All Previous Thursday Records Eclipsed

By Yesterday's Attendance at the Fair of About 30,000.

Another Daring Trip to the Fleeting Clouds.

Aeronaut Hogan Ascends and Descends Very Gracefully.

Everything Moved with Clock-Like Precision in all the Departments—A Day of Success All Around, Barring the Collapse of the Deadwood Coach in the Wild West Show—Two of its Occupants Injured—To-Day's Programme Ends the Fair.

Yesterday was another record-smashing day, the attendance being greater than on any previous Thursday, the number on the grounds being about 30,000. Everything progressed with such systematic precision that directors and visitors were alike pleased. Barring an accident in the ring, in which Secretary Browne was slightly injured, there was no clashing or disappointment. Music filled the air and harmony in every form smiled upon the scene and lent a charm to it. The weather continued fine, though the bulletin to-day says "thunder storms." International day brought many American visitors, but a very large majority of the visitors were farmers, as on Wednesday. Briefly the day may be said to have been a succession of successes.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA EXHIBIT.

The British Columbia exhibit is in the western end of the Dairy Hall, and comprises samples of grain, roots, vegetables, wood, minerals and fruit grown in that Province. British Columbia is a land of large growth, and the dimensions of everything shown is prodigious. A sample of corn is fourteen feet long and the oat straw is far longer than any grown in Ontario. The small fruits, such as raspberries, strawberries and gooseberries, are such an enormous size that one would be credulous if they had been described and not seen. The area of agricultural land is limited in this Province, but where suitable soil can be obtained for the purpose in the valleys anything raised in Canada can be produced to a degree of perfection unsurpassed elsewhere. Who has not eaten canned salmon caught in Columbia waters? In the exhibit is a large number of cans of various sizes and of a different pattern than those formerly used. The slim, long can has been discarded and one shorter and more convenient will be used in the future. It is in the product of the forest that this Province excels; there are samples of the various species of wood indigenous to it shown, and its principle characteristic is "bigness," like all its other products. There are some fine samples of slate, the supply of which is unlimited. The Province on the shores of the Pacific will be better known to the people of Ontario on account of this exhibit than formerly, and judging by the remarks of several young men who inspected it, there will be large additions to the population in the near future. The exhibit is in charge of E. J. Muma, who takes great pains to press the importance of his Province on those who view the exhibit.

BRASS AND IRON SUPPLIES.

That old and well-established firm, Messrs. Stevens & Burns, are again to the fore, and have on exhibition in the main building a splendid display of brass and iron fittings, consisting of steam fitters' and waterworks supplies, street, lawn and house hydrants, iron and brass valves, of which they make a specialty, bib cocks, compression cocks of all kinds, in brass and nickel-plate. These goods are all of Messrs. Stevens & Burns' own manufacture, in proof of which they show a specimen of brass-work fresh from the mould. One specialty is the Eclipse double glass sight-feed cylinder lubricator. In this article the firm have aimed to obviate the usual defects in cups of this style, one of the most serious of which has been a considerable loss of oil. The outlet and top of the gauge glass in this new cup are exactly on a level, and so long as any oil is shown in the glass it will feed, and when no oil shows in the glass the cup is quite empty of oil. Then the ease in replacing a broken glass is apparent, as is also the facility of making repairs to any part of the same. Another advantage is the simple and effective combination in the square immediately below the condenser and pipe when filling the cup. The filling cup, which serves as a funnel when filling, all combines to make this the most desirable sight-feed lubricator in the market. The Western Empire Patent Sight-Feed Lubricator is another of the firm's specialties. It will be found a decided improvement over the more complicated articles now on the market, as it has but one connection. It is reliable, cannot get out of order, is thoroughly well made and sold at a reasonable price. All the goods manufactured by the firm are of the latest design and best material and workmanship. It is not an easy matter for manufacturers of this class of goods to make an exhibit that attracts much attention in a large concourse of people and in an exhibition of varied products and manufacturers. An evidence of the attention given to their work and their ambition to excel is shown, however, in the tasty display made directly east of the south entrance to the Fair. The display is a brilliant one, and one that reflects the highest credit on the firm. An exhibit such as this cannot fail to create an impression on the minds of visitors that will be of vast advantage to the manufacturers. Many goods are manufactured that are meritorious and some that excel all others, but they are not made known to the public through the press and at large exhibitions where the merit of articles is determined by competent judges and by the great body of purchasers. The firm is located on Richmond street, corner of Bathurst, London, Ontario, where a growing business is done, consequent upon the popularity of their manufactures. They have a standing in the city and throughout the Dominion that now ranks second to none.

THE FOREST CITY MACHINE WORKS.

There is a fine show of machinery at the Fair, all the leading manufactures being represented. One of the best known among the makers of machinery is Mr. Geo. White, of Geo. White & Sons, proprietors of the Forest City Machinery Works. He started in business on King street, in London, 34 years ago, and being a first-class mechanic and a good business man, square and reliable in all his dealings, he built up the business to its present large proportions. His sons, as they grew up, followed in his footsteps and are all master mechanics. There are about 40 men employed in the shop, and the work of this establishment is so popular that the firm have been unable to fill the orders received this season. The threshing engine manufactured by the firm is not excelled by any other firm in the Dominion. This is the opinion of threshers, and has been admitted by men in the same line of business. The fire-box is so constructed that it burns long, rough wood, and the simplicity of its construction makes it easy to manage. It is light, yet strong, being made of the best materials, and is, therefore, easy to draw on rough roads. What greatly recommends these engines to threshers is the fact that they seldom get out of repair, and the most of the repairs required have been caused by want of proper care by those using the engines and boilers. Every detail of the work is done under the supervision of a member of the firm, and no article is allowed to leave the shops without it is complete in every respect. The firm builds a line of this style of engine from 12 to 35-h.p., all mounted on strong iron trucks, or on skids if desired. Their 14-h.p. threshing engine is superior to anything of the kind yet placed before the threshers of Canada. Intending purchasers should examine the engines made by this firm. There is no better to deal with. They have had a large experience, and are straightforward, reliable men.

THE DOLLAR FAMILY KNITTING MACHINE.

One point in the main building which it is almost impossible to pass by reason of the crowd is directly in front of Creelman Bros.' Dollar Knitting Machine. A couple of these machines are in constant operation, manipulated by two blind girls, Miss Hodge and Miss Sharpe, who knit stockings at the rate of two pairs an hour, or from fifteen to twenty pairs in a day, in the presence of a constantly-increasing group of fascinated spectators. In addition a little girl 10 years old—a practical operator—is in attendance to give instruction to any who may wish to learn this lightning express method of knitting, and the accommodating manager, Mr. Moyer, supplements it with explanations. The "Dollar Machine" is only a year old, but so necessary will it be found to every household that it is destined to a busy and prosperous life. It can be learned by a child in a few hours, and not only stockings but undershirts, jackets and vests, quilts, caps and mittens, with an endless variety of fancy work, can be made upon it. Equally good work in coarse yarn, wool, cotton and silk is shown from it. The Dollar Machine is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity and simplicity and is offered at less than one half the prices heretofore given for such machines. Compact, easily learned, strong and durable, it is sure to go off like hot cakes. The Star steam power machines by the same manufacturers has already achieved a good reputation, but the "Dollar Machine" has the lead.

THE KARN PIANOS

On entering the main exhibition hall, and when half-crazed with the eternal clatter of sewing machines and printing presses, there almost imperceptibly creeps over one's fretted spirit a soothing sensation at first wholly unaccounted for. The explanation, however, is not far to seek. Seated at a magnificent Karn piano in the center of an evidently entranced group, a young gentleman is evolving strain after strain of classic harmony little short of angelic. The enraptured expression visible on every countenance and so manifestly indicative of the enjoyment within is a study, and speaks in far stronger terms than any description can of the excellence of the Karn instrument. The exhibit is one that any admirer of a really splendid piano cannot afford to miss.

EDY BROS' PHOTOGRAPHIC DISPLAY.

Edy Bros.' display of photography with its decorations is the finest ever seen in the main building, and is of such high standing that the Board of Directors have awarded them a gold medal. A new feature in the way of exhibiting their work allows the spectator to examine more critically. Their specimens of large portraits are magnificent and show the highest of artistic ability. A novelty called the "shadow on the wall" is quite attractive, and their new mounts are a decided innovation. 51-n

HAT AND CAP MANUFACTURING.

Messrs. Goldstick & Lehrfeld, hat and cap manufacturers, 71 and 75 King street, city, are in the main building, and are hard at work manufacturing silks, silettes and velvets, the finest, they claim, ever made in this country. Messrs. Fraser, McMillan & Co., of this city, handle all their goods, where they can be purchased. 54-k

RELIABLE SEEDS AND DAIRY SUPPLIES.

To build up a far-extended reputation for enterprise and reliability is an achievement of years of which any firm has reason to feel proud. In such a position John S. Pearce & Co., of London, are fairly entitled to rank. The great seed and dairy supply business developed with infinite care by Mr. John S. Pearce needs no formal introduction to the agriculturists and dairymen of Ontario, not to mention those who make a specialty of floriculture and gardening, the rich and varied products of which every season make the name still more widely known. As a promoter of the Western Fair Mr. Pearce has labored indefatigably, and the Agricultural and Dairy Halls were each enriched by exhibits sent forward to represent the twin departments of the business.

The Seed Department.—Few people recognize the importance and responsibility of the seedsman's work in relation to progressive and successful farming. Old varieties of the standard grains, for example, constantly tend to degenerate and decay. That is a law of nature. If large yields of grain, high in quality, are to be secured new sorts must replace them. To originate such by cross-fertilization and subsequently to develop varieties of superior merit until placed within reach of the farmers, is a slow and costly process, requiring patience and skill by experts, besides which probably nine attempts out of ten are failures. For the successful kinds the enterprising seedsman is ever on the watch. Then from the first small lots of seed tests as to trueness of stock and general adaptability must be made. To accomplish this Pearce & Co. established their trial grounds east of the city. Besides this they send out seeds to be more extensively tested and grown by careful and successful farmers in different sections of the country. It is therefore self-evident that the seedsman has no interest, but quite the reverse, in introducing anything that is not of the highest merit, and what will succeed practically in all localities. Does it pay the farmer to "change seeds" and grow new varieties? Sooner or later he must make changes, but some delay too long. A friend of the writer who grows winter wheat extensively, remarked recently that he looses on this season's crop between $200 and $300 by having stuck to old sorts a year too long, thus failing to secure the larger yields available from the improved and more vigorous sorts. The success of wheat and other grains this year in Ontario has stimulated the sowing of a large area, and Mr. Pearce reports sales of at least double the quantity of high-priced winter wheat seed (ranging from $4 to $10 per bushel) than ever before. His exhibit in the Agricultural Hall was almost entirely grown on the firm's trial grounds. A conspicuous feature was the display of wheats, stalks and grains, among others being the popular Early Red Clawson, American Bronze, Jones' Winter Fyfe, Surprise (or Eureka), Canadian Velvet Chaff, Manchester, and others.

Dairy Supplies.—In the dairy building, as might be supposed, Pearce & Co. made a valuable and instructive exhibit, but lack of space precludes reference to anything but the more novel and important features in apparatus, the advantageous use of which to the dairy farmer was fully explained and exemplified in actual practice before the people by the traveling dairy from the Agricultural College, Guelph, President Mills himself being present and delivering an address. The famous Babcock Tester, for determining accurately the percentage of butter fat in milk, was shown, and numerous tests made daily. One of these is recommended for every cheese factory as a "terror to evil-doers," who skim and water or keep back strippings. To creamerymen it is absolutely essential not only enabling them to pay for milk according to its butter fat, but to keep a close watch on the cream separator and the churn by testing the skim milk and buttermilk frequently in order to prevent losses of fat. "I have to watch the churn constantly," said a creamery proprietor. "It is the greatest thief about my place." In the exhibit are two hand or "Baby" Cream Separators, the celebrated De Laval—an American-made machine of well-established merit—and Lister's "Alexandra," a British machine that beat five leading competitors on all points at the Royal Show at Doncaster, Eng., in June last, the one shown being the first ever seen in Canada. It is very compact and easily run, the "bowl" simply resting on the round, polished top of a small upright shaft, and attaining its tremendous centrifugal motion simply by means of cohesive force. One of these costing about $100 is capable, with the greatest ease, of separating perfectly the cream from 100 quarts of milk in one hour, leaving the skim milk perfectly sweet and pure for domestic purposes or the feeding of young stock as the ADVERTISER has before pointed out. The skim milk from these separators as tested by the Ontario Agricultural College experts was shown to contain only 2-10 (or 1-5) of 1 per cent. of butter fat, which is skimming exceedingly close. Power sizes as high as a capacity of 1,200 quarts per hour, suitable for creameries or cheese factories in which winter butter-making can advantageously be carried on, are also procurable. Among the other useful apparatus shown were improved churns, butter workers, printers, etc., regarding any of which full information can be secured by applying personally or writing J. S. Pearce & Co., London.

AERIAL HOOK AND LADDER TRUCK.

Yesterday afternoon the Waterous Engine Works Company gave the City Council an exhibition of their improved aerial hook and ladder truck. The main ladder of this truck is 50 feet long and was elevated and run out to its full length in less than 50 seconds by our city firemen. A man then ascended to the top, and the ladder, which is attached to a turntable, was turned completely around and lowered at a right angle. A line of hose was then taken to the top of the ladder and a stream of water thrown from it. The City Council would do well to examine this truck, and if it can be got, place it in the hands of the fire department.

A COMFORT FOR THE LADIES.

What is more comfortable for ladies to wear than Featherbone corsets? Ladies who have worn them answer, "Nothing." Flexible and durable they never fail to give pleasure and satisfaction. They fit elegantly, yet never impede circulation or interfere with the movements of the body. See them and understand their qualities, and you will use them and appreciate their excellence. Manufactured only by the Featherbone Manufacturing Company, Clarence street, London, whose exhibit at the Fair has been greatly admired from day to day.

