If you are discouraged with your condition, weak, tired, subject to headaches, backache, bearing down sensations, weakness of bladder, constipation, hot flushes, melancholy, tendency to cry over trifles, nervousness and loss of interest in things generally, I want to help you to better things. My own was probably as deplorable a case as could be found, yet it and to-day I am a well woman quickly yielded to "Orange Lily" treatment. "Orange Lily" is a simple, natural, common-sense remedy that you apply yourself. To go to drinking harmful drugs for troubles such as ours, is like trying to cure a sprain with pills. The only right and effective treatment is a strictly local application, like "Orange Lily." Because I am sure in advance of the wonderful results you will have, I want to send you ten days' treatment, FREE. Will you write me to-day, NOW, and let me help you? Enclose three stamps. CHAPTER XXII

THE SINNER'S APPEAL.

The faithful Crudge heard the cry, and ran into Kenneth's room, and found him lying with his head on the desk, and his arms hanging down limply.

He managed to drag him out of the chair and lay him down on the floor; then his eye caught the letter; he read it and slipped it into one of the drawers.

"No use for the doctor or any one to see that," he muttered, as he left the room.

He went out into the street, and by good luck saw a messenger boy sauntering toward the Strand, with the air of one who has performed a mission. He beckoned to him, and the boy immediately quickened his footsteps.

"Look here," Crudge said, "if you're not engaged I want you to go as fast as you can for Doctor Marston. You know where his consulting rooms are—14, Number Five Court. Tell him that Mr. Markham—Mr. Kenneth Markham, you know—has been taken suddenly ill, and ask him to come at once."

The boy, hearing—the celebrated name, darted off full of the importance of his mission, and Mr. Crudge went back to take off Kenneth's collar and rub his hands, but without success; the shock had been too terrible, and the blow too heavy.

The doctor arrived within ten minutes, and at once sent Mr. Crudge for some brandy; but, in spite of all that could be done, it was nearly half an hour before Kenneth drew one deep breath and opened his eyes.

They raised him to a sitting position and gave him a little more brandy.

He looked about him almost blindly for a moment, and said, in a muttering tone:

"That letter! I've lost it! Lillas, Lillas! No, no, it can't be true—can't be true! Eh? Oh, is that you, Crudge—and you, Doctor Marston? Have I been ill?"

Every word came more strongly and distinctly. The powerful intellect was resuming its mastery. With their help he rose to his feet and they put him in his chair.

"You've been overworking Mr. Markham. This won't do, you know. Overwork beats the best of us in the long run. Now, you must get home. No cases to-day."

"No case to-day, fortunately, doctor," said Mr. Crudge.

"Ah, good! Now, Mr. Markham, my prescription is a day's holiday, if possible, in pleasant society. A half bottle of good champagne at lunch won't do you any harm; but no work, mind; and, above all things, no worry."

"No worry?" murmured Kenneth to himself half an hour later, as he was driving westward in a hansom. "No worry? Good heavens, doctor, if you only knew! Now, there's nothing else for it, I must go and have it out."

He was still feeling a little faint and dizzy, and, remembering the doctor's advice, he stopped at his club, in St. James Street, ordered a small bottle of the best champagne, and sat down in a quiet corner of the almost deserted smoking room, to collect his thoughts and do half an hour's hard thinking over this terrible development before he went on to see Lillas.

Although it was an almost unheard-of thing for him to take any alcohol for lunch, or even dinner, he felt now the wine refreshing him both bodily and mentally, and when he got into his cab again his nerves were steadier and his brain clearer.

He found Lillas in the little drawing-room, pale and almost haggard. There were dark shadows under the lovely eyes, and the sweet lips were twitching and downdrawn at the corners.

"Oh, Kenneth!" she exclaimed, in a voice that was almost a wail, "how glad I am that you have come! But if you could only have come a couple of hours sooner!"

"Why, dearest?" he anxiously asked, as he took her in his arms and kissed her quivering lips.

"Because Aunt Gerty—you know I've told you that for some time past she has been getting very strange—went away with Nurse Meeson—the one we had at Hampstead, you know—soon after eleven, in a cab, and neither of them would tell me where she was going. She must have packed a dress trunk herself during the night. My aunt wouldn't even say good-by to me; she only said, in the most extraordinary way, that she was very ill; and declared I had not nursed her properly, and she was going away with Nurse Meeson, who would save her life, which I didn't seem to want to do. Then I had a scene with the nurse, who insulted me grossly; but that doesn't matter now. She said that my aunt had asked her to come and take her away; she was her own mistress, and I couldn't stop her going; in short, she told me to mind my own business, and they went. Oh, Kenneth, if you'd only been here to help me!"

"I wish I had been, darling. I meant to do so the moment I had got through my letters at the office; but—well, something happened to stop me. I am most, deeply sorry, dearest, for I know that if ever you wanted my help, you want it now."

"But why?" she said, looking up at him with questioning eyes. "You couldn't have known of this trouble about aunt."

"No, dearest," he replied, releasing her and taking his leader's letter out of his pocket. "It was something worse than that. Read this, Lillas, and, for our love's sake, tell me that you do not know how Sir Arthur died."

As she read the fateful lines, he saw her face grow gray and the pupils of her eyes dilate with horror or fear, or both.

A keen thrill of dread struck him like a dagger to the heart, and he shuddered like a man suddenly smitten with a mortal sickness. Yet his splendidly disciplined intellect acted automatically and remorselessly. To the lawyer, she appealed with a silent, infinite pathos.

