Sad Death of Mrs. Terry, Whose Husband is Missing

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Simcoe, June 2.—Captain Simpson has called Mrs. Rupert Simpson, his late wife at Sarnia, to his home in Toronto, returning from overseas. Relatives and friends here saw them en route to Fort Rowan last night, to see Pte. Price's mother. The young couple will return to Simcoe to-day. Chas. Reed, of Simcoe, and James A. Mabee, of St. Williams, received welcome home from their respective families and friends on Thursday night. All three are honorably discharged as physically unfit. They went over with the former 133rd.

Pete Glover, the strong man of the 133rd and later of the 180th, who has been about Canada and the United States on a picture show film, writes from France, where he is serving in the 123rd Transport. The German prisoners tell him that Canadians have no mercy and are fighting for souvenirs. He speaks of the death of Leonard Scott and Roy Thompson and says Roy Wheeler was over to see him a few days ago. Before writing, Pete says he had been on the watch for a while and incidentally chasing "seam squirrels," which with trench rats are part of the game.

Sgt. Keith Polley, who enlisted in June, 1915, has addressed us a private letter. He is apparently well, though he says nothing of the war. He is in the Canadian Base Depot, Rouelles Camp, La Havre, France. His family have received a letter from Chas. Edmonds, admitted to No. 13 General Hospital, Bologna, May 9th. Edmonds says little of his wound, but the letter was written with the left hand.

Sad Death at Renton
South Townsend and Northern Woodhouse residents were shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. W. A. Terry, wife of the missing Rev. W. A. Terry, who disappeared from Renton on April 12th, and whose whereabouts has since been unknown. Mrs. Terry, on invitation of the Quarters Board, undertook to fill out the few remaining Sundays of the conference year, and on Sunday, May 20th, preached ably and acceptably at the three appointments.

On the following Saturday the former evangelist was taken suddenly ill. An operation for appendicitis was performed on Sunday Monday, and on Thursday afternoon Mrs. Terry passed quietly away. Her brother, Dr. T. W. Nancekivell, of Hamilton, was one of the three physicians in the case. The deceased was an elderly lady, Miss Kelly, a qualified nurse, was in charge, but medical skill failed. The remains were shipped from Renton yesterday afternoon to Ingersoll for interment.

Rev. J. H. McBain, of Simcoe, chairman of the district, assisted by Rev. Lowes of Norfolk, conducted service at the house. The floral offerings from the different appointments and the local women's societies, testified to the fact that during two years spent on the charge, Mrs. Terry had mingled with her people and had become much beloved of them. There was a large funeral to the depot.

Routine at Board of Education
There were the usual reports and batch of accounts at the board of education meeting held last night. All the members were present except R. Edmonds.

The attendance at the high school has dwindled to fifty, or an average of less than nine students for each teacher. There are not enough boys to play a fair game of cricket.

Vexed Question Settled
Since last August, it has been asserted again and again that the call for tenders for the building of ward schools last year was not advertised locally. An account from the British-Canadian, covering the item appeared in to-night's batch of accounts, and Mr. Marston, chairman of the committee, called attention to the fact that the call was advertised in that paper in August last.

Odds and Ends of News
Mr. A. E. Evans has purchased the Tilson mansion at 41 Broad St. and contemplates moving up there soon.

Mr. L. F. Aiken has been appointed as sewer construction inspector in the place of the late Jno. H. Goodland.

The British-Canadian came out this week in a partial new dress.

The owners of all but four dwellings on Lynwood avenue, have either connected up with the new branch sewer just laid, or have signified their intention to do so.

Sgt. Murtagh, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, Hamilton, was in town yesterday and Thursday looking for recruits for the army.

Theriacal Aspen, of the Dominion Natural Gas Co., signed up yesterday. The officer found both Dover and Waterford comparatively quiet from his point of view.

The utilities commission met last night.

IMPETUOUS HELEN

Here's a funny bit of "inside" about Helen Holmes, who is starred in "A Lass of the Lumberlands," indicating why Miss Holmes appears to cause so much anxiety among her co-performers when she "pulls" a gun.

Director McGowan tells of the trouble she has had in trying to make Helen comprehend that a revolver, even with a blank cartridge in it is not precisely the sort of weapon to "stick in a man's ear and pull."

"In my opinion no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and indigestion as 'Fruit-a-Lives.' I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my secondary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-Lives,' and now for six months I have been entirely well. I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try 'Fruit-a-Lives,' and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive."

THE SITUATION
 The figures of Austrian losses as the result of the recent Italian offensive demonstrate very forcefully the tremendous impact of the drive. They would like help from the Germans but are clearly unable to get it.
 There are conflicting reports from Russia. One says that the workmen and soldiers are refusing to recognize the Provisional Government, and over the Courier leased wire comes the story of an unchecked anarchist demonstration in Petrograd. Another despatch says that the troops at the front have decided to resume the offensive.
 The Germans got into some first line trenches in the Champagne district but were ejected with tremendous losses.
 The British, during May captured 3,412 prisoners and the French between April 15 and May 24, 31,829. It is announced from Australia that up to date 362,000 have enlisted, or 14 per cent. of the male population.

THE UNION JACK IN THE STATES
 A marvelous as it has proved sudden is the changed feeling in the States toward the Union Jack.
 Before Uncle Sam espoused the cause of the allies it was just about anathema for any one to display the British flag in almost any community. The writer remembers one occasion in a large U. S. city, when an Englishman, in connection with a civic celebration, put a Union Jack out of his window and such a turbulent crowd gathered in the street below that the police asked that it be removed. Similar incidents even to insults for the emblem, are matters of common record.
 Now, a Britisher in any city there can see hundreds of Jacks flying, and loud cheers, in movie picture theatres and other assemblages, greet any reference to the British soldier or the British fleet.

It is a notable, a welcome and a significant change, born of the present great struggle, the great mass of our neighbors realize that John Bull and his Allies are fighting for the Democracy and world freedom which Uncle Sam has usually espoused.
 Great and momentous things are resulting from the war and not the least of them will be the better and mutual feeling between the two great English speaking peoples of the world.

AFFAIRS AT OTTAWA.
 Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had another brief conference yesterday at the capital but no announcement of any sort resulted.
 All sorts of rumors continue to be scattered broadcast, only to be followed by denials, and it may safely be said that nothing of a definite nature has yet happened.
 That Borden is making a sincere effort on behalf of co-operation cannot be doubted. What course Sir Wilfrid will take is still open to speculation. He is a politician first and a very wary one at that.
 The Windsor Record (Liberal) protests against the forcing of an election. It says:
 "In the event of an election there would be a carnival of mud-slinging. An outcry would be raised against Quebec on its attitude towards the war. Quebec would hit back on the bilingual question. All our dirty linen would be washed in public. Those who have nursed pro-German sympathies, perhaps in secret, would line up against the government. Canada would be divided against itself. It would cost upwards of a million dollars to run the election. Another million or two would be 'shaken down' and spent for campaign funds. The country would be torn with dissension. The conduct of the war would be drawn to a halt for two months or more. The patriotic fund would suffer. So would the Red Cross. In the heat of battle the party line would be drawn, resulting in bitterness, recriminations and strife."
 "If it is the right thing for Canada to do, at this critical time, when Britain and her Allies are menaced so seriously by the German U-boat campaign?
 "Wouldn't it be better for the opposition to display a little more patience and 'put up' with the government for a while longer, rather than force an election at this crucial stage, even with fair prospects of victory?
 "How would Canadians justify themselves in the eyes of Britain,

France, United States and other allied countries if we practically withdrew from the war to indulge in a political scrap among ourselves?
 "In the face of good and financial conditions should Canada throw away $2,000,000 or more for election purposes?
 "Has our system of party government become so selfish and deteriorated that it cannot withstand the assault of the spoils-grabbers?
 "Aren't there enough men left to place parties above party in a crisis like this?
 "Why 'take the starch' out of our boys at the front and please the Kaiser by holding an election?"

To The Editor of The Courier
 REGARDING MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

In the report of the meeting of the Board of Education in the press last night it read as if giving a superannuation to Miss Tutt was favored unanimously by the board. I beg to state that when Mr. Shepperson, chairman of the management committee brought up the motion I bitterly opposed it, for in my estimation, it is a grant that the public have absolutely no right to pay. Miss Tutt has not been in the employ of the Board for over five years and when she left the teaching staff, the Board at that time agreed to give her $200, a year for five years. The last payment of this agreement was made last September, thus closing any contract the Board had made with her.
 The present Board has nothing to do with the pensioning of Miss Tutt, as she has not been on the teaching staff during its reign or for five years previous and in passing the motion the Board committed an act which they had no legal right or power to do.
 DR. G. A. ELLIOTT,
 Member of the Board of Education.

LETTER FROM MR. KEEN.
 The Editor, Courier, City.
 Sir.—On my return to the city after an absence of some days, my attention has been called to a letter signed "Nough Said," which appeared in your issue of Tuesday last. "Nough Said" seems to have said nothing of interest, beyond making an attack upon the president of the Trades and Labor Council and myself behind the cowardly shield of a pen name. When general principles on any question are discussed the identity of a contributor is a matter of indifference, but when individual citizens are attacked, I respectfully suggest the courtesy of newspaper space should not be accorded to people afraid to sign their names. It may be they are only taking advantage of the indulgence of newspaper editors to work off private or personal spleen.
 Last Saturday a similar attack on the members of the T. & L. Council was made in the columns of your contemporary, but I observe that will not be repeated in future, unless correspondents sign their names for publication.
 It may interest your correspondent to know that some years ago, before I was in any way associated with the T. & L. Council, a deputation from that body waited upon me with an invitation to stand as labor candidate for the local House, and which I was under the necessity of having to decline. If your correspondent seriously thinks I have any ambition for a nomination now, I would strongly urge him to join the independent labor party, induce as many as possible of his friends to do so and pay their dues, and so frustrate such a sinister design.
 About the only speculation made by our anonymous friend which is approximately accurate is that "politicians have just a little to do with the said bunch." Politics of the independent labor type undoubtedly have much to do with them, and if successfully applied, will have the effect of helping "Nough Said" in spite of himself, just as trades unionism improves the economic status of the workingmen who are too ignorant, indifferent, or individually selfish to unite for their common betterment.
 GEORGE KEEN.

ANGELIC ANGLERS
 The day the trout season opened in Southern Ontario the Mack-Sen net-Kestone girls became a rock and reel club and tried their luck in beautiful San Gabriel canyon. And reel anglers stood back in mingled disgust and admiration.
 From splattered hooks the trout peeked out in amazement at a phalanx of lovely limbs that splashed gaily by them in the mountain stream.
 Little screams of shock and excitement from the splashing beauties would indicate that some trout, more dashing than the rest, essayed to escape the pink toes and dainty ankles of the amateur anglers, but one and one must tell the truth, not one was tempted to flirt with the gaudy flies the girls cast so recklessly.
 "Good," gasped one seasoned fisherman, "even a fish forgets to eat with a bunch like this around," and then gallantly passed up his own lure to help Maude empty the water out of her rubber boots, tight-

IN THE WORLD OF LABOR
 The Arkansas general assembly has passed a bill providing for compulsory school attendance and free school books to indigent children.
 The St. John (N.B.) local of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has enforced its demands for an increase in wages amounting to twenty per cent. The new minimum established is $3.60 for an eight-hour day.
 Machinists in the shipbuilding plant at Port Arthur, after a one-day strike, secured an increase in wages of 4 1-2c, an hour; they asked for 5c, but when the company agreed to meet their representatives and made the 4 1-2c offer, it was accepted; the minimum is now 49 1-2c an hour.
 The Saskatoon Trades and Labor Council has decided to run a candidate for the provincial legislature, and will put up a stiff fight to elect him. The feeling among the local workers is almost unanimously solid for independent political action as the only way to force a square deal for the producer.
 Shop men in St. Thomas on the Grand Trunk, the Michigan Central and the Pere Marquette railways have all secured advances in wages of two and three cents an hour. The mechanical trades in the various shops are all in good shape as a rule, and are making healthy headway and increasing in membership.
 According to the industrial accident record of the Department of Labor, there were 48 working people killed and 375 injured during March in the course of their respective occupational employments. During February there were 48 workers killed and 344 injured, while during March, 1916, there were 61 killed and 32 injured.

Cheap Amusement
 One of the fundamental cravings of humanity is for amusement. Some amusements are bad and some are pretty expensive. One amusement, that is good and very cheap, is the development of a Savings Bank Account. It is the cheapest thing in the world, as you provide it yourself, and we can assure you that you will reap a great deal of pleasure from watching it grow from month to month.
 It is your own property, it works for you all the time and it increases all the time as well.

THRIFT LEAGUE

An important meeting of the executive and conservation of waste committees of the Thrift League was held yesterday afternoon in the public library, when the conservation committee submitted a statement of its working operations, showing most gratifying results upon which those in charge received hearty congratulations. Up to May 31, the receipts were $738.32, and expenditures $610.91, leaving $127.41 cash in bank. The total assets, including accounts due goods ready for shipment totalled $1,131.11, while the liabilities, including all initial expenses, were $902.43, leaving a net profit of $528.68 for ten weeks of operation.

Some discussion took place upon the subject of the collection of waste, it being concluded that in order to save needless expenditure, the collection for the league should be done by the city garbage collectors, with whom arrangements will be concluded accordingly. A request made by Brant chapter, I. O. D. E., for the assistance of the Rotary Club in the work of collecting grease, was turned over to the Thrift League but it was decided that the matter was one which could not be undertaken at the present time.

INLAND REVENUE. The inland revenue returns for the month of May are as follows: Malt, $534.00; tobacco, $589.40; cigars $521.25; vinegar $258.27; methylated spirits $2,523.05; seizures, $150.00; other collections $50.72; war tax $1,901.14. Total $6,527.83, as against $5,453.73 of last year. This is the best month yet had since the coming into force of prohibition, collector M. J. O'Donohue stated this morning.

THE GRAND. The Grand Opera House will open its doors to patrons as a motion picture theatre this evening with a return engagement of "The Whip," one of the most spectacular productions ever screened. The interior of the house has been renovated, a new screen and projecting screen installed, and everything done to assure the comfort of patrons.

