A Terrible Disclosure ;
OR,
What Fools Men Are!

CHAPTER XX.

Clifford Revel was pacing his room on the evening of the same day. If it had been he, instead of Lord Edgar, who had been hurried from Assasin, he could not have looked more haggard and wan. Ever since they had been uttered, those words of the woman he had loved and sinned for had rung in his ears, "I hate and loathe him!"

With all his soul, base and vile as it was, he had loved her, and she had hated and loathed him!

It was hard—it was stern punishment—and it seemed to crush him and beat him down, though he tried to fight against it.

"I will not be crushed out!" he muttered, with clinched hands. "Other men have loved and been betrayed, and have borne it! Men who were of weaker mind than I, who had not the consolation that I have! For, though I have lost her—though I know now that I never could have won her—I have reached within grasp of my ambition! Between me and the marquise are an old man and his son, both on the brink of the grave. A few weeks, months—a year, and then—I, the hated Clifford Revel, will rule master of Farintosh!"

"Come in!" he broke off sharply, passing his hand over his lurid and harassed face. "Who is it?"

He turned his head as he asked the question, for the person who had entered was Nagle.

Clifford Revel uttered an oath—he was completely off his balance that night—and then laughed, sardonically.

"You!" he said. "You have come at an opportune moment, my friend. Close the door."

Nagle made no motion to obey, but walked to the table and put down his hat, and stood eyeing Clifford Revel with calm composure and freedom.

Clifford Revel flung the door to.

"Do you remember, when last we met, the advice I gave you?" he said, contemptuously. "I told you that the game you had just played was a dangerous one, and that, if it was discovered, you would probably be sent across the herring pond. I told you that, and advised you to go over the sea on your own account, did I not?"

"You did," assented Nagle, quietly. "Then, it was a pity you did not take my advice," sneered Clifford Revel, "for the game has been discovered, the whole thing is known, and I imagine that at this moment the hue and cry has commenced for the man who personated a clergyman at the mock marriage of Lord Edgar and Miss Temple."

"And what about the man who concocted the scheme, and bribed the mock person," said Nagle, quietly.

"What man?" demanded Clifford Revel, scornfully.

"The man who paid the mock clergyman two hundred and fifty pounds—"

Clifford Revel laughed.

"You are dreaming! There was no such man! I defy you to find him—to prove that he ever existed! Perhaps you refer to my cousin; is that it? Eh? He was the man who employed and bribed you! Well, it has been done before, but I should scarcely have thought that the upright and honorable Lord Edgar would have been so vile!"

"I mean," said Nagle, "the man who paid me the two hundred and fifty pounds—in bank notes!—and he drew a small bundle from his pocket. 'In notes!' With the numbers on them! A weak stroke, that, Revel! I drove down to the bank and traced those notes as having been paid to you that morning! It was weak, Revel, was it not?"

Clifford Revel started, and blushed—blushed with shame!

"You have me," he said, coolly, and he was getting cooler each moment.

"I admit it was weak! But what then? Are you going to remain and go into the dock with me?"

"We shall see," said Nagle, quietly. "At any rate, there will be only one charge against me. Now, as to you, there will be at least one other, and that a serious one. You are better up in law than I am, Revel; perhaps you can tell me the penalty which a man incurs who bribes a stable help to drug a race horse, such drugging resulting in the death of its rider?"

Clifford Revel stood motionless, looking at him.

"That rider happening to be the man standing between the briber and a title?"

"Why do you come here with such a feeble story as this?" said Clifford Revel, with a smile. "Say what it is you want, and get it, if you can, and go. How much?"

Nagle never raised his eyebrows. "That is practical," he said. "But there are two of us, Revel; the other one is outside the door. Permit me?"

And he opened the door, and in walked Mr. Bowen. He bowed to Clifford Revel, with a wooden kind of civility, and stood turning his hat in his hand, as if waiting to be questioned by anybody who chanced to care for the amusement.

"You know this gentleman, I think, Revel?" said Nagle, "and I think I can place full reliance on his word. Mr. Bowen, perhaps you will refer to your notes, and inform Mr. Revel of the results of the inquiries you have been conducting?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Bowen, in a matter-of-fact way, and he took out his pocketbook and dumpy pencil.

"22nd—Mr. Nagle called upon me, and instructed me to watch Mr. C. R. Did so. Found C. R. employed in arranging the Badmore race in the interest of Lord F.'s horse, Assasin. 23rd—Discovered that C. R., instead of backing Assasin, was laying against him secretly. Informed Mr. Nagle, who directed me to watch stables. Did so. 24th—Found that new stable help had been engaged by C. R.; that stable help and C. R. had spent an hour in top room. Stable help changed five-pound note afterward. Informed Mr. Nagle. Watched stable boy. Discovered that stable boy had bought powerful drug at chemist's. Advised Mr. Nagle to inform Lord F. Mr. Nagle decided to let plot ripen. 25th, day of race—Mr. Nagle to go down and inform Lady F. He found that Lady F. was not there. Telegraphed me to bring her—Was about to inform Lord F., when heard that he did not intend to ride. Was misinformed. Lord F. rode, and horse fell and threw him. Stable boy taxed with drugging horse; confessed, and is now in my house. If Lord F. dies, C. R. to be charged with murder! That is all," he wound up, with a calm bow.

All! As the monotonous voice had dropped out the damning evidence of his crime, Clifford Revel's heart sank lower and lower; his face grew white as death, and, as the word "murder" dropped seriously from Mr. Bowen's lips, he stared, and leaned against the table.

Nagle looked at him, with steadfast sternness.

"What have you to say?" he asked, quietly.

Clifford Revel forced a laugh; it sounded like a harsh croak in his own ears.

"Bah! A stable boy has been bribed to commit an ordinary turf fraud, and seeks to shelter himself behind me!"

"Strange coincidence that you should have bet against the horse, Mr. Revel," said Mr. Bowen, wondrously.

"Silence!" snarled Clifford Revel. "You hound. You take my money one day to betray me the next!"

"No, sir," said Bowen. "I took your money after I had earned it: I was then free to work for any one else. I have betrayed no secret of yours. I call upon Mr. Nagle to bear witness that I have told him nothing respecting you or your affairs," and a faint flush of honest indignation mantled on the detective's face.

Nagle waved his hand.

"It's of no consequence. Your own actions have betrayed you, Revel. You are caught in your own trap." As he spoke, he drew a paper from his pocket.

Clifford Revel eyed him watchfully.

"The last act in the farce," he said. "What is it? My patience is being exhausted!"

Nagle opened the paper, and laid it on the table.

"This," he said, "is a concise account of the circumstances attending the marriage!"

"Mock marriage, if you please," said Clifford Revel, with an evil smile. "As we are so candid, let us be precise."