"Well, Lillas?" he asked, in a voice that he did not recognize as his own. She looked at him for a moment, with frigid features and wide-staring eyes—it was a look that he would remember on his deathbed—then she dropped the letter and flung herself on the couch, covering her face with her hands, and moaned:

"Kenneth, Kenneth; save me!"
In an instant he was on his knees beside her. He took her hot trembling hands into his and pressed them tenderly between his palms, all the while talking to her as if to a frightened child.

"Save you from what, Lillas?" he asked, after a few moments. "I don't understand you, dear. What has alarmed you? What do you fear, my darling? Save you from—"

"From myself, Kenneth," she moaned again. "I cannot bear this. If you do not help me, I shall kill myself! Oh, dearest, if you only knew, you would believe me, and pardon."

The words struck him like a blast of frozen air. He rose to his feet, and said almost sternly:

"Believe what? Pardon what, Lillas?"

But her only reply was:

"Save me, Kenneth! Save me!"
All this time a deadly fear had been growing upon him, a fear so horrible that it seemed impossible. Lillas, this angel of loveliness and graciousness, who had come into his life and transfigured it; Lillas—a—No! He could not even think the word. But, if not, what did her prayer mean? That was a question which must be answered.

With a desperate effort he braced his shaking nerves, and said, in a hard, almost harsh, tone:

"Lillas, before I can help you, before I will help you, you must tell me this: Had you any part or share, by any act of your own, in the death of Sir Arthur Eversley? It is agony to ask you, but you must answer it."

She turned her face up to him as she lay on the sofa. A shudder ran through her body, and her breast heaved as though she was choking, and twice he saw her white lips try to shape the words, and fail. Then she said, in a voice which sounded horribly unnatural to him:

"Kenneth, I didn't kill him; but—but—God be merciful to me—I let him die!"

He dropped her hands. They fell limply beside the edge of the sofa.

He rose slowly to his feet, looked with wavering eyes round the room, and murmured:

"Lillas, are you mad, or am I?"
"No, Kenneth, no!" she moaned, covering her eyes with her hands. "It is the truth—the bitter, horrible truth! But you will save me, Kenneth, won't you—for, oh, I have loved you so!"

Loved him so! And he? Yes, love, stronger than death itself, might yet be strong enough to overcome even the horror with which her words had flooded his soul. And then sharply through the tumult that was raging through his being, the cold, clear voice of conscience spoke and said:

"Thou shalt do no murder!"

Was it murder that Lillas had confessed to, or was it not?

Instantly and instinctively the legal intellect setled upon the subtlety, and the love-filled heart whispered:

"She did nothing—it was not."
"Lillas, still my dearest," he said, taking her hands away from her face, "I will do all that I honorably can do, but I must leave you now and go and think somewhere by myself. It seems cruel to leave you in this state, but believe me, it is absolutely necessary. There are a hundred things to consider that you know nothing of, and if I am to help you now, I can only do it alone."

CHAPTER XXIII

AN EXTRAORDINARY TRIAL.

The scene in the new central criminal court, five weeks later, was both like and unlike that in the court of probate. The audience was almost the same, only rather more closely packed. Instead of the ushers, there were policemen and warders. Over the judge's seat hung the ominous sword of justice, and here there was not only the witness box, but the broad-fronted, oak-grained inclosures, something like a huge, family pew, which is often the antechamber to two worlds—one the world of monotonous, heart-breaking degradation, which is called penal servitude, from which it is possible to return, and the other "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns," a world whose portals are the grave and gate of death.

Here, at eleven o'clock, on a gray, December morning, Lillas Ashley and Doctor Herbert Mathews took their places to answer the charge of conspiring to murder, and each or both of them causing the death, by means of poison or drugs, unlawfully administered, of Sir Arthur Eversley, baronet, captain of one of his majesty's regiments of lancers.

There was another difference, a slight but most significant one, between the drama of the probate court and the possible tragedy of the criminal court.

"Go, Kenneth, dearest, go!" she said, putting her hand out toward him. "Go, and think for me! I am very helpless and very miserable, but kiss me just once more—even if it is only to kiss good-by."

He hesitated for just a moment, then he took the outstretched hands, bent down, and kissed the upturned lips. It was not the first time in the world's history that the magic of a woman's kiss had stained the whiteness of a man's unpolluted honor.

When he had gone, Lillas raised herself from the sofa, not without an effort, and went into her bedroom. She let her hair down and pushed it back from her forehead, and bathed her face in cold water slightly clouded by a few drops of cologne, then she gave it a good, healthy rubbing with a soft, thick towel, and stood before the long mirror and said to the reflection she saw in it:

"Yes, he will help me. He will save me, at least for the time being. There are years to spare yet. He loves me and I love him—the first love this wretched life of mine has ever known! Surely the Fates owe me a few years' happiness. Why should I not take them with him, and when they are over there are many ways into the unknown. Yes, I can do it, and I will—I must!"

When Kenneth got into the Chiswick highroad, he saw an electric car stop. He wanted air and motion, so he mounted to the top and rode to Kew Bridge, the chaos of his thoughts gradually settling down to something like order.

At the bridge he got out and went into the Kew Gardens, but for all he saw of their beauty he might have been in a wilderness. His eyes guided his footsteps along the winding paths, but that was all. The outer world was nothing to him. His whole being was a battleground between heart and conscience, with the clear-trained intellect acting automatically as umpire of the strife.

When he left the gardens, just before the gates closed, he did not go home to Bedford Park. He walked to the Hotel Cecil, took a room, and the next morning Lillas received this note:

"Dearest: What love can do, love shall do. But you must tell me everything. I shall come and see you about ten o'clock to-morrow. Kenneth."

And when Lillas had read it, she kissed it and clasped it to her breast. "Yes, I knew he would," she murmured. "The Fates may give me a few more years of happiness yet."