R. S. WILLIAMS & SONS.

The touch of the pianos manufactured by R. S. Williams & Sons, Toronto, is of that peculiar lightness and elasticity of resistance that lends sufficient zest to the fingers to enable them to produce without conscious effort, all the lights and shades of effect, from pianissimo to fortissimo. Durability is insured by that perfection of construction that secures the finest tone and touch. Medals, diplomas and highest premiums have been awarded to these pianos in competition with those of other leading makers. Several beautiful pianos of elegant design have attracted universal attention at the Fair; and at 143 Yonge street, Toronto, and 229 Dundas street, London, these popular pianos may always be seen.

THURSDAY'S FAIR NOTES.

Hon. John Dryden, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, was one of the visitors at the Fair.

The children took a second outing at the Fair, having been granted a half-holiday.

Aeronaut Hogan's daring ascensions and his cool demeanor and gentlemanly bearing have won for him the admiration of the people.

Among the visitors were Secretary Hill, of the Toronto Industrial Fair, and a number of the directors; also General Passenger Agent Calloway, of Toronto, of the C.P.R., who expresses satisfaction with the business done on his road with Fair excursionists.

The receipts for Wednesday and Thursday were 20 per cent. better than those of the corresponding days in any previous year.

A complaint is justly made that the ring performances are too tedious. If promptness were observed the entire programme should be completed in less than two hours in the afternoon, and in an hour and a half in the evening. It is tiresome waiting, and no one wants to devote so large a share of the time on the grand stand. An improvement can be made in this particular.

The Fair closes at 6 o'clock p.m. to-day as far as the public is concerned, and many citizens who have not been able to go before to-day will attend.

It was proposed to bury the horse killed on Wednesday in the Fair Grounds, but Assistant Inspector Lutman ordered that it should be carted away and buried elsewhere.

There is trouble over the cheese award. The sweepstakes was given to Belleville district, but it it has been ascerted since the award was made that the cheese exhibited was manufactured in September. The condition named in the prize list is that the cheese must be made before Aug. 15. The maker must make an affidavit to this effect before the award is confirmed.

EVENTS IN THE RING.

Nearly 10,000 visitors viewed the special attractions in the horse ring, which were of an exciting nature, the grand stands being all crowded. Before the races began all horses which had won prizes were on exhibition in the ring. Among them were some beauties, and the display was much admired. Some of the animals had several red tickets.

At 3 o'clock the race for 2-year-old trotters was called. There were five entries but only three starters. The race was hotly contested by the two first horses, but the third was not in it. Had Ace of Clubs not broken so frequently he might have taken first money. Summary:

Trotting, 2:50 class; mile heats, best three in five; 1st $10, 2nd $20, 3rd $10:

Ferguson's (London) Moorelight	1	1	1
Buchanan's (Ingersoll) Ace of Clubs	2	2	2
Wm. Lamb's (St. Thomas) Michael Sweighart	3	3	3
J. Perkin & Son's (Petrolea) Minnie R.	Sch.
Kennedy's (Canning) Brown Charlie.	Sch.

Time—2:45¼, 2:47, 2:46¼.

The next event was the breeders' race for 3 or 4-year-olds foaled in Ontario. This was a 1¼ mile dash. There were three starters and the race was very close between the first two horses, the winner reaching the wire but a few feet ahead. Intense interest was manifested by the spectators as the two leaders came down the home stretch. Summary.

Breeders' race: 1¼ miles; $70, of which $20 goes to second horse:

J. Dyment (Orkney), Stonemason	1
J. Dyment (Orkney), Porterboy	2
J. Brooks (Sarnia), Kingfisher	3

Time—2:35.

Following this was the butcher boys' race, the riders being in full costume. Two heats decided the event; in each the second and third horses made a good showing. Summary:

Butcher boys' race; mile heats; best 2 in 3; 1st $15, 2nd $10:

J. R. Mitcheltree	2	2
Flanagan	3	3
R. Mitcheltree	1	1

Time—2:15, 2:20.

The competition in the class for high jumpers was keen, two good horses being entered. It was a novel event and was well appreciated by those who witnessed it. Both horses were very pretty leapers, and showed no hesitation in taking the jumps. Summary:

Best high jumper, 1st $20, 2rd $10:

G. C. Gibbons, London, c.m., Dick	1
J. Fulcher, London, c.m., Sadie	2

Highest jump—5 ft. 1 inch.

Prof. Damon's exhibition of shooting with rifle and revolver was the best ever seen in London. The marksman did not miss a single shot. "Left-Hand" Charlie will to-day be made the recipient of a handsomely engraved bronze medal by the Western Fair Board, in recognition of his excellent work this year.

The gymnast, Melville, on his trapeze in mid-air, was a great favorite with the spectators. His movements are very pretty and at the same time extremely difficult.

The remarkable power of a Ronald fire engine was displayed in front of the grand stands, the machine being greatly admired by those who examined it particularly.

The cross-cut sawing match was won by Carrothers brothers, of Belmont, in 30 seconds. Harris and Ramsay, of Walton, came next in 35 seconds, then Fraser and Lowan, of Blyth, in 39, and Hartel and Logan, of Freeport, in 43. The log was of green maple, 20¾ inches in diameter.

Broncho John's Wild West show caused more excitement yesterday than any of the kind ever exhibited in London. A special invitation had been extended to members of the press to enjoy a ride in the old Deadwood coach. Only two, however, an ADVERTISER and a Globe representative, took advantage of the opportunity. On top of the coach were seated Col. Leys, W. J. Reid, Bert Leys, Broncho John and his wife, while inside were Thos. A. Browne, Alf. Holman, the press men and a young son of Mr. Reid. The ride was enjoyed immensely, but the driver, Broncho John, thought he would introduce a slight variation and give his company a trip at a rapid rate over a piece of rough ground after leaving the smooth track. All went well until by some means the horses pulled the front wheels away from the coach and the result was a grand upset. Old "Deadwood" lay on her side with her inside passengers pretty well mixed up, while those on top were thrown in all directions. W. J. Reid had his ankle sprained and Thos. A. Browne was slightly stunned, but soon came round all right. Beyond this no damage was done. The coach was soon put on its wheels again and the occupants were conveyed to their starting point. Broncho John's wife showed an amount of pluck which few women possess. Her ankle was hurt pretty badly, but she paid no attention to it. Her care was directed towards Mr. Browne, although she evidently favored Mr. Reid on the trip around the ring. The immense crowd was thrown into a state of great excitement on seeing the coach topple over, and numerous rumors as to the results were spread about.

Aeronaut W. M. Hogan's balloon ascension was a beautiful one. The balloon was wafted by the gentle breeze towards the northeast. After going up to a great height it began to slowly descend and suddenly the parachute dropped. Hogan was then almost out of sight. This part of the programme was enjoyed intensely by everybody. This afternoon the last ascension will take place.

THE EVENING

was pleasantly spent by a great crowd, about 4,000 being in the grand stands. The display of fireworks by Prof. Hand & Co. was excellent. Gymnastic Melville delighted the spectators in his performances, and Broncho John and his forces gave their exhibition, which was as entertaining as ever.

Is sometimes called the sincere form of flattery. This may account for the number of imitations of the original and only positive corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. All such fail to possess equal merit, so when purchasing get the genuine "Putnam's." Safe and painless. All druggists.

SCORCHING THE SMALL FRY

Secretary Bradley, of the Railway Department, Suspended.

The Pay of the Minor Suspects Is Stopped.

The Government Determined to Shut Out Damaging Evidence.

The Government has suspended Mr. A. P. Bradley, secretary of the Railway and Canals Department, owing to the revelations made before the Public Accounts Committee on Monday. A big push will be made to have him reinstated.

Hon. Mr. Abbott states that Mr. Burgess' resignation has not been accepted, but a sub-committee of Council has been appointed to try the case. Of those officials in regard to whom the evidence is not complete and those who have a defense to offer and those who have been suspended, their pay ceased from the date of their suspension.

MR. MERCIER'S DEFENSE.

Premier Mercier, in his answer to Lieutenant-Governor Angers' letter, maintains that the payment under letters of credit was regular and was made with the sanction of the Crown. He expresses regret for the Pacaud incident, and says that if he and his colleagues had heard of the negotiations they would have ceased. He declares also that he was ignorant of these transactions when he received in Paris the draft for 25,000 francs.

AFRAID TO FACE THE FACTS.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—"Rowdy," "miserable sneak," "imbecile," are a few of the words that have been hurled about through the still air of the Public Accounts Committee this morning. Mr. Lister again wanted to put in the damning evidence given by J. B. Young before the Montreal court, but Mr. Chapleau and his friends fought it like tigers.

The witness Holland, a Government stenographer, admitted that he read the evidence to Mr. Chapleau, and to no one else. Mr. Lister applied to have him do so, but was refused.

Mr. Somerville made a searching speech, in which he charged that the action of Mr. Chapleau was prompted by conscious guilt. It is evident now the policy of the Government to shut down all investigations and keep out all evidence.

A Boxer's Strange Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — Prof. James Haley, a well-known light-weight boxer and proprietor of the Long Island Hotel, died there of blood poisoning yesterday afternoon. The poisoning was the result of a blow he struck an unknown man who insulted his wife. Haley's hand came in contact with the stranger's teeth and was badly lacerated.

Mutilated With a Scythe.

AVENING, Sept. 24.—A terrible accident happened here Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. While an old and respected resident of this place, Geo. Shepherd, was carrying a grain cradle along the sidewalk he stepped on a loose plank, which tripped him, and he fell with his knee on the blade, completely severing the leg at the knee joint. Being over 70 years of age it is doubtful if he can recover the operation of having his leg amputated.

An expression of gratitude, volunteered from a sense of duty, is to be found in the following statement: "18 Hill street, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A., April 23, 1890. Gentlemen—Having been sorely afflicted with rheumatism myself, my mother predisposed to bronchitis and my daughter to chronic sore throat, by the external use of St. Jacobs Oil they immediately found relief, and are at present cured by your wonderful remedy. I am constrained to say it gave me almost immediate relief, and I have not felt the slightest twinge of the disease since adopting its use. LOUIS IMHAUS, with the Equitable Life Assurance Society."

The grand president introduced the business of the meeting by explaining why it was called, viz.: For improving the organization of the grand association by amending the constitution and bylaws thereof; for finally adopting a platform of the order in this Province; for taking into consideration the advisability of making application for a Dominion charter of incorporation, and for the purpose of transacting such other business as may at the time be deemed of importance to the order in this Province. He reviewed the story of separation from the United States last February, the formation of the grand association, and the progress that has been made notwithstanding the difficulties found in the way, and believing that the experience of the past eight months would enable them now to formulate laws that are better calculated to aid Patrons to be successful, he had acted on advice given to him and had called this meeting. He told of his success in the Northwest, and of the eagerness of the farmers there to have the order spread over the territory as fast as possible. He had worked steadily in the interests of the order, and had visited sixteen or seventeen counties in Ontario, and besides the organizers appointed in Ontario, he had appointed ten organizers in the Northwest and established five county associations. The expenses of his trip to Manitoba would in a short time be more than met by the dues coming from that part of Canada.

The action of the grand president in calling this special meeting of the grand association was approved, and the work of the sessions was begun by the appointment of the following committees, viz.:

The grand association is considering this proposed platform and the action taken on it and the other business transacted will be reported in the next issue of the ADVERTISER.

There is a large amount of debating talent and executive ability in the association, and at the sessions held on Tuesday afternoon and evening, on Wednesday forenoon and evening and on Thursday forenoon, afternoon and evening very important business has been transacted. The sessions will close to-day. An adjournment was made on Wednesday afternoon only to visit the Fair, every delegate being punctual in attendance at the numerous and lengthy sessions held.

A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered by the grand association to the LONDON ADVERTISER and all other papers that have spoken kindly of the order.

quite realize that by the great law of progress something is always being brought out to make life pleasanter. The latest thing introduced is the "Health" underwear for ladies, made from the very finest Australian wool, and which every good doctor in Canada agrees is a perfect safeguard against cold, whilst being at the same time a perfect fitting, warm, and luxurious. When you go down town step into any first class dry goods store and ask to see these goods. If you do not see the word "Health" plainly stamped on the garment, don't buy it, as it will not be the genuine article.

Charges ... inst Postmaster Hag... Thrown Out.

Sir John ...pson's Remarkable Sp...try Exposed.

Conservat... Leaders Afraid to Gra... an Inquiry.

Sir Hector ...ngevin Stands by His "Pal."

A Lively ...me in the House on Wednesday.

OTTAWA, S. 23.—The Government resisted the motion for an inquiry into the relations betwe... Hon. John G. Haggart and the contractors for Section B, and the result was a debate which brought to their feet the leading men on both sides of the House. Mr. Haggart, after Mr. Lister had moved for a committee of inquiry, gave a positive and explicit denial of the charge.

The Minister of Justice arose and virtually contended that the charge was not worth denying. He argued that the charge involved a moral offense, that if proved it would fix no such stigma on Mr. Haggart as would prevent his coming to the House, that all he was charged with was a statutory offense, a breach of the Independence of Parliament Act which twelve years ago would have prevented his sitting in Parliament, and that for such a statutory offense the lapse of time was an objection to taking the matter up. As to the charge that the Government had received subscriptions from the contractors, he said that only one member of the Government of 1879, Mr. Bowell, was now a Minister. The Minister insisted strongly on the contention that there was no moral offense charged by Mr. Lister, that therefore the House should not entertain the motion for any inquiry.

