered into a new life; that no matter how many mistakes we made yesterday, no matter how many times we slipped up or what our sins were, or how many opportunities we lost, we can start anew to-day and fill every hour with the best we can put into it! This of itself should fill one with joy and gratitude.—O. S. Marden.

Ask for Minard's and take no other. The Whole Truth.

The young man with the flushed face felt very proud of himself. It was only natural that he should do so, for he had been promoted to the position of chief drummer for a firm of wholesale druggists, and further than that, he had the use of a car.

For the benefit of this story, it is essential to note that the young traveling man was a very honest and truthful young fellow.

His first business call took place in a drug store in a Southern watering place. He already had a lengthy list of goods on order when the white-haired druggist thought a moment, then inquired: "Has your firm anything for gray hair, young man?"

"No, I'm afraid not," came the astounding reply. "Nothing but the greatest respect."

Shark's Characteristics.

In some species of sharks the young are born alive, but in others the eggs are deposited in a tough, usually flattened case with tendrils by which it may be fixed to seaweeds. Most of the 150 species of sharks are characterized by five gill openings on either side of the head, underneath which the mouth is situated.

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.—"I am one of thousands who have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have great faith in it. I can safely say it has relieved my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will cure other women who are suffering from the troubles I had."—Mrs. THOS. H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for the mother. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken by the nursing mother.

Its worth in restoring the mother to normal health and strength is told again and again in just such letters as "Mrs. Gardner writes."

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound shows that 98 out of every 100 women taking the medicine are benefited by it. They write and tell us so. Such evidence entitles us to call it a dependable medicine for women. It is for sale by druggists everywhere.

WILLIAM KRETSCH CAUGHT IN FALLING WALL

The home of Mrs. Kretsch and daughter was grief stricken last week when the news of the accident and later death of her son William J. came to them.

Mr. Kretsch and other men were inspecting gas piping in the Coulter Wood Products Co. building, Hamilton, which had been erected only a short time, and while they were in the building a wall collapsed and Mr. Kretsch was completely buried. It was several minutes before he could be extricated in a helpless condition and rushed to the general hospital, where it was found that internal injuries and a fractured skull had resulted in his death.

Mr. Kretsch was raised in this community and will be remembered by the older residents. He has been in the West for 19 years, but has recently been working in Hamilton when the tragedy occurred.

He was a loving husband and father and an affectionate son and brother, and his death came as a shock to the relatives here and the bereaved family in Hamilton.

The remains were conveyed from Dwyer's private chapel, Thursday morning to the depot for shipment to Teeswater. The services here were held at Sacred Heart church on Friday morning, Rev. Father Dogarski performing the funeral rites. Interment took place in the R. C. cemetery, Teeswater.

Those who mourn his loss are the widow and six children, his mother of Teeswater, three sisters and one brother, Miss Theresa, Teeswater. Mrs. C. J. Schumacker, Mrs. Harry Fisher and Peter, at Elbow, Sask.—Teeswater News.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT FORDWICH

The most disastrous fire which has occurred in this village for many years took place about 12.30 o'clock Sunday morning, when R. C. Muirhead's Garage and Mr. Wm. Radford's harness shop and residence were totally destroyed. The contents of the ground floor of the Radford building were removed, but nothing was saved from upstairs or from the garage. The wind was blowing from the south-east when the fire started and this was fortunate for the residence of J. W. Bewitherick, which is on the east side of the garage and only separated from it by about four feet. The fire started in the garage, but what caused it is unknown. Several citizens who passed the building but a few minutes before the alarm was given saw nothing amiss. Miss Violet Bewitherick first noticed the fire from the window of her bedroom and called her father, who gave the alarm. Nothing could have been done to save Mr. Radford's building so all effort was used in removing the furniture, etc., from both his residence and that of Mr. Bewitherick. At first, it was thought that the latter's home must also go but many willing helpers, armed with fire extinguishers and buckets of water, waged a stubborn fight for several hours and came off victorious.