"As you will," assented Nagle; "and a confession of your collusion with the stable boy. You will sign it."

Clifford Revel looked at him.

"And, of course, there is no mention of a gentleman named Nagle?" he said, scornfully.

"Look and see," said Nagle. "You will find that I have concealed nothing. See for yourself."

Clifford Revel took up the paper contemptuously, and read it—Nagle had not spared himself—then threw it down, and smiled.

"And if I refuse to sign?" he said.

"Mr. Bowen will place the matter—both matters—in the hands of the police," said Nagle, quietly.

Clifford Revel looked at him long and fixedly, with keen eyes and knitted brows.

"Nagle," he said, "will you tell me how you find your account in this? By this, if I sign it, you seal your own fate. Why do you do it? Why do you thrust your head into the noose?"

Nagle was silent for a moment. "I will tell you when you have signed it," he said. "Sign it you must, and you know it. Afterward, you are free to go—where you will."

Clifford Revel smiled.

"You don't know me, my dear fellow!" he said, "whether I sign it or not will make no difference to me. I shall not turn tail. Do you think I do not know that, come what may, the marquis cannot proceed against me? He thinks too much of his family name to prosecute the man who will presently bear it." He laughed.

"What can you do to me, you or he? Do what you will, my cousin is not married, and must die, and I shall be the Marquis of Farintosh." He took up the pen as he spoke, and wrote his name, with careless grace, and flung the paper to Nagle.

Nagle beckoned to Bowen, who witnessed it; then he wrote his own name under Bowen's, and, folding the paper, put it carefully in his pocket.

"Go outside, Bowen," he said. "Then, when they were alone, he said to Clifford Revel:

"Now, I will answer your question, Revel. First, Lord Edgar will not die; I have seen Sir James, and he has given Lord Edgar a long lease of life yet, humanly speaking. What, if it were not so; do you think that I would have made terms with a murderer? You are not so clever as I thought you, Revel."

"He cannot live!" said Clifford Revel, but his lips quivered, and betrayed that he knew Nagle had spoken the truth. "And—and if he should, do you suppose that he will marry that girl now?" and he laughed, defiantly. "Come, I will purchase that precious paper of you the day I am Marquis of Farintosh, Nagle! You shall name your own price!"

Nagle drew nearer, and said something—a few words only—in a low voice. Whatever they were, they affected Clifford Revel more than all else that had been said or done during the interview.

EARLY

WAR SUMMARY—GERMANY'S OFFENSIVE RESUMED.

Germany's great offensive on the West front has been resumed only brief artillery preparation. The blows have been struck by the Teutonic armies, which have been reorganized since disastrous losses were inflicted on them by the British and French armies during the Picardy and Flanders battles in March and April. The attack was on the line from Ypres to Loere, southwest of Ypres, on a 35-mile front from Ploeghelbe north of Soissons to Rheims. This known as the Aisne sector. In Flanders the Germans have gained virtually nothing, but further south Berlin reports claim that the German Crown Prince's troops have carried the entire ridge of the Chemin des Dames and are now fighting on the Aisne River. The German attack in Flanders is against positions taken by the French on Mar. 20th, when the French of Erulooze and Loere recaptured their line on the east side of Hill 44, which they had taken a few days before on the Aisne front. The present battle recalls the fearful fighting of last summer along the Chemin des Dames, where in weeks the German Crown Prince had his men against the French positions, only to see them crushed and beaten. Last year 75 divisions were engaged in the German attack along the line alone. The attack here is in the nature of a line straightening operation; it is being launched from Laon as a center and is aimed at the elbow in the line formed during the fighting in Picardy in March and April. Here, however, the Germans must face permanent works, which have been occupied by the French for long periods, and which can be defended quite easily. Evidence that Allied supreme command was forewarned of the new attack may be found in the fact that British troops are fighting there. Up to the present it had been believed that the British did not hold positions much south of the Somme. East of Amiens the German Crown Prince is in command in the sector, and this may indicate a serious effort to break the Allied line. Crown Prince Rupprecht, Bavaria is the nominal command in Artois and Picardy, and the German Crown Prince for dynamic reasons will strive to outdo whatever success was attained by his colleague. Further north it is probable that American troops are engaged in the fighting in both battles on the French front. It is known that American troops are close behind the Allied lines in Flanders, while some time ago it was reported they were near Rheims. The late official reports note quite severe fighting in various sectors, among them the Apremont forest, where the Americans are known to be holding positions at the present time. The reports say that the Germans were repulsed in all these attacks. It is officially reported from Washington that American positions in Picardy near Cantigny and Montdidier have been subjected to attack and at places the enemy penetrated them. He, however, was driven out by the Americans.

Almost coincident with the new German offensive the Italians launched a blow at the Austrian lines in the mountain range to the northwest of Lake Garda, according to a report and captured Monticello Pass, the village of Presna, Monte Zigolon at the mountain spur to the east. Before them lie parallel streams leading down into the Logarina valley, and they successfully carry out their attack there. It is possible for them to outflank the entire Austrian position in the north of Italy.

A long range bombardment of Paris has been resumed after an interval during which it was believed the German gun had been silenced.

BRITAIN CONFIDENT.

LONDON, May 27. Germany's long awaited offensive on the battle front in France opened this morning at two points, where had been expected, between Rheims and Soissons in Flanders. In the latter region it is another attempt to reach the hill positions west of Kemmel and to pinch the British holding the Ypres salient. The attack in the Rheims-Soissons sector doubtless is a formidable blow by which the Germans hope to shatter the French army, a similar attempt against the British further north having failed.

That General Foch, the Entente supreme commander, anticipated Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's plans in the Champagne was disclosed in yesterday's German official statement, which announced British troops had been captured in a raid in this region. The first result of the German offensive was not disclosed in the British official communication issued this morning, but the confidence which Premier Lloyd George expressed at Edinburgh on Saturday gives the British public hope that it will fall far behind the previous ones.

ATTACK SO FAR HAS FAILED WITH THE BRITISH ARMY.

FRANCE, May 27.—Von Hindenburg's troops have thus far met with failure virtually at all points in their attack

EARLY MESSAGES

WAR SUMMARY—GERMANY'S OFFENSIVE RESUMED.

