New President of the Portuguese Cabinet Shot

Joao Chuyas Shot by Senator and Died in a Hospital—Attacker Killed by Gendarmes.

Bulletin—Lisbon, via London, May 17 (8.30 p. m.)—Joao Chuyas, the new president of the cabinet, was shot four times with a pistol while on board the mid-night train from Oporto. His assailant was Senator Freitas who also was shot and wounded by a passenger of the train.

M. Chuyas was taken to a hospital where it was announced that his condition was grave. In addition to other wounds he is suffering from a fracture of the skull.

Chuyas Assailant Killed
Madrid, via London, May 17 (10.25 p. m.)—A despatch received here from Lisbon concerning the shooting of M. Chuyas, says the attack occurred at the Entrocamento railway station. The despatch adds that Senator Freitas was killed by gendarmes.

Paris, May 17 (9.05 p. m.)—A despatch to the Havas Agency from Lisbon says the project for the revolution in Portugal was formed three days after the constitution last March of the cabinet of General Pimenta Castro. Dr. Alvaro Castro, the correspondent says, took charge of the military arrangements. Antonio M. Silva undertook to organize the civilians, and Captain Rego, of the navy, agreed to command the naval forces.

Paris, May 17 (11.56 p. m.)—Telegraphing from Lisbon at three o'clock this afternoon the correspondent of the Havas Agency says: "Trouble has broken out afresh, Senator Freitas, who shot and wounded Joao Chuyas, the head of the new ministry, was shot dead by gendarmes."

Madrid, via Paris, May 17 (11.50 p. m.)—Fighting in Lisbon has begun again, according to the latest news reaching Badajoz.

The warships are bombarding the city. Over one hundred persons have been killed, including several Spaniards.

The Spanish warships Espana and Rio De La Plata and a Spanish torpedo boat have arrived in Lisbon.

Paris, May 17, 9 p. m.—The Lisbon newspapers state, says the Havas correspondent in the Portuguese capital, the General Pimenta Castro, the president of the cabinet, declared that when the revolutionary movement broke out he offered the collective resignation of the Ministry to President De Arriaga. It is added that General Castro assured the new cabinet of his loyalty.

Later
Lisbon, May 18—Improvement is shown in the condition of Jose Chuyas, new President of the Cabinet, who was shot and dangerously wounded while on board a train. The bullet entered the forehead and came out near the right parietal bone.

Cabinet Retain Office; Italy Will Join Allies

No Change to be Made in Personnel of Ministry—King Refused to Accept Resignation

London, May 16—(11 p. m.)—The King of Italy has refused to accept the resignation of Signor Salandra and the Premier and his whole war cabinet retain office. This, it is confidently believed here, foreshadows the almost immediate entrance of Italy into the circle of belligerents on the side of the Allies.

Action, however, may be delayed until the meeting of the Chamber of Deputies on Thursday when the Premier will announce his policy and will receive the support of a majority of the Deputies.

Should the expected action of Italy materialize the Allies will be in a better position than ever to launch their big offensive movement against Austria and Germany, which is being preceded on the western front by a series of attacks, furnishing a foretaste of what is to come.

Hardly had the German attacks on the British lines around Ypres exhausted themselves, and the French offensive to the north of Arras shows signs of coming to an end, than the British became the aggressors to the north of La Bassée and the French and Belgian troops commenced their attempt to throw the Germans back from the Yser Canal.

These attacks, according to the French official statement which, however, does not agree with that from Berlin, were successful, and again compelled the Germans to counter attack—the most costly of all operations in siege warfare. Fighting at both points is still in progress today, as well as in Arras, where the French added a further slight gain to those made during the week and which, combined, constitute the biggest forward movement of either army in the west since the battle of the Marne.

Fighting also is in progress in the West, particularly to the west of the forest of Le Pretre, which the French also won during the past week.

There does not appear to be much change in the general position in Galicia although the Austro-German armies have been able to make an additional slight advance by the withdrawal of the Russian rear guards which have been holding off the victorious troops until their own armies could get into new positions behind the Riven Szn. This territory promises to be the scene of another big battle for the Russians, strongly reinforced, will make a desperate effort to stem the tide which has been running so strongly against them.

In the Russian border provinces along the East Prussian frontier, isolated engagements are occurring in which both sides claim to have the advantage.

DANISH STEAMER SUNK

London, May 15—Danish steamer "Martha" torpedoed and sunk off Aberdeen this morning by German submarine, crew of 18 saved. Net tonnage 724 and 232 feet long.

The Derby Patriotic meeting, advertised for April 6th, was postponed and the date has now been set for Thursday, May 27th, in the Temperance Hall at Millerton. Addresses will be delivered by Hon. L. J. Tweedie of Chatham, and Ex-Mayor Chas. J. Morrissey of Newcastle.

Ice cream and refreshments will be sold during the evening, and the Millerton orchestra and united choir will furnish a musical program. A large attendance is earnestly requested. Watch for posters.

Improvement League Executive Meeting

The Newcastle Town Improvement League Executive met last night. It was decided to hold regular meetings on second Thursday of each month. Dues were fixed at 25 cents a year. Ald. H. H. Stuart, secretary, was also chosen Treasurer.

Rev. P. W. Dixon, seconded by Ald. Stuart, introduced the following resolutions:

1. That this Town Improvement League request the Town Council to authorize the policemen to arrest or send home children found on the streets after 9 o'clock at night without good excuse.
2. That the T. I. L. request the Council to appoint a Trust Officer whose duty it shall be to enforce regular attendance at school as required by the Compulsory Education Act.
3. That Council be requested to endeavor to have measures adopted whereby drunkards and liquor sellers shall be sentenced to imprisonment rather than fines.

The resolutions were introduced by Father Dixon in a very strong address, and the first two were vigorously supported by the seconder, Rev. S. J. MacArthur, the chairman, the Mayor, Revs. Harrison and Richardson, Alds. Doyle, Hayward, Stables and McKay, J. R. Lawlor and others and passed unanimously.

Section 3 brought out very strong remarks about the folly of fining drunkards, their people having to pay the fines. It was thought better to imprison them a few days till sober. Rev. liquor sellers most of the speakers said they should be jailed without the option of a fine.

Ald. Stables said it was no use to talk to the Police Magistrate about his duty. He would brook no interference.

Rev. P. W. Dixon and others contended that the magistrate if unwilling to do his duty could be dismissed.

Ald. Stables said that, on investigation he found it very hard to get convictions for 3rd offence. There had to be evidence produced in court of first and second offences. Latter was in many cases lost blocking a third. The magistrate thought $50 fines best way of enforcing the law.

Chairman—You are changing your views very suddenly.

Ald. Stables—Not at all, but I have found out a lot since becoming a member of Police Committee.

Ald. Stuart and Dr. Harrison and Rev. Mr. MacArthur pointed out the recent battle of Langemarck. Pte. Parks was a member of the machine gun section of the 5th Royal Highlanders of Montreal, which formed part of the 13th Battalion, which figured so largely in that battle, when they refused to surrender after being almost surrounded by the enemy. Before enlisting Pte. Parks was employed by Robb, Ltd., of Amherst, being a first class engineer.

J. M. Troy and Revs. Dixon, Harrison, MacArthur and Richardson were appointed a committee to present the resolutions to the Town Council at its next session.

Hardest Fight of the Campaign Is Now Going on French Arras Line

Newcastle Boy Was Wounded at Front

Leslie Miller Writes From Hospital in England—Stanley Parks Missing

The following letter, written by Leslie Miller, one of the first volunteers from Newcastle, was received by his father, Mr. S. B. Miller, yesterday morning. He is at present in an hospital in England, having been wounded by the exploding of a German shell, which dropped only about three feet behind the gun he was on in his battery:

The Reading War Hospital, May 7th, 1915.

Dear Mother:
Just a few lines to give you the news about some of the things I have gone through the last while back. Well mother, I guess I could write a whole lot. First of all, my wounds are not very bad, and I will be able to go back to my battery about the last of the month.

Of course you have seen by the papers of the Canadians' great success, but at an awful price. You may have seen by the papers about the 8th Battery being specially mentioned on that day. We were split up and formed half of the 11th Battery, so you see it was only half of our battery that I was in.

We had been in the fight for three days and were then sent back for reserve, but were ordered to go back and at that time the Germans sent some of their big shells in Ypres which place we had to go through. I tell you we did go through with a yell. We only lost one man killed, and that was our cook. We have lost quite a number of men and horses since.

We took up a position just in front of Ypres three days before the battle began, and I tell you that for nine days and nights there was no sleep, or very little food, but the Canadians showed what they are made of, and not one man flinched.

We were shelled out of our position. I helped to bury the first man that was killed. His name was McDougall from Moncton. We were not only under shell fire, but the German infantry broke through on our left and got to within three hundred yards, so we were under a rifle as well as a shell fire, and the gas that they used was worse than any shell that they sent over.