FIRST BAPTIST. Rev. R. D. Hamilton, several years popular pastor at Wesleyan Street Church, will occupy the pulpit at First Baptist Church tomorrow evening, affording his many friends here an opportunity to hear him again. A special musical service will be rendered by the choir, while Mrs. Secord will sing Adam's "Babylon."

KITH AND KIN. The kith and kin of Terrace Hill met at the home of Mrs. Brock, 130 St. George St. on Thursday afternoon. The usual business routine was gone through and a programme committee elected. Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Eady will provide the entertainment for the next meeting to be held in the St. James Church Hall on June 25th. Miss Eva Bailey and Miss Lois Brock gave pianoforte selections which were enjoyed by all. Dainty refreshments were handed round by Mrs. Brock, assisted by Mrs. Hewitson, Mrs. Bacon and Miss Brock. The singing of a hymn brought the meeting to a close.

A CLEAN-CUT, HARD-HITTING BUSINESS PROPOSITION. Perhaps the greatest merchandise event Brantford has ever seen is now being staged at the store of E. B. Crompton & Co., Limited. Whenever this progressive firm makes an announcement the buying public can accept it without question. Their advertisements are planned with the sole idea of conveying to their customers the true story of the event, without any inflation or misrepresentation, in fact the policy is rather to under state than to mislead in the smallest detail.

DOUBLE THE BUSINESS IN JUNE. is the goal set by the firm to reach, and that this will be accomplished can be taken as a foregone conclusion if the large crowd of shoppers visiting the store up to the time of going to press can be taken as an indication. The slogan DOUBLE THE BUSINESS IN JUNE is not only a business slogan, but a patriotic effort, and one that will go far to help the men of the municipal railway line in San Francisco. Advocates of the plan said it was not a matter of bookkeeping, but a matter of giving the men a wage that will meet present living costs.

After a three days' strike, the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators in Lawrence, Mass., secured a new agreement which provides for a scale of $22.00 for a 44 hour week. Great railroad activity prevails at Brantford, Sask. The C.P.R. is rushed with business, and a number of extra trains are now running, and the men can put in any amount of overtime at present.

Wage increases from $3 to $3.50 a day for car repairers, track laborers and platform men employed by the municipal railway line in San Francisco. Advocates of the plan said it was not a matter of bookkeeping, but a matter of giving the men a wage that will meet present living costs.

REV. C. F. LOGAN, the new pastor of Calborne St. Church, who comes to this city from Leamington.

POSTPONED. The meeting of the Ministerial Alliance has been postponed to June 18th.

POLICE COURT. James Barber and Edward Carter, Baechanter both, accumulated by the police during the early hours of the morning, graced the dock in the police court this morning, paying $10.00 each war tax upon their convictions.

REGIMENTAL ORDER. The 38th Regiment will parade on Monday, June 4th, at the Armories, 8 p.m., and on each subsequent Monday until further notice. All officers, non-coms, and men will attend.

HOLIDAY HOURS. Monday, June 4th, being observed as King's Birthday, the usual holiday hours will be observed at the post office. The General Delivery, Registered Dept., and stamp tickets open only between 12 and 2 A.M. delivery by letter carriers only.

BOARD OF TRADE. A meeting of the Transportation Committee was held last evening to consider the changes announced in the railway train service from Brantford to Goderich. To this meeting wholesalers and commercial travelers were invited, but no representatives attended. Any action on the matter by the Board of Trade was abandoned.

Nuptial Notes. A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David James, this afternoon, when their daughter, Florence B., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. N. P. McFarlane, son of Mr. N. P. McFarlane of this city, by the Rev. Mr. Smythe. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's bridal march, played by the bride's youngest sister, Miss Earla. The bride looked very charming in a gown of white georgette crepe and duchess satin, carrying shawl bouquet of lily of the valley. Miss Belle Eames acted as maid of honor and looked very pretty in a frock of turquoise satin with bouquet of choral roses and picture hat. The bride's best friend supported the groom. Miss Florence Walker, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl and looked very sweet in old gold tulle with bouquet of yellow daisies. Merle Madgwick, Lily Howell, E. There are no non-union machinists at work in the C.P.R. shops at MacAdam, Michigan. The craft is 100 per cent organized, with every man in line, but they are all grumbling at so much overtime; a man can work here just about as long as he likes if he can keep going. A good many get tired and quit after a few weeks at the rush, and most of the hands would like to get things slacken enough to get a night off once in a while. After a somewhat strenuous time of it the car men on Guelph's municipally-owned street car system, have had their wages raised to 26c an hour, and are allowed to work sixty-eight hours a week to make it count up a little more. The employees want to know why, when all the laborers in the civic departments have been advanced to 30c an hour they are asked to work for a wage one-third less. Nobody has successfully answered the question as yet.

"SOME BY-PRODUCTS OF THE WAR"

Subject of a Forcible Address Given by Rev. Mr. Fotheringham Before the Rotary Club

By-Product is a familiar term in the world of commerce to-day. It indicates some substance obtained indirectly in the manufacture of some other substance. One of the most important by-products is obtained in the manufacture of coal gas. When the coal is distilled a thick, black substance, liquid comes over and condenses in the pipes. This tarry substance used to be considered only as waste or refuse; for the most part it was thrown out on the roads to be trampled underfoot. An Englishman, however, discovered several uses for it. Benzene, it was found could be extracted from the ugly looking mass. Soon other substances were also discovered and instead of being a waste, it became the foundation of the coal-tar industry. What was discovered in England was developed to a great extent by the chemists of Germany with much efficiency. Not only benzene, but on the basis of the Aniline dyes, but carbolic acid, quinine and saccharine, were the by-products obtained. That out of what was counted as waste have come medicines for the healing of man and colors wherewith to beautify and adorn human life. We know the direct product of War, it is destruction. Property, human energy, life, these are ruthlessly destroyed. Men by the millions, buildings incalculably valuable, the gains of centuries of thought and art, are crushed under the heel of war. Loss, waste, that is the sum total of war at first sight—a spectacle as black and as brutish as the mass of coal-tar. But out of this heap of waste come curious by-products, some of them only interesting or amusing, others that can be used for the healing or beautifying of human life. Some of the lesser by-products are the displacement of labour, the various lies waged by the Press—Truth, always hard to find in the world, being doubly hard to find during the war, the effect on our literature—the Sex novel and the Problem novel being banished and a new note struck in Poetry and general writing, even the fashions of to-day, taking colour and style from the various happenings around us. The boots we wear, the food we eat, the prices we pay, whether we are millionaires or not, the conditions of the war are over all in work, and in recreation. But beyond these things there are some that are greater; there is a re-birth of certain powers, truths, ideals which is a by-product of the war.

There is the re-birth of Democracy. We have learned today that a nation does not exist for defence but for defence for a nation. For that truth amongst others Britain is warning. The voluntary principle may for the time be destroyed. Cooperation with the attendant loss to commerce and destruction of personal liberty is the policy of the great democracies now fighting. But in spite of these things, the world because of them the fundamental ideas of democracy, personal liberty, equality before the law, political responsibility as represented by the suffrage are being re-born. Democracy is the child of struggle. Born in adversity its history in the world is that of struggle and of bloodshed. The contest between Athens and Sparta, the days of the Gracchi, the victory of that great chief of democracy, Julius Caesar, these are chapters of the age-long battle. In more modern times whether in the history of the city-Republics such as Venice or nation-Republics, such as France or the United States, we witness the development, often through blood, of the democratic principle. It has frequently been a merely destructive force. As opposed to monarchy, oligarchy or aristocracy it has been a weapon to overthrow. But its life has greater things in it than mere negations. The truth in it—eternal truth—has made it sometimes a dangerous weapon. The despotism of Russia may be overthrown but a chaos of unregulated license is the first result. That is the power and weakness of democracy. A rule by the people has within it the axiom that the people must be fit to rule. The ally of democracy is enlightenment; without this ally it is only "anarchy," that is, "no rule at all." But in spite of the wrongs done in the history of democracy, today is one of the chapters of its triumph. If there is one common impulse in the armies of the Allies to-day, greater than any other it is the impulse of democracy; the determination that despotic rule by one—be he Kaiser or Czar, or by the few (such as the Junkers or military class) must forever end. To the individual citizen, be he rich or poor, to the individual nation, be it small or great, must be given the right and opportunity to live and to develop their personalities. Canada, a child amongst the nations, has as its greatest heritage this principle of democracy. Sharing as it does the scars of conflict, its destiny should be learning from the mistakes of centuries, to develop an illuminated, enlightened democracy, whose end is not negation, but the upbuilding of a great people upon the great foundations of liberty, equality and political responsibility.

There has also been the re-birth of the spirit of unity. Bernhardt said in a book published before the war, that the hour to strike was the hour of a political crisis in any nation. At such a time internal strife would weaken external resistance. Germany chose such an hour declaring war. A political crisis was present not only in Great Britain, but in France. Reports of unrest in India, of revolution in Ireland, had reached Berlin. But no greater mistake was made in the Kaiser's calculations than this. The hour the dogs of war were let loose, that hour differences were forgotten and the ranks showed a solid front. A new sense of unity

CANADIANS STILL HAMMERING ARRAS

Steady Shelling of Enemy Enemy Positions Near Lens Goes on Daily

INFANTRY ACTIVITY

Men Play Baseball Regardless of Foe Planes Overhead

(By Stewart Lyon, correspondent of the Canadian Press, Limited)

Canadian Army Headquarters in France, June 1.—The shelling of the Arras line went on by our heavy howitzers continues day and night. It had been hoped that mine heads and other essentials by an early resumption of operations in the neighbourhood of Lens by our heavy howitzers would leave the German garrisons in Lens in almost impregnable lines.

That part of the front on which the electric light station stands resembles the most shell-tipped part of Vimy Ridge. Projectiles, making holes in the earth scarcely distinguishable from small mine craters, have been thrown there during the past few days. The retaliation of the enemy is light, although now and then, when what he believes is an important position, he has been suspected, he puts on a barrage.

The infantry activity along the line has been confined to the exploration of German trenches by our patrols. Sometimes these are found badly damaged and unoccupied, but in these cases the enemy invariably is discovered in force, occupying posts behind his trenches.

In the back area the Canadian infantry is kept busy in instructional classes. Many thousands of men who have come from England recently, to make good the wastage of April and May, are now being taught the latest ideas in handling bombs, bayonets and machine guns by instructors who come in from the front to give a demonstration. After these lessons the drafts are gradually put in the trenches alongside our experienced troops.

The enemy aircraft are again showing enterprise, but fortunately their marksmanship is poor and their bombs fall wide of the mark.

Our men are inclined to be too contemptuous of the Hun armaments. This (Friday) morning a group of our men circled about dropping bombs in the vicinity. Last week, under similar conditions on the French front, when the German air force approached, a trumpet was blown and people got under cover. The reckless Frenchman some times is much better than the common sense British.

Easy Motoring Through Crowded Traffic

By all odds, the light, efficient Ford is the car for the city. It threads its way through a maze of traffic when the larger car has to pause frequently for a good opening.

On occasions when the Ford does have to halt, it can get away again and be running 15 miles an hour before the larger, heavier car can get under way.

The Ford costs less per mile to run. It requires but few repairs. It is always ready for service. From all efficiency standpoints, it is the business-man's car.

MISSION MEMORIAL

A report of the most important work of the year will be given at the conference committee, the subject of the report; a memorial service for the members of the conference, ministers and probationers who have become deceased during the year; a report by the P. O. of the Wesleyan Conference, Montreal, and an official welcome to the city extended by representatives of the ministerial association.

The meeting was opened by a brief season of worship, followed by an entertaining and interesting account of the work being carried out by the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Montreal, given by Prof. P. O. of that college. The speaker explained that a system of co-operation had been established between the different national colleges in that city, in a minor way anticipated union, and was emblematic of closer association of the two colleges that comprise the position of Canada. He then proceeded to enumerate the principles on which the college was founded and operated. Primarily, it stood for scholarship, and the belief in the reality of religious experience, inculcated into the mind of the students. Secondly, the institution held the ideal of social service, its students as carefully as possible the economic problems of the day, and the speaker stressed the fact that the greater the number of students who were trained in a fair and equitable distribution of the curriculum, the more clearly demonstrated when members enlisted, and twenty offered their services for the cause, the speaker stressed the fact that the greater the number of students who were trained in a fair and equitable distribution of the curriculum, the more clearly demonstrated when members enlisted, and twenty offered their services for the cause, the speaker stressed the fact that the greater the number of students who were trained in a fair and equitable distribution of the curriculum, the more clearly demonstrated when members enlisted, and twenty offered their services for the cause.

The Rev. C. A. Woodside, of Zion Presbyterian Church, stated that he was certainly pleased to see the Methodists of the Hamilton conference in the City of Brantford, and hoped that the presence of the speaker would emphasize those ways for which the ministers of the world were fighting, and which they were defending. Commenting on the dress of Dr. Nicholson, the speaker thought that instead of feeling envious, that we are passing through the ways of the future into the great area that the Christian Church ever knows. Referring to the speech of Mr. Woodside said that it had disturbed many ideas and ideals had heretofore been cherished mankind. Previous to the conflict, the world had believed that international sense of honor would prevent any aggressive warfare, the mistake of this conception, been pointed out, so that now it realized that the only sure preventive to war was prayer, with the world in golden threads of the feet of God.

MISSION REPORT AND MEMORIAL SERVICE

A report of the most extreme importance, as it will effect the entire interior missionary policy of the church, which was submitted by the conference committee; the discussion of the report; a memorial service in honor of the members of the conference, ministers and probationers, who have become deceased within the last year; a report by Prof. Pounder of the Wesleyan College, Montreal and an official welcome to the city extended by representatives of the ministerial association, composed of the program of yesterday afternoon's session of the Hamilton Methodist Conference, held in the Wellington St. Church.

