The Earl's Son;

CHAPTER XXII.

Fanny Mason heard of Ralph's departure when she went down to the hut the next morning to "tidy up."

"Gone!" she cried, almost dropping her broom and staring at Burchett with pale, aghast face. "I—I saw him last night with a bundle on his back; but I thought he was going to the town—I didn't think—" She turned her head away to hide her face. "Why, whatever made him go, and so sudden, Mr. Burchett?"

"That's his business, not mine, nor yours," he replied, grimly. "When the last woman's dead, curiosity will be buried with her. You're late this morning."

"I overslept myself, and mother was busy," said Fanny, sullenly. She was suffering badly, but from wounded pride rather than love; for it is not given to her kind to love deeply. "If I'd known he was going I'd have spoken to him, and perhaps—"

She tossed her head and bit her lip. "Nothing you could have said would have kept him back. He went on important business," said Burchett.

He was leaving the hut when Mr. Talbot Denby came through the clearing. He looked particularly well; the palor and haggard expression had left his face, and there was a touch of color in his pallid cheeks and his eyes were bright. Everything had gone well with him, and he was to hear yet further good news.

"Good-morning, Burchett," he said. "I just looked in to ask you how the birds were doing. I rather think we may have a shooting party this season."

"Things are looking very well, sir," replied Burchett. "A shooting party? I shall have to get an extra hand or two, and I've just lost a good one. Farrington's gone."

Talbot did not start, but his face became like a mask. "Indeed!" he said. "Dissatisfied, I suppose? Well, I should think he was a good riddance. Where has he gone? Another situation?"

"No, sir. I think he's making for Australia, where he came from."

Talbot's heart leapt with relief and satisfaction. Certainly his lucky star was in the ascendant, and Fate seemed to be removing, with one sweep of the hand, every obstacle in his path. Burchett was passing on, but paused.

"Perhaps you'd be kind enough to tell Miss Veronica that I'll send up the roots of the wall-flowers she asked me for, sir," he said. "I can move 'em now."

Veronica had some time ago admired some gentian and wild orchids which she had seen near the hut.

Talbot nodded. "You need not trouble. Miss Veronica has left the Court," he said, casually. "She has gone to pay some visits, and will be away some time."

Burchett touched his cap and walked away, and Talbot was following, when Fanny, who had been listening, came to the door. She looked very pretty, with the sunlight falling on her face and golden hair; her cheeks were flushed with the emotion which had been evoked by the tidings of Ralph's departure, and Talbot, in this moment of his elation, was in the humour to admire her. Usually he was quite unimpressible.

"Good-morning," he said, ingratiatingly. "You are Fanny Mason, are you not?"

"Yes, sir," assented Fanny, dropping a curtsy and blushing with pleasure at the notice of the great Mr. Talbot.

"Ah, yes, I remember! Of course! I remember you when you were quite a little girl; you were pretty even then. You and I used to play together when we were little children. I haven't seen very much of you lately, but that is because I am so seel-dom at the Court. How hot is it! I think I will come in and rest for a little while."

He went into the hut and sat down, and continued to talk to her as she worked. The relief from the awful strain was so great that he felt delighted with himself, with this girl, with the very air he breathed. Presently he asked for some water; but Fanny brought him a glass of milk, and, as he took it from her hand, she looked up at her with a smile that set poor, weak Fanny's heart all in a flutter. And the heart, sore with Ralph's desertion, was, so to speak, on the rebound; it was not difficult for Talbot Denby to catch it.

"You're too pretty and—clever a girl to waste your sweetness on the desert air of Lynne, Fanny," he said. "You ought to be in London. You would see something of life then; you are buried alive down here amongst a set of yokels and chawbacons. You've never been to London, I suppose?"

At the moment he had no definite object in view, and the desire to flirt with the girl was born of his mood, of his sudden exaltation; but Fanny's downcast eyes and blushes flattered him.

"Oh, no, no!" she said, timidly. "But I've heard of it; and oh, how I should like to go."

"Well, we must see about it," he said. "I will try and find a place for you. I think I know a lady who would take you."

Fanny blushed still more deeply and her pretty face was alight with the pleasurable emotions that chased over it.

"Oh, if you would, sir," she breathed. "I'm so tired of this place! It isn't life, as you say, sir—"

"And you ought to see life," he put in, smoothly: really with her complexion of milk and roses and her foolish, child-like eyes she was very pretty. "I'll see what I can do. But I think I wouldn't say anything about it, Fanny, in case it came to nothing. I daresay we shall meet again. Let me see, you live in the cottage on the hill? There's a lane behind it, I remember. Now, suppose you meet me there some evening; shall we say to-morrow, after dinner?"

Fanny nodded eagerly. To meet the great Mr. Talbot of the Court, and secretly! The honor of it nearly turned her weak little brain.

"Oh, I'm so grateful; it's so kind of you, sir!" she murmured, with suppressed excitement. "I can't thank you, sir!"

NEW DUNLOP "PEERLESS" RUBBER HEELS

FRED. V. CHESMAN, AGENT, ST. JOHN'S.

"Oh, yes, you can!" he said, with a smile. "There are better ways of expressing one's thanks than by words, Fanny. Don't you know one of them? Let me teach you."

He put his arm round her, and, raising her face, looked down at her with a smile and kissed her.

"Oh, I forgot!" he said, in a low voice. "It was you who should have done that, wasn't it?"

She hung her head for a moment, then she raised it slowly and kissed him.

Mr. Talbot left the hut with the smile still on his face. The little flirtation with Fanny had made his heart still lighter. After all, there were other ways of amusing oneself than at the gaming table. And she really was very pretty and tempting; not an icicle of a woman, like Veronica, for instance. For a moment or two he asked himself why she had gone—had her disappearance anything to do with Ralph Farrington's? The question drove the smile from his face and drew his dark brows together; but he thrust it from him. It was sufficient for him that she had gone and left the field clear for him.

As for Fanny, Mr. Talbot's "kindness" had soothed the wound inflicted on her vanity by Ralph's departure. She could almost think of him contemptuously, for what was a game-keeper compared to Mr. Talbot of the Court! And Mr. Talbot had kissed her, whereas Ralph had actually refused her proffered lips.

She met Mr. Talbot in the lane the next evening and for several following evenings, for he lingered at the Court, though the whip of his party sent him the usual imperative notices from the House of Commons.

A week later Fanny showed her mother a letter she had received from a lady in London, a lady in St. John's Wood, who required a servant. Mrs. Mason was opposed to Fanny's accepting the offer, but Fanny overrode her mother's opposition and one morning she started for her "situation."

Mr. Talbot had left the Court the preceding night.

On the following evening, a little later, he was in his place at the House and spoke in support of a bill introduced by his party, spoke with more than his usual force and eloquence. Once only did the low, clear, level voice pause and the impassive face change. The pause was only for a moment, but in that short space of time the House, crowded with members eager to hear Denby speaking on his own side, saw a strange and subtle expression in the mask-like face. It seemed to grow set and rigid, the dark eyes were fixed on the opposite wall as if the speaker had suddenly seen something terrible, awe-inspiring; the faint color caused by the heat and excitement of debate gave place to a death-like pallor; and the spectators almost held their breath as they looked at him.

But, whatever the emotion might have been, it passed in an instant; the face again grew impassive, the clear, level voice flowed on in fluent, rhythmical sentences which carried conviction with them.

The two old members, Mr. Welch and Mr. Bouchier, had exchanged glances, as the change had come over Mr. Talbot Denby's face, and when the speech was over and the government side of the House was cheering wildly, Mr. Bouchier whispered:

"What was the matter with Denby just now?"

Mr. Welch shook his head. "I don't know. A splendid speech. It will help them to carry the bill. But he looked—bad, just then, didn't he? I've not forgotten what you said about him some time ago; and tonight it seemed to me that you were right. That man has something on his mind or conscience—"

"Say mind: conscience is out of date," said Mr. Bouchier.

"—He is leading a double life, and the other life, the one that is not apparent to us, cropped up just then. If ever a man looked in morbid terror Denby did when he paused just now."

There was, however, no terror on Talbot Denby's face as he left the House after receiving the thanks and approval of his whips, thanks all the more emphatic for their rarity—there no more rejoicing on the government benches over one repentant sinner than over a hundred righteous?—and called a hansom.

