CHAPTER XX.

Over the Toast and Tea.

'Let me help you,' said Miss Ethel, springing up; but the old lady pushed her gently aside. 'No, my dear; keep him here till I come back; I shan't be a moment. And she bustled out. Ethel walked to the window and looked out for a moment, then sat down and drew a little basket of needlework toward her, and got out her needle and thread, as quietly and naturally as if she were alone. Harold leaned back and watched her in silence—a silence that he was afraid to break, lest he should spoil the exquisite little picture she made. So they sat for a moment; and, after all, she was the first to speak. 'How very pretty it is about here!' she said, raising her eyes for a moment. 'Yes,' said Harold. 'Prettiest part of the county. You have not been here very long—have you?' She shook her head. 'No; little more than a week.' 'And you like it?' he asked. 'The county—the place, do you mean?' 'The—yes, and the life generally; it is very quiet. Don't you find it dull?' She smiled. 'Not dull, certainly. Oh, no! I like quiet. I am very happy—happier than I have ever been before in my life,' she said, frankly. 'It might seem dull to another, but not to me.' Harold looked at her curiously. 'Forgive me,' he said. 'I don't want to be impertinent, but don't you think that such a gift as yours, such talent, is rather thrown away in this remote corner of the world?' She looked up and laughed, a laugh that rang like subdued music through the little room. 'Is that a compliment?' she said lightly. 'No, I don't think I have any gift to waste.' 'Remember,' he said, shaking his head, 'I have heard you play and sing.' 'Oh, that!' she said. 'You mean my playing? No, certainly, I don't think it is wasted. I didn't know what you meant.' And she laughed again. 'Oh, but come,' said Harold; 'I'm no musician, but I know one when I hear him or her, and I am sure you play splendidly. How you must startle the good, simple people! I don't know about startling them, she said, 'but I do know they are good, and very, very kind.' And a warm glow came over her face, and she made it positively lovely. 'I had all ways heard that the English people were good-hearted, but—' 'But you are English!' exclaimed Harold. She nodded with a smile. 'Oh, yes, I am English; but I have lived abroad a good deal, and— Did you ride over from Woodleigh Hall? It must be a beautiful ride!' 'Very,' said Harold, noticing the abrupt change of the former subject 'It is, very. Yes, I rode. May hope—' He paused, but continued as the soft eyes were raised to his attentively; 'I was going to say that I hoped we should have the pleasure of seeing you at the Hall. My cousin does not know—indeed, we none of us knew—that you were here, or should have called on you. I dare say you have heard the dame speak of her?' 'Yes—oh, yes,' she replied, with a smile. 'I'm afraid she talks of little else but us up at the Hall. I dare say you are heartily tired of the subject?' And he laughed. 'No,' she said; 'I like to hear her I think she loves the very stones the Hall is built of.' 'Poor, old nurse!' said Harold; 'still, it must bore you. I must give her a hint, or you will hate the very name of Woodleigh, and all concerning it.' 'Please do not,' she said, quietly. 'Indeed, I—I mean it would be positively cruel. Dear, old dame! No, indeed, you must not!' 'Well, I'll promise,' said Harold, 'if you, on your part, will promise to—' In his dismay at the sight of her emotion, he put his hand on her arm. 'No—no! I was not going! Offended—what should make you think that you have offended me? It is I who ought to ask for forgiveness, and I do, most humbly. I had no right to peater you with my presumption. Why shouldn't you be quiet, if you like? Miss Ethel—Miss North, I mean—I must seem a perfect bear!' She sat down again, and laughed; but the music was a little tremulous. 'And I must seem a perfect idiot!' she retorted, with arch shyness. 'Do sit down, Mr. Woodleigh.' Harold sat down instantly.