Mr. H. W. Cook, who owned the building, and Mr. Radford, especially the harness shop, but a light in the harness shop was carried to the railway crossing and a dead stop sign was placed there. The crossing was closed, but the fire passed, but the harness shop and that

PAINFULLY BRUISED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

While motoring home from Paisley with her brother, Mr. Frank Watt, on Wednesday afternoon last, Mrs. Harold Jasper of town was painfully bruised about the arm and side when a car driven by Mr. Davis of Paisley collided with her brother's bus, about two miles this side of Paisley, the impact throwing her forcibly against the front seat of the car. Mrs. Jasper was sitting in the rear seat with her few months' old baby in her arms and when the collision occurred she threw out her arm to save the babe being crushed as she was thrown from her seat. In thus protecting the child her arm and side were badly bruised. Her brother, who was driving, was thrown against the windshield and received a bad cut on his lip while her sister who was sitting in the front seat had her knee injured. Their car was badly wrecked, the two front wheels being demolished, the radiator shoved back and other damage done. It is said that the Davis car, which in passing swerved and skidded into Watt's car, escaped with but slight damage.—Port Elgin Times.

CHEEK GASHED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Bessie Fullerton, teacher of S. S. No. 1, Saugeen, sustained a bad gash on her cheek, which took ten stitches to close, in an auto accident on Sunday evening last. Miss Fullerton who had been spending the week-end at her home in Greenock township was being motored back to Saugeen by a Mr. Garland of near Pinkerton, and when opposite James Reoch's on the Goderich road south a bolt dropped out of the radius rod of his Ford touring causing the car to leave the road and turn a complete somersault and half way over again. While the driver of the car miraculously escaped injury, Miss Fullerton had her cheek badly gashed on the broken windshield. The top of the car was completely demolished and the bus otherwise damaged.—Port Elgin Times.

THE DEADLY RAILWAY CROSSING

The level railway crossing appears to be even more deadly now that the fast-moving automobile is on the road than it was in the day when horse-drawn vehicles were the chief means of travel on country roads. The number and character of railway crossing accidents in this province alone have been appalling. That in most cases the driver of the automobile was inexcusable, does not detract from the tragic situation. If the consequences were confined to the fool at the wheel who tries to beat the approaching train there would be less occasion for alarm, but too often others with more sense suffer, along with the reckless driver.

There is no protecting the reckless speed fiend. He is bound to get into trouble, soon or late, and that appears the only cure for him.

Mr. Donald F. McGraw, assistant to the chief claims agent of the Canadian National Railways has said that he believes the only way to avert level crossing accidents to motorists is to pass a law compelling the railway crossing to be closed, but that it would be even fairly well enforced seems unlikely. It would take a policeman at every crossing to enforce it, and there are crossings where such a policeman would not see more than one car per day. Then there are crossings at which the stop regulation would cause a congestion of traffic, which would be not only very troublesome and annoying, but dangerous as well.

That the level crossing should be done away with, by, in every case having one road pass over or under the other, is another suggestion, but this would be tremendously expensive and is out of the question. Perhaps the ultimate solution will be partial adaptation of the several remedies suggested—in places underground crossings, in others gates, in others electric signals or watchmen, and in yet others where the traffic is very light, safety will be left to chance and the judgement of the motorist.

MAIL FRAUDS

"It is not extravagant to say that a million gullible Americans yearly lose their money and property in mail fraud schemes and that a billion dollars annually are so lost." The words of a sensationalist? Not at all. They are taken from an address made to the Investment Bankers' Association by Horace J. Donnelly, solicitor of the post-office department. For the last several years Mr. Donnelly has been the chief director of the Government's pursuit of mail fraud operators. This pursuit has been going on for nearly a half century. It is based on statutes which empower the officials to deny the use of the mails for the operation of fraudulent schemes and which provide for the criminal prosecution of persons who so operate such schemes through the mails. Yet it is probable that more fraudulent schemes are put over through the mails than ever before.

RAILWAY BRIDGE AFIRE

Was the bridge on the National railway between the Jardine and McAllister sidelines deliberately set on fire on Sunday evening? At first sight this appeared to be the solution of the query—how did the blaze originate? In any case, C. P. Schell, who lives on the eighth line, opposite, but probably half a mile distant, noticed the blaze and on making an investigation found the bridge blazing. It was about six o'clock in the evening, but help was quickly secured and the blaze was soon extinguished. It was fortunate that Mr. Schell made his discovery, otherwise the bridge might have been totally destroyed and a serious train accident followed. If it were the work of an incendiary it was a dastardly trick. Special officers of the C.N.R. were sent to the scene immediately to investigate.—Alliston Herald.