Germany's great offensive on the West front has been resumed with only brief artillery preparation. Two new attacks have been struck by the Teuton armies, which have been reorganized after disastrous losses were inflicted on them by the British and French armies during the Picardy and Flanders battles in March and April. One attack was on the line from Ypres, south to Loire, southwest from Pinon, other on a 35-mile front from Pinon north to the Aisne sector. In Flanders the Germans have gained virtually nothing, but further south the British report claims that the German Crown Prince's troops have carried the entire ridge of the Chemin des Dames and are now fighting on the Aisne River. The German attack in Flanders is against positions taken by the French on May 20th, when they recaptured Bruuloze and Loire and strengthened their line on the east side of Hill 44, which they had recaptured a few days before on the Aisne front. The present battle recalls the fighting of last summer along the Chemin des Dames, where for weeks the German Crown Prince hurled his men against the French positions, only to see them crushed and beaten. Last year 75 divisions engaged in the German attack along this line alone. The attack here is really of the nature of a line straightening operation; it is being launched from Loire as a center and is aimed at the blow in the line formed during the fighting in Picardy in March and April. Here, however, the Germans must face permanent snorks, which have been occupied by the French for long periods, and which can be defended quite easily. Evidence that the Allied supreme command was forewarned of the new attack may be seen in the fact that British troops are fighting there. Up to the present it had been believed that the British did not hold positions much south of the Somme. East of the Aisne, the German Crown Prince is in command in the sector, and this may indicate serious effort to break the Allied line. Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria is the nominal commander in Artois and Picardy, and the German Crown Prince for dynastic reasons will strive to outdo whatever success was attained by his colleagues. Further north it is probable that American troops are engaged in the fighting in both battles. On the French front it is known that American troops are close behind the Allied lines in Flanders, while some time ago it was reported they were near Rheims. BRITAIN CONFIDENT.

LONDON, May 27.—Germany's long awaited offensive on the battle front in France opened this morning at two points, where it had been expected, between Rheims and Soissons in Flanders. In the latter region it is another attempt to reach the hill positions west of Kemmel and to pinch the British holding the Ypres salient. The attack in the Rheims-Soissons sector doubtless is a formidable blow by which the Germans hope to shatter the French army, a similar attempt against the British further north having failed. That General Foch, the Entente supreme commander, anticipated Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's plans in the Champagne was disclosed in yesterday's German official statement, which announced British troops had been captured in a raid in this region. The first result of the German offensive was not disclosed in the British official communication issued this morning, but the confidence with which Premier Lloyd George spoke at Edinburgh on Saturday gives the British public hope that it will fall as the previous ones.

ATTACK SO FAR HAS FAILED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—Von Hindenburg's troops have thus far met with failure generally at all points in their attack against the French in the Loire sector. The Reuter correspondent at headquarters in France describes the German bombardment as scarcely less violent than that which heralded the enemy along on March 21st. Gas shells were employed in great quantities, and the bombardment and infantry attack between Soissons and Rheims were on a more formidable scale than in Flanders.

TWO ENTIRE ARMIES IN FIGHT.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, May 27.—The uncanny silence along the whole French front in the past few days was mostly a prelude to a most bitter attack-to-day by the enemy along an extended front stretching from Pinon almost to Rheims. While there are no indications, it is most probable that the entire armies of General Von Boehm and General Franz Below, under the supreme control of the Imperial Crown Prince, have been thrown into the struggle.

GERMANS MAKE PROGRESS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27. (By the Associated Press).—The latest reports show that the Germans have made some small progress in places. The attack of the Germans in the sector north-west of Kemmel appeared to be directed against the ground captured by the French on May 20th.

BELGIANS DEFEAT GERMAN ATTACKS.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Early this morning the enemy bombarded a great depth of the line from south of the Ypres canal to Ouderdom and west of Oudre. The enemy infantry attacked at half-past four, the Germans apparently attempting to recover the ground which the French took on May 20th. Around Loire and Lacytts they are reported to have made slight progress at some places. Fierce fighting is still in progress. There is no reason to assume that the present operations are more than local, designed to restore or improve the enemy's positions at Scherpenberg and Montroge. The Belgians defeated all the German attempts to push back the defences between Ypres and Houthulst forest. The weather is fairly fine and clear in Flanders.

BRITISH PRESSED BACK.

LONDON, May 27.—Germany's offensive on the new front in France is not on the extensive scale of previous attacks. The Evening Standard says it understands at one point in the neighborhood of Rheims, the enemy pressed back the British troops for a short distance.

SITUATION WELL IN HAND.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—The German bombardments this morning were scarcely less violent than those preceding the offensive of March 21st. Gas shells were prodigally employed, the northeasterly winds diffusing the gas widely over the Allied front. The most intensive fire was between the Ypres Canal and the forest of Nieppe, while the arm west of Lens and the Scarpe valley was also heavily bombarded. The enemy is heavily shelling the far back areas with high velocity guns and airmen are unusually venturesome, although our aviators are harassing and chasing German machines to a degree which does not leave them much opportunity to carry out their functions. The British on the French flank have been engaged. The Germans came on in their familiar formations of dense waves, keeping close in the wake of their lifting barrage. Against the first heavy shock the French stood stoutly on the left and centre, but were pressed back slightly in the vicinity of a farm on the right during the morning. The Germans, with characteristic recklessness of cost continue to push up fresh troops, and the French were obliged to yield more ground. Subsequently counter attacking, they restored their line in most places, making prisoners of over one hundred Germans. The enemy at the time of writing, have a footing in the French front line south of Arkebusch for a distance of 800 yards, and also have some hold on another point of the front line system in this region. The situation, however, appears to be well in hand. Reports from the battle front breathe confidence. The British and French artillery are harassing the German positions intensely, and enemy casualties must be most heavy.

SUCCESSFUL BOMBING OPERATIONS.

LONDON, May 27.—An Admiralty statement issued tonight says: "Bombing operations have been carried out against Marabek and Zebrugga where bombs were observed to fall close to the lock gates of the Canal. Nearly three tons were also dropped on the Brugges docks Wednesday night. All of our machines returned safely. In home waters numerous flights by the escort, patrol and other anti-submarine duties were carried out. Submarines were sighted and attacked, and enemy mines were located over the North Sea."

AUSTRALIA'S DEBT.

Melbourne, Australia, May 27 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—It was announced in the House of Representatives that the sale of next year's exportable surplus of butter to the Imperial Government is being negotiated. Acting Premier Watt, the Federal Treasurer, stated that the total debt of the Commonwealth is 9,000,000,000 sterling, including 148,000,000 of Commonwealth war loans, and 249,000,000 war loans from the Imperial Government. This represented an annual interest of 225,000,000.

QUEENSLAND SPEEDING UP RECRUITING.

Brisbane, Australia, May 27 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—With the slogan, "March for Freedom," Queensland's latest recruiting effort was inaugurated amid enthusiastic scenes and a parade of soldiers through the streets. Premier Ryan and others made farewell speeches to a force which entrains at Stentrop, whence it marches to Brisbane, gathering recruits en route.

SCOTLAND SAYS "STAND FAST."

London, May 27 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Before returning to London from Scotland, Premier Lloyd George, interviewed by the Glasgow Herald, said he was very much impressed by the determination of the Scottish people to see the war through. The message Scotland had given him was to stand fast. The Premier continued, "Scotland is as firm as her mountains. If there is any change between last year and this year, it is an even deeper note of resolve of absolute unity and quiet determination, and the subordination of everything to the prosecution of the war. The people of Scotland have their minds fixed upon defeating the terrible menace threatening the world. They decline to consider anything else until this is done, and they are absolutely right."