He told the man to drive to Rose Cottage, Park Road, St. John's Wood, and he leant back in the cab and smoked a cigar with a serene and placid countenance, and with a smile of satisfaction hovering about his thin lips. He had scored heavily that night. All was going well with him.

The cab pulled up at a pretty little house just peeping above a high wall; the kind of house which, pretty though it be, seems to shrink from its neighbors and crave for privacy.

Makes Your Shoes Wear Longer.

Making the Most of To-Day.

By HUTH CAMERON.

A very intelligent and superior woman with whom I once worked always prepared herself to write on any subject in a certain way. I'll let her describe it:
"Before I take up my pen at all," she says, "I sit down alone, if possible, make a determined effort to empty my mind of all other matter, and then try to fill it as full as possible of the subject I am going to write about. After that, I take up my pen and begin—never before."

As a method for preparing for composition, the above formula is certainly excellent. But I think it has a far broader range than that. Isn't it an excellent formula for concentration on any task?

Couldn't we accomplish a great many things more quickly, more efficiently and more satisfactorily if we approached them in this manner?

First clear the mind of all other matter. Then fill it chock full of the matter in hand—be it washing dishes, writing a letter or planning an advertising campaign. And then (if you can) keep all other matter out. In other words—concentrate.

I think I have sung the praises of concentration before and I'm sure I shall again. For concentration is the golden key to accomplishment. Without it we may painfully and slowly push our way through some devious path to success. With it we may unlock the door that leads straight into it.

Nothing was ever accomplished without concentration that could not have been more efficiently accomplished with its help.

The chief enemies to concentration are two. One is the thought of things that you have done. The other is the thought of things that you are about to do.

I know a man whose mind is never really clear for concentration because he cannot do a thing and then forget it. He is always wondering if he did the last thing right. The result is that he can never fully focus his mind on the present. This in turn renders him likely to make mistakes and hence gives color and reason to his self-distrust. So he is caught in a vicious circle.

Another man is always thinking of what he is going to do next. If he uses the typewriter he makes a hundred needless mistakes because he gets ahead of himself. If he plays cards he often thinks so intensely of the next play that he lays down the wrong card for the present play.

If you want to do anything as well as in you lies, you must learn to put both past and future out of your mind as completely as if they did not exist. So, and so only, can you give the whole of yourself to the present.

IF HEAD ACHES AND YOUR EARS BUZZ YOU SURELY HAVE CATARRH.

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, or how often you have failed to get relief—even though Catarrh may affect every organ in your body, you can be permanently cured by inhaling the soothing vapor of Catarrhazone.

A few breaths through Catarrhazone inhalant clears the phlegm out of the throat and stops your cough. The nostrils are cleansed of offensive mucous discharge and sneezing and sniffing stop at once. Partial loss of hearing and headache (very common symptoms of catarrh) are quickly cured; and in a short time every trace of catarrh disappears.

Nothing can be simpler or more pleasant than Catarrhazone. It's healing piney vapor sends a warm cleansing sensation through all the air passages in the head and throat—makes you feel better in half a minute.

"My ears buzzed by the hour and I had frightful head noises," writes J. P. Purdy, from Port Huron. "Catarrh fairly filled my whole head and throat. I got relief mighty fast when I tried Catarrhazone; it hit the spot instantly. You bet Catarrhazone has cured me and I simply swear by it."

Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the trick in a hurry—never fails; small size, 50¢; trial or sample size, 25¢; sold by dealers everywhere.

Great Gun for Protection of Panama Canal.

Washington, July 14.—When its breech-loading device has been perfected at Watervliet arsenal, the great 16-inch gun, the biggest piece of ordnance in the world, which has just been shipped from Sandy Hook proving grounds, will be practically ready for service on the Panama canal fortifications.

Some idea may be obtained of the tremendous power of this gun, destined to protect the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal, by the fact that it is fifty feet long, weighs 142 tons and fires a projectile about six feet long. The projectile itself weighs a ton and is discharged by 665 pounds of powder. It requires eight men to carry the powder charge.

This gun has a maximum range of from 22 to 23 miles. The elevation permitted by its carriage will enable the gun to fire a projectile about 11 miles across the Pacific ocean. It has sufficient power, theoretically, to pierce two feet of the best armor at the muzzle. At 11 miles the gun is calculated to pierce a 12-inch armor plate, or any side armor afloat.

Army ordnance officials believe this gun will be a tremendous instrument of peace, when it is finally in position on the Panama canal.

Caruso and the Piano Key.

tenor's last visit to Germany. The scene is said to have taken place in the drawing-room of a well known Berlin society woman much given to entertaining artist lions, with the idea of coaxing them to roar—trumpets of course. Caruso left into the secret beforehand, accepted her invitation, and, unseen by anyone, closed and locked the piano and slipped the key into his pocket. The inevitable happened. She asked Caruso to sing—he was delighted to oblige. The hostess motioned to a lady to come forward and accompany the singer, and tried to open the piano. The key was nowhere to be found. "Send for a locksmith," said Caruso, "and break open the piano." She vetoed this course and apologized to everyone, including Caruso, for the mysterious mishap. As he left the house Caruso quietly dropped the key on the table of the reception room.—Exchange.

Toasts.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

A toast is a speech usually made in a hesitating voice by a pale man who is full of banquet food and fear.

No one knows why an after-dinner speech is called a toast unless it is because of its dryness. The chief object of a toast is to fill another place on the program. Originally a toast was about a dozen words long. Nowadays it takes fifteen minutes to get through with one. In some ways times have not improved.

Toasts are responded to on a great variety of subjects, but they all begin with the same sentiment: "I do not know why I should have been called upon to respond to this sentiment." After the speaker has finished responding he still does not know and no one else has found out either.

The second paragraph of a toast begins: "That reminds me of a story." Toasts are like games of chess. They all consist of the same things differently arranged. If a man knows five stories he can keep changing them around so as to make them into twenty-five toasts. Old stories are better because the audience knows them and begins laughing earlier in the game.

The excellence of a toast depends upon its brevity. Many a man has made life-long friends by delivering two-minute toasts. Five-minute toasts are received with gratitude and a man can make a ten-minute speech without losing friends. But twenty-minute toasts are a misdemeanor and half-hour toasts are usually regarded by juries as extenuating circumstances in case of crime.

Owing to the great spread of banqueting in this country, more than a million toasts are now delivered every night. If all these toasts were collected together in a great volume as big as a box car, the amount of wisdom and information contained therein could be written on a souvenir postal card. The cost of producing these million toasts is something over ten million dollars, wine bills not included.

We are a wasteful nation and proud of it, but it does seem as if we might get our information a little cheaper.

Wolves Drop in for Lunch.

Kansas City, Mo., July 11.—As George Wilson, a keeper at the Home Zoological Arena, east of Independence, was eating his luncheon, yesterday in the cooking house the door opened and in walked two big wolves. Wilson summoned help and seized a club.

The wolves were not the little half-hearted American kind, but the big Siberian variety, noted for their fierceness. They were not as hard to manage as they might have been, however, for they had already dined off some Plymouth Rock roasters and for desert had eaten a $10 parrot.

They were eventually driven back to their cage by Wilson and several other men.

Adam's Rib.

An atheist, in an argument with a Rabbi, once said, "Your God is a thief, for according to your own Scriptures, he took a rib from Adam during his sleep." The Rabbi's daughter asked leave to answer for her father. "Would you call a man a thief," she asked, "who took away your silver pitcher and replaced a golden one?" "I wish such a thief would come every night," is the answer; whereupon the Rabbi's daughter replies, "So it was when God took Adam's rib and gave him Eve instead." Now up to this part we have what would be described as a "pretty" story, and here the story is usually made to end; but in the Talmud there follows a touch of quaint realism which would never be found in a modern story. "But why did God take away the rib only when Adam was asleep?" the atheist goes on to ask. "For answer the Rabbi's daughter takes a piece of raw meat and places it upon hot ashes to be cooked, and when finally prepared offers it to the atheist to eat. He shrinks from it, and declares that it looks repulsive. "Eve so," says the Rabbi's daughter, "would Eve have appeared repulsive to Adam had he seen the process by which she was made?"

A Floating Fish Market.

