Lowron, January 31, 1851.

If is announced that the approaching Session of Parliament will be opened by Her Majesty in person; and that in the Lords the Address, is answer to the Speech from the Throne, will be moved by Lord Effingham, and seconded by Lord Overstone; whilst in the Commons the same duties will whilst in the Commons the same duties will be performed respectively by the Marquis of Kildure, the sidest son of the Duke of Leinster, and Mr. Pets, the eminent builder, who, by the way, is a Dissenter. The commencement of the Legislative labors is generally looked to with interest; there are always plenty of abuses to redress, and errors to recent. Prejudices, opinions, political schemes of all kinds and descriptions, fears, hopes, petitions, threats, hints, claims, prophecies, and mands, muitiply during the fleeting recess; and by the time the two Houses are suma the despatch of business, the work to be accomplished has become so extensive, that depetch is ossible. During the present recess, Parlia-itary stock has accumulated most unexpectedly and most extensively. Economies, Theology, Representation, besides a list of minor matters are all pressing for immediate discussion. Min sters will certainly have their hands full, and never, since their accession to office, have they had less chance of giving anything like general satisfaction than they have in the approaching Session. Their very strength will embareas them. Their surplus revenue, which is a matter of such sanguine congratulation, is claimed by every one, and thousands are expected to go the length of millions. You will see that letters have been necessed from the gallant officers composing the expedition in search of Sir John Franklin by vay of Bahring's Straits. Although no tidings have been received of the missing chips, so has all gots well to secure a thorough examination of the various points where Sir John Franklin may have taken refinge. Captain McClure, in the Investigator, proposes to pash on to Bank's Land, which, if he accomplishes, he intends thoroughly to examine, and afterwards, if practicable, to get to the northward of Melville Island, and to resume the search along its shores and adjacent islands so long as the mivigation can be carried on, wintering in the last of the part of the President, after some heaitstion on the part of the President, after some heatter and the part of the part of

Should Captain McClure effect all this, and find no traces of the long-missing expedition, he will then re-luctantly give up all hopes of finding it, and return traced the proposed route on the Admiralty Chart, and coupling the efforts of Captain McClurs with those which are being made on the eastern side, mutual confidence is the only bond of their harwhatever may be the result, it will be a proud, however melancholy; antistaction to the country, everything will have been done to avert the cruel fate which may befal them. The return of the American Mail Steam Atlante, to Cork, after having proceeded 1800 miles on her outward voyage across the Atlantic bas occasioned a good deal of remark. She broke the shafts of her engines, and, after an ineffectual attempt to make Hermuds, was compelled to put back. I have had my fears for some time past that some serious accident would happen. The two rival Companies, professing the greatest regard for each other, have been fighting in the papers for the last few months, and it was generally predicted that by urging their speed to the uttermost bounds, some serious accident would ensue. The misfortune has cost a shade over the success of the Collins' Line, and the Cuntrel Packets will again be restored to their which makes the Assembly the paramount Soveformer position in the public mind. The passengers by the *Mantic are all safe, and one of the

To illustrate the use of the GALVANEO MELT, suppose the case of a parson afficted with that hear of civilization. D'EPFERIA, or any other Carvaic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases, stimulants are taken which, by their actions on the nerves and muscless of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the puttent in a lewer state, and with injured faculties, after the action that excelled has costed. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspette satisface, even in, the west symptome of an attack, and simply the directed. In which reside the line and is perspiration will set on the positive element of the Ecit, thereby causing a, Guivanic strelation which will pass on to the negative, and these back again to the positive, thus keeping up a conditions the most severe cases of Dyspersela are PERMANNENTLY CURER.
