Tea Prices

AGAIN ADVANCING!

Shipments just to hand of

Our Celebrated

MOUNT VIEW TEA

Cost us 5c. per lb. over previous shipments. We have a limited quantity left from previous shipments which we shall retail till cleaned up at and the price will then be 60c. lb.

55c. per lb.

This Tea is well worth 60c. lb. but the early buyer can save 5c. per lb. We trust that our customers will appreciate the fact that we have advised them ahead when tea prices were advancing and have protected them as far as possible. The tremendous freight rates are responsible for the rises in the price of teas. To-day the freight and insurance on a pound of tea from Ceylon is 16 cents per pound. This compares with about 3c. in normal times.

We have cheaper teas in stock than our "Mount View," but the higher grade teas are the most economical and "Mount View" Tea is becoming a great favourite and we would like you to try it.

To Weak Men and Women—How to Restore Health and Loss of Vitality

Here is an excellent prescription to mothers and fathers and even young children suffering from nervous exhaustion, nervous dyspepsia, convalescence from illness or overwork and sleeplessness.

Go to your nearest druggist and ask him for a bottle of Zoetic, a sure, quick, reliable tonic—a blood maker and a nerve food.

Zoetic is compounded in Canada from food and tonic essences, and is a new and improved combination of glycerophosphates, fine odesic and tasteless Cod Liver Oil, essence of pure beef and the best procurable tonic wine.

Zoetic with this wonderful formula has permanently cured thousands of nervous breakdowns and, as a preventative to consumption, the action of Zoetic upon the lungs is such, as if taken in time, will miraculously, but surely ward off this dreaded disease.

Zoetic is exceedingly pleasant to take and may be had at any Druggist anywhere in Canada.

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER V.

"It is too late," says Dulcie, as the music ceases, "and besides, I think I have danced enough!"

"Oh, don't say that!"

"I am very tired, I am, indeed! Remember what I have gone through to-day," and she looks at him half mockingly. "I think I will go to aunt like a good, obedient girl, like a Lucy Fairfax, indeed!" and she laughs, but there is a strange chord in the laugh that lessens its merriment.

Sir Archie protests and implores, but she is firm, not to say obstinate, and with much sighing and lamentation, he steers her through the crowd-room to Mrs. Fermor.

"It is very late, my dear Dulcie," commences the estimable lady, fully prepared to meet with opposition; but to her surprise her willful ward is sweet and acquiescent.

"It is, aunt; shamefully, wickedly late. I am surprised that you could have stayed so long. If you can tear yourself away—"

"And so, with the old bewitching smile of mockery on her lips, she goes out, leaving Sir Archie staring after her and sighing from the bottom of his impressionable heart.

"Well, aunt!" exclaims Dulcie, throwing herself on the couch in the little sitting-room, which reckons as an extra in their bill, "do you feel quite strong and well to-night? Do you think you could bear a shock—a heavy, astounding blow?"—and she leans back and rests her head upon her hands—very much as Sir Hugh sat in the little alcove.

"My dear Dulcie, what do you mean?" bleats Mrs. Fermor, apprehensively. "What have you been doing now?"

"Doing!" says Dulcie. "Oh, I have not been committing any fresh social

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

declined to consider myself a bundle of goods, or portable property, to be disposed of by an uncle whose name I scarcely knew, and whose face I had never seen."

Mrs. Fermor sinks on a chair and stares, with mild, reproachful horror.

"Not really—you didn't really tell him that!"

"I did indeed," she says, unfastening the cheap silver bracelet from her white arm, and playing carelessly with the snap.

"And—what did he say?"

"He seemed to acquiesce like the sensible man he is—or rather looks. Solomon himself could not have looked more wise, and I don't think more handsome," she adds, with frank candor.

Mrs. Fermor groans.

"Dulcie, you will drive me to distraction!" she says. "Is it possible you do not know how much is at stake? Your uncle's property was immense—simply immense!"

"That's just it," says Dulcie. "We don't any of us know the 'stake,' as you put it; we don't know anything more than the fact that my much-lamented relative bequeathed me, with his fortune, to the unfortunate gentleman with the Victoria Cross and the grim countenance. I know what you are going to say," she goes on, hurriedly. "That it is all my fault, that I wouldn't wait to hear—to have it explained, but that I fled and dragged you with me. Yes, it is my fault, but then—with a smile that shows the white ivory teeth between the red lips—"it or he was also to have been my husband, and so I had the right to do, as I liked. "Now, aunt, dear, if it had been your husband—"

Mrs. Fermor puts her hand to her forehead; when Dulcie is not irritating and harassing she is bewildering.

"Do wait a minute, Dulcie!" she implores. "You talk so fast I cannot think—oh, dear, what is that?"

"That," says Dulcie, coolly, "is a knock at the door. Don't be alarmed, aunt; it is only the water come to ask one of the series of unnecessary questions which are being perpetually circulated in this most preposterous of hotels. Come in!"

The door opens, and a smiling, respectful chambermaid enters with a little note which, with an elaborate courtesy, she presents to Dulcie.

"Dear me," she says, holding it up and looking at it with her head on one side, "a billet-doux, no doubt. Whom can it be from? From Sir Archie, I expect. Now what should you say if it was a proposal, auntie—a passionate invitation to fly with him and perpetrate a clandestine marriage?"

"Dulcie! Remember the girl!" Dulcie laughs.

"She can only speak three words of English," she says; "madame, 'tea,' and 'sex a'clock.' Really, I shouldn't be surprised if it were. He has been looking unutterable things this evening, and he is just the man to propose a runaway match. Are you waiting for an answer?" this to the smiling, patient servant. "Si means yes, doesn't it? Very well; suppose you open it, dear, and if it is from Sir Archibald you can crush him as he deserves;" and she throbs the note over gently, and leans back on the sofa with half-closed eyes.

Mrs. Fermor opens the little three-cornered note, reads it, and utters an exclamation.

"Oh, impossible! It is too late!"