We were going all right, sending over as many as we got, but on the morning of the 29th of April about four o'clock they gave me a close call. One of their big shells dropped about three feet from me and the explosion sent me back like a flying machine. I was lucky to get hurt so little. Five of the small pieces went into my hips, and the force of the explosion sprained my leg. I did not want to go to the hospital, but the Major made me.

Up to the time I left, the only one who was wounded from among the boys who came from Newcastle, was Jim Cantwell from Campbellton.

Well Mother, I will write often while in England, so you can write to the same address as usual. Good-bye for this time.

Your loving son,

LES.
The fact that the above casualty took place, and that it was not given out, may be grounds for believing that other casualties have happened which have also escaped notice. Leslie's many friends will be pleased when he is again able to take his place with his brother Canadian heroes.

Mr. John Parks, Redbank, received a telegram on Saturday from the Adjutant General announcing that his son, Pte. Stanley Parks was missing from his regiment after the recent battle of Langemarck.

Pte. Parks was a member of the machine gun section of the 5th Royal Highlanders of Montreal, which formed part of the 13th Battalion, which figured so largely in that battle, when they refused to surrender after being almost surrounded by the enemy. Before enlisting Pte. Parks was employed by Robb, Ltd., of Amherst, being a first class engineer.

His parents, two sisters, Misses Hattie and Addie Parks, and one brother Sydney, live at Redbank, while another sister, Mrs. Wm. Bell, resides at Derby.

The Germans Attacked at Four Distinct Points, But were Beaten Back and Slaughtered in Full Companies

British Break German Line and Cut off About 5000 German Troops—Russians Have Routed Austrians

The Land Forces of the Allies Have Renewed Their Fierce Assaults Upon the Turkish Troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula and Are Having Good Success

Paris, May 17—Whole companies of Germans were slaughtered in the bloody fighting in a blinding rain storm around Neuville and Souchez. According to despatches from the battle front today, Germans attacked fiercely at four distinct points. They sought to recover the ground gained by the French in the Saturday and Sunday fighting in this region. The war office announced this afternoon that in each instance the enemy was repulsed with heavy losses. An extremely heavy bombardment is now proceeding north of Arras pointing to a renewal of infantry engagements.

Paris, May 17—Violent attacks launched by the Germans in an effort to win back the ground lost to the French on the heights of Lorette, in northern France, have been repulsed. It is announced in an official communique issued by the French War Office today.

Four counter assaults of the Germans at Notre Dame de Lorette, north of Arras, were all checked by the hot fire of the French.

The capture of 145 prisoners and four mitrailleuses at Heias is also announced. Heias is in West Flanders.

The communique shows that hard fighting is still in progress upon the battlefield north of Arras and in the sector of Ypres.

London, May 17—Field Marshal Sir John French has broken his silence in regard to the movements of the British army northwest of La Bassée, with the announcement of an advance of nearly a mile into the German line. This, together with the continuance of the French thrusts both north of Ypres and southwest of La Bassée constitutes the outstanding feature of the military situation today.

Military comment here regards the advance as a genuine break of the German line which, if maintained, must mean a retreat for a considerable section of the invaders' forces.

Recapture of the bridge over the Yser canal at Ste. Enstraete by the French, deprives the Germans of their last connection with the west side of waterway. German assaults on the British position at Ypres seem to have spent themselves, at least for the moment, as Field Marshal French reports all has been quiet there for the last forty-eight hours.

Petrograd, May 17—Complete victory for the Russians in southeastern Galicia and Bukovina is announced by the War Office in an official statement today. It states that the Austrians have been routed along the entire Danester front of 100 miles. The Russians have taken 20,000 prisoners.

Petrograd, May 17—For ten days there has been severe fighting along the Danester front, where the Russians have been assailing the Austrians' right wing, after checking its attempts to advance and strike at the lines of communications upon which the Russians depend for sending supplies and reinforcements to the troops who have been withdrawing before the Austro-German assaults in the Carpathians and in Western Galicia.

The Austrians have been driven from their positions along the south bank of the Danester River, and have been compelled to cross the Pruth, Madworna, twenty-two miles south of Stanisku, has been recaptured by the Prussians. This is the fifth time it has changed hands.

Athens, May 17—Fierce attacks by the Allied expeditionary forces at the Dardanelles have been renewed. According to Mitylene despatches received here today, the Allies are trying to occupy two strongly fortified heights.

A Sofia despatch received here today said it was reported there that the Allies had occupied the town of Malcos, north of Port Kild Bahr, on the Gallipoli peninsula, and Bulair, north of the town of Gallipoli. The report was not credited here.

Petrograd, May 17—A great battle is developing near the fortress of Przemysl. It was semi-officially stated today that the enemy has appeared in large forces on both Russian flanks in the region extending from Jaroslau to Chyrof, a distance of thirty-five miles. The Russian centre is falling back upon Przemysl from the bend of the San to entrenchments previously prepared.

The Germans are attacking with great vigor north of Przemysl, but have been unable to make any impression on the Russians to the south. Northwest of the Chyrof-Przemysl railway the Austrians are on the offensive. The Russian offensive in southeastern Galicia, north of Kolomea, is reported to be progressing satisfactorily.

Washington, D. C., May 17—The American Government still waits without advice early today indicating the nature of Germany's reply to the Lusitania note. No word had come from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, and unofficial information was lacking. The State Department officials are confident, however, the ambassador will be heard from soon.

Meanwhile administration officials are reserving comment as to the probable attitude of the German Government, but in diplomatic circles speculation was rife.

New York, May 17—A mighty armada of battleships, destroyers, submarines and auxiliary craft, the nation's bulwarks in case of war, swung at anchor in the Hudson River today, groomed for review by the President of the United States. The most powerful array of fighting ships ever assembled in an American port, 64 in all, the fleet stretched for four miles in a double line of gray, but touched with gayer colors when pennants and ensigns streamed from fighting tops and masted in honor of the occasion.

Each battleship was in readiness to thunder out the presidential salute of 21 guns, when the navy yacht Mayflower, with the President on the bridge, passed them during the afternoon. Conveyed by the cruiser Baltimore the Mayflower, being the President from Washington, reached the harbor last night and after a short halt near Tompkinsville, steamed up the river to anchorage of West Forty-First street. It was after midnight when she arrived and the President and his party, expecting a long day of ceremonies, had retired for the night.

London, May 18, 2.12 a. m.—The British press representative in the Dardanelles telegraphing under date of May 10, sends description of the first stage of the operations of the allied troops against the Turks, which he says has now come to an end. He testifies to the splendid work already achieved by the Allies in successfully landing and establishing themselves in the face of tremendous opposition. They are now before Atchi Baba, about five miles up the Gallipoli Peninsula.

This is the first of the commanding positions on which the Turkish force can make a stand before we are able to move up the Gallipoli Peninsula and command

TRANSYLVANIA ARRIVED SAFELY AT GREENOCK

New York, May 17—The Anchor Liner Transylvania passed safely through the war zone and arrived at Greenock, England, at 3 o'clock this morning. London time, it was announced by Cunard Line officials here.

the northern shore of the Narrows," says the despatch.

"Behind this lie other equally formidable positions, which must be taken, hill by hill and trench by trench, before the army can open the gate for the fleet and enable it to pass through to Constantinople.

"There must be no false illusion as to the big task before the Allies. We are fighting a brave and tenacious enemy, who is most skillfully led, and the war here, as in France, is a question of how many men you can afford to lose to capture each trench and each kilometre of soil. Victory is only to be gained by more men and a continuous supply of ammunition.

"The positions already won prove that the Turk was justified in believing his positions were impregnable.

"The navy has achieved an equally fine organization for the landing of a continuous supply of men and munitions. Piers have been built out into deep water, so that the largest lighters can come alongside. Roads have been cut along the cliffs to increase the area of disembarkation and a hundred devices have been utilized to assist in efficiency, including lighting arrangements to permit landing in the night, as well as in the day. All night the southern end of the Gallipoli Peninsula, formerly deserted and barren, has the appearance of one of the world's greatest ports. There are masses of lights on shore, as though several towns have sprung up, while at sea a hundred great transports and many warships are packed outside the defiant Straits."

Berlin, via London, May 18, 2.03 a. m.—A wireless despatch from Constantinople says:

"The general staff of the Dardanelles reports that near Arburun on the 15th, three enemy battalions attacked our right wing several times. They were driven back into their main positions and lost some 1,500 men and much material.

"Three shots from our batteries hit British cruisers."

The Turkish trenches are filled with bodies."

London, May 13—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Northern France says the Princess Patricia's Regiment of Canada Infantry, backed by other British regiments, suffered terribly during the furious bombardment by the Germans of the British trenches west of Zonnebeke on Saturday. The bombardment was almost the heaviest of the war. The Germans had an overwhelming mastery of artillery. Many deeds of heroism are credited to a small number of Canadians, who stood back to back firing in both directions on the enveloping Germans. The trenches in which they were fighting, were soon knocked out of shape by the heavy shells but the Canadians continued fighting, their ranks being cut to pieces.