Hon. Mr. Laurier took the strong constitutional ground. He hoped that the members of the House would not allow the question of expediency to interfere with their duties to the public and to themselves. The rule in England, he said was broad, and was simply this: The House of Commons would not tolerate as one of its members one who had disgraced himself in any way. The charge in this case is not that Mr. Haggart misappropriated public moneys, but is that public moneys were misapplied. If the charge were proved the statute would have provided for the forfeiture of the seat, but if the statutory offense is limited could it be urged that the moral offense is also lapsed? The fact is, assuming that the charge can be proved, the honorable gentleman has sat all these years in this House without any right to do so. It is the duty of Parliament to investigate this case and to find out whether the member who is charged and who has for years deceived the House is a proper person to sit in the House of Commons, whether or not the charge is proved, if it is true that the Postmaster-General has been all these years occupying this position, deceiving the country, deceiving the electors, whether or not under the circumstances he is a fit member of the House. But it is preposterous to say that we should not do this because his seat at the time had not been forfeited. If the accused has been so cunning as to deceive the House and to deceive the electors, he is so much the more deserving of condemnation. He denied that a royal commission had sat upon this charge. The commission simply had a general reference to matters connected with section B and other C. P. R. contracts, and had no authority to decide whether or not Mr. Haggart was a partner in the concern, or had violated the independence of Parliament Act. The only reason why the charge had been brought so late was because the evidence had been well concealed. Reports regarding the charge had been in circulation, but until Mr. Lister had obtained the strong evidence that came to his hands he did not feel warranted in making the accusation. "For myself," added Mr. Laurier, "whatever may be the inconvenience to myself, I wish to see that justice is done in the matter, not only to the Postmaster-General, but to the public, who are still more interested than even the Postmaster-General in having the charge cleared up. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Dalton McCarthy argued that it was not the duty of member of Parliament to make charges against each other under the privileges of the House, where no possible object could be attained, and which simply caused scandal. Mr. McCarthy argued that Mr. Haggart had only been guilty of a moral offense. The offense had only been created since the Independence of Parliament Act had been passed. Before that it was no offense for a member of Parliament to be a contractor and to receive Government money. No doubt the Postmaster-General desired this inquiry to dispose of this charge once and forever, but that was no reason why the House should grant it.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell) referred to the case of Lord Bacon, who having accepted bribes, Lord Chancellor declared that his conduct had never been influenced by their receipt. That had not been accepted as a defence of bribe-taking, and yet to-day the Minister of Justice advanced as a defense that he had not been charged that the conduct of the Government or of the Postmaster-General had been influenced. Mr. Mills utterly repudiated the proposition that such a charge was necessary or that proof was necessary. When the member for West Lambton said the Government had received large sums of money from contractors while they had before the Government which were to be dealt upon, that was a charge against the Government of the nature of a high crime and misdemeanor. It was not necessary the honorable member to state that the money was received corruptly. It was impossible for contractors to pay large sums of money to the Government for election purposes in any other way than a corrupt way. Therefore when the honorable member made this charge it was a charge of corruption against the Government.

The Minister of Justice and the member for Simcoe intimated that this was not the proper court before which to try this charge. If this was not where was the court before which the conduct of Ministers in receiving money improperly may be inquired into? This House was the proper court. The question was not whether the Postmaster-General's seat was affected, but whether the facts, if published, will leave him in a proper person to remain as an adviser of the Crown. That question was as fresh the day Mr. Haggart was appointed Minister. It was decidedly imperative that the House should investigate these charges. He repudiated the idea that a royal commission investigating a charge of this kind, because a royal commission had always appointed by the Government. The Minister of Justice said it was the duty of the House, but it stood in the same position as the charge against Thomas Mc-Greevy, M.P., who had been censured by Sir John Thompson.

Mr. Skinner accused the member for Bothwell of making a hustings speech instead of arguing the question at issue. He objected to the bringing before Parliament of such charges as this. There was a great deal of mock virtue finding expression in this House, and in the committees, and in the country about contributions to elections. There were large legitimate expenses at every election.

Mr. Gillmor—No, not large.

Mr. Skinner said the honorable gentlemen opposite had last spring gone to a vast expenditure of money to carry into effect their devolutionary policy and money had to be met by money. If contractors paid large sums to the Government side, it was their own and they could do as they liked with it. It was not for this House to inquire into the subject of the source of moneys subscribed to election funds, and, in his opinion, there was no ground for an inquiry on this charge, which, it should be remembered, was not that public money had been taken.

Sir Richard Cartwright was greeted by prolonged applause when he rose, and the Opposition side resounded with the cheers that indorsed his scathing criticism of the Government's high-handed course. He wished to record his conviction, he said, that no more immoral speech had ever been delivered in Parliament than that which the Minister of Justice had addressed to the House. "There are certain casuists," he said, "who are willing to prove that there is not a single crime in the calendar which cannot be justified and majorem deigloriam—substitute party for providence to make it applicable to this case." (Cheers and laughter.) Contractors, said Sir Richard, do not give money away for the love of the thing. Every dollar paid to a campaign fund is returned ten-fold out of the public treasury, and the bread cast upon the waters is returned buttered on both sides. Then the argument based on the alleged antiquity of the charge was severely handled. The contract began in 1879, but Sir Richard Cartwright pointed out, it was not closed until 1886 or 1887. It is therefore no older than the charges which drove Mr. Rykert from public life. Besides, it would be exceedingly unwise to consent to a principle which would put a premium on the concealment of offenses against Parliament. Sir Richard concluded with the remark that the Government need not delude themselves with the belief that this would end here. They might vote down the motion, but in the present temper of the people of Canada their refusal would be interpreted as a deliberate confession of guilt and a proof of what he (Sir Richard) had declared time and again in this House, in the country and over his signature in the press, and which he had challenged proof of, that from first to last since their policy of legalized robbery—the other name being the National Policy—came into existence down to the present time, when the pettiest offices are put up to sale to provide funds for political purposes, the Government of which the honorable gentleman is a member, and the previous Government have by such means as these raised money, with which they have debauched the ignorant of the electorate, whose votes they used to keep them in office.

Mr. Casey asked, Could the Postmaster-General hold up his head before his colleagues and the country with these charges hanging over him? He could not. The Government, knowing that if these charges were disproved it would be a great blow to the Liberal party, nevertheless refused to grant an inquiry.

Mr. Girouard declared that the Opposition wanted to throw infamy on Canada in the mother land. (Laughter.) The actual revelations were bad enough without resurrecting or concocting charges. He asked where was the law which prevented a Minister from accepting contributions from public contractors for political purposes?

Mr. Edgar said the Minister of Justice and Mr. McCarthy had called for precedents, and Mr. Edgar gave them a recent one, the blind shares scandal of 1886, when Mr. Haggart took the objection that the charge did not involve expulsion of the accused members, yet Sir John Thompson and Mr. McCarthy voted to refer the charge to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. This, a much more serious case, was considered unworthy a reference to a committee. Mr. Lister had brought certain charges and Mr. Haggart denied them. Who was to decide between them if the matter was not investigated?

Mr. Lister disclaimed any animus on his part against the Postmaster-General, and declared he acted entirely as a matter of public duty. The substance of the charge Mr. Lister summarized thus: That Mr. Haggarty was a secret partner in a contract between the Government and a certain firm, which firm contributed to the political funds of the Government large sums. The system of granting tens of thousands of dollars out of the treasury to contractors and receiving part of it back in subscriptions was a monstrous system, and called for the exercise of that vengeance which the head of this Government virtuously declared was to be meted out to all offenders, high or low. No member of the Government had dared to excuse this example of the system, but they had put up their supporters to declare it legal and moral to bribe the people with their own money. If this was the doctrine preached, then God knows we deserved to be what we were, a politically demoralized country, worse than any South or Central American Republic. He would be able to establish that the Postmaster-General benefited and members of the Government of that day benefited from the profits of this section B contract. I will be able, Mr. Lister continued, to prove that a lawyer, eminent in his profession and otherwise, advised these contractors to keep their books clean, and the books were kept in such a way that it was impossible for an outsider to get at them. They acted wiser than "Nick and Mick." (Cheers.) I believe that I can show that after the contract was entered into they had a friendly arbitration, that the arbitrators were told the exact state of affairs, and, on the basis of that, sums were given to each contractor. If Parliament has nothing to do with such a matter, if it is legitimate and right that public contractors should pay back to the Government tens of thousands of dollars of public money for the purpose of debauching and corrupting the electorate, then this charge must utterly fail, but if this is an offense then this charge ought to be investigated. (Cheers.) I repeat that in this matter I am proceeding upon information I believe to be true, and if a committee is granted I will be able to establish charges I have formulated on the floor of the House. (Loud cheers.)

A division was then taken. Mr. Haggart was not in his place, but Sir Hector Langevin entered when the division bells rang, and was greeted with sarcastic cheers from the Opposition, which were repeated when Sir Hector voted. Several former absentee Ministerialists were present, such as Mr. Weldon, of Albert, who had gone home for the session. The public galleries were crowded to excess for the first time since on Sir John Macdonald's death. The vote was on Sir John Thompson's amendment, which was carried by 102 yeas to 78 nays, a Government majority of 24.

The Langevin-McGreevy debate was continued by Col. Amyot. The Conservatives cleared out and the House was very thin.

Shortly after 1 o'clock there was an extraordinary scene. In the course of his remarks Mr. Amyot made a reference to Mr. Langelier.

Mr. Ives interjected, "He's a boodler."

Mr. Langelier—That's a lie.

Mr. Choquette—Take it back.

Mr. Ives—Do I hear Pacaud's partner speaking?

Mr. Amyot—Does the honorable gentleman want to insult us?

Mr. Laurier—We cannot submit to this. The member for Sherbrooke is taking advantage of the thinness of the House to throw wanton insults across the floor. It is a cowardly act which he would not dare to repeat in a full House. I therefore move that the debate be adjourned.

Mr. Langelier—He's encouraged by his neighbors.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had encouraged Mr. Ives, and asked Mr. Laurier not to press his motion.

Mr. Laurier—I insist upon it.

The House divided upon the motion with the following result: Yeas, 29; nays, 35. The motion was thus defeated by six.

Mr. Amyot rose to continue his speech.

Mr. Speaker ruled that Mr. Amyot had lost his opportunity of continuing his speech, as he had given up the floor.

Mr. Laurier immediately moved the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Amyot thereupon continued his speech at 1:25 o'clock.

Mr. Amyot had not proceeded far before Mr. Ouimet rose to a point of order. He said that Mr. Laurier having moved the adjournment of the debate could not move the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Laurier—Then I will withdraw my motion.

Mr. Lister—I beg to move the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Amyot then continued his remarks, observing that if he were not allowed to go on now he would continue his remarks at greater length some other day.

At 2 o'clock Sir Adolphe Caron moved the adjournment of the debate. The House then rose.

I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. MR. MERCIER'S DEFENSE.

Premier Mercier, in his answer to Lieutenant-Governor Angers' letter, maintains that the payment under letters of credit was regular and was made with the sanction of the Crown. He expresses regret for the Pacaud incident, and says that if he and his colleagues had heard of the negotiations they would have ceased. He declares also that he was ignorant of these transactions when he received in Paris the draft for 25,000 francs.

AFRAID TO FACE THE FACTS.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—"Rowdy," "miserable sneak," "imbecile," are a few of the words that have been hurled about through the still air of the Public Accounts Committee this morning. Mr. Lister again wanted to put in the damning evidence given by J. B. Young before the Montreal court, but Mr. Chapleau and his friends fought it like tigers.

The witness Holland, a Government stenographer, admitted that he read the evidence to Mr. Chapleau, and to no one else. Mr. Lister applied to have him do so, but was refused.

Mr. Somerville made a searching speech, in which he charged that the action of Mr. Chapleau was prompted by conscious guilt. It is evident now the policy of the Government to shut down all investigations and keep out all evidence.

A Boxer's Strange Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — Prof. James Haley, a well-known light-weight boxer and proprietor of the Long Island Hotel, died there of blood poisoning yesterday afternoon. The poisoning was the result of a blow he struck an unknown man who insulted his wife. Haley's hand came in contact with the stranger's teeth and was badly lacerated.

Mutilated With a Scythe.

AVENING, Sept. 24.—A terrible accident happened here Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. While an old and respected resident of this place, Geo. Shepherd, was carrying a grain cradle along the sidewalk he stepped on a loose plank, which tripped him, and he fell with his knee on the blade, completely severing the leg at the knee joint. Being over 70 years of age it is doubtful if he can recover the operation of having his leg amputated.

An expression of gratitude, volunteered from a sense of duty, is to be found in the following statement: "18 Hill street, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A., April 23, 1890. Gentlemen—Having been sorely afflicted with rheumatism myself, my mother predisposed to bronchitis and my daughter to chronic sore throat, by the external use of St. Jacobs Oil they immediately found relief, and are at present cured by your wonderful remedy. I am constrained to say it gave me almost immediate relief, and I have not felt the slightest twinge of the disease since adopting its use. LOUIS IMHAUS, with the Equitable Life Assurance Society."

Business Transacted at a Special Session of the Grand Association.

The call to attend a special session of the Grand Association of Patrons of Industry of Ontario was liberally responded to, and on Tuesday afternoon nearly 60 delegates reported themselves at the City Hall, London, one of these being a representative from Quebec.

The grand president introduced the business of the meeting by explaining why it was called, viz.: For improving the organization of the grand association by amending the constitution and bylaws thereof; for finally adopting a platform of the order in this Province; for taking into consideration the advisability of making application for a Dominion charter of incorporation, and for the purpose of transacting such other business as may at the time be deemed of importance to the order in this Province. He reviewed the story of separation from the United States last February, the formation of the grand association, and the progress that has been made notwithstanding the difficulties found in the way, and believing that the experience of the past eight months would enable them now to formulate laws that are better calculated to aid Patrons to be successful, he had acted on advice given to him and had called this meeting. He told of his success in the Northwest, and of the eagerness of the farmers there to have the order spread over the territory as fast as possible. He had worked steadily in the interests of the order, and had visited sixteen or seventeen counties in Ontario, and besides the organizers appointed in Ontario, he had appointed ten organizers in the Northwest and established five county associations. The expenses of his trip to Manitoba would in a short time be more than met by the dues coming from that part of Canada.