The giant liner Aquitania, which recently ended a maiden voyage in New York harbor from the other side, carries an amazing amount of provisions at sea. The regular supply of fish for a trip amounts to over six tons; 500 barrels of oysters are also stored away in the ocean greyhound before the "all ashore" whistle is sounded. In addition to that there are 500 pounds of green turtle, and a quantity of other provisions which do not concern the fishing industry.

Clinical Congress to sit in London.

New York, July 15.—About 1,000 physicians and surgeons from the United States and Canada are expected to attend the meeting of the North American clinical congress in London from July 27th to August 1st, according to Dr. J. Murphy, president of the congress, who sailed yesterday on the Lusitania. Clinics will be held by many European surgeons and the Canadians and Americans will study their methods, Mr. Murphy explained. This is the first meeting of the congress to be held in Europe.

"SECLUDED SAINT."
The Australian Government officials are wrestling in these days with the millions of cards issued and returned in connection with the 1911 census. One woman wrote that she was "an unclaimed treasure." Another of thirty-seven replied, "Not married, have not given up hope yet." In reply to a query as to religion, a man in prison described himself as a "secluded saint." Another said he was a "blue light"; a third was a "simple lifer"; and a fourth was a "blue domer." One woman referred to herself as a "Roaming Catholic," and another claimed to belong to the "Shirts of England."

JOHN B. AYRE.

The Kelligrew's Conflagrations

RENDERS FAMILY DESTITUTE.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The most disastrous fire which ever occurred on this shore, took place here on Saturday morning, and a few black cinders marks the place where but a few hours previous stood the beautiful Chapel and School as well as the comfortable homes of Mr. George Craig and Mrs. Wm. Walsh. While this is an almost irreparable loss to the parish in itself, still the saddest feature of the disaster is the loss of those homes, with almost everything they possessed. Particularly harrowing is poor Craig's case, where his entire prosperity comprising in all six buildings and valued at three thousand dollars was entirely wiped out. Mr. Craig who is an old and faithful servant of the Reid Ndd. Co., was working at the time on No. 1 section; St. John's, and the saddest sight ever witnessed here was that of Mrs. Craig and her little family standing scantily clad and destitute of everything she owned in the world, in sight of her once comfortable home.

Perhaps few houses in the country was better known than that of Craig's in former years. Under the hospitable management of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Walsh, it was for many years a popular resort for city friends, and no doubt the sympathy of the city as well as this neighborhood, will go out to these poor people in their hour of distress.

This is indeed a fitting subject for the charity of our kind people who have shown that blessed trait of humanity to such marked degree in the past, and we feel sure a ready response will be given in behalf of the destitute homeless.

St. Patrick's Garden Party.

One of the principal features of tomorrow afternoon's holiday programme is the St. Patrick's Garden Party at Bowling Park. Extensive preparations have been made for this popular event, and an interesting series of sports have been arranged. The athletic programme will include football fives, relay race, tug of war, and many novel attractions which will be under the supervision of Mr. H. Brownrigg, whose capabilities in this direction are so well known. The site is an ideal one, and the splendid array of tents at which the ladies of the committee will preside will be filled with tempting delicacies that will please the most fastidious. Special trains will run to Waterford Bridge at convenient hours during the afternoon, and we bespeak for this affair a large patronage.

Eugenie Picks Flowers Near the Tuilleries.

Paris, July 15.—A story is printed of an incident which occurred on the recent visit of the Empress Eugenie, widow of Napoleon III. She was walking in the Tuilleries gardens where once stood her splendid palace. She picked a flower from the border, an attendant saw her and said, "Picking flowers is strictly forbidden. I must report you." He demanded her name and address and she answered timidly "Eugenie." The attendant was struck by the melancholy aspect of the aged lady and relented, saying, "that is not a name; however, never mind this time, but don't do it again."

A Popular Suggestion.

The suggestion is advanced asking to have, if possible, the Red Cross Liner Stephano on her next trip from New York, leave there earlier than usual so as to arrive here on August 5th, thus allowing the round-trippers to witness the Regatta. The suggestion is popularly approved of.

Here and There.

SAGONA.—The Sagona left Conche at 9 a.m. to-day, going North.

POLICE COURT.—Only one prisoner was before the Magistrate to-day. He was a Conception Harbor laborer who was fined $5 or 14 days for being drunk and disorderly.

Obituary.

There passed peacefully away last night at 11.30, and old and highly respected resident of the Southside in the person of Anastasia, relict of the late Henry Holwell, planter of this city, and daughter of the late Philip Beresford, a native of County Waterford, Ireland. Deceased lady had attained the ripe old age of 74 years and is mourned by one brother Thomas, of St. Brendan's, two sons William and George, and one daughter Mrs. John Ennis, besides a large circle of relatives and friends. Being of a charitable and unassuming disposition, she was greatly esteemed and endeared herself to all who knew her, and her loss will be keenly felt. Her funeral takes place from the King's Wharf, to-morrow (Wednesday), at 2.30 p.m.—R.I.P.

Australian Sculler Arrives in London.

London, July 17.—James Paddon, the famous Australian professional sculler, has arrived in England for his four-mile race against Ernest Barry for the world's championship. This contest will be held either the last week of August or the first week of September over the Putney-Mortlake course in the Thames. Barry has held the title since July 29, when he defeated Arnst over the same course.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, July 21.
The reputation that Willard's Fork-dipt Chocolates has attained during the few months they have been on the market is due to their delicious flavor, and to the fact that they are a good warm weather chocolate, never growing too soft for easy handling. We have just imported a goodly new stock of these tasty sweet meats, and you will find some specially fine boxes among them.
If you go into the country to-morrow afternoon, you will find one of these aluminum drinking cups indispensable. Small enough to go easily into the pocket when telescoped, yet large enough to contain a satisfying portion of liquid; no weight to carry, and non-rusting. Price 15 cents each.

Steamer Meets Sleeping Whale.

New York, July 16.—Most of the passengers of the stamer Stephano, which arrived to-day from Halifax, had an unexpected sea water bath yesterday afternoon.

The Stephano was running through a thick mist when Captain Smith noticed off the bow a large black object which he thought was a partly submerged derelict. The ship was steered up for a nearer view and the object turned out to be an 80-foot whale fast asleep.

As the ship ran close to the big black sleeper the first mate blew the whistle twice. Suddenly startled from its slumber, the whale lashed his tail, half rose from the sea and blew a stream of water that splashed down over most of the spectators.

Obeeyed Orders.

Geneva, July 16.—The King of the Belgians, one of the most democratic of European monarchs, who has been spending the last three weeks in Switzerland, tells the following story: At Territet the King and Queen were motoring. His Majesty was driving and there were no attendants. The Queen went into a shop to make some purchases. The King was standing near the car, reading a newspaper, when an American woman came out of the shop, jumped into the conveyance and bade the driver to drive her to her hotel.

"Certainly, madame," replied the King, complying with the lady's instructions. In the meantime, the Queen came out of the store, and was surprised to find her husband and the car had disappeared. Both quickly reappeared, however, and Their Majesties laughed heartily over the occurrence. Enquiries as to the identity of the American woman were fruitless.

Crown Prince Praises Book.

Berlin, July 16.—Another "Crown Prince incident" has arisen. The future Kaiser has sent an effusive telegram to ex-Lt.-Col. Frobenius, the author of the "The German Empire's Fateful Hour," saying that he read the book with the greatest interest and wishes it to enjoy the widest circulation among the German nation.

The book pictures the spring of 1915 as the date when the "Revenge of France" and the "Hate of Russia," will together reach a point when the invasion of Germany by hordes of troops such as Europe has never seen must be looked for any day. "Then," he says, "the fateful hour of the German Empire and its allies will strike."

NEWS BY CABLE.

Special to the Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 20.