Oh, don't you be afraid! I shan't stop away because you are here—that is—' he added, quickly, and with a pause. 'That is, if you'll promise that I shan't drive you away.' She nodded and laughed. 'You will not drive me away,' she said. 'Indeed, it is not likely that there will be any occasion to do so. I often have my tea in my own little room.' 'We understand each other, then?' said Harold, with a sigh of relief. 'Quite,' she said with a bright smile. The next moment the dame bustled in. 'Well, Master Harold, tired of waiting? I've been as quick as I can. Now, don't look at your watch. You must wait a bit longer, and tell me the news; and perhaps Miss Ethel will be so kind as to play and sing for us? Ah, Master Harold, it's a treat! You didn't notice the piano, did you? Not you, I'll be bound.' 'Yes, I did,' said Harold, and he went and opened it, and looked at the graceful, quiet figure. 'Will you be so kind, Miss North?' 'Do, Miss Ethel, there's a dear girl,' said the dame. She rose instantly, and without a word, and sat down at the piano. 'You must go and tell the dame and the news, Mr. Woodleigh,' she said, and Harold, obeying, instantly went back to his chair, and was immediately assailed with eager questions, put in a hushed whisper. To be continued.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I was in a home the other evening where the whole family got about on tiptoes with their fingers on their lips, making any necessary remarks in a whisper, six to seven. Why all this hush and mystery?

Why, because the baby goes to sleep at that hour, of course. I was in another home yesterday where the two big brothers were playing tennis under the bedroom window and little sister was practicing her scales in the parlor and big sister was entertaining a group of swains on the front veranda, while little mother was putting the baby to bed.

As she closed the baby's door and came smiling down the stairs to me, a sally from big sister was greeted by an uproarious burst of laughter from the swains, big brother started a new set with the loud voiced and triumphant announcement "Three love," and little sister reached the loud pedal part of her exercise.

"You don't mean to say that baby will go to sleep in all this racket?" I demanded in amazement. "Why, certainly," answered the little mother serenely, "he will sleep in three minutes—the precious." "How can he?" "Why, just because he always has. He couldn't, of course, if he were trained to expect absolute quiet, but he hasn't been, so he can go to sleep under pretty nearly any conditions, and I hope he always will be able to."

Which of these two mothers do you think was the kindest and wisest? Of course, I scarcely need to tell you what I think.

The man or woman who is the least a slave to conditions and circumstances of this sort is apt to be the most comfortable and the most efficacious in this world.

"I simply cannot sleep well in any bed but my own," I heard some one say the other day. "If I felt that way it seems to me I'd upset the family to the extent of sleeping a night or two in every bed in the house until I had freed myself from that dependence upon condition."

An author announces with pride that he cannot do good work unless he is seated at a desk near a certain window that looks out upon a favorite vista.

I don't call that matter for pride. I call it weak-minded slavery to circumstance. I think that man ought to have his desk moved into another room and break those chains, and make his power to work independent of conditions.

Do you remember—in the Hoosier Schoolboy. I think it was—the story of the boy who could not write unless he twisted a certain button on his coat, and how some of his enemies managed to cut this button off just before the examination day and the boy failed utterly because he missed the button?

That sounds rather absurd, doesn't it? And yet a lot of us have fetish buttons of one sort or another upon whose presence we let our comfort and facility depend.

That first baby, for instance, when he grows up will have the fetish of an inability to go to sleep unless there is absolute quiet.

Isn't it better when we find we have gotten into such ways, to cut off the button ourselves, and learn to rectify without it, rather than to risk being utterly upset if it is unexpectedly cut off by circumstances?

Every up-to-date woman should have radiant hair.

There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not try to improve it.

California's Greatest Oil Well.

It was the persistency of a single man that discovered the greatest oil well in California and what is perhaps the richest well in the history of the oil industry. A discouraged board of directors, three days before the oil gusher was struck, decided to quit drilling. The order was given, but the superintendent conveniently forgot it. He drilled forty-seven feet more against penalty of dismissal, and then the bit entered the oil sands. The gusher started to spout on the morning of March 15, and save for a period of eight hours in which it "sanded up" on March 21, after which it burst forth of its own accord like a volcano of oil, the well flowed continuously. Up to May 3 it had delivered about 2,000,000 barrels of oil.

The stream now rises intermittently from 170 to 240 feet above the top of the derrick, which, before the crown or top was carried off by the stream of oil, was eighty-four feet in height. The oil sands were struck at 2,300 feet, at which point a tremendous gas pressure was encountered, and the drillers were suddenly amazed at seeing small rocks hurled hundreds of feet in the air through the eight inch casing. After the oil sands were struck the well rapidly "drilled itself" to a greater depth.