The action of the grand president in calling this special meeting of the grand association was approved, and the work of the sessions was begun by the appointment of the following committees, viz.:

On resolutions—J. N. McCoy, C. A. Mallory, Thos. Sawyer and T. J. Leahy.

8. A system of civil service reform that will give each county power to appoint their own county officials, except county judges; 281.

9. Tariff for revenue only, and so adjusted as to fall as far as possible upon the luxuries, and not upon the necessaries of life; 301.

10. Reciprocal trade on fair and equitable terms between Canada and the United States; 294.

11. Effectual legislation that will protect labor and the results of labor from those combinations and monopolies which unduly enhance the price of the articles produced by such combinations or monopolies; 299.

12. Prohibition of the bonusing of railways by Government grants as contrary to the public interests; 288.

13. The formation of a loan and investment society in connection with the order for the purpose of negotiating loans on farm property at reduced rates of interest; 288.

14. Preparation of the Dominion and Provincial voters' lists by the municipal officers; 296.

15. Conformity of electoral districts for both Dominion and Provincial representation to county boundaries, as constituted for municipal purposes; 292.

The grand association is considering this proposed platform and the action taken on it and the other business transacted will be reported in the next issue of the ADVERTISER.

There is a large amount of debating talent and executive ability in the association, and at the sessions on Tuesday afternoon and evening on Wednesday forenoon and evening and on Thursday forenoon, afternoon and evening very important business has been transacted. The sessions will close to-day. An adjournment was made on Wednesday afternoon only to visit the Fair, every delegate being punctual in attendance at the numerous and lengthy sessions held.

A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered by the grand association to the London ADVERTISER and all other papers that have spoken kindly of its order.

Afraid to the Facts.

Charges Against Postmaster Haggart Thrown Out.

Sir John Thompson's Remarkable Scoptry Exposed.

Conservative Leaders Afraid to Grant an Inquiry.

Sir Hector Langevin Stands by His "Pal."

A Lively Scene in the House on Wednesday.

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—The Government resisted the motion for an inquiry into the relations between Hon. John G. Haggart and the contractors for Section B, and the result was a debate which brought to their feet the leading men on both sides of the House. Mr. Haggart, after Mr. Lister had moved for the committee of inquiry, gave a positive and explicit denial of the charge.

The Minister of Justice arose and virtually contended that the charge was not worth denying. He argued that the charge involved no moral offense, that if proved it would fix no such stigma on Mr. Haggart as would prevent his coming to the House, that all he was charged with was a statutory offense, a breach of the Independence of Parliament Act which twelve years ago would have prevented his sitting in Parliament, and that for such a statutory offense the lapse of time was an objection to taking the matter up. As to the charge that the Government had received subscriptions from the contractors, he said that only one member of the Government of 1879, Mr. Bowell, was now a Minister. The Minister insisted strongly on the contention that there was no moral offense charged by Mr. Lister, that therefore the House should not entertain the motion for any inquiry.

Hon. Mr. Laurier took the strong constitutional ground. He hoped that the members of the House would not allow the question of expediency to interfere with their duties to the public and to themselves. The rule in England, he said was broad, and was simply this: The House of Commons would not tolerate as one of its members one who had disgraced himself in any way. The charge in this case is not that Mr. Haggart misappropriated public moneys, but is that public moneys were misapplied. If the charge were proved the statute would have provided for the forfeiture of the seat, but if the statutory offense is limited could it be urged that the moral offense is also lapsed? The fact is, assuming that the charge can be proved, the honorable gentleman has sat all these years in this House without any right to do so. It is the duty of Parliament to investigate this case and to find out whether the member who is charged and who has for years deceived the House is a proper person to sit in the House of Commons, whether or not the charge is proved, if it is true that the Postmaster-General has been all these years occupying this position, deceiving the country, deceiving the electors, whether or not under the circumstances he is a fit member of the House. But it is preposterous to say that we should not do this because his seat at the time had not been forfeited. If the accused has been so cunning as to deceive the House and to deceive the electors, he is so much the more deserving of condemnation. He denied that a royal commission had sat upon this charge. The commission simply had a general reference to matters connected with section B and other C. P. R. contracts, and had no authority to decide whether or not Mr. Haggart was a partner in the concern, or had violated the independence of Parliament Act. The only reason why the charge had been brought so late was because the evidence had been well concealed. Reports regarding the charge had been in circulation, but until Mr. Lister had obtained the strong evidence that came to his hands he did not feel warranted in making the accusation. "For myself," added Mr. Laurier, "whatever may be the inconvenience to myself, I wish to see that justice is done in the matter, not only to the Postmaster-General, but to the public, who are still more interested than even the Postmaster-General in having the charge cleared up. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Dalton McCarthy argued that it was not the duty of member of Parliament to make charges against each other under the privileges of the House, where no possible object could be attained, and which simply caused scandal. Mr. McCarthy argued that Mr. Haggart had only been guilty of a moral offense. The offense had only been created since the Independence of Parliament Act had been passed. Before that it was no offense for a member of Parliament to be a contractor and to receive Government money. No doubt the Postmaster-General desired this inquiry to dispose of this stale charge once and forever, but that was no reason why the House should grant it.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell) referred to the case of Lord Bacon, who having accepted bribes as Lord Chancellor declared that his conduct had never been influenced by their receipt. That had not been accepted as a defense for bribe-taking, and yet to-day the Minister of Justice advanced as a defense that it had not been charged that the conduct of the Government or of the Postmaster-General had been influenced. Mr. Mills also utterly repudiated the proposition that such a charge was necessary or that such proof was necessary. When the member for West Lambton said the Government had received large sums of money from contractors while they had claims before the Government which were not decided upon, that was a charge against the Government of the nature of a high crime and misdemeanor. It was not necessary for the honorable member to state that the money was received corruptly. It was impossible for contractors to pay large sums of money to the Government for election purposes in any other way than a corrupt way. Therefore when the honorable member made such a charge it was a charge of corruption against the Government.

The Minister of Justice and the member for Nipissing intimated that this was not the proper court before which to try this case. If this was not where was the court before which the conduct of Ministers receiving money improperly may be inquired into? This House was the proper court. The question was not whether the Postmaster-General's seat was affected, but whether the facts, if published, will leave him proper person to remain as an advi to the Crown. That question was as fr the day Mr. Haggart was appoed Minister. It was decidedly right in operative that the House should investigate these charges. He repudiated the p of royal commission investigating a che of this kind, because a royal commiss is always appointed by the Governmen The Minister of Justice said it was an charge, but it stood in the same cate as the charge against Thomas McGreevy, M.P., who had been censured by Sir John Thompson.

Mr. Skinner accused the member for Bothwell of making a hustings speech instead of arguing the question at issue. He objected to the bringing before Parliament of such charges as this. There was a great deal of mock virtue finding expression in this House, and in the committees, and in the country about contributions to elections. There were large legitimate expenses at every election.

Mr. Gillmor—No, not large.

Mr. Skinner said the honorable gentlemen opposite had last spring gone to a vast expenditure of money to carry into effect their devolutionary policy and money had to be met by money. If contractors paid large sums to the Government side, it was their own and they could do as they liked with it. It was not for this House to inquire into the subject of the source of moneys subscribed to election funds, and, in his opinion, there was no ground for an inquiry on this charge, which, it should be remembered, was not that public money had been taken.

Sir Richard Cartwright was greeted by prolonged applause when he rose, and the Opposition side resounded with the cheers that indorsed his scathing criticism of the Government's high-handed course. He wished to record his conviction, he said, that no more immoral speech had ever been delivered in Parliament than that which the Minister of Justice had addressed to the House. "There are certain casuists," he said, "who are willing to prove that there is not a single crime in the calendar which cannot be justified and majorem deigloriam—substitute party for providence to make it applicable to this case." (Cheers and laughter.) Contractors, said Sir Richard, do not give money away for the love of the thing. Every dollar paid to a campaign fund is returned ten-fold out of the public treasury, and the bread cast upon the waters is returned buttered on both sides. Then the argument based on the alleged antiquity of the charge was severely handled. The contract began in 1879, but Sir Richard Cartwright pointed out, it was not closed until 1886 or 1887. It is therefore no older than the charges which drove Mr. Rykert from public life. Besides, it would be exceedingly unwise to consent to a principle which would put a premium on the concealment of offenses against Parliament. Sir Richard concluded with the remark that the Government need not delude themselves with the belief that this would end here. They might vote down the motion, but in the present temper of the people of Canada their refusal would be interpreted as a deliberate confession of guilt and a proof of what he (Sir Richard) had declared time and again in this House, in the country and over his signature in the press, and which he had challenged proof of, that from first to last since their policy of legalized robbery—the other name being the National Policy—came into existence down to the present time, when the pettiest offices are put up to sale to provide funds for political purposes, the Government of which the honorable gentleman is a member, and the previous Government have by such means as these raised money, with which they have debauched the ignorant of the electorate, whose votes they used to keep them in office.

Mr. Casey asked, Could the Postmaster-General hold up his head before his colleagues and the country with these charges hanging over him? He could not. The Government, knowing that if these charges were disproved it would be a great blow to the Liberal party, nevertheless refused to grant an inquiry.

Mr. Girouard declared that the Opposition wanted to throw infamy on Canada in the mother land. (Laughter.) The actual revelations were bad enough without resurrecting or concocting charges. He asked where was the law which prevented a Minister from accepting contributions from public contractors for political purposes?

Mr. Edgar said the Minister of Justice and Mr. McCarthy had called for precedents, and Mr. Edgar gave them a recent one, the blind shares scandal of 1886, when Mr. Haggart took the objection that the charge did not involve expulsion of the accused members, yet Sir John Thompson and Mr. McCarthy voted to refer the charge to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. This, a much more serious case, was considered unworthy a reference to a committee. Mr. Lister had brought certain charges and Mr. Haggart denied them. Who was to decide between them if the matter was not investigated?

Mr. Lister disclaimed any animus on his part against the Postmaster-General, and declared he acted entirely as a matter of public duty. The substance of the charge Mr. Lister summarized thus: That Mr. Haggarty was a secret partner in a contract between the Government and a certain firm, which firm contributed to the political funds of the Government large sums. The system of granting tens of thousands of dollars out of the treasury to contractors and receiving part of it back in subscriptions was a monstrous system, and called for the exercise of that vengeance which the head of this Government virtuously declared was to be meted out to all offenders, high or low. No member of the Government had dared to excuse this example of the system, but they had put up their supporters to declare it legal and moral to bribe the people with their own money. If this was the doctrine preached, then God knows we deserved to be what we were, a politically demoralized country, worse than any South or Central American Republic. He would be able to establish that the Postmaster-General benefited and members of the Government of that day benefited from the profits of this section B contract. I will be able, Mr. Lister continued, to prove that a lawyer, eminent in his profession and otherwise, advised these contractors to keep their books clean, and the books were kept in such a way that it was impossible for an outsider to get at them. They acted wiser than "Nick and Mick." (Cheers.) I believe that I can show that after the contract was entered into they had a friendly arbitration, that the arbitrators were told the exact state of affairs, and, on the basis of that, sums were given to each contractor. If Parliament has nothing to do with such a matter, if it is legitimate and right that public contractors should pay back to the Government tens of thousands of dollars of public money for the purpose of debauching and corrupting the electorate, then this charge must utterly fail, but if this is an offense then this charge ought to be investigated. (Cheers.) I repeat that in this matter I am proceeding upon information I believe to be true, and if a committee is granted I will be able to establish charges I have formulated on the floor of the House. (Loud cheers.)

A division was then taken. Mr. Haggart was not in his place, but Sir Hector Langevin entered when the division bells rang, and was greeted with sarcastic cheers from the Opposition, which were repeated when Sir Hector voted. Several former absentee Ministerialists were present, such as Mr. Weldon, of Albert, who had gone home for the session. The public galleries were crowded to excess for the first time since Sir John Macdonald's death. The vote was on Sir John Thompson's amendment, which was carried by 102 yeas to 78 nays, a Government majority of 24.

The Langevin-McGreevy debate was continued by Col. Amyot. The Conservatives cleared out and the House was very thin.

Shortly after 1 o'clock there was an extraordinary scene. In the course of his remarks Mr. Amyot made a reference to Mr. Langelier.

Mr. Ives interjected, "He's a boodler."

Mr. Langelier—That's a lie.

Mr. Choquette—Take it back.

Mr. Ives—Do I hear Pacaud's partner speaking?

Mr. Amyot—Does the honorable gentleman want to insult us?

Mr. Laurier—We cannot submit to this. The member for Sherbrooke is taking advantage of the thinness of the House to throw wanton insults across the floor. It is a cowardly act which he would not dare to repeat in a full House. I therefore move that the debate be adjourned.

Mr. Langelier—He's encouraged by his neighbors.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had encouraged Mr. Ives, and asked Mr. Laurier not to press his motion.

Mr. Laurier—I insist upon it.

The House divided upon the motion with the following result: Yeas, 29; nays, 35. The motion was thus defeated by six.

Mr. Amyot rose to continue his speech.

Mr. Speaker ruled that Mr. Amyot had lost his opportunity of continuing his speech, as he had given up the floor.

Mr. Laurier immediately moved the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Amyot thereupon continued his speech at 1:25 o'clock.

Mr. Amyot had not proceeded far before Mr. Ouimet rose to a point of order. He said that Mr. Laurier having moved the adjournment of the debate could not move the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Laurier—Then I will withdraw my motion.

Mr. Lister—I beg to move the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Amyot then continued his remarks, observing that if he were not allowed to go on now he would continue his remarks at greater length some other day.

At 2 o'clock Sir Adolphe Caron moved the adjournment of the debate. The House then rose.

I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

LOCAL OPTION REGARDING LIQUOR.

