HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

Committee on Indemnity Bill.

Mr. Norman in the chair.

Mr. Kent—Before the vote for the Constabulary passed he would like to make a few observations. He did not object to the vote, recognizing as he did the great services which that efficient body of men rendered to the colony. Certain services were lately rendered by a number of the force to some of his (Mr. K's) constituents, and could not permit the opportunity to pass without expressing his appreciation of the prompt and efficient manner in which those services had been rendered. When the news arrived here that certain men of this district had been carried off on the ice, and it was known that assistance was required to save their lives, the Premier, thinking of nothing but the safety of the lives of those unfortunate men, immediately despatched a steamer with some Members of the Constabulary to their assistance. There was no question as to who the men were or any consideration taken as to the cost. Life was at stake and at any cost it must be saved. He (Mr. K), as one of the members for St. John's East, and on behalf of the people of that district, desire to express his thanks to the hon. Premier and also to the members of the Constabulary for their praiseworthy conduct on that trying occasion. To the force who is gallantly volunteered on that occasion, he thought something more substantial than mere praise should be accorded the community. Their services were offered and rendered with true devotion to the cause of humanity.

Mr. O'Mara—it afforded him much pleasure to endorse the views and expressions of his learned and hon. colleague Mr. Kent. He entirely concurred with the hon. member that the thanks of the district were due to the hon. Premier for the prompt manner in which he acted upon the first report that certain men of this district were driven off on the ice. He to him in immediately giving the best assistance that could be procured, regard less of the expense. As Mr. Kent forcibly put it, the hon. Premier knew that life was at stake and only thought of the best means of saving it. To Sergeant Lacy and the other members of the Constabulary, too great praise cannot be given. It was certainly not a part of their usual duty, and was performed at the risk of their own lives. They thought only of the necessity of saving the fellow creatures, and they gallantly volunteered for the perilous service. He hoped that some more substantial recognition of their heroic and noble words would follow their conduct.

Mr. Parsons heartily concurred in the expressions of his hon. colleagues Mr. Kent and Mr. O'Mara, and hoped Government would give the force some reward for their gallantry. Such heroic conduct should be encouraged.

Hon. the Premier could not at this opportunity pass without thanking hon. members for St. John's East for the very flattering manner in which they referred to the conduct of the Government on the occasion referred to. He considered, however, that the Government only did its duty and are amply paid by the remuneration which they were to receive. He concurred with the hon. members that too much praise could not be given to those members of the Force who gallantly rendered their services, particularly Sergeant Lacey, who in the performance of his self imposed task, underwent great anxiety and trouble. Captain Cross and Green also were very anxious to do, and did all they could to forward the expedition upon which they and the Constabulary embarked. All those engaged are deserving of the thanks of this House for the manner in which they performed their works. He hoped they would not go unrewarded by something more substantial than gratitude for saving their fellow creatures from a watery grave.

Mr. Parsons—The hon. Receiver General wanted to pass this vote through without any comment. Now here was a vote for which the Government ought to be ashamed. A sum is here paid the Receiver General to defray his expenses in London last summer and the vote to hon. A. Shea for the Premier's passage money, amounting in all to $870. When is this going to stop? Then we have a vote for dieting the Governor, the Private Secretary and the Receiver General on board the Druid during a cruise on the coast last summer. It was surprising how lost to all sense of shame these officials become when they are obtaining large salaries of from £600 to £700, a year. These gentlemen should at least diet themselves when they go on pleasure trips with the Governor and his Secretary and not take it out of the hard earnings of the people. Now the people can understand where the taxes go to—how they can comprehend the necessity for the 15 per cent. It is a shame that a Government should be permitted to grow so shameless in the insolence of office as to place before this legislature for its sanction to such votes as those to Mr. Whiteway's expenses for a summer tour to Britain and the dieting of the Governor, his Secretary and Mr. Rogers on board the Druid.