"I thought so," says Dulcie, sleepily. "Certainly it is too late. Write and tell him that if Dulcie Dorrmore should elope it will be in broad daylight with all due honors—"

"My dear Dulcie," implores Mrs. Fermor, agitatedly, "pray—pray be serious and attend. It is not from Sir Archibald Hope, but from Sir Hugh Falconer!"

"The head comes up quickly.

"From—Sir Hugh Falconer! What on earth is it about?"

"It—it—he—wants to see us!" says Mrs. Fermor, helplessly.

"So he can—to-morrow; admission sixpence, children half price," says Dulcie, blandly.

"No, no; he wants to see us now. Listen.

"My dear Miss Dorrmore,—I trust you will pardon me for disturbing you at such a late hour—"

"He trusts in vain," interpolates Dulcie.

"But I have just received import-

Clarksburg, W. Va.—"I am writing to tell you the good your medicine has always done me and I hope my letter may be the means of helping some other suffering woman. When I was 16 years old I caught cold and had suppression for two months. I got so weak I could scarcely drag myself up the stairs. I went to two doctors, then my mother got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it. I never had any more trouble and got strong fast. Then I took it again before my little girl was born and it helped me a good deal and I give the Compound the credit for it. Then this spring I felt very badly again, but I took the Compound and have been well all summer. I cannot be grateful enough for your medicine."—Mrs. HAROLD M. SMITH, 470 Water Street, Clarksburg, W. ant news respecting the matter we were discussing, and I am desirous of communicating it to you and your aunt, without delay. I may add that I shall possibly be compelled to leave Rome to-morrow morning.

"Yours faithfully,

"HUGH FALCONER."

"To-morrow morning, with all my heart! That is just what we might have expected from such a bear! Rather than postpone his departure for an hour, he would disturb us in the middle of the night. How does he know that we are not in bed? Write in pencil on the back of the note, 'Mrs. Fermor and her niece are in bed and asleep.'"

"Oh, dear, what am I to say? Of course I shall not write anything so rude and—and—stupid. Besides, we are not in bed."

"We can be in five minutes, and you can write it then," suggests Dulcie.

"Absurd! Oh, dear! And 'important,' he says. My dear Dulcie, if I could only awaken you to a sense of your responsibility in this matter."

"You can't: I defy you!" says Dulcie, with a laugh. "There! you are determined to give me an interview, I can see. Let me write to him."

And jumping up she goes to the table and scrawls:

"Miss Dorrmore presents her compliments to Sir Hugh Falconer; Mrs. Fermor will be pleased to see him, if it is imperatively necessary."

"There!" she says, with a little defiant laugh; "I should think that would save us."

And without waiting to submit it to Mrs. Fermor, she folds it, incloses it in an envelope, as a rebuke to him for his unceremonial scrap of folded paper, and gives it to the servant.

It does not "save" them, however, for ten minutes later there comes another knock at the door, and to Mrs. Fermor's timid "come in" enters Sir Hugh Falconer.

"He is still in evening-dress, and if he looked tall and distinguished in the large saloon, he looks particularly so in the diminutive little sitting-room. So distinguished, so awe-inspiring in his appearance, that Mrs. Fermor starts and trembles almost visibly; but at a second glance at the handsome face, with its keen gray eyes, her fear vanishes, and she rises with her old-world little manner to receive him.

As for Dulcie, she sits upright, inclines her head slightly, and then leans back and examines the pictured Chinese on her fan, as if neither the visit nor the visitor had the slightest interest for her.

KORNILOFF'S ARREST.

PETROGRAD, To-day.

The surrender on Saturday of General Korniloff took place without bloodshed, but only after prolonged negotiations, during which a collision seemed unavoidable. When Governmental army under General Korniloff (?) was marching from Orshon, General Korniloff was negotiating with General Alexieff, Chief of Staff, who had already reached Mohilev, but was unable to effect Korniloff's arrest owing to the fact that part of the local forces was emphatically for Korniloff and was prepared to defend him to the last. Korniloff and Lokomsky laid down the conditions under which they were willing to surrender their swords, the nature of which has not yet been reported. Both showed considerable obstinacy and the negotiations broke down. General Alexieff telegraphed to Premier Kerensky of the determined opposition of Mohilev, expressing the opinion that the majority of the local troops were siding with Korniloff. Kerensky refused to countenance the delay and gave an order to Alexieff to execute immediately the order of arrest and as Alexieff still hesitated to provoke a conflict, Kerensky telegraphed him that if Korniloff was not surrendered within two hours he would conclude that Alexieff was Korniloff's prisoner and would take measures for the expulsion of the counter-revolutionists from Mohilev. In the meantime Government troops were being readily concentrated on Mohilev barring the roads and capturing all fugitives, among these being Korniloff's ordinary officers, Senoivka, who took a prominent part in the revolution, and members of the union of the army and fleet. Korniloff surrendered apparently only when Korotokoff's forces were near Mohilev and after the defection of his supporting troops. The Grand Council of Don Cossacks sitting at Nevo Tcherask had been ordered by the Government to arrest General Kaledines. The Council replied, "It is impossible to obey the order because Kaledines has attended the Military Conference of the Cossacks in his official capacity."

RUSSIAN REPUBLIC PROCLAIMED.

A Russian republic has been proclaimed. The Provisional Government, under date of Sept. 14th, issued a proclamation declaring that to strengthen the organization of the state of the change to a Republican form of Government was necessary. Danger still threatens Russia the proclamation says, although the rebellion of General Korniloff has failed. The plan of a Russian republic had been one of the chief aims of the radicals and the Councils of Soldiers and Workmen's Delegates and was given approval by the recent Russian Congress at Moscow. A cabinet of five members, including the Premier, has been named to take care of all matters of state. The only party member Premier Kerensky and M. Nikitine, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, both of whom are social revolutionists. The others, including ministers of war and interior, are members of the Kerensky Government.

