The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XXI.

The Duke and Duchess of Rosedene, with their visitors, were at Dene Abbey, within sight and sound of the ever-murmuring sea. Miss Hatton had the whole day to herself; she had no great household to manage as at Brentwood, she had no care about the entertainment of visitors; the long, bright hours were hers, to spend as she would.

Lady Maude Trevor had gladly accepted the duchess' invitation; but pretty May Lason had promised to pay a visit elsewhere, and could not break her engagement. The military element had dispersed. Sir Basil Carlton had been delighted with her grace's proposal to join the party at the Abbey. He liked the duchess; her kindly gracious manner pleased him; he was touched by her great kindness to himself, although he did not know the cause. He did not go with the party from Brentwood, but he followed them in a few days. It was a wonderful change from the green, sweet woodlands of Warwickshire, to the country bordering on a sunny southern sea.

Dene Abbey was a very old house one that hundreds of years before had belonged to an ancient order of friars. Bluff King Harry took possession of it, and gave it to one of his favorite courtiers. In course of time it came into the hands of the Rosedene family, who valued highly the grand old mansion and magnificent estate. The duchess always insisted upon spending a few months there every year. Modern rooms and modern luxuries had been added to the old mansion, but it still retained enough of its antiquity to be one of the show places of England.

From the windows, from the terraces, from the grassy knolls in the park—from every part, the sea was visible.

Dene lay in Sussex, near the little town of Southwood, which was a favorite watering-place. When calm, the water of the Channel lay like a fair mirror in the distance. When it was rough, the foam and the dashing spray seemed almost to envelop the Abbey.

There had been nothing wanting in the poetry of Leah's love-story; but if anything could deepen the romance of it, it was certainly the presence of the beautiful, restless, heaving sea.

The duchess had but one notion of pleasing her guests at Dene, and it was to give them perfect liberty. Some laced the woods, some the yellow sands, some the ever-changing sea. They went where they liked and did as they liked, which was the great charm of the place.

So Sir Basil, who liked the sea, and Leah, whose passionate soul delighted in it, were often on the beach together. They enjoyed the firm, yellow sands, the dancing, crested waves, the tall white cliffs covered with luxuriant vegetation, the briny odor of the sea-breeze, the pretty shells and pebbles on the beach, the seaweed which drifted with the waters. They spent long hours together listening to the music of the waves and talking of the beauty that lay around. And during this time, while the sea-gulls whirled in the air, while the southern wind kissed the waves, the heart of the girl who loved Sir Basil became so entirely his, her life so wholly wrapped in his, that death would have been easier than to see him pass out of it.

The duchess remarked it, and mourned over it, but did not interfere—it was too late. But she said to herself over and over again that it was ten thousand pities Leah had so much romance in her nature; she would have been so much happier had she been more like ordinary girls.

The evenings at Dene were delightful. The drawing-room was an immense apartment, containing five large windows. From them one stepped on to a smooth, green lawn; and from the lawn a short path led through the woods to the cliffs and the shifting water, the effect was dazzling. Then the duchess liked the lamps to be lowered and the windows all thrown open, when the wind, laden with sweet odors from land and sea, came in.

One evening the moon shone unwontedly bright; in the distance the sea looked like molten silver—it was a night to fill all hearts with an undefined sense of passionate longing.

"Let us have some music," said the duchess, as she leaned back in her chair. "Leah, let us hear you sing."

Then from out of the soft shadows appeared Leah's tall graceful figure enveloped in sweeping folds of black lace. She went quietly to the piano. The white, slender hands moved gently over the keys; the beautiful face grew fairer as the passionate world fell from her lips. She sang:

My heart is like a singing bird
Whose nest is in a watered shoot;
My heart is like an apple-tree
Whose boughs are bent with thick-set fruit;
My heart is like a rainbow shell
That paddles in a halcyon sea;
My heart is gladder than all these
Because my love is come to me.

Raise me a dais of silk and down;
Hang it with hair and purple dyes;
Carve it in doves and pomegranates
And peacocks with a hundred eyes;
Work it in gold and silver grasses,
In leaves and silver fleur-de-lys,
Because the birthday of my life
Is come—my love is come to me.

"She did not heed who was in the room. The words sprung as it were from her heart to her lips. She was thinking just at that time more of her love than of her lover—this golden-winged love that had taken her captive and stolen her heart.

Sir Basil came quietly to her side. "These are quaint lines, Miss Hatton," he said. "Whose are they?" There was no music on the piano, and it struck him suddenly that both words and notes were impromptu. "I believe," he added, impulsively, "that they are your own."

The white fingers wandered over the keys. She made no answer; she was wondering whether he had guessed her secret at last.

"My love is come to me"—the words started her when she came to think of their truth.

Sir Basil left the piano and went back to his chair, which was placed outside the long French windows. He thought more of Leah than he had ever thought before. He remembered all that the duchess had told him of her fanciful idea, that she would be able to recognize her ideal lover the moment she saw him; and now she sung that he had come. Was it really so? He looked round on the men sitting apart in little groups; there was not one he considered worthy of her. He never thought of himself. Each time that night that his eyes fell on her fair face the words came back to him: "My love is come to me."

She was more shy and timid with him after that. She avoided him a little, but loved him just as much. She would have gone through fire and water for him; she would have made any sacrifice for him. The marvel was that the young baronet never dreamed of the conquest he had made. As for Leah, she had not yet begun to doubt; she felt certain that his love would be hers in the fulness of time.

A little incident happened shortly after this which changed the current of their lives and hurried on events.

Sir Arthur Hatton was a stranger to all fair love-dreams and sweet fancies. Lady Bourgoyne had married him without giving him any trouble; his comfortable affection for her had never caused him a pang. That he should understand a nature or a love like Leah's was not to be expected; but he was one day the unwilling witness of a little scene that opened his eyes.

In the library stood a large Japanese screen, and Sir Arthur enjoyed nothing more than placing this round one of the great bay-windows and intrenching himself therein with his newspaper. Every one knew his whim and smiled at it. People went into the library to search for books, read the newspapers, and write their letters, without paying the least attention to him. It was the only room in the house where he was free from the lively chatter and laughter of the girls, or the gossip of the older women.

One morning there was some Indian news in the Times which interested him greatly—letters written by fellow-officers whose opinions he valued highly. He wished to be undisturbed, so he betook himself to his favorite retreat. He found the library cool and empty; the sun-blinds were all drawn, the light was dim and pleasant. He placed the screen round his favorite window. "Thank goodness," he said to himself, "that I shall now be able to read in peace!"

Sir Arthur had hardly settled himself comfortably, however, before the duchess came in.