The unanimous judgment of the Court of Appeal, as already chronicled in the ADVERTISER telegraphic columns, affirms the right of the Provincial Legislature to pass the Local Option Act, which gives to the municipalities power either to restrict or to totally prohibit the liquor traffic within their limits. The act was passed in March, 1889, and in the twelve months following the municipalities following voted for total prohibition within their bounds: Lanark, East Luther, South Norwich, East Tilbury, Mersea, North Gosfield, Oakland, Dereham, Onondaga, Westmeath, Binbrook, Goulbourn—townships; Wellington, Leaming-Parry Sound and Tilsonburg—towns; Welington, London West and Embro—villages. Sault Ste. Marie also voted for the prohibition of the sale of liquor in shops. Chief Justice Sir Thomas Galt, raised a doubt in April last as to the power of the Legislature to pass the law, and various bylaws were quashed. The Ontario Government promptly arranged for a reference of the whole matter to the Court of Appeal, which has now unanimously sustained the act. Licenses in the municipalities where action had been taken under the law, have, by the act providing for the reference of the law to the higher court, only been extended for three months at a time, and the bylaws, as orignally passed, will take effect as soon as that period has elapsed.

The act being sustained beyond a doubt, it will now be possible for the friends of temperance, as soon as public opinion is ripe for the change, to establish prohibition or greatly curtail the traffic in every municipality in the Province.

A SCANDALOUS TRANSACTION.

The high tax majority in the Dominion House of Commons have voted down Mr. Lister's motion that a committee should be appointed to investigate serious charges against a Minister.

Mr. Haggart protested his innocence; Mr. Lister insisted that he possessed documentary evidence and would call witnesses to prove that he was guilty of the charges made. The logical conclusion was that an inquiry should take place, as in the case of Rykert and McGreevy. But though the whole debate proceeded on the assumption that Mr. Haggart was guilty, the Government called upon its supporters to reject the motion, on the grounds that the offense had not been recently committed, and that anyway it was not a moral offense for Mr. Haggart to receive money in a manner prohibited by the Independence of Parliament Act or for contractors who had a suit against the Government to contribute money to the election funds of those from whom they sought favors. These flimsy excuses were thoroughly exposed in Parliament. That they were raised, and the inquiry barked, shows how little ground there is for the pretense that the men in authority wish to purify Parliament. They are ready to kick the subordinate offenders out of office, but under no circumstances do they intend to punish the guilty who are high in authority. Out upon the sham!

ILL-FOUNDED.

Mr. Mills, the Conservative M. P. for Annapolis, has informed the Dominion Auditor-General that the investigation which he set on foot several weeks ago in the Public Accounts Committee into certain alleged irregularities in the Auditor-General's Department would be carried no further. Mr. Mills is satisfied that there is no foundation for the belief that there have been any irregularities in that department. This is a highly satisfactory result both to the Auditor-General and to the public, whose interests he is sworn to look after. By the way, this officer was an appointee of Hon. Alex. Mackenzie.

DEAD VS. LIVE MINISTERS.

When A. P. Bradley, secretary of the Department of Railways and Canals, was charged with accepting public money for his son which he had not earned, he blamed Hon. J. H. Pope, late Minister, for paying it. Mr. Pope is dead, so the evidence was recorded. A few days ago six Ministers attended the committee and voted to suppress similar evidence affecting Ministers now in charge. Evidence of this kind it seems is only valid when the Minister affected is in his grave. What a farce!

CORRUPTION AT OTTAWA

Strong Declarations Regarding Its Sources by Leading Preachers.

The Necessity for an Immediate Change.

A General Election Proposed as a Purifier.

We continue the replies of leading preachers in the Dominion to the question, "What is the best cure for political corruption in Canada?"

[Rev. Professor Scrimger, Montreal.]

There is no royal touch for the scrofula of political corruption. The cure must come from a healthier moral tone on the part of the people. This can be brought about only by plainer and sounder teaching from pulpit and press, and by a better example from trusted political leaders. When each party shall have courage enough to compel the retirement of its own members who are known to be corrupt there will be little further danger of corruption. In the meantime let there be a thorough exposure of the iniquity and firm punishment of the guilty, especially of those highest in rank.

JOHN SCRIMGER.

[Rev. Charles Cameron, Durham.]

An immediate election would decrease the number of political corruptionists. A good cure would be to punish them as Joshua punished the boodler Achan, or treat them as England once treated pirates. She hanged them up in iron chains on the banks of the Thames and left them there to terrify others; or put them without the arena of politics until they are healed or dead. I would make an attempt to improve the public conscience till no boodler dare show his nose before a constituency, and to obtain this the Bible should be in all our schools.

CHARLES CAMERON.

[Rev. David Wardrope, Teeswater.]

We must send men to Parliament, not with a whitewash brush, but with a good stiff broom, to sweep out the Augean stable at Ottawa—men who would as soon try to excuse Satan as Langevin, Chapleau, Cochrane & Co.—men not able to look on Abbott, Thompson, Foster & Co., and all their crooked ways, but with the most profound disgust; men with some pride of country whose watchword shall be: "Down with the boodlers!"—down with them, not as Tories, but as thieves and robbers, whether Grit or Tory. If we can get such men, then we may look for a brighter day for Canada.

D. WARDROPE.

[Rev. D. Wright, Springhill, N. S.]

The formation of a new party, governed by a few broad and general principles in the matter of religion. Religious equality, manhood suffrage, a tax per capita of say $2 50, Canada a nation; the leaders of the party to solicit the opinions of constituents and men to draw out some general principles that are considered best for the interests of the Dominion, etc.; the character of representatives to be important—in all cases that they be men of known and respected integrity, whether they hold the principles of the party or not, if their own character were shady, to be refused, whether others could be found to take their places or not.

D. WRIGHT.

[Rev. John Burton, Toronto.]

Blunted moral sense could scarcely manifest greater obtuseness than when after requitting, by a strict party vote, one charged with public stealing, some of the acquitters joined to sing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and then hissed a friend who had the courage of honest conviction.

JOHN BURTON.

[Rev. H. McLeod, Sydney, C. B.]

The parties found guilty should be compelled to pay, with interest, the amount swindled, and be imprisoned like other felons. In addition they should be declared forever disqualified and unfit to hold any office under the Crown, or to exercise the franchise.

H. MCLEOD.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

Some farmers are selling their wheat and others are holding back in expectation of better prices. A commercial authority says it is a species of gambling, for no one knows whether the cereal may not go as high as $1 30 per bushel or over, or lower than at present. While the scarcity in the old world may be relied on to keep the price well up, it is possible that those who advocate hoarding up may be giving bad advice. An old farmer friend of ours says he never holds his wheat when a fair price is offered. There is always a risk that hoarded grain may be destroyed by fire or eaten by rats or mice.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

HAMILTON aldermen are visiting Montreal, and the Herald advises them to be careful how they act when they see the fire engines on the street. "Nothing," the holiday-makers are gravely informed, "seems more undignified than a number of distinguished-looking gentlemen in plug hats running after a strange fire engine in a city where they don't reside." Is that the habit of the plug-hatted Hamilton aldermen when they are in their own bailiwick?

THE least agreeable variety of summer travel is that conducted by overcrowded passenger trains on a hot day. Nothing can possibly make it attractive, but there are means by which its discomforts may be mitigated. One is by keeping the windows sedulously closed while the train is in motion, and opening them only at stoppages along the route. The mania for opening windows and leaving them open is said to arise from a preference for fresh air, but no such article is obtainable while the atmosphere is heavy with dust, cinders and smoke. The coaches are sufficiently ventilated through the screened windows at top, and through the movable sash in the door. If the air in them seems impure it certainly cannot be bettered by opening the lower windows and letting in a cloud of smoke. Occasionally when the wind is in the right direction an open window may yield some comfort to the occupant of the seat next to it, but it is unpleasant and sometimes dangerous to the occupant of the seat just back of it. Travelers for some reason are considered a selfish and inconsiderate class of people, and in nothing are these traits more manifest than in the discourtesy which insists on having its own window open regardless of the preference of people in the back seats.

"WHAT A REVELATION!"

Plain and Pointed Speaking by Dr. Badgley, of Victoria College.

COBOURG, Sept. 23.—In the course of a sermon on the parable of the tares Rev. Dr. Badgley, professor of mental and moral philosophy at Victoria College, is reported to have said: "Patriotism is more than party strife. Loyalty to country is loyalty to the principles of truth and righteousness. No man can plead either loyalty or patriotism who stands morally convicted of bribing constituencies, of using his position as a Minister of the Crown to extort money either for personal uses or perpetuation in office, or who grinds the face of the poor to pay the debts of himself or his party; and when these things have been more than proved, the saddest fact of all is that a majority of the people's representatives in Parliament will vote approval and thus invite and encourage a repetition of such scandalous immorality.

"In the Cochrane case the moral heroism of Col. O'Brien in rising above mere party lines deserves honorable mention. In the recitation day by day of these disgraceful and humiliating facts the impression has grown upon me that the parties accused stand morally convicted of the charges made. The evidence has been extorted from most unwilling witnesses, difficulties have been thrown in the way by a Government fighting for its life, every possible effort has been made to prevent access to truth and fact, and under all the circumstances the wonder is that so much damning testimony has been elicited. What a revelation we have. Two Ministers of the Crown unquestionably guilty of malfeasance of office, a Premier who was a leading actor in the Pacific scandal, private members of Parliament holding their seats in the face of revelations that ought to consign them forever to political oblivion, and a majority voting approval of what we fear is but a partial revelation of yet undiscovered rascality."

Dr. Badgley's sermon made a profound impression upon the congregation.

SHE LOVED HIM IN POVERTY.

So When He Became a Millionaire He Took Her from the Field and Married Her.

ATLANTA, Sept. 25.—Richard Hornig, a poor German, settled near Anstell some time ago. He was an honest, hard-working farm laborer, and won the respect and confidence of all who knew him. He received but little attention from the women in the settlement. But there was one poor girl, Miss O'Shields, who was always kind to the stranger, and their friendship soon ripened into love. As both were very poor matrimony was not thought of.

A few months ago a letter with a foreign stamp arrived at the Anstell postoffice directed to Richard Hornig. It announced to him the death of his father in Germany and that he was sole heir to 3,000,000 marks. Mr. Hornig visited Germany, had no trouble in getting his fortune, and returned to Anstell last week. Of course this change in his condition made a marked change in the reception accorded him. But his heart was still true to the little woman who had been his friend when he was a poor stranger, and he made her his wife.

Miss O'Shields was taken from the cotton field and arrayed in silk and fine linen and surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth could buy. Her husband says that he intends to send her to the best schools in the old world to fit her for her new life. When asked why he did not marry an educated girl, Mr. Hornig replied that such showed him no attention when they thought him a penniless stranger, and he would always feel, should he marry one of them, that his wife wanted him only for his money. He knew the bride he had selected truly loved him, and this, he said, was what he desired above all else.

The Dardanelles Difficulty.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 24.—The Porte has sent a circular to the powers in regard to the passage through the Dardanelles of several vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet. The Porte says its instructions given to the officers at the Dardanelles to prevent detention of vessels of this class has been wrongly construed by the press to be a violation of existing treaties, and concludes with the remark that no new measure has been adopted, and that the old one continues in force.

The club show at Hamilton was a great success in every way but that of finances. The executive announces a deficit of $701 49.

A telegram received this morning from Montreal by Mr. Samuel Munro, of John Marshall & Co., states that the terrier dogs, Patch, had secured first and Jim second, and the bitch Rosanna first. These dogs are from the Battersby kennels, owned by Messrs. Cleghorn and Munro, of this city. They made a similar record in Hamilton and are to be congratulated on their success.

THE DARING SKY-SCRAPER.

A Chat With the Celebrated Aeronaut, William Hogan.

He Has Lost Two Brothers in the Business, but is a Stranger to Fear—26 Ascensions This Season and 570 Altogether—Interesting Statements.

W. M. Hogan, who made the pretty balloon ascension and parachute drop at the Fair Grounds Wednesday, and intends doing the same to-day, is an experienced man at his business. He is as cool as a cucumber while making preparations for his aerial flights and says he has never met with a serious accident.

"I have been 23 years in my line, and I have made 26 ascensions this season already," he remarked in a conversation with an ADVERTISER reporter. "In the last two years I have lost two brothers. One of them went up in the 'camel air ship' at Brooklyn—he was a fine aeronaut, too. It was blown to sea and nothing ever since heard of the inmates. The other, as everybody knows, was killed at the Detroit Exposition this year. He was physically disabled before he ascended and should not have gone up."

"How do you account for so many accidents?"

"There have been 36 of us killed this year already. I have the newspaper clippings with the accounts of about all the fatalities, and in nearly every instance you'll find that it was because they didn't go high enough to let their parachutes open on the descent. The result is they dropped like rocks."

"How did you like your performance yesterday?"

"It was very good; there was little wind and I sailed straight and easy. The only thing that bothered me was the heat. Generally we strike cold air currents, but yesterday it was stifling."

"Did you alight on terra firma all right?"

"I came down on some telegraph wires but reached the ground without much trouble. At Holyoke, Massachusetts, I once fell on an electric wire. It was pretty hot so I didn't stay long," said Hogan, with a laugh. "I generally make my calculations as to where I shall alight before I leave the balloon. Yesterday I had my eye on a desirable lot and sailed straight for it. I got there but was driven a little to one side."

"Do you fear falling into the water?"

"I always wear a cork jacket when there's water near. This season I got cold baths in the St. Lawrence and Detroit Rivers. The only objection I have is that the parachute and balloon get wet and it takes a long time to dry them."

"I suppose you make a good deal of money?"

"Not as much as we used to. In years gone by people came miles to see an exhibition. We got $800 and $1,000 a jump then, but now we've got to make five or six for that sum. My dates are all filled in until November. I go south from here."

"Do you never feel nervous?"

"Not a bit. If I did I would go out of the business. I always go up with the intention of coming down all right."

"To what altitude do you generally go?"