Although the position of the Kerensky Government appears to be improving the action of the Grand Council of Don Cossacks in refusing the surrender of Kaledines to their pet man, is ominous. The leader of the Cossacks is accused of complicity in the Korniloff revolt. The Cossacks promise their loyalty to the Government while ignoring the Government's request for the giving up of General Kaledines. Increased activity is noticeable on various fronts especially near Riga and on the Isthmus. A stubborn battle is in progress near Zogevoff Farm on the Riga-Tskoff Road, 30 miles northeast of Riga; whether the action is a German attempt in force or only a feint is uncertain. Petrograd, however, reports that the Russians are valiantly repelling the attacks. It was in this region that the Russians on Thursday made considerable advances and were only driven back again on Friday to their former position. On the Bainsize Plateau, northeast of Gorizia, and the region of Monte San Gabriele, the Italians on Saturday advanced the lines. On the southeast edge in the operation, General Cadorna's men captured 400 prisoners and some machine guns. In the Champagne and Verdun region the German Crown Prince has made ineffectual attacks against the French lines. Northward of Rheims the French repulsed a strong German attack. In the region of Loire, northeast of Verdun, the right bank of the Meuse, the French drove back the Germans, who essayed an attack north of Courcy Wood. British troops in a successful raid into the German lines near Clery, southeast of Arras, wrecked defenses and defences. Berlin officials

The New Republic.

Russia a Republic at last! It has been such in fact since last March, but the Moscow Conference and General Korniloff between them have clinched the matter and brought about the formal baptism of the new constitution. The fact is of less present moment than the failure of the Korniloff revolt, of which, however, the outcome is yet uncertain and the present situation peculiar. Kerensky is in a difficult and delicate position, sufficiently reflected in the doubt expressed on every hand as to the fate that awaits the rebel leader. It results naturally from the nature of the rebellion itself. Had Korniloff been a monarchist, a counter-revolutionary, things would have been different and Korniloff himself now filling a traitor's grave. But his offence was far different. He is a Cossack and the Cossacks alone, of the whole Russian army, can be said to be faithful to their duty as soldiers. He had been a fine and faithful soldier and officer. He knew that discipline alone would save the army and the nation, and doubted, with justice, the ability of Kerensky and the rest to restore and confirm it. He asked for dictatorial powers in order to restore it himself and for no other reason. He was trusted, and it is almost correct to say that he "struck" rather than rebelled. He has failed, but his failure has not lacked sympathy, notably from Britain, which has not been over-embarrassed of Russian democracy. The justice of his execution would be undeniable, but the wisdom of it is another matter, and Kerensky knows it well.

The amazing and rapid events of the past few days have exhibited strikingly not only what a riddle Russia is but how incapable the best judges outside Russia are to read it aright. The foremost London and New York opinion, up to last week, can be summarized thus: Kerensky, by force of personality, energy and eloquence, had established himself in the ascendancy which such qualities can be calculated to give over a people as emotional and impressionable as his countrymen. But he is a socialist, and he has been swayed too much by the force of such bodies as the Workmen and Soldiers, who have so nearly brought, and may yet bring, ruin upon Russia. Anarchy yet holds effective sway. The conservative elements, too long quiescent because fearful of the havoc that resistance and civil war would bring, at last gathered their forces in protest, their representatives being Kaledines and Korniloff. They demanded discipline in the army, to which the death penalty was essential. A reluctant consent was given by the Government, but the penalty was not enforced. Result, the Biga debacle, Petrograd threatened. It was time to act. Korniloff acted. He has failed miserably. Yet in the opinion of these judges he had the unanimous support of the Cossacks and many others in the army and of the most intelligent people in the country. The Government has won a complete victory. Even the Cossacks, while they refuse to surrender Kaledines, announce their adherence to the Government. And the army is undeniably behaving itself better than expected. It is plain that the world has been deceived in Korniloff and Russia, plainer still that Kerensky is a stronger man than anyone thought him. The one thing that is not plain, and never will be, is what the future holds in store for this amazing country.

U-Boats on This Side?

The report (yet unconfirmed) of a ship arriving at an Atlantic port on Saturday that she had picked up S. O. S. calls from a steamer, a short distance east of Nantucket, which stated that she was being shelled by a German submarine, gives point to the following message to the New York Times from its London correspondent: "It is remarked here that, barring the scare it might give to a few sea-board cities, nothing better could happen from the viewpoint of submarine defence than for Germany to divert some of her undersea craft to America. U-boats operating off the coast of Ireland get at shipping where it is concentrated, whereas in American waters it is scattered. Unfortunately, despite the reports printed in some American newspapers, there is no danger that Germany will commit such a blunder. If the report proves correct, the incident will be welcomed by the Allies as showing that the U-boats would not need to be greatly perturbed by the transference of their baffled activities to this side.

Miss Elsie Crowdy Passes High Test.

Is Now Certified Ambulance Driver
Mr. W. H. Crowdy has just received a letter from his daughter, Miss Elsie Crowdy, conveying the pleasing intelligence that she has passed with flying colours the severe test now applied to ambulance drivers. Miss Crowdy went across recently to follow the example of Miss Armine Goulding, who is now driving the St. John's Ambulance presented by this city. She had to undergo a very strict training in the driving and management of the heavy motor trucks used at the front, the course including a couple of hours' driving daily through crowded London streets. She had to show herself thoroughly conversant with the theory of the subject, and able to dismount, assemble and repair an engine. Out of 15 candidates in the stiff examination, three obtained a first class, Miss Crowdy being one of them, four a second class and eight failed. Her success will be learned with pleasure by Miss Crowdy's numerous friends here, and the hope is expressed that a second ambulance bearing a Newfoundland name will be entrusted to her when she assumes her war duties.

The annual meeting of the Journey-men Coopers' Union was held last Thursday night, when the following officers were elected:—Wm. Linegar, President; Jas. Bennett, Vice-President; P. Another Motor Day in Court.

Another batch of motor car owners and drivers were before court to-day, charged with driving their cars more than ten miles an hour. The hearing of the first case, preferred against a medical practitioner, was as humorous as it was interesting. The physician, although driving at the rate of sixteen miles an hour, was not convicted, on the ground that he was on an urgent sick call. At the close of the case the Superintendent of Police stated that he did not press for punishment under any circumstances, as the defendant was a good doctor in many respects. Needless to say, the tribute was graciously acknowledged by the genial "Doc."