FOUND DEAD IN HAY MOW

Mr. George Adam Gibson, who for over 40 years has resided on Lot 33, Con. 7, Kincardine Township, was found dead in the hay mow in his barn about 6 o'clock, October 20th. He had gone to the barn about 2 o'clock and sometime between then and the time of the discovery he succumbed to a heart attack. Deceased was in his 73rd year and was highly respected and esteemed pioneer. Besides his wife he leaves a family of three sons and three sons.

GARAGE BROKEN INTO

Some time late Monday night or early Tuesday morning Fletcher & Nelson's garage, Wallace street, was broken into and a considerable quantity of goods, samples, was stolen from a traveller's car that had been left there for repairs. The goods, consisting of silks, silk scarfs and knitted goods, were valued at about $500. The cash register was also opened but as the contents had been taken out by the proprietors the thieves got nothing there. Earlier in the evening a stranger called at the garage enquiring what time the proprietors closed the garage, and whether or not any of them stayed all night. While there he examined the car in a rather disinterested way. When he found that the garage was generally closed about 10.30 he appeared somewhat disappointed. He stated that he wanted to leave his car there all night but would not be through with his car for the night until about two hours later than that. He was told he might be able to leave it in the Queen's stables. We understand he called on the manager of the stables and told the same story and got permission to leave the car. The outer doors were not locked but the doors near the rear of the barn closing the barn from the garage were locked.

Sometime during the night it is supposed between 11 p.m. and 2 a.m. the lock was broken on the inner doors, a window between the barn and the garage was taken out and the garage was entered and the valises and samples were stolen. It was an ideal spot for a robbery as the burglars could work at all times under cover. Four new tires were stolen from the garage but were left in the barn.

The police throughout the province have been notified of the robbery and it is hoped that the guilty party or parties will soon be arrested.—Listowel Standard.

MANY ARE CALLED

In the farmhouse there's a maiden who is tired of humdrum chores, she is worn and heavy laden working in and out of doors. She is dreaming, as she labors, of a movie queen's career; some day she'll surprise the neighbors, jolt the nations far and near. There's a damsel sweetly dreaming in the Gold Brick dry goods store, with the crowds around her streaming—but she won't be there much more; by her dreams she is uplifted, in that sordid, busy scene, for she knows she's strangely gifted as a movie actrice. In the laundry there's a lady who is keen for wealth and fame; little dimpled, doll-like Sadie, she will try the movie game; other girls have proven winners—Mary Pickford and that crew; and she joins the other spinners of sweet dreams that don't come true. Sober warnings cannot daunt them, and to Hollywood they go, thinking managers will want them, offering large chunks of dough. But the managers are hidden and are mighty hard to find, and the girls who came unbidden find their lives a weary grind. They are gifted, but the city throngs with lovely gifted maids, and they travel, more's the pity, in the unemployed parades. Where two damsels get their chances forty damsels wait in vain, while the day of wrath advances, day of poverty and pain; soon they've emptied all their purses and can pay no washhouse bills; then with chaste but earnest curses they go back to the farms.

WHEN SHOULDER TOUCHES SHOULDER

By Edgar L. Vincent

The other day the American Federation of Labor, meeting at Atlantic City, New Jersey, placed itself on record as favoring "increasing production in quality, as well as in quantity." By this the Federation means, as the new President, Mr. Green, explained, that by the use of better machinery; by wiping out wastes and by putting shoulder down close to shoulder, employer with employe, production costs may be decreased, more products and better may be turned out, bringing an increased income to be shared by worker and employer.

Here is a thought for farmers as well as for hired men. Close union of thought and action mean larger output, at reduced cost, a finer quality of crops, bringing higher prices, and more profits to be divided between the farmer and his help.

What is this but saying to every farmer, everywhere, "Give your hired men the best tools you can afford. Put your shoulder down by the shoulder of your hired man and lift with him for success?" Does it not mean, too for the hired man, "Take the implements that are given to you, use them as if they were your own, and shoulder to shoulder with your employer work, think and plan for the best returns possible?"

I have seen farms where this is never done. The farmer and his hired men seem to work at cross purposes. Such a thing as producing a better crop of any kind never seems to enter into the thought of the employe; neither does the employer appear to second the efforts of his helper to do his best, for the sake of the better crop and the larger return.