The meeting was opened by a brief season of worship, followed by an entertaining and interesting account of the work being carried on by the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Montreal, given by Prof. Pounder of that college. The speaker explained that a system of cooperation existed between the different denominational colleges in that city, which in a minor way anticipated church union, and was emblematic of the closer association of the two important races that comprise the population of Canada. He then proceeded to enumerate the principles on which the college was founded and operated. Primarily, it stood for Christian scholarship, and the belief of the reality of religious experience was inculcated into the mind of the students. Secondly, the institution upheld the ideas of social service, and training as carefully as possible, its students to appreciate and solve the economic problems of the day, for it was realized by the faculty that the great difficulty for the future would be not accumulation, but a fair and equitable distribution. Thirdly, a spirit of self-sacrifice and loyalty is imbibed into the minds of the scholars, and the effectiveness of this phase of the curriculum was clearly demonstrated when over 30 members enlisted, and twenty more offered their services for active service but were rejected. "While we cannot all go to the front, we should uphold those ideals for which our boys are overseas fighting," concluded the speaker, after an earnest appeal for support to this college.

The Rev. G. A. Woodside, of the Zion Presbyterian Church, stated that he was certainly pleased to have the Methodists of the Hamilton Conference in the City of Brantford, and hoped that their presence would serve to emphasize those qualities for which the ministers of the city were fighting, and which they were defending. Commenting on the address of Dr. Nicholson, the speaker expressed his pleasure at the optimistic note to be found there, and thought that instead of feeling pessimistic, that we all should recognize that we are passing through the gateways of the future into the greatest area that the Christian Church has ever known. Referring to the war, Mr. Woodside said that it had disturbed many ideas and ideals that had heretofore been cherished by mankind. Previous to the conflagration, the world had believed that an international sense of honor would prevent any aggressive warfare, but the mistake of this conception had been pointed out, so that now it was realized that the only sure preventive to war was prayer. "Prayer binds the world in golden threads about the feet of God."

Capt. the Rev. C. E. Jenkins, rector of St. Jude's Anglican Church, concurred with the sentiment expressed by the previous speaker, and declared that in the past there had been a historic bond of union between the Methodist and Anglican churches. He conveyed to his hearers in a few brief but appropriate words, an impression gained from association with our troops in training camps, and at the front, where he declared, a strong spirit of unionism was being developed, and that this union in ecclesiastical circles would be more manifest after the war than is now apparent. At the front, he said, men were not distinguished by their denominations, but communion was administered to all alike, a common service. He declared that when the soldiers returned they would approve of a united stand, shoulder to shoulder, against the common foe, the Dominion-wide prohibition, preventing the sale, manufacture, importation or inter-provincial traffic. Social service work is also entered into on a thorough and comprehensive scale, especially among non-Anglo-Saxon elements of the population of the larger cities. Many institutions as established in cities throughout Canada which materially assist in maintaining this branch of work, and are operated under the direction of the Methodist Church. Child welfare work is also conducted extensively, while the department is engaged in activities in connection with the theatres, race track, gambling and literature. He concluded by making an energetic appeal for continued support to this branch of the work.

The Rev. D. W. Snider, the provincial secretary of this organization, outlined the marvelous activities in this direction, and strongly emphasized the importance of the aims and objects of the society, which was non-denominational. He stated that powerful efforts were being made to combat the trusts and combines of manufacturers, who under the pretext of war time, endeavored to justify Sunday labor in the factories.

A brief address of farewell was given by the Rev. W. J. Smith, who for the past sixteen years has been engaged in work in the Hamilton conference, a large portion of that time being devoted to temperance and moral reform work. He has been transferred to the Toronto conference, where he will take charge of a pastorate.

A motion sponsored by the Rev. Dr. Ross, and ably supported by Rev. Alfred Andrews, was passed, by which the time of opening the regular session of the conference on Saturday morning would be delayed until ten o'clock that a session of prayer might be held. The latter speaker, who is eighty-five years of age, strenuously advocated a national day of fasting, prayer and humiliation, an occasion that has not been observed within the last half century, not only as a thanksgiving to God for the benefits of the past, but in supplication for His continued favor.

Beyond question, the most important feature of the session was the report of the missionary committee, presented by an able address by Mr. J. H. Arnp, Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Mr. Arnp contended that all churches must face the issue confronting them fairly and squarely, and that in the Methodist church, unless renewed and augmented support were given, and the work at home maintained, the foreign field would surely suffer. It was a vital question, and the only solution was a thorough Dominion-wide campaign, and every member canvass. Internal development of missions, and changing conditions have brought about a crisis, especially in the medical department, and men to assist in the work are imperative. He emphatically stated that more men must offer their services if the work was to continue on an efficient basis. There was also a report of the missionary committee, followed by an earnest and thorough discussion.

our own denominations in the homes of our people.

(e) Observance in the congregation, Sunday School, Epworth League and Prayer meeting of a carefully planned anniversary as a period of missionary revival and a climax to the regular missionary effort of the year.

(f) A personal canvass for missionary subscriptions either in connection with the missionary anniversary or at the opening of the financial year.

(g) Collection of mission funds by the weekly offering system, which when carefully introduced and kept in order by attention to quarterly statements and revision at each annual canvass, has proven to be the best means yet devised for securing adequate and stable missionary support from the whole church.

(h) Direction of the missionary policy and activity of each local church by a Missionary Committee, representing the congregation, Sunday School, Epworth League and other church organizations.

Conference and District Missionary Organization. We especially commend the activity of the conference and district missionary committees during recent years in their organized efforts to assist local churches in their work of missionary cultivation. While final responsibility for success or failure in any line of Christian activity must always remain with the local church and pastor, we find that District Missionary campaigns, organized as part of a conference plan and launched at well-attended spiritual and missionary conferences in connection with financial district meetings, have been largely effective in the attainment of our present standard of missionary interest and support.

Plans for the Ensuing Conference Year. We recommend: (1) That this conference endorse the plan of the General Board of Missions for a church-wide missionary campaign and every Methodist canvass in the fall of 1917.

(2) That the conference adopt Sunday, October 14 as Inaugural Day for this campaign, and urge its observance in all our congregations.

(3) That an effort be made to secure the attendance of at least four lay representatives at a spiritual and missionary conference in connection with each financial district meeting, to culminate in a district missionary campaign as soon as possible after Inaugural Day, October 14.

(4) That general direction of the conference standing missionary committee, in co-operation with the missionary committee of the laymen's association, and the district missionary committees.

(5) That in harmony with the financial objective of $800,000 for missions from the whole church, this conference adopt as its objective— for the general missionary fund during 1917-18.

(6) That the need and duty of earlier remittance of missionary money be recognized by an effort to send half the missionary objective for the year to the mission rooms by January 1st, 1918.

General Recommendations. 1st.—That the welfare of the church and the missionary enterprise as well as the need of religious revival throughout Canada and the world, render it expedient that the basic appeal of this campaign should be distinctly spiritual. The challenge of present world conditions calls for an unmistakable response on the part of the Church to declare anew its belief in the Gospel of salvation in Christ as the only ultimate solution of world problems.

2nd.—We recommend that definite measures be undertaken whereby our laymen, both officially through their own committees, and personally in every district and local field, should have a large share in the organization and operation of this campaign.

The Memorial Service. Impressive in its solemnity was the memorial service which was observed in honor of those ministers and probationers of the conference, who, during the past year have come to their reward. Glowing accounts of the discharge of the duties of the stewardship that had been committed to their care, were read by the

BUSY MONTH AT HOSPITAL

Governors Welcome New Member, Mr. W. J. Verity

A meeting of the Board of Hospital Governors took place yesterday afternoon. Present, Messrs. C. H. Waterous, (President), Warden Rose, Mayor Bowby, Geo. Watt, R. Sanderson, W. J. Verity, A. K. Bunnell, Dr. Secord, H. Symons and G. Kippax.

The members extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Verity, the new Governor, appointed by the Ontario Government.

A number of general matters received attention. Among other things, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Miss E. Bunnell and Miss K. Buck for attending at the hospital and taking over the duties of Miss Shaver, assistant secretary, during her recent illness.

Monthly Report. Following are extracts from the report of Miss Gibson, Asst. Superintendent for the month of May. Admissions 154 Discharges 166 Births 8 Deaths 7 Operations 111 Isolation 4

The visitors from the Women's Hospital Aid were Mrs. Ames and Mrs. Bates, the Visiting Governors being Dr. Secord and Mr. Verity, visiting physician for the month Dr. Hicks.

In comparing the figures of this month with those of May, 1916, a great increase is seen in admissions, operations, etc., showing that the work in the hospital is growing very rapidly. Our private and semi-private wards are always full, and the demand for the latter greatly exceeds the supply.

Miss Forde has returned to the city, much improved by her stay in Atlantic City.

Miss Shaver is again on duty, having recovered from her recent attack of erysipelas.

Our final and yearly examinations are being held just now. We are pleased to say that on the whole the nurses are doing well on the papers, especially the graduating class. One of the latter, Miss McKay, completes her training on June 15th. Our thanks are due the doctors for their kindness in giving their time to lecture to the nurses.

different pastors selected, and the noble worth of their lives and devotion to the cause were extolled and eulogized. The service was conducted under the direction of the Rev. J. A. MacLachlan, President of the Conference, and brief addresses and reminiscences of the lives of the twelve men who have been translated to a higher calling were given.

The deceased in whose honor the occasion was observed, were the Rev. Charles O. Johnson of Hamilton; Lieut. the Rev. Herbert J. Fenlon, B.A. of Hamilton, who paid the supreme price while a member of the 84th Battalion at the front, and who will be remembered by a large number of friends in this city; Rev. R. W. Woodsworth, of Toronto; Rev. Ralph G. Baker, of Hamilton; Rev. Amos E. Russ, of Woodstock; Rev. George W. Calvert of Sand Lake; Rev. T. J. Smith, of Listowel; Rev. Charles E. Stafford, of Elora; Rev. Jabez Wess of Palmero; Rev. Jabez Hill, of Hamilton; Rev. Robert Duff, of Fort Colborne, and the Rev. William B. Danard of Colpoys Bay.

An especially appropriate musical selection, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me" was rendered by the ministerial quartette.

RECEPTION OF PROBATIONERS

Signalized by the reception of four probationers into full connection with the church, last evening's session of the Hamilton Methodist conference in point of general interest and importance alike was probably the foremost meeting of the conference. Devotional services of a special nature served to open the evening, following which the four probationers in brief addresses told of their conversion to the church, the feature of the evening being the address of the Rev. W. F. Goetz of Guelph in seconding the motion calling for the reception of the probationers into full connection with the church.

James Winfield Hunt. Could date his conversion back to no definite time in life, having seen the sunny side of the world and tasted the good and evil alike before deciding to give his heart to God. Reared in a Christian home and thus receiving Christian influences of which the world could never rob him, he joined the church first at the age of fourteen years, and as the path of duty became clear to him, he responded to the unmistakable call to the work of Christ, wherein he found a new inspiration in life.

Elmer G. Galt. In an overseas uniform, dated his conversion to a revival when he was fifteen years of age, when he had joined the church, but until the age of 21 drifted idly, finding an air of unreality not contenting his nature. Then, with the dawn of fuller manhood, came a religious awakening, a devotion to prayer and as the realization of the call dawned upon him, a deep sense of satisfaction such as can be given only by a life of service.

Walter George Almack. Raised as an American, with three uncles, pastors in the Church of England, had intended the Methodist Church upon his coming to Canada because he felt there the best work was to be done, there the work of Christ's kingdom was most fully carried out in every kingdom. Canada he regarded as his adopted country, and was proud of it equally with England, the land upon his being a truly big man, one big enough to bear with the smallness of others; a gentleman, with fitting regard for professional etiquette, which he must be defined at some length; he must be a good mixer, and a man of tact, with a throat large enough to swallow many things and to avoid friction whenever possible, yet without evading the issue when it called for a square face. He sounded the need for thorough co-operation and reciprocity between pulpit and pew, pointing out the manner in which all members of the church, itself a corporate body, were responsible for the conditions prevailing, and closed with a forceful plea for consideration and attention from the people of a church for their pastor.

hope, and expressed his desire to continue in the work for the remainder of his life.

The resolution proposing the reception of the probationers was moved at this juncture by the secretary of the conference. In addition to those who had spoken and who were recommended for ordination, Herbert B. Storey, R. Currie, Gardner, William A. Cook and Earl Brearley, probationers, were recommended to be ordained for special reasons.

Rev. W. F. Goetz. In the course of a lengthy address the Rev. W. F. Goetz of Guelph, delivered a masterful analysis of the ministerial life, defining and classifying the difficulties and temptations of such a career, and outlining the qualities essential to success in the work of the church. Great opportunities were accorded here, in a life which was far from being all sunshine and roses, but which included more than its share of heartaches and troubles. Yet the joys to be found in the ministry were such that the pleasures of earth beside them appeared as mere tinsel in comparison with burnished gold. As in no other profession, was the opportunity for self development offered. But the handicaps were numerous, the temptations and trials as nowhere else. In service, the minister of the minister was the greatest in humanity. "Aye," declared the speaker, "for the pastor who preaches the gospel the hearts of the men, has done more than he who crosses an orange and a lemon and produces a grape-fruit."

Great temptations abounded in the ministry, the greatest dangers ever surrounding those in the highest of all vocations. Mr. Goetz went on to decry the existing spirit of commercialism, urging that it should be reduced to a minimum ere the pastors found themselves swept off their feet by the virus, not easily antidoted. He proceeded to enumerate the qualities required by a successful minister, laying stress in the first place upon his being a truly big man, one big enough to bear with the smallness of others; a gentleman, with fitting regard for professional etiquette, which he must be defined at some length; he must be a good mixer, and a man of tact, with a throat large enough to swallow many things and to avoid friction whenever possible, yet without evading the issue when it called for a square face. He sounded the need for thorough co-operation and reciprocity between pulpit and pew, pointing out the manner in which all members of the church, itself a corporate body, were responsible for the conditions prevailing, and closed with a forceful plea for consideration and attention from the people of a church for their pastor.

PARIS ADOPTING GARBAGE SYSTEM

Contract Awarded at Special Meeting of Town Council—Other Business

THE Y. M. C. A. MEETS Officers Elected and Other Business Transacted for the Year

(From Our Own Correspondent) Paris, June 1.—The special meeting of the council was held last evening to deal with the matter of installing a scavenging and garbage system, throughout the entire town. There were six tenders, that of Mr. Albert Wood, his figure being $2,000 for the year's work. This tender was accepted, and the work will be put into force within the next two or three weeks, during which time the citizens will secure the necessary garbage cans. This system will fill a long felt want.