Fast Motoring; Boy's Narrow Escape.

Evidently there are some people yet ignoring the law, notwithstanding the campaign being conducted by the police to put a stop to excessive speeding. To-day upon a boy had a close call from serious injury. While riding his bicycle over the foot of Prescott Street and keeping on the proper side of the street, he was struck by a motor car, which came off Water Street at high speed, and which kept on the wrong side of the road. The front wheel of the bicycle was hit and badly damaged while the boy was thrown to the street, but fortunately with slight bruises and torn clothes. The motor car, to the discredit of its occupants, continued on its illegal pace as heedlessly as if nothing had happened. The regrettable feature was that the boy was too much frightened and excited at the time to get the number of the car.

WHEN HORSE LEAPED OVER BRIDGE.
As a result of their horse jumping over a bridge there last evening, a young man named Michael McDonald and his mother, of St. Joseph's, are terribly injured, the latter not being expected to live. The only information to hand concerning the accident was received this morning in a message to Deputy Minister of Justice Summers from Magistrate Hogan. The message read as follows: "While Michael McDonald was driving with his mother from church at St. Joseph's to his home, New Bridge, last evening, horse became frightened and jumped over Gulch Bridge and capsized both into gulch. Mrs. McDonald is unconscious and not expected to recover. Son seriously injured about head and side, but may recover. Great sympathy here for families."

Khaki Guild Annual Meeting.

On Saturday afternoon the first annual meeting of the Ladies' Khaki Guild was held at the King George V. Institute. The reports for the past year were presented and showed that $4,008.25 had been taken, a splendid showing indeed. All present were determined to continue the good work and with a little more push they expect to double the above amount during the ensuing year. The officers elected for 1917-18 are: Hon. President, Mrs. A. W. Harvey; President, Mrs. C. W. H. Cassar; Vice-Pres., Mrs. McLean; Secretary, Mrs. W. F. Butler; Asst. Secy., Miss Furlong; Treasurer, Mrs. MacKeen.

Another Successful Birdman.

Robert G. Reid, Jr., son of R. G. Reid, Esq., Supt. of the Reid-Nfld. Co., who was training in the Imperial Aviation Corps at Toronto, Canada, has been successful in a very important branch of the imperial service. The gallant young officer, who is only 18 years of age, requested that he be sent to the front, but was refused permission on the ground that his services at present were required at home. A younger brother, loyal, now studying at McGill University, is shortly to enter Kingston Military College, where for the next three years he will train as an example for the regular army. Both young men are Nflds, and are to be congratulated on their efforts. Since the outbreak of hostilities all the Reid boys with the exception of one, a little chap 8 years of age, have offered their services. Lieut. Bruce Reid was killed in action on July 1st, 1916, while fighting with "Ours" in France, while the daring feats performed by Flight Lieut. Howard Reid in the Far East brought him special mention in the despatches of the commanding officer of the eastern army.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures eczema and piles there is no place where it is better known or more fully appreciated than in the blacksmith shop, machine shop or foundry.

Relief from the itching and stinging sensations, which make these ailments so annoying, comes almost as soon as the ointment is applied, and cure is the result of a little patient use of this healing, soothing treatment.

But you must be sure to get the genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment, for imitations and substitutes are sure to disappoint.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Aug. 27, 1917.

ORLEANS PRINCE WINS M.C.
Included in the Military Cross recipients announced this week is an officer who, upon the outbreak of war, held a commission in an Austrian cavalry regiment. This is Prince Antoine Gaston Philippe, Prince of Orleans and Braganza, a cousin of the Duke of Orleans, and a son of the Comte D'En. When the Central Empires threatened France, Prince Antoine promptly resigned his enemy association and, being unable to enter the French army, did the next best thing—he joined the Canadians, and fought by the side of the Republican troops. The Prince is a Captain in the Royal Canadian Dragoons, but six months ago he was seconded to be an aide-camp on the personal staff. He gets the M.C. for a notable piece of observation work during which he got within 400 yards of the enemy in daylight.

OUR G.O.C. AGAINST MALARIA.
Colonel Sir Ronald Ross is now at the War Office in charge of the campaign for the protection of the British forces all over the world against malaria. Twenty years ago he discovered the human malaria parasite in the mosquito; perhaps the greatest discovery of the nineteenth century, since it made possible the settlement of the tropics by whites, the saving of millions of lives, and the cutting of the Panama Canal. This work was done under every sort of Government discouragement in a regimental surgery at Secunderabad, India. Dr. Laveran, a French Army surgeon, had already identified the parasite in the blood of malaria patients. Sir Patrick Manson, of London, suggested the hypothesis that a mosquito was the intermediary host of the parasite, and Sir Ronald Ross, on August 20th, 1897, at last demonstrated the truth of that theory by detecting the species of mosquito which carried the parasite. By experiments in India, West Africa, and elsewhere he traced the life history of the parasite, and established that malaria was injected into the blood of man by a bite from the infected mosquito. The preventive measures which he worked out have proved of inestimable service in this war, safeguarding the health of the troops in India, Mesopotamia, East Africa and Salonika. A year or two ago it was suggested that the Government should grant a sum to Sir Ronald Ross in reward, as was always done to generals who won a great victory for England. The Government rejected the suggestion with contempt.

"THE TAPE" AT 10 DOWNING STREET.

The installation of a tape machine in the vestibule of 10, Downing Street (the official London residence of the Prime Minister), is a landmark in the history of that world-famed residence, and conjures up romantic reflections. Despatches from Trafalgar and Waterloo a century or so ago took several days to reach Downing Street. In the case of the operations in France war news can be read (printed) within an hour or two at the latest. Sir Douglas Haig is in telephonic communication with Whitehall, whilst at the time of the great naval and land battles associated with Nelson and Wellington—who, it may be recalled, met in the waiting room of the then Colonial Office for the first and last time in their lives—the only method of conveying tidings was by fast sailing vessels on the one hand and the stage-coach and the diligence on the other. Even then the long and laborious journey from Dover to London, with frequent relays of horses and with all its attendant dangers and difficulties had to be covered before the news could be delivered in Downing Street.