She looked over the screen. "I shall not disturb you, general," she said. "A man deep in his morning newspaper is to me as formidable as a lion in his lair. Indian news, I believe!"

"And very bad news," answered Sir Arthur, briefly.

The duchess read for about half an hour, and then went away. Presently Lady Maude Trevor entered, and, sitting down, wrote letter after letter without a single thought as to whether any one was in the room. She was not in the least surprised when the general, in turning his newspaper, betrayed his presence. Then came his Grace of Rosedene.

"I do not like the Indian news this morning," he said. "If Government is not more on the alert, we shall have another terrible rising, I fear."

HOSTILITIES RESUMED.
ATHENS, April 14. Resumption of hostilities on a large scale between the Greeks and Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor is reported. The Turks attacked on the Gallipoli front but were repulsed with considerable loss.

BRING GUARANTEES FROM RUSSIA.
GENOA, April 14. The Economic Conference commenced late to-night stated that representatives of the British, French, and Belgian delegates had held an informal meeting to consider with Russian delegates the consequences of the London report, mainly in view of finding out what guarantee Russia was prepared to give for resumption of economic relations.

PROMISE MAY BE ARRANGED.
GENOA, April 14. The Bolshevik delegates and representatives of France took luncheon with Lloyd George today, and from it is argued that a compromise may be arranged on the Russian problem which will afford a basis for the reconstruction of Russia. The key-note of the Allied position today was Russia must satisfy past pledges and containing any concessions for the future. In other words, Russia must recognize the debts of the Czar Government before the Soviet Government against the Allies can be ended. The Soviet delegation contended a statement that Russia which meet many of the criticisms affecting foreigners in Russia.

which meet many of the criticisms of the London experts' report, and intimating that Russia was willing to acknowledge the pre-war debts, and cease the Soviet claims against the Allies arising from the operations of Wrangel, Denikin, and Yudenitch, if the Allied war claims against Russia are wiped out.

THE STRIKERS' CLAIMS.

SO FAR SO GOOD.
DUBLIN, April 13. Collins, Griffith, and DeValera met here today in the conference called by Mayor O'Neill in an endeavour to bring about peace. No agreement was reached and an adjournment was made until Wednesday next, but the gathering issued a statement, saying it was the earnest wish of the parties that there should be no interference with public meetings.

REPUBLICANS ACTIVE IN DUBLIN.
BELFAST, April 14. Under direction of the newly formed Republican Army Council 250 insurgents seized at midnight, four Courts building, which was the seat of the National Court of Justice, according to despatches received here. The insurgents intend to use the building as headquarters, it is stated. A large body of Sinn Feiners took possession of the Post Office at Sligo in the name of the Irish Republican Army. A strong party of Free Staters took possession of the Country Court at Sligo.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT TAKES PRECAUTIONS.
DUBLIN, April 14. The Provisional Government has increased greatly the number of armed guards at the seat of administration. The College of Science and other places open to attack have also been reinforced. Apprehension has been caused by the action of Anti-Treaty men in seizing the Four Courts building and a hotel nearby. The buildings were seized and fortified in Easter Week, 1916. The leaders of the raiders were declared, however, that there would be no revolution, the building being only wanted as headquarters.

PRINCES' BETHORAL.
TORONTO, April 13. A London cable to the Mail and Empire says soon after the return of the Prince of Wales from his visits to India and Japan, his bethoral to Lady Mary Cambridge will be officially announced, according to reliable information. About the same time, the announcement will be made of the engagement of the Duke of York to Lady Rachel Cavendish.

South Wales, resigned the Premiership to-day. Sir George Fuller, the successor of Dooley, is a well-known Labor Leader.

FARMERS' OBJECTIVES.
WASHINGTON, April 13. Legislation providing for long term credits for the farmers, reduction of railway rates, adequate tariff protection for agricultural products, and development of mussel shoals, and other fertilizer projects, were announced today by Senator Gapper, Republican, as objectives of the Agricultural bloc.

English doctors declare that to jump out of bed immediately upon waking, is dangerous to health. Astonishing what the instinct of self preservation keeps on doing for a whole lot of us. There is a movement in the States to kick out bucket shops. As to that, kicking the bucket is what we all come in the end.

Just Folks
THE TRAGEDY OF GOLF.

What is fame and what is fortune, what are honors, tell me, pray, if you cannot get your wrists in and your body's bound to sway? What are all men's feeble praises for the brilliant things you do if you haven't any rhythm and you lack a follow through?

What is glory, what is money though you have it mountain piled, what are pomp and high position if your drives are always wild? What are all the things men value from the cradle to the grave if your left arm is a taylor and your shoulders wout behave?

What is worldly recognition, what is standing at the peak of your chosen occupation, if you cannot play the creak? Where's the fun in being wealthy, where's the joy in being great if you've grown too fat to pivot and your shots are never straight?

Now happiness is something gold and silver cannot buy, Men have said it long before us, men will say it when we die, And how can man be happy with his money or his fame if he's doomed through his existence to a most indifferent game?

Fighting Fire Among Explosives.

On the night of April 14th, 1918, a fire broke out aboard the ammunition ship "Pronton" at Port Sald, and the Commander Walter Henry Calthrop, R. N., immediately proceeded to the scene, but the ship had already been abandoned by her crew and was ablaze in Nos. 1 and 2 holds. The forecastle was also alight and it was impossible to get down to the fore well deck owing to the heat. Knowing that the "Pronton" had 24 tons of ammunition on Board Commander Calthrop decided to flood the ship, and for this purpose he obtained assistance and went down into the engine room and opened the sea inlet. He also tried to break the main sea valve cover, but was not successful, so he sent for a guncocken charge for the purpose of sinking the vessel, meantime warning all ships in the vicinity to get under way. He then returned to the "Pronton", which was blazing fiercely forward, the sides being red hot as far aft as the bridge, and the bridge screen all alight. Boarding her with the first and second engineers they went below and tried to break the doors of the condenser with sledge hammers but found this impossible. By this time a picket boat had arrived with the guncocken charge, and it was decided that the ship should be sunk as soon as possible. The operation was accordingly carried out. Commander Calthrop displayed the utmost gallantry and disregard for his personal safety in making prostrated efforts first to flood and then to sink the ship whilst exposed to continuous risk of an explosion of the ammunition. For this service he was awarded the Albert Medal. His efforts undoubtedly prevented serious loss of life.

THE SLAYERS.