AIR REPRISALS TAKING EFFECT.

London, May 27 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Telegraphing from Amsterdam, Reuter's correspondent states that the Frankfurt Zeitung is greatly concerned over the Allied air reprisals. It asks whether Von Hertling, the German Chancellor, would consider it a sign of weakness to suggest to the enemy that they come to an understanding in regard to aerial raids. The newspaper says, "It has always been its conviction that that military advantages of these raids on a peaceful-homeland are insignificant compared with their frightfulness."

AUSTRALIA SHIPPING WHEAT CARGOES.

New Melbourne, May 27 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Following the recent announcement of Hon. Mr. Watt that payments totalling $4,750,000 would be made in June, July and August in connection with the wheat pooling arrangements, there is now considerable activity in shipping wheat cargoes. VIVE LA FRANCE.

The silver streak of the English Channel no longer divides England and France. That waterway over which Napoleon Bonaparte cast his eye and lamented that it stood in the way of his successful invasion of Great Britain need no more be regarded as a barrier. England and France, former hereditary enemies have become united for aye and the white cliffs of Dover and the beaches of Boulogne will never again sound the warlike preparations of the people of "Merrie England" and "Sunny France" for battle against each other. Henceforward they will be brothers in arms in keeping the peace of the world, as they are brothers in arms to-day in the gigantic struggle against the enemies of democracy. No stronger evidence of this can be adduced than the remarkable and unique feature of the universal celebration of Empire Day by the French people on May 24th. For the first time in history a day peculiar to the life and traditions of the British Empire, was enthusiastically and joyfully made the occasion for a general demonstration on the part of our chivalry in Europe, and in thus honoring the day, the French Republic "has mingled her vows with those of the British Empire, solidly united for the salvation of civilization." Thus Empire Day takes on a new meaning to the world, because "it becomes a celebration in honor of the rights of civilization and the festival of a noble people in a fight against barbarism." Only in this way has it become plainly apparent to other countries, which hitherto had misunderstood the British people and British ways, that to Britons is due the credit for being the founders of that civil and political liberty which is now the bulwark of European freedom. The various speakers in the different cities of France on Friday last emphasized that the naval factor was decisive and they could thank the Maritime Supremacy of Great Britain for the fact that the Entente can look to the future without concern. President Poincaré's message to King George V. assured His Majesty that the whole of France would associate itself with the celebration of Empire Day, and the magnificent efforts Great Britain and her Dominions had made in the war would be explained. French and British hearts everywhere now beat as one: French and British blood had mingled on the battlefields; French and British dead sleep side by side; deeds of heroism and afflictions, gloriously born, draw the two nations together forever, in unalterable intimacy and friendship. His Majesty's reply was couched in most dignified, yet warm language and our King was profoundly touched by the cordial and inspiring messages which the President of the French Republic had sent him. "It is," His Majesty replied, "a generous impulse on the part of yourself and the French people to associate themselves in this manner with a celebration which for us symbolizes the strength and unity of our race, and it is with pride and sincere gratitude that we acknowledge this so appropriate a tribute to the solidarity of our alliance, and the deep rooted amity which has grown up between our two peoples. I thank you from my heart for your generous acknowledgment of the efforts made by my Empire in the sacred cause in which the French and British peoples are indissolubly united. The splendor of the achievements attained by the glorious French nation, against the menace of tyranny and barbarism will be blended in our hearts with thoughts of our own endeavours and successes. French heroism and sacrifice cannot fail at length to be rewarded by the attainment of our joint ideals of Justice and Civilization and be crowned by a lasting union between our two peoples." As citizens of that mighty Empire upon whose lands the sun never sets, it is a cause for our rejoicing that the Entente Cordiale has been more firmly cemented by this exchange of greetings between the King-Emperor and the Republican President. Empire Day, 1918, will stand out prominently in the annals of the two races, and the historian of a thousand years hence will marvel at the Anglo-French sentiment of 1918 and wonder how, in the short period of one hundred years that an almost universal hatred developed into a most sincere friendship and a permanent alliance of fraternity. We may well take our hats to France and Frenchmen. Brave fighters, gallant gentlemen, sincere friends, the rose, thistle and shamrock, may now be entwined with the lilacs, and with the wondrous light of this international accord there is the promise that "Peace shall soon over all the earth, her ancient splendours fling." Again we say VIVE LA FRANCE!

Hutchings, under (b); Owen Chipman, under (b); Aubrey Sparks, under (d); George Parsons, under (b); John A. Brown, under (d); Lockyer Snow, under (b); Martin A. Sparkes, under (d); Lawrence Glasco, under (b); Duffe Noah, under (b); John Tarbett, under (d). The tribunal sits again this afternoon.

Resolution and Reply.

Copy of Resolution Passed at General Meeting of Returned Soldiers, May 26th, 1918.

Whereas Mr. John R. Bennett, Minister of Militia, has left the country immediately after the proclamation of the Military Service Act and the appointment of the Military Service Board of which he is the only member who is also a Minister of the Crown or a member of the Legislature. And Whereas in our opinion his presence here in both of those capacities is essential to a proper enforcement of the Military Service Act and the organization of the work of the Military Service Board.
Be it therefore resolved that this, the first general meeting of the Great War Veterans Association of Newfoundland, expresses its settled conviction that the Minister of Militia should immediately return to Newfoundland and assume the duties pertaining to his office of Minister of Militia and representative of the Government on the Military Service Board.
And be it further resolved that this Resolution be communicated to His Excellency the Governor and that in the event of the Minister of Militia not deciding to return at once His Excellency be respectfully requested to communicate this Resolution to the Imperial Authorities.

Government House, St. John's, Nfld., 26th May, 1918.

Sir,— I am desired by His Excellency the Governor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant covering copy of a Resolution of protest against the departure of the Minister of Militia on public service, which urges his immediate return.
The Governor readily appreciates the view so strongly pressed in this Resolution, at the same time he thinks that the War Veterans Association may have overlooked other considerations, viz.: that some time ago it was thought desirable for the Minister to visit the Regiment in England, but it was felt essential to postpone the visit till after the session was over; and Mr. Bennett only proceeded in pursuance of this plan as soon as opportunity offered.
The special subject of the visit is to see the men of the Regiment at Winchester, to co-ordinate work between his Department and the Base Record Office, and also to make it as far as possible secure that the Regiment shall retain its place in the 29th Division. The decision to allow the Minister to go was a decision of the Executive Government and though the Governor understands that it is open to challenge yet he does not consider it desirable to revoke such a decision at the instance of any body, however influential, which does not know the full particulars.
His Excellency desires me to point out that the Military Service Board came into existence after all arrangements had been made for the Minister's departure, and after the Imperial Government had been informed of the proposed visit. It may however be of interest to you to know that the Governor impressed upon the Minister of Militia the importance of making his stay as brief as possible, and Mr. Bennett was himself extremely anxious to cut it short.
I am so glad that a copy of the Resolution is being transmitted to the Secretary of State and that you are at liberty to publish this letter if you should think fit.
I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant, (Sgd.) J. H. CAMPBELL, CAPT. & A.D.C. The President of the Soldiers and Rejected Volunteers Assn. P. O. Box 1177, St. John's.