The matter of a drain for certain portions of Catherine Street, was also taken up, an appointment of a committee, to advise the council, was made. An 8-inch tile drain will be put down to carry off the surface water in that section.

It was also decided to purchase three pairs of rubber boots, 3 rubber coats and 6 firemen's coats for the use of the brigade.

Traffic posts will be erected at the corner of Grant River Street and William Street, and at the Junction of Mechanic and Grant River Sts. Also traffic signs will be erected at dangerous corners.

The next step for safety will be the regulating of the speed at which some of the autos race through some of the streets and around corners. The waste paper boxes on the streets the property of the National Advertising Company will be removed, the Company having failed to comply with the agreement of the Council.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening with good attendance. The Ladies' Auxiliary supplied an excellent banquet, at the close of which, President Rehder called the gathering to order and the business of the evening was proceeded with. The treasurer, Mr. Robert Cale presenting his report showed that the association was in a prosperous condition with about $150 to the good. Secretary, Rev. D. A. Armstrong, presented an excellent report of the year's work that was both interesting and encouraging. It showed that from the large number of boys who had enlisted from Paris, several were members of the Y. M. C. A., of whom a number had paid the supreme sacrifice. It was also pointed out the good work the Association was doing for our soldiers at the front.

A magnificent address was given during the evening by Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto, that was very much appreciated by those present. Short addresses were also given by Rev. Mr. Nicholson, Messrs John Harold, T. M. Heddie, Rev. B. B. Williams and T. Scott Davidson, M. P.

The board was elected as follows: J. R. Inkster, C. A. Crooks, W. C. Windus, R. E. Cale, E. V. Kinsey, H. Rehder, C. M. Heddie, T. C. Mann and C. W. Wells.

During the evening a splendid musical programme was given which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the ladies for the sumptuous repast served, and to all those who had helped make the evening so interesting. The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

Bowling NEW YORK PORT CLOSED

New York, June 1.—For reasons which navy yard and customs officials refused to reveal the port of New York was for a good part of the forenoon closed to-day to all shipping and the passage of vessels in or out was physically barred by the shutting of the gate in the steel net across the narrows which was placed there soon after the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany. Shortly before noon it was learned that the order closing the port had been rescinded. Lack of information as to the reason for the action inspired a crop of rumors, which found reflection in the Stock Market.

SPORTOGRAPHY

PANNING THE PIRATES

Members of the Pittsburgh team are evidently living a miserable life. Off to a bad start, the club has been able to get a footing and its bad showing, was recently topped off by a defeat handed it by the Jersey City club in an exhibition. The humiliation brought down the wrath of a disgruntled fandom. Following are the fruits of a Pittsburgh writer's efforts to hand Manager Callahan's gentry an artistic panning:

"What's the use? The Pirates either cannot play baseball or else they have got to the point where their usefulness to the Pirate management has been outlived. "When a team in the National League goes to Jersey City and fails to hand out a defeat to a team in a minor league, it is high time that an investigation of the workings of the Pirates be made. The fans of this section are thoroughly disgusted with the manner and methods of the Pirates and the fans will not support the game here under existing conditions."

"There is one way in which President Dreyfuss can save money at this time. Either get better players or else close up shop. The team will not be an attraction when they return to Pittsburgh if they are to continue to lose games in the east, and empty seats will not pay the bills of the club this year."

"When the regulars were defeated by a team of the class of Jersey City with one of our best hurlers in the box it is time to close up shop. The Pirates have not played ball at any time this year. True enough, they played one or two games that went into extra innings, but the games should not have had to go past the regulation length. The poor showing of the Pirates can be looked at only from the standpoint that the members of the team are anxious to get away from the Pirates or else they are being handled by Callahan in a manner that is not getting the best out of them."

"Pittsburgh fans are loyal to the team, but their loyalty ends when the team itself gets out on the field and displays the poorest kind of baseball. It is not right to charge National League press for bush league baseball, and the management of the Pirates must realize that the fans here will not patronize the team when it is displaying its wares in its present manner. "Give us a baseball team. We need something to take off a little of the pressure brought on by the war, and we need a team that will play an interesting game, but when the fans travel out to Forbes field and see a brand of baseball being played that belongs on a backyard lot, it is little wonder that they set up a howl and declare themselves in a manner that cannot be misunderstood."

IT GETS THEM ALL

Little would one think that such a cool, scientific, cold-blooded expert in baseball matters, as is Christy Mathewson, the deepest thinker that ever stepped on a rubber, and now a profoundly and wisely cogitating manager, would be affected by the superstitions of the pastime, but there is evidence to that effect.

One of the human chattels acquired by the Cincinnati Reds last season was William Lawrence Kopf, shortstop of the Baltimore Internationals. William Lawrence Kopf had been with the Athletics in 1915, but had been a weaker brother with the stick, besides being green. Connie Mack sent him to Baltimore, where Lieut. W. Dixon, the Old Schoolmaster, makes a large living by developing clodhoppers into star players and selling them on the hoof for large sums. Jack is the most extensive and successful dealer in human flesh in the minor leagues.

Matty Chagned Name William Lawrence Kopf batted .297 for Baltimore, and was so highly recommended by Simon Lagree Dunn that Mathewson based considerable store on Kopf. When the story reported, Matty asked him what might be his name and nickname. William Lawrence said he had no nickname, and was known as Billy, and gave his name in full.

Here came the superstition. It has been remarked by philosophers that no human being ever lived who was not tinged with superstition to some extent, and it is a fact that this applies to professional students of folk lore superstition, and the magical customs of savages as truly as it does to a player of horseshoes, although

SIDELIGHTS ON THE STAGE AND SCREEN

"MOTHERS OF FRANCE"
Scenes filmed in French trenches, scenes in ruined French villages, views of the ruined Rheims Cathedral and views in French hospitals—all these are seen in "Mothers of France," the tremendous photo-drama which comes to the Rex theatre on June 11-12-13, with Sarah Bernhardt as the star. Never has such a picture been produced before, for never before was it able to secure the combination of the world's greatest actress in a drama written by one of the world's greatest authors about the greatest war of the world. Madame Bernhardt put her heart and soul into this picture as did Jean Richepin, the author, and Louis Mercanton, the producer and all the members of the cast. Pictures of rare beauty, scenes of extreme pathos are found in this production. The picture throughout has been produced on a plane of exceptional artistry. From an artistic standpoint alone you should not miss this production. And when it is realized that this will probably be the last motion picture in which Madame Bernhardt ever appears and when the historical significance of this production is realized, then it will be seen that this is an attraction that you cannot afford to miss. "Mothers of France" is presented by the Peerless Film Company. The French government is a part owner of this big feature.

"SLEEPING FIRES"
Beautiful Pauline Frederick is the star of the Famous Players-Parade production, "Sleeping Fires," by George Middleton, which is the featured attraction at the Brant Theatre for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the coming week. In this intensely gripping photoplay Miss Frederick is Mrs. Bryce, devoted wife and mother, but able to display the claws of the primitive tiger when man when attacked through her child.

Director Hugh Ford, who has been responsible for many of the Pauline Frederick pictures in the past and who was the director of her first photoplay, "The Eternal City," has directed this photoplay and it is an excellent example of the team work of these two who have proven their ability time before.

A woman whose religion prevents her from accepting a divorce, and whose intense affection for her little son, known in the picture as "The Little Fellow," is the beautiful Zelmia Bryce. Her unprincipled husband, Edward Bryce, is in love with his young secretary, Helen King, and willing to sacrifice all to marry her. They plan to influence Mrs. Bryce through "The Little Fellow" and a relentless nurse is hired to guard him and keep him away from his mother. The latter, desperate, strives to forget all in plunging desperately into the limited pleasures possible to her under the circumstances and also takes up social settlement work, meeting in this way a young lawyer who gains her confidence. The husband still has the care of the child, and Mrs. Bryce, unable to avert the long decisions of the court, takes matters into her own hands and steals the boy. The husband hires detectives to steal him back again and the desperate mother follows him to the home she has left, there to become involved in a terrible quarrel and accused of shooting her husband, makes a graphic tale that needs to be seen to be enjoyed.

Gray defends her in a long trial during which the mother thinks many times that she has reached the limits of endurance. It finally results in the verdict—not guilty—and the innocent mother is at length freed to take up the threads of her broken life again with Gray and "The Little Fellow," who has also suffered during the long separation.

"THE GREAT SECRET"
This story is the King Pin of all the great serials that ever faced the public in the bowling alley of motion picture popularity. It has action, and plenty of it, from the prologue right on. It has Love, Mystery, Wealth, and Plotting by Master Minds. It has the crowned King, and Queen of motion pictures as the stars.

In the fifteen chapters which are to be shown, you have a plot that is chock-full of thrills, and yet there is nothing cheap, tawdry or improbable about the situations presented. For one of the most successful playwrights of modern times—Fred de Gresac—wrote the story, the most successful director of modern times—Wm. Christy Cabanne—staged it; and the most successful stars of modern times appear in it. Another good point: Bushman, who shines in heroic roles, is seen here not only as a romantic hero, but also in light comedy parts. It is a new departure for Bushman—a new departure with amazing results. He shows himself capable of comedy parts that blend finely with his heroic role. And so the patron who views this serial doesn't get filled up with romance. There is fun in it—fun enough to liven up the story—fun that is wholesome and clean-cut.

As to the plot, it deals with situations regarding which amazing revelations recently have been made in real life—society black-malling—crime in high financial circles—gangsters that do the bidding of men of brains and wealth. It deals with love—the love of a rich clubman for a poor girl—love adventures that follow that meeting.

You may imagine what the popularity of this serial is when you view that the exhibitors in Great Britain, Australia and Canada are clamoring for it; that the cost of the production was $500,000; that the Metro Pictures Corporation has spent almost $100,000 in advertising alone.

"The Great Secret," is shown at the Brant the first half of every week.

"LET KATY DO IT"
"Let Katy Do It," the new Triangle Fine Arts play, deals with the adventures of a modern Cinderella and her brood of seven adopted children in Mexico. Jane Grey and Tully Marshall star in the play, which will make its appearance at the Rex Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Katy Standish (Jane Grey) is a family grudge on a New England farm. Her elder sister "enjoys" poor health and her mother sees it fit that Katy not only does her own work but that of the weak or lazy elder sister, Priscilla. Oliver Putnam (Tully Marshall), a husky young farmer lad, comes acourting Katy, but her parents interfere so much that he is discouraged. Oliver finally goes to Mexico with Ben Standish, uncle of Katy and Priscilla, who owns a valuable mine there.

Priscilla marries Caleb Adams, a young man who has bought a farm adjoining that of the Standishes. Father and Mother Standish die and Katy goes to live with her sister. She soon is doing all the work in the house and as Priscilla rapidly becomes the mother of seven, each and every one of them is turned over to the care of Katy. Then Priscilla and her husband are killed, while driving to the city, by an express train.

Then poor Katy has to teach school to help keep the wolf from the door. It is a hard life for the girl between taking care of the children and teaching school, but she loves the pretty little ones and does her best of it. She writes to her uncle, telling of the death of her sister and how the care of the children had devolved upon her. The uncle invites her to bring the motherless brood with her and make her home with him in Mexico.

Oliver Putnam is expecting Katy, but the information about the children is withheld from him. He is overjoyed when he sees Katy and the train, but is flabbergasted when he catches sight of the many children.

The children have a way of getting between Oliver and Katy and the man takes an antipathy to them. He sees two of them in a mine and spooks one of them. Katy catches him in the act and gives him a scathing rebuke. She then happens to hear Oliver tell Dan that he has children. This puts him completely in the bad graces of pretty Katy.

Uncle Ben likes the youngsters and is always playing with them. He shows them one time the series of guns in their little home could be discharged at once by pulling a lever and how a mine around the house could be discharged in a similar manner.

lock the room, where the weapons of destruction are placed, but one of the children finds out where he has hidden the key. With it, Oliver and Oliver are away on an errand of mercy, Mexicans attack the little house. The children are all there but one. The missing one happens to be outside a cowboy who saves where he is saved by a cowboy who goes after help.

Meanwhile the children defend themselves by discharging the guns and firing the mines as their uncle had shown them. Katy and Oliver are attacked by another band of Mexicans, but hold them off in a deserted cabin till the cowboys rescue them. Then there is a grand charge by the cowboys on the main body of the Mexicans and they drive them away, just as they are returning for a final attack on the little home.

Oliver can't help admiring the brave way in which the children have defended the house and is grateful also for the fact that the silver under the floor has been saved from the Mexicans. So Oliver and Katy forget their differences and make a home for the beautiful children in a mansion in the more peaceful States.

"THE PEARL TANGLE"
Amusing complications and mix-ups follow one upon another in the Triangle-Keystone, "The Great Pearl Tangle," in which Sam Bernard is starred, at the Rex Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. It all comes about through the stealing of an expensive string of pearls. Sam Bernard and Harry Gribbon are extremely enjoyable in their funny misadventures.

Gribbon has a fashionable modiste shop and employs Bernard as his designer. Gribbon is a villain in a way and lavishes attention on Minta Durfee, the designer's wife. But then Sam Bernard neglects his wife for Mildred Adams, a good looking model. All the ins and outs of the tangle center around the necklace of pearls. Gribbon is trying to get them into the country free of duty. Some crooks palm off an imitation string of jewels on the unsuspecting messenger.

Gribbon wants to do the handsome thing with Minta and gives her the imitation pearls, thinking that they are the real ones. She doesn't care much for them and gives them for $2. Her husband takes them out, or rather, he receives the real pearls for the counterfeiters. This comes about because one of the crooks has pawned the real gems. Sam gives these perfectly good pearls to the model, whom he meets soon after leaving the pawnshop.

To square himself with his wife, Bernard takes home a string of beads from the ten cent store. She doesn't dare say anything until she sees the model in a courtroom wearing the pearls that had been given to her. Of course Minta gives Sam a lively call-down, interrupting the trial of the crook, who had stolen the pearls originally.

Then the pawnbroker identifies Minta as the woman who had pawned the string, and Sam has a chance to do the gloating. Gribbon is found guilty of smuggling. The quarrel between Minta and Sam is finally patched up, and they fall into each other's arms.