Hon. Receiver General regretted that the time of the House should have been thrown away upon this as upon former occasions, by the unjustifiable conduct of the hon. member for St. John's East. The House has been treated time after time to the same dish, until its patience is really exhausted. What does it all amount to? Simply speaking to say nothing. He should be pleased to hear fair criticism by hon. members upon the acts of the Government. The representatives of the metropolis should be a man of power, influence and of high intelligence, and certainly above indulging in any irregular and unparliamentary conduct, such as the hon. member has thought fit to inflict upon the House upon so many occasions during the present session. He regretted it for the hon. member's own sake. With reference to the amount before the chair paid on account of his Excellency the Governor, and those accompanying him to the Labrador last summer, he had only to say in explanation that in the month of July last an important letter was received by the Governor, stating that unless help was immediately extended to the settlers upon portions of the Labrador coast, they would inevitably starve. The same night upon which they they departed had failed, under these circumstances there was no alternative, but to reach the people to relieve them. Captain Kennedy of Her Majesty's ship Druid kindly placed his ship at the disposal of His Excellency for the purpose. His Excellency invited a member of the Executive to go with him and being the only one at the time who could conveniently attend, he (hon. R. C.) went. When they went down to the settlements on the Labrador coast they found the people there in a starving condition, and had not provision been immediately made, complete starvation must have followed. It was a pitiable and miserable sight. They visited six or seven settlements, and relieved the people and they were very grateful for it. This amount set down was a charge made by the Admiralty and paid them. There was no charge for the use of the ship. He would here take the advantage of thanking Captain Kennedy and the officers of that magnificent ship Druid, for the kindly and hospitable treatment extended to them whilst on board.

The vote was then passed.

The Committee rose and reported the bill without amendment.

To be read a third time to-morrow.

Upon motion of hon. Receiver General, the House went into Committee of the Whole upon the ship-building Bill.

Mr. Nowlan in the chair.

Mr. Parsons had very much pleasure in supporting the measure before the House. It is, he considered, a step in the right direction, and he trusted it would result beneficially. In supporting the Bill, however, he earnestly hoped that it was not intended to abolish the bounty at present given for the encouragement of the bank fishery.

Mr. Watson—The Bill at present before the House was, he considered a wise one, calculated to bring about most substantial benefit to the fishery interests of the colony. Although discontinuing the bounty as at present existing to the bank fishery it still contributes to stimulate prosecution of that fishery, for under section second of the Bill there is a provision of two dollars per ton payable upon all such vessels as may be within ten years from registration bona fide employed for one fishing season of two months extent in the deep-sea Bank fishery. This is intended to encourage and foster the building of a better class of vessels which shall be liable to an inspection and survey before being so entitled to the bounty of two dollars per ton. The Bill further provides, in section three, that vessels entitled to receive the bounty must be shown to have been fully and substantially equipped for such voyage, and to have been well and substantially built with full frame and timbers and in a workmanlike manner, and also to be subject to inspection and survey by the customs authorities. That is a very good provision and must necessarily stimulate the building of a superior class of vessels. The whole bill was creditable to hon. Receiver General, the producer of the measure, and it is in accord with that desire which he has ever manifested to encourage practically the shipbuilding interests of the colony. The entire Bill has his most unqualified and hearty support.

The committee then rose and reported the bill without amendment.

Ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

Second reading of Bill to provide a retiring allowance for Sir Hugh W. Hoyle Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Hon. the Premier—His object in moving the reading of this bill a second time to-night, was not that any discussion may be evoked at this late hour, but that bill may be advanced a stage. Any observation which hon. gentlemen could make on the bill may be reserved for committee with all rights as to the admission or non-admission of the principles as on the second reading.

Mr. Parsons wished it to be distinctly understood that he was opposed to the principle of this measure, he was entirely opposed to pensions.

The bill was then read a second time and Ordered to be recommitted to-morrow.