Methodist National Campaign.

In spite of unpropitious weather, there gathered at the appointed time about 200 workers of the 24 teams—"a wet day"—but enthusiasm still running high. The three Divisions of Ladies' Teams will compete very closely, if they do not surpass the Gentlemen's Teams. Some surprising results are expected to-night, when the final reports are made. Methodism is still "Christianity in earnest" and the optimistic, vigorous life, manifested in the splendid teams of young people, is a guarantee of the future prosperity of the Church. Mr. C. C. Pratt, Chairman of the Special Subscriptions, delivered an inspiring address. The results of the canvass for the third day are as follows:—

"The Great White God."

One hundred thousand pounds, dead or live!

That was the price put on the head of Colonel T. E. Lawrence, the young Oxford student and linguist, who did more than any single man to bring about the conquest of Palestine and the downfall of the Turks.

It was Lawrence who raised an army of 200,000 Arabs, whose dashing warfare was a veritable nightmare to the enemy.

To the Arabs themselves he was known as "the great white God," and so highly did they esteem him that he was given the rank of Emir, equivalent to Prince.

The story of "The Uncrowned King of Arabia" (as related by Lowell Thomas in "The Strand Magazine") reads more like a chapter from the Arabian Nights than the life-story of an Englishman. In 1903, when he was only nineteen, and before he had finished his University work, young Lawrence urged his parents to allow him to go to the Near East.

"At the time," says Mr. Thomas, in the first instalment of his fascinating story, "he was engaged in writing a book on the military architecture of the Crusades, and he wanted to go over the actual ground covered by the Crusaders. His family finally gave him permission and £100.

"As soon as he arrived in Syria he adopted native costume and tramped barefoot over thousands of miles of unknown desert country, living with the various Bedouin tribes. When he finally returned to England to complete his studies, he still had £50 left of the original sum."

Given Unlimited Power.

He acquired an extraordinary knowledge of languages—French, Italian, German, Spanish, Dutch, and Norwegian—while he is one of the greatest living Arabic scholars.

It is easy to understand the value of such a man to the authorities when war broke out, and he was ultimately given a commission as a second-lieutenant in the Map Department. The British generals who spent many hours poring over maps and discussing the possibilities of different plans for breaking up the Turkish Empire would frequently ask the young lieutenant if he had any suggestions to make. He would point to short cuts across valleys, which he alone knew from his years of barefoot travelling. His suggestions were adopted, and in a short time he became known to all the commanding officers of the British forces in the East.

Ultimately this junior lieutenant, who hardly knew the A B C of Army tactics, was given unlimited power and resources by General Allenby.

He was particularly successful in damaging the enemy's lines of communication. He blew up seventy-nine railway bridges and trains, and the act of slipping out from behind a sand dune after the passing of a Turkish mounted patrol along the Hajar Railway, placing a charge of nitro-glycerine in a hole between the sleepers, and touching off the mine with an electric switch under the first Turkish train going by, Lawrence playfully

He had scores of narrow escapes while engaged in such hazardous work—or sport, as he regarded it. On one occasion he touched off one of his "tulips" under a train carrying the Commander-in-Chief of the Turkish Army and 1,000 officers and men, escaping on his racing camel by a narrow margin.

Colonel Lawrence hates war and hates soldiering. When he was performing these daring deeds his one ambition was to get back to the studies he has now resumed. "Even after he attained the rank of colonel," says Mr. Thomas, "he preferred the uniform of second lieutenant.

"Lawrence rarely saluted, and when he did it was simply with a wave of the hand, as though he were saying, 'Halloo, old man,' to a pal."

To-Day's Messages.

GETTING AFTER THE BACHELORS.

MONTREAL, April 16. It was learned to-day at the City Hall that the Administrative Committee had issued instructions this week for the collection of Bachelor's Tax arrears for 1919, and also the Tax due this year.

PROFITTEERING CHARGES FILED.

DETROIT, April 16. Charges of profiteering were filed with the Federal Grand Jury here, yesterday, against seven retail grocers, by the Assistant United States District Attorney.

CANADIAN VETERANS PROTEST.

CALGARY, Alta., April 16. The local veterans decided not to picket the Land Settlement Office, yesterday, as a protest against the sale of Hudson Bay Lands by the Government. Twenty-four parcels of land were sold, valued at $75,000. The G. W. V. A. protested that as the Government had received these lands back practically for nothing, they should have been thrown open under the homestead regulations.

A CUSTOMARY PROCEEDING.

HAVANA, April 16. Manuel Cabrera, President of Guatemala, against whose administration the revolution has been going on during the past fortnight, is believed to have sailed from the country on his way to Cuba, according to the newspaper El Mundo.

LONDON, April 16. The War Office yesterday announced that General Denekine, former anti-Bolshevik leader in South Western Russia, who had previously been reported as leaving Constantinople for Malta, will instead proceed to England.

SOLVING THE PROBLEM.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 16. Mayor Nickle is trying to help solve the housing problem in this city, by offering a lot on a street that has sewer, water and gas, free to any citizen who will build on it a house at a cost of not less than $2,000. He will endeavor to get other land owners in the same district to make similar offers.

NOT REPRESENTED.

ROME, April 15. Reports that the Holy See would be represented at the meeting of the Supreme Allied Council at San Remo are declared absolutely unfounded by Papal officials.

TWO OPINIONS.