The murderers, in countless scores, are loafing in a hundred jails, all hoping that the prison doors will open when their luck prevails. No doubt they think the law is rank that jails them, even for a time, for pulling off some playful prank like murder, or a kindred crime. In cozy cells the slayers sit; and all around them quiet felons; red-headed ladies calmly knit, and gory gents make horse-hair chains. They loiter around in gilded ease, they labor not, and bear no yoke; we used to hang such birds as these long since, when justice was no joke. But now there's no such doom as that for those who butcher fellow-guys; the gloomy hangman's growing fat for lack of wholesome exercise. The murderers are borne to jail when first their crimes have made us stare, and there's some piffle, flat and stale, about the gallows or the chair. And then we turn our thoughts away, to other gratts, the coin we chase; and on the street, some pleasant day, we meet the killers face to face. They've been paroled or pardoned out, some witness flukes, some juror did; some enterprising legal scout has found a loophole, big and wide. And thus our modern justice runs where it's concerned with slayer or skater; they're going now to purchase guns to kill some other delegates.

Panel Your Rooms With Beaver Board

AND DO AWAY WITH HOUSE-CLEANING TROUBLES.

Beaver Board may be had in widths of 32 inches or 48 inches and in lengths of 7, 9, 10 and 12 feet. About $9.00 worth of Beaver Board will cover the ceiling of your dining room or parlor.
Beaver Board whilst being artistic enough for your parlor is cheap enough for your kitchen. A Beaver Board ceiling won't crack like plaster and won't show ugly seams like V jointed or pitch pine ceilings.

Beaver Board can be painted or kalsomined and is easier to wash than either plaster or wood ceilings. A carpenter can put up a Beaver Board ceiling in half a day, thus saving time, labor and money.

To put up a Beaver Board ceiling you require only 3 or 4 Beaver Boards, a hammer, a saw and a pocketful of nails. Take care to get genuine Beaver Board. The back of every Beaver Board is branded

About $21.00 worth of Beaver Board will panel your dining room, kitchen or parlor. Once done it will last as long as your house. We guarantee Beaver Board to last as long as your house.

Every Beaver Board is sized back and front ready for painting, thus the cost of a priming coat of paint is saved. This saving may easily amount to $5.00 or even more.

When your room is celled and panelled with Beaver Board you won't have any more bother with wall paper, no more tacking on of calico, no more paste to make, no more mending up your room, no more troublesome house cleaning.

Beaver Board is intended only for inside use, but we have 2 panels outside our office which have been exposed to the rain and sun and snow storms of 10 years and are still in good condition. Beaver Board is guaranteed to last as long as your house. Get genuine Beaver Board. Look for the brand on the back of every board.

The Evening Telegram.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor. C. T. JAMES, Editor.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Saturday, April 15, 1922.

SALVATOR MUNDI.

CHRISTENDOM again keeps the Feast. The anniversary of the Resurrection of the Saviour of the world is again being celebrated. "He is Risen" is the salutation of the faithful, and the answer is "He is Risen indeed."

"As it began to dawn," the Scripture tell us; in other words it was very early. The faithful few, with that fidelity and love which characterized their ministrations to the Master during His Lifetime, Passion, Crucifixion, Death and Burial, came early to the sepulchre.

AND so long the centuries have passed the simple, yet infinitely transcendent and mighty story of the Resurrection. The faith once delivered to the Saints has not suffered, because of the multitudes of men and women who have died for it, unshaken by threat or persecution, scoffing or denial, either scientific or infidel.

"Come ye saints, look here and wonder. See the place where Jesus lay; He has burst His bonds asunder; He has borne our sins away; Joyful tidings, Yes, the Lord has risen to-day. Alleluia!"

Latest Sealing News.

S. S. EAGLE ARRIVES. S.S. Eagle, Capt. Ed. Bishop, arrived from the icefields yesterday morning hauling for 15,200 seals. The Eagle, which was amongst the first of the fleet to strike the whitecoats, secured about 18,000 before the patch was cleaned up. Capt. Bishop reports that during the past week there has been an exceptionally heavy swell in the ice which makes it impossible for the sealers to work. The Eagle was forced to abandon the voyage owing to her bunkers getting low and a supply of 25 tons had to be taken from the S. S. Terra Nova to bring the ship to port. The latest messages from the fleet are as follows:—

BOWING BROTHERS. Terra Nova—(Thursday p.m.)—12 miles N. E. Funks, very stormy, killed to-day 1,200.

Terra Nova—(Friday p.m.)—Thick fog, several parts missing, got about 1100 of yesterday's seals. Ranger—No report.

JOB BROS. & CO. Neptune—(Thursday p.m.)—Struck a patch of ice-lamers at 2 p.m. today. Killed between 2,000 and 4,000. Ice very loose, impossible for men to get about.

Neptune—(Friday p.m.)—Got about 1300 of yesterday's seals; ice went apart, lost a lot of seals which went down in slush. Thetis or Seal, both on second trips, did not report.

HIS DIARY.

April 13th.—Up, and the first thing I must pay 2 cents for a letter from Canada, the 2 cent postage being absorbed there. But I did content myself, seeing that soon the postage will be increased here and I will make my friends in Canada pay it. Mr. Povy told me this morning how the public is much roused against the Cabal, and will demonstrate their anger at a meeting early in the next fortnight. But I also hear how the Cabal is in mighty fear of the people and what they will do, so makes haste to reduce its expenses. Which, did I confess, please me mightily. All this day clouds and wind, and after breakfast, rain falls.

April 14th. (Good Friday).—A fair like a summer day, so I wear all my summer clothes. My wife to church, and I to read 1/2 hour in the book of Job. It is but now come to my ears how there do be three newly elected to the Legislative Council, and they J. F. Davey, Capt. Ell Dawe, and Dr. H. M. Moseell. In the afternoon to the Club and to play at Bridge. Home tired, and so to bed early.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear son, No. 2255, Pte. Harold Hussey, M.D. Regt., missing in the Battle of the Somme, April 14, 1917, aged 20 years and nine months. We trust he is gone through the beautiful gates.

Away to the city of gold, Which knows no sorrow, sin nor pain He is safe in the heavenly fold. Still fondly remembered in the home of his childhood. Sweet are the memories that cling round his name. Along with your comrades you lie sleeping. But the hearts in the old home still love you the same. Cherished memories of one so dear, often recalled by a silent tear. Only those who are loved and lost can understand the bitter cost.—Inserted by his Mother and Father.

IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear sister, Mrs. Rebecca Smith, who died April 15, 1919. May her soul rest in peace. In our hearts we mourn the loss of her we loved so dear; What would we give to clasp her hand, her gentle voice to hear? Her loving smile and welcome voice that is so dear to us. She is resting now in heaven above, in God alone we trust.