A scene from Sir Walter Scott's greatest story "A Woman Triumph" an adaptation from "The Heart of Midlothian" in four reels, showing at the Happy Hour Thursday night.

A committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is endeavoring to raise money to advertise Made-in-Canada goods. In theory the proposal is excellent but in practice it is really wise? Most Canadian manufacturers take a pride in their products, put their names on them and turn out something that is equal to and in not a few cases superior to anything of the kind produced in the world. On the other hand there are some Canadian manufacturers who unfortunately think their own interests are best served by making the cheapest and most inferior article they can force upon the buying public. They think a slightly better immediate profit is better than building up a reputation for high-grade goods. These experiences and the exposures in connection with inferior qualities supplied to fill war orders show that there are some Canadian manufacturers who ought to be behind the prison bars as the Premier suggests.

Even members of the committee recognize this weakness. Only the other day one of them placed an order amounting to several thousand dollars with a United States firm through the same products are made by another member of the association in a nearby town. The first manufacturer would much prefer to buy Canadian made but he knows from costly experience that his neighbor is too indifferent to take pains and turn out a satisfactory quality.

Petrograd, May 13—Reinforcements are being rushed to the support of the Russian army east of the San, according to a semi-official statement given out here today. Though the Slavs continue to fall back at some points, the main offensive of the Austro-Germans apparently has nearly spent itself in exhaustive attacks against the Russian lines. The idea that Przemyśl might again fall into the hands of the enemy was scouted by War Office officials.

Paris, May 13—Brilliant successes for the Allies in the great battle now being waged from Arras to the sea were claimed in despatches received here today and later confirmed by the War Office. In the woods east of Carency, French troops have captured additional trenches. Further gains, according to correspondents at the front, will force the Germans to abandon their positions entirely. North of Carency, Hill No. 125 has been taken up by the French after several days of desperate fighting.

Canadian manufacturers who produce an article of which they are proud, behind which they will stand, should let the public know of it. They should advertise it extensively over their own names and not pay and send sponsors for the firms who have no care for their own or our national reputation. On the other hand the newspapers should, as far as possible, refuse to insert advertising of any but satisfactorily made products and by their editorial policy make it unprofitable for the chronically disreputable manufacturers to stay in business.—Financial Post.

"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Tonoline Tablets, for building up of weight and lost nerve force. It acted more like a miracle than a medicine," said a well-known gentleman yesterday in speaking of the revelation that had taken place in his condition. I tried tonics, digestives, heavy eating, diets, milk, beer and almost everything else you could think of, but without result."

Any man or woman who is thin can recover normal weight by the best new treatment Tonoline Tablets. "I have been thin for years and began to think it was natural for me to be that way. Finally I read about the remarkable processor brought about by use of Tonoline Tablets, so I decided to try myself. Well, when I look at myself in the mirror now, I think it is somebody else. I have put on just forty pounds during the last forty days, and never felt stronger or more 'nervy' in my life."

Tonoline Tabs are a powerful inducer to nutrition, increases cell-growth, food, increases the number of blood-corpules and as a necessary result builds up muscles, and solid healthy flesh, and rounds out the figure. For women who can never appear stylish in anything they wear because of their thinness this remarkable treatment may prove a revelation. It is a beauty maker as well as a form builder. Tonoline Tabs cost $1 for a 50 days' treatment, at drugists, or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Something Original—that's the Cry of Every Buyer of Printing

If every print shop could or would work character into their product there wouldn't be such common place printing.

We'll be glad of an opportunity to prove to you that when your printing is placed with us, there will be character to it. Our new type faces will do that alone, but there will be more than up-to-date type faces. There will be care taken in the arrangement of the type—good ink will be used—the proper paper for the work will be selected, and printed in the largest and most modern country printing office in the Maritime Provinces.

Target Tips and Hunting Helps by Alfred P. Lane

A New Questions and Answers Department of Interest to Shooters

Readers are reminded that this column is open to questions which should be sent to me in care of the Sporting Editor, and to discussions by the readers on anything connected with hunting or target shooting.—A. P. L.

J. K. Topeka, Kansas.

1. Can you tell me how to keep my shotguns from pitting? After about two years use with nitro powder, the barrels begin to pit just in front of the shell chamber. I wipe my guns out with dry rags after a day's shooting and oil with nitro solvent or oil. Is there any oil that will positively prevent pitting? Would washing out gun with hot water be any advantage?

Ans. Your trouble is probably due indirectly to leading. When a shotgun is fired a certain amount of lead is left on the barrel which is rubbed off the shot. The powder fouling is underneath this coating, and after a series of shots have been fired, causes corrosion. Cleaning with rags and nitro solvent will not remove this leading, although some makers of nitro solvent oils claim that their product will. There is one practical way to remove leading and that is to use a brass cleaner of some kind, either the brass wire bristle brush or the one made of wire gauze. It is a good idea to clean the barrels with one of these cleaners every time it is used, and if you follow this procedure and your gun is from a reputable maker, it should last for a life time without showing signs of wear or pitting.

2. Aren't most shotguns chambered for 2 1/2 inch shells, and most shells excepting trap loads loaded in 2 1/2 inch shells? Wouldn't it be better to use 2 3/4 inch shells?

Ans. The difference in the length of 2 1/2 inch and 2 3/4 inch shells is so slight that there is no practical difference in the amount of wear on the barrel.

H. B., North Bay, Ont.

1. How many rounds in 20-30 and 30 W. S. will the Model '94 handle before becoming unsafe to use?

Ans. This is entirely a matter of the care received by the action. Any rifle action which is allowed to become full of grit or dirt and is operated under these conditions will naturally wear loose eventually, owing to the actual friction of the gun on the working surfaces.

2. Does the action become badly sprung after firing 2,000 rounds or so?

Ans. No.

3. Have you ever heard of this action giving way with the use of the cartridges it was designed to use?

Ans. No. American manufacturers do not make actions which would become unsafe in any such time as you give. All actions wear out eventually owing to the actual rubbing of surfaces upon each other as mentioned above, and therefore the care given the action to a great extent determines its life, but you will certainly know long before trouble could possibly develop that the action is worn out. R. N. B., Detroit, Mich. Being an interested reader of your columns, I noticed you informed "B" of Auburn, Me., that you could not locate the National Projectile Works, making a wire patched bullet. This Company was located in Grand Rapids, Mich., about seven years ago. About three years ago I received a notice from them that they had moved to Napa, Cal. I have used their cartridges in a 303 Savage and they were satisfactory for hunting, but expensive. This concern may, of course, by this time be out of business or possibly doing business under a different name.

This will answer "B's" question, and I wish to thank R. N. B. for sending in the information.

Incidentally, I hope that anyone noticing misstatements or errors in this column will write me as I am doing my best to have all information as accurate as possible. You will be doing me a great favor if you will let me know of any error.

C. R. T., West Frankfort, Ill. I wish to go duck hunting this Fall and have heard considerable about Reel Foot Lake, Tenn., as a duck country, but can learn nothing definite. Can you tell me anything of that country or give me the name of some one who can?

Ans. On Reel Foot Lake in October, the principal duck shooting is the summer or wood duck, blue and green wing teal; in November and December, principally mallard and black jack or blue hills—some few red head and canvas back. Mr. H. D. Gibbs, Chisla Hotel, Memphis, Tenn., can give you further information.

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. "UNDER WHICH FLAG?"

In a Stirring Editorial, the New York Herald Proclaims There Can be no Divided Allegiance—America Must Act

Under the caption, "In Memoriam," the New York Herald of a recent issue says:

"The country has counted its dead and calculated its loss. The roll of the slain is completed; every bell should toll today and every flag be at half mast for the innocent victims of German savagery. Those who have tears to shed should shed them now.

"The known victims of German blood madness and lust for slaughter number 764. Of these 129 are men, mostly in the prime of life, the very flower of American manhood. There are 113 women, cultivated, refined, happy wives, mothers and sisters. And there are 22 children, perhaps two score of these babes. And even with all of that the full story is not told, perhaps never will be told, because of the impossibility of identifying the nationality of many of the steerage passengers. Many of them were citizens of the United States.

"Oh, the pity of it! These neutral voyagers were on peaceful errands, enjoying the rights secured them by the Declaration of Independence—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Mothers with groups of little children were crossing to join husbands and fathers on the other side. Whole families were on board the Lusitania; merchants going abroad in the ordinary line of business; professional men following their callings; artisans and financiers, the wealthy, the well to do and the poor. The contingent furnished by this country in this great ship's country represented nearly every useful walk of life. It was typical of the best citizenship in all its varied phases. They were assured and children on the Lusitania. The citizens of German descent who repudiate that crime of the century is not a GERMAN-American at all. He is an American. The citizen of German descent who glories in his exploit is not an American—he is a GERMAN, and GERMAN he will remain. No person who condones the horror of Kinsale can claim the slightest connection with the American thought.