CHICAGO, April 16. Reports from rail centres in the Central West and on the Pacific Coast to-day, bore out the assertions of the Railroad Brotherhoods and railway officials that the insurgent strike was dying out, and that traffic conditions were improved materially. In Ohio and Michigan thousands of men were idle, as a result of industrial heups, caused by the stoppage of transportation. Strikers were reported to be returning to work in a number of cities and in Chicago where the unauthorized strike had its origin. Brotherhood officials said the backbone of the strike was broken. Insurgent leaders, however, continued their claims that the position of the strikers remained unshaken, and denied the charges of Attorney General Palmer that Radical influences were behind the strike.

FOOD HANDLERS STRIKE.

NEW YORK, April 15. Police reserves were sent to the West Side market district where several hundred teamsters and porters had walked out, at a time when New York was virtually cut off from its food supply by rail. Several trucks were attacked by the strikers sympathizers.

NOT UNCONDITIONALLY.

LONDON, April 15. Andrew Bonar Law, the Government leader, in answer to questions in the Commons to-day regarding the release of Irish hunger strikers from Mount Joy Prison, stated that they had not been unconditionally released. The statement contradicted reports from Dublin last night.

JAPS TAKING STEEN MEASURES.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 15. An official statement by the Japanese War Office, on recent events at Vladivostok, received to-day, by Major General Inouye, Military Attache of the Japanese Embassy here, says the Japanese decision to disarm the Russian Army and Navy at a Siberian port was reached only after the Russians had opened fire on the Japanese sentries and patrols, and attacked a Japanese marine supply train.

ALL HANDS ON DECK.

WELLESLEY, MASS., April 15. Because of a shortage of domestic servants and laborers at Wellesley College, squads of undergraduates today assumed jobs as waitresses and gardeners. Those working in the College grounds will earn thirty cents an hour and a smaller wage will be paid those working in the dining room.

LABOR OPPOSES "BONE DRY" ON-TARIO.

TORONTO, April 15. Opposition seems assured in the Legislature to the McCreary Resolution, which calls for a referendum on the question of the importation of liquor. Advantage is being taken of the position that it is not Government introduced business, and so far as present indications go, a good deal will be made of this point by those who take exception to the motion. The Telegram, in its news columns to-day, says, "Labor men are determined that they will not stand for bone dry legislation during the present session of the Legislature." They gave the Government fair notice of this at a caucus of the Labor Party at Parliament buildings to-day. So vigorous was their protest that the McCreary motion, calling for a referendum, which met with much opposition in the House yesterday, will be shelved for the time being.

NEW VETERANS LEAGUE.

OTTAWA, April 16. The first Ottawa branch of the Grand Army of United Veterans was practically formed last night, when about fifty returned men were enrolled as members of the League. The meeting was held purely for the purposes of preliminary organization, and lasted about half an hour. It was addressed for a few minutes by J. Harry Flynn, President of the G. W. V. A., formerly known as the United Veterans League, and by Rev. Colonel Stacey, C.M.G., returned Chaplain. There is a strong probability that Ottawa will be made headquarters for either the Dominion or provincial executive of the G. W. V. A., according to Mr. Flynn, who said after the meeting that it was the intention of the present executive in Toronto to make some move to the capital. It is the aim of the League to make the new branch here one of the strongest in the Province, he said, and there is every indication that there will be little difficulty in realizing this aim. "No, I don't think it likely," he stated, "that there will be an amalgamation between the G. W. V. A. and our organization at present. It is hardly possible that there could be, until the next Annual Convention of the G. W. V. A. Our two constitutions do not fit in, and it would be necessary for the two bodies to agree on certain changes, before there could be a complete amalgamation."

FIVE ONLY HELD.

LONDON, April 15. All the men arrested in Dublin on Thursday, except five, later were released, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraphs from Dublin.

BAD FOR SELLERS.

HOULTON, Me., April 15. The distribution of potatoes from Aroostock County to points outside New England has been stopped by railroad strikes and the resulting embargo, causing an almost precipitate drop in the price here from ten dollars to four dollars to-day.

Police Court.

A man for being drunk on vanilla essence was fined $1.00. A bottle of the stuff found on his person was confiscated by the police. A tailor for not having a tail light on his motor car lighted was fined $5 or 10 days imprisonment. A young man was charged with a breach of Section 4 of the Intoxicating Liquor Act. He was represented by Mr. Halley. Mr. H. A. Winter appeared for the prosecution. An oilman of Pennywell Road was called and deposed he met the accused on his way home and asked him "how everything was going." The accused replied, "Fine, and if you want a couple of bottles of stuff I will get them for you." He afterwards received the two bottles and paid $9.00 for them. The next day being a half holiday he drank the contents of one and got drunk. Asked by Mr. Winter what became of the other bottle, the witness said he did not know. Mr. Winter: "What became of you?" Answer: "I was arrested."

Kelly vs. Woodford.

Mr. Mews intimated that he would call two or three witnesses more and close his case to-day. Robert Joyce, accountant of the Board of Works Office, was called. He deposed to being employed to look after the accounts of roads and bridges and on Oct. 16th last he received instructions to issue a cheque to Mr. Kelly. He received the instructions from Mr. Woodford. Cheques with allocations were put in evidence as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name, Amount. Joseph Tilley $25.00, Charles Mercer 25.00, George Tilley 16.50, Richard Walsh 20.00, Arthur Clarke 50.00, Michael Condon 20.00, Geo. Jennings 29.00, Thos. PAMPERING ONE'S CHILDREN.

A friend of ours was telling of a family of three children who have had every advantage and have abused most of them.

The oldest was a son. His father sent him to college, with a liberal allowance (constantly increased when he failed to keep within it); he so constantly neglected his studies that his sophomore year he was told he need not bother to come back after a year. His father then set him in business and he treated the business much the same as he did college course, with inevitable results. After his failure his father took him into his own business and gave him a position of small responsibility and of large salary. He now complains about abusing his father because his salary is not still larger.