VERDUN, 1917.

General Petain's victory at Verdun bears so far a close resemblance to General Nivelle's brilliant strokes last year on the same battle ground. It will be remembered that on October 24 Nivelle's men, attacking on a front of five or six miles immediately north of Verdun, drove the Germans out of Bras and Douaumont, capturing a large number of prisoners and guns, and that on December 15 the same tactics yielded even more remarkable results, when the French line was carried at one bound as far as Bezonvaux, Caurieres Wood, Chambrettes Farm and Louvemont. The new Battle of Verdun—the third successful French offensive in this sector since the enemy's advance was stayed twelve months ago—may likewise have limited objectives, but it was obviously conceived on a more ambitious plan. The front of attack was more than double those of last year, and the results of the first day's operations are correspondingly great.

THE SILVER BADGE.

The silver badge denoting a discharged soldier is a growingly familiar sight in the streets of London. It is a much-prized symbol of service. Not every soldier entitled to them wears his gold bars representing wounds, but the owner of the silver badge regards it as part of his daily attire. Some of its wearers look surprisingly well. In the cases where no external physical reason for discharge is obvious it is a fair assumption that heart trouble is the secret of the man's liberty. Ex-soldiers with the necessary fitness are experiencing little difficulty in finding themselves reabsorbed into the industrial world. I learn that the Ministry of Munitions is taking on all men fit for the work of the department, and is also recommending firms on Government work to give preference to silver badge men. A considerable number of these are finding their way back to the trams and buses, and more particularly to the garages. In fact, in the last-named women are being replaced by men, who are more fitted for the heavy and dirty work involved. The number of women employed by the London General Omnibus Company has appreciably decreased. One with official knowledge of the women's employment market tells me that outside specific fields of labor—like the land and the women's corps in France and the ever-existing demand for domestics—the crest of the labor boom will seem to have been reached so far as women are concerned. But no one will grudge the silver badge man a comfortable niche in the world of labor.

MONSIEUR COCHON.

At the present moment public interest in the French capital is aroused over the dramatic capture of Monsieur Cochon. This gentleman was born with a name predestined to make him popular in some way or other, and indeed before the war there was not a man or woman in Paris who did not know all about M. Cochon. He was just a plain man, about town who waged a relentless war against all landlords. Landlords at the best are never very popular characters, and in Paris their arch-enemy speedily rose to a glory. Whenever a Parisian was in trouble with his landlord (or, what amounts to the same thing, with his concierge) he did not write to his newspaper or go to law about it; he wrote to M. Cochon. Within twenty-four hours M. Cochon was on the spot with an army of futuristic movers and moved the household for injured tenant to the accompaniment of a brass band, castanets, rattles, and handbells. These performances became known as the "demenagements a la cloche de bois." M. Cochon, of course, was prosecuted, and he knew the glory of sensational trials and acquittals. When the war came and a moratorium was established whereby no tenants were henceforth to be compelled to pay their rent, Cochon triumphed over the hated "proprietaires." As far as he was concerned, his war was finished. As he was of military age, however, he had to join up, and for a time Paris is no longer heard about him. Cochon lived happily ensconced in a "cushy job" in the rear, until on a dark day he was sent to the front. His lifelong enmity against landlords had filled his heart to such an extent that he had no room left for hatred against the foes of France. He departed. "Pout Paris" heard it, and wondered where he had gone. He has just been discovered in a hidden retreat, disguised as a woman. Two ladies who had helped him to conceal his whereabouts and his identity were taken into custody at the same time. It is not known whether Cochon's hiding place was revealed to the police by his concierge or by his proprietress, but if it were not the one it certainly was the other.

The Gift of Sleep.

London Daily Chronicle: It is curious to reflect that the safety of the Empire hinges in a measure upon the ability of one man to sleep well. Our military operations are to a large extent directed by General Sir William Robertson and his physical well-being, he tells us, depends upon his being able to retire early from work in order to rise bedfellow from bed. The gift of sleep has been an asset of many great soldiers. Napoleon likened his own mind to a series of compartments, each the receptacle of a certain project. One after another he closed them and at night he shut down the last and instantly slept. Gladstone declared ability to sleep well his one notable faculty, but he had to cease thinking at 10 o'clock at night, "otherwise I should go mad," he added. Wellington could sleep anywhere, even in the face of the enemy. With his foes advancing he would say, "Call me when they reach such and such a point." Then rolling himself in his cloak would forthwith snooze. Livy shows Hannibal to have been similarly blest. He could abstain for days and nights at need from rest, but in a moment of leisure could curl up on a rock and sleep like a dormouse.

Your Boys and Girls.

It is a crime to willingly expose children to disease because of the belief that they will eventually fall a victim to it. The old idea that the diseases of children are doubly serious to an adult, is untrue. An occasional mild case of disease in one instance may be responsible for a serious and fatal illness from this same disease if it is communicated to another.

Parents, in particular, will not assume the responsibility in exposing their own and other people's children which would make them shudder if they appreciated the seriousness of it. Measles, whooping cough and a number of the common ailments of childhood are looked upon as inevitable by people who ignorant of the dangers of these diseases and the possibility of avoiding them.

Jealous of His Mother.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend writes me that she is jealous of her husband's deep affection for his mother and she is greatly ashamed of herself. I don't blame her a bit, do you? Which do I mean? Both. I don't blame her for being jealous and I don't blame her for being ashamed.

I think if the truth were told there are comparatively few wives who aren't jealous of their husband's mothers, deep down in some hidden human nook of their hearts.

Every Good Wife Mothers Her Husband a Little.

In the first place the wife feels that the mother knew him so long before she did and knew a side of him that she can never know. In the love of every good wife for her husband there is some flavor however slight of the motherly love. She loves the boy in the man, she is his second mother, and how should she help feeling some small jealousy of his first mother?