Personal.
Mr. J. A. Dunbar, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Pogo, is at present in town on vacation, and is registered at the Grosbie.
Miss Jennie L. Kendall, who graduated several years ago at St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, has joined the American Red Cross and left recently for France and will take up her work in the U. S. Army Base Hospital, No. 37. The unit comprises 85 graduate nurses. Miss Kendall is a daughter of the late Rev. William Kendall, a well known Methodist clergyman, and a sister of Sergt. Roy Kendall, of Ours, who is now in Wandsworth Hospital suffering from diphtheria, contracted in France.
Capt. T. Kean, of Wesleyville, who has been in the city on business, leaves for his home by schooner to-day.

Deaconesses.
The closing exercises of the Methodist National Training School and Toronto Deaconess Home, of which Rev. Hiram Hull is the popular supt. were held last week. The report gave interesting figures. There were 14 deaconesses in residence, and the total number of students was 88, of whom 17 graduate. Of these six will enter deaconess work, two Women's Missionary Society work, two the work of the General Board of Missions, one the Social Service Department of the Methodist Church, and the remainder home service.
Among the graduates we note the names of George A. R. Clark, B.A., of Moncton, N.B., and Edith Snelgrove, St. John's, Nfld. A deaconess must serve a two years' probation before being licensed. This splendid institution has made great advancement in profitable work during the past few years and gives promise of further expansion.—The Wesleyan.

William O'Brien vs. Gordon Lester. JUDGMENT.

This is a prosecution taken by William O'Brien, Health Inspector, against Gordon Lester, farmer, for a breach of Section 9 of certain rules and regulations made under the authority of Section 9, Inspection of Foods Act, 1914, approved by the Governor in Council and published by the order of the Colonial Secretary in the Royal Gazette of date March 19th, 1918.
The Health Inspector deposed to the following facts: On the 10th of May the Defendant and deposited three cans of milk at the bakery of Charles Johnson. The Complainant who was present at the time took samples of the milk from the cans of the Defendant, and offered to divide them with him (as required under the Regulations) and the Defendant declined. Those samples were taken to Mr. D. James Davies, Government Analyst, who submitted, in his evidence the following result: "May 10th, 1918. Sample of Milk labelled Gordon Lester, Sample of Milk, May 10th, 1918, No. 2 Received at Laboratory at 10.15 a.m., May 10th, 1918, and analysed immediately.
Analytical Results.
Total Solids 8.24 %
Solids not fat 6.05 %
Butter fat 2.19 %
Added Water calculated on the basis of the minimum percentage (6.5%) of Solids not fat laid down in the New Milk Regulations equals 28.8% (Sgd.) D. James Davies, B.Sc., P.C.S., M.S., Public Analyst, Government Analyst."
It was further proven upon the evidence of Mrs. Stone that she had sold the Defendant six quarts of skimmed milk on the 10th of May, and this milk was mixed with the supply delivered by the Defendant to Johnson on the morning of the 11th.
At the close of the case for the Prosecution, Mr. Dunfield, Counsel for the Defendant, moved for a dismissal of the Complaint upon the grounds that the Prosecution had not sufficiently proved the publication of the Regulations under which the Defendant was charged. He contended the mere handing in of a copy of the Royal Gazette containing the Regulations was not sufficient.
The Gazette, as other Newspapers, require to be proved on the evidence of the Colonial Secretary or a clerk with whom an acknowledged copy has been filed.
The point raised by Mr. Dunfield as to the absence of proper proof of the publication of the Regulations is well taken.
The position with regard to the proof of the Royal Gazette in this Dominion is, in my opinion, as it was in England prior to the year 1868. In 1868 the Royal Statute in force in England and in this Dominion, which inter alia enacts that the production of a copy of the Royal Gazette purporting to contain the Proclamation or the Regulation, is prima facie evidence of its publication.
This Act, however, does not apply to the Proclamations or Regulations made by the Governor in Council in this Dominion, as we have a right to enact our own legislation in all such matters. I can find any enactment which renders it unnecessary to prove the Royal Gazette as the evidence of the proper officer.
The Legislature, not having passed a similar Act to the English Statute, I am therefore of opinion the position in Newfoundland is the same as existed in England before 1868, and the Colonial Secretary, or his clerk, and proved the publication of the Regulations by the production of the official copy of the Royal Gazette filed in the Colonial Secretary's Department. The Gazette is now in Court merely as an exhibit in the Complaint.
Dated at St. John's this 28th day of May, A.D. 1918.
(Sgd.) F. J. MORRIS, Judge.

Hun Agent in Canada Should Be Shot.

Regina.—What bears the earmarks of a successful attempt by Hun agents to delay farming operations in Canada has been discovered by the Port Moresby, which concern is responsible for manufacturing the Fordson tractor now being used extensively in the west in connection with farm work. Information shows that some one, presumably an employee of the factory, tampered with the tractor before they left the east with the result that shipments arriving in the west have had to be held from delivery to purchasers in order that certain repairs might be made before they could be used.
It has been found that the oil pipe of the tractor has in some cases been filled up with tin-foil and in other cases shorn a richer flavour. In making this part of the machinery useless.

Household Notes.
Ammonia water, instead of soap, for cleaning white paint, will clean it perfectly without darning.
The vinegar in which pickles have been preserved can be used over and over again for this purpose.
A bit of butter put into the top of the apples before they are baked will give them a richer flavour.
Old carpets and old clothes, converted into rags, are worth much more than when sold to the ragman.
Food put into the oven to warm is often forgotten and goes to waste. To avoid this set the alarm clock.
Baked beans will be more digestible if a teaspoonful of ginger is put into them.
Add a few chopped tomatoes to the scrambled eggs. The flavour will be very good.
When you punch the holes for crystal work, lay the linen on a cake of white soap.
If very warm bedroom slippers are desired, they can be lined with Shaker flannel.