We sit and think of you, dear one while tear drops dim our eyes; But you could not say good-bye to us before you closed your eyes. May heavenly winds blow softly o'er her present resting place; She knows she is not forgotten, but committed to God's grace.—Inserted by her sister, Mrs. James Lawrence.

TRINITY.

A Story of Waterloo and Dorset; Oxford University and Trinity, Contd. (Fiction)

A few days later, his mother was surprised and troubled over the receipt of a letter from Robert, so different in several little ways from his letters of the past, and with a request that she send him ten pounds, in addition to her regular remittance. Robert never knew the pain that this request gave to his mother, nor of the terrible suspicion it aroused in her. The ten pounds were sent, in a letter full of loving wishes for her boy, but with a hope, delicately expressed, that he would be on, so careful over it, knowing as he did how limited were her means, and how anxious she was that her boy should not live beyond his means.

Robert's downward course was rapid after this, and had his mother known the circumstances by which he was surrounded and being influenced, it would have broken her heart. As it was—the fact that Robert's letters were fewer and so different from those of the year before, was causing her a grief (all the harder to bear because she kept it to herself) the effects of which were very noticeable to her friends.

Robert had watched his room-mate at gambling, and was impressed with the ease with which he won large sums of money; and upon receipt of the ten pounds from his mother, he decided to try his luck. He knew nothing of the insidiously wicked plans of his fellow gamblers, who had arranged for his initial winning, so as to encourage him to play for greater stakes, and then to be felled. That he had won two or three times in succession, was to him an assurance that he could do it again at will; and he found himself not only without a penny, but also heavily in debt, he was so dazed that he knew not which way to turn.

His new and gay life of the recent past had already broken in upon his systematic studies, and his late hours had deprived him of the sleep that he needed to pursue them. But now, the realization of the gambling debt that had to be paid within the next forty-eight hours, in order to prevent the bringing about of his dismissal from college, prevented him from sleeping at all that night, and found him entirely unfit for lectures in the morning. He dared not ask his mother for more money, and his room-mate had assumed an attitude of such cold indifference to his condition, that he would not ask him for assistance.

There was but one thing to do, and to do quickly. He had to leave college and to go somewhere where he would not be known and where his gambling creditors could not find him. To do that effectively he had to leave England, and he made preparations to do so at once. He was without a shilling in the world, so he went to a pawn-shop with the gold watch that his father had given to him when he left for Oxford. He pledged the watch for a pound, and his college cap and gown for some rough clothing that would not arouse suspicion of whom or what he was. After some days he found himself in the seaport town of Poole, where he had once been before with his father during his school days. There he found several vessels loading and unloading at the wharves of John B. Garland & Co. He noticed that one vessel was ready for sea, and that a group of boys on the wharf evidently were going by her. Robert approached the Captain and found that he was going to Trinity, Newfoundland, and that the group of boys, were known as "youngsters" and were going with him, to live in Newfoundland.

He asked the captain if he might be included in the list of youngsters, and after a few questions, the answers to which were far from the truth, he was told that he might go, providing he was willing to become a servant to some person in Trinity upon arrival there.

Robert gladly consented to do so, and signed an agreement to that effect over the name of "Henry Slade," it being the first name that came to him at the time. Within twelve hours after that, he was on the ocean suffering from his first attack of sea-sickness; and after fourteen days of such misery of mind and body as he had never dreamed of—on the 15th day of September, 1817, he landed at Trinity, Newfoundland, and when the roll of youngsters was called he answered to the name of Henry Slade. Though roughly clad there was a refinement of manners about him that could not fail to be noticed by those to whom the youngsters were consigned. The captain had noticed it on the passage to Trinity, and he reported his suspicious in confidence to Mr. Garland in person. The result was—"Henry Slade," being older than the other lads, was taken over by Mr. Garland himself, and given such work as he thought would be congenial to him, until he would show by his daily life what he was best fitted for.

It was evident to all with whom "Henry Slade" came into contact that he was not happy. He, however, kept his own counsel; gave satisfaction to his employer; and was the recipient of many acts of kindness from Mr. and Mrs. Garland and others. He was often at church, where he gave evidence of being intelligently familiar with the services, and showed a deep interest in Parson Clinch's sermons. On Christmas morning he knelt for the first time at the altar-rail and made his Christmas Communion. It brought back hallowed memories of the Christmas before, when he and his mother had knelt side by side at the same holy service in the parish-church of Blandford and as Parson Clinch administered to him the sacred elements, he noticed that Henry's eyes were filled with tears. Parson Clinch decided that on the next day he would invite the young man to the parsonage, and try to get to know more of his past life, and of the sorrow that he felt sure was troubling him.

On Christmas night, however, the man with whom Henry was living came to the parsonage with the message, that Henry was ill, and wished to speak to Parson Clinch. Upon arrival at the house, it did not take long for Mr. Clinch, who was also a doctor of medicine, to see that Henry Slade was in a dying condition. Henry said—"Parson, I believe that I am dying. On the table by the bedside you will find a note that I have written, and which I shall be glad if you will read. Mr. Clinch did so aloud. It was a statement of Robert's doings within the last two years; together with his real name and his mother's address. In a little envelope was the pawn-ticket necessary for the redemption of his watch. When Mr. Clinch had finished reading the note, Robert asked him if he would kindly send it all to his mother, with an account of his whereabouts, and his actions since he came to Trinity. Mr. Clinch promised to do so. Robert thanked him and said—"Parson, I have sinned against heaven, by thought and word and deed, and I am not worthy to be called my mother's son. I am deeply conscious of my sin in the sight of God, and I am truly sorry for it all. May God forgive me for Jesus Christ's sake." Then it was the Priest's eyes filled with tears, and opening his Prayer Book at the office of the Visitation of the Sick, and after having heard this humble confession of sin (as the service directs) he absolved him, using the beautiful form of absolution as given for the Priest's use in that service.

Robert followed his every word and action consciously, intelligently, and thankfully; and at the close of the commendatory prayer his hands fell apart, and he said—"Robert Stanhope, Mother—smiled, and his soul passed into the presence of his God. Three days after that, Parson Clinch laid Robert's body to rest in the old Church-yard in Trinity, and made the following entry in the Church Register:—

December 28th, 1817. Interred, Robert Stanhope of Blandford, Dorset, England. ("Henry Slade") a youngster, aged 26 years. A few happy events of some fifty years ago and those who witnessed them.

MARRIED.

1864. Samuel Pittman and Rachel Fowlow. Witnesses:—William Pittman, Sarah Pittman, John Fowlow, Margaret Pittman, David C. Clun, Elizabeth Fowlow, William Jenkins, Mary Fowlow, Emma Stewart.