"So it is well, right now, to ask the question—'Under which flag?' This affair may well take us into war. There can be no divided allegiance. The naturalized citizen of German birth or parentage who sympathizes with the Kaiser is a traitor to the United States.

"Under which flag?" As to the canker of pro-German policy that everyone outside the United States knows has been eating into their vitals for a long time, the Herald says:

"If Dr. Bernhard Dernberg had one single human instinct he would put a padlock on his ever active mouth and retire to seclusion while the United States mourns over and buries its murdered dead.

"Behold the man who spends most of his time defending the annihilation of maritime and international law when it benefits Germany now in the face of the event invoking some other phase of international and maritime law as an excuse for colossal murder most foul! Behold him as the leader of those who further cheers and give toasts for the crews of the submarine which deliberately and premeditatedly committed a crime which has no parallel in history! And then say whether that they were safe; that they had a right to go; the high seas are free and no nation could say them nay. They all lie in the morgues on the Irish coast or at the bottom of the sea.

"Oh, the shame of it! To no country had they done any wrong. By no possibility could it be urged that it was to the interest of the nation of submarine piracy that they were enemies. By destroying them no military advantage could be gained. They were as much entitled to a safe conduct through the war zone by Germany as by Great Britain. They received it from neither, but from the former they received their death stroke.

"Oh, the cold villainy of it! Nothing in the code of law between nations justified the dastard blow. Their country had served notice on the world that American lives must be respected. But the nation that only invokes law when it suits its purpose decreed that they should go down to death.

"And now the reckoning." And having exhorted the president with the reiterated query, "What is President Wilson going to do about it?" the Herald goes on editorially, under the heading, "Under Which Flag?"

"The flag was suborned with the Lusitania. Henceforth there can be but one class of Americans—AMERICAN-Americans.

"The Herald believes that a very large percentage of naturalized citizens of German birth or descent refuse to sympathize with the crime against the country of their adoption. It believes that a comparatively small number are making the ribald and heartless noise of acclamation over the slaughter of men, women he is not black, soulless, inhuman as the manufactured man of Frankenstein, only built to destroy. Count von Bernstorff stands mute, with blanched face, but Dernberg goes on forever.

"The time has come to end this shameful international scandal and send this representative of the Kaiser out of the country as either a rabid lunatic or an offence to all humanity."

Paris, May 12—One hundred Americans of Paris have signed the following cablegram, which was forwarded to President Wilson:

"We the undersigned, having observed strict neutrality though living amid the horrors of war, now feel that, in justice to our conditions and in order to preserve our self-respect we must voice an indignant and energetic protest against the sinking of the Lusitania, an act of pre-emptive savagery and which places the responsible Government outside of civilized humanity."

New York, May 13—From the same German source which predicted the sinking of the Lusitania word has been sent out that, if German plans do not miscarry, the Anchor Line Transylvania, which left this port Friday afternoon with 876 passengers aboard will fall prey to a submarine. The Transylvania is chartered by the Cunard Line and destined for Liverpool and Glasgow. A large proportion of her cargo consists of contraband. Among the passengers are many Americans and a large number of Canadians and British reservists. There are also twenty-three Canadian nurses aboard bound for the field hospitals in the war zone.

LATEST GERMAN SUBMARINES

The comparative speeds of the submarines and surface boats has made it possible for man; merchantmen to escape. In many instances by zig-zagging and running at high speed was enabled to dodge the deadly torpedo. Every torpedo fired costs a large sum. Obviously, Germany could not afford to waste money. So, shortly after she started her submarine warfare, she restricted her use of torpedoes as much as possible. When ever feasible, her submarines would rise to the surface and halt the merchantmen by gun fire, board her, and blow her up with dynamite. This course was cheaper, surer, and no waste of expensive torpedoes. But, the submarines were only equipped with only very small calibre guns, not more than one and one quarter inch, with only a short range, and there was always some time required to get them into action. The merchantmen were continually becoming more and more alert and frequently escaped before the sub-marines could halt them with their small gun fire. To avoid this, and at the same time to avoid all dangers incurred in boarding operations, a new plan has been adopted. They no longer board and blow up a merchantman. They sink her by gun fire. This of course, requires a much more powerful gun, and greater speed of operating it.

Briefly the construction and arrangement is as follows: At a suitable point in the hull is arranged a hydraulic elevator on which is fixed a gun pedestal. On the pedestal is mounted a short powerful four inch gun with a recoil cylinder above for taking up the shock of discharge and using that energy to reload the gun. Arranged above the gun and cylinder like an umbrella, is a heavy plate of armor, completely protecting the entire gun. On the pedestal, at each side and close to the gun is a seat for an operator, who are also completely shielded by the armor plate. This armor plate, is really the hatch which seats on a rubber packing and closes and seals the hatch-way through which the gun rises. As the submarine approaches its prey and comes to the surface, the operators step to their seats, one of them wings a lever, and the elevator immediately hoists the pedestal, gun and shield. The operators then start firing to sink the merchantman. As she sinks, the operator reverses the lever and the pedestal, gun, and gun crew disappear to the hull the armor plate gun shield closing tightly as a hatch cover on the rubber packing of the hatch-way.

This latest development in armaments of submarines is the explanation of many of the more recent successes of the German submarines, and they say that every effort is being made by the German navy to make their submarines more and more deadly as the war goes on.

Rezistol is a powerful tonic nourishing food medicine, composed of valuable tonic stimulants obtained from vegetable drugs. Rezistol contains no narcotics or other dangerous drugs which merely deaden pain temporarily but give no permanent relief or cure the cause of disease. Rezistol is a powerful body builder and blood maker; it is the best remedy known to the medical profession to enrich thin, watery blood and supply new rich blood to the whole body.

It will be found a most valuable remedy in cases of over stimulation in which the excessive use of liquor causes depression, dullness of the faculties or intoxication; it counteracts the depressing effects and restores the system to its normal condition. Words of Cheer To a Volunteer

How a Word of Cheer Makes the Blood of Loyalty Burn in the Hearts of Canada's Sons

The following letter, received yesterday morning by Postmaster Troy, shows what a hearty handshake and a cheering word will do when given to our Canadian boys as they pass through on their way to the front to take their places with the other Allied armies on the field of battle. While there are many of us who must remain at home, our hearts are with those at the front, and our presence at the station to meet the boys as they pass through certainly helps to break the dull monotony of a long journey. A cheering word from a stranger is worth ten from a friend. The patriotic people of Newcastle will appreciate Private Haight's letter, and will continue to show their loyalty to Canada's brave sons. Following is the letter:

Sandling Camp,
Hythe, Kent,
England.
To the Citizens of Newcastle, N. B.
On behalf of the boys of the A. S. C. attached to the 4th Field Ambulance Corps, I wish to write and express to the citizens of Newcastle, our sincere appreciation and deep and lasting feeling of gratitude for the loyal and patriotic feeling displayed by you, upon our arrival in your city on our way to the front.

After having traveled the many weary miles of Quebec, it was a most welcome change to see the smiling faces and hear the patriotic little band, step out and so nobly succeed in filling our hearts with their own loyal spirit.

It has been imbued within us and we will go to the front ever happy in the thought that as well as serving King and Country we may also serve such loyal citizens as you have shown yourselves to be.

The hardships we may endure will be a pleasure when our minds go back to Newcastle, and may God spare us, to some day come back and pass through your loyal city and be filled again with your noble spirits for a more peaceful cause, the building of home in our great Dominion.

Very Respectfully,
PTE. INGERSOLL E. HAIGHT,
A. S. C.,
4th Field Ambulance.

Interests of U. S. and Allies Now In- dissolubly Linked

London, May 15—The Times in an editorial today regarding the American note to Germany says:

"The American note to Germany, both in substance and expression, recalls the best traditions of American diplomacy. Courteous and even considerate in form, it can leave Wilhelm-Strasse under no illusion as to the state of American feeling, or the determination of the United States Government. Nothing could be more vigorously or more persuasively expressed and not only the Allies, but the whole world of neutrals may well rejoice that the United States has at length spoken out so forcibly and to the point.

"The stand taken by the President to something more than a declaration of national policy. Nothing less than the conscience of humanity makes itself audible in its measured and inclusive sentences. Germany today finds herself clearly confronted with the demand to abandon her submarine warfare on shipping. With that demand we do not for a moment believe she will comply. We do not venture to predict the outcome of her dispute with the United States, but two things may safely be affirmed. One is that the dispute itself and the possibilities latent in it are matters of supreme importance to the United States, whose decisions may safely be entrusted; the other is that whatever may be the issue the moral interest of the United States and the Allies are henceforth indissolubly linked."

Mr. John Edmonds went to Fredericton on Monday, to join the 28th Battery.