There never could be a greater mistake. We are all bound up together, worker and employer. Our interests are similar. When the farmer is prosperous, it means a better condition for the workingman he employs, provided there is the right spirit between them.

I know of farms where the hired men have just as much interest in everything that is done as does the farmer himself. Shoulder to shoulder all are working for a common end, the best possible production, the finest crops that can be raised, and a living return for each. That is right. It means peace and prosperity. It means real success. Shoulder to shoulder. Are we working that way?

CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Robt. McKenzie, an automobile salesman of Harriston, was arrested in the latter town on Friday last and brought to the Walkerton jail on the charge of issuing a cheque without having funds to meet it in the Bank. The transaction for which he was apprehended took place at Glamis on Oct. 1st, when McKenzie after purchasing some motor oil from the garageman, Mr. John Groves, is alleged to have given in payment a cheque for $10 on the Royal Bank at Harriston, he receiving the balance of $8.50 in cash from the garageman. When the cheque was later presented for payment, it was rejected on the grounds of "no funds." Two similar bogus cheques are also said to have been given to parties in Paisley by him about the same period. The accused was released on bail of $800 to appear in police court at Walkerton for trial on Saturday morning next at 10 o'clock.

Two more weekly papers passed out of separate existence this week. Mr. Thos. Nash, a veteran publisher, has sold out the Gorrie Vidette and the Wroxeter News, to Mr. A. G. Smith, publisher of the Wingham Advance-Times, and they will in future be incorporated with that paper, in which a special section will be devoted to the districts covered by the two purchased papers. The conditions of the printing business, as well as the desire of Mr. Nash to take a well-earned rest, have brought about the changes.

THE PRINCE NAMES A BABY

Minor trials have been experienced in plenty by the Prince of Wales during his prolonged tour in Africa and South America, but they have never in any way depressed his good spirits. Indeed, some of these little trials have afforded his royal highness a good deal of amusement. For example, at a village on the veldt in South Africa, a native woman showed the Prince with some pride her children, six boys and one baby girl.

The interpreter informed the Prince of their names. When he came to the baby girl he told the Prince that the child was yet unnamed and that the mother would feel deeply honored if the Prince would name her.

The request took the Prince completely aback. He was for a moment quite unprepared with a suitable suggestion. But his royal highness was only nonplussed for the briefest space. He suggested the name Dawn; it was received with delight by the mother and the baby was so named on the spot.

It was a fairly frequent trial of the Prince during his tour that the days set apart to give him a rest from the keeping of public engagements, had to be sacrificed in order that he might attend some entertainment got up unexpectedly.

A Kiss for the Bride.

One of these little entertainments was a native wedding. The ceremony had been hastily arranged to take place so as to coincide with the Prince's arrival at the village.

The Prince anticipated being able to take a day off and enjoy some hours of really needed rest when he reached the village.

But on his arrival he was presented with the invitation to the wedding; and at once agreed to accept it and duly bestowed a kiss—another unexpected duty—on the bride.

At one little town the Prince had agreed to play a round of golf with a local champion. On his arrival at the links the Prince found that an enormous crowd of all sorts and conditions of persons had assembled on the course to witness the match. This was somewhat disconcerting for his royal highness, who never plays up to his best form before a big gallery.

With Midget Clubs.

But there was another circumstance still more disconcerting—his royal highness found that he was expected to play not with his own clubs, but with a weird collection of "irons" not more than a foot in length.

The Prince put up with a bad defeat with the best of grace, gratefully accepting the strange clubs that were presented to him after the match.

The worst trial that befell was the long delay in Chile, necessitated by the unexpected heavy snowfall in the Andes. That delay meant the total upset of the Prince's program in the Argentine, which had to be rearranged by cable.

This was a necessarily difficult task and kept the Prince's secretarial staff at work day and night. The Prince himself remained up one entire night settling the details with his staff.

A great trial to the Prince in connection with all his tours has been the long train journeys. His royal highness' restlessness of disposition makes him detest sitting still for hours in a train. He went play cards and does not like reading. When it is practicable the Prince alights from the royal special and takes anything from a fifteen to thirty mile walk, while the special is sent ahead. During his present tour the Prince in this way has walked several hundreds of miles.