The second son got through college, married a girl of whom the family, with good reason, disapproved. His father, however, built and furnished him a lovely house to keep his son, who was his mother's idol, near her. But the wife was determined to make trouble, and succeeded, and they have now rented the house and gone to live in a distant town.

The third, a girl, got in with a crowd in college (where she had her own car and a lavish allowance) who called themselves radicals, and under cover of studying art in New York, is living a life which would break her father's and mother's hearts if they knew about it.

"And to think that they did everything for those three children," said a woman who was telling about them. She seemed to think that made her conduct the more incomprehensible.

Isn't it really the thing that makes incomprehensible? If it is harder for the rich man to get heaven than for a camel to go through a needle's eye, it is at least really hard for the rich man's son to develop character if he has all the money and achievement and self-dependence by which character is normally developed, taken out of his hands.

That is Half Their Joy in Life. It is natural that men of means

HOLLAND'S STAND.
Dame Holland says (I rather like her, admire her nerve and dauntless will): "I won't give up that famous picker whose maiden name was Kaiser Bill. It's no use rearing round and pawing, your bluffs and pleas will cut no ice; we need the cord wood he is sawing, since coal is scarce and high in price. He piles up ricks of beech and maple, he drags huge saw logs from afar; he whacks up elm, which is a staple, wherever hearths and ranges are. In vain your protests and your roars; you'd like to have Bill hew your cedars and split your lordly sycamores." Old Bill has laid aside his sabre to saw up logs, that pots may boil; and in these days of high priced labor he asks no money for his toil. In honest sweat his efforts steep his brow; no wonder, then, that Holland keeps him, and says she'd rather lose a cow.

J. Ogden Armour, the big Chicago packer, has taken to the pen. He has written for the Yale Daily News. He writes of the advantages of American colleges in that they create a distinct type of valuable American citizen while being at the same time the greatest fool killers, for while plenty of fools enter, few get through.

IN TRAINING.
He would be brave in dangers great. He spoke of deeds he hoped to do. Should try his soul and find it true; In one big hour the strength he'd find. To earn the right to stand with kings— But he was selfish and unkind, And was untrue in little things.

He longed for glory, yet he failed To train his spirit for the test. He thought that when he was assaulted, His courage would be at its best; He slipped along through life without Heeding the laws which govern men, Thinking, when danger called him out, He would be brave and ready then.

But he had failed in petty ways, And yielded to temptations small, The careless round of many days Had softened him, and when the call For courage came to him at last, The easy living of the past Left him no longer at his best.

Life is a training court for all! Who would be strong in time of need, Must prove his strength by duties small, And not in one great shining deed; Brave men are brave from day to day, True men in everything are true, Who would have courage for the fray, Must be courageous, through and through.

A Duel of 100 Years Ago.

A century ago, on March 22, 1820, Stephen Decatur and James Barron, both commodores in the United States Navy, faced each other at Bladensburg, near Washington, eight yards apart, with dueling pistols in their hands. No duel in American history vies with this famous combat in popular interest, excepting only that of 16 years before, in which Alexander Hamilton lost his life at the hands of Aaron Burr. Decatur had seen much of duelling. He had fought at least one such combat before the fatal meeting with Barron, and he had assisted his friends Oliver Hazard Perry and Richard Somers in their encounters. The quarrel with Barron dated back to the combat between the Chesapeake and Leopard in 1807. Barron brooded over his wrongs, real and fancied, and Decatur felt obliged to oppose the restoration to duty of the man who had commanded the American vessel in that unfortunate action. In the duel both men fell, and while they lay upon the ground the had a not unfriendly parley likened by one of the witnesses to the scene between Hamlet and Laertes. At the time of his death Decatur was the ablest officer in the service and five numbers from the top of the navy list, while Barron was three numbers in advance of him.

Times have changed. In those days the duel was thought of as a kind of indispensable diploma for the naval officer. Men were very sensitive as to their "honor" and quite fantastic in their notions of what was fitting for "an officer and a gentleman." Trivial causes brought about these meetings on "the field of honor." Midshipmen were very bellicose and commissioned officers kept oversight of these affairs with pompous solemnity. During the duelling period in our naval history, the half century ending with 1848, 82 duels were fought, at the cost of 36 lives, and 33 of those killed were officers. The mortality therefore was 22 per cent, or five times the mortality of the federal army in the civil war. Half those not killed were wounded. No wonder, for usually the distance between the combatants was 30 feet, though not seldom it was lessened, and in the Bainbridge-Cochran duel it was but 12 feet. Gen. Jackson killed his man in a duel, but when President he took one of the early measures for the ending of the practice by causing the names of four officers to be struck from the navy roll because of their engaging in such a combat. The anniversary of Decatur's last affair reminds us of the changes a century has made in our ideas of what conduct society has a right to require of a gentleman.—Boston Sunday Herald.

Implicit Confidence.

Newfoundland confident-ly hopes that His Excellency the Governor will make a thorough investigation into the charges against the Prime Minister and a Legislative Councillor, arising out of the Woodford affidavit, but until the representative of His Majesty in this dominion is officially notified by some person or persons competent to do so, he is constitutionally prevented from taking official cognizance and action of the political delinquencies of his chief adviser and a member of the Upper House. To attack and condemn His Excellency for apparent failure to deal with the serious phase created by the affidavit of Mr. Woodford is not the way to arrive at a solution of the problem which confronts the whole country, and no language can be found strong enough to deprecate the intemperate leading article in Wednesday's Herald, in which the Governor is arraigned before the bar of public opinion and accused of rank partizanship. Until the viceregal authority refuses to take proceedings, his name should be kept out of discussions, excepting in so far as he may be respectfully requested to take cognizance and act as the constitution and his instructions require.