"FAUST"
The roster of the Boston English Opera Company, which comes to the Grand Opera House Monday, June 4th, is an impressive one. Headed by Joseph P. Sheehan, America's foremost tenor, and Mille, Nell Gardini, the greatest of all French dramatic sopranos, the cast includes such eminent artists as Signor Vittoria Trevesani, whose characterization of Mephistopheles, the Devil, is said to be the finest piece of character acting in the annals of opera; Robert Evans, the renowned English basso; Miss Florantine St. Clair, one of America's foremost prima donnas; Arthur Deane, whose beautiful baritone voice has been heard in many of the leading operatic productions in this country; Mr. Henry DeVarre, Mr. John Wandering, Mr. Clark Hareourt, Miss Sofia Du France, Miss Louise Heming, etc.

In addition to this unequalled cast of principals, there will be an unusually attractive chorus, both as to voice and beauty, and the simple announcement that the orchestra will be under the leadership of Giacomo Spadoni, is in itself a guarantee of excellence in that direction.

From a standpoint of production, the Boston English Opera Company has excelled all previous efforts. Special attention has been given that every detail is carried out to perfection, making the scenic picture one of rare beauty. There are few operas which give the opportunities for beautiful stage-setting which Faust does; its different scenes are all picturesque to the extreme, and full advantage has been taken to make the end of the production on a par with its wonderful artists who comprise the Boston English Opera Company.

"THE WHIP"
When "The Whip" was first shown privately in New York city to a little group of leading film men, the verdict was unanimous that here was a wonderful picture.

"It has everything that a motion picture should have," said one man, "and none of the things that a motion picture should not have. It has snap, dash, fire, romance, youth, thrills, excitement, big scenes, and splendid actors. It is staged on a lavish scale. It has been superbly directed and the photography is perfect. This is a wonderful production."

This opinion is being echoed by the hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the country who are seeing this memorable production. They are being immensely entertained by the consistently intense and wholly pleasing story; they are being thrilled by the exciting train wreck and the exciting horse race at Saratoga, and they are leaving the theatres after seeing "The Whip" declaring that it is the biggest motion picture in the world. The people of this city will have the opportunity of adding their chorus of approval to the general verdict of all people who like a good entertainment, for "The Whip" is coming here. This supreme offering of filmom will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, June 2nd, and 5th and 6th.

ACCIDENTALLY ON PURPOSE.
If the Lasky management does not quit picking on them Louise Huff and Jack Pickford threaten to return east. While they were filming "Freckles," the adaptation of Gen Stratton Fowler's novel, the director ordered that they stand at a certain spot while expert woodmen felled a tree so close that it would carry out the illusion that it had fallen upon their heads. The scene depicts "Freckles" saving the life of the Angel by receiving the force of the falling tree and being nearly crushed to death in his heroic act—no casualties were reported.

LIBERTY LOAN
It became known this week that the motion picture industry, not to be outdone by the other great industries of this country, is organizing itself for the express purpose of subscribing generously to the new Liberty Loan. The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has already subscribed for $100,000 of Liberty Loan. The announcement of this fact being made public following the creation of a new Finance Committee of the corporation of which Frederic G. Lee, president of the Broadway Trust Company is chairman, is being through the Broadway Trust Company. Mr. Lee has been a director of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation ever since its inception.

Another announcement of far-reaching significance is the fact that the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has appointed Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, the chairman of a committee to promote subscriptions to the Liberty Loan within the industry itself. It is the purpose of this committee to raise at least $1,000,000 for the Liberty Loan among the producers, exchange men, and other components of the motion picture industry. Mr. Zukor is already perfecting plans for the promotion of this gigantic enterprise.

Arthur S. Friend, treasurer of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, is chairman of the Finance Committee of the association. This means that Mr. Friend will have complete charge of the mass of detailed work involved in the collection and distribution of the subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

By this action on the part of the representative body of the Motion Picture Industry and of the greatest single producing organization, the purpose of the Motion Picture Industry rally in response to the call of the government for financial assistance in the prosecution of the Great War, receives positive confirmation because of the national scope of the motion picture industry and its direct contact with people of all walks of life. It is confidently expected by those who are in charge of the movement that the decision of the motion picture industry will have its effect throughout the entire country.

"PEARL OF THE ARMY"
"There are thrills in every foot of "Pearl of the Army." With a dramatic story of love, mystery, and adventure and an all-star cast supporting her, Miss White is certain to achieve the greatest success of her career. It is doubtful if any star in the work has as great box-office pulling power. Pathe's name on a serial is a guarantee of its high quality. "Pearl of the Army" lacks none of the essentials of a successful serial. It has a strong love-interest, the development of which starts with the first episode. There is mystery, adventure and suspense. Every reel is replete with thrills of the kind that bring audiences back week after

ON THE BRITISH FRONT and RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

Among The Glaciers

STAND with me on the summit of a Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountain. What a wondrous panorama is unfolded: not only of peaks and ranges, tier on tier, line on line, but of vast glittering fields of snow and ice, making a white world of the upper heights, a region of eternal winter in striking contrast of the flower-covered beds of the valleys a mile below us, or the green of the alpine meadows and the forest depths.

We are standing in a realm where rivers of ice flow, for it is one of the manifold wonders of nature that these huge snaky lines of ice are slowly but surely moving down the mountain slopes to their death in a terminal moraine. And while they thus travel down hill, they are at the same shrinking so that with few exceptions they show a gradual recession which is marked in some glaciers by scientific study, huge boulders carrying the year when the toe of the glacier reached that spot, with later markings indicating the shrinking process. The Illicillewaot Glacier, for example, retreated up the valley between 1898 and 1898, a distance of no less than 452 feet.

The Illicillewaot glacier, in the Selkirk, is one of the largest remaining glacial deposits in the Canadian ranges, a gigantic icy river of green and white flowing valleyward with a magnificent sweep. Longfellow's description comes to mind as one gazes on the scene as "a glittering gauntlet which the frost king has thrown in defiance of the sun," and so it seems as it glitters back its radiance from its white bosom and its crystal architecture.

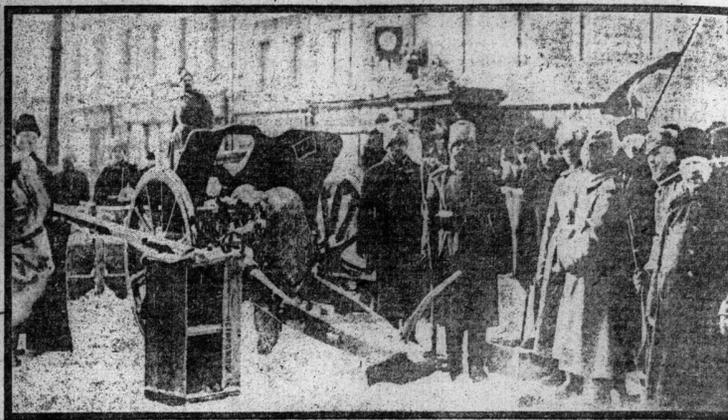

Or stand on Lefroy or Hungabee, or better still, on Temple, in the Lake Louise region, and again the eye is held in thrall with the colossal canvas and the icy glaciers on every peak. Who will forget that superb view of the Victoria Glacier from the Lake Louise Chalet, or the white masses on the lofty roofs of the Ten Peaks, when a full moon floods them with silver light? The sheen of a hundred sparkling waterfalls makes a drapery, while at times the car is bombarded with the sound of a mighty avalanche tumbling from inconceivable heights.

The wonder of the glacier is more fully realized when they are explored at close quarters, when their fantastic caverns and awesome fissures are entered or crossed, when the mountain climber picks his way over a mass of ice masses thrown up as if in mortal agony by the pressure of the upper deposits that cause the downward movement. Yonder is the snow field from which the glacier flows, here is a "bergschund" as the early-talking crevasse is called that separates the glacier from the mountain side. Seracs—curious ice towers—look like monuments of the gods, and the tongue or snout marks the end of the glacier from whence flow the melting waters that mark the birth of great rivers.

"In this vast Canadian Garden of the Gods, of Rockies and Selkirks, in which scores of Switzerlands could be put, nothing is more wonderful than the great glaciers ever journeying to their hibernation, ever sweeping toward the valley beds.

SPY BETRAYED LITTLE BUTT

German in British Uniform Caught by a Sharp Officer

CHAPLAIN TAKEN

Spy Had Pockets Full of Maps When Discovered Was Detected

Russell Gore was detected in the trench. The Padre met him as he was strolling back of the lines. The Padre's routine takes him where—into the trenches, where men rest and bathe, smoke after doing their "bit" firing line—the hospitals, the dining area, the streets of the villages where men pause a moment to rest, or even while occasional shells are falling over their heads.

It was on the street that the chaplain met him. He had a fair skin, and wore the uniform of the British army. The eyes of the Padre seemed to be drawn straight at the man. The uniform was the khaki in which all the British soldiers were dressed at the front. The Padre caught the chaplain's attention. Three black buttons, denoting the rank of a captain, were on the officer's sleeve. The Padre's eyes were fixed on the buttons.

"Quite an idea," agreed the Padre, "to be a spy in the British uniform. You are a spy, are you not?"

The two stopped to exchange a few words. The Padre knew London as well as the British soldier. He was full of the up-to-date information about the best places to which to go, and the best places in which to get a meal not too much curtailed by military regulations. He spoke with a perfect fluency.

"One of us, I see," said the Padre.

Another British officer, a captain, was one of the Padre's acquaintances, and the chaplain knew him.

"See how our friend here has dressed up our soldier's uniform," he said by way of introduction to the man with the honest blue eyes.

But he noticed that the officer dismissed the gilded buttons with a glance, and fixed his eyes on the two buttons on the sleeve of the stranger's uniform. "You're one of us, I see," he said.

"The Padre noticed the officer's sleeve also had two buttons on it. Curiously he glanced at his own uniform—supposedly like that of every other British officer except the black ones that identified him as a spy."

For the first time he noticed there were no buttons on his sleeve. And there were tons on the sleeves of any of the dozens of officers who were with him and repassing the group.

"Yes—sure—yes—of course," answered the blue-eyed officer in a friendly tone.

Then the officer the Padre called over began to ask questions about the regiment. They were just as though the other man was about what regiment he was in. The Padre wondered because there had been no talk of any particular regiment.

He became aware that a skilful cross-examination was in process, and that the man was particularly well-informed. He was cross-examined. He was cross-examined.

He was cross-examined. He was cross-examined. He was cross-examined. He was cross-examined.

Finally the third officer came away, and spoke quietly to the man who was pacing back and forth. The sentry withdrew only a moment later with six men in charge of a corporal.

"You're a German spy," said the man who had been pacing. "Place this man under guard. Hand on the shoulder of the man with the gilded buttons on his sleeve."

"How dare you do this?" said the man, speaking in a loud, though low, voice. "I'm a British chaplain."

SPY BETRAYED BY LITTLE BUTTONS

German in British Uniform Caught by a Sharp Eyed Officer

CHAPLAIN TAKEN IN Spy Had Pockets Full of Maps When Discrepancy Was Detected

Russell Gove writes in the Detroit News: The Padre met the man strolling back of the lines. The Padre's routine takes him everywhere—into the trenches, the billets where men rest and eat, and smoke after doing their "bit" on the firing line—the hospitals where the dying are calling for the consolation of the church, the streets of ruined villages where men pause and chat even while occasional shells are flying over their heads.

It was on the street that the chaplain met him. He had blue eyes, a fair skin, and wore the uniform of the British army. The eyes had in them the suggestion of a smile, and they looked straight at you confidently. The uniform was the regulation khaki in which all the world at the front seems to be dressed. It was a detail of this uniform that caught the chaplain's attention. The three black buttons, denoting a captain's rank, that adorned the epaulettes on the officer's shoulders, had been glued.

"Quite an idea," agreed the Padre, pausing to chat with the stranger and commenting on his bright buttons. The two stopped to exchange some gossip about London. The stranger knew London as well as the Padre. He was full of the up-to-date information about the best theatres in which to while away an evening and the best places in which to get a meal not too much curtailed by the dietary regulations. He spoke English perfectly.

"One of us, I see," said the other British officer sauntered by. He was one of the Padre's acquaintances, and the chaplain called him.

"See how our friend here has furnished up our sober shoulder buttons," he said by way of introducing the man with the honest blue eyes.

But he noticed that the third officer dismissed the glued shoulder buttons with a glance, and instead fixed his eyes on two buttons—two small and inconspicuous buttons on the sleeve of the stranger's coat.

"You're one of us, I see," he said cordially, and extended his hand. The Padre noticed idly that his sleeve also had two buttons on its edge. Curiously he glanced at his own uniform—supposed to be exactly like that of every other British officer except for the black epaulettes that identified him as a chaplain.

For the first time he noticed that there were no buttons on the cuff of his sleeve. And there were no buttons on the sleeves of any one of the dozens of officers who were passing and repassing the group.

"Yes—sure—ye s— why, of course," answered the blue-eyed officer to the newcomer in the group.

"The Regiment." Then the officer the Padre had called over began to ask questions about the regiment. They were asked just as though the other must know about what regiment he was speaking. The Padre wondered at this, because there had been no mention of any particular regiment. As the talk went on, he became subtly aware that a skillful cross-examination was in process, and that it was not going particularly well for the man cross-examined. He very obviously didn't know this or that officer to whom the newcomer referred as intimates, he didn't know where the reserves of THE regiment were. His blue eyes were becoming more and more troubled, and the other's dark eyes were narrowing down into slits of suspicion.

Finally the third officer stopped away, and spoke quietly to the sentry who was pacing back and forth. The sentry withdrew only to appear a moment later with six other men in charge of a corporal.

"You're a German spy," said the other quietly placing his hand on the shoulder of the officer with the gilt buttons on his shoulders.

"How dare you do this?" demanded the man, speaking in a voice that though loud, sounded strained to the ears of the thousands at the front. Perhaps the coat had been taken from

REDUCE CAR SHORTAGE BY FILLING CARS

The object of this article is not to start a controversy about the public use of motor cars, but to point out the fact that the public use of motor cars is increasing rapidly. From 1907 to 1916 the number of motor cars in Canada has increased 117%. The number of motor cars in the United States has increased 137%. The number of motor cars in Great Britain has increased 187%. The number of motor cars in France has increased 230%. The number of motor cars in Germany has increased 330%.