A GLAD DELIVERANCE

By George H. Coomer.

Old Captain Bradford, with whom I once sailed, was wont to relate an adventure of his with a pirate off the Isle of Pines. It happened long ago, when the spot was the most dreadful resort of villainy to be found in the whole world.

"I was before the mast in the brig Atlas," he said, "and we were lying at Kingston, Jamaica, when six pirates were hung there. Some of them, as they stood under the gallows, made confessions that were enough to start one's hair on end, and after this very little was thought of in our forecabin but the danger we must always be subject to while at sea from such wretches as we had seen strung up with their shoes on."

"At night I would lie in my berth and think of it. What a horrible thing it appeared to me, as vision after vision rose up in my imagination that such miscreants should be out on the lonely ocean, committing awful crimes where there was no hand to stay them! And sometimes, in that nervousness which a person feels who lies awake when he ought to be asleep, I would see it almost as a certainty that, soon or late, the blood-thirsty monsters would cross my path."

"After a time, getting a freight of six hundred barrels of Jamaica rum, we sailed for Havana, and, as our course would take us around Cape St. Antonio, at the west end of Cuba, we would undoubtedly pass within sight of the Isle of Pines."

"There was much fog in the Caribbean Sea, coming up generally at evening and hanging about us until late in the next forenoon, and so strong with every one was the apprehension of pirates that, whenever toward nightfall we had made a vessel in the distance, even our captain seemed to feel relieved as the mist came rolling over the water to shut her from sight."

"Light breezes and calms made the passage long and tedious, and it was not until ten days after leaving Jamaica that one noon, as the fog left us, we saw, off our starboard-beam, a number of mountain peaks, apparently far inland, while, nearer to us, a line of dark tree-tops appeared above the waves."

"That's the Isle of Pines," said the captain. "I meant to give it a wider berth than this."

"We looked toward it with a kind of interest which I have no desire to feel again. It bore northeast about fifteen miles."

"All the afternoon we lay becalmed, though occasional breezes roughened the water at a distance, and toward night there appeared to seaward the upper canvas of a vessel, standing in, as we judged, toward the land."

"That vessel was a pirate, we had good reason to believe, for, although her distance from us made it impossible to determine her character, or even her rig, the course she was apparently steering caused us to look at each other with very sober faces. We could gather hope only from the extreme lightness of the breeze she seemed to have."

"We had two six-pounders, and these we loaded. I remember how the powder and the six-pound balls and the grape and canister looked as we brought them up from below and put them down near the guns."

"That evening the fog did not set in. The night continued clear till almost daybreak, and the anxiety with which we peered through the darkness and listened made the long hours dreadful to us."

"At last the fog came, and sunrise soon followed. A faint breeze sprang up, and the brig moved along at the rate of two or three knots. How glad we were to be making headway, although so slowly!"

"Pirate or not, there was hardly one chance in a thousand that the vessel we had seen, now that we were changing our bearings, would fall in with us in that thick atmosphere."

"Some of us were aloft, rigging out the foremast, standing-sail boom. How much better we felt, now that the brig was moving and we could be doing something to help her along! But suddenly we stopped in our work and looked around with a start. My heart became like ice. A confused sound of voices at first reached us, and as we raised our heads, a topsail-schooner, full of men, loomed through the dense fog, not thirty fathoms from us."

"She was off our port bow and standing athwart our course. And what a crew she had! Seventy or eighty shaggy scoundrels, that looked frightfully murderous as we caught sight of them through the mist."

"Neither vessel was moving faster than the ordinary walk of a man, yet before the crew of either recovered from their surprise, the schooner passed athwart our bow and we athwart her stern, while the hole that each made in the fog closed up as if in quicksand.

"We knew that the pirate would put himself in pursuit of us as speedily as possible, but to do this he must go in stays or wear, and would not gather headway for some minutes. We heard his blocks creak and rattle, heard him ease off the sheet of his heavy mainsail, and square in the long yards upon his foremast. But we, too, altered our course."

"For half an hour the suspense was terrible, and then hope revived, but it was only to be destroyed by a complete dying out of the wind."

"Should the calm endure until the passing away of the fog, what could we do? We were eight men, with two cannon, against eighty men, with a dozen cannon."