Canadian List Has Now Grown to 4,751 Of This 678 Are Killed and 867 Missing--The Maritime Province List

Ottawa, May 17—The honor list now reaches the enormous total of 4,751 and the end of the casualties from the battle of Langemarck is not yet in sight. The total is made up as follows:
Wounded, 3,206; killed, 678, and missing, 867.
The Canadians saved the day in those fearful four days fighting, but it took a terrible toll. The week end casualty lists contained 634 more names, 131 killed, 251 wounded and 252 missing. Half the missing, or 127, were from the 22nd battalion raised in eastern Ontario. Thirty-three names of missing from the 3rd battalion, which contain Toronto units, were also reported. The gallant 74th, which lost its commander, Col. McHarg, has reported thirty-five missing.

This total of 4,751 composes the casualties from April 22, the day on which the big battle opened. However, it also contains the lists of the Princess Patricia's in the recent heavy fighting at Ypres and also names of some Canadian artillery men who have been engaged in the terrific artillery duels of the last two weeks.

German Dead Strew Ground For Miles Around Ypres

The Germans are Fighting Bitterly and Courageously But Every Day They See Their Chances of Success Grow
Slimmer, While Their Losses are Disheartening

London, May 15—A despatch to the London Times from Pas de Calais says:
The German offensive against Ypres has assumed a phase which may very properly be described as desperate. Countered in the great assault of Saturday last, the Germans have not ceased to hurl attack across the fields in front of the town. Each new attack seems more reckless than the predecessors.
On Tuesday the slaughter of Monday was repeated in almost every particular.
Several distinct attacks were made, each carried out by infantry advancing in close formation. Powerful artillery fire as before had been expended to prepare the ground.
In each case the result was exceedingly disastrous for the Ger-

Starvation or Merciless Torture
A choice between starvation or merciless torture is the dismal prospect before all victims of indigestion, for although they are in need of food to nourish the body, they are afraid to eat because of the long periods of pain and discomfort that follow even the lightest of meals.
The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion is to gain strength so that the stomach can extract nourishment from the food taken. Pain after eating is the way the stomach signifies its protest that it is too weak to do nature's work. To take purgatives is only to aggravate the trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new strength to weak stomachs because they enrich and purify the blood supply thus enabling the stomach to digest food naturally. Almost from the first the appetite revives; then food can be taken without pain and the burden of indigestion disappears. The following case proves the truth of these statements. Mr. W. H. Silver, a well known farmer living in the vicinity of Hemford, N. S., says: "For upwards of seven years I was tortured with indigestion; sometimes I was so bad that I would not taste a bit of hearty food, but would have to content myself with a bit of stale bread. At times I suffered excruciating pains in my stomach, and could hardly sleep at night. I tried various prescriptions but got no benefit from them and naturally I was in a very reduced state of health. I had come to believe that I was doomed for the balance of my life to this most constant torture, when I read of a case similar to my own, cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This gave me new courage and I decided to try them. To make a long story short, the use of the Pills for a couple of months completely cured me. This is some two years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble, and am able to eat as hearty a meal as anyone."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through your medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

People of Miramichi, Think The Matter Over

The Canadian Heroes

On that far-flung battle-field
Where they die but do not yield,
While the German guns and gases
on them play,
Our brave boys, their country's pride,
Bravely fought and greatly died,
Our brave Canadian heroes saved
the day.

Beating back the German host,
Counting not the fearful cost,
Ever foremost in the fercest of the fray,
On a foreign field they fell,
In a warfare worse than hell,
Our brave Canadian heroes saved
the day.

Dear Land of the Maple Leaf,
Crowned with glory and with grief,
For thy splendid sons so swiftly
swept away,
Lift thy lovely drooping head,
For thy great and gallant dead,
Thy brave Canadian heroes saved
the day.

London, May 18, 4.05 a. m.—A Reuters despatch from Rome says: "An imposing demonstration in favor of war was held here tonight (Monday). A procession, headed by the flags of Trent, Trieste, Istria and Dalmatia, marched to the capitol and provoked a tremendous outbreak of popular enthusiasm. The mayor of Rome, Prince Colonna, surrounded by city magnates, delivered a warlike speech."

King of Italy Calls Parliament Together to Calm Populace

Mob Smashing Windows of Parliament Building Were Only Kept From Palace by Troops

Rome, May 15.—To head off possible civil war, King Victor Emmanuel today signed a decree convoking the chamber of deputies early next week. The King acted on advice of leaders of both the warring interventionist and neutral factions. Serious rioting by mobs favoring war broke out at night today. And the King was told the situation was rapidly getting beyond control of the military. Parliament was not scheduled to meet until next Thursday, but because of the crisis precipitated by the unexpected resignation of the Salandra cabinet, the King, according to authentic reports, has determined to call the deputies together Monday or Tuesday. The decree has not yet been made public. Whole sections of Rome were under mob control today, the military and police apparently being unable to suppress the demonstrations. The entire city was seething with war excitement. Business was suspended, stores were closed, and despite the activity of cavalry patrols, crowds marched through the streets shouting "Down with Germany," "Down with the Kaiser," "Down with Franz Josef."

Germany Will Continue Her Acts of Murder

Official Declares Germany is Fighting for Her Existence, and Will Adopt any Means

Berlin, May 14.—"The Mauretania or any other British liner will be torpedoed, sunk, and meet the same fate as the Lusitania, if our submarines can reach them, and that they can has been demonstrated. We will continue to wage war against England with the same relentlessness and remorselessness that she is waging against us. "Nothing will deter us from that; nothing will cause us to deviate from that course, except England's own action." Thus declared a high German Government official today, when asked what the future submarine policy would be. "Germany unaffectionately regrets and sorrows over the loss of so many neutral lives on the Lusitania, but the responsibility rests wholly with the British. "Admiral Von Tirpitz told you in December that Germany did not want war to the knife, but England would have it. A nation that is fighting for its very existence against so relentless and remorseless a foe as Germany is fighting, also has a duty to perform to its own women and children and non-combatants, and that is to fight for them with every means at its command."

AUSTRIANS AND GERMANS ATTACKED AT GENOA

Genoa, May 15.—Italy war riots took place here today. Germans and Austrians, who were waiting for steamships to leave the country were attacked.

1,500 GERMANS SURRENDER FOR INTERNMENT

London, May 15.—Fifteen hundred Germans surrendered to police in West End London today for internment. Anti-German rioters wrecked several buildings at Bedford today.

BRITISH CRUISERS RENEW ACTIVITY OFF AMERICAN COAST

New York, May 15.—British cruisers displayed renewed activity off the American coast today when they halted and sent crews aboard two outboard British steamers. Hold-ups occurred off Jersey coast about five miles southeast of the Atlantic Highlands.

GERMANY RELIES ON AIR CRAFT AND SUBMARINES

The confidential reports received in Washington from American observers in Europe have satisfied some of the leading military authorities that Germany will rely to a great extent hereafter upon her submarines and air machines. These reports indicate that the German government is turning out submarines and air machines at a rate that never has been equaled. Army officers appear to be quite satisfied that the German aviators are preparing to attack the British navy with a fleet of several hundred air machines, in the hope that some of them may succeed in vitally damaging Great Britain's first line of defence.

Naval officers believe that Admiral von Tirpitz is preparing a similar attack upon the water. They admit that such attacks present tremendous difficulties, but they appear to be satisfied that the German admiral hopes to overcome all obstacles.

Week's War News

Grimsby, May 14.—The British trawler Cancer has been sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea and her crew taken prisoner.

Corts, May 14.—Five Italian transports, laden with troops, have left Brindisi for Albania, to put down the new insurrection reported to be led by the Turks. The insurgents, according to despatches received here today, are threatening Valona.

The Cunard Line announces that the only sailing date they have cancelled is that of the steamer Mauretania. This was cancelled, it is added, for the only reason that there was not a sufficient demand for passenger accommodations to warrant running her.

Durban, Natal, May 14.—In a night of rioting anti-German mobs wrecked or burned practically all the alien enemy shops and buildings in Durban, the damage being estimated at $1,250,000. There were at least 10,000 persons in the streets. The colonial forces and the policemen were powerless.

London, May 14.—"Owing to the reported presence of German submarines in the Mediterranean," says Reuters' Athens correspondent, "the British Legation has issued a notice through the local press offering a reward of $2,500 to anyone supplying information which will lead to their destruction."

Blythe, Erg., May 14.—A German submarine is reported to have been sunk in the North Sea. The captain of the steamer Collapsible on reaching port today stated that his vessel apparently had destroyed the submarine by running it down off the Northumberland coast.

Athens, May 14.—The bombardment of the Dardanelles forts by the Allied fleets continued with the greatest violence all day Thursday, according to private advices received here. The Turks are resisting with great stubbornness the attempt of the Allied expeditionary forces to advance.

Petrograd, May 14.—General Mazzenz's offensive movement towards Przemysl has now been almost completely halted, according to despatches to the war office today. Russian reinforcements drove Mackenz's troops from the railway at the bend of the river Sen, recapturing some cars laden with munitions.

Paris, May 14.—A fleet of British and French aeroplanes has delivered another attack upon the German positions along the Belgian coast, destroying a number of bridges. The aviators were under special orders to find and bombard the big German guns which have been bombarding Dunkirk, at a distance of 22 miles. A despatch to Le Figaro says that the French captured 6,000 Germans in the battle north of Arras.