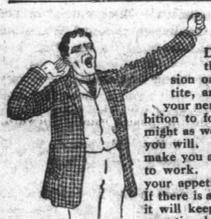

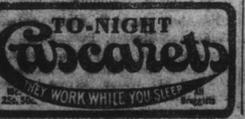

The well can be heard roaring for more than a mile. Spray from the gusher has been carried a distance of two and a half miles, and hundreds of automobiles have carried sight-seers from Bakersfield to witness the unique sight. The sagebrush for a distance of half a mile around the well is coated with oil, and several jack rabbits killed by the flow were brought by boys into Maricop.

Meets Death in Diving Armour

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 3—Thirty fathoms deep in the waters of Cape Cod Bay in search of a sunken torpedo, George William Fahey, a gunner's mate on the flagship Connecticut, of the Atlantic fleet, and a resident of Orangeburg, S.C., lost his life yesterday, according to word brought ashore from the fleet to-day.

The Connecticut was engaged in target practice with torpedoes when one of the missiles sank to the bottom of the bay. Fahey was sent out with a boat's crew and diving apparatus to recover it, and on his way to the bottom of the bay he signalled "O.K." There was a pause for a moment when he reached bottom and then came a faint signal of danger. His comrades pulled the diver as quickly as possible to the surface and hastily opening the armour found Fahey unconscious but still breathing. All efforts to resuscitate him failed.

The cause of the fatality is not known, but it is presumed that there must have been trouble in the transmitting of air. The body was shipped to-day to Fahey's sister, Mrs. E. R. Pauling, of Orangeburg, S.C.

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice. Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are of known composition. Mr. Smith at the Congregational Church

Last night a reception was extended at the Congregational Church, under the Presidency of the Rev. Joseph Thackeray to Mr. Edward J. Smith, Esq., J. P. of Bewdley, Worcester-shire, who is now on a visit to New-foundland. Mr. Smith is a member of the firm of Grainger & Smith of Bewdley, cloth manufacturers, and he is here in connection with the busi-ness of his firm. He is here also as the accredited representative of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. Mr. Smith has travelled exten-sively and visited most of the Colonies in both the Eastern and Western Hemispheres. He has been long interested in moral and social reform movements, and only recently attended a conference at Vienna of delegates from all parts of the world who are interested in Municipal work, such as town planning and beautify-ing, and the laying out of garden cities. He is also Vice-Chairman of the National Council of Adult school Unions. Last night Mr. Smith took the work of this society as the sub-ject matter of his discourse. He stated that the Adult School Union was non-sectarian and a democratic brotherhood, working for the uplift-ing and education of the masses, and holding gatherings much on the P. S. A. lines. There were 1,818 schools of England and Wales enrolled in the Union, with a membership of 114,000. At the close of the address, Mr. Smith gave additional information in answer to questions. Then a pleas-ant social half hour was passed dur-ing which Mr. Smith was introduced individually to those present. A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Cur-rie and seconded by Mr. Brooks was tendered to Mr. Smith by the Pastor. A vote of thanks was also passed to Mr. Stacey for occupying the pulpit last Sunday. Mr. Smith returns home by the Carthaginian.

Work on St. Patrick's.

The work of repairing St. Patrick's Church, Riverhead, is going on well. The cross on the apex of the facade that fell down a few weeks ago is again placed in position and that part of the building made secure. A col-lection will be taken up on Lady Day, Aug. 15th, at the R. C. Cathedral and St. Patrick's in order to augment the funds for the completion of the re-pairs. When the collection was made at St. Patrick's Church only a few weeks ago the Cathedral parish-ioners were not given an opportunity of helping on the good work. They will have a chance of doing so on Monday next.

To Parliament Via Prison.

Some Legislators Who Have "Been in Trouble."

When John Burns donned Court dress for the first time there were people who blamed him for this straying from the path of democracy. "I have worn his Majesty's uniform before in pursuit of my duty," he re-torted, "and I don't see why I should scruple to wear it again!"

He was referring to his prison garb. Be this as it may, there was some-thing decidedly piquant in the recent spectacle of the Right Hon. J. Burns, M. P., President of the Local Govern-ment Board, frankly recalling prison experiences for the detection of Parliament. But, as a matter of fact, many Irish members have suffered imprisonment—for political crimes. Both the Redmonites and O'Brienites owe allegiance to leaders who have experienced the prison cell for the sake of "Ould Ireland."

Prosecuted several times for political offences, with two years in pris-on, is William O'Brien's record, with which is indissolubly bound up the deathless story of Mr. O'Brien and his trousers.