Second reading of Bill to provide for the employment of prisoners without the walls of the Penitentiary and other goals of this Colony.

Hon. the Premier explained the object of the Bill.

The Bill was then read a second time.

Ordered to be committed to-morrow.

Mr. Kent, pursuant to the Order of the Day, in view of an address to His Excellency the Governor on the subject of the petition of Edwin Duher and others, on the subject of withdrawing the Revenue Mill Road.

Hon. Mr. WINTER from the Select Committee on the Bills to Amend the Law relating to the Administration of Justice, add on the table the Report of that Committee.

The Bill was then ordered to be committed to-morrow.

The House then adjourned till Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY, April 14.

House met pursuant to adjournment at 3 o'clock.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

Third reading of Indemnity Bill.

Upon motion of hon. Receiver General the bill was read a third time.

Ordered to be taken to the hon. the Legislative Council by the hon. Receiver General and M. Conroy.

Third reading of Shipbuilding Bill.

Upon motion of the hon. Receiver General, the bill was read a third time.

Ordered to be taken to the hon. the Legislative Council by the hon. Receiver General and Mr. Kent.

Committee of the whole upon the Post Office Erection Bill.

Upon motion of the hon. Receiver General, the House went into committee of the whole upon the bill.

Mr. Roe in the chair.

Hon. Receiver General—As already explained, the object of the present measure is to empower the Executive to select a site for the erection of a new Post Office in St. John's. There is no public land at the disposal of the Government suitable for the purpose. It will be therefore necessary to select a piece of some private property in the town. He earnestly trusted that the Executive would succeed in securing a suitable site for a work which is at the present time so much needed.

Mr. Kent was pleased to find that they had at last awakened the Government to sense of the necessity of this work. The present post office is not sufficient to accommodate the large amount of work done. From the Report of the Post Master General, he found that no less than 670,000 letters passed through the post office last year, and two millions, and a half of papers, &c. The money order department has also largely increased its business. Although this bill gives very large power, to the Executive, he hoped they would not use them dictatorially and to the prejudice of individual interests. He further hoped that in the erection of the new Post Office the Government would take every care to secure the latest modern improvements.

The several sections having passed the committee rose and reported the bill without amendment.

Ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

Committee of the whole in reference to the Administration of Justice Bill.

Upon motion of hon. Mr. Winter the House went into committee of the whole upon the bill.

Mr. Dawson in the chair.

Hon. Mr. Winter—The present bill was referred to a select committee, and after undergoing the strict examination and scrutiny of the Committee it is now presented in the amended form. There are other provisions of a purely technical nature having reference to the forms and practice of the Supreme Court. They are all devised to facilitate legal proceedings and to bring about the speedy recovery of just claims. He did not think any further explanation necessary. He would simply move the adoption of the different sections of the bill.

Upon the seventh section being proposed for adoption.

Mr. Parsons said that he did not see his way clear to assent to the adoption of this section. The effect of this section is that the defendant upon a writ being issued against him is called upon to come into Court and disclose his defence before hearing. This is considered, was giving an undue advantage to the plaintiff in a cause. The present law was, he considered, sufficient to suit all purposes, and had been found to work well. Why therefore attempt to great advantages our agricultural interests would derive from the construction of good lines of road, as also to the estimable value of agriculture as an auxiliary to our fisheries, we would strongly urge upon the Government, the great necessity, more especially in those districts where the shore fisheries are annually decreasing in value and importance of affording every facility and encouragement to the people by the construction of good lines of roads for the increased prosecution of an industry which, as has already been proved by its results in those parts of the country referred to, cannot fail to contribute to their increased comfort happiness and prosperity to the material interest, progress and advancement of the colony.

Know Thyself.

(Concluded)

The habit of truly, unflinchingly examining the heart is not easily acquired. It is not easy to take the outward and the world applauses, into the secret chamber of our own hearts, and lay bare the selfish or worldly motives that prompted it.