If there is one person to whom blame attaches for not notifying His Excellency, in his official capacity, of the piece of political jobbery perpetrated by Messrs. Squires and Gibbs, in their attempt to purchase an opponent in the House of Assembly, it is the Minister of Justice. His silence may be construed also into an admission of the guilt of the parties implicated by Mr. Woodford. As the legal adviser of the Crown in Newfoundland, such a dereliction of a prime duty does not tend to enhance the Law Minister's reputation for straightforward dealing. He has fallen short of the standard, and his lack of courage has not won him any new admiration from friends or opponents. As a colleague of the Prime Minister in the Cabinet, the actions and deeds of that gentleman are as much his responsibility as are those of himself, when they affect the Government of the dominion. Likewise the other Executive members of the Government. All of them, and more particularly the Prime Minister himself, took the "holier than thou" attitude during the elections, and now they have to share equally in the political malfeasance of their chief. They will be the scapegoats unless they decide to take definite steps to clear themselves of the reproach which hangs over them through the corrupt practice of the Premier, made and declared to under oath.

"The public are exceedingly tired of hypocritical pretensions," says the newspaper controlled by Hon. R. A. Squires. Therein the senior organ of the Government makes an incontro-vertible statement. The public are exceedingly tired—not of the hypocritical pretensions of the Opposition press—as alleged by the Star—but of the glaringly hypocritical pretensions of Honourable Richard Anderson Squires, Prime Minister of the Dominion of Newfoundland and Colonial Secretary likewise. Mr. Squires thanked God that he was not as other men. The Pharisaical attitude became him, but he has climbed down from his self-built high pedestal and trailed in the gutter the dignity of the Premiership. His hypocrisy has been shown before men. His lofty declamations of purity in politics were words without sound and nothing but hypocritical pretension. The young tribune has fallen from his high estate and descended into the filth and mire of venality in politics. If he is innocent of the charges made against him, let him deny them under oath. He has had ample time in which to do so. His oft-repeated declarations of sincerity of purpose and purity of motive must, in his absence of denial, be regarded, to again use the words of his own newspaper, as "hypocritical pretensions." The time has now arrived when nothing short of a public demonstration and protest will clear the murky political atmosphere. The people themselves must lay official notice of the action of the Prime Minister at the foot of the throne. They must acquaint the Governor of the charges brought against his chief adviser, and we have that confidence in His Excellency to believe that once this is done his action will be spontaneous and drastic.

The People Will Act.

MASS MEETING MONDAY NIGHT! The outrageous disclosures resultant from the Harbor Main Election Petition Case have succeeded in arousing public opinion to an extent not often witnessed here, and the public meeting in the Star Hall on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock is expected to prove an unmistakable expression of the sentiment that is evident on the streets and in the public and private assemblies of the city. That the public should be the force to act in this glaring matter, is fortunate. Were it any other, "politics" would be the name applied by those affected. It speaks well, also, to see the public conscience so alert to detect irregular dealings, and if this tendency grows, inestimable good will result.

Viking Got More Seals.

The Viking yesterday killed 300 old harps, stated a message from the ship last night. The average weight of the seals at this time of year is about a hundred-weight, having a money value of about $8 each. In the last three days the Viking killed 1200 old seals, which would net her crew of 180 men about $20 for their share.

Young-Adams Co'y.

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE." The Young-Adams Company offer for their week-end attraction, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," dramatised from the well known novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr. All who have read this book know what a beautiful story it is. It is a story of romance and feuds in the Southern mountains, right full of thrills and laughter. Miss Marjorie Adams will impersonate the part of June, a beautiful girl of the hills. Jud, her father, is taken by Mr. H. Wilnot Young, which proves that it must be a very outstanding feature. On Monday and Tuesday of next week, Mr. Young offers a tremendous play of the British and Russian Diplomatic Agencies, entitled, "In Secret Service." This play is gripping from start to finish, and one which will serve to introduce Miss Adams in the role of a beautiful Canadian girl, who is in the pay of the British Government. Also some very elaborate dresses will be worn by the ladies and brilliant uniforms by the men of the Company. To fully describe this play in advance would spoil an eventful evening. So we will leave it to the patrons of the Casino to judge for themselves that this is one of the very best plays ever offered in any local theatre.

Will Be Published To-Morrow.

The letter from the Employers' Protective Association to the L. S. P. U. in reference to an increase of the wage scale has been unavowedly held over until to-morrow. The Longshoremen, in concave last evening, unanimously rejected the offer, i.e., a 20 p.c. increase in wages of steamboat men and of 15 p.c. for fish handlers. They also decided to have no further negotiations with the merchants. The wage formerly paid the steamboat men was 50 cents an hour up to 6 p.m., 60 cents from 7 to 11 p.m., and 90 after midnight. The new offers ment 60, 70 and $1.00 for the respective periods, with 10 cents an hour extra for Sundays. The offer was on the understanding that the men would work as formerly, whenever wanted, at meal hours, after regular hours, etc. A resolution was passed unanimously that in future no work be done at night, on Sundays, or holidays. The men will therefore work at the old rate of wages and only for ten hours per day.

Friends of Irish Freedom

A special meeting of the Friends of Irish Freedom was held in the T. A. Rooms last night. A large number of members were present. Seventeen applicants were admitted to membership. It was decided to hold a special meeting on Friday, April 23rd, the fourth anniversary of the birth of the Irish Republic, at which short addresses on the Irish question will be delivered by orators selected for the occasion. A musical programme in connection with the event is also being arranged. The meeting will be held in the armory of the T. A. Hall. A message of greeting from the Padraic Pearce Branch of the Society, St. John's, Newfoundland, will be cabled on Friday 23rd to friends across the sea in Ireland.