And then almost every wife has a haunting feeling that if she could only have had the bringing up of her husband she could have improved him in certain respects (minor of course). She would certainly have taught him to be more orderly and more handy around the house and more careful about his clothes. It is only when she becomes a real mother of growing boys of her own that she begins to have a haunting suspicion that she might not have found these small alterations as perfectly simple as she had one thought.

But Don't Show It.

But while I admit that such jealousy is common, do not think I condone its manifestations.

For a woman to feel a little impulsive jealousy of her husband's love for his mother, is one thing. It is quite another thing for her to permit that jealousy to influence her in her attitude toward her mother-in-law, to make her try to keep the mother and son apart, to make her speak slightly to him or other people of his mother, to make her look for flaws and find nothing right in what the older woman does.

His Sons Will Love Their Mother.

If a wife thinks her husband cares too much for his mother, let her remember, for her comfort, that he will be likely to be the father of sons who will have an equally great love for their mother.

As a rule too, it is the higher kind of men who will not let their love for their wives wear them from their love for their mothers. The wife love is more of an animal instinct; the love of a grown child for a mother on which it no longer depends in any way, is the product of a higher civilization. The man in whom such a love is highly developed is the man in whom the inhibitions of civilization will be present and who, other things being equal, will make the better mate.

MONEY.

Money is a medium of exchange which passes from hand to hand and separates fact from fiction. It is a machine-made motor car. Although money is made of a hard metallic substance it cannot be held in front of a spring pattern hat or a new type of puncture-proof tire without evaporating from the human head with sickening celerity. If some way could be devised to prevent money from jumping out of an air-guitar-purse and leaving the owner with nothing but ear wax, the average husband would not object to his wife attending the bar in sales six days a week.

There was nothing to will to anybody except love and affection and a flint hatchet.

Money was invented in mediæval times following the stone age, and nobody has ever had one since it first appeared. There was more happiness before we had money lying around in irresponsible hands than there is now. During the stone age it was not necessary to make last will and testament; there was nothing to will to anybody except love and affection and a flint hatchet. When in the stone age consisted of children and fish-bones, sheep, and trees were no merchants' gray hair because of the size of their bank accounts. The human pest who is always borrowing $2 and forgetting the street address of the lender was not with us, and the depressing accents of the monthly statement were hushed and still. Those were happy days.

The Bible describes the love of money as the root of all evil, but man continues to root for the root with his back bowed like a circular saw. As a rule, men make money and women spend it, while it is entirely proper, for man is the grub and his wife the butterfly. If an arrangement can be made whereby the wife does not spend the money before it is made, the result is a happy home, unmarred by wordy conflicts, due bills or chattel mortgages.

Money is a convenient thing to have, but it can't take the place of a tractable stomach or an easy mind. It will purchase almost every luxury in the world except the most affection, loyal friendship and the kind of health which doesn't have to be bolstered up with patent medicine and electric belts. The closer a man gets to eternity the less he thinks about money, but if he has spent a little along the road to help a needy brother he will rest easier in his narrow bed.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS.

WALT MASON

We are all doing what we can to make the war a big success, to help along the Red Cross plan, to alleviate distress. I see the busy woman knit, as down the village street I come. I watch their shining needles flit. I hear their silver thimbles hum. I mark the farmer as he shucks his corn and throws it in a van, and he, while earning needed bucks, is helping, like a little man, I watch the post slug his poor tyre, and sing glad songs about the flag; and his poor effort may inspire some man who finds his courage sag. I note the grocer sell his prunes; he asks a modest price per pound, and as he nails the peacynues, he helps to make the wheels go round. The pastor of the village kirk, who in his pulpit takes his stand, and urges men to pray and work, is helping, too, to beat the band. All men who pass along a smile, a word of courage and of cheer, are doing something worth the while, they help to bring our triumph near. He does not help who sits hands, who sows no wood, who tills no soil, who loafs around with empty hands, discouraging the lads who toil.

Great Newfoundland Cricketer

DIED A FEW DAYS AGO.

Under the above caption, a late issue of the Montreal Star says:—

"The late Prof. John Bennett, whose remains were taken to St. John's, Newfoundland, by the Ocean Limited for interment there will be remembered by former Newfoundlanders in this city as the famous cricketer of the Island by the Sea. Forty years ago when cricket was the one and only game throughout the whole island some famous matches were played between the Metropolitans, Avalons, Terra Novas and Nondescripts. The chief attraction at those matches was Bennett whose great bowling attracted the crowd, in matches against the officers of the war ship which visited St. John's every year, the work of 'Johnny' Bennett, as he was familiarly called, was the outstanding feature of many a signal victory gained by his team over the famous English cricketers. Prof. Bennett figured on the Shamrock cricket team which captured the championship many times for over twenty years. As a batsman he had few equals when it came to long drives, his hits being all fours and sixes.

The late John Bennett will also be remembered as the leader of 'Bennett's Band,' which held sway in Newfoundland for over sixty years, and for nearly forty John Bennett led the band himself. Prof. John Bennett was the son of the late Prof. David Bennett, who was the father of hand music in Newfoundland, having been a member of the British army, and also a noted cricketer.

The remains of Prof. Bennett will be interred at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Friday, of this week when the musicians and members of the different sporting clubs will attend the funeral.

Intertown Baseball.

St. John's Champions of Newfoundland.

The home team are returning by today's express with the Red trophy, having successfully defended their title to the championship of Newfoundland. The series resulted as follows.

FRIDAY'S GAME.
St. John's	9 runs
Grand Falls	5 "
SATURDAY P.M.
St. John's	18 "
Grand Falls	19 "

From messages received after the last game we learn that at the end of the ninth inning the score was tied and in the tenth St. John's secured the winning run amid much excitement. Carey and Braze were the battery for the home team in the second game, and we understand that Hall and Clouston won the last game. The City players were: Hartnett, Carey, Braze, Hall, Clouston, Cooney, Canning, Britt, McCrindle, Quick and C. Grace, with Major Montgomerie as manager and Mr. F. V. Cheaman as umpire. We hope to be able to publish the detailed plays to-morrow.