It is not easy to tear the mantle from the life of outward morality, and probe the hidden sin the world suspects not.

He who finds delight in true self-examination, who courts the voice of conscience, who brings to bear upon every action of this life the hours of solemn, prayerful thought preceding it, is a good man. He may err in judgment; he may make grave errors in worldly wisdom; he may never attain great honor or great power; he may die poor, obscure and unknown, but when he comes before the Great Tribunal that awaits us all, where active, not action, is judged he will meet his reward.

It would be well for the young if they could acquire a constant habit of self-examination, if they gave our every morning to the task, before entering upon the daily duties of life, or spent one hour at night reviewing the events of the past day and rigidly scanning the motives of every action, knocking at the close of each scrutiny, to ask pardon for what is wrong, bel, and support in what is right, and the humility of a Christian life to continue in the self-appointed task. No one can aid in the duty, no parent or guardian can enforce it. To no second hand may man come in the revelations of his own heart, his powers of self-examination.—Communicated.

 alter it? If this section is pressed through he wished to place upon record his strong opposition to it.

Hon. Mr. Winter—If the hon. and learned member had been upon the Select Committee he would have seen the necessity for such a provision as this. He could not see any force in the objection of the hon. and learned member. The simple meaning of the section is this: suppose, for instance, a writ is issued after term, and the defendant pleads simply that he is not indebted, he is called upon under this section to come into court and make an affidavit, in answer to the affidavit of the plaintiff that he does not owe the money. Other wise judgment will be entered against him and execution issued in the ordinary way. This provision does not work unjustly upon the defendant, and would have the effect of precluding defendants from taking advantage, as is frequently done, under the existing practice, of keeping plaintiffs out of their money for six months under the ordinary plea of what is called the general issue. The Bill now proposed to be made law is the law at present operative in Great Britain and the Dominion of Canada. Mr. Parsons—If the hon. the introducer of the measure would strike this section out, and introduce, in its stead a section abolishing imprisonment for debt, would be doing an act for which the public would feel grateful. It has been done in many other places, and he saw no reason why they should not do so here. Sometimes it happens that unfortunate debtors are arrested and kept in the penitentiary at the expense of the colony, in order to satisfy purely vindictive feelings upon the part of plaintiffs. The committee then rose and reported bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

Committee on bill to provide retiring allowance for Sir H. Hoyles Knight, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Mr. Skelton in the chair.

Hon. Receiver General, in moving the reading of the Bill to provide for the retirement of Sir Hugh W. Hoyles, Knight, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Colony would draw the attention of the House to a memorial of that gentleman sent to his Excellency the Governor in Council. Here the Receiver General read for the House the memorial from his Lordship. It is a matter of deep regret that one so highly respected, and so able and experienced a public official, should be compelled to seek from this House a retiring allowance, in order to his withdrawal from a position, which has so long filled, with honor to himself and credit to the land of his birth. He has occupied the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Bench for a period of over sixteen years, and the house and country are well aware how able he had discharged the duties of his high position. We all regret that failing health should deprive the country of so able a man, but from representations made, it is feared that any longer continuance in the active discharge of duties would endanger his life. He requires rest from his labors, and after his well spent life, he [hon. R.G.] believed he was eminently entitled to it. The amount proposed as an allowance to the Chief Justice on his retirement is £750 currency. This amount is not equal to the retiring allowance received by former Chief Justices. Sir Frances Brady received £300 sterling, and proportion to his salary this amount is considerably over the amount proposed to be given to Sir Hugh Hoyles. Sir Bryan Robinson received £666 currency upon his retirement, while his salary as Assistant Judge, was only £1000 currency. He [hon. R.G.] believed that no hon. member would consider the amount proposed as too large, and he was sorry that the finances of the colony would not warrant any higher sum. He thought it unnecessary to refer to the Chief Justice's services to his native land. Whether as a statesman, a lawyer, a judge, or a citizen, he has left an example for future generations, and his loss causes a void in the social ranks of the country, which it will be difficult to fill. He had much pleasure in proposing the first section of the Bill.