The Great Meteorite.

Many readers of the Telegram will remember the discovery of the great meteoric stone on Labrador so many years ago, by the Esquimaux there, and the sensation caused by the find and the number of scientific men who made a pilgrimage to the spot. After much exertion and labor the stone from the sky was removed to the coast and shipped to New York by the sealing steamer Hope. Beginning in the Telegram to-morrow, Mr. H. E. Shortle tells the whole story. Don't miss it, as the article is of entrancing interest.

Personal Mention.

Higgins and Hunt to resume his law studies, in connection with which he has already put in two years in the Dublin University. We learn that Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring is now in the Mediterranean taking a vacation. He has visited Monte Carlo and other interesting places.

FIREMEN OUT ON STRIKE.—Some of the firemen of the different sealing ships in port are now out on strike. They are seeking an increase in wages. They contend that the amount of $65.00 which they are now receiving, is not sufficient to support them and their families, and are asking for $80.00 per month.

Medical Man Fined $250 for Issuing Illegal Scripts.

During the past week, acting under instructions of the Inspector General, a medical Doctor of Brigus was brought before Magistrate Thompson, there, and fined $250 for the illegal issuance of a script. Through the information received the Inspector General looked up the records at the Controllers Office and found evidence that led to the conviction.

Big Merger Rumoured.

It is freely rumoured about town to-day that a merger of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. with the Nova Scotia Steel Co. has been effected. This merger takes in several big ship building companies of Canada, and is capitalized at $400,000,000. The joint company will include the great Vickers, Ltd., who last winter purchased $3,500,000 worth of stock in the Dominion Co., costing them $70 a share. Colonel Grant-Norden, M.P., and Sir Newton Moore, are the moving factors of the English side of the merger. A contract with Bell Island for 3,000,000 tons of iron ore has been made. If this is so, Sydney certainly will be unable to supply Newfoundland with coal. Belgium, it is said, is also in the market for as much Bell Island iron ore as she can get.

Terra Nova's Crew Mutinied.

One hundred and forty of the Terra Nova's crew mutinied and refused to kill, stated a message received from Capt. A. Keen to Bowring Bros. They demanded that the ship be brought to port, and, in addition to refusing themselves to work, would not allow the others to do so. Sixty-three men were therefore precluded from killing. The mutineers contend that, as their articles ended yesterday, the 15th, the voyage was finished and the ship should go home.

Newfoundland Has Great Future.

Mr. H. B. Thomson, Recently Associated With Reid-Newfoundland Company, Prophesies That Next Few Years Will Mean Big Advance for This Country.

"Newfoundland has a great future," declared Mr. H. B. Thomson, late Chairman of the Canadian Food Control Board and now a Director of the Reid Nfd. Company, to a Telegram reporter this morning. "The country possesses in plenitude the first requisite of national greatness—natural resources. Having such, the only other thing required, to attain greatness is ability, energy and finances. As far as the latter are concerned, there are lots of them, and what is needed is some agency that will bring them together for the purpose of taking hold of and working to their limit the boundless wealth of sea and land."

Mr. Thomson is in Newfoundland for just that purpose. As he says, we have the resources. We also have the ability and energy. It is his intention to get such together, gather capital and develop the resources. Mr. H. D. Reid, the Co.'s President, made no mistake when he selected Mr. Thomson. A tall, big man, he impresses one with his personality, and one sees that, behind the quiet demeanour, there is boundless determination and push—the main virtues required in a man attempting to do what he has set out to accomplish. He is a practical man—and therein lies his value. Talk of mines, he knows more than you ever heard. Mention timber and lumbering, he was engaged in such work for years in British Columbia. Refer to fisheries, food, industries, newspapers, anything—he is at home in their discussion. He is a valuable man.

He has not been with the company for more than a few weeks, yet already has to hand a creditable achievement. A big English fish firm has become interested in the cold storage plant near Long Bridge. Let him tell about it in his own words:

"The matter was taken in hand in England by the Home and Overseas Trust, Ltd., of which corporation I am a Director. The object of this Trust Company is to secure investments for British capital in various portions of the Empire, as the War taught the people of Great Britain that it was more than essential to develop the whole resources of the Empire and to make it as much as possible self-contained. Great prominence was given to this phase of the situation by the publication of a voluminous report of the Royal Dominions' Commission which was appointed by the Imperial Government in 1914. Sir Edgar Bowring, the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, was a member of this Imperial Commission and toured the outlying portions of the Empire with them, taking evidence and publishing a lot of valuable information in the report of the Commission dealing with raw materials and the resources contained within the Empire, pointing out particularly those resources which needed development.

"The group of men who, through the influence of the Home and Overseas Trust, have taken an interest in the Fisheries development of Newfoundland are thoroughly practical and well versed in the trade and fully realize the strenuous competition that this colony has to face in the markets of the world, particularly in view of the great development and strenuous efforts that are now being put forth by other fish producing communities.

"The main object of the new fish company will be to produce the highest grade products, particularly in smoked, kippered and cured fish and their particular line of development will not interfere with the ordinary methods of drying and salting cod fish, and so far as their activities are outlined, it is improbable that they will even deal in this class of fish products.

"The Reid interests will still be associated as stock holders with the new concern and will take an active interest in its success. They had a better cash offer for the Cold Storage plant than was paid by the new company, but as the people making this offer did not propose to use it for the development of the fish interests, Mr. H. D. Reid, the President of the Company, saw that it was more important to the general development of Newfoundland that the Cold Storage plant should be used for the increasing of fish production. Consequently, he decided that it was more business-like and ultimately more profitable to fall in line with the present proposal rather than to dispose of the Cold Storage plant elsewhere for other purposes.