1865. John Churchwood Shears and Jessie Elizabeth Bayly. Witnesses:—Robert Bayly, Emily Bayly, Charles MacFarlane, S. W. North, Mary R. Buchanan, Andrew Taverner, Mary Ann Bayly.

1866. James Myers and Elizabeth Pinhorn. Witnesses:—Francis Ash, Mary Ann Hunt, Jacob Morris, Jan Hiscock, William Hayter, Emma Jenkins, Mary E. Lucas, John Pinhorn, Frances Morris.

N. B.—Thirty one persons are mentioned in the above three marriages. Only two of those are living to-day, viz: William Jenkins, and Emma Jenkins, (now Mrs. White.)

"Our modern Newfoundland Legislators have earned fame in various ways. Sir, V. V. Whiteyay has come down to posterity as the introducer and successful promoter of the railway; Sir Robert Thorburn is immortalized by a great road—the Thorburnpike; Sir James Winter for his connection with the Chamberlain—burn pike; Sir James Winter for his amusing campaign literature; but all these celebrities sink into insignificance compared with the first introducer of the public grindstone, where every man could grind his own axe at the public expense. Skipper John Bartlett, an anti-confederate member for Brigus was the prime mover in this great public improvement—a most popular move. Besides the public grindstone at Brigus, there were subsidiary grindstones at Barened, Port de Grave, Clark's Beach, and Pick Eye." (vide Prowse page 495.)

April 23rd.—St. George's Day.—The Knights of old took St. George as their ideal. The Christian Church is the oldest of all the orders of Knighthood. Each of us was pledged at Baptism "to fight manfully under Christ's banner, and to continue Christ's faithful soldier unto his life's end." St. George for Merry England, and—God Save the King.

Some weeks ago, in an article on the Garlanda, I referred to the fact that James Pointer Garland of Trinity, married a daughter of John Bland, Esq., of Bonavista; and I asked if any one would give me some information as to the position that he (Mr. Bland) held at the time. I knew that he was no ordinary person, as in the old registers of the Church he is always given the title of Esq., and that title in those days meant something, and was limited to those who held a position beyond the ordinary. I have just found two references to him in Prowse's History of Newfoundland—one in 1802 in a letter on the Seal Fishery in Bonavista, written to Governor Gambler; and another reference, a little earlier, in connection with charges made to the authorities in England, against Chief Justice Tremlett. From those references I find that John Bland Esq. was the High Sheriff. His letter, which is in the form of a detailed report of the Seal Fishery in Bonavista, is deeply interesting, and shows what a wonderful industry it was in Bonavista a hundred and twenty years ago as compared with what it is to-day. (vide Prowse page 419.)

April 23rd.—St. George's Day.—St. George was undoubtedly a real person. During the persecutions, however, the heathen Emperors ordered all Christian writings to be burnt. Some were hidden; but many of them perished altogether, and among them were all true accounts of St. George. We know that he must have been a very faithful martyr, for the early Christians dedicated many Churches by his name. Put up your flag on Sunday, and keep Monday a holiday.

I cannot remember the time when a Church-yard, or a cemetery, or a burial place of any kind, did not attract my reverent attention, and cause me to lift my cap and say a prayer in passing.

We can, I know, get accustomed to almost anything in daily life; and if a person makes up his mind to allow no such feelings to govern his actions, he will find no great difficulty, I presume, either to pass such a hallowed spot without a thought of any kind; or to discountenance a reverent thought or action, if he has ever been in the habit of thus thinking or acting. Any one who gives a

THE MESSAGE OF EASTER, 1922.
The message of Easter should conduce to greater nobility in the formation of the individual Christian character; teaching us in daily life to rise from the confines of falsehood; wrong, and selfishness, to the freedom of the principles of truth, right, and unselfishness; reminding us that, in order to live such a life, it is not necessary to leave the world, but by a deeper spirituality in the world to find ourselves—like the Master during the great forty days—unhindered by these material things that once limited our powers of action. Forty-Three Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

PUTTING UP A BIG FRONT.
 I wonder if I shall ever get over hating the habit of putting up a big front. There is nothing detracts from my respect and liking for a person more than to find that he or she has this trick.
 Here is a sample of it that a woman whom I have recently met supplied me with.
Don't Realize how Amusing They Are.
 Her husband is an artist. She told me with an evident desire to be impressive, ill concealed by a careful assumed nonchalance, that for some work he had just been doing her husband had been offered a price "in four figures." From another source I afterward learned that he was to receive exactly $1000. Of course she told me the truth, but her intent to make it sound bigger than it was, was amusingly obvious. Queer such people don't realize they are almost always more amusing than impressive.
 Here's another. I talked of cars with a man I know. I knew he had been driving for some years and asked him what make he drove. He named three, two inexpensive and one quite class. Later it developed that the high class car had been owned by a friend. True he had never said he owned it, but he had certainly meant me to think so.
"Times Are Hard You Know."
 A third experience also concerned cars. A woman who had recently moved into our neighbourhood told us

A Sore Finger Crime. DO IT NOW.

(From the New York Herald.)
 The police department of Fall River has been asked to begin criminal proceedings against an industrial nurse employed by the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Medicine. The crime charged is curing a mill hand's sore finger without calling in a physician.
 It may be said at once that the accused nurse admits her guilt. She confesses that the employer came to her with a bruised finger, that she believed herself entirely competent to take care of it, that she did take care of it, that the sore finger got well, and that the employee went back to work. She confesses also that she did not call in a physician, presumably on the assumption that the injury was so trifling and so wholly within the ability of any nurse to handle that summoning the faculty of medicine to the rescue would have been as ridiculous as calling out the fire department.
 Even the board of registration in medicine admits that professionally and technically the nurse's treatment was beyond criticism. The sore finger got well. If it had had the benefit of the massed medical learning and skill of the entire country no better result could have been reached. Dr. Nathaniel B. Perkins, assistant secretary of the board, said himself that the nurse "is a highly capable person and her treatment of this case is in every way to be commended from the standpoint of professional ability."
 In view of these facts, and of the commendation coming from Dr. Perkins it might seem to the lay mind that there could be some other way out than putting the nurse in the criminal dock. Not so. The law provides that only registered physicians may attend to sore fingers such as this nurse has set its face as flint against the slightest relaxation of the law's enforcement. It has demanded that this confessedly guilty nurse be arrested as a criminal, tried as a criminal and made to suffer the penalty the law provides for her crime.
 The amateur curing of sore fingers in Massachusetts must and shall come to an end. O shades of Mollere!

House That Sings. Chips from a Student's Workshop.