St. Thomas, Ont., May 14.—Private George B. Johnson, of the First Battalion, who was wounded at Langemark, having his shoulder shattered while helping a comrade, and who is now in University College Hospital at London, in a letter to his parents says he saw Germans bayonet the Canadian wounded on the battlefield, but adds that the Germans themselves ran when it looked as if they would get a taste of the bayonet. Private Johnson lost everything in the battle, even to his shoes and hat, but managed to bring a Prussian helmet, which he is sending home.

London, May 15.—Cunard Line officials said today that they would have plenty of witnesses before the Official Board of Inquiry to disprove the German claims that only one torpedo struck the Lusitania, and that the explosion of a cargo of ammunition was responsible for the heavy loss of life. Fifty survivors of the Lusitania already have volunteered to testify at the inquiry, twenty of them being Americans. The board will be in session at least two weeks, starting next week.

THE LUSITANIA

The Germans have murdered another hero. Near the coast of old Kinsale. From the homes of the hapless people lost. Goes forth a mighty wail: O when shall this wretched warfare cease? Must our loved ones, slaughtered, lie? When shall we be blessed by the beams of Peace? We cry to Thee, God on high? Avenge this cruel and cowardly deed And put those dark demons down, By whom the hearts of our millions bleed. While we wear the martyr's crown. Arise in your might, O men of the world. For Liberty, Love and Life. Let these despots down from the heights be hurled And end this fearful strife. M. WHELAN, Renous River, N. B., Can. May, 1915.

Economies in the Construction of Streets

Street planning bears a vital relationship to a city's tax rate. Several European cities have demonstrated the truth of this axiom. In Canada, however, comparative little attention is given to it. As a result there are many streets in our cities and towns which have roadways either too wide, or of too expensive a construction for the traffic they have to carry. For such errors the ratepayer must foot the bill in increased rents and taxes.

Inexpensive Roadway on Residential Street.

Nature of Traffic Important It is first of all, important for a city to study the character of the traffic that its several streets will have to bear. Thus, there are many streets which it is obvious will never be required for heavy or general traffic and where the bulk of the traffic will consist of nothing more than delivery wagons. In such cases it is quite unnecessarily expensive to construct wide paved roadways. The roadway in such cases should be, say, twenty feet wide with grassy boulevards, planted with shrubs and trees.

Building for Future Growth In cases where the thoroughfare seems likely to become in time a leading street, the roadway should be constructed so that an extension of its width can be accomplished without any great increase in the cost.

There is no reason why we should not have our towns and cities beautiful and picturesque. It can be done economically by adopting wise and carefully planned methods of road construction. The authorities of many cities and towns in Canada have yet to realize that wide streets should be wide—not less than 66 feet—yet it is not essential that they should. If planned or paved alike. The important factor in deciding such points is the amount and character of the traffic which passes along, or will in future pass along, any given streets. The illustrations above indicate the advantage of wide boulevards and comparatively narrow roadways, where the street traffic is light. These typical English suburban

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913. "I can highly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking 'Fruit-a-tives' for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking 'Fruit-a-tives' after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case."

Mrs. W. N. KELLY "Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Johannesburg, May 13—There have been a series of violent anti-German demonstrations in Johannesburg which culminated yesterday in the wrecking of German and Austria establishments. The police intervened to quell the disturbance, but they were virtually powerless. Altogether over fifty buildings have been wholly or partly wrecked and their contents either burned or reduced to matchwood. The establishments cleaned out include ten large warehouses, ten saloons, hotels and over twenty shops.

ON PRINTING

FINE PRINTING IS AN ART

Do you know good printing? Do you like good printing? Do you know that it always pays to have the BETTER kind?

Perhaps you have been used to the one class of printing and know no other.

If this is so, it is time for you to have a look around and investigate and see what's what.

Do you know you do not have to go any farther away than Newcastle to obtain the BETTER class of printing.

Perhaps you have not given it a thought, but a great deal depends on the stock used in order to get a BETTER job. Investigate this.

Last, but not the least, do you know that The Advocate Job Department turns out only this BETTER class of work. If you will read on a little further, we will tell you how and why.

1st—We cater to that class of people who use only the best stock, and who know what BETTER printing is.

2nd—In order to give these customers the class of work they want, we have to keep in stock only the best grades of material. We do not handle cheap lines.

3rd—In order, again, to be able to turn out that BETTER class of printing, we employ only experienced and competent printers, who keep abreast of the times and watch the styles.

4th—What is as important as the above is equipment. If The Advocate Job Department was not fitted out as it is, with the most modern machinery and the very latest in type faces, it could not handle the fast growing trade, that has developed in the past year, of turning out that BETTER class of printing. Only the best inks are used, because this is necessary when high grade stock is used.

Now, Mr. Business Man, if you will read the above over carefully, see how your supply stands, then get in touch with this office, we feel sure you will become a customer. Give up that old-fashioned notion that first class printing comes only from the large city printing offices. As a matter of fact, the reverse is the case, and prices are invariably lower.

REMEMBER THAT WE DO ALL KINDS OF PRINTING

For commercial use, we have superior grades of Letter, Note and Bill Head Stock, at prices and quality to suit any business and any purse. Our prices range from $2.50 to $4.00 per thousand for Letter Heads, and from $2.50 to $3.25 per thousand for Envelopes. Our Envelopes are the same material as our papers, and therefore match. We are always pleased to submit samples of stock, and prices, on application.

More Business IS WHAT WE WANT

You want the work—we want to do it for you. We have just the grade of paper you want, so why not let us get together in a co-operative way and make a strong pull for increased business—more business than usual.

FEDORA

BY VICTORIEN SARDOU

SYNOPSIS

It will be remembered that Count Vladimir Boroff was killed in a duel in the park, and that his fiancée, Princess Fedora Romanoff, working in secret with the murdered man's father, General Boroff, believing the murderer to have gone to Paris, journeys there. There she meets the Countess Olga, and they become friends. She also meets with one Boris Ipanoff, with whom the Countess Olga is in love. Ipanoff falls in love with the Princess Fedora, and one day while he was paying her a visit, he confessed that he killed Count Vladimir, whereupon the Princess Fedora, with a horrible fear, ran from the room to her chamber, where she immediately sent a message to General Boroff, informing him that Boris Ipanoff was the murderer of his son. Nicholas Lasinsky, who was also desperately in love with Fedora, and knowing that Ipanoff, who was admired by the Countess Olga, was receiving attention from Fedora, was aroused to such a pitch of jealousy, believing that by causing friction between the Countess Olga and Fedora, he would be able to draw Ipanoff away from Fedora, he tries to arouse a feeling of jealousy in the heart of the Countess. He is not taken very seriously by the Countess, however, who seems to have deflected his purpose.

Olga gave him a quick side glance, but did not ask him to whom he referred. One of the men did.

"Who is the lucky man?"

"It would not be fair to tell, but I think it will be a surprise to every one when it is known."

The man laughed, but did not press him. He had not batted his eyes, and did not expect them to bite it; but he watched the countess, and saw her glance again at him. She asked him no questions, and presently gathered up the reins as if to drive on.

The gentlemen took the hint, and lifted their hats, Lasinsky with them. She drove on a few steps, muttering under her breath: "The little scamp! he wants me to question him. Well, for once I will please him; for I am interested."

She drew up suddenly, and turned her head, calling:

"Lasinsky!"

He was by her side in two leaps.

"Would you not like to take a little ride this fine afternoon?"

"Charmed!"

Which was quite true, for he had begun to fancy that he had made no impression on her, and her invitation was like an elixir to him. It flattered his adroitness, and it proved that he had made no mistake in his estimate of Olga's interest in the affairs of Ipanoff and Fedora.

He had had some experience with women, and fancied he knew them pretty well. It was almost a maxim with him that when one woman praised another there was sure to be war between them. Every man to his experience.

He stepped into the phaeton. The gentlemen passed them as the carriage stood waiting, and said:

"Lucky dog!"

"I am not so sure of that," retorted Olga; "the poor fellow's reputation will be endangered by being seen with me."

"Never mind," said Lasinsky, readily, "what is lost by me will be gained by you."

"You are a witty fellow," said Olga, laughing with the others. "If you only were not so bitter with it."

"I am not bitter, but one must be constantly on guard with you, and the thrust must follow the blow or it will be lost. I do not mind a passage at arms, but I should not like to be a mere target for any one's wit. If I did not meet your thrusts, how long do you suppose it would be before all the numskulls of your salon would be trying to make a butt of me?"

"Oh, you take it too seriously. You are so different from Ipanoff in that respect. He cares for nothing. I have seen your sharp witticisms fall blunted before that superb calm of his."

"Aha!" thought Lasinsky, exultantly, "you are so eager that you begin it."

Aloud he said with an appearance of heat:

"Superb calm! Superb nonsense! Can you not see that that is all assumed to hide the passion that rages underneath?"