The volume of traffic will no doubt continue so long as the motor car and locomotives are needed but they cannot be secured in large numbers for many months. There is a serious shortage of labor and in some places of yard track. To improve the conditions therefore is to secure greater efficiency in the present equipment, terminal track, and man power. The railways alone cannot develop the maximum efficiency; the railways must be made co-operating cars.

Co-operating cars can help by ordering full car loads instead of minimum authorized loads, and classifications, and omnibuses can help by loading cars to their full authorized cubical or carrying capacity.

Table with 4 columns: Comparison, Car, Average load, Weight of contents. Rows for Typical train 1915 and Proposed train for 1917.

Table with 2 columns: The Average Train 1915, Proposed for 1917. Rows for Total weight of contents of cars, Total weight of cars, Total weight of contents, Total weight of train.

Had the average load per car in 1915 been 23.4 tons instead of 18.4 the same traffic would have been handled with:

- 6,947,588 less trains hauled one mile. 1,568,765 less car trips. 29,896,535 less tons of dead car tare hauled one mile.

By increasing now the average load by 5 tons per car the public would improve the efficiency of the equipment, facilities, and man power of the railways to an extent equal to:

- 54,890 additional freight cars. 482 additional freight and yard engines. 415 additional miles of yard trackage and 13.6 per cent increase in man power employed in train and yard service.

A CAR SAVED IS A CAR GAINED.

yourself, and I— "You're not!" retorted the other, quickly. "You're spy. You have stolen a British uniform or had one made for you. You're a German spy—a Saxon, I think, by your blue eyes."

But the other continued to protest. "It's a lie—I'm not a spy. I'm an Englishman," he insisted. "I was talking with the chaplain here about England, and he can tell you that I know all about it. It is my home. Cross-examine me and see."

"You may know all about England, but you don't know anything about the regiment to which your uniform says you belong," shot back the other, while the guard waited until the strange colloquy was ended.

"What regiment do you mean?" asked the other quickly, and a hunted, baffled look—the look of a man who has planned carefully but who sees everything slipping into his hands because of some small oversight—came into his eyes.

"What regiment?" echoed the other, pointing at the two buttons on the prisoner's sleeve. "You wear those two buttons and ask that? You're spying, you're convicting yourself by that admission. Don't you know that there's only one regiment in the British army whose officers wear buttons on their sleeves?"

Into the spy's blue eyes came what seemed like a shade of disappointment. Perhaps he was thinking of the carefully prepared plan spoiled by a tiny little error, perhaps his thoughts flew back in that moment to someone in Germany he held dear. Anyway he gave no sign as the guards closed in about him and marched away with him.

Within an hour from the time when the chaplain stopped to chat with him it was all over. Not only had he all over with him, but by the time the big hand of the clock had struck the circle, he was buried and the earth thrown over him.

"He died bravely," said the Rev. A. Cameron MacKintosh the Church of England rector who was the "Padre" of the story, as he turned the coat over in his hands. "He would be bandaged, but faced the rifles with his eyes open, and a smile on his face. And just before they spoke he shouted 'Deutschland über Alles!'"

The correspondent fingered the coat curiously. It was of the soft material worn by the British and Canadian officers. Outside it was of the regulation pattern except for the two tell tale buttons that, according to one of those Kipling-esque traditions of the British army, may be worn by but one regiment among the thousands at the front. Perhaps the coat had been taken from one of the dead men of this regiment, or it may have been copied with maps on the finest paper. You can see, too, where the knives of the court-martial have cut into the linings in search of other pockets. The evidence was complete, and he died within the hour—gallant, unafraid and smiling."

The newspaper man turned the coat over looking for holes not made with knives.

"You won't find them," said the Padre. "He died in his shirt sleeves. The coat was stolen off him before the execution, and I kept it well, to remind me of a brave man who was our enemy!"

COTTON CROP.

Washington, June 2.—The condition of the cotton crop on May 25, was 69.5 per cent of a normal, compared with 77.5 last year; 80.0 in 1915; 74.3 in 1914, and 79.1 the May 26th ten year average. The department of agriculture announced to-day in its first report of the season. The acreage planted to cotton will not be announced until July 3.

NO OFFICIAL RECOGNITION.

Paris, June 1.—Premier Ribot today announced in the French Chamber of deputies that the government would not facilitate the voyage of French Socialists to the international Socialist congress at Stockholm. Premier Ribot was cheered by a great majority of the members of the Chamber when, with the approval of the cabinet he refused to give government recognition to the attempt of the French extreme socialists to discuss peace possibilities with German and other socialists at Stockholm.

WATERFORD

From our own Correspondent: Miss Ada Sovereign of Port Dover is spending a few days the guest of Mrs. I. E. York.

Dr. A. J. Gould is attending the annual meetings of the medical association in Toronto this week.

Mrs. W. Evans spent a couple of days in town, after spending a week with Mr. Evans in Toronto.

Miss Eva Wilson, of Victoria, has been spending the past week the guest of Miss Helen Dancombe.

Mr. Saville, of Lynn Valley, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seldon.

Miss Maud Rex is visiting her mother here for a few days.

The warm, bright days are much appreciated by everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dobson, of Hamilton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hill during the past week.

Mr. T. H. Yocom and son, Thomas, of Hamilton, spent a few days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Yocom.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Langs, of Hamilton, motored here and spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Penney.

Dr. W. M. McGuire has sold his "Gore View" fruit farm to Mr. Marston of Paris. The Dr. has purchased a home in Simcoe.

Workmen are busy erecting a new freight shed for the L. E. & N. just south of the station. In about two weeks the T. E. Lytle Co. will start building their pickle station in this place and it will be located just south of the L. E. & N. freight shed.

Mr. L. E. Kidder is moving in the house lately vacated by Leonard Harrison on the north side of the creek.

This is Mr. Torries' last week of his mission here. Fairly large crowds are turning out each evening to hear him.

Miss Nettie Turnbull of Hamilton spent the week-end with Mrs. Oscar Mitchell. She has severed her connection with Grafton & Co., of Hamilton, and soon leaves for Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Ted Silverthorne has accepted a position with the Verity Flow Co. of Brantford.

The play put on by the Delhi Women's Institute, "Topsy Turvey," was very well rendered. Not as large a crowd as the Waterford Institute would have liked to have seen, were present, owing to the rain all day.

Dr. Fred Messacar of New York is spending a few days with his father, Mr. Walker Messacar.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson X.—Second Quarter, For June 3, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John xviii, 1-18. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Isa. liii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We certainly have today in many respects an impossible lesson, impossible for us to grasp or understand or in any measure enter into its real significance. But we can believe it and stand in awe and, bowing low, adore.

The first sentence, "When Jesus had spoken these words," takes us back over His rescue and prayer in the upper room that last evening, giving us truth to be pondered every day and hour until we shall see Him face to face, and then to be understood and appreciated as never before. It seems a great pity not to have a lesson on His inimitable prayer in which He poured out His heart to His Father for Himself and for that little company and for us. Do not fail to notice in verse 5 that He was truly one with the Father before the world was; in verses 4, 6, 26, that His one aim on earth was to glorify the Father and manifest Him to others; in verses 11, 18, that is why we are here in the world in His stead. In verses 3, 21-23, He gives eternal life and the glory which the Father gave to Him, that the world may believe and know, and the secret of all is in the last three words of His prayer, "in them."

On that last evening, if I have counted correctly, He spoke of His Father or to His Father over fifty times, reminding us that He lived by the Father, the Living Father who had sent Him, and He would have us live thus by Him (John vi, 57). If redeemed by His precious blood we are given to Him by the Father and can look up and say "Our Father," and that should deliver us from all care and anxiety and lead us to say, as He did, "Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in Thy sight" (Matt. i, 25-28; vi, 26). Being made children of God, and united with Jesus Christ, we must be content to suffer with Him this little while, according to Phil. i, 29; iii, 10, but always looking onward to the glory (Rom. viii, 18; I Cor. iv, 17, 18).

Turning to our lesson chapter, we see Him returned and rejoiced and being made children of God, and united with Jesus Christ, we must be content to suffer with Him this little while, according to Phil. i, 29; iii, 10, but always looking onward to the glory (Rom. viii, 18; I Cor. iv, 17, 18).

But David returned and rejoiced and being made children of God, and united with Jesus Christ, we must be content to suffer with Him this little while, according to Phil. i, 29; iii, 10, but always looking onward to the glory (Rom. viii, 18; I Cor. iv, 17, 18).

David also seems to have written of the betrayal by Judas in Ps. xli, 9, and in Acts i, 20. Peter says that Pa. ix, 25, referred to Judas. Notice in lesson verses 2-8 the power of the great name I AM, and see how just words were from the Father's mouth (John xlii, 38, 50, 51). How often we figuratively cut off people's ears, or in other words, prevent them from hearing the voice of Jesus by our zeal or lack of zeal or bungling of some sort.

We next see Peter with the servants, warming himself at the fire and then denying that he knew the Lord (verses 15-18, 25-27). This is the man who said, "Lord, I will lay down my life for Thy sake" (xlii, 37). He meant well, but did not know himself. He was boastful, unwisely, overzealous, followed afar off and got into bad company. And there are so many like him! If we warm ourselves at the warming places of the world we shall surely get into trouble. The only way is to follow fully and avoid all associations where the Lord Jesus is not honored, unless by going here and there we can magnify Him. What a comfort it is to us weak ones that the Lord loved Peter and through all, prayed for him, brought him true penitence by that loving, searching look, gave him a special personal interview on the resurrection day and later some special words by the sea of Galilee.

In verses 12 to 14 we see Jesus allowing the soldiers to take Him and bind Him and lead Him away because the time had come for Him to suffer. To see Him consenting to be led from one to the other and be so ill treated by Annas, and Caiaphas, and Herod, and Pilate, and so patient before all, leaving us an example of how we should act as His representatives before His enemies and ours, is something that we should constantly consider (I Pet. ii, 19-24; Heb. xii, 3, 4). How grand was His reply to the high priest when asked concerning His teaching: "I spake openly to the world. . . . In secret have I said nothing. . . . Ask them which heard me what I have said unto them. Behold! They know what I said" (verses 19-21). Notice how they struck Him and called Him an evildoer, yet Pilate testified three times, "I find no fault in Him" (verses 22, 30, 38; xii, 4-6). His saying to Pilate, "My kingdom is not of this world; . . . now is My kingdom not from hence" (verse 36), has been taken to mean that He will never have a literal kingdom on this earth, but only in the hearts of His people. Let such as think so read and believe Dan. vii, 13, 14, 27; Isa. li, 4, 5; Jer. li, 1, 3; Isa. li, 4, 5; Luke i, 31-33.

Belleville council will purchase coal this coming winter and sell at cost to the citizens at large.

PARIS IS INFESTED BY WAR TIME CROOKS

Clever Adventurers of Both Sexes Congregate in French Capital, Some Drifting to America; Many Deserters From the Army

(Leonora Raines, in New York Sun) The declaration made recently in New York that Europe's crooks had arrived in America to operate in that country, which every foreigner appears to look upon as heavy with gold, has been denied by the police of Paris. At any rate, if some have crept across the water a few are left here to carry on old traditions. The crooks of Paris, as a body have disappeared, with the call to the national defence, but older and riper vintage has taken their place. The crook, like the poor, "you have always with you."

It is possible that some outlaws may have secured a safe conduct to the States; but to people acquainted with the difficulties and exactions put in the road of every traveller, even though he has a passport, they would seem thorny. These crooks who have succeeded in landing in the States, probably have been agents of some "band" which makes things easy for the traveller from the steamship ticket to the "agent" that is to meet him at the dock. And this "bande noire" while considerably thinned in numbers since the war began, is still living and thriving, to judge from reports sent in by the police.

For a year after the start of the war, save for an occasional crime, Paris seemed purged of its malefactors and civilians breathed in peace. Never did a city present a more self-respecting front. The violation of the tomb of the lamented actress Lanchôme was really the first intimation Parisians had that all the apaches were not in the trenches.

"Apaches" Get Busy Again
Other misdemeanors began to be recorded, and now that the streets are almost totally dark at night the apaches are using the obscurity as their cover to resume their old line of talent. Some of these have deserted the army to renew their activities far behind the firing line. Others, because of poor physical condition, never entered the military service, and it is generally these, with boys 15 or 16 years old, who have helped keep the police busy.

The Paris malefactor belongs to a band that before the war controlled the whole of Europe and ramfied over the Channel in the British Isles. It was only occasionally that the authorities ran afoul of the band, but enough information has been gained to prove that objects stolen one day have been found the next day in a neighboring country. Prior to the war, Brussels was the great centre for lace and embroideries because of the great demand for such in the legitimate market there, so much lace stolen were traced to Brussels.

Paris was unquestionably the big European centre for all pilfered objects, and London was the market for things stolen and assembled on the Continent, things the band would not dare to exploit so near home. The Channel protected the thieves, for comparatively few detectives thought it worth while to take the long trip on an uncertainty. The sale of old family jewels in London, of old rugs, old china, even of furniture—for in more than a few instances entire villas have been looted—encouraged shipment of such wares to England.

Women Crooks Work with Men
Men and women work together in the "bande noire," as the police call it, and their means of getting into homes and locating spoils is now, as before the war, through domestics. Once in a house and familiar with the family habits and habits, the thief is not difficult. There are now "neutrals" and "allies" belonging to the band, and they work together steadily and skillfully. For months the Y. W. C. A. of Paris was not notified because of the servants it apparently was recommending. The organization only lately discovered that some young women going from its doors were professional thieves. Ladies applied there for governesses, companions, maids, etc., and they were apt to receive what seemed to be a communication from the Y. W. C. A. directors brought by the applicant in person.

The stammered stationery had been stolen from the parlor maid, who had intercepted the post. As the writing was good and the workmanship immaculate no one of these looking for service thought of going further, but engaged the woman or girl. In one instance, the lady's maid "sent from the Y. W. C. A.," was English, of defective vision, but her wage was not high and her French was excellent, she was hired to be with the children and teach them English when not occupied with madame.