India has many strange buildings; one of them sings.
 Except for its extraordinary exterior decorations, it is, apparently, no different from other buildings, but as the wind sweeps round its niches and caves a curious singing noise is emitted. The sound can be heard some distance away.
 For a long time the music remained a mystery, but at last an engineer solved the puzzle. He discovered that the sound was caused by the material of which the house was built, a very porous stone. The building is known as the Palace of the Winds, and is at Jaipur.
 Ridicule is the argument to which the dishonest and the ignorant generally have recourse.
 Wise men are as rare in any age as owls in a desert.
 It is the height of folly to argue with an ignorant person.
 The best teachers are those who have experienced greatest difficulty in their own pursuit of knowledge.
 A wise man is always willing to learn; an ignorant man imagines he is already well informed.
 The secret of success is to do as well as one possibly can.
 He who shuns unusual efforts will never accomplish unusual results.
 In the Hall of Fame every man is his own sculptor.
 The wise are silent when fools ventilate their notions.

THE ART OF CHEWING.
Your whole system depends for its health and strength on the stomach. The stomach, in turn, depends on the teeth. The very foundation of health is therefore laid at the first step in food conversion—the act of chewing. Food improperly chewed enters the stomach in a wrong condition, and it brings about a wrong fermentation which causes first, indigestion, then kindred ailments. The proper chewing of the food will prevent these things. Chew your food plentifully.

Life in a Lighthouse.

Lonely as our life is, there is no lighthouse-keeper who would change places with any "landlubber" he knows, for his work has a peculiar fascination for him.
Now is beginning the really trying time for the keepers, especially those on the outlying lights, such as the "Wolf," at Penzance, or the "Bishop," guarding the approach to the Cotilly Islands. The Trinity House tenders have made their first autumn tour with stores and provisions, and the long winter months ahead will bring their sum of really hard work.
Most lighthouses have three keepers. Their day is taken up in dotting odd jobs, lamp-cleaning, scrubbing, and polishing—all necessary to give the lighthouse the spick and span appearance that attracts the attention of the visitor.
With dusk, work begins in earnest. It is the law that there must always be one man on duty in the light-room. As soon as the sun sets, the blinds, which veil the light during the day, are lifted, and the lamp is lit.
When this is done, the keeper starts the clock which regulates the moving apparatus—lowering an iron shutter over the light at regular intervals, so that passing vessels see so many seconds of steady light, followed by so many of darkness.
All through the night the clock in the light-room works; every hour the keeper must raise the rams which drive the oil up to the lamp, and at intervals he must stroll out on to the gallery to watch for anything unusual at sea.
NIGHT RELIEFS.
This night-labour is taken in turns by the keepers, the relieved man snatching a few hours of sleep.
Should a glass in the lantern break, as sometimes happens, the watcher raises the alarm, and a "storm-panc" is fitted. Disaster might follow should such an accident not be remedied immediately.
The keeper has also to see to the working of the foghorn. This is driven by compressed air, and the volume of the sound is regulated and recorded on special graphic charts.
Great care must be taken in directing the sound. Should the fog change its course, the keeper at once turns the mouth of the horn in another direction.
Periodical readings of the thermometer and the barometer, study of the direction of the wind and the state of the sea and sky are all part of the keeper's business. The lighthouse of to-day has become exceedingly valuable in supplying weather information.
Yet the keeper's life, exacting though it be, is not all work. Often enough his family occupies the lighthouse with him. He has his recreation hours, when sometimes, if so situated, he can get into town.
It is only the keepers of lighthouses placed far out at sea who feel their isolation keenly. The coming of the relief-boat is a great occasion in their lives.

Bureaucracy.

The threat for office and the itch for government has taken such hold of the "Anglo-Saxon race" that we are in danger of having more rulers than subjects. An American paper tells us: "In a report to the trustees of Columbia University expressing his objections to the proposed Federal Bureau for the supervision of education, Dr. Butler used language no less vehement than that employed by the Senator from Kentucky: "In the United States Senate," he said, "we are, in flat defiance of all our proclaimed principles, building a series of bureaucracies that will put to shame the best efforts of the government of the Czar of all the Russias when in the heyday of its glory. We are surrounded by agents, special agents, inspectors and spies, and the people are called out to support, through their taxes, in harmful and un-American activities, whole armies of individuals who should be engaged in productive industry."
Senator Stanley had described in this fashion the tendency of the 15,000 bills already introduced in the present Congress: "Nobody escapes. Everything in the moral, industrial and commercial world is to be owned, operated, supervised or censored, from the birth of a baby to the burial of a corpse, and the worst is not yet."
"The passion for bureaucracy and government regulation which began under Roosevelt has now lost all sense of restraint. Outside of Bolshevism Russia, the American people are the most government-ridden people in the world, and every session of Congress, every session of a State Legislature, marks an extension of the system."
And if the American people are being interfered with and over-governed, the Canadian people are in about as bad a state. They have lately showed their resentment by throwing out a government that was over-zealous in governing by Orders-in-Council. But outside of the political field there never was such a rank growth of interfering officialdom as there is to-day. There are hundreds of so-called organizations, each with their big-sounding offices and officers. In many cases salaries are paid out to these officers whose only business is interfering in the affairs of others. What is all this but bureaucracy and useless officialdom and red tape? There are more presidents and secretary-treasurers and conveners in our cities now than there are members to be lectured. And more members to be lectured, the more members to subscribe and shell out, but they themselves hardly ever loosen their purse-strings. Bureaucracy of this kind is a barnacle upon the ship of public life and seriously interferes with its smooth progress.

Divorce in England to Become Easier.

Poor women of England are to be given increased facilities for using the Divorce Courts by new rules before the supreme court. Heretofore a wife could not be admitted as a "poor person" in a matrimonial case if the combined income of herself and her husband exceeded four pounds a week, even if they were living apart. Moreover, the wife could not bring action unless she deposited five pounds with the court. Under the proposed rules a "poor person" wife may obtain the benefits of the rulings if her own income is less than four pounds a week. It is unable to deposit five pounds with the court it will be possible for her to obtain an order for her husband to pay the amount.

Britton Has never Been Knocked Out.