The news that King George had called a Round Table Conference of the leaders of all political parties in the Kingdom to discuss the Ulster crisis, caused a pleasant surprise today. In political circles here it was said that the conference, under the auspices of King George, would result in a settlement, which even the extremists on both sides in Ireland would be compelled to accept. Premier Asquith, at the opening of the House of Commons to-day, announced that in view of the grave political situation, King George had considered it right to summon a conference of the representatives of political parties, both British and Irish to discuss the outstanding points in the problem of Irish Government. He added the Rt. Hon. the Speaker, Sir J. W. Lowther, would, at His Majesty's request, preside over the Conference. In view of this development Mr. Asquith said that he would not ask the House to-day to discuss the amending Bill. Invitations to the conference have been accepted by two representatives of the regular Opposition, Ulster Unionists and Nationalists, and the Government, he said. He hoped that the meeting of the conference would begin to-morrow. Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, remarked that he had loyally accepted the command of His Majesty. Mr. John Redmond appeared to regard the proposed conference as attractive. He said: "My colleagues and myself take no responsibility for the policy calling this convention. I do not think I am called to express an opinion as whether the result will prove useful or the contrary. The invitation came to Mr. Dillon and myself in the form of a command from the King and as such we at once obeyed it."

The initiative for the conference was taken by Asquith and not by the King. According to these Unionists the Premier's one and only object was to gain time to prevent a Provisional Government for Ulster being constituted, until after Parliament is adjourned, thus avoiding the criticism of his followers and possible defeat on divisions. If the Premier can carry out this plan, a prominent Unionist said, he probably can safely weather the political storm until Parliament is dissolved in its natural course in 1915. Ulsterites, he said, are running short of money, the organization of Volunteers having cost a tremendous sum. Ulster business men whose trade has been badly disorganized by the crisis, are unable to subscribe any more, but he will not succeed. Added to this, Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the Commons, has been given to understand he must brook no delay in the negotiations. He will tell his conferees the conference must not last more than a week. Carson, leader of the Ulsterites, took the calling of the conference calmly. He told his colleagues it could make no difference to his attitude, and added he had yet to hear the answer to his challenge to the Cabinet. "Give us a clean cut or come and fight us." He said under no circumstances would he accept less than the exclusion of Ulster from the provisions of the Bill. Sir Edward added, he could do nothing else as he had given his promise to the confederates and he intended to stand by that promise. The Parliamentary Labor Party strongly disapproved of King George's intervention in a political controversy, even with the laudable object of settling the Irish question, and have asked Asquith to inform the King what they think of his action.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Fuentes

The Struggles of Authorship

The check which Marian received for the newspaper narrative she had written about her heroic but futile hunt for a job made her resolve to become a writer. She had rushed a number of copies of the printed article into the mails, dispatching them to Ann Stewart, the artist; her brother, and several others. She had asked these people for criticisms of her maiden effort at literature, with the proud feeling of a full-fledged author. There is a mysterious, thrilling, uplifting inspiration in seeing one's written labors in print for the first time. It injects a virus into the blood which intoxicates the subject with boiling ambition.

Marian's friends at the boarding house, the Barkers, were sincere and laudatory in their comments on Marian's newspaper tale. "I knew you had it in you," said Bert. "I had a feeling that you had, writing talent the moment I laid eyes on you. What you ought to do is to break into the magazines. Try fiction. The public eats it up. Here in New York you're in the center of fiction's universe. One of these days you'll be dashing off the great American novel."

Already a subtle, indefinable change had begun to take place in Marian. She was beginning to observe life about her with a more seeing eye. Details, colors, shades, the roaring city, its crowds, the moods of its various thoroughfares began to make new and deep-sinking impressions upon her. In the revolving chaos of sensations she managed to catch now and again a gleam of literary possibilities. As she observed the city's life, and strove to reduce its impressive ebb and flow into adequate word and phrase, she felt both the inspiration and the magisterial of her training for carrying it out. Yet the definite consciousness of work to do stirred and stimulated her.

She began haunting the book-shops and news stands. She bought some of the popular magazines, and dug into their vitals in an effort to discover how the trick was done. She was amazed to find that even the cheaper magazines which she had always scorned contained the work of unquestionable merit, striking in plot, and vivid in portrayal of life. "The way to write is to write," kept circling through her mind. Somewhere she had heard the phrase. It laid hold of her and would not let go.

Hour after hour, she would toil at the shaky table in her little room. Untrained in the task of evolving a story in her mind complete, before attempting to put it on paper, she undertook rambling beginnings, hoping desperately that she would somehow succeed in finishing her way out through a maze of words and sentences to a logical conclusion.

She wrote and destroyed, wrote and tore up. Many times she saw her pen through the tears of chagrin. "How do the rest of them do it?" she wondered in bursts of depression. Again and again her mind traveled back to the night on which she had written the letter to her brother, detailing her employment-seeking experiences, later to convert it into a newspaper article destined to see print, the front page, and widespread circulation. She strove to analyze the method by which she had reached the goal on that occasion. She could not do so. All she knew was that impressions had flowed red-hot from her brain to her pen. She had been able to write because she had lived and endured those particular experiences. Her later efforts were calculated, cool and mechanical.

It began to dawn upon her that she would have to write about herself. She would have to transfer her inner self, its secrets and its woes, upon the writing pad. She trembled before the stern requirement, but she could see no other way.

Where Responsibility Lies

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error, the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and adequately equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICK CO." Wholesale offices in St. John's have found this necessary. This equipment can surely be of use to you. Wheat.

On breezy western prairie, on fertile northern plain, the wheat is reaped, a d d nary a farmer should complain. We have kind nature's bounty, for which we long did yearn, and every blooming country has stacks of wheat to burn. There's wheat in ear and wagon there's wheat in barn and shed, and everyone is braggin'—if not be should be dead. There's wheat in bins and barrels, there's wheat in stacks, afield; is there a gent who quarrels with such a noble yield? The farmer's joyous slogans should perforate the air, for wheat is in his brogue, and wheat is in his hair; and wheat is all around him—each sackful means a cad; and yet, alas, confound him, the husbandman seems sad! "The weather isn't proper for castor beans," he wails, "and I shall be a pauper if autumn rhubarb fails! I lost my finest rooster a day or two ago; I cannot be a booster—mishortune dogs me so!" The Lord hands down a blessing, and when it comes to us, we make a face distressing, and shed some brine and cuss.

At the City Hall.

The Civic Commission held a special meeting last night, at which the question of sewerage was fully discussed. Mr. Gosling presided, and the other members of the board, save Mr. Jackman, were in attendance. The Assistant Engineer and Inspectors Donnelly and Rooney were also present, and furnished information regarding the number of houses without sewerage.

From the statements furnished it was quite evident that an unnecessary amount was spent on sanitation which could be eliminated if sewerage were enforced.

The Board agreed to take steps to enforce the installing of sewerage, if it has the power. The Solicitor will be consulted about the Municipal Act and the amendments thereto.

It was generally conceded that the amount now spent for the sanitary cars could be devoted to profitable purposes if the sewerage were made compulsory.

After a short discussion on the methods of installing sewerage on the main thoroughfares the meeting adjourned.

WIRE WOUNDS.

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better; until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds. Great Catches by French Trawlers.

Unprecedented catches of fish are continued to be taken by the French trawlers. So far the high liner of the fleet is the trawler Marsac, which a month ago left here for the grounds. At that time the Marsac had loaded in St. Pierre, before coming here, over $16,000 worth of codfish. Now word reaches here that she is on her way from the banks to the French colony with upwards of 4,000 quintals, which represents in money the tidy sum of $20,000 for one month's operations. This, the North Sydney Herald says, is believed to be the most successful trawler out from France this year, although with not a single exception, the fleet's securing immense catches, and the indications point to one of the best harvests ever reaped by the French trawlers operating on the Banks.

And I find Zylex Soap with the Ointment goes far to prevent heat rash altogether." Zylex sells at 150 cents a box; Zylex Soap at 25 cents a cake, at your Druggists. Zylex—London—Jyl18, eod, f.

Lifeboat to Cross Atlantic.

Mr. Einar Sivard, naval architect and superintendent of the Wellin Marine Equipment Company, is about to start across the Atlantic in a Lundin Power Lifeboat, the type asserted to be non-capsizable, non-smashable and practically unsinkable. His crew of five will include his young wife, Mrs. Signe Holm Sivard, to whom he was married recently, and who, in order to accompany her husband on this trip, will have to muster in as cook. The other members of the crew will be a navigator, a wireless operator, one engineer and one sailor.

The craft in which the trip will be made successfully, was launched on Wednesday, July 15th from the Yards of the Wellin Marine Equipment Co. at Long Island City. While it has been constructed especially for this journey, it differs only in size from power lifeboats of the same type designed for actual use on ocean liners. The new boat has a length of 36 feet and a beam of 12 feet, while the largest similar craft previously built is 30 feet long and 10 feet wide.