Mendelssohn's 'Elijah.'

An advertisement in another column announces the resumption of practices in the Presbyterian Hall, for Mendelssohn's 'Elijah.' This magnificent oratorio is considered as being on an even higher musical plane than the Messiah. The well-known solos 'G. rest in the Lord,' 'Hear ye, Israel,' 'It will all your hearts' and 'Lord God of Abraham,' need no words to extol their beauty and power, while the chorus work throughout is intensely devotional and dramatic in style. Mr. King hopes to be able to give the first performance about two months hence. Prior to the holidays a large chorus was taking part in the practices, but there is still room for others, particularly a few more tenors and contraltos.

ITALIAN GAINS.

ROME, Sept. 16. The Italian troops gained ground yesterday along the southeast edge of the Bainsizza Plateau, it is announced officially. The statement follows: On the Bainsizza Plateau yesterday the gallant Bassari brigade, with splendid dash, gained ground at the southeastern margin, capturing 170 officers and more than four hundred men, and some machine guns.

AUSTRO-ITALIAN FRONT.

ROME, Sept. 16. Reporting to-day the situation along the Austro-Italian front the war office says: There has been artillery activity of noticeable intensity in some sections of the Trentino and Italian fronts. Near Leg, in the northern zone of the Bainsizza Plateau, by advancing we rectified our line of occupation and captured prisoners, and on the Carso the enemy's lines of communication were bombed by our airmen with about three tons of bombs. In an air combat an enemy airplane was brought down in flames in Auzza torrent at Avseck. The pilots were killed.

GERMAN POSITION CAPTURED.

LONDON, Sept. 16. The official report from the British headquarters in France, issued to-night, reads: A successful local operation was carried out this afternoon by a London regiment north of Inverness Copse. A German strong point was captured with 36 prisoners and a machine gun, at little cost to our troops. This afternoon the Durham troops successfully raided enemy trenches west of Cherisy, and captured 22 prisoners; our casualties were slight. Early this morning a raid was attempted by the enemy in the neighborhood of Neuve Chapelle, but was repulsed by Portuguese troops, leaving a number of dead and wounded Germans in our hands. Another hostile raiding party, which tried to enter our lines south of Armentieres, was forced to withdraw without loss to our troops. Friday, cloudy weather continued with strong west wind, making artillery observation difficult and greatly favoring the enemy's machines in combats. Heavy bombs were dropped by us on railway stations north of Charleroi and 75 bombs on railway stations, billets and encampments nearer the lines. Three enemy machines were shot down, one falling behind our lines. Six were driven down out of control. Four of ours are missing.

BRITISH MAKE SLIGHT GAIN.

LONDON, Sept. 16. British troops last night made a slight advance on the Belgian front east of Westhoek, and improved their positions, according to the official statement issued to-day. A strong German detachment which attempted to regain the ground captured by the British earlier in the day northeast of St. Julien was disposed of by artillery fire.

ENEMY DRIVEN FROM TRENCHES.

PARIS, Sept. 16. French forces, after a battle last night, ejected the Germans from the greater part of the trenches they had occupied early in the day north of Camiers Wood in the Verdun sector. The war office announced to-day. Two surprise attacks launched by the Germans north of Prosmes in Champagne region were repulsed by the French.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16. Stubborn fighting is in progress on the northern end of the front in Russia, to-day's official statement says. Russian troops are fighting with determination, repelling German assaults. Attacks on the Rumanian front were also beaten back.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16 (Official). In the region of Pajov high road, Russian troops, after intense fighting captured important sectors of the enemy positions near Kronberg farm, but were repulsed in a counter-attack. The Germans withdrew from Husiatz, Galicia.

RUSSIAN FORCES DEFEAT GERMAN TROOPS.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16. Russian forces yesterday defeated German troops on the road to Pskoff on the Riga front and occupied the small town of Kronburg, the Russian war office announced to-day. The Russians also occupied the towns of Kelbon and Sisseral which had been held by the Germans. General Korniloff, and General Lokeonsky, Commander on the northern front, who refused to take command of the Russian armies after Korniloff was deposed, have been arrested.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Sept. 16. Northwest of Rheims a strong attack by the enemy against our posts in the region of Louvre was repulsed by our fire, says to-day's official statement. Artillery fighting was rather severe in the sector between Maisons de Champagne and Massingies, with no infantry action. On the remainder of the front the night was calm.

DECORATIONS FOR CANADIANS.

Canadian Headquarters in France, Sept. 16.—So numerous were the cases of extraordinary courage, resourcefulness or self-sacrifice at the battle of Lens that it had been found necessary to recognize them by awarding an exceptional number of military medals to the men who so distinguished themselves. Corps orders yesterday contained the names of almost 90 men from Western Canada thus honored. Early this morning, Sunday, after a heavy preliminary bombardment with trench mortars and artillery, the Germans attempted to capture one of our outposts in St. Laurey sector, but were driven off. A considerable quantity of gas was projected shortly before dawn into the enemy's cellars in Lens. The Germans came back like angry wasps and a large part of our front was subjected to an intense fire. A second attempt was made to drive in our outpost line, but without success. Several days ago a prisoner said that as a result of the gas attacks and heavy casualties sustained, German troops in Lens had been reduced. The renewed attacks by the enemy reveal a desire to regain the higher ground on the west front of the city, so as to alleviate conditions that are well nigh intolerable.

HUN ATTACKS FAIL.

LONDON, Sept. 16. The Germans attacked early this morning in an effort to recapture positions taken yesterday by the British near Inverness Copse. The attack was repulsed by the British.

GERMANY OFFERS REWARD FOR U.S. SOLDIERS.