The prison authorities desired Mr. O'Brien to put on the regulation trousers. He refused; but while he was asleep the gaolers stole his trousers, and thereupon he calmly de-clined to get up at all. He would wear his own trousers—or he would stay in bed.

"Who Stole O'Brien's Trousers." In the House of Commons the ques-tion was hotly debated. "Who stole O'Brien's trousers?" was the cry of brother Nationalists, and the matter threatened to become of vast impor-tance. But when it looked as though Mr. O'Brien was unalterably doomed to stay in bed for the whole of his sen-tence some friends smuggled a new pair of trousers into the gaol. Then Mr. O'Brien got up.

Mr. William Redmond also is a prisoner of experience. He sojourned a while in Wexford Prison, having been sentenced to some months' im-prisonment for a political offence; but he did not serve the full term.

He actually had to be turned out of prison! One day an order came to Wexford Prison from Dublin Castle that Mr. Redmond was to be released, on the ground that imprisonment was injuring his health. Somewhat like a modern vote-clamorous, he refused to accept any favour from the author-ities, and they only got rid of him by, for all practical purposes, evicting him.

Timothy Harrigan was returned to Parliament in the same year that he was sent to Mullingar Gaol, in the very constituency for which he was elected: O'Donovan Rossa was elected M. P. when he was in prison, as also was Michael Davitt. Indeed, there is direct precedent for Mr. Burns' reminiscences in a speech made to the House by Michael Davitt on the question of prison treatment.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S BLACKBIRD. Davitt had spent some nine years or so in gaol, and illustrated his speech by incidents of his own prison life. 1870 he was sentenced to penal servitude for being concerned in the attempted seizure of Chester Castle. He was put to pulling trolley-loads of stone, being helped in the work by a fellow-prisoner. Years afterwards, Davitt was walking down Ludgate Hill, and suddenly recognized his old comrade, then a kerbstone pedlar. Davitt bought the whole stock-in-trade, and set the old man up in business.

In 1881 Davitt was sent to prison again. He went to Portland, where he made a pet of a blackbird, and

He was treasurer of a school fund out there, and as he left without handing over the funds to the people, they believed that he was about to leave the country and so telegraphed to the police here. He was taken to the Postal Telegraphs Office by the officers who believe that the man does not intend to leave the country and that he will give up the funds all right. Guy Ter-Centenary.

Next week the celebrations commemorating the Guy Settlements in Newfoundland will take place at Cupids and Harbor Grace and Bristol's Hope.

The celebration at Cupids will take place next Wednesday afternoon. The members of the Newfoundland His-torical Society will leave St. John's at 1 p.m. on that day and they expect to reach Cupids before four. His Ex-celency the Governor will land at Cupids and be received by a deputa-tion. The party will then proceed to the site where the John Guy Monu-ment has been erected, and nearby which is the big flagstaff from which will float the great flag presented by the Newfoundlanders of Toronto. On arrival there Mr. A. J. W. McNelly, K. C., than whom no better selection could have been made, will deliver an inaugural address, worthy of the occasion. The Rev. Mr. Stacey, a Newfoundland who has been chosen by the Mayor and Municipality of Bristol as their representative, will present the tablet donated by Bristol, to commemorate the chartered set-tlement of Cupids' Cove by their great townsman and former Mayor John Guy, Canon Pilot, the President, will then accept the tablet in a few suit-able words. After this His Ex-celency the Governor Sir Ralph Wil-liams, K. C. M. G., as representative of His Majesty the King will grace the occasion with an address appropriate of the founding by Royal Charter in 1610 of the oldest remaining Colony of an Empire, unique in the world's history by the extent and continuity of its colonial connections.

The good people of Harbor Grace and Bristol's Hope are also cordially inviting the public to join with them in commemorating the 300th birthday of Britain's Oldest Colony.

The celebrations will open early on Tuesday morning next by a reception extended to His Excellency the Gov-ernor, who will immediately after-wards open the Exhibition in Cough-lan Hall. In the afternoon there will be a review and field sports in Shannon Park, and in the evening the torch light parade of boats on the harbor, an illumination of the town, a display of fireworks, and dances in the halls. In addition to the above a Garden Party is being arranged.

Wednesday will be exhibition Day. The morning will be occupied in cricket, football and athletic sports. The afternoon will be specially de-voted to the Industrial and Natural Product Exhibition, and the evening to a Band Concert in the Park, a walking match for seniors, and dances in the halls.