It is built of galvanized steel with a watertight deck about six inches above the load waterline. The space between this deck and the bottom is subdivided into numerous watertight compartments, several of which may become filled with water without in the least endangering the boat. A steel house with watertight portlights, doors and ventilators encloses all but a small part of the boat fore and aft, where short decks are provided for the helmsman and the outlook. With the house properly closed up, this type of boat has been proved to be self-bailing and self-righting and these qualities are not impaired by the presence within the house of the one hundred passengers, for the carrying of which, in time of emergency, the boat has been approved by the U. S. Steamboat Inspection Service. Along the sides of the boat are fitted heavy fenders of Balsa wood (the lightest wood in existence) that has been submitted to a special impregnating process serving at once to preserve the wood and to keep it from absorbing water. The fenders constitute an almost perfect guarantee against the smashing of such a craft when lowered from a ship.

The boat is equipped with a 32 horse power, four-cylinder, Standard Engine and gasoline tanks that will enable it to remain at sea for many days. It has also a Marconi Wireless apparatus with a radius of from 50 to 100 miles.

Mr. Sivard will start about July 25th and will go by way of Boston and Halifax to St. John's, Newfoundland. From there he will cross the ocean to Queenstown and will then proceed along the English coast to London. The total trip is expected to take a little more than a month and the open sea crossing about fifteen to seventeen days.

Enforce the Law.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I would be obliged, if you could grant space in your valuable columns for reporting what was nearly being a serious accident.

On Sunday evening four young men were walking over Harvey Road when a motor cycle with a chair attachment came along at such a pace that it was almost impossible to get out of the way. At the head of Garrison Hill it came so near one of them that it touched his hand, and if it had not been for his quickness he would have been seriously injured if not killed. Mr. Motor Driver went ahead at the same speed, laughing to his friend alongside him on the wheel and enjoying the narrow escape he had from doing damage.

What of the law about lights, numbers and speed?
Last night whilst coming up the side of Quidi Vidi Lake, no less than three motor cars passed up the road. The lights were only a flicker and the numbers on the cars could not be seen. What are the police doing in enforcing the law?
Yours truly,
PRO BONO PUBLICO.

PORTSMOUTH, July 20.
The British Home fleet, composed of over 200 fighting ships and an equal number of auxiliaries, including submarines and torpedo boat destroyers, was led out to sea by King George, this morning. His Majesty was on board the Royal Yacht, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill and other Lords of the Admiralty. At the entrance of the English Channel the yacht dropped anchor, and the ships in line were reviewed by the King while a fleet of sea-planes from Calshot Airship Station flew in pairs above the Royal Yacht, and circled about the slowly moving ships. It took the fleet two hours to pass before His Majesty.

The Eastern Trust Company has installed safety deposit boxes in its vault in the Pitts Building, Water Street. These boxes can be hired at a moderate rent by the year.

Persons making a will in which they appoint the Eastern Trust Company executor may deposit their wills in the vault of the Company without charge.

An impression has gone abroad that the Company charges a fee upon the making of a will which the Company is appointed executor. This is an error. The Company charges no fee until after the death of a testator and the Company has undertaken the execution of the trusts under the will. It then charges the same fee as is allowed to ordinary executors.

London, July 13.—The United States pure food laws are held up as a model by Alfred Moore, Secretary of the British Pure Food and Health Society, who upbraids the Englishman for his apathy along this line. The British public, he says, is defrauded of over $300,000,000 annually through adulterated foods, yet refuses to take the slightest interest in protective laws.

"In this country," asserts Mr. Moore, "the people seem to prefer to go on having plaster of paris in their flour, foreign fats and unwholesome preservatives in their butter, imitation cream, cheese with the rind made of barytes and tallow, redried tea leaves instead of tea, chicory instead of coffee, starch and powdered bean shells instead of cocoa, French chalk masquerading as rice, water and salicylic acid as wine, and so on ad nauseam."

Mr. Moore also charges that people tolerate filthy ways of handling foods.

B. I. S. Defeat Saints.

A FAIR EXHIBITION.
The B. I. S. defeated the Saints in last night's football match by a score of 1 goal to 0, after a game that was not in any way remarkable for brilliant play. On the whole, however, a good exhibition of clean play was given.

The game opened with the Saints defending the western goal. For a time play was fairly exciting, but not until a few minutes before half time was the first and only goal scored by Jackman, of the B. I. S., and the teams crossed with the score 1 to 0 in favor of that team.

SECOND HALF.
After the usual breathing spell, play was resumed and for a time the Saints kept the ball up field, and it looked as if they would equalize. Play was fairly even during the remainder of the second period, and though some good individual play was witnessed, both teams lacked combination. The B. I. S. forwards called upon Ross to save several times but he proved equal to the occasion and defended well.

When the final whistle sounded the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the B. I. S.

Mr. W. Hart acted as referee, and the players were:-

SAINTS—Ross, goal; Barnes, Dick, backs; Burns, Foster, Irvine, halves; Robertson, McLean, Baird, Ewing, Evans, forwards.

B. I. S.—Clare, goal; Kavanagh, T. Duggan, backs; Ryan, Brown, W. Duggan, halves; Simms, Jackman, Kearney, O'Driscoll, Kelly, forwards.

COMMENTS CHRISTIAN BROTHERS.

Before the Duke of Connaught left our shores, the Hon. J. D. Ryan, President of the Benevolent Irish Society, was presented to him by the Governor. His Royal Highness was much interested in the noble work done here by the Christian Brothers and expressed himself as highly pleased with their successful effort to provide practically free education for the children who attend their schools. He was pleased to find that the boys under the devoted attention of the Brothers were receiving a sound commercial education and were being fitted well to fight the battle of life. He hoped they would continue with their present success and that those who benefited by it would prove themselves worthy of the efforts of the good Brothers.

The Great Scully

INSTANTANEOUS SUCCESS.

Last night Rossieys had a good house and an extra good show Scully, the great London singer, actor and comedian, came as a refreshing change, a glimpse of London vaudeville. His imitation of a Jolly Jack Tar, was true to the life. He is full of life and go, never a moment still; his burlesque recitation of how he saved the ship, had the audience in roars. "He is all right, this chap," was remarked on every side, and those who could not be pleased with Scully's performance must be few and far between, for he certainly merited the vociferous applause accorded him, and the pictures were splendid. The River Pirates, An Innocent Thief, His Mother's Son, in fact each and everyone were capital subjects and beautifully portrayed by the best there is in the land of film making.

Fox Farming Ranchers Meet.

Mr. G. M. Barr took the chair. The following officers were elected:—
W. D. Reid, Esq., Hon. President.
Dr. Campbell—President.
J. W. Grant—Vice-President.
E. J. Berrigan—Sec.-Treasurer.
Dr. H. W. Eggleston—Hon. Vet. Surgeon.

Clarence Birdseye—Hon. Breeding Expert.

The Executive Committee consists of the President, the Vice-President, ex-officio, and Messrs. G. M. Barr, Charles Howard and Thomas Curran.

The Executive were empowered to appoint Vigilant Committees to see that the regulations were carried out and probably one for each district will be appointed.

The offer of Dr. Eggleston and Mr. Birdseye to give their professional services free for the benefit of the Association met with the commendation of the members. The name of the Association is The Newfoundland and Labrador Fox and Fur Breeders' Association.

Red McGhee says: It don't seem right somehow to rave, in this land of the free an' brave, about a titled gent. But Jim's ain't bad, so can you frown. He's Sunday Boss o' Rick & y's Browns. (He'd own the team in Lent.) On Sundaya Rickey bikes away to hear some of church organ play an' Jimmy takes the reins. An' Jimmy ain't no slouch, at that. He's got what Frenchmen call ee-clat—it's what we call just brains.

He's one peach on that Brownie (tee that ain't got any L.L.D. to tack behind his name. His letters run B A S E, then B A L L. Jim, y'see, was brought up in the game. But don't ship Jim the tough guy check—there's no sandpaper round his neck. He's clean, Jim is, an' square. He'll fight when someone drops the hat, an' what he thinks he tells you flat an' puts it to you fair.