LONDON, Sept. 16. British Headquarters in France and Belgium.—German military authorities on the west front have shown concern about the imminence of America's army entry into the fighting by offering rewards for the production of the first American prisoners. The General commanding the 11th Reserve Division recently put a price of 400 marks on the first American soldier brought dead or alive into his lines. This information has been disclosed by the diary of a Prussian Sergeant of the 23rd Reserve Infantry Regiment. He wrote at the end of July, "We are supposed to have had Americans opposite us for some time now and two divisions of Portuguese on our right. The man who brings in the first American dead or alive to headquarters has been promised an iron cross of the first class, four hundred marks and fourteen days' leave." The diary, which covers a period of nearly two months, describes in detail the destruction of the important industrial town by the Germans, and its transformation by the German Army Commander into a great mass of fortified ruins. Batteries have been planted into cellars, private houses, factories and public buildings, which have been partially demolished to give better field for fire, while streets and squares and even the city cemetery have been torn up and enmeshed for groups of machine guns. It describes how the troops quartered in the city spent their time when not on duty in firing machine guns from barricaded windows and roofs of buildings left standing, and searching for hidden treasure and digging among the ruins for silverware. The Sergeant tells of his friends finding gold watches and priceless paintings from museums, statuary and other works of art which they are hoarding in their dugouts. The German authorities removed the bulk of the municipal and ecclesiastical papers to Germany. Many of the inhabitants who were evicted from their homes at a few hours' notice when the city was cleared before its destruction, had no opportunity to remove their private possessions and tried to secret them. The German soldiers, it seems, were eager to serve at St. Quentin because of the chances for treasure hunts. The diary doesn't indicate any marked depreciation of German morale, but emphasizes the discomfort of conditions of life in the field, and the terrible accuracy of the French guns which give the Germans no rest. On the Flanders front during the past few days the only activities have been slight out-post engagements. The Wurtemberg infantry succeeded in taking a few small British posts on the north bank of a stream called the Proenbeck, east of Langemark, causing the British to fall back to the opposite bank, where the main defenses are established. On the other hand, the British have pushed forward their line east of St. Julien.

REMOVAL NOT SUFFICIENT.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 16. H. J. Almar Branting, Socialist Leader, writes in the Social Democrat that Baron Lowen, Swedish Minister in Buenos Aires, will be granted a holiday because of sickness. "This official," he added, "who acted as a telegraph (intermediary for Germany at Buenos Aires) with out considering contents of messages, is removed, but this is insufficient." The newspaper announces that a meeting of protest against secret diplomacy responsible for scandal, will be held on Sunday.

SUBS. IN WEST ATLANTIC.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 15. A British steamship that arrived here to-day reported that early yesterday morning a wireless S.O.S. call was heard, stating that the ship from which the message came was being shelled by a German submarine, the location being 65 miles east of Nantucket Lightship. The name of the ship attacked did not come clear, only the word "Abby" presumably the last half of the name being caught. Additional information that a submarine was in the Western Atlantic was brought by another British steamer which arrived here to-day from an English port. Officers of the liner said they had been instructed to watch out for U-boats when nearing the American coast. There are a number of vessels both sailing and steam of which the word "Abby" is a part of their name now in the Atlantic trade.

MR. McGRATH IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, Sept. 16. Hon. P. T. McGrath, President of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland, has been chosen by the present Coalition Government of the Colony as Chairman of the Food Control Committee for the Island along with the Deputy Minister of Customs and Mr. Grimes, representing the Labor interests. Mr. McGrath was in town on Saturday, and met Hon. W. J. Hanna at a luncheon at the Toronto Club with Dr. Abbott, S. E. Todd, W. A. Willison, and a number of newspaper men. Mr. McGrath's mission is to obtain a supply of flour from Canada for his people, numbering 250,000; he expects to complete arrangements with Hanna to this end. He is going to Washington to arrange about meat and bacon with Mr. Hoover.

SUB. ATTACK REPULSED.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 16. A submarine attack on an American steamship, one of the largest liners in the trans-Atlantic service, was repulsed by several of the 100 passengers which included a number of U.S. army men.

FINLAND'S NEW GOVERNMENT.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 16. A Decree published at Lublin and Warsaw on Sept. 12th, transfers the supreme authority in Poland to a regency council of three members appointed by the monarchs of the occupying powers.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.

Heinrich von Reikhardt, German Minister to Mexico, last night made a statement denying everything in connection with disclosures from Washington that he had been employing a former Swedish Charge D'Affaires to convey information to the Berlin Foreign Office. Von Reikhardt declared that he had never sent any communication through Folke Grenholm, and that he never wrote any communication recommending Grenholm for decoration for services to Germany.

Obituary.

On Monday, Aug. 27th, an old and highly respected resident of Fortune Harbor in the person of James Lannon passed to his eternal reward. Deceased was in his 73rd year and to within a few days of his death enjoyed good health, when a severe stroke of paralysis attacked him which ended in his rather sudden death. His passing was one that befitted a man of his type—peaceful, rectified by the rites of his Church, the last Sacraments being administered by the Rev. J. J. Nolan, who was present at his bedside till within a short time of the call. A large circle of friends and relatives, besides his own immediate family, were present at the burial service, which took place on Tuesday afternoon. He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving and devoted husband and father, a widow, 5 sons and 4 daughters, all of whom were present at his bedside except Miss Frances, the youngest, who is residing in New York and who could not reach home in time to be with her father at his last moments. To the above the sympathy of the whole community goes out, as "Skipper James," as he was familiarly known, was a friend to one and all. May his soul rest in peace.—Com. Fortune H., Sept. 8th, 1917.

Ask us to show you samples. They cost less than you pay when you im-

Would You be No. 1 or No. 2?

1. Two estimable city ladies—sisters—sent $1,000 to a firm of leading lawyers to be invested, which was done under a First Mortgage for 3 years at 7 per cent. per annum.
In three years' time that investment will have become just . . . . . $1210

2. A valued client of ours borrowed that $1,000 and spent $900 with us, between American Mineral Shares and Perfection Tire Shares. He received an immediate dividend of 2 per cent. which, added to the very conservative dividend of 1 per cent. monthly for 3 years, makes $342, plus the $100 he retained, while his investment is guaranteed by us to be worth then $2,050, totalling . . . . . $2492