Before the first month had passed $1,000 in silver and jewelry had disappeared, but no one thought of accusing the half-blind girl. She was given holiday on Mondays in the afternoon and evening, and twice was seen in high class restaurants near the centre of the city with half a dozen well dressed men and women, who all vanished when it happened that the girl failed to keep her engagement with them on a certain Monday.

Some of the silver was found in her room, all ready to be taken away but the jewelry was never recovered, and though the thief is serving her sentence and has been put through all kinds of examinations because of the servants it apparently was recommending.

"Poliu on permission who applies to a hotel as garcon or valet de chambre to work during his vacation from the war front has now grown to be a real object of suspicion, and from the costly experiences of other hotel proprietors no one will take the soldier unless his recommendations are indisputable. No long ago an American woman arrived in Paris to take a rest after long hospital nursing. She came late in the afternoon and drove to a favorite little hotel in the Rue Cambon. Besides her toilet bag, in which were half a dozen gold-tipped bottles, she carried only one valise. The hotel was not heated, but a fire was built in the bedroom and there dinner was served.

Before retiring Miss X took her belongings to the dressing room, then went to bed, taking pains to put her purse containing $200 in among the gold bottles in the toilet case. She was awakened by what seemed to be heavy breathing, but on turning on the light to examine the room found everything in its place and decided to over-sleep. Not long after that she fell into deep sleep. Hours later she felt herself shiver from an icy draught. It was her horror on awakening to find the door she had locked and bolted standing wide open.

Miss X ran to the dressing room and found that her money and her gold bottles had been stolen. She rang bells, called, and soon the servants were on the spot—but all but one, the valet de chambre, who had come to replenish his fire, drew the curtains, etc. He was nowhere to be found and had not been in his room all night. Search was made for the valet and under Miss X's bed was found a dagger belonging to the soldier on furlough. He had watched his chance, and when the American went into the dressing room he had crept in under her bed. His furlough was up the end of the week, when he returned to the trench and having disposed of the money for not a son was found on him. Needless to add, however, the poliù will pay for his crime.

Many Hotel Robberies
Hotels near the big railway stations have all been complaining about losses of money, affirming that their rooms have been robbed during the night. About every six weeks thieves seemed to visit certain places and take money from purses or pockets. One hotel, however, an important one, hired a detective to catch the thieves. The time for the periodical visitation was made a sign to the clerk near and one evening the clerk made a sign to the officer in the lobby to get busy. A small, shabby, ordinary-looking individual about 65 years old stood at the desk asking for a room. The clerk remembered his face, and since the last theft had borne him in mind.

The man was shown to his room about ten o'clock. The detective secured a room near, then mounted a chair to watch through the transom. Other people came in for the night, and it was near 11 o'clock before the hall grew quiet. A tiny light was left burning in the passage and the detective saw his subject creep out of his room, put a key into the lock of a neighbor's door then softly enter.

Knowing his turn would come soon the detective jumped into bed. Soon afterwards the light flashed in the room and a man went through the clothes on the table with skilled touch, taking all the cash and silver to some marked five-franc pieces. In the morning the guests all complained that their rooms had been robbed during the night, and when the thief came from his room he was arrested. A large sum was found on him, including the five franc decoy pieces. The man had been operating all night since the beginning of war. His wife who seemed to be a respectable woman, had been fooled into believing that her husband was night watchman.

Occupants of the villas or apartment houses used to think that a beard or an age-spoiled shoulder was a badge of respect and confidence, but such ideas no longer prevail because of recent disclosures. Four elderly men who had come with reliable recommendations to an electric establishment were sent in good faith by the manager into a house to repair the elevator. The shop is a good one and before the war had only capable and trustworthy employees. The best part of two days' passed with no results to the elevator.

Of the several workmen the con- gierge noticed that one stayed in the hall, doing nothing but apparently on guard. If the conierge or a servant wished to enter the basement he was halted with: "My comrades are experimenting with electricity for the elevator. If you go down it will be at your peril."

Instead of working the men had been robbing the cellars of wine which they were tending in copious draughts, and in the meantime searching for valuables in other parts of the house.

FRENCH DOMINATE WESTERN FRONT
Possess Initiative and Superiority Over Foe is Most Marked
GREAT GAINS SCORED
Heavy Losses Inflicted on Foe, Including Many Taken Prisoner

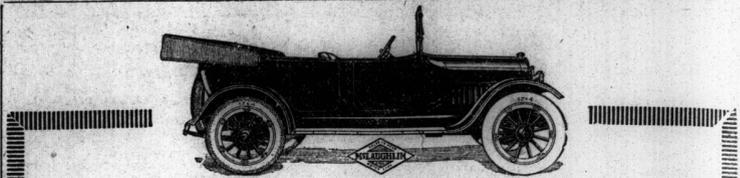

On the French Front in France, May 31.—(From a staff correspondent of the Associated Press)—Between April 15 and May 24 the number of German prisoners falling into French hands reached a total of 31,829, of whom 28,045 were un- wounded. This period covers three phases of the general attack now temporarily abated, which the French undoubtedly will continue when the proper moment arrives.

As a result of their successful attacks, the French now possess the initiative and occupy more important positions than when they began the forward movement in April. Artillery duels continue unceasingly at all points on the front, occasionally intermingled with local infantry combats in the course of which short stretches of the front are sometimes change hands. Thus far the French always have regained any positions taken from them and at some places have driven the Germans back into the lines. The Germans are showing great nervousness as to what is about to happen, and the slightest movement in the French line calls forth a hurricane of artillery and machine gun fire.

The absolute confidence of the French in their superiority is seen in their preparations to move over intervening ground between the lines when ordered to attack. The tactics now employed permit them to attack with minimum losses.

This was demonstrated for instance, in the course of a recent raid in the range of hills and the woods south of Chevreux. A small body of French infantry advanced in order to straighten the line, severe artillery preparations having preceded the assault. The infantry gained the objective and took 30 prisoners in addition to killing a number of Germans. Later it was discovered that French shells had battered the German shelters so thoroughly that six full German companies, crouching in the shelters while awaiting an opportunity for a counter attack, had been killed to the last man. The place was a shambles. The total French loss in this affair amounted to only 27 men killed or wounded.

This proportion applies to other one corner of the battlefield, for in other places the French encountered difficulties which held them back for a period and entailed much more severe fighting with consequent higher casualties. Close observation by the correspondent of the whole fighting front from Soissons to Aubervilliers, however, shows clearly that the French casualties are much lower than the German. As the French, despite all difficulties of ground everywhere gained and held the objectives aimed at, they are in a good position to establish what the enemy's losses were.

AFTER DOCTOR FAILS
Hawkesbury is Restored to A Well Known Resident of Port Health and Strength.

One of the best known men in the town of Port Hawkesbury, N. S., is Mr. William Duff. He has been a member of the municipal council for 16 years, chairman of the school board, and held other responsible positions. Mr. Duff's words, therefore, can be taken as coming from a man who has the esteem and respect of his fellow townsmen. He makes no secret of the fact that he believes Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved his life, and that they restored him to good health, after several medical men had failed to cure him. Mr. Duff tells of his illness and cure as follows: "About four years ago I was attacked with la grippe which left me in a condition difficult to describe. I was unable to get up, and my chest, especially at night was almost unbearable. I was finally compelled to go to bed, and called in a doctor, who said my heart was affected, and treated me for that trouble. After three months attendance, and feeling no better I called in another doctor. His treatment also failed to help me, and I tried a third doctor. This one said there was nothing wrong with my heart, that the trouble was due to my stomach. After treating me for a time he advised that I go to the hospital at Halifax. On a previous occasion when I had an attack of rheumatism I had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided that rather than go to a hospital I would again try this medicine. I got a supply of the pills and began taking them. In a few weeks I could feel my strength returning, my stomach was giving me less trouble, the palpitation of the heart disappeared, and after a further use of the pills I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I can truly say that I feel more thankful than ever for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

HOW TO KEEP WELL
BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

BLINDNESS OF BABIES.
ONE-HALF of all the blindness is preventable. One-tenth of all the preventable blindness is due to babies' sore eyes, which is "an inflammatory disease of the conjunctiva usually appearing with the first few days of life and generally due to micro-organisms."

Let us state it again in simpler language. Within two days after the birth of the baby some matter is noticed in the corner of the eyes. Within an hour or two it will be noticed that the eyes are red, and yellow pus is coming from between the lids. A little later the eyelids are noticed to be puffed. If a little of this pus be placed under the microscope it will be seen that the suppuration is due to pus germs.

Babies' sore eyes are preventable, is contagious, is curable if treatment is started early. If treatment is delayed a single day it may be found that the sight is gone, since the disease runs a very rapid and violent course. Some mothers think that babies' sore eyes are due to the light or to cold. Some even think that it is due to the conjure put on the baby by some evil person. The first group of mothers laugh at the ignorance and superstition of the second group, but without justice, since their opinion is not nearer the truth than that of those at whom they laugh.

Babies' sore eyes are an infection and are due to pus cocci getting into the eye during birth, at the time of birth, or soon after. Thirty-six years ago an hospital surgeon, by name Crede, noted that one-ninth of the babies born in his hospital developed babies' sore eyes. He commenced the policy of dropping a two per cent. solution of nitrate of silver into the eyes of each baby as soon as it had its bath. In six years the babies' sore eyes rate in his hospital dropped from one in nine to one in four hundred. The result of this experience was a new policy in caring for the eyes of a newly-born babe. Immediately after birth the baby is given his bath and his eyes are treated. Each eye is wiped with a piece of absorbent cotton dipped in a saturated solution of boric acid (boiled water will do as well as boric acid solution). A separate pledget of cotton is used for each eye. The cotton is not put back into the solution after touching the eye. Next the eyelids are gently separated with the fingers and one drop or two drops of one per cent. solution of nitrate of silver is dropped into each eye. This is done only once. It is done not to cure sore eyes but to prevent eyes from becoming sore.

If the eyes begin to suppurate the doctor must be sent for without delay. The sight cannot be saved unless treatment is begun at once.

THE CAUSE OF DEAFNESS.
Consanguineous marriages, heredity, infections, fevers, middle ear diseases resulting from colds, sore throats, infections of nose sinuses, and bad tonsils, tuberculosis, and syphilis, accidents and injuries, working at noisy trades, and taking quinine or salicylates in large doses are the causes of deafness.

Where both parents are congenitally deaf the percentage of children congenitally deaf will be large. Where one parent is congenitally deaf such percentage will be small. Where there is a family tendency toward acquired deafness the percentage of "hard of hearing" in the progeny will be large.

Among infectious diseases scarlet fever ranks first as a cause of deafness. The most frequent cause of deafness is neglected earaches, abscesses in ears, chronic colds, and chronic sore throats.

Deafness and persons on the road to deafness should be taught how to lip read.

A boy is to be educated through his playthings. The mother gets a series of different-colored balls. Directing the boy's attention to her lips she says, "Give me the blue ball." "No, that is the red one." "Making use of different-colored objects he can be taught the lip movements for the colors and objects. He will acquire a considerable vocabulary of nouns, principally the names of objects, in a short time, if the mother will talk to him persistently, directing attention to the objects talked about. Next teach him a vocabulary of verbs by throwing, bringing, carrying, drinking, eating, playing, while descriptive words are spoken and the child's eyes are watching the mother's lips.

Taken into the out-of-door world he can be taught colors from flowers and grass; shapes and sizes, adjectives, verbs, and adverbs from objects seen.

A deaf child must be constantly entertained, or, better, must have a mind constantly occupied. "The deaf look comes on a child's face as the visible expression of a soul denied expression."

(From Friday's Daily.) He surprised Hallett's look of inquiry and smiled as he looked his way into that of the prisoner. "Detective Sergeant Royal, sir," he explained. "I'll let you know all about it later. What's your name, my man?" He shook his captive slightly.

"Smith—William Smith," said the man sullenly, and Royal winked at Hallett. "That's a good old Anglo-Saxon name," he said. "Come along."

It was in the criminal investigation office at King street, while they were awaiting Menzies, that Royal gave his explanation with a certain hesitating tone. "It was this way, Mr. Hallett. You see, Mr. Menzies asked me to keep an eye on you when you were sent home yesterday. Of course he thought you were all right, but it doesn't do to take any one's word in our trade. This is murder, and so, and though it seemed all right, you might have forged or done the introduction you had. We couldn't be sure your name was really Hallett."

"And sandbagged myself on the back of the head," interpolated Hallett, with irony. "Royal gave a shrug. "Mr. Menzies doesn't take any risks, sir. It couldn't do you any harm. They know me at the hotel, and that's how it was I was able to get into livery and wait in your room pretty well as I liked."

A new light broke upon Hallett. "I get you. I thought perhaps I was a bit fogged when I got up and had forgotten where I put things. You've been searching my room?"

"Royal's face never shifted a muscle. "I don't admit it, sir. That would be illegal without your permission."

"I don't admit it, sir," retorted Hallett. "I hope you're quite satisfied."

"Oh, there'll be no more trouble about that. Mr. Menzies told me on the telephone just now that he'd called to the States, and they've put your reputation straight. Besides, there's what I learned about you."

"I guess you read my letters," ventured Hallett. "No; don't worry to scribble me down. I'd probably have half-killed you if I'd caught you at it, but I'm quite calm now. By the way, there was a fever—"

A flush mounted to the temples of the detective, and he shook his head in vehement denial of the implication contained in the broken sentence. "I had to take it or you might have suspected something. I passed it on to the servants and told 'em what to do. I never saw the reporters myself. Some of 'em might have known me."

"When you went down to breakfast I changed my clothes and slipped a phone message through to headquarters. They told me to hang on to you till Mr. Menzies had seen you. You'd never have known a word about it if it hadn't been for our bird down below."

Hallett began to appreciate some of the realities of detective work. Before he could make any comment, Menzies came in. He nodded affably to the young man.

"Morning, Mr. Hallett; not much the worse for last night, I see. I've got a little for you presently. Meanwhile I want to see your friend down below. Like to come along?"

"He made no apology for the espionage he had set on foot, and Hallett did not think it worth while to thrash out the subject again. "William Smith," it seemed had already been searched with care and thoroughness. Royal explained to his chief that nothing which would serve as a hint as to who he was had been found on him—nothing but the pistol, nine cartridges, and some money."

"Have you looked for the name of the tailor on his clothes—the breast buttons, the inside of the breast pocket, the trousers band?" demanded Menzies.