FAILED TO REACH OBJECTIVES.
WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE.—Launching a heavy offensive at dawn to-day, against the French in the Loere-Voormozele sector, the enemy failed of their objectives at vital important places. At some points defending patrols were driven in, but vigorous counter attacks threw them back, at most places practically reestablishing the whole French line. Hard fighting at this hour continues on the northern part of the front. Just south of Duckenbush Lake, the Germans forced their way into the French line for a distance of 800 yards, and got into the front line system at another point in this region. In these places the enemy was clinging desperately to the newly acquired possessions, but the French were dealing with the situation, which appeared satisfactory at latest reports. One hundred prisoners have been sent back to the French cages. To-day's attack was perhaps preliminary to larger operations, and apparently has been undertaken for the purpose of regaining the high ground which the French wrested from the Huns. Such possessions as Bruloos, and neighboring places, would be valuable acquisitions for the Huns, if the Germans were to develop a general attack in this region later. It is interesting to note of connection with to-day's drive in Flanders that the Germans considered their attacks on the Lys front in April, to be a failure, according to prisoners. It is stated that while some troops have been complimented for the way in which they fought, they have been told that their failure was the result of staff work. The General in charge of the operations here was relieved of his command.

EMPLOYING USUAL FORMATIONS.
LONDON, To-day. On a more formidable scale than in Flanders, the Germans, according to this correspondent, employed their familiar formations—dense waves of infantry following closely in the wake of a lifting barrage, and they pushed fresh troops up with characteristic recklessness. Among the signs of a resumption of the grand offensive, are, that the enemy is heavily shelling our far back areas with high velocity guns, and also his airmen are unusually venturesome. A note of confidence comes in the reports from the battle front.

GERMANS ATTACKING HEAVILY.
LONDON, To-day. The attack against the sector of Berry-au-Bac, held by the British, was partially successful by reason of an intense bombardment by gas shells, and the use of tanks, and after heavy fighting the British on the left were pressed back to prepared positions, constituting the second line. The text of the statement at 3.30 a.m. to-day says: The British divisions holding a sector of the French front, astride the Alsne at Berry-au-Bac, between Seclouart and Craucelle, were heavily attacked and at the same time, hostile attacks in great strength were made against the French, immediately on the right, and the French divisions on the left, along the high ground, traversed by the Chemin des Dames, was supported by tanks and accompanied by an intense bombardment with gas shells. On our right our troops maintained their bat-

Why Stories Fall Flat.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A story told by a neighbor of mine to a group of us, the other evening, fell very nearly flat. There was only one person in the group who had that exceedingly rare gift—the ability to laugh when one is not really amused. The rest of us gave those queer chuckles or chuckles, or whatever you call them, which are the average person's sickly substitute for laughter on such occasions. My neighbour was surprised. Later, he told me that he could not see why that story hadn't taken. "I thought it was awfully funny when I heard Mr. C. tell it," he said. But he wouldn't have wanted to hear. So did I. And if I hadn't known that he wouldn't care to hear, I could have told him why it wasn't funny when he told it. It is Mr. C.'s own pet story and he knows just how to tell it. He leads up to the point with just enough detail, just enough delineation of character, to give it reality without weighing it down. My neighbour is also a good story teller, but that was not one of his own stories and he hadn't gotten the hang of it. He over-weighted the first part with detail, did too much character delineation, and thus over balanced the story. He had his hearers expecting much more of a denouement than he had to give them. It takes As Much Knack to Tell a Story, As to Write One. To tell a story well requires quite as much knack (though of a different sort) as to write one. Comparatively few people are born with, or acquire, this knack. Equally few can be persuaded that they do not possess it. Even without this knack, however, one may tell a story passably well if one will avoid certain pitfalls. Don't tell stories that require so involved in them, that the listener has COMPLEXION COMPLAINTS. Many a woman seems to think that complexion care means a few minutes spent each day on that small surface of skin covering the facial bones, which is a very foolish assumption. Nothing ruins the complexion like a domineering disposition, a temper that is not controlled, a nature that forever seeks and never gives, or a tendency to brooding and discontent. Sharp, thin lips, sagging lines about the mouth, a nasty scowl when the face is unconscious of scrutiny, will be the betrayers. Only the face that mirrors a sunny nature. Full of love and good will, locks young at thirty and keeps young even through the forties.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Mother when is the proper time to send flowers to a funeral and what should I write on the card?" asked May. "Flowers may be sent any time before the funeral, only be careful to have them arrive several hours before the service, as it is most disconcerting to have florists' boxes coming in at the last moment." "The card alone is sufficient. You may pencil 'with sincere sympathy,' however, if you like," answered her mother.

Just Folks.

THE FINEST FELLOWSHIP.

There may be finer pleasures than just tramping with your boy. And better ways to spend a day, than may sweeter joy. There may be richer fellowship than that of son and dad. But if there is, I know it not; it's one I've never had. Oh, some may choose to walk with kings and men of pomp and pride, But as for me, I choose to have my youngster at my side. And some may like the rosy ways of grown-up pleasures glad, But I would go a-wandering with just a little lad. Yes, I would seek the woods with him and talk to him of trees, And learn to know the birds a-wing and hear their melodies. And I would drop all worldly care and be a boy awhile, Then hand-in-hand come home at dusk to see the mother smile. Grown men are wearisome at times, and selfish pleasures jar, But sons and dads throughout the world the truest comrades are. So when I want a perfect day with every joy that's fine, I set the lad open with that little lad o' mine.

AN IMMORAL MAN.

WALT MASON

Old Hindenburg who m Teutons praise, s h o u l d draw ten dollars or ten days. His name each day, in lurid tints, appears in all the public prints, and a l w a y s linked with some punk deed that makes the reader's home is so keen to fight and slay, he desecrates the Sabbath day, and makes men in the tending kirk. His misdemeanors never cease; some new disturbance of the peace is charged against him every day; he shoots the statute books away. Discharging firearms is his fad; although there is in every grad a law forbidding men to shoot—but laws don't worry that old Teut. He trespasses on farmers' land, and spoils the crops to beat the band. "No Hunting" signs he doubtless sees for they are nailed up on the trees, but signs don't stop this lawless Hun, with his long range breech loading gun. We may be sticklers, even cranks, but we grow weary of his pranks. A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men, but when a cut-up takes no rest, but plays his tricks with growing zest, and spoils our hats, and steals our sheep, and fires our whiskers while we sleep, our patience soon or late will fail, and we'll escort him to the jail.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAITHER IN COWS.

Intensive Cultivation

OF THE POMME DE TERRE.