"Soon there came the sound of oars. The pirate's boats were looking for us. Our captain was a man who never in apparently steering caused us to look at each other with very sober faces. We could gather hope only from the extreme lightness of the breeze she seemed to have."

"We had two six-pounders, and these we loaded. I remember how the powder and the six-pound balls and the grape and canister looked as we brought them up from below and put them down near the guns."

Sees Taurus Companion of Sun.

The astronomer Luyten says the sun is moving through space at twelve and a half miles a second toward the far off star Vega, and is taking our earth and the other planets of the solar system with it. Measurements of the stars outside show an apparent motion in the opposite direction. But in the case of one star in the constellation Taurus, the bull, Dr. Luyten finds this motion absent. The only explanation he finds for this is that this star is moving in exactly the same direction and with the same speed as our own sun and is a companion to our sun.

Prevention of Crime.

The best time to save the criminal is before he becomes one.

It costs less—saves money, time, patience, social machinery, institutions of all kinds.

Prevention is always more important than reformation. Crime and its solution is largely a matter of efficiency in child-protection.

The criminal was once a child. Salvage should begin farther back. We can win boys to a good life by example and companionship.

The Automobile

WOMEN SHOW HIGH SKILL IN DRIVING AUTOS.

There is considerable enjoyment for a woman in taking out the family car during the week while the men folks are at business, for a little drive into the country and getting away from the daily routine of housework occasionally. If a woman knows how to drive she will doubtless make use of the car for errands, meeting her husband at the station, if the home is in the suburbs, or taking the children to school. A car will come in handy many times.

According to statistics, one woman out of three, of those families having automobiles, knows how to drive. This, I believe, holds good only in the country—not so much in the city. There is no reason why more do not drive unless it is because nobody seems to find the time and patience to teach them or they are "going to some day." Perhaps the family housework seems to postpone the start. With the present day it is not a difficult thing to learn how to drive.

Only a few years back if one did not properly manipulate the clutch one would start with a terrific jolt almost enough to knock the driver through the windshield, but nowadays the motorist can almost let the clutch in without taking her foot right off the pedal and she will not receive a jolt, although this is not a good policy and will in time injure the mechanism of the car.

INSTRUCTOR ALWAYS HANDY.

If the feminine driver's husband or brother will not teach her, and if she is still anxious to learn, and if she is not near a good automobile school, which would be the best place to go, she can engage the services of a good chauffeur, or, better still, a demonstrator from an automobile service station and have him teach her. These men are often glad to do a little of this work, and one should not have great difficulty in finding such a person.

The best way to make a beginning is to have the rear of the car jacked up and the front wheels blocked so that there is no danger of the car getting away. When learning to operate an automobile the first step is to become familiar with the engine—how to start and stop it—and how to control speed.

FIRST AID TO BEGINNER.

Regarding starting the engine, consult the instruction book that came with the car, and if that is not obtainable, secure another from your local dealer. If he cannot furnish you with one, write to the factory and give them the motor number and where you bought your car.

Having learned to start the engine, the woman should become familiar with the different speeds, which vary with the different cars. Most cars have the standard shift—first speed, left back toward the side; second speed is right forward; and third speed is straight back; reverse is left forward. In other words, visualize the letter "H." The upper left of the letter "H" is reverse; the lower left is first speed; the upper right is second speed; and the lower right is third speed and the line drawn across the two parallel lines is neutral.

If a woman will try these things she has made a beginning to learn how to operate the family automobile. The number of women driving cars is increasing rapidly. Many authorities say that women make better drivers than men. They are more careful.

Money.

Money, money, money that jingles in my pocket.

To buy a golden locket Or a house that keeps the rain out, Or a gown to gaily flout— But may it never buy for me a friend.

Money, money, money—so much will money buy— Titles, great and high, Jewels rare and olden; Pleasure fair and golden. But cannot buy a sunny day.

Money, money, money that many live and die for.

And the weak and wistful lie for, That's after all so futile, Compared with things worth while, O may it never swerve me from high heaven.

—George Elliston.

Turning Day Into Night.

It might be supposed that a forest fire would turn night into day by its huge illumination, but such a fire produces so much smoke that the opposite is the effect over very large areas. A recent big forest fire near Lake Huron was estimated to cost shipping companies $50,000 by reason of their vessels losing so much time in the dense blackness.