"Of course, sir," said Royal. He was a trifle offended that it should even be thought that he had neglected so elementary a precaution. "There's nothing—nothing at all."

Preceded by a uniformed inspector they went down to the cells. Smith looked up sullenly from the bench on which he was seated and met Menzies's gaze squarely. The detective chief was no believer in Lombroso's theories of physiognomy, but he studied the face intently.

In point of fact he was analyzing the features to discover if he had seen the man before. He wanted to get some clue as to the manner he should adopt—authoritative and official, or familiarity and persuasion.

"Well, sonny," he said gently. "You've tumbled into a mess. Attempted murder is a serious business."

Smith glanced at him blackly over his shoulder. Menzies went on. "Of course we don't believe the cool and bluff story you told Mr. Hallett of your being a gang of you—"

"You don't, eh?" exclaimed the prisoner, schooling in sudden passion to face his visitors. "Then you've got what shall I say—wooden blockheads." He pointed a long slender forefinger at each of them in turn.

"You and you and you—I tell you you will be marked. I failed—but there are others who will not fail if you persist."

Royal turned away to hide a snigger. This kind of melodrama failed to impress him. "No doubt, no doubt," assented Menzies coolly. He might have been calmly down a headstrong questioner at a vestry meeting. "But there are a good many police officers in London. It will take a long time to get 'em all in a row. You don't you be reasonable, Mr. Smith?"

"Pah!" interrupted the prisoner. He spat on the cell floor to indicate his contempt. "You've shown you know something about this murder," went on Menzies. "The judge is pretty sure to take that into account one way or the other at your trial. I of course should tell him if you helped us. It would probably make a difference, you know."

The prisoner showed two rows of yellow teeth in an unimprudent, contemptuous grin. "Go away, wooden-head. I shall not go to prison, but you will die. You don't know what you call, what you are up against."

"Perhaps I've got an idea," said Menzies. His voice changed. "I don't know whether you're playing the fool, my man," he said sternly, "or whether you really believe that kind of wild talk. Perhaps your friend Errol will be able to enlighten us."

"Errol?" said Smith blankly. "I know him not."

"I hear you," said Menzies. "You think over what I've said, my lad. Meanwhile we'll have a doctor to look at you."

CHAPTER VI.

Miss Peggy Greye-Stratton. Menzies let an unparliamentary expression slip from his lips as the cell door clanged behind them. It is tantalizing to have a piece of evidence drop into one's lap, so to speak, and then refuse to be evidence. He was annoyed because his efforts to unlock the lips of the prisoner had failed. He knew that if only the man could have been induced to talk days, possibly weeks, of heart-breaking labor would be saved. This fresh development had him guessing, as Jimmie Hallett might have said. Who was "William Smith"? Why had he threatened

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Charles Stone

HOW A DISPUTE WAS SETTLED. One bright morning Jimmy Greenworm lay basking in the sunshine on a great red ripe tomato. He had eaten all he could, and was just settling down for a quiet nap when he was disturbed by quarrelling that came from under the tomato plant.

"It's mine!" said the first voice. "I found it, which makes it mine," said another voice, which Jimmy Greenworm recognized as his friend's Johnny Grasshopper. Wishing to see what had caused the trouble, Jimmy Greenworm crawled off the tomato and fell to the ground beneath.

"Here! What's the trouble with you critters?" Jimmy Greenworm asked. Johnny Grasshopper pointed to a tiny red egg that was no bigger than a pin point.

"Brown Flea says this is his egg, and I say I found it, which makes it mine!" cried Johnny Grasshopper. It sounded so funny to Jimmy Greenworm, this fighting over a tiny red egg, that he began to laugh.

"You wouldn't laugh if you knew that it's a magic egg, the one who swears it can wish himself anywhere and before the wish is answered it will be granted," replied Brown Flea.

"Oh!" exclaimed Jimmy Greenworm, who had never seen a magic egg that before. "So that's the trouble! You can't deny that. Let me think, and you critters keep quiet," ordered Jimmy Greenworm, and he took a large bite of tomato. For he could always think better with something in his mouth to eat.

"Which of you can win the farthing?" Jimmy Greenworm asked. Of course, they both claimed the honor. "I can lean at least 200 times my length," cried Johnny Grasshopper. "I can't do that. I can lean 500 times my height," cried Brown Flea.

"Friends, there is only one way to prove which is right. Get ready, and when I count three jump. The one who lands the farthest gets the egg. Does that suit you?" asked Jimmy Greenworm, and Johnny Grasshopper and Brown Flea agreed that it did. Jimmy Grasshopper counted three, and Jimmy Greenworm jumped into the air and Brown Flea on his path.

Jimmy Greenworm landed neatly on the egg, and putting it on his head wished himself 50 miles away on a red ripe tomato.

When Johnny Grasshopper and Brown Flea returned they found Jimmy Greenworm gone, and with him the tiny red egg.

"See, that's what I get for not doing what I have been told to do! I'd have seen Jimmy Greenworm when he picked up that egg, and we wouldn't have lost it," cried Brown Flea. "How's that?" asked Johnny Grasshopper, and Brown Flea told him that he had been told many a time to jump backwards.

"Well, I'll never jump forward again," said Brown Flea, and if you see him some time and watch him get him some time and watch him get the trick that Jimmy Greenworm played on him and Johnny Grasshopper. He always jumps backward so he can watch those who are behind him.

HEAVY FIRING. Berlin, June 1.—via London—Heavy gun firing last night reached a stage of great intensity in the region of the dunes on the Belgian coast and in the Ypres bend, particularly in the Wytschaete sector, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff.

POE PLANES SUFFERING. By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, June 1.—Captain George Guynemer, most famous of all the French army aviators, has brought down five more German airplanes, two of them in one minute. The captain now is credited officially with having destroyed 43 enemy machines. Between May 17 and May 31, es. German machines and 57 others are believed to have fallen to earth behind the German lines.

COURIER DAILY RECIPE COLUMN

CAKE WITHOUT BUTTER OR EGGS. Two cups pastry flour, 3 cups whole wheat flour, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups molasses, 2 cups sour butter milk, 1 pound seeded raisins, 1 lb. dates, cut fine; 1 even teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, spice to taste.

MIX SUGAR, molasses and spices, add milk and soda, dissolved in a little hot water, then add both kinds of flour, well sifted together, and beat it 15 minutes; then add the fruit, well floured, and 1 small glass of currant or apple jelly. It makes three loaves, and is best after keeping at least three days.

CHOCOLATE CAKE. Two squares Baker's chocolate, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cups flour, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 2 eggs or yolks of 3.

Melt the chocolate in two tablespoons of hot water and 2 table-spoonfuls of sugar (add out of the eggful), and stir over the fire until it grows smooth and thick. When cool, not cold, flavor with 1 teaspoonful of vanilla and beat it thoroughly into the cake batter.

DELICATE CAKE. One and one-half cups sugar, two eggs, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon of cream of tartar, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup butter added the last thing. This makes two loaves, and is nice with chocolate frosting.

CARAMEL CAKE. One cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 1-2 cup milk, 2 eggs, salt, 2 teaspoon Cleveland baking powder. Bake in four layers.

MOLASSES CAKE. One cup molasses, 1-2 cup water, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup lard. Put 1 pint of flour in the sieve, then add 1 teaspoonful of soda, 1 of salt, 1 of cinnamon. Sift this into the dish with the molasses, add water and eggs, then stir it until it is like a cream, and bake in thin loaves and cook quite brown.

Assist Nature. There are times when you feel that you are not doing your best. It is now undertaking to cleanse your system—if you taking will be successful. This great medicine purifies and builds up as nothing else does.

"It's mine!" said the first voice. "I found it, which makes it mine," said another voice, which Jimmy Greenworm recognized as his friend's Johnny Grasshopper. Wishing to see what had caused the trouble, Jimmy Greenworm crawled off the tomato and fell to the ground beneath.

"Here! What's the trouble with you critters?" Jimmy Greenworm asked. Johnny Grasshopper pointed to a tiny red egg that was no bigger than a pin point.

"Brown Flea says this is his egg, and I say I found it, which makes it mine!" cried Johnny Grasshopper. It sounded so funny to Jimmy Greenworm, this fighting over a tiny red egg, that he began to laugh.

"You wouldn't laugh if you knew that it's a magic egg, the one who swears it can wish himself anywhere and before the wish is answered it will be granted," replied Brown Flea.

"Oh!" exclaimed Jimmy Greenworm, who had never seen a magic egg that before. "So that's the trouble! You can't deny that. Let me think, and you critters keep quiet," ordered Jimmy Greenworm, and he took a large bite of tomato. For he could always think better with something in his mouth to eat.

"Which of you can win the farthing?" Jimmy Greenworm asked. Of course, they both claimed the honor. "I can lean at least 200 times my length," cried Johnny Grasshopper. "I can't do that. I can lean 500 times my height," cried Brown Flea.

"Friends, there is only one way to prove which is right. Get ready, and when I count three jump. The one who lands the farthest gets the egg. Does that suit you?" asked Jimmy Greenworm, and Johnny Grasshopper and Brown Flea agreed that it did. Jimmy Grasshopper counted three, and Jimmy Greenworm jumped into the air and Brown Flea on his path.

Jimmy Greenworm landed neatly on the egg, and putting it on his head wished himself 50 miles away on a red ripe tomato.

When Johnny Grasshopper and Brown Flea returned they found Jimmy Greenworm gone, and with him the tiny red egg.

"See, that's what I get for not doing what I have been told to do! I'd have seen Jimmy Greenworm when he picked up that egg, and we wouldn't have lost it," cried Brown Flea. "How's that?" asked Johnny Grasshopper, and Brown Flea told him that he had been told many a time to jump backwards.

"Well, I'll never jump forward again," said Brown Flea, and if you see him some time and watch him get him some time and watch him get the trick that Jimmy Greenworm played on him and Johnny Grasshopper. He always jumps backward so he can watch those who are behind him.

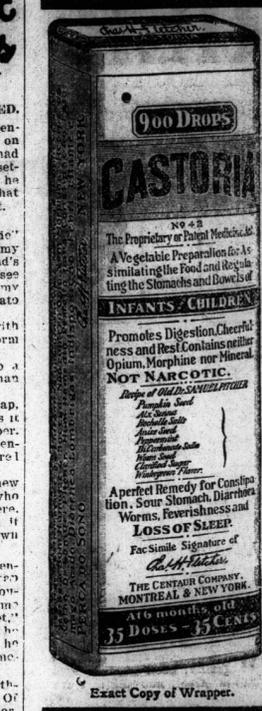

HEAVY FIRING. Berlin, June 1.—via London—Heavy gun firing last night reached a stage of great intensity in the region of the dunes on the Belgian coast and in the Ypres bend, particularly in the Wytschaete sector, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff.

POE PLANES SUFFERING. By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, June 1.—Captain George Guynemer, most famous of all the French army aviators, has brought down five more German airplanes, two of them in one minute. The captain now is credited officially with having destroyed 43 enemy machines. Between May 17 and May 31, es. German machines and 57 others are believed to have fallen to earth behind the German lines.

LADIES FOUR-GORED SKIRT. By Anabel Worthington. A clever idea is that of placing panels at the sides instead of at front and back where we usually see them. No. 8,272 makes a simple but very attractive utility skirt. The front and back gores are gathered, and stitched belt of the material hold the fulness in place. The side pockets are finished very much like a man's pockets, and are inserted in the side seams. The skirt has the usual slightly raised waist line, and is in comfortable walking width at the lower edge. Bone buttons for trimming will be very effective.

For general wear rather light weight materials are suitable, such as wool velour, shepherd checks, French serge, gabardine, prunella or wool poplin. The four-gored skirt pattern, No. 8,272, is cut in five sizes—24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. The width at the lower edge is 2 3/4 yards. The 24 inch size requires 3 3/4 yards; 26 inch or 44 inch; 28 yards 54 inch material.

DURING JUNE, JULY AND AUGUST it isn't very pleasant to face the task of using stove heated irons, is it? As a matter of fact, they are annoying the year 'round. As soon as you begin to use a G-E Electric Iron the real hardship of ironing day disappears.

G-E Electric Irons become hot without heating the air. They save you the usual steps from ironing board to stove. You iron straight ahead with the same iron until your work is done. The iron is ready for use a few minutes after you turn the switch and will not cool off until its task is finished. The average cost of operating the G-E Iron is but a few cents for a whole week's ironing. Let us show you one.

Parliament Broken Up

By Courier Leased Wire.
Peking, June 4.—Eleven provinces of China, including the provinces of Chih hli, in which Peking is now no longer recognize the authority of the Peking government provinces of Kwang Tung, Kiang and Yunnan, are supporting the assembly of Kwang Tung, and its loyal support to the Peking government, demands the military governors be dismissed. Premier Tang Shao Yi and other revolutionary leaders are being hurriedly to Canton. It is probable that should the military leaders persist in their revolutionary course that the three loyal provinces named Kwan, Kwang Tung and Yun Nan, will split of the President. At present situation is serious and the military governors be dismissed. Premier Tang Shao Yi and other revolutionary leaders are being hurriedly to Canton. It is probable that should the military leaders persist in their revolutionary course that the three loyal provinces named Kwan, Kwang Tung and Yun Nan, will split of the President. At present situation is serious and the military governors be dismissed.

Parliament was convened to consider a bill calling for declaration of war against Germany. The bill was passed by a vote of 250 members. Peking. Attempts are being made to influence President Li Yuan resign rather than to dissolve the parliament, the object being to blame for any disturbance of military leaders.

The militarists is said to tend to force a disturbance they are in contact with the military. The militarists are demanding election immediately for the purpose of securing a workable constitution. President Li Yuan Hung is less, owing to the Peking commanders refusing to carry out his orders.

Shanghai, June 3.—General

Spun, military governor of the province of Anhwei, arrived in Shanghai Saturday evening and after a conference with the military and naval government was formed. Wang Shih Chen as the actier, was made Premier. The chief of the gendarmes, Kwei, brother of Yuan Chih, former Premier, was named minister of war; Thao Julin, who is believed to be strongly pro-Japanese was made minister of Foreign Affairs; Lung Huanan, former military communications, was chosen minister of the interior.