At third his game is full o' snap. He keeps the ginger box on tap until the last man's down. His pep supply that never ends has made the scrappy Jimmy's friends in every Bar League town. At bat he swings from either side an' pounds o' Retch's finest hide at fair-to-middlin' pace. If Sunday happened every day o' Jim could keep the Browns away above that cellar place.

Smith Unintentionally Fouls Carpentier.

AND LATTER WINS IN SIXTH ROUND--VIEWS OF LONDON PRESS ON LAST NIGHT'S BOUT.

London, July 17.—George Carpentier, the 21-year-old French champion, won the white heavyweight championship of the world from Gunboat Smith, the American, last night in the sixth round on a foul. The blow for which the American was disqualified was neither studied nor intentional. It was launched in the heat of the whirlwind fighting, when the Frenchman had slipped to his knees, and the spectators saw the sailor recall and attempt to draw back almost as his arms flew out.

A majority of the papers agree that Smith's foul was wholly unintentional. Several of them say that Referee Corri for some time was of a mind to continue the fight.

The Daily Telegraph's expert says: "Descamps, by breaking into the ring, violated the rules and the verdict must have gone to Smith if Corri had not decided that the American had already forfeited the fight." The Daily Mail says, entirely unintentional blow has left not the slightest stain on Smith's honor as a boxer.

The Daily Chronicle says: Never was a foul blow less intentional or more surprising to the man who dealt it.

Observations to the same effect are made in virtually all the morning papers, and although it is generally agreed that the fight appeared to be Carpentier's, much sympathy is expressed for Smith and regret at the unfortunate ending.

The Morning Post considers that the combat lasted scarcely long enough to measure the men's merits adequately.

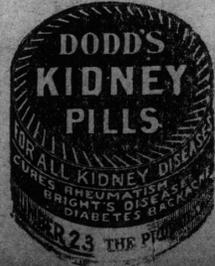

Lord Lansdale, seen after the fight, expressed the opinion that the blow which resulted in Smith's disqualification was due to the fact that Carpentier fights low.

The Times says: Carpentier owed nothing to luck and would probably have won decisively within ten rounds, but is abscond to accuse Smith of being a foul fighter. He merely made an unfortunate mistake, for which a sufficiently high penalty has been paid.

The Times' expert, in describing Carpentier's acquisition of a punch and his all round improvement, says: "He will never become a Fitzsimmons, but is perhaps the equal of Corbett, and now, we should say, the best white boxer in the world. He had the pace, intelligence and lissom compact necessary that all American big men lack, and is perhaps destined to expose the inadequacy of the current American idea as to the best type of glove fighter in the heavier divisions—the idea that a Jeffries can be improvised out of every gigantic person able to take a punch and give one if the other man will only stay still to receive it."

Great Crowd Present.

11,000 people were present and

many thousands who lacked the price of an admission ticket crowded around the entrances so that ticket holders had to fight their way through with the help of police.

Hundreds of French sportsmen, many accompanied by their wives, had crossed the English Channel to see the fight.

Americans were numerous and the uniforms of blue jackets from the battleships Missouri and Illinois were seen here and there.

At other recent boxing matches most of the women present belonged to the fashionable set, but last night many women of the middle class put in their appearance. A number of stewardesses, each of whom spoke several languages, waited upon the women.

There were four preliminaries, the first ending in a knockout. The next bout was a slugging match, in which Tom Leahy lost his temper and pushed the referee to the floor. Then Blake knocked him out forthwith.

At 9.45 Eugene Corri, the referee, stepped into the ring. Carpentier, then entered in a black silk gown.

Bombardier Wells challenged the winner.

Smith appeared in the ring at 9.52. The cheering for Smith hardly equalled that given to the Frenchman. The betting was 5 to 4 on Smith.

The enthusiasm of the house was with the Frenchman from the moment he stepped into the ring. His youth, his cheerful smile, his perfect body, combined to make him the very picture of an athlete. Gunboat Smith, tall, awkward and grim, towered over the French youth and appeared relatively bigger than he is because of Carpentier's crouching style of fighting.

In the first round, it seemed as if the American's superior strength would tell, but through the next three the Frenchman let himself out and showed power behind his blows apparently equal to the American's and with great swiftness. He landed a number of telling blows on the face and body with both hands and sent Smith down in a heap with a right to the kidneys in the fourth.

The Foul.

The Frenchman won a foul, but the popular judgment also awarded Carpentier the better of the fight on its merits. The Frenchman's marvellous quickness had not been exaggerated. He showed a left lead like a flash of lightning and a powerful and equally swift right. His footwork was wonderful.

When the French contingent carried Carpentier to his corner in the sixth round the utmost confusion reigned. The punch did not land squarely, but glanced off, and carried by the force of his blow, Carpentier swung round and slipped to his knees. Quickly Smith's right shot forth. He drew back and plainly would have withheld the blow on second thought. Then he stepped back and waited for the Frenchman to rise.

Just what happened to "Gunboat's" right is likely to be an everlasting cause of controversy. The men nearest to the ring disagree widely. Some say that it jolted Carpentier's spine hard at the back of the neck, some say it just grazed the neck, and others say it missed entirely.

The Frenchman's manager, Descamps climbed through the ropes, with seconds following and picked up the fighter, who was holding his head in a dramatic manner with both hands. Descamps carried Carpentier to the corner where he made a great business of rubbing and restoring him and then turning to the American fighter, poured forth a stream of excited French invective.

French and American camp followers poured into the ring and surrounded the referee. Shouts of "foul, foul," were raised. Everybody talked to the referee at once and the referee pointed to Carpentier, indicating that the Frenchman was the winner. Smith stood in his corner in a green robe, reluctant to leave the ring, while hundreds hooted him. Carpentier was brought to the ropes and thousands raised a great cheer for the Frenchman.

Household Notes

If there is trouble in whipping the cream, add a few drops of lemon juice. It will soon become thick. Care should be taken not to add too much, as that would make it sour.

If baby's bonnet strings are always mussy from much chewing, try making a strong strap of the material used for the bonnet, with a button to the cap, and it is comfortable and becoming.

A most certain way to remove rust stains is to hold the stain over a steaming tea kettle until the spot is thoroughly saturated, and while still holding it over the tea kettle pour lemon juice over the stain. It will entirely disappear.

When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs, there is sometimes a speck of the yolk slips into the white. To remove this dip a clean cloth into warm water and wring it dry. Touch the yolk with a point of the cloth, and it will cling to it at once.

It is not a bad idea to paint the shelves of the china closet black and hang the china on brass hooks. The china will show to more advantage against the black. This, of course, applies to the old-fashioned built-in variety of closet that is generally painted white.

Very good griddle cakes can be made with the odds and ends of stale bread. Break the bread up into small pieces and pour over them just enough milk for the bread to absorb. Soak this over night, and in the morning add an egg, a little flour, baking powder and enough milk to make them the proper consistency.

When washing summer lingerie the following plan is excellent: Wash carefully in the usual way, rinse thoroughly, omit starch, and when bone dry, dip in and out several times in a basin of warm water, in the proportion of one large tablespoonful to one quart of hot water, stirring until dissolved. Squeeze out as much moisture as possible, and roll in a Turkish towel for an hour.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Fidelity Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Lifeboat to Cross Atlantic.

Mr. Einar Sivard, naval architect and superintendent of the Welin Marine Equipment Company, is about to start across the Atlantic in a Lundin Power Lifeboat of the type asserted to be non-capsizable, non-smashable and practically unsinkable. His crew of five will include his young wife, Mrs. Signe Holm Sivard, to whom he was married recently, and who, in order to accompany her husband on this trip, will have to muster in as cook. The other members of the crew will be a navigator, a wireless operator, one engineer and one sailor.

The craft in which the trip will be made successfully, was launched on Wednesday, July 15th from the Yards of the Welin Marine Equipment Co. at Long Island City. While it has been constructed especially for this journey, it differs only in size from power lifeboats of the same type designed for actual use on ocean liners. The new boat has a length of 36 feet and a beam of 12 feet, while the largest similar craft previously built is 30 feet long and 10 feet wide.

It is built of galvanized steel with a watertight deck, about six inches above the load waterline. The space between this deck and the bottom is subdivided into numerous watertight compartments, several of which may become filled with water without in the least endangering the boat. A steel house with watertight portlights, doors and ventilators encloses all but a small part of the boat fore and aft, where short decks are provided for the helmsman and the outlook.