"Come, Lasinsky, you let your dislike of the man mislead you."

"And is it dislike that misleads you?" he demanded, quickly.

Her face flushed, but she did not answer for a moment. When she did speak it was to change the topic.

"What is your grievance against the Princess Fedora?"

"I have none. I admire her too much."

"But when one insinuates anything, no matter what, it is an indication of ill-will."

"Not in my case. Besides you are wrong. I insinuated nothing. I made a statement of fact."

"Bah! You said some one had made an impression on the princess, leading us to suppose that it was some one we all knew. And yet that is impossible. She knows no one well enough for that."

"But you are mistaken. However, I may be wrong, too. I said the man had made an impression; perhaps I should have said that she had made an impression."

"Oh, as to that, I will agree with you at once. No man could see her and not be impressed."

"Nevertheless, I had grounds for my original statement. What would you say if I were to tell you that a man she had met at your salon for the first time had spent yesterday afternoon with her?"

"I should say he was a happy man. I would have liked to do that myself."

"And you asked her if you might not?"

"How do you know that?"

"I heard you, and she said she was engaged. One of the gentlemen in your salon that night went to her palace, and spent the afternoon with her."

"Some one has been playing upon your credulity. Confess that you are madly jealous."

"I am madly jealous, if you will. Yes, I am jealous; but I know this as I say, for I saw him go into the palace, and I saw him come out again."

"Played the spy," she said, bluntly.

He flushed, and cast an evil look at her.

"Call it that if you choose. I saw what I say. But this afternoon I was not playing the spy, and I saw him come out of the palace again. Is there nothing in that? A man meets her for the first time at your salon night before last; the next afternoon he spends at her house, and the next."

"There may have been a special reason," said Olga.

"I think there was," answered he, dryly.

"Love is not the only motive for meeting."

"You said yourself that no man could look unmoved on the Princess Fedora. I know this man did not, in spite of an assumption of cynicism and superiority."

"Whoever this man is, Lasinsky, you hate him."

"He is in my way. I hate any obstacle."

"Well, I am sorry if you really care for the princess," said the countess, as if to dismiss the subject.

"Yes, I do care for her."

"Or her money."

"I will not deny that. But you are treating me unfairly."

"I do not understand."

"Yes, you do. Why did you ask me to drive with you?"

"It is such a fine afternoon, and you are so witty and amusing."

"And I knew something you wanted to know. Now I have as good as told you, and you think that is all. Why not play fair?"

"To you everything is a game."

"He winced at the thrust."

"Why not. How is it with you? Have you not played your game and won high stakes? Why should I do the same? Come, countess, if you will not be frank, I will."

"As you please, but remember I do not urge you or invite you to."

"Is not Ipanoff of more than passing interest to you?"

The countess flushed and flashed angry glances at him.

"Admitted," she answered, curtly. "Ipanoff is the man I have spoken of."

The countess shut her teeth firmly together, and looked at her ponies for several seconds without speaking. Then she drew a hard breath, and turned a white face to Lasinsky.

"Are you telling me the truth?"

A gleam of gratified malice lighted his eye.

"Absolutely the truth. You must have been blind not to have noticed them at the piano. The appointment must have been made then. At any rate he was with her yesterday and today."

"Well?"

"You will not give me a word of confidence? Never mind! I will speak plainly to you, if you will permit."

"I permit."

"I will get out what I have to say carefully. I want the Princess Fedora—herself as well as her money. You see, I am frank, brutally frank you would say. If there were some woman who wanted Boris Ipanoff, his name, money, or self—the mistress of the grand duke grew white at the implication conveyed in the idea that she wished the cloak of some man's name—and who would aid me to separate the two, I would be glad."

The Countess Olga flicked her ponies with the whip for some time before answering. Then she spoke with difficulty.

"What would you do?"

"Anything," he said, savagely. "Have you any plan at all?"

"Nothing definite."

"Shall we meet at the Princess Fedora's on Thursday?"

"I shall not fail to be there."

"What will you do in the meantime?"

"Whatever I can."

"No one knows what may happen," said Olga, with a singular expression. "Perhaps it would be better if we were not seen together too long."

"You are right. If you will draw up I will get out, and walk back."

She did so at once, and when she had alighted, she laid the whip over the backs of the already fretted ponies, and was whirled out of sight.

Lasinsky watched her, and muttered:

"She is in a mood to do the princess a mortal mischief now. Slippery little serpent!"

He sauntered back along the Bois. On the Bois de Boulogne there are many cafes, as there are elsewhere in Paris, but Lasinsky thinking how wicked Olga had looked as she drove off, passed one and another of the cafes, and went into one at last simply because he happened to think that a glass of absinthe would be soothing.

That was the cafe Gretch sat in very stupid by this time, but looking very dignified, indeed, and very erect. Lasinsky saw him, and laughed as he recalled the Russian oath out of the French-looking individual.

He looked Gretch over as a man will look over another man who has amused him, and his eye fell on a piece of paper lying on the floor at Gretch's feet. Gretch presently arose with the phenomenal erectness of a Russian who is drunk on French brandy, and went out of the cafe.

Lasinsky took the table he had vacated, and let his foot cover the slip of paper. A little later he dropped his handkerchief, and when he had picked it up the paper was no longer under his foot. It was in his pocket with his handkerchief.

The thing had been skillfully done, but it was in such things that Lasinsky excelled. It was occasionally whispered even that he was too expert at sleight-of-hand.

However, the paper was in his pocket, and presently was withdrawn leisurely, as if it had reposed there for a week. He smoothed it out carefully, and then read what was written on it. It was very unlikely that anybody was watching him, but he was naturally cautious.

If anybody had been watching, however, his precautions would have been vain, for no sooner had he read the line written by Fedora than his countenance expressed strange emotions.

"General Boroff," he muttered. "Minister of Police! Then she is an agent, and Ipanoff is her game. I might have spared myself the humiliation of that conversation with Olga."

He finished his absinthe thoughtfully, and went straightway to a telegraph agency.

If Marka had not laughed at Gretch, if Gretch had not sworn that Russian oath, or if—well, say it was chance that finally sent the telegram to General Boroff.

CHAPTER XV

Loris Ipanoff stood alone in Fedora's boudoir. The woman with whom he was so strangely, so madly, in love had but just accepted his love, and then had fled from him.

"Brute, idiot, that I am!" he groaned. "I let her go with the thought that I had murdered the man. She is soaked, appalled, I must see her again. I will not go without. She will hear me."

He paced the floor thinking she might return of her own volition after a while, but as she did not come, and as he could not bear the thought any longer that she was keeping from him in a sort of horror, he rang the bell. Marka, having just dismissed Gretch, answered it.

"I must see the princess for one moment."

Marka stared at his distressed face, and pitied him. She ran to her mistress.

"The Count Ipanoff says he must see you, madam."

The princess was sitting in a chair, with her cheek resting on her hand. She looked up with a haggard face.

"Tell him to go. I will not see him—not today. Tell him I am sick—anything. But he must go, go!"

Marka had never seen her mistress like that. She said nothing more, but went quickly to Loris.

"She is too ill to see you. You must go without."

"My God! and it is I who made her ill. My girl, if you could persuade her to listen to one word from me!"

"I will try."

Marka shook her head sympathetically, for such distress as his was rare.

"It would be better not. Come tomorrow. I know my mistress."

"In the morning?"

Marka stared at him.

"The princess never receives in the morning."

"True," he tried to smile as if he had forgotten himself. "Then in the afternoon?"

"Yes, come then."

Marka said this thinking that a" her mistress had received him on two consecutive afternoons it was quite likely she would do so on the third.

Loris left the palace full of his grief. He forgot her strange manner. He remembered her only as she had been on the previous day, and it was so natural that one such as she then should be shocked at his blunt, his brutal announcement that he had killed Vladimir Boroff.

She might even have known the man. Yes, he could indistinctly recall an intonation which seemed to indicate that she was familiar with the circumstances of his death. The journals of the day had given it out that Vladimir had been found murdered.

That was it. He had said, "I killed Vladimir Boroff," and she had thought of the announcement that Vladimir had been murdered. As if he had not had a fair chance for his life.

Oh, God, could he wait until the morning? A whole day! And what should he do during all those long hours? Fedora believed—how could she help it after his statement?—that he was a murderer.

Great Heaven! would her love die of horror at the thought of it? Could she forget that she had loved him? A murderer! and she innocent, so child-like! If she had only given him a chance to explain. Ah, what else could he expect? It was as if he had said, "I am a murderer."

And there she was sick with the horror of it and all he could do was wait, wait, wait. And when he had waited what would be in store for him? He knew full well that she could not love him as he loved her. That would be impossible. Ah, if she had said to him, "I have left Russia because I have killed," how he would have said, "It does not matter, I love you."

Yes, that was the way he loved her. Nothing could kill such a love as his, but with her it must be different. She was young and innocent. Her experience had been bad, but that was all. Perhaps she could not bear the thought of him as a murderer. It must so shock her.