The feature of Thursday morning will be the sham battle by the naval men of H. M. S. Brilliant at Carbonar Island.

In the afternoon there will be trap-skill races at Bristol's Hope, and at night a walking match at Harbor Grace for Juniors, and a Subscription Ball and other dances in the halls.

On Friday will be a Regatta which will be held on Lady Lake in the morning and afternoon.

At night the residences of the in-habitants will be illuminated and there will also be a fireworks display. At 10.30 p.m. the Exhibition will be closed.

We commend to the attention of our readers the invitations which are being extended by the people of Cupids, Harbor Grace and Bristol's Hope to participate with them in rejoicing at the founding of their localities and settlement of colonies by Royal Charter which gave rise eventually to Colonial States all over the world in which all Britsers rightly take pride.

A. L. TREMLET, Manager Muir's Marble Works, Cabot Building, Water Street, St. John's, will be in Cupids on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 11th, 12th and 13th, erecting the John Guy Monument. Intending pur-chasers would do well to have a talk with Mr. Tremlet whilst he is there. He will have with him a full line of the latest and most up to date de-signs, and he will be only pleased to meet any persons requiring informa-tion. A. L. Tremlet.—aug9,41

Judge Prowse Replies.

My answer to the fierce editorial in the Telegram of Thursday last is very simple. I had nothing whatever to do with Mr. Turnbull. The back-fytes will show that I got my infor-mation about the coal at Robinson's Brook from the local press. The high quality of our coal is certified by Hugh Fletcher, mining engineer, in his report on the Cleary seam.

If I have made any mistakes about fishery news it must be set down to contradictory reports. For instance, the Straits was said to be a total blank failure, and the next thing we heard that Grant had 10,000 quintals ashore—a fair voyage. I think it will turn out an average fishery. About St. John's it is specially good. I never complain of being abused even when it is unjust and unfair abuse. It amuses me. One contemporary complains that I am antique and no good to advertise the Colony. Well, at 76 one is not quite juvenile, but if my critic will just reflect for a mo-ment on the reviews in world-renowned newspapers of my books and stories, nearly one hundred English, foreign and Colonial, he will have to confess that I have given Newfound-land a good advertisement.

Aug. 5, 1910. D. W. P.

N.B.—Of course my terrible crime was in praising the Morris loan on its success. This is the extract I refer to:—

"By Saturday's express news reached the city that an important discov-ery of excellent coal had been made by an expert named Turnbull, who was prospecting on the Cleary prop-erty at Robinson's Head, on the West Coast. He is representing the Lon-don firm of Robert Prieux & Co., chartered accountants of London, who are acting for the estate of Wal-ter Joyce, who has been interested in that property for some years. Mr. Turnbull with a force of men went to Robinson's Head some two months ago and has been at work there since, and the new vein or seam of coal which he has discovered he claims to be superior to any yet found in Cape Breton, and to exist in millions of tons. It is so excellent that he is reported as saying that the British navy would prefer it to either Sydney or Cardiff coal, and the expectation in the vicinity is that it will be worked before long. This will be good news, if it is correct, for good things are assured to the Colony if coal is found in abundance."—Chronicle.

The History of Chewing Gum.

Substance Comes From a Tree Which is Grown in Mexico and Central America.

Chewing gum has been called the mystery of confectionery, for, of all the millions of chewers there are very few who have any idea of what it really is they are masticating.

Chewing gum is nothing but chicle, mixed with sugar and flavoring; and chicle is the gum of a tree that grows plentifully in Mexico and Central America and that of recent years has been cultivated on a large scale in Yucatan, where the American chicle company, commonly known as the chewing gum trust own several million acres of it.

The chicle tree is not unlike the India rubber tree, and the gum was first shipped to America by men who believed that in it they had a perfect substitute for rubber. In this, however, they were mistaken, as it was found that the chicle gum was insoluble. Not to this day has any medium, acid or alkali, spirit or ether, been found that will dissolve it. It can be melted, yes, but dissolved, no. The consequence was that the first shipments of chicle gum lay unsold and unsaleable on the pier of the docks in Brooklyn. It was a reddish, rubbery-looking substance, and at first roused no little curiosity, but nobody was able to use it for any practical purpose, so there it lay for months.