With the house properly closed up, this type of boat has been proved to be self-bailing and self-righting and these qualities are not impaired by the presence within the house of the one hundred passengers, for the carrying of which, in time of emergency, the boat has been approved by the U. S. Steamboat Inspection Service. Along the sides of the boat are fitted heavy fenders of Balsa wood (the lightest wood in existence) that has been submitted to a special impregnating process serving at once to preserve the wood and to keep it from absorbing water. The fenders constitute an almost perfect guarantee against the smashing of such a craft when lowered from a ship.

The boat is equipped with a 32 horse power, four-cylinder, Standard Engine and gasoline tanks that will enable it to remain at sea for many days. It has also a Marconi Wireless apparatus with a radius of from 50 to 100 miles.

Mr. Sivard will start about July 25th and will go by way of Boston and Halifax to St. John's, Newfoundland. From there he will cross the ocean to Queenstown and will then proceed along the English coast to London. The total trip is expected to take a little more than a month and the open sea crossing about fifteen to seventeen days.

Enforce the Law.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I would be obliged, if you could grant space in your valuable columns for reporting what was nearly being a serious accident.

On Sunday evening four young men were walking over Harvey Road when a motor cycle with a chair attachment came along at such a pace that it was almost impossible to get out of the way.

At the head of Garrison Hill it came so near one of them that it touched his hand, and if it had not been for his quickness he would have been seriously injured if not killed.

Mr. Motor Driver went ahead at the same speed, laughing to his friend alongside him on the wheel and enjoying the narrow escape he had from doing damage.

What of the law about lights, numbers and speed?

Last night whilst coming up the side of Quidi Vidi Lake, no less than three motor cars passed up the road. The lights were only a flicker and the numbers on the cars could not be seen. What are the police doing in enforcing the law?

Yours truly,
PRO BONO PUBLICO.

The Eastern-Trust Company has installed safety deposit boxes in its vault in the Pitts Building, Water Street. These boxes can be hired at a moderate rent by the year.

Persons making a will in which they appoint the Eastern Trust Company executor may deposit their wills in the vault of the Company without charge.

An impression has gone abroad that the Company charges a fee upon the making of a will which the Company is appointed executor. This is an error. The Company charges no fee until after the death of a testator and the Company has undertaken the execution of the trusts under the will. It then charges the same fee as is allowed to ordinary executors.

After one of the finest exhibitions of baseball seen in the city, the Red Lions defeated the Shamrocks last evening by a score of 3-2. The game was played at St. Bon's field, and was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The game throughout was keenly contested. The fielding of both teams was good, and the Shamrocks pitched remarkably well. The following was the line up:-

Lose $300,000,000 a Year.

London, July 13.—The United States pure food laws are held up as a model by Alfred Moore, Secretary of the British Pure Food and Health Society, who upbraids the Englishman for his apathy along this line. The British public, he says, is defrauded of over $300,000,000 annually through adulterated foods, yet refuses to take the slightest interest in protective laws. "In this country," asserts Mr. Moore, "the people seem to prefer to go on having plaster of paris in their flour, foreign fats and unwholesome preservatives in their butter, imitation cream, cheese with the kind made of barytes and talow, dried tea leaves instead of tea, chicory instead of coffee, starch and powdered bean shells instead of cocoa, French chalk masquerading as rice, water and salicylic acid as wine, and so on ad nauseam."

Mr. Moore also charges that people tolerate filthy ways of handling foods.

B. I. S. Defeat Saints.

A FAIR EXHIBITION.

The B. I. S. defeated the Saints in last night's football match by a score of 1 goal to 0, after a game that was not in any way remarkable for brilliant play. On the whole, however, a good exhibition of clean play was given.

The game opened with the Saints defending the western goal. For a time play was fairly exciting, but not until a few minutes before half time was the first and only goal scored by Jackman, of the B. I. S., and the teams crossed with the score 1 to 0 in favor of that team.

SECOND HALF.

After the usual breathing spell, play was resumed and for a time the Saints kept the ball up field, and it looked as if they would equalize. Play was fairly even during the remainder of the second period, and though some good individual play was witnessed, both teams lacked combination. The B. I. S. forwards called upon Ross to save several times but he proved equal to the occasion and defended well.

When the final whistle sounded the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the B. I. S.

Mr. W. Hart acted as referee, and the players were:-

SAINTS—Ross, goal; Barnes, Dick, backs; Burns, Foster, Irvine, halves; Robertson, McLean, Baird, Ewing, Evans, forwards.

B. I. S.—Clare, goal; Kavanagh, T. Duggan, backs; Ryan, Brown, W. Duggan, halves; Simms, Jackman, Kearney, O'Driscoll, Kelly, forwards.

FALMOUTH, July 20.—Shamrock IV, is making slow progress on the voyage to the States. Lipton's challenger for the America's cup and the steam yacht Erin, which is conveying her, were obliged to-day to seek shelter from an easterly gale in the harbor here.

LONDON, To-day.

There was some extremely heated criticisms to-day in Unionist clubs of the contemplated conference at Buckingham Palace between the leaders of the Liberal, Unionist, Nationalist and Ulsterite parties on the Home Rule Bill. The members of the Unionist party expressed the view that their party had been outmanoeuvred by Asquith and at a moment when through the House of Lords reconstruction of the amendments to the Home Rule Bill, they were in a better position than for a long time.

COMMENDS CHRISTIAN BROTHERS.

Before the Duke of Connaught left our shores, the Hon. J. D. Ryan, President of the Benevolent Irish Society, was presented to him by the Governor. His Royal Highness was much interested in the noble work done here by the Christian Brothers and expressed himself as highly pleased with their successful effort to provide practically free education for the children who attend their schools. He was pleased to find that the boys under the devoted attention of the Brothers were receiving a sound commercial education and were being fitted well to fight the battle of life. He hoped they would continue with their present success and that those who benefitted by it would prove themselves worthy of the efforts of the good Brothers.

The Great Scully

INSTANTANEOUS SUCCESS.

Last night Rossiers had a good house and an extra good show Scully, the great London singer, actor and comedian, came as a refreshing change, a glimpse of London vaudeville. His imitation of a Jolly Jack Tar, was true to the life. He is full of life and go, never a moment still. His burlesque recitation of how he saved the ship, had the audience in roars. "He is all right, this chap," was remarked on every side, and those who could not be pleased with Scully's performance must be few and far between, for he certainly merited the vociferous applause accorded him, and the pictures were splendid. The River Pirates, An Innocent Thief, His Mother's Son, in fact each and everyone were capital subjects and beautifully portrayed by the best there is in the land of film making.

Fox Farming 'Ranchers Meet.

Last night a number of persons interested in fox farming met in the rooms of the Board of Trade. They were mainly those residing within easy reach of the city, but others from Fortune Harbour, St. George, Codroy, Limeville, Grand Falls, Millertown Glenwood, Beaverton, Labrador were present either in person or by proxy.

Mr. G. M. Barr took the chair. The following officers were elected:—
W. D. Reid, Esq., Hon. President.
Dr. Campbell—President.
J. W. Grant—Vice-President.
E. J. Berrigan—Sec.-Treasurer.
Dr. H. W. Eggleston—Hon. Vet. Surgeon.
Clarence Birdssey—Hon. Breeding Expert.

The Executive Committee consists of the President, the Vice-President, ex-officio, and Messrs. G. M. Barr, Charles Howard and Thomas Curran. The Executive were empowered to appoint Vigilant Committees to see that the regulations were carried out and probably one for each district will be appointed.

The offer of Dr. Eggleston and Mr. Birdssey to give their professional services free for the benefit of the Association met with the commendation of the members. The name of the Association is The Newfoundland and Labrador Fox and Fur Breeders' Association.

But don't shp jim the tough guy check—there's no sandpaper 'round his neck. He's clean, Jim is, an' square. He'll light when someone drops the hat, an' what he thinks he tells you 'fat an' puts it to you fair.

At third his game is full o' snap. He keeps the ginger box on tap until the last man's down. His pep supply that never ends has made the scrappy Jimmy's friends in every Ban League town. At bat he swings from either side an' pounds of Resch's finest hits at fair-to-middlin' pace. If Sunday happened every day o' Jim could keep the Browns away above that cellar place.