He knew he showed his disturbance in his face, his mien, and so he went straight to his apartments and shut himself in, pacing the rooms in a sort of frenzy, and experiencing such an agony of mind as only a really strong man can experience.

"Tomorrow! He could not wait until tomorrow. He would go again that night, and entreat her to listen to him. He would write, No, he could not write it as he could say it. She would see him, surely she would see him."

Then he paced the floor again, and kept his eyes on the dragging hands of his clock. Food he did not think of. He could not have eaten it. He only thought of the time when he might go to her. And that time came at last, and, coming, found him as haggard as if he had had a week's illness.

If he looked in the mirror he did not notice how he looked. A man does not at such a time. He put on his hat and coat mechanically, and went out.

As he walked along—he felt that he could not bear the inaction of a carriage ride—he tried to feel hopeful, but constantly the thought would recur that she might have been shocked out of her love—her love not being as mad, as passionate as his.

When he reached the palace he did not ask for the mistress, but for the maid. He felt instinctively that she was compassionate. Marka came to him.

"Well, will she not see me now?"

Marka shook her head.

"She has not moved from her chair since you left. What did you do? What did you say?"

Ipanoff took her hand. Marka did not snatch it away, for she knew he was unconscious of his act.

"My girl, do you love your mistress?"

"No one loves her better," answered Marka.

"Yes," said Ipanoff. "I love her better. I love her so madly that I will discover that tomorrow."

So the next afternoon she sent around to inquire if the princess was any better, and the answer came back that she was not, and that she begged to say that she would not receive on Thursday, and that she would send word to the countess when she was well enough to see her.

tion of the man, that was indicated more in what he repressed than in what he said. This was love, and Marka was a woman.

"I will go to her, sir, and I will do all I can," she said.

Fedora was, indeed, sitting as he had when Loris left the palace. She did not look up when Marka entered. Marka had been to her many times before to urge her to eat, to see if she wished for anything, and she had not moved.

"Madam," said Marka, persuasively, "the Count Ipanoff has come to beg that you will allow him a word."

"Tell him that I cannot see him."

"Pardon, madam, but he is beside himself with grief."

"Tell him that I cannot see him," said Fedora, a second time, only now she looked up, and Marka shuddered, and did not dare to urge her further. Such a look of mingled agony and savage determination she had never seen on any face.

She returned to Loris, feeling in her heart that the shadow of a tragedy was brooding over her house.

"She will not see you. She says she cannot."

"Is she ill?"

"I do not know," half sobbed Marka. "She sits in her chair, and suffers. You can see it in her face."

"Let me go to her," articulated Loris, pushing past Marka. "She must listen to me. She, too, is suffering. Then she loves me, and she will listen."

Marka caught him by the arm, and clung to him.

"Do not go to her now. You do not know her. I do. She will not listen to you, and she will say some cruel things. Give her time. It is the only thing to do."

"Do you think so?" he said, and his arms dropped helplessly by his sides.

"I know it. Come again tomorrow. Come in the morning. She need not know. I will see you, and tell you how she is."

"Good girl! What is your name?"

"Marka," she sobbed, utterly unnerved by the spectacle of so much suffering so nobly borne.

"There is a bond between us, Marka. We love the same woman."

"Oh, sir, I am sure she cannot remain as she is. We must hope for a softer mood."

"It is my own fault, Marka. Do not blame her. But I can explain it away if she will let me—if she will let me. Until tomorrow morning?"

"Not too early, sir."

He went away to live how he could through the intervening time. How it did pass he could not have told, but it did go by, and morning came. There was but one morning for him, and that was the time when he could go again to get word of Fedora.

He went, and Marka, who had been watching for him, met him outside of the palace.

"She went to bed, and slept last night. This morning she is sitting in her boudoir with a book, but she is not reading, only pretending to. She never turns the leaves."

"My God! Do you think she will see me this afternoon?"

"You can try."

He went away. In the afternoon he returned, and was met at the door by Marka, who told him she had had orders not even to admit him. He reeled and caught at the door-post.

"What did she say?" he demanded, hoarsely.

"If the Count Ipanoff comes again, he is not to be admitted."

He put his hand to his head, and tried to collect his senses.

"Well, I will go. It cannot always be so. I do not understand it now. I will wait. She will receive tomorrow night?"

"No. Those who came are to be sent away with the words that the princess is ill, and she is ill."

"You will not desert me, Marka?"

"Every day I will meet you near the corner there, and I will tell you about her. At midday will be the best time."

After that he no longer attempted to make his way to Fedora, but haunted the corner, where the faithful girl went regularly to give him a report of her mistress.

GIVES SOUND ADVICE ON PRICE QUESTION

Manufacturers' Organ Gives Warning—No Price Increases Except For Good Reason

"Industrial Canada," the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, recently contained a strong editorial on the increase of manufacturers' prices, which has come in certain industries as a result of the war revenue customs duties.

The editorial is in part as follows: If the manufacturers of Canada make a general advance in the prices of their goods with the deliberate intention to absorb the whole of the recent 7 1/2 per cent. tariff increase, they will formulate a policy which will react disastrously upon themselves.

Such a course is certain to arouse hostility among these consumers who were of the opinion that the tariff was too high before the increase was made; and it will chill the warmth with which the remaining consumers have supported the policy of protection.

Raising prices up to the new limit will operate directly against the "Made-in-Canada" campaign. The 7 1/2 per cent. tariff increase gives the Canadian manufacturer an advantage over foreign competition. If he raises the price of his article 7 1/2 per cent. he immediately loses that advantage. Consequently, the "Made-in-Canada" article which might be sold, is in the same danger of being replaced by the foreign article as it was in before the tariff increase was made.

Creates Confidence

Now is the time, under the shelter of a slightly increased protection, to encourage the habit of using Canadian goods in preference to foreign goods. Raising prices also tends to diminish output. The buying power of Canadians at present is restricted and every addition to the selling prices of goods makes it more difficult for consumers to buy them. On the contrary, lower prices will allow a greater volume of sales, will diminish the consumer's hardship, will give more employment to workers and will tighten the grip of Canadian manufacturers upon their home market.

If the manufacturers will concentrate upon the problem of keeping the prices as nearly as possible at the old level they will create a permanent asset in the gratitude of hard-pressed consumers.

Consumers, however, must not hastily conclude that there will be no increase in the prices of manufactured goods. While any general advance, aiming at the unjustifiable absorption of the 7 1/2 per cent. tariff increase cannot be too strongly opposed, it is absurd to argue that no prices should be advanced. Each article must be separated from any enveloping general policy and dealt with on its own merits. What are the items entering into its cost of production? Have they been increased? If they have, it is only fair that the price of the article should be increased. If they are not then the price of the article should stand.

Influence of War

There is, in some quarters, a most unfair attempt being made to lay on the recent tariff measures the entire blame for increased prices in spite of the fact that in countries where no tariff increases have been made, prices are rising. According to the "New York Annalist," the average wholesale price of twenty-five food commodities, representing a theoretical family's food budget, which was 139 in 1913, 146 in 1914, now fluctuates around 154.

Scarcity, interruption to communications, shrinkage in production, and other allies of war are sending prices up all over the world. War always increases the cost of living. It would be strange if Canada should escape the general law. We cannot have it both ways. We cannot profit by war's high prices for what we have to sell and avoid war's high prices for what we have to buy.

A man out of a job, or only partially employed, is a poor customer. You much prefer, don't you, to deal with customers whom you know are earning good wages in thriving local industries? Their credit is good—they pay their bills.

CHAPTER XVI

The Countess Olga drove her ponies as the man, sitting upright on his seat behind, had never seen her drive them before. It seemed to be a certain sort of relief to her, for after a time her face, which had shown signs of disturbance, resumed its repose.

Then she turned about, and drove to the palace of the Princess Fedora. In response to the card sent in, Marka came out saying the princess begged to be excused, inasmuch as she was feeling too ill to receive the countess.

"Is she very ill?" demanded the countess.

"We hope it is only a bad headache," said Marka.

"Ah," said the countess, and drove off.

"She is ashamed to see me," said the countess to herself as she drove home; "but she may be ill. I will discover that tomorrow."

So the next afternoon she sent around to inquire if the princess was any better, and the answer came back that she was not, and that she begged to say that she would not receive on Thursday, and that she would send word to the countess when she was well enough to see her.

GERMANS WILL BOMBARD LONDON WITH GAS BOMBS

Geneva, May 17—London is to be bombarded from the air with poisonous gas bombs similar to those used by the Germans at Ypres, according to word brought here today from the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshaven. A smoke producing bomb, capable of producing dense clouds that will hide the raiding Zeppelin from sight is also reported to be in process of manufacture. The twelfth Zeppelin completed at Friedrichshaven since the war began manoeuvred over Lake Constance all day Sunday in trial trips. Swiss observers said it was much faster than all its predecessors. It is reported here that five more of the same type are being built for the expected attack upon London.