Hon. the Premier could not say that it afforded him pleasure to discharge the duty of seconding the proposition for the reading of the first section of the bill before the chair. It was at least with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret that he did so. When he looked back upon the life, career and character of the Chief Justice, he beheld a man during all the years of his laborious life among us, had been distinguished socially, politically and forensically, and while on the bench of the Supreme Court, he has by his impartial conduct, under every circumstance, won the esteem, regard and admiration of his countrymen, of all shades of political social and religious standing. The application before us for retirement, is the result of failing health, that too at a period of life, counted by years when we should not have looked for. We might easily have anticipated for the Chief Justice many years of active life, but unfortunately he has been compelled by rapidly waning health, to make the application, and such an application coming from one of his known integrity of character, is one we cannot, however regretful we look upon his loss, help responding to. He (hon. the P.) was conscious of the position which one, who has been a public official, occupies in coming before this House to ask for a returning allowance, since unfortunately there is no statutory provision made this country for the retirement of such officials. In every other country at least in every country under the English constitution, there is a law making provision for officials in the shape of a stipend payable after a number of years services, and he (hon. the P.) considered that it was a great reflection on us that we had no such law in this country. The absence of such a provision from our Statute Book compels such as the Chief Justice, when failing health prevents them from any longer discharging their duties of office, to come before this house and pray for a retiring allowance. He (hon. the P.) was aware that there were several petitions expressed to any considerable extent the opinions of the country. The people, however, should be made aware that when, through their representatives, they asked for and received the existing form of constitution, they were bound to accept all the obligations which that constitution brought along with it. One of the obligations of the Constitution granted to us in 1855 was that of suitably providing for our own working officials, and also for those who after the granting of that Constitution, should be compelled to retire either by reason of ill health or other good and valid cause, from active official life. Most of the officials now on our pension list were officials at the time of the introduction of Responsible Government. At that time a bill was introduced by which nearly all the officials then in the Government, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Surveyor General and others were pensioned for life. Some of these have since passed away others (a few) still draw the small allowance then made by the Government and from time to time it has been found necessary since then to come before this house to ask for a retiring allowance for some official who has been, after a number of years employed in any of the official departments of the Colony, compelled to retire from ill health or inability arising from increasing years to any longer perform his duties. Such a duty has devolved on various governments in turn. He would call the recollection of hon. members to the days of the Bennett Administration when the Government pensioned Mr. Nugent, the then Sheriff, and appointed the hon. Thomas Talbot in his position. Mr. Canning, a highly respectable old gentleman, was also pensioned and another gentleman placed in his office, although Mr. Canning was unwilling to retire to the last. It was at length found necessary to pay Mr. Canning a sum of $800 in order to propitiate him and at the same time provide a position for a member of the then executive Council. The Bennett Administration had introduced however the new principle of pensions for political officials. When they proposed to pension Mr. Glen, they had recorded a minute of council to that effect, but the succeeding Government had refused to endorse such a principle, and consequently our venerable Auditor of Public Accounts was rendering yet valuable services to the country. With regard to the retirement of Sir Hugh Hoyles, he (hon. the P.) was inclined to look with disfavor upon his retirement at first, and was disposed to answer his application with the reply that we were unwilling to pension him unless he was totally unable to any longer discharge the duties of his important office, because he (hon. the P.) like many others in the country was of opinion that the colony could not afford to allow him to withdraw from the Supreme Court Bench. He [hon. the P.] looked upon Sir Hugh Hoyles' vacation of the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Bench as a great public calamity. As a Barrister who has practiced with him at the Bar, as one who was associated with him in politics as a citizen who admires his public spirit and propriety of character, as one who wishes him the tranquil enjoyment of the last years of his well-spent life.