Dear Sir,—It was a shock to me upon picking up your paper Saturday, to find that on top of my remarks to the effect that we should increase our potato production, that whilst agreeing with me, you should write an editorial upon the subject, and to a certain extent give the potato a black eye. And you are aware now, the potato has to keep every eye wide open if it is to spread and flourish, as is absolutely necessary. Whilst your editorial was all right in the main, and to the point, I had expected that you would have perhaps put more glamour about the potato, and not given it such a bill in the eye as you did, by calling it homely and un-aesthetic. (Only in appearance.—Ed.) None of us would like to be called homely to our face, and to have it followed up by a word like un-aesthetic,—unless we carried a dictionary,—we should be thinking it was insult added to injury. (The beauty of the spud is under the skin.) I have therefore thought that in scribbling these few lines that I might perhaps help dry the possible tearful eyes of the poor potato by addressing it by its French cognomen of Pomme de terre. This translated, I understand means, Apple of the Ground or Earth. It is true that the French were ever a polite people. They, sir, have realised the great value of our esteemed and every day friend the potato. We may realise it later, but it were better if we should do so immediately, and give it a hand to spread itself at once. Since last writing you, it has come to me, that to a large extent, the farmers are going to be somewhat short handed in Newfoundland this season by the calling up of a Class Men. This will tend to lessen our root crops and thus make it more necessary for everybody to help in this direction. Possibly with the long evenings, volunteer help may be got for the farmers which they would pay for gladly. In Britain as elsewhere to-day there is greatly increased production of the potato, etc. Women are forming up brigades to look after farm work, and in the Daily Mirror and other British Illustrated papers, pictures of women in their farmer's smocks are shown. I believe that if it could be pointed out to the ladies of this land, how Ganymede or Rosalind Clubs might be formed for the purposes of potato cultivation, good results would ensue, and all would quickly acquire

THE POTATO HABIT.

With your paper behind you, and with your influence and that of your confederates of the other papers of the Dominion, you can very well call a "Back to the land campaign," and get everybody working, and have two potatoes growing where only one grew before. I believe that in this campaign the Southside Hills might be used to a large extent. Trusting that none of your readers will accuse me of too much levity in this matter, as this is merely to draw to their attention the seriousness of the situation. I am, Yours truly, THE SENTINEL, May 28, 1918.

Argentia En Fete.

Argentia is dressed in bunting to-day in honor of the arrival of Rev. T. J. Devereaux, who has been, we have reason to believe, wisely chosen by His Grace the Archbishop to guide the future ecclesiastical destinies of this important parish. A marked sense of pleasure predominated here when we learned of the Rev. gentleman's coming some few weeks ago, and to-day when the news flashed over the wires that Fr. Devereaux was on the train for Argentia, pleasure developed into enthusiasm and a right royal welcome was exhibited which came from the hearts of a united and faithful Catholic people.—Com. Argentia, May 23rd, 1918.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schooner Peerless arrived from Trinity Bay yesterday with a load of firewood for her owner, Mr. E. Simmons.

Misses Alice and Winnie Ryan, daughters of Serjt. John Ryan, of Trinity, arrived in town on Sunday morning by the special train that brought the express passengers from Brigus Junction.

A fairly good quantity of salmon and codfish were in the market this morning and sold readily at good prices.

The Sons of England Society attended Divine Service at Christ Church yesterday afternoon. Rev. E. Andrews delivered a very pleasing and instructive address to the body.

Farmers say that owing to the frost each night that there is very little growth yet, not nearly so much as one would expect from this season of the year.

Mr. W. J. Parsons has just purchased that house on LeMarchant Street, formerly owned by the Henderson estate. Mr. Parsons will move into his new house about the end of July.

Friday last, Empire Day, was observed in town as a general holiday. The day was not suitable for going countrywards, but the few who ventured in were fairly well rewarded with catches of trout.

Several showers of snow yesterday afternoon gave us a little reminder that summer is not with us yet.

Now that cattle is becoming scarce in this country it is about time for the Government to make a law to prohibit the killing of calves. We heard on Friday last of a beautiful heifer calf being killed for real. We are also informed that this young animal was of extra good stock. It is not easy to estimate the loss to the country caused by killing these young animals. We would suggest that young heifers should be kept for at least three years and bulls for at least two years.—COR.

Hr. Grace, May 28, 1918.

Stafford's Liniment and Stafford's Phoraton are the two best preparations you can use for Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, etc. Theatre Hill Drug Store is open every night till 9.30.—may20,18

Nurses Graduate.

Congratulations to Miss Ethel Fenwick who was well up in the list of graduating Nurses from the Toronto General Hospital School, and who was the Dr. K. C. McIlwraith prize for the highest standing in Obstetrical Nursing. Miss Fenwick, who is a daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Fenwick, has volunteered for overseas service, but it has not yet been decided if she will go. The graduating class numbering 40 contained also the names of Miss Dorothy Berteau, daughter of the Auditor General, and Miss Florence Thompson, daughter of Magistrate Thompson, of Brigus, to whom also the Telegram extends congratulations.

Major Buchanan, C.E.F., Lectures.

TO BIG AUDIENCE AT GREENFELL HALL.

"The Re-establishment in Civil Life of Discharged Soldiers," was the subject on which Major Buchanan of the Canadian Pensions Board, spoke at length to a crowded audience at the Greenfell Hall, King George V. Institute, last night. His Excellency Sir C. Alexander Harris, presided, and among those present were:—Major Gosling and Mrs. Gosling, Hon. J. and Mrs. Harvey, Hon. Speaker W. J. Higgins, K.C., Lieut.-Col. W. F. Rendell, Major Macpherson, Capt. G. Byrne, M.C., Capt. Howley, J. and Mrs. Browning, R. B. Job, Esq., Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., and a number of the Great War Veterans' Association. His Excellency in a brief speech introduced the speaker. Major Buchanan for upwards of an hour and a half gave a descriptive and highly interesting account of the way the Canadian Government was treating their returned and disabled soldiers. There was an entire absence of the cold official way of doing things in the Major's address, and many were the humorous stories told. When a wounded or disabled soldier returns, the State sees that he is given immediate attention, adequate treatment, vocational training, adequate pensions and remunerative employment. Each soldier on return is placed in a category as to his disabilities. The mentally affected, those suffering from shell shock, tuberculosis, etc., were all treated at various institutions. The shell shock cases are now very few, the majority of them being treated on the other side. Under expert treatment the system as directed by Lieut.-Col. Russell was 99 per cent. effective. Tubercular cases were sent to the sanatorium and remain there until such time as they are cured. But owing to some of the patients getting "fed up" on the treatment they refuse to remain the full period with results ultimately to their disadvantage. To overcome this the Pensions Commission reduce such malcontents pension 50 per cent. which has the desired effect, as in most cases he will return to the institution. Very few cases of insanity result from war causes, only three cases having been known, though about 750 cases existed, the origin of which was from hereditism, or brought about through other than direct war causes. In the latter instance no pensions were allowed. Tradesmen and others who were not fitted for the former position in life were fitted for some other work. The true soldier did not want mental or sympathetic pay; he wanted to earn it and not be under an obligation. Vocational training in Canada had been very successful, not one case being known where the soldiers failed after having adapted himself to other than his pre-war work. The Canadian Government by order in council, gave preference to soldiers, in the civil service, and allowed about 11,000 were doing government work. Others had entered the teaching profession while others had gone back to the land. The Pension Commission, of which the Mayor was a member, was the successor of the old Military Pension Board, and had branches in all the large cities throughout the Dominion. Through its organization and business like methods, no less than $4,000,000 had been saved to Canada. The staff deals with 35,000 pensions and is capable of mailing all correspondence and cheques within two days. The pension fund last year amounted to $25,000,000. It was an erroneous idea on the part of a soldier to think that because he fought for his country his country owed him a living. "Your country," the lecturer said "does not owe you a living—it only owes you a means to get a living." Pensions were not given because a soldier lost a hand or a leg, but because the loss of either or both reduced his value in the labor market. Nor were pensions charity or sympathetic giving. The pensions in Canada at present $600 a year; if married with 3 children, $1234.00, until such time as the boys reached 16 years and the girls 17 years. A widow of a soldier would receive the full widow's pension. The lecturer dealt with the man who received no pension—the soldier who was discharged as not fit for overseas—though discharged as fit as when joined. After paying a tribute to the people of St. John's for their hospitality, the lecturer concluded his address amidst much applause.