"It depends a good deal on the weather and on the Ground beneath you. Yesterday I went 3,500 feet. I always carry a barometer with me to guage my height; in a fog, for instance, it's absolutely necessary, as you can't see the earth. I want a sufficient distance to insure the opening of my parachute."

"The earth's surface no doubt looks strange when you're at a big height?"

"Yes; it does. The crowd moving on the Fair grounds yesterday appeared to me something like a lot of flys struggling on sticky paper. The horses looked like mere rats and the half-mile track a little circle that I could put my arm around."

Mr. Hogan further informed the reporter that he has made close on 570 ascensions. He manages an aeronautic bureau at Jackson, Michigan, and has several first-class men engaged. He also has an intrepid young lady parachutist who often ascends with him. From his long and successful experience he was recognized as a leader in his business throughout the continent. He explained his balloon contrivances, which he considered superior in point of safety and facility to the majority. He has a little sand bag hanging on one side of the air ship, which, on the ascent, is balanced by the parachute on the other. When the latter is released the weight of the bag turns the balloon upside down, thus letting out the hot air and bringing it to the ground close by. Mr. Hogan says he has never lost a balloon yet.

BURIED IN BUNTING.

Great Harvest Celebration in Minneapolis, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 25.—The harvest festival had an ideal day for its celebration. Licollete avenue was beautifully decorated, the buildings being buried in bunting, and many of them covered by sheaves of wheat, bound in fantastic forms. Arches of wheat span some of the streets. On Tenth street is the finest display consisting of an arch made of thousands of flour barrels. There are 60 pillars along the streets from which are suspended festoons of white, similar festoons intersecting the streets. Religious services were held this morning, the Catholics meeting at the cathedral where "Troiseme Messe" was given by combined choirs and orchestras. At the Opera House was held a service of praise with addresses by leading pastors and others. The procession started at 1 o'clock with over 1,000 floats in line, most beautiful and costly. The lumber interests had an immense exhibit, showing their trade in all its processes.

UNDER THE SEMAPHORE.

Sensational Development in the Western Railway World Proposed.

While in Vancouver it was intimated by President Van Horne that hereafter the three Canadian Pacific Company's steamers—Empress of India, Empress of Japan and Empress of China—will run from Vancouver to San Francisco and return each trip. It is said that this will be done in order to meet the aggressive measures and competition of the San Francisco boats.

President Van Horne, of the C. P. R., said to a reporter recently: "We will build new stations at Portage, Brandon, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver, where they are much needed."

Well-defined rumors are going round to the effect that the Canadian Pacific Railway will soon operate the Great Northwest Central Railway, possibly in time for the removal of this season's crops.

Grand Trunk Railway earnings for week ending Sept. 19, 1891, $442,653; corresponding week last year, $453,609; decrease, 1891, $10,956.

A Kansas City dispatch says another sensational development in the Western railroad world is the proposed United States grand jury investigation of the Trans-Missouri Association at Topeka. It is said indictments will surely be returned against Chairman Smith and the head traffic officials of all the roads in the association. They are charged with maintaining a trust and pool. If a case is made against the association it will probably cause a complete annihilation of the present system of conducting railroad business in America.

HER WAIST WAS LARGE.

One of the Many Plans Adopted to Beat the Customs.

Mrs. Annie Willett, wife of a French farmer living near Windsor, Ont., says a Detroit dispatch, came across the river this morning. She is a large woman, but her appearance below the waist aroused the suspicions of the customs officers, and she was detained and searched. An inspection showed that suspended from her waist were two large sacks, and in these were four[illegible] nice spring chickens, four dozen eggs, and [illegible] pairs of heavy woolen homemade men's half-hose. The goods were confiscated and sold. Mrs. Willett admitted that she had been smuggling goods of this kind right along and selling them to a grocer.

Assizes at Sandwich.

SANDWICH, Sept. 24—When hearing in the case of Walker vs. Scratch was resumed at the conclusion of the evidence Judge McMahon took the case from the jury and advised the parties to settle the case amongst themselves. If they are unsuccessful he will give judgment. The next case was Curry & Robinet vs. George White and P. A. Craig. The defendants were bondsmen for the contractors of the east end sewer system, and the plaintiffs supplied the brick. The latter threatened to garnishee the town, but were prevented by the defendants giving letters of security. The judge decided that the defendants were liable, took the case from the jury and entered a verdict for $823.

McCormick vs. McNee was a case of libel. The plaintiff is a prominent resident of Pelee Island, and the defendant, who is the publisher of the Windsor Record, published in his paper last April an item charging McCormick with cattle stealing, coming from a Pelee correspondent. The defendant made a full apology and offered to settle for $25, but the plaintiff wanted $100. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $200 and costs.

The grand jury has returned true bills against William Wigle for assaulting a constable and for unlawfully wounding.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Sad Death of a Little Girl—A Bicyclist's Bad Fall—Mr. Murray's Will.

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Yesterday afternoon a fatal burning accident happened at 50 McGee street, east of the River Don. Sarah Bills, the 7-year-old child of Frank Bills, got hold of some matches, and, going out into the back yard, unknown to her mother, set fire to some dry straw in the dog's kennel. Mr. Bills noticed the fire, and, taking a pail of water, proceeded to put it out. Mr. Gilpin, who happened to be near by, came to his assistance, and when they pulled the burning straw out of the kennel they were horrified to find the child's body. She was so terribly burned that she died at 10 o'clock last night.

A sad bicycling accident occurred yesterday afternoon, which may have a fatal ending. E. J. P. Smith, of the Toronto Bicycle Club, was practicing on a new wheel at the Rosedale track, preparatory to entering the races next Saturday, and while going at a good gait with his head down, his wheel struck one of the heavy iron rollers which are used to press down the course. He was thrown ten feet into the air and landed on his head. He was picked up and taken home in a hack.

The late W. A. Murray's will was entered for probate yesterday. The property is worth $147,604, and consists of: Money secured under agreements and leases and cash in the bank, $103,481 12; life insurance, $18,333 33; bank shares and stocks, $15,750; securities, $10,000; other property, $100. There are $15,000 set apart for the grandchildren, $1,000 is given to Archbishop Walsh for the benefit of the church and $1,000 goes to the House of Providence. Deceased's daughter and his son Charles get $10,000 each. The Bond street dwelling house and contents go to the wife of Mr. Wm. T. Murray. James and John Murray get $12,500 apiece, and the rest of the estate is divided among the four sons.

Electricity as Applied by the Owen Electric Belt and Appliances

Is now recognized as the greatest boon offered to suffering humanity. It has, does and will effect cures in seemingly hopeless cases where every other known means has failed. Rheumatism cannot exist where it is properly applied. By its steady, soothing current, that is easily felt, it will cure

Rheumatism,	Liver Complaint,
Sciatica,	Female Complaints,
Spinal Diseases,	Impotency,
General Debility,	Constipation,
Lumbago,	Kidney Disease,
Nervous Complaints,	Varicocele,
Spermatorrhea,	Sexual Complaints
Dyspepsia,	Lame Back.

RHEUMATISM.

It is not pleasant to be compelled to refer to the indisputable fact that medicinal science has utterly failed to afford relief in rheumatic cases. We venture the assertion that although electricity has only been in use as a remedial agent for a few years, it has cured more cases of rheumatism than all other means combined. Some of our leading physicians, recognizing this fact, are availing themselves of this most potent of nature's forces.

To Restore Manhood and Womanhood.

As man has not yet discovered all of nature's laws for right living, it follows that everyone has committed more or less errors, which have left visible blemishes. To erase these evidences of past errors, there is nothing to equal electricity as applied by the Owen Electric Body Battery. Rest assured, any doctor who would try to accomplish this by any kind of drugs is practicing a most dangerous form of charlatanism

We Challenge the World

To show an Electric Belt where the current is under the control of the patient as completely as this. We can use the same belt on an infant that we would on a giant by simply reducing the number of cells. Other belts have been in the market for five or ten years longer, but to-day there are more Owen belts manufactured and sold than all the other makes combined.

ELECTRIC INSOLES.—Dr. Owen's Electric Insoles will prevent Rheumatism and cure Chilblains and Cramps in the feet and legs. Price $1.

During the Fair a representative of the company will be AT THE TECUMSEH HOUSE for the convenience of persons wishing to interview him or make purchases. Call and get catalogue of information, testimonials, etc.

Beware of Imitations and Cheap Belts.

Our attention having been attracted to a base imitation of "THE OWEN ELECTRIC BELT," we desire to warn the public not to be deceived by false statements of men calling themselves electricians, who, lacking brains sufficient to produce an Electric Belt of their own creation, have copied as near as they dare in appearance, but only in appearance, the "Genuine Owen Electric Belt," that has stood the test of years and with more than a continental reputation. These so called Electric Belts are only experiments, and are being peddled through the country. Look out for them.

In justice to ourselves and a generous public we are determined to expose such unprincipled trickery and prevent, if possible, the unsuspecting from being gulled by such men and means.

The Owen Electric Belt Company is not afraid of fair and open competition, as their goods have no equal in this or any other country, and will bear inspection by those competent to judge—and so great are they in demand that there are more of them made and in use than all other makes combined—their Chicago factory alone being the largest of its kind in the world.

Our Trade Mark is the portrait of Dr. A. Owen in gold upon every Belt and Appliance manufactured by the Owen Electric Belt and Appliance Company. None genuine without it.

The cheap so-called Electric Belts advertised by some concerns are perfectly worthless as a curative power, and dear at any price. A genuine Electric Belt cannot be manufactured and sold at cheap prices.

A Majority of Fifteen for Sir Hector Langevin.

Telling Arraignment by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier.

Unanswerable Arguments Against the Exoneration of the Minister.

Mr. McCarthy's Peculiar Attitude and Motion.

Mr. Davin Rebels Against a Course Which He Says Will Defeat His Party — Scenes and Incidents of the Great Debate.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—The debate on the Langevin-McGreevy report reached the climax of its interest to-day. The first speech was made by Sir Adolphe Caron, who was referred to by Mr. Tarte the other day as a man who was nearly ruined by the McGreevy clique. He had little or nothing to say about the evidence and much to say about Sir Hector's devotion to his country and his Queen, his distinguished services, even down to the smallest details of his office, the gallant race to which he belonged and other subjects of a post-prandial character. The old flag, the tri-color and the flag of Canada were waved vigorously, and it was represented that a stigma would be cast on the French-Canadian race if Sir Hector were condemned.

Hon. Mr. Laurier, who on rising was greeted with prolonged applause, said that after the feeling remarks of the honorable gentleman who had just sat down, it might not be out of place for him to refer to the motives that animated the Liberal party from the commencement of this case to the present. It had been said by Conservatives that the motives of the Opposition in this case were simply to enhance their own chances of success in the next election. As to that, he could say he would prefer a thousand times to fight out the political issues, unrestricted reciprocity, as against protection, than to gain power by accusing the members of the Government, singly or collectively, with malefeasance in office But if he departed from this course now it was because his opponents had never yet met the Opposition on even ground, but had always used this corruption to defeat them What is the meaning, he continued, of all these scandals which are exploding around us like craters in a land of volcanos, if not that underneath lines a seething, fermenting mass of corruption? The men now in power, indeed, had refused to meet the Liberals on great questions of public policy. And when they had been persistently charged with governing by bribery and corruption, Sir John Macdonald took occasion to deny the allegations. In a banquet at Quebec city, he rather gloried in it. He said: "Our opponents say that we bribed the constituencies." There is the charge. Did he deny it? did he attempt to explain it? did he execrate it? Nothing of the kind. He rather gloried in it; and what was his answer? "Our opponents say that we robbed the constituencies—but we bribed them with their own money." This is the painful truth. Such were the ethics which were taught to his party by the late leader of the Conservatives. We remember (continued Mr. Laurier) on the eve of a general election that Sir John called together the manufacturers of the city of Toronto. The invitation had been public but the meeting was secret. What was discussed there? Affairs of State? No. If affairs of State had to be discussed Parliament was the place to discuss them. And why of all men should he call the manufacturers together but in order to have the funds necessary to bribe the constituencies with their own money?

Mr. Foster—Order.

Mr. Laurier—Order? Is not this history?

Mr. Foster—It may be history, but it is not the question.

Mr. Laurier—The language which I use, sir, is history and it is within the question, and if to-day we charge the Minister of Public Works, as we do, it is because the system proclaimed upon that occasion had been followed too long. Is it anything extraordinary, sir, that when such were the ethics and practice of the leader, the man who held the second rank in command should have also done his best in his own way to provide for the raising of a fund in order to bribe constituencies with their own money? (Cheers.) Mr. Laurier pointed out that the duty to be performed by the House was one which concerned not Sir Hector Langevin alone, but every man in Canada, because no nation could live under such a system of corruption as had been revealed. "It is no pleasure," he said, "to pronounce upon the conduct of the Minister, but the question is not one of his own guilt or innocence alone. It involves the existence of a system which is to be put down or which is to put the country down." Mr. Laurier laid stress upon the reputation gained by Sir Hector Langevin as the master of the details of his department, and said that up to a few months ago there was a general impression that it was a model department. But irregularities, jobbery and corruption reigned there, plans and specifications were altered to suit contractors, the chief engineers were bribed, the inspectors were bribed, and all this went on for years before the eyes of the Minister of Public Works. No explanation could be given of these things except his knowledge and connivance. Then he dwelt with the plea that the Minister was the victim of a conspiracy. That plea, he said, might have been allowed if the Minister of Public Works had never heard the charges until Mr. Tarte brought them. But in 1886 La Presse, a Conservative journal, described the system of jobbery, corruption and theft with such accuracy that the article might have been written as a comment upon the report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections. One of Mr. Laurier's arguments for holding the Minister personally responsible was founded upon his obligation to Thomas McGreevy in connection with the loan of $10,300 for election expenses. Mr. McGreevy indorsed Sir Hector's note for this amount, paid the interest and assumed the whole responsibility, so that Sir Hector said, "I never troubled my mind about the matter," nevertheless Mr. McGreevy was cunning enough to perceive his hold on the Minister by keeping the notes renewed. He might as easily have paid them off, for he subscribed much larger sums to Le Monde. But he preferred to go to Sir Hector every four months and ask him to sign the renewal notes, and so keep the obligation fresh in his mind; and what Minister could deny anything to the generous friend who relieved him of his debt, and who every four months reminded him of the favor? The leader's concluding remarks had special reference to the Province of Quebec. As to the Mercier-Pacaud charges, he said, "the measure of justice which is called for in this Parliament we want dealt out also in the Province of Quebec, and after investigation where blame and censure are deserved let blame and censure be given, and let the guilty be punished." The passage in which he drew a parallel between the corruption of to-day and the corruption from which Quebec suffered 130 years ago was a magnificent piece of oratory. The highest literary art was displayed in the contrast which he drew between Montcalm and his fellow-officers paying back their own salaries into the treasury of the colony, and the intendant Bigot and his fellow-rogues plundering the treasury, weakening the resources of the colony, paralyzing the arm of valor and paving the way for the invasion and conquest. It was a situation which forcibly recalled Milton's lines:

In vain doth valor bleed,
While avarice and rapine rule the land.