One day a New Yorker happened to notice it. He picked up a piece and put it into his mouth and began chewing it. Its peculiar consistency struck him, and it occurred to him that if the stuff were only flavoured it would make a nice chew; its insolubility being in its favor for this purpose. He experimented with some more of it, refined it and found that it would be easy to impregnate it with flavoring and sugar. He made some inquiries as to where it came from, and whether a regular supply could be had, and bought the lot. This was the beginning of modern chewing gum.

Practically all the crude chicle gum is shipped to Canada where it is refined in Toronto before being sent to the factories in the United States. The reason for this is that there is a high ad valorem duty on chicle, and as it is worth about 40 cents a pound, and loses 25 per cent. of its weight in refining, the Chicle Company saves about $250,000 a year by refining it before shipment.—Health Culture.

Sure Cure.

Once upon a time there was a man who was sensitive.

If he wore the wrong glove at a wedding breakfast, and found it out afterward, he brooded over the matter for weeks.

If he made an after-dinner speech, and some one remarked that they had heard a better one, it worried him so that he couldn't eat.

If he tried to do some public good, and the local paper came out and insinuated that he was a grafter, he wore himself out trying to show what his motives really had been.

If a motive servant insulted him, he used up days in getting even by taking his case up to the heads of the corporation.

If a friend was absent-minded and treated him carelessly, he imagined there was something wrong between them and laid awake from 2 until 5 in the morning thinking up some plan to get even.

He was a collector of grievances. Nothing was too small for him to pass by.

People began to avoid him. They were afraid he would resent whatever they did because they hadn't treated him any better.

Thus he went from bad to worse.

One day, however, he woke up to his condition. He knew that something was wrong. And so he consulted a certain philosopher. The philosopher plied him with questions, thought for a while, and then whispered something in his ear.

"That or nothing," said the philosopher.

Several years afterwards the man was met by a friend.

"As I remember you," said the friend, "you were an impossible sort of creature. Always brooding. Always wondering why every one was so unjust to you."

"Yes," said the man.

"But now everyone likes you."

"Do they?" said the man, absently, starting to move along.

"Certainly." Tell me, how did you manage it—how did you recover?"

"Easy enough," said the man. "I consulted a philosopher."

"And what did he advise you to do?"

"He advised me to marry an extravagant woman. Since then I have been so busy that I haven't had time to resent anything."—From Life.

Sending Telegrams by Telephone.

Success of a Post Office Innovation.

The delivery of telegrams by telephone instead of by messenger from the post offices at which they are received to the persons to whom they are addressed is likely to become a regular practice in all parts of the country, so far as subscribers to the Post Office telephone are concerned.

The scheme is at present being tried experimentally in South Kensington and Hampstead, and has so far proved very successful. The Secretary of the General Post Office has invited all the subscribers to the Post Office telephone system in these districts to co-operate in the experiment, and very few have declined. He points out in the circular he has issued that "delivery is quicker by telephone than by messenger," but adds that "where attention cannot be obtained at once by telephone the message is sent out in the usual way by hand. In every case of telephone delivery the written telegram is forwarded by post."

Special to the Evening Telegram.
KELLOGGERS, Yesterday.
George Alfred Tilley's little boy, Max, in using matches this morning set fire to his father's barn. All the people, including several from St. John's, staying in the village, worked hard under supervision of Const. T. Green. Bucket brigades were formed, fences were torn down, and for a while it looked like a disastrous fire but strenuous work conquered. If the wind had been heavy, many houses would have been destroyed. Only yesterday Tilley stored his hay in the barn—he lost all his farming utensils, hay, etc.; no insurance.

Football Match.

The match between the Star and H. M. S. Brilliant's eleven at St. George's Field last evening, ended in a win for the home team of 3 goals to 1. A larger crowd than usual was attracted to the field. The naval team won the toss and took the eastern goal. The play was lively from the start and the spectators felt that they were getting the worth of their money in excitement. The Brilliant's men scored the first goal nine minutes after the game began.
The Stars now played a hard game, and five minutes after were gratified by scoring their first goal. Shortly before the finish of the first half they secured a penalty kick and thereby won their second goal.
After half play was taken up the Stars made some determined onslaughts on the Brilliant's goal, but were repulsed every time with a vigor equal to their own. Finally towards the close the Stars forwards got control of the ball and hustled in No. 3 for the home team.

The Outer Cove fishermen who rowed in the Blue Peter and were squarely and fairly beaten by the Torbay men in the Guard, are uneasy since Regatta Day. Mayor Gaynor's Condition.