At Portland, Oregon, some years ago, all lights had to be on day and night for a week, although it was mid-summer, as the sun was completely blotted out with acrid and dense smoke.

Even navigation thousands of miles out at sea has been seriously interfered with by the black masses of smoke that have been blown from a fire ranging over many square miles of forest on the mainland.

Ingrained Hostility.

The proverb about leading a horse to water is illustrated by this story of two old women, living in an English village, who had sustained a mutual quarrel with zest for many years.

After taking an immense amount of trouble, says Sunbeam, the vicar of the parish succeeded in reconciling the two old women. He even induced them to meet under the vicarage roof, in his drawing-room they shook hands. After an embarrassed silence one of them said:

"Well, Mrs. Tyler, I wish you all you wishes me."

"An' who's saying nasty things now?" snapped Mrs. Tyler.

Canada's Natural Resources Harvest.

The bountiful crops which the Canadian farmer has this year reaped and which have made his heart glad are, fortunately not the only harvest that has shown a material increase in Canada in 1925. The Fisheries Branch of the Dept. of Marine and Fisheries reports that the fisheries production for the first half of this year exceeded that of last by over $624,000, being nearly $9,780,000. The increase was largely in cod, salmon and lobsters, the latter representing nearly one-third of the total fish caught for the first half of the year. It must be remembered, however, that the open season for salmon on the Pacific coast is not included.

So much for the fisheries. The mines of Canada have also been showing some big production. For the first half year of 1925 the output was larger by over six million dollars than a year ago, or over 90 million dollars. Advances among the metals were general. Gold rose to a new record. Lead passed the high mark attained in the first half of 1924. Nickel production was well maintained. Copper was up a million pounds. Silver showed increasing values. Zinc followed the trend in lead to almost double the output recorded in the first half of 1924. Cobalt production continued to improve.

Canada often boasts of her great resources, and apparently with good reason. But resources lying fallow satisfy few wants and contribute but little to the actual wealth of a nation. It is through the development of resources that prosperity comes.

Your Mind is a Garden.

Your mind is not at all like a machine—all ready-made and automatic. Ask any doctor and he will make this plain to you.

No, your mind is more like a garden. It is the use you make of it that counts.

You can grow these fine plants in your mind-garden—courage, initiative, imagination, will-power, kindness and knowledge.

You can have a garden of ideas and skills and efficiencies. What a garden Newton must have had! Or Darwin, or Huxley, or Verulam, or Pasteur, or Carnegie!

If you let your garden alone it will go to weeds and grass. That is the usual crop.

MILDMAY COUNCIL

The Mildmay Council will meet on Tuesday evening of next week, Nov. 10th, to transact general business.

PRESENTATION TO MRS REUBER

Mrs. Catherine Reuber, who is moving to her residence on Simpson street, Mildmay, this week, was presented with a fine rocking chair on Tuesday evening, at the home of her son, Daniel Reuber, by her neighbors and the members of the Salem Evangelical Church on the 10th concession. A fine program of speeches and music was rendered during the evening, an interesting number of which was the reading of the following address:—

Dear Sister Reuber:

We, your friends and neighbors and Christian Co-Workers of the Salem Evangelical 10th Con. Church, have gathered here to express to you our feeling of keenest regret when we heard of your intended departure from our midst. We felt that we could not let you go without expressing to you how much we all shall miss you and imparting to you our sincerest best wishes for many more happy days to be enjoyed by you. You have lived in this community all your life and have proven yourself a kind and trustworthy neighbor, lending a helping hand in times of sorrow and distress, seeking to do the things that would be a help and comfort and ever watching for opportunities to give pleasure and happiness to those around you. In the life of the church you have played an important part, always ready and willing to support any spiritual enterprise, thereby displaying your Christian character and leaving a good example to those around you. Now that we must part we ask you, Sister Reuber, to accept this rocking chair as a token of our good wishes which go with you to your new home and may it serve to give you comfort in your declining years. May God, who so graciously dealt with you, prolong your days and bless you with health and happiness. May you enjoy the fruits of a well earned rest after many years of labour one with another.

Signed on behalf of the trustees and friends.

CLIFFORD

Mr. John Lints, who went on the Harvester's Excursions to the West, returned home Monday last. He reports that in Manitoba where he was visiting, that they had severe winter weather for three weeks, and much grain is still unthreshed.