"Quebec," said the Liberal leader; "has again become the prey of official jackals. Again we see evils such as were denounced by Montcalm, and if Montcalm were here he would denounce this Government as he denounced Bigot and his followers in the old days. Montcalm is not here, but his example is here, and if patriotism still lives in the hearts of his countrymen let us now do as he would have done."

DALTON M'CARTHY'S AMENDMENT.

As Mr. Laurier resumed his seat amid thunders of applause, Dalton McCarthy rose on the other side of the House. But as it was 5:55 o'clock he did no more than formally take possession of the floor, leaving the members two hours more to speculate upon the course he would take. His speech had a very curious beginning. First he solemnly lectured the leader of the Opposition on the fact that his speech was not sufficiently judicial in tone. Then he proceeded to put the House into a judicial frame of mind by abusing Mr. Laurier, accusing him of bargaining with Mr. Mercier for the payment of an increased subsidy to Quebec, and of being "bought and sold." Naturally this language elicited not only an indignant denial from Mr. Laurier, but angry interrogations from the Opposition benches. Perceiving that Col. Amyot was among the interruptors, Mr. McCarthy turned upon him and told him that a sword of Damocles in the shape of a Parliamentary inquiry was hanging over his head.

Mr. Laurier—Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. (Uproar.) Has the honorable gentleman a right to use threatening language to other members?

Mr. Speaker—If the honorable member is threatening the member for Bellechasse it is not quite Parliamentary.

Mr. McCarthy—If I threatened the honorable member for Bellechasse I withdraw it, and I hope his sleep will not be disturbed by what escaped from me in the heat of argument.

Col. Amyot—I rise to a point of order. If the honorable gentleman means by his reference any personal charge against me I beg him to state it. If so it will not go on suspicion. (Cheers and cries of "Order, order.")

Sir John Thompson—He has no right to make a speech on a point of order.

Mr. McCarthy—I rose to discuss this question quietly and judicially—(Opposition ironically: "Hear, hear")—but I thought it right to show that the language with which the honorable leader of the Opposition dealt with it was not the spirit in which we should come to consider it.

Mr. Mulock (smiling)—Now you have got us into a judicial frame of mind, go on with your speech. (Laughter.)

While the air was filled with angry interruptions and the Speaker was trying to rule on several points of order at once, Mr. McCarthy leaned back in his chair laughing like a boy who has successfully played a practical joke. After the incident he buckled down to hard work on the evidence and drew from it these conclusions: Either Perley was the Minister's tool or the Minister was Perley's dupe. Perley was the only man who could tell the truth, and Perley's evidence had been interrupted by his illness. But whatever may be said of the Minister's personal guilt or knowledge he must be held responsible as a Minister for all the acts of his department. The following was

MR. M'CARTHY'S AMENDMENT:

1. That from the facts which were made to appear before the committee and reported to the House in support of and in relation to the charges which it was its duty to investigate, the House is convinced in many of the dealings of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. with the Public Works Department and of the Quebec Harbor Commissioners, gross frauds have been perpetrated and the public have been defrauded out of large sums of money.

2. That these wrongs were accomplished by means of a conspiracy on the fact of the members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. and Thomas McGreevy, a member of this House, and some one or more of the officers of the Public Works Department.

3. That owing to the unfortunate illness of Mr. Perley, which rendered it impossible for the committee to finish his examination, the House does not feel that it ought, in the absence of his complete evidence, to pronounce decisively as to his complicity or otherwise in the conspiracy which the committee finds to have existed or to determine who among the other officials of the department participated therein.

The House for this reason and because respecting some of the matters as to which evidence was given, urged especially that relating to the supplemental contract for the completion of the Levis graving dock of 1884, as the charge had been made against the late Minister of Public Works, and the evidence in respect thereof is incomplete, felt unable to decide whether the conduct of the Minister in approving and sanctioning the various contracts with Larkin, Connolly & Co., the indulgence granted to them in the performance thereof, and the overpayments made in accordance therewith is to be ascribed to a blind confidence in the integrity and efficiency of his chief engineer. Even in that view, scarcely to be distinguished from weakness almost criminal or to a guilty conscience in the spoliation of the public treasury, which ought to be characterized in very different language.

The Conservatives did not enjoy the last part of Mr. McCarthy's speech. He sat down amid little applause, and when the Speaker read the amendment there was a chorus of "No," from the Government benches, in which the Minister of Justice joined. Then Mr. Curran, of Montreal, rose and upbraided Mr. McCarthy for further complicating the report. He supported the Conservative report.

MR. DAVIN SURPRISES THE HOUSE.

Mr. Davin, a Conservative, followed Mr. Curran, and surprised the House by declaring against the Government report. He used the following language: "Is it to be tolerated, Mr. Speaker, in a young country for one minute that a man who is a member of a Government may enter into a conspiracy with contractors to rob the country? Why, the verdict of the country will be 'No.' (Cheers.) I have read over the evidence carefully, very carefully, and I have come to the conclusion that you cannot possibly acquit Sir Hector Langevin of either one or two things, that he is corrupt or he is an imbecile. (Hear, hear.) You cannot get over that. I will support the amendment of the member for Simcoe."

Mr. Edgar rose at 11:50 and argued strongly in favor of the minority report.

Col. O'Brien said he would vote for the amendment because of its enunciation of the doctrine of Ministerial responsibility.

Mr. McNeill, who had also been numbered among the followers of Mr. McCarthy, made a weak plea for the adoption of the majority report. Mr. McNeill's action was an indication that Mr. McCarthy's amendment would find very few supporters on the Government side of the House. The Liberals objected to it, not so much because of what it declares as because it amends only the conclusions of the majority report, leaving untouched the great bulk of the report.

ONLY A PAIR.

It was scarcely expected, however, that the division, which took place after a powerful speech from Mr. Mulock, would result as it did in the recording of only two votes for the amendment, those of Mr. McCarthy and Mr. O'Brien. Between this vote and the vote on the Davies amendment came a speech in French from Mr. Tarte declaring his intention of refraining from voting either upon the amendment or the main motion. He considers that he is a party in the case just as Sir Hector Langevin is, and that like Sir Hector he is precluded from voting. He maintains, too, that both reports justify him in bringing the charges, and that whichever is adopted his object is attained. He voted, however, against the McCarthy amendment. The vote on the minority report was, yeas 83, nays 104. It was a straight party vote, McCarthy and O'Brien voting with the majority. Davin, too, voted with the nays. The House then divided for a third time on the majority report.

The amendment for the adoption of the minority report was lost on a straight party vote of 83 to 104, among the nays being McCarthy, O'Brien and Davin who had spoken against the majority report. The main motion for the adoption of the majority report was carried on a vote of 86 yeas and 101 nays, McCarthy, O'Brien and Davin voting nay. The majority for the Government position was thus 15.

Cheers from both sides greeted the announcement.

The House rose at 2:35 o'clock and the Conservatives stood up and sang, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

"The Hamilton Miracle" is the inscription on a banner which is suspended over a rugged and healthy-looking man who is seated on a table on the ground floor of the Main Building at the Exhibition. This man, whose name is probably known from one end of the country to the other, is John Marshall, of Hamilton, whose recent cure from that terrible disease, locomotor ataxy, has caused medical experts to look in wonderment and surprise. The marvelous nature of the case has been commented on by nearly all the leading papers on the continent, so that more than a brief idea of his condition may be mentioned. A severe fall some four years ago resulted in the complete breaking down of his nervous system, which was soon followed by locofeeling from his waist downwards and altogether unable to move his lower limbs. After being treated by several physicians without being benefited and pronounced incurable by the physicians of the Royal Templars of Temperance, he was paid his total disability insurance of $1,000 by that institution last November. In April last he was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking these for about six weeks he was completely restored. To satisfy any parties doubtful as to the truth of the miracle Mr. Marshall would be glad to give any information and answer all questions as to his recovery. He can be found every day from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Main Building, and from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Grigg House until this evening, after which he may be addressed in Hamilton.

It may here be remarked that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are offered by the proprietors as a certain blood tonic and nerve builder for all diseases arising from an overtaxed or weakened condition of the nervous system, or from an impoverished or vitiated condition of the blood, such as the complaints peculiar to female weaknesses, loss of appetite, inability to sleep, dizziness, pale and sallow complexions, loss of memory, that tired feeling which affects so many, and diseases resulting from overwork, mental worry, abuse or loss of vital forces, etc. Mr. Marshall is enthusiastic over the wonderful cure accomplished, and very anxious to explain the workings of the effective remedy.

Mr. Marshall, as a living curiosity snatched from the grave, has been interviewed by scores of people every hour during the week, and those who have conversed with him have found it impossible to do otherwise than believe in his sincerity and the genuine worth of the medicines that effected his cure.

THE RONALD FIRE ENGINE ASTONISHES EVERYBODY.

The steam fire engine contest for a gold medal and $100 prize has drawn well for London's big Fair, people coming even from Sault Ste. Marie. The old reliable Ronald was the only machine to come to the front—in three sizes—in order to meet in competition any size, from any maker. In less than 6½ minutes she had won the medal and, with only 90 pounds of steam, London's famous waterwarks, with two open lines of standard hose pouring into a big tank, failed to supply this great waterthrower. Councilors, firemen and all were surprised. Owing to the insufficient water supply, the full power of the steamer was not manifested. Another exhibition was given yesterday, when one and then two tremendous streams were thrown a great height. The grand stands were packed, while the speed ring was entirely surrounded by a dense crowd of people to witness this latest attraction to London's greatest Fair. Mr. Ronald is highly pleased with the way he has been treated by the management of the Fair, and offers to compete with any engine in the world in a side-by-side test in efficiency, quality and price, and hopes to go "one better" for London's Fair in 1892.

SUNLIGHT SOAP.

This soap has taken the highest award at the Western Fair, a silver medal. Judges cannot overlook the high commendation of special analysts. Watson Smith, F. C. S Owen's College, Manchester, England, says it is "perfectly pure." Ch. Augeust, professor chemical chemistry, Antwerp, says it "contains no counterfeit matter." Sir Charles A. Cameron, M.D., professor hygiene and chemistry, Royal College of Surgeons, Dublin, Ireland, says: "I use it for my own toilet purposes," and R. T. Tatlock, public analyst for city of Glasgow, Scotland, says: "I consider it a perfect soap; it cannot injure the skin or the most delicate fabric." Those who use these soaps appreciate their very superior qualities See them at the Fair or buy them from your grocer.

ASSIZES AT SANDWICH.

Changing a Six for a Seven—Strikers Indicted.

SANDWICH, Sept. 25.—Pulford vs. Jackson. Some years ago one Hooper gave a note to the plaintiff, who is his son-in-law, for $500, and on the death of Hooper Jackson was appointed executor. Ten years after the death of Hooper, Pulford presented the note to Jackson, but it was disallowed because the figure 6 in the figures 1868 had been written over with a "7." Jackson paying Pulford $232.

A Romance of Chelsea Village and East London Town.

It was on the home that Celia exhibited the active effect of these annoyances. A full-basket full of crabs had been spilled in the cockpit, and Claggett was restoring the scuttling wretches to their prison. Cissy on the seat, trying not to be seasick. A fold of the white-braided dress hurriedly taking away from my skirt, Mr. Claggett?" she said, with asperity.

"Do not be harsh with the crabs, Miss Leete," rejoinded Claggett, unperturbed; "they are simple, humble, semi-marine creatures and they have never seen a dress like yours before. They merely wish to admire its georgeousness. Give them a chance and make some approach to taste and fashion."

"Well," Celia turned, "they do seem to be getting away from you as hard as they can."

Randolph, who was at the tiller, heard this. A moment later he was called forward to the halyards, and he did not know that Celia, cheered up by her own triumph of witticism, forgot her qualms, and engaged merrily in a prolonged contest of wit with the young man from the West.

Randolph waited until he and Claggett were left to put the boat to rights for the night; and then he unburdened his mind.

"Look here, Jack," he said, kindly but firmly; "I wish you wouldn't talk to Miss Leete in the way you were talking down in the cock-pit. It's all very well, you know, between fellows, and at college, and all that sort of thing; but I think it's out of place with ladies."

"Has Miss Leete said anything to you about it?" Claggett inquired, looking up quickly from his work.

"She has not."

"I thought not. You take things too seriously, old man. She likes it, and so would you, if you had any sense of humor. It's all pure fun and nonsense, and she's quite well able to take care of herself."

"I do not wish," said Randolph, coldly, "that Miss Leete should be obliged to take care of herself. I am the best judge in such matters; and I suppose that you understand the situation."

"I am—" Randolph hesitated—"Miss Leete and I are engaged."