Special Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.
The condition of Mayor Wm. J. Gaynor, who was shot and seriously wounded as he was about to depart for Europe yesterday, by a discharged city employee, continues to be a source of great anxiety to-day. The first bulletins of the day were hopeful in tone, indicating that the patient was resting comfortably and taking occasional nourishment. But the doctors have not yet pronounced the Mayor out of danger. A consultation to-day will determine whether it is necessary to perform an operation to remove the two fragments of the bullets which still remain lodged in the neck. The wound itself is not causing serious trouble, but the doctors are giving their complete attention to overcoming the dangers of possible infection arising from the presence of foreign matter in the track of the bullet. The Mayor remains calm and comparatively cheerful, addressing those about him in his usual cheery manner.

No Alarming Symptoms.

Special to Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.
William G. Gaynor, Mayor of New York, lies in St. Mary's Hospital to-night with two segments of a split bullet, fired yesterday by James Gallagher who sought to assassinate him, still buried in his neck and mouth, but it has shown no alarming symptoms. It is beyond human power to say whether he will recover, for even the most renowned specialists can't say whether blood poisoning will set in, but as yet the Mayor's temperature has given no cause for alarm on this score. Every indication is that the wound is healing well.

Cholera an Imperial Danger.

Special to Evening Telegram.
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 10.
Professor Rein, of the Medical Faculty of Infectious diseases describes the present outbreak of cholera in Russia as an imperial danger. He estimates that the death list for 1910 already numbers 57,000 as compared with 28,000 in 1909, and 17,000 in 1908. The danger is intensified, he says by the fact that the epidemic has spread from the towns to remote rural districts where it is difficult to combat.

T. A. Picnic All Right.

The T. A. Juvenile picnic, held at Smithville yesterday, was one of the most successful and enjoyable for several years. This was no doubt due to the beautiful weather that prevailed throughout the day. About 250 youngsters left the T. A. Hall at 10.30 and proceeded to Smithville under the direction of the T. A. guardians. Outdoor sports were indulged in up to 1 p.m., when dinner was served. After the repast was over the youngsters took up the field sports again and had great fun all the afternoon. They returned to town at 7.30 well pleased with the outing. The grown-ups remained and engaged in a dance programme till morning. The T. A. band supplied the music.

Ethel Le Neve Innocent

Says Inspector Dew.
Inspector Dew has announced that Ethel Le Neve was innocent of any participation in the murder of Crippen's wife.

The Inspector said Miss Le Neve had made a full statement to him of what she knows of the case, and that it was sufficient to clear her of any guilt.

This announcement was made after Inspector Dew had conferred for several hours with Miss Le Neve. After the Inspector had seen the young woman, he received a despatch from London stating that Coroner Danford Thomas had established beyond doubt that the body found in the basement of the Crippen home at 39 Hilldrop Crescent was that of the doctor's wife. This, he says, clinches the case against Crippen.
Inspector Dew was jubilant over the London despatch, in which Coroner Thomas was quoted as saying: "There is no doubt of identity."

At the Rifle Range.

Mr. J. Murphy, with a fine score of 86, won the W. H. Greene prize at the Rifle Range competition last evening. Mr. W. J. Higgins carried off the R. G. Rendell prize with a score of 60. The distances were 800, 900 and 1,000 yards. A large number of the members of the Club attended and took part in the competition. Mr. Murphy made one 28 and two 29's at the three different ranges, and Mr. Higgins made 17, 21 and 22.

French's Report On Canadian Militia.

Special Evening Telegram.
OTTAWA, Aug. 10.
General Sir John French's report on conditions in Canadian Militia contains three points. First that the peace organization and compensation of the militia should be such that in the event of war breaking out the forces would be ready to take the field forthwith. The General finds that this is not the state of affairs at present. Second, better qualified and more effective staffs should be in command of some brigade divisions. Third, the period of annual training is wholly inadequate to produce results. With these features as the base the report in respect to them is elaborated to the extent of some 70 pages. The General advocates strongly that the present system of commands and military districts be replaced by divisional organization, and that the component parts of the latter should be complete in detail. Further, that local influence should not be allowed to preclude this being done. In that connection, it is stated, that certain places where cavalry or artillery units are really needed an infantry regiment has been established, because of local representations that these would be more popular.