New York—Jack Britton, aside from being the oldest title holder, being welterweight champion at 37, enjoys another unique distinction.
Britton is the only holder of a fight title who has never been knocked out. Britton has lost decisions, had his back on the rosin, but he has never failed to get up before the count of ten.
Benny Leonard, holder of the lightweight title, has twice been knocked out. In his first year as a professional, 1912, Joe Shugrus stopped him in four rounds. The following year Frankie Fleming knocked him out in the same number of rounds.
Johnny Dundee, holder of the junior lightweight title, was kayed in the first round of his fight with Willie Jackson in 1917.
Jimmy Wilde, holder of the world's flyweight title, went out of his class to meet Pete Herman and was out on his feet when they stopped the bout.
George Carpentier, holder of the world's light heavyweight championship, has been the most knocked out of all champs. He has taken the count three times.
Johnny Kilbane went out of his class to meet lightweight champion Benny Leonard and lasted only three rounds.
Jim Flynn once knocked out Jack Dempsey. That was when Dempsey was an unknown. It is claimed Jack purposely picked out a soft spot.
All of Cleveland is convinced that Bryan Downey knocked out middleweight champion Johnny Wilson, not once, but three times, in their bout in that city.
A young lecturer on March 21, unsuccessfully sought to obtain damages against London University College, which dismissed him because at the University closing term date he kissed a girl student. The judge said the behavior of the young lecturer was unbecoming in a man in his position, although he would be sorry to see it made a ground for dismissal in every case where a lecturer and student were involved.

Nurse Cavell's Betrayer.

The trial of Armand Jeanes, "the perfect traitor" who was chiefly instrumental in the betrayal of Nurse Edith Cavell to the Germans, began at Mons on March 20. All through the war, Jeanes worked for Germany and was responsible for the death of hundreds of Frenchmen and his own countrymen. He is a Belgian. As a reward for his work, he was given a high position in the German spy system, with authority over a big organization of German agents. Just before the battle of Verdun, Jeanes furnished the Germans with the names of sixty-six French agents. Just before the attack was launched, all of them were arrested, so that Marshal Petain had to defend Verdun without information as to the enemy's movements other than the British could furnish him. More than two hundred reports written by "the perfect traitor" were found by the Belgian authorities. They had been left behind by the Germans and it sustained, any one he sufficient to convict him. No attorney would voluntarily defend Jeanes, and the court was finally obliged to appoint counsel for him.

Jumps from Skyscraper.

Ester Davidson, 28, had the old learning for a "learned profession," the love that makes teachers accept less pay than janitors, so she spent her spare time, when not working as a stenographer, studying to take a teacher's examination. On March 23, her mind became confused. This was shown by a note: "May God forgive me for what I am about to do, but the mental torture I have gone through for the last two months is unbearable." All this mental confusion left her as she lay for nearly fifty minutes in a hospital, her back broken, and fully conscious after she had leaped from the Times Building tower, 23 stories high, and struck the heavy protective screenings over the main part of the building that begins at the 17th story. At the end of nearly fifty minutes came that death which she had hoped to attain with one stumbling rush before her body struck the street.

The St. George's Coal Fields, Limited.

We wish to advise our Shareholders as well as the general public that since starting our development on the above named area some three years ago, we have uncovered and prospectively over FIFTEEN separate SEAMS of COAL, SEVEN of which come well within the range of workable COAL SEAMS, namely:—

Containing

The Hawley on the Robinson River	4 ft. 2 inches Coal
The Cleary on the Barachois River	2 ft. 2 inches Coal
The Jukes on the Barachois River	5 ft. 5 inches Coal
The Furlong on the Barachois River	3 ft. 3 inches Coal
The Murray No. 1 on the Barachois River	3 ft. 3 inches Coal
The Murray No. 2 on the Barachois River	5 ft. 5 inches Coal
The Tom Diamond on the Barachois River	2 ft. 2 inches Coal
Total	25 ft. 10 inches Coal

As we are now satisfied we have a Coal property with sufficient Coal in sight to warrant any reputable Company to finance and work on an extensive scale we have invited Engineers to examine the area during the coming spring.
In order to defray the necessary expenses which must be met, such as keeping the shafts and tunnels on the various sections of the property open and ready for the inspection of engineers and buyers during the coming summer, together with the payment of Government rentals, office and travelling expenses until the property is sold, we are asking your co-operation in the purchase of some additional Shares.
As the risk of speculation in this proposition has been borne by the pioneers we make no hesitation in stating that the present offering of shares may be regarded as an investment with enormous possibilities.

The area contains 11 1-2 Square Miles containing according to surface measurements of Seams 2 ft. 2 inches and upwards calculated on the basis of 1,000 tons per acre-foot (the very lowest estimate) over 190,000,000 tons, thus guaranteeing enough of Coal to supply Newfoundland with 500,000 tons per year for 126 years in addition to export 1,000,000 tons per year over a similar period. The consumption of coal in Newfoundland at the present time is about 300,000 tons per year.

With regard to the possibilities and future value of this property we would call your attention to the Iron Ore Properties at Bell Island.

When the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. purchased from the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co. a portion of the Iron Ore properties at Bell Island for $1,000,000 they based their calculation on 26,000,000 tons of Ore just a margin over 3 3-4 cents per ton, it was looked upon as a wonder. To-day the total holdings of both these Companies are calculated to contain (according to some of the leading Geologists of the world) about FOUR BILLION tons of Iron Ore.

As a NATIONAL ASSET at a valuation of 10c. per ton in taxes and 50c. per ton in labour these Mines are worth to this Dominion about $1,400,000,000 enough to pay off our NATIONAL DEBT about 40 times over.

Coal is the foundation on which Nations are built, no country can be great or ever prosperous without Coal of its own, and as we have proven beyond doubt we have MILLIONS of tons of high grade Coal on our property, we are making this appeal to our SHAREHOLDERS and also to the GENERAL PUBLIC for their earnest support in the purchase of some additional SHARES to enable us to carry through to a successful finish the work so well begun.

As this may be our last appeal and your last opportunity to participate in this venture we would ask you to let us have your application as quickly as possible.

D. D. D. for Eczema

The Standard Remedy
with thousands of endorsements from all over Canada to recommend it

A trial bottle only is required to stop the pain—the sleepless nights—the agony of itching.
We publish just one letter that tells the story in a few words.
It was written by Mr. J. W. Coran, 31 Melbourne Ave., Toronto, one of the prominent business men of that city. "A letter from you would reach him. I have been a sufferer for two years with eczema on the legs and ankles. I tried many doctors. I went to a skin specialist. All of no use. I used one bottle of D. D. D.—that is all. Today I am perfectly well."
D. D. D. is a soothing, cooling fluid directly applied to the skin. This powerful agent acts on the inflamed and tortured cells. The itching disappears at once. The pain is relieved. Under continued treatment the rough scaly surfaces assume the healthy normal look you have perhaps not known for years.
Perhaps there is someone in your home who is suffering with some skin disease, a mild case of rash, a chronic eczema of long standing. Perhaps you have a friend, know a growing child, a tiny baby, who have tried other ways of relief without success. Why not try D. D. D.? Thousands of people in every walk of life have used it. It gives results in the worst cases. Put it to the test. It is strong enough to use on infant tender skin.
A trial bottle will prove to you that D. D. D. is the REAL REMEDY, YOUR REMEDY. Do not make the mistake of neglecting to try this great medical discovery.