LAI D TO REST.

All that was mortal of the late Patrick Walsh was laid to rest yesterday afternoon. The funeral was attended by a large concourse of citizens including representatives from the Star of the Sea and T. A. & B. Societies, of which bodies deceased was a life long member. At the Cathedral the Rev. Dr. Greene officiated; interment was at Belvedere Cemetery.

Obituary.

MRS. MARY MEANEY.
On Saturday night last, Mary, relict of the late Edward Meaney, passed away at Avondale, at the ripe old age of 81 years. The deceased lady had been in failing health for some years past. She was well known and highly esteemed in the community. She is survived by two sons, John T. of the Postal Telegraphs and Denis, of the R. R. Co.'s staff, and to these and the deceased lady's large circle of friends, the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

Regatta Notes.

There seems to be a lively interest in the Regatta.
Last evening not less than thirty crews were at the lake for practice. The new wharf erected for the "Guard", just before the Committee stand, has been completed. Several crews were out in the "Guard" last evening, including the crew who rowed the "Blue Peter" in the amateur race last year.
The "Shamrock" was put on the lake last evening, rowed by a crew of tradesmen.
Five factory crews, four truck crews and four crews of labourers are practicing.
Marshall Bros. are entering a crew in the mercantile race.
Mr. C. W. Ryan is a busy man these days attending to the wants of tent holders.

Smith Unintentionally Fouls Carpentier.

AND LATTER WINS IN SIXTH ROUND--VIEWS OF LONDON PRESS ON LAST NIGHT'S BOUT.

London, July 17.--George Carpentier, the 21-year-old French champion, won the white heavyweight championship of the world from Gunboat Smith, the American, last night, in the sixth round on a foul.

The blow for which the American was disqualified was neither studied nor intentional. It was launched in the heat of the whirlwind fighting, when the Frenchman had slipped to his knees, and the spectators saw the sailor recall and attempt to draw back almost as his arms flew out. A majority of the papers agree that Smith's foul was wholly unintentional. Several of them say that Referee Corri for some time was of a mind to continue the fight.

The Daily Telegraph's expert says: "Descamps, by breaking into the ring, violated the rules and the verdict must have gone to Smith if Corri had not decided that the American had already forfeited the fight."

The Daily Mail says, entirely unintentional blow has left not the slightest stain on Smith's honor as a boxer. The Daily Chronicle says: Never was a foul blow less intentional or more surprising to the man who dealt it.

Observations to the same effect are made in virtually all the morning papers, and although it is generally agreed that the fight appeared to be Carpentier's, much sympathy is expressed for Smith and regret at the unfortunate ending.

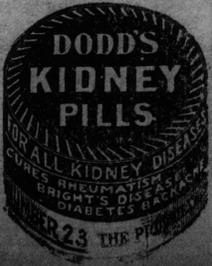

The Morning Post considers that the combat lasted scarcely long enough to measure the men's merits adequately.

Lord Lansdale, seen after the fight, expressed the opinion that the blow which resulted in Smith's disqualification was due to the fact that Carpentier fights low.

The Times says: Carpentier owed nothing to luck and would probably have won decisively within ten rounds, but it is absurd to accuse Smith of being a foul fighter. He merely made an unfortunate mistake, for which a sufficiently high penalty has been paid.

The Times' expert, in describing Carpentier's acquisition of a punch and his all round improvement, says: "He will never become a Fitzsimmons, but is perhaps the equal of Corbett, and now, we should say, the best white boxer in the world. He had the pace, intelligence and lissom compact necessary that all American big men lack, and is perhaps destined to expose the inadequacy of the current American idea as to the best type of glove fighter in the heavier divisions--the idea that a Jeffries can be improvised out of every gigantic person able to take a punch and give one if the other man will only stay still to receive it."

Great Crowd Present.
11,000 people were present and

many thousands who lacked the price of an admission ticket crowded around the entrances so that ticket holders had to fight their way through with the help of police.

Hundreds of French sportsmen, many accompanied by their wives, had crossed the English Channel to see the fight. Americans were numerous and the uniforms of blue jackets from the battleships Missouri and Illinois were seen here and there.

At other recent boxing matches most of the women present belonged to the fashionable set, but last night many women of the middle class put in their appearance. A number of stewardesses, each of whom spoke several languages, waited upon the women.

There were four preliminaries, the first ending in a knockout. The next bout was a slugging match, in which Tom Leary lost his temper and pushed the referee to the floor. Then Blake knocked him out forthwith.

At 9.45 Eugene Corri, the referee, stepped into the ring. Carpentier then entered in a black silk gown. Bombardier Wells challenged the winner.

Smith appeared in the ring at 9.52. The cheering for Smith hardly equalled that given to the Frenchman. The betting was 5 to 4 on Smith.

The enthusiasm of the house was with the Frenchman from the moment he stepped into the ring. His youth, his cheerful smile, his perfect body, combined to make him the very picture of an athlete. Gunboat Smith, tall, awkward and grim, towered over the French youth and appeared relatively bigger than he is because of Carpentier's crouching style of fighting.

In the first round, it seemed as if the American's superior strength would tell, but through the next three the Frenchman let himself out and showed power behind his blows apparently equal to the American's and with great swiftness. He landed a number of telling blows on the face and body with both hands and sent Smith down in a heap with a right to the kidneys in the fourth.

The Foul.
The Frenchman won a foul, but the popular judgment also awarded Carpentier the better of the fight on its merits. The Frenchman's marvellous quickness had not been exaggerated. He showed a left lead like a flash of lightning and a powerful and equally swift right. His footwork was wonderful.

When the French contingent carried Carpentier to his corner in the sixth round the utmost confusion reigned. The punch did not land squarely, but glanced off, and carried by the force of his blow, Carpentier swung round and slipped to his knees. Quickly Smith's right shot forth. He drew back and plainly would have withheld the blow on second thought. Then he stepped back and waited for the Frenchman to rise.

Just what happened to "Gunboat's" right is likely to be an everlasting cause of controversy. The men nearest to the ring disagree widely. Some say that it jolted Carpentier's spine hard at the back of the neck, some say it just grazed the neck, and others say it missed entirely.

The Frenchman's manager, Descamps climbed through the ropes, with seconds following and picked up the fighter, who was holding his head in a dramatic manner with both hands. Descamps carried Carpentier to the corner where he made a great business of rubbing and restoring him and then turning to the American fighter, poured forth a stream of excited French invective.

French and American camp followers poured into the ring and surrounded the referee. Shouts of "foul, foul," were raised. Everybody talked to the referee at once and the referee pointed to Carpentier, indicating that the Frenchman was the winner. Smith stood in his corner in a green robe, reluctant to leave the ring, while hundreds hooted him. Carpentier was brought to the ropes and thousands raised a great cheer for the Frenchman.

Household Notes

If there is trouble in whipping the cream, add a few drops of lemon juice. It will soon become thick. Care should be taken not to add too much, as that would make it sour. If baby's bonnet strings are always mussy from much chewing, try making a strong strap of the material used for the bonnet, with a button to the cap, and it is comfortable and becoming.

A most certain way to remove rust stains is to hold the stain over a steaming tea kettle until the spot is thoroughly saturated, and while still holding it over the tea kettle pour lemon juice over the stain, it will entirely disappear.

When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs, there is sometimes a speck of the yolk slips into the white. To remove this dip a clean cloth into warm water and wring it dry. Touch the yolk with a point of the cloth, and it will cling to it at once.

It is not a bad idea to paint the shelves of the china closet black and hang the china on brass hooks. The china will show to more advantage against the black. This, of course, applies to the old-fashioned built-in variety of closet that is generally painted white.

Very good griddle cakes can be made with the odds and ends of stale bread. Break the bread up into small pieces and pour over them just enough milk for the bread to absorb. Soak this over night, and in the morning add an egg, a little flour, baking powder and enough milk to make them the proper consistency.

When washing summer lingerie the following plan is excellent: Wash carefully in the usual way, rinse thoroughly, omit starch, and when bone dry, dip in and out several times in a basin of borax water, in the proportion of one large tablespoonful to one quart of hot water, stirring until dissolved. Squeeze out as much moisture as possible, and roll in a Turkish towel for an hour.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at low expense. Have you another insurance?