Unfortunately for Randolph, he could never rid himself of the idea that there was a special sanctity attaching to his private and personal affairs. When he was obliged to make even the most indirect mention of them, he assumed the tone which the boy at college tries to assume when you speak to him of his "secret society." It is the tone of stern, self-conscious dignity which some people take on in speaking of the unspeakable things of life. I knew one man, once upon a time, who used this tone whenever he had occasion to talk of a cold in the head. The members of his family seemed to be peculiarly afflicted with this ailment; and, somehow, I got the idea that they were not "proper" people. Perhaps Mr. Claggett had similar associations with the peculiar tone, for he smiled in a way that greatly irritated Mr. Wykoff. And then he dealt a blow which left his friend paralyzed and dumb with inexpressible indignation.

"Well," Mr. Claggett said, "I don't know of any man more peculiarly fitted to make her unhappy."

He shouldered the sweeps, and walked off to the boat-house. Wykoff stood still for a minute, nearly, and his soul boiled within him. He wanted to do to Claggett many things which he could not do, under the social conditions of our age. Perhaps he came near to attempting some of them. But he checked himself. Instead, he walked for half an hour on the stands, and thought it all over. It may be that he communed with the spirit of his father, for a glimmering of John Wykoff's good sense visited his excited brain. He resolved to wreak no vengeance on the irreverent Claggett, but to establish for him a suitable "place" in the social scale; to put him there, and to keep him there. He carried out his programme to the letter. He put Claggett in his "place" at once, and he kept him there. There was only one limitation to his satisfaction, Claggett never seemed to know what had happened to him.

Celia had accommodated herself to her surroundings—how thoroughly she did not know until a little thing set her to thinking.

Old habit led her to rise early, when only the servants were stirring. The mail of the previous night was brought in from the distant postoffice early in the morning, and was spread out on a table in the hall. It was a week after her arrival that Celia came down and found a letter from Dorinda awaiting her—a letter in an envelope of pink, bordered with pale blue, stamped with a huge initial L and scented. She snatched it up with an involuntary movement of concealment; checked herself, and then walked out into the clear sunshine with a guilty and troubled heart. Was she ashamed of her own people? Or was it only that she was rightly ashamed of her people's ways? Where was she drifting—where had she drifted? Had she turned her back on the little frame house in Chelsea village? What lay before her here in the house of strangers?

* * * * * *

Poor little Eve! she had to look around Paradise, and ask herself how she liked it. And she tried to confess to herself that only as a mystery was it wholly delightful.

Personalities were not the staple of conversation in the Wykoff household; yet personalities there must be, and these were still Greek to Celia. And even in the employments of every day she found herself set apart from all the others. She tried to play tennis, and gave it up, after a little while. Her muscles were flaccid; her heart rebelled at the least strain; flushing and palpitating, she went to sit with Mrs. Wykoff, a uninterested spectator. It was the same at the afternoon swim—she could not overcome her dread of the pounding surf. She tried to walk with the Curtis girls, and three miles in an hour sent her to bed sore and tired. Indeed, she reflected she had not come there to bat tennis-balls, to swim, to tramp over sandy roads. These things had no charm for her. Perhaps the pleasantest time of all the day was when she leaned back in Mrs. Wykoff's victoria and rolled gently through the streets of the village, when the summer boarders sat on the verandas and stared hard at the plump horses and the carriage.

In August the Curtis girls went to join their mother in the Catskills. Laura went to Celia's room to bid her good-bye. She put her arms around Celia's neck. "Be good to him, my dear," she said.

* * * * * *

It was a dull day after they went. Mrs. Wykoff seemed to be anxious and apprehensive. Randolph was grave. Claggett was moody and cynical. Celia showed depression of spirits in her dull silence.

"I wonder if Claggett annoys her in any way," Randolph said to his mother, who only shook her head.

He saw her grow more listless day by day; but he loyally waited for the appointed hour. When it came, he sought her out, and found her in a far corner of the old-fashioned garden.

"Celia," he said, "it is time to announce our engagement."

An hour later he walked into his mother's room, very pale, but collected, as became a Harvard man.

"It is all over, mother," he said; "and I am going away on Saturday. I think I shall go to California. I think I can do something there. I have an idea of providing proper homes for the farm-laborers."

He was John Wykoff's son, and there was no arguing with him. Mrs. Wykoff listened to all he would tell her, and then went to find Celia. Celia was in her room, packing clothes in hysterical haste. Mrs. Wykoff took her in her arms.

"I can't help it," Celia sobbed; "I feel mean and wicked, but I can't do anything else. I did love him, and I do think he's the best man in the world—he's just as good and noble as he can be—but I couldn't be happy this way, Mrs. Wykoff—I don't like it—I couldn't get along at all. I've made a mistake—I've made a mistake right from the first; but I won't make any more mistakes, and I won't make his life miserable because I've spoiled my own. Oh, don't be so good to me, Mrs. Wykoff—I don't deserve it—I'm a wretched girl! Just let me go home—that's where I belong!"

Mrs. Wykoff was as gentle as only a wise, kindly, worldly woman can be. She soothed poor Celia, and made her understand that, for the sake of appearances, at least, she must out-stay the broken-hearted philanthropist bound for California. Celia stayed. Randolph made his preparations and went, hopelessly gloomy, but punctiliously courteous and considerate to the last.

After a quick fortnight, Celia knocked at Mrs. Wykoff's room to say good-bye. She tried, with a full heart, to give some measure of thanks for the kindness that was the one real thing to her in the world she was quitting. When she had made her timorous attempt, she blushed and trembled, and grew more timorous yet.

"There's something—you ought to know," she said, huskily; "I—I—I know it seems queer—but—but I couldn't help it. While Randolph—while Mr. Wykoff—while he was here, you know, I wouldn't listen to it; I wouldn't let him—I mean—I wouldn't have let anybody say anything to me, although we both—" Celia's voice was all but inaudible— "understood—how we felt. But now it's different, you know: and—and—Mrs. Wykoff, I'm not a wicked girl, but—I'm going to marry Mr. Claggett!"

[THE END.]

This is a meaningless sentence, but it contains all the letters of our alphabet. Five of these letters spell "woman," and large numbers of women believe in the virtues of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a strictly vegetable compound, for her use only, and an unfailing cure for the many ills that beset her. It recuperates wasted strength, restores the functions to a normal condition, and fits her to bear and rear healthy offspring; promotes digestion, purifies the blood, and gives activity to the bowels and kidneys. In a word, it is woman's cure and safeguard. Guaranteed to give satisfaction, or its price ($1.00) refunded.

—Mrs. John Provan and son, of Morriston, are visiting her sister, Mrs. William Riley, Richmond street.

—Owen Flynn, a small boy, was arrested Wednesday for the alleged stealing of a basket of poultry from a farmer. No one prosecuted him yesterday and he was let go.

—T. G. Davey, city, has taken second and third prizes for setters, two firsts and four seconds for pointers, a special for the best pointer and a special for the best kennel of pointers at the Montreal Exposition.

—One of the great attractions on the Western Fair grounds is the W. C. T. U. dining hall; one would think so at meal times, in particular. People who patronize this place say they get excellent return for their money. The rush has been something enormous, and an army of attentive waiters is kept on the move. Ten ladies and three gentlemen stayed all Wednesday to cook and provide for the hungry visitors.

—A fashionable wedding took place in St. Mark's Church, Barrietield, Wednesday, when Richard Conway Cartwright, second son of Sir Richard J. Cartwright, and brother of Capt. Cartwright, of the London Military School, was married to Miss Kate Hora, of Pittsburg, Rev. Canon Worrell performed the ceremony. The bride was dressed in white satin, with court train, veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids, Misses May and Hetty Cartwright, were attired in cream satin. Little Miss Frank Hora, the maid of honor, was dressed in pink satin. The happy couple left for Montreal and Boston in the afternoon.

—A lady was crushed between two street cars moving oppositely Wednesday in front of the Fair grounds. One of the cars had to be pushed back before she could be extricated. With such a rush for cars some accidents must be expected.

Too Drunk to Drive.

John Bryan, while driving at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets Wednesday, crossed the path of a street car. The car horse reared and playfully crushed in Bryan's rather nobby vehicle with his front feet. The latter was arrested as a drunk and came before the Police Court yesterday. Chief Williams stated that Bryan was himself responsible, as he was too intoxicated to see straight. Bryan estimated his damage at $50, and the magistrate considering this a pretty good fine dismissed him.

A Youth Old in Crime.

Martin Murray, a curly-headed and hardened looking youth, intimated his desire to be tried by jury at the Police Court yesterday on a charge of larceny. The information says he entered on Tuesday the residence of John Loney, 418 Pall Mall street, and stole a handkerchief, a razor, two books, a gold locket, gold stud and cuff buttons, gold ear-rings and other articles of jewelry. As the prosecution was not ready to proceed examination was postponed for a week. Murray has only seen 18 summers, but he is old in crime, having already served five years at Kingston.

The Election Trials Delayed.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday, in Chancery Division, re London, West Northumberland, Peel, North Norfolk, West Huron, Monck, Welland and Bothwell Dominion

Programme, Western Fair.

Friday, 25th, "Stock Breeder's Day." Grand parade of live stock.

The following comment we copy from the ADVERTISER: The great attraction to the left on entering the main building is the display of W. S. Bryers Barkwell, consisting of those fragrant and lasting perfumes, Fedora and Winona Bouquet, the great sensations. Here hundreds of ladies may be seen to throng around that center with their handkerchiefs extended to the spray of the atomizer till they are almost saturated. Then they pass on sweetly smiling at being the happy possessor of those popular odors for which Mr. Barkwell received first prize at the Provincial Exhibition and so completely filled the Crystal Palace to the great admiration of all. Surrounding those are toilet articles and pharmaceutical preparations, all of which are most harmoniously arranged in every particular and contained in an inclosed case on either side of which is to be seen elegant show bottles towering to great height and containing liquids of various, bright and beautiful colors, but we would not do Mr. Barkwell, and especially our readers, justice if we failed to mention Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure and Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam. They are well known and reliable articles, which he sends to all parts of the Province, and in addition to the above Mr. Barkwell controls all the late Messrs. Harkness & Co.'s valuable preparations, such as "Harkness' Beef, Iron and Wine," "Harkness' Bronchial Syrup," "Kamphone," etc.

election petitions, W. R. Meredith, Q.C., for the petitioner in each case, moved to extend the time for the commencement of the time to Jan. 8 next, and to appoint a new day for the trial. Aylesworth, Q.C., W. H. P. Clement and C. W. Kerr for the several respondents. Order made extending time for commencement of trials for six months from this date, and directing that particulars be delivered in each case within fourteen days from the day to be hereafter fixed for the trial. Costs in the cause.

A Prosperous Career.

The past year has been one of grace and blessing to Oddfellowship. The number initiated last year, the report reads, was 68,000. The net increase in the United States and Canada during the past 12 months is 37,000. Total membership, 672,339; revenue for 1890-91, $7,244,227. The pecuniary benevolence distributed was $4,000,000. New grand lodges have been formed in Indian Territory, Cuba and Japan. Reference was made to the growing popularity of the degree of Rebekah, which now numbered 132,000 ladies. It has been decided to reduce the initiation year from 21 to 18.

Osgoode Hall Decisions.

Smith vs. Canadian Order of Foresters—Judgment. Order made changing the venue from London to Brantford. Costs in the cause.

Reg. vs. Westgate—Aylesworth, Q.C., moved for an order for a certiorari to remove a conviction by a magistrate of the county of Middlesex for selling skimmed milk to a cheese factory, on the ground that the offense, if any, was committed in the county of Lambton, and the convictiog magistrate, therefore, had no jurisdiction. Order made.

Pleasant Relations.

Mr. B. J. Throop, local agent of the Bell Telephone Company, will in a few days leave for Hamilton to assume a corresponding position there. Yesterday morning Mr. Throop was summoned upstairs to the operating room, where he was puzzled to find his complete staff of assistants assembled evidently with "malice aforethought." His surprise was intensified when Mr. Frank Whiting, line foreman, stepped forward and read a neatly-worded address expressive of the esteem with which Mr. Troop was regarded by his associates and of the regret which his removal had caused, combined with congratulations upon his advancement. Two elegant easy chairs—lady's and gentleman's—and a handsome marble clock were the substantial accompaniments. The recipient worded his thanks as best he could under the circumstances. Mr. Throop has been the local manager of the company for ten years, and under his supervision the telephone system in this city has seen remarkable development. His departure will be a loss to the business community. Mr. S. J. T. Brown, of Hamilton, replaces him and comes highly recommended.

"Thy Will Be Done" at Ottawa.

Rev. M. P. Talling, of James' Presbyterian Church, preached last Sabbath morning from the text, Matt., vi., 10: "Thy Will Be Done." Referring to Ottawa, he said: "When we pray, 'Thy will be done on earth,' that means, 'Thy will be done' at Ottawa. If God's will were executed at the capital there would be a repetition of history. He who scourged with knotted cords the money changers from the temple, would drive with a scourge of a different kind the money exchangers from that temple of our Dominion, and proclaim aloud, 'This House is sacred for other uses, but ye have made it a den of thieves.' But if God's will is to be done at Ottawa, it must first be done in London and Hamilton and throughout all the Provinces. When next election comes, and a million voters bend each over his ballot, let the Christian franchise pray, 'Thy will be done on this ballot.' Then vote for the best man, regardless of party lines, and the complexion of the House will be changed. When God's will is done in voting the House will be purified; and there are Christians enough in the Dominion to do it if men will be Christians first and Grits or Tories second. While we have representative government we must have 'party' government; but upright voting would put the balance of power into the hands of men superior to party weakness. A margin of such representatives preferring principle to party would swamp a Government rather than be identified with corruption. Moreover, that is what we want when we pray, 'Thy will be done on earth.'"

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses, and will average to last a month, while other preparations, taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier. b