On the evening of Wednesday, Oct 21st, the Clifford Ladies Soft Ball Club motored to Palmerston, at the invitation of the Palmerston Amateur Athletic Association to take part in a softball tournament at the rink. Our girls played in the first game against the Palmerston Ladies Team and defeated the Palmerston girls by a score of 12-8.

The second game was played between the girls teams of Harrison and Drayton. Harrison placed a snappy team in the field and won handsily from Drayton.

The final game was between Clifford and Harrison, which was won by Clifford with a score of 15-8.

Our girls showed their superiority over the other teams taking part in the tournament and won the Challenge Cup from the Palmerston Amateur Athletic Association.

CARLSRUHE

There will be a grand Masquerade Ball held here in the Parish Hall on Friday evening, Nov. 6th. All those wishing to enjoy themselves and help others to enjoy themselves, are cordially invited. There will be several prizes awarded for the best costumes. Admission 50c Ladies free.

Messrs. Willie Schwan and Jerome Herringer of Waterloo spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwan.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Girodat of Otter Creek visited with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Girodat on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Weber of Neustadt spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. X. Pochman.

Mr. Herbert Weber, son of Anth. Weber, who had been farming near Ayton, has purchased the 100 acre farm of Mrs. John Willfang on the 11th con. for $7000 and takes possession on the first of March.

Mr. John Hahn has bought the 100 acre farm adjoining his own from Mr. John W. Helwig for $6500 and has sold his 50 acre farm, part of lot 31 on the 13th Con. to Mr. Con. Diebel for $5000. This 50 acres adjoins Mr. Diebel's farm.

Now since the election storm is over the snow storm was ceased and the farmer's are in need of a few weeks more of good weather, as the most of the root crop is out yet, and the majority of mangolds and apples, also some potatoes, are still to be taken in. These crops are already quite a loss on account of the heavy frosts and cold weather the past two weeks.

BELMORE

Otto Johann has his evaporator going.

Joe and R. J. Douglas are building a stone wall for Gordon Mulvey. Robert Baird is talking of running for mayor.

Few people have seen all the world, but we would like if you would come and see Belmore. Howard Whytock of Teeswater purchased 18 cattle from R. J. Douglas and J. T. Scott.

Fred Johann bought a horse at Jno. Smith's sale.
Mrs. Newans was at Gorrie on business last week.

There will be a lot of duck racing in Belmore this winter. We have everything here from curling down. It would be better if the married ducks would stay at home and split the wood and do the chores instead of eating supper and warming toes, than have the hen ducks doing everything.

James Fleming of London is visiting with his uncle and aunt, Mr. J. and Ellen Fleming.

POSTAL RATES GO UP

Parcel post rates in Canada by virtue of the recent revision which came into force last week are not likely to be received with enthusiasm either by the public generally, which uses the parcel post extensively during the Yuletide season, or by business houses, which dispatch large numbers of parcels through the mails daily.

The revision provides for a general increase in charges and a grouping of weights at a flat rate. Business men, who, because of their extensive daily mailing of parcels, have already felt the increases, declare the new rate will affect their trade materially.

UNION STOCK MARKETS TORONTO

A little more activity than was the case a week ago was apparent in all classes of cattle except the plain killers at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. Slightly higher prices were paid by the exporters and the market was also a little stronger for store cattle. Prices were strong for good butcher cattle but common offerings did not move to any extent during the morning. The bulk of the activity on the part of packers and butchers was in the cows and canners.

Export buyers stated that they were paying about 10c higher for heavy hams and 5c higher for heavy shoulders of hams, load at $7.25 to $7.50.

Lambs sold 25c a hundred higher and most of the choice offerings brought $13 a hundred. Culls and heavies sold from $10.50 to $12. Starting yesterday buyers were effecting a cut of $3 a hundred on bucks. Sheep held steady although the trade was inclined to be slow. A few good ones sold from $6 to $6.50 and the balance sold from $5 to $5.50.

Sales of calves prices from $10 with a few at $11 and $12. Activity in calves was slow.

The hog market closed steady at $10.75 f.o.b. and $11.75 off cars. Packers were talking lower prices for Saturday's loading, but the settlement was generally unchanged from last Thursday.