A vote of thanks, moved by Dr. W. W. Blackall, and seconded by Dr. V. P. Burke, and supported by His Excellency the Governor was passed the lecturer by acclamation, and the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Too Nervous to Sleep.

Nerves Wrecked by Accident—Was Afraid to Go in a Crowd or to Stay Alone—Tells of His Cure.

Much sympathy was felt in this city for Mr. Dorsey, who met with a distressing accident when his foot was smashed in an elevator. The shocked and nervous system was so great that Mr. Dorsey was in a pitiable condition for a long time. He was like a child in that he required his mother's care nearly all the time. He feared a crowd, could not stay alone and could not sleep because the weakened and excited condition of his nerves. Detroit doctors did what they could for him, but he could not get back his strength and vigor until he fortunately heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is no mere accident that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves to be exactly what is needed in so many cases of exhausted nerves. It is composed of the ingredients which nature requires to form new blood and create new nerve force. For this reason it succeeds where other medicines fail. Mr. Laurence E. Dorsey, 32 Stanley street, London, writes: "About three years ago I got my foot smashed in an elevator in Detroit, which completely wrecked my nerves. I do not seem to be able to help me. My nerves were in such a state that I could not go down town alone, or go any place where there was a crowd. Sometimes my mother would have to sit and watch over me at night, and I could not get any sleep at all. But one day last winter I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had completely used the first box I could see a difference in my condition. I continued using these pills for some time. The result was splendid. I feel so much better, can sleep well at night, can go out on the street and attend gatherings like the rest of people. I am so pleased to be able to tell you what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done for me, and to recommend it to other people." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Chase & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

School Concert at Burin.

Burin High School held its annual concert and distribution of prizes on Thursday, May 23, at 7.30 p.m. The school should have taken place at Christmas but owing to the C.H.E. Diplomas and Certificates being delayed, it had to be postponed. The concert was patriotic in nature and coming as it did, on the eve of Empire Day, it took the place of the usual Empire Day celebration, giving the pupils the opportunity to fully enjoy the day in the open. The programme was as follows: Opening Chorus—"The meeting of our Class"—School; Recitation, "Newfoundland's Love for Britain"; Exercise, "Britannia"; Recitation, "The Band of St. George"; Song, "The Lads in Navy Blue"; Recitation, "Pledge of Loyalty"; Motion Song by six little girls; Recitation, "Soldier's Letter"; Solo, "Knitting"; Dialogue, "The Quack Doctor"; Exercise, "Red, White and Blue"; Exercise Chorus, "Flag Song"—School. Distribution of prizes and diplomas by Rev. T. T. Tulk. This was the school's banner year in the C.H.E. The Preliminary pupils did remarkably well, two passing in Honors Division and several others gaining distinctions. Mr. T. LeFevre, M.H.A., gave a very nice address to the pupils and teachers, and regretted that the weather was so poor and that consequently the attendance was small. The pupils performed their parts creditably. Our thanks are due Mrs. Tulk for training the children for the musical part of the programme. The performance closed with the National Anthem.—Com.

LABOR MEMBERS RELEASED.
WELLINGTON, N.Z., May 27. In response to various petitions for the liberation of three members of the Labor party, sentenced on May 9th to imprisonment for sedition, the Government has decided to set the men at liberty on their finding sureties for good behaviour.

RELATIONS NOT RUPTURED.

HAVANA, May 27. The Cuban State Department today despatched a circular cablegram to the Cuban diplomats in all foreign countries, advising them that diplomatic relations between Cuba and Mexico hadn't been ruptured.

BOURASSA'S VAPORINGS.

MONTREAL, May 27. Le Devoir, the organ of Henri Bourassa, comments in its Bloc notes on the editorial page as follows in regard to the Halifax riots: "If the incidents that have taken place at Halifax had occurred in Montreal or Quebec, the press dispatches would have taken another tone about them. There is, however, nothing to be astonished about in what happened. The riots and disorders that have arisen in other cities through the actions of the sailors since the commencement of the war, showed that similar incidents would be repeated fairly often. Civilians would without doubt, under like circumstances, have received much more rigorous handling than Saturday's rioters."

WELL SERVED WITH RAILWAY.

On the French Front, May 27.—As pointed out in previous despatches, the Germans are well served with railroads in this region, enabling them to transport quickly large masses of troops from one point to another. Throughout last year the territory where the fighting has been in progress since early this morning was the scene of exceedingly fierce fighting which reached its climax in the battle of Malmesdon.

REPORTS SUBMARINES.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 27. It was learned here to-night that the master of the British steamer should have taken place at Christmas but owing to the C.H.E. Diplomas and Certificates being delayed, it had to be postponed. The concert was patriotic in nature and coming as it did, on the eve of Empire Day, it took the place of the usual Empire Day celebration, giving the pupils the opportunity to fully enjoy the day in the open. DO NOT CREDIT STORY.

WASHINGTON, May 27. The navy department here to-night says there is nothing to indicate the presence of enemy submarines on this side of the Atlantic. They thought the British ship which had reported at Newport News firing at a submarine 150 miles off Virginia Capes probably had sighted a bit of wreckage or some other floating object.

ITALIANS LAUNCH IMPORTANT ATTACK.

ROME, May 27. The Italians have launched an important attack and captured many mountain positions, the war office announces. They have taken 800 prisoners, the summit of Monte Iguon, the town of Presna, Monticello Pass, and the mountain spur east of the Pass have been wrested from the enemy. The Italian attack is being carried out in a different part of the country near the west end of the front. The points mentioned by the Italian war office are northwest of Trente, near the Austro-Italian front.