MUTT AND JEFF—

How Easter is Observed

In Prison and Elsewhere—Religious, Legal, and Social Points of View.

BY ALEX. A. PARSONS.

The silvery slopes of Olivet
Where steeped in mystic gloom,
Save where the Morning Star* unseal,
Hung over the garden tomb;
When to the angels walking there
Across the shadows dim,
Came thrilling through the hallowed air—
That earliest Easter hymn,—
"The Lord is risen!"

AN INVITATION AND THE RESULT.

When one is invited by the editor of a well-conducted and widely-read newspaper like the Evening Telegram to write an article on "Easter in Prison and Elsewhere" he naturally begins at once to realize the importance of the position in which the invitation places him. First, of course, he questions himself as to the nature and extent of the data available for such an undertaking and, secondly, the best way to utilize that data, so as to make the story as interesting as possible to all classes of his readers. Having satisfied himself on these two most essential points, he then proceeds with the task in hand. In this instance, however, I am not going to confine myself to "Easter in Prison" or anywhere else in particular. I intend to give myself a free hand and deal with various aspects of the subject.

THE MOST ANCIENT CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.

How many, I wonder, realize that Easter is even older than Christmas and is the most ancient festival observed by the Christian world? All the same, it is perfectly correct. As far back as we can trace it, Easter was the celebration of a pagan faith, a worship of the Dawn. The very word is the name of a Germanic Dawn-Goddess, Eostre, symbol of the East, the Sunrise, the Spring. In the dark German forests and along the frozen marshes by the northern seas, men and women of our blood worshipped Eostre long before the idea of migration swept them to the island of Britain. Through the long winter nights, as we do know, they waited and hoped for the coming of warmth and sunlight and the sight of green earth once more.

SPECIALLY INTERESTING CUSTOMS AND BELIEFS.

Of course there are many ancient customs and beliefs which are especially interesting. One of the oldest customs in that still found in some parts of Greece in the higher institutions of learning. This is claimed to have been started in the days of the Apostles, and consists of reading a certain passage in the Gospel of St. John in more than twenty different tongues, French, Italian, English, German and in the Balkan languages; and the people for miles around crowd to the institutions to hear this go on.

HOW SOME COUNTRIES USHER IN EASTER.

Even now, in some countries, especially in mountainous districts, it is the custom to usher in Easter with the pealing of bells. Not only do they usher in the day, but they also keep the peals echoing all day long. It is the children, in many instances, who do this ringing, and they believe in having a purpose in what they do. For example, the first hour is for the resurrection; then there is a period of "ringing for the blossoming of the flowers." In older days many "gitts" were made and as many kindnesses as possible were done on Easter Day. The poor were fed bounteously and made happy, and many prisoners were freed that they might go home and join their families.

EASTER SUNDAY AT THE PENITENTIARY.

Speaking of the release of prisoners reminds me that I am expected to say something in this article about what happens in prison here on Easter Day. There is, as a matter of fact, very little of general interest to relate in this immediate connection, but there is much to be said indirectly. Easter at the Penitentiary is not, as a rule, characterized by any unusual proceedings or services. On Easter Sunday morning—as on that of every other Sunday except the first in each month—the Roman Catholic inmates, male and female, are assembled in their respective wards for religious instruction by the Ladies of the Mercy Convent. At 2 p.m. the Church of England chaplain conducts a service specially adapted to the occasion, and at 3 the Methodist chaplain officiates. This pretty well occupies the time till 4 o'clock, when the prisoners are sent back to their rooms, where they remain till tea hour, after which they are locked up for the night.

THE BEST BLEND OF HUMANITY IN THE WORLD.

The general conduct of the inmates of this institution is decidedly good. This I attribute to three causes. First, to the fact that nearly all the convicts are natives of the colony and the descendants of English, Irish and Scotch—the best blend of humanity in the world; secondly, to the fact and efficiency of the officials; and thirdly, to the social element recently infused into our prison life. No feeling of treachery or vindictiveness manifests itself here, not even by the worst class of criminals we get.

INFLUENCE OF SOCIAL CONDITIONS.

The influence of social conditions upon the life of the individual are so various and complex that an exact analysis of their precise nature and extent is impossible; but for the purposes of this article those conditions may be divided into three general classifications, namely: political, economic and moral. Most obvious among crime-breeding political conditions is that state of political apathy or civic stagnation wherein multitudes of the middle classes become neglectful of their civic obligations. When right-minded persons cease to exert their influence in the public life of the community the worst elements of citizenship rapidly gain control, and the public offices are prostituted to the purposes of personal aggrandizement.

AN EARLY AND AN INEVITABLE RESULT.

It is true then that men lose respect for their public officials, and disrespect of the official functions and the laws which they represent is both an early and an inevitable result. These conditions, when allowed to remain unchecked, ultimately spread through all ranks of society, until the community is honey-combed with the corruption that flowers in its public representatives. Such a state of society not only offers no incentive to honesty, but it places a positive premium upon vice. Out of such unclean political conditions others flow as from a fountain. Opinions which engender a contempt for the rights of property naturally arise.

THE DOCTRINE OF ROB ROY.

The spectacles afforded of men grown rich through privileges filched from the community does not inspire a lofty regard for the paramount sacredness of property rights in general, and those who do not think correctly become easy converts to the doctrine of Rob Roy, that "They should take who hath the power,

And they should keep who can!"

Give It to Them—

This trial tube—watch their teeth improve

If you prefer, let your children make this test. Let them brush their teeth a few days in this modern way. Then look and see what film removal means. This is a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Millions now employ it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Let someone in your home this week show the benefits it brings.

Why teeth look dingy

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. It dims and may ruin teeth.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So film-coats have been almost universal.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and, despite the tooth brush, they have constantly increased.

Must remove it daily

Dental science has long been seeking a daily film combatant. Now two effective methods have been found. Authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with modern requirements. And these two film combatants are embodied in it. The name of the tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Millions of people of some far races now employ it daily, largely in dental advice.

Two other new effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which authorities now deem essential. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest starch

THE "NEW EDISON,"
"The Phonograph with a Soul."
 An artist stands beside the "New Edison" and sings. Without warning the lights go out and the artist steals off the stage leaving the "New Edison" re-creating the singer's voice with such realism that the audience is not aware of the artist's departure until the lights are turned on.
 Write or ask for "What the Critics say."