"There are several other projects dealing with the development of the Natural Resources of the Colony now before the various groups and associations of the Home and Overseas Trust Company in London which will probably eventuate in the further investment of capital in the Colony, particularly when the exchange situation becomes more favourable and these various projects will be investigated more fully and crystallized into commercial propositions.

"Regarding the investment of English capital overseas, this colony, like all other parts of the world, is in direct competition and stable conditions, security for the money invested, and the commercial feasibility of the projects put forward, will naturally govern the decision of the people in London who are investigating overseas enterprises."

Mr. Wm. Hamar Greenwood, who has made several visits to Newfoundland, is another Director of the Home and Overseas Trusts, and is a brother of Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and a brother-in-law of Hon. Col. Amery, under Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The company formed in England is comprised of some of the most widely-known practical men of the British Isles; such as J. H. Cusens, of J. H. Cusens & Sons, Fish Driers, Smokers, and Fresh Fish Distributors, who have warehouses, plants and offices in Billingsgate, Paddington, Hull, Fleetwood, Liverpool and Aberdeen. "Cusens" is a name synonymous in England for unbounded integrity and business solidity. "It is likely that he will visit Newfoundland this summer," said Mr. Thomson. "He will personally verify and look after the investigations he has already made and the business will be started by the exportation of frozen fish, the erection of smoke houses, and other plants for the preparation of fish in the very best grades."

Passed Over Again.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I see by the newspapers that the Government has "been pleased" to make certain new appointments to the Civil Service, but this announcement will not give much pleasure to some of us returned soldiers. No person can raise any objection to Mr. Harry Winter, the new Clerk of the Legislature as he offered his services and did his best to get into the army. E. Leo Carter, however, is in an altogether different class. His military record is too well known to be repeated. It is enough to say that he is regarded by all veterans as the worst slacker in the country. Why should he be appointed Assistant Clerk to the House of Assembly when there are so many qualified returned soldiers who could fill the bill?

Then again, Mr. Robert Walsh has been appointed Sergeant-at-Arms. I understand he is a gentleman well over 70 years of age. Would it not have been more seemly to have awarded him for his services to the Squires party with an Old Age Pension, and appointed some wounded soldier to this job which brings in a handsome salary to the incumbent without requiring any great amount of hard work.

There are plenty of well educated ex-officers and men who would gladly have accepted either of these appointments and filled them with credit to themselves—men whom the Legislature should be proud to have under the same roof.

It is only a couple of weeks since a certain Mr. M. Foley was rewarded for his political services with a job in the Customs Dept. This gentleman, although of military age and unmarried, rendered no service to his country during the war. There are no men who responded to the "call to arms" more nobly than the clerks and shop assistants of St. John's. This position in the Customs House is clearly one which should be reserved for such men as I have mentioned.

Why then was it given to Mr. Foley? It is reported that a new Superintendent will soon be appointed to the Poor Asylum, and that the returned soldier will again be turned down in favor of an elderly supporter of the Squires party.

I contend, sir, that it is time for the veterans to take action and insist on the promises given by our public men being carried out, namely—to give the preference in all cases to the men who endured hardships, and fought and bled for their country.

It seems as if it is the policy of the present Government to ignore the claims of the ex-service men, and to bestow all their favors on those who shouted loudest for the Squires party in the recent election.

Personally I have no axe to grind. I am not looking for either job or patronage from any Government; but it makes my blood boil when I see the comrades beside whom I fought, passed over in favor of those less worthy.

Yours truly,
REVEILLE.

Presented With New Instruments.

Salvation Army, N. 1. Band Receives Splendid Set.

A very pleasing function took place at the Salvation Army Citadel, New Gower Street last night, when Colonel Martin presented to the Corps band, through Bandmaster S. B. Horwood, 22 silver plated instruments and 2 drums. In making the presentation the Colonel intimated that the use would be exclusively devoted to sacred music and in the service of God. The new instruments cost somewhat more than $2,000, the greater part of which had been procured through the untiring efforts of the various Army units attached to the No. 1 Corps. A balance of $400 is outstanding, and a call for a collection was made; the handsome sum of $170.00 being subscribed on the spot. Present last night besides Colonel and Mrs. Martin, the Territorial Leaders, were Staff-Capt. and Mrs. Thompson, Adj. and Mrs. Tilley, Ensign French and Adj. and Mrs. Earle, the Corps Officers, and a very large gathering of supporters and soldiers.

Parish of St. Thomas's.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of St. Thomas's Parish was held last night in Canon Wood Hall, the Rector, Rev. Dr. Jones, presiding. After the opening prayer and the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting by the Vestry Secretary, Mr. F. M. Stirling, the Rector read his report on the spiritual and social work of the parish during the past year. In the course of which he referred especially to some of the outstanding marks of progress made by the parish during the past five years, which he felt deeply grateful for, and feelingly thanked all who had co-operated and supported him in his work during the time of his rectorship. The financial warden, Hon. Robert Watson, presented his report, which showed that the parish had progressed financially in every way during the year, over $22,000 being raised, the largest amount for one year in the history of the parish. On motion the report was unanimously adopted. The reports from the various parish organizations and committees were then read and adopted: The Sunday Schools, by the Rector; St. Margaret's Guild, by Rev. Mr. Clayton; Cartwright Mission, the Rector; Women's Home Missionary Society, Rev. Mr. Moulton; St. Andrew's Brotherhood, Jas. Billard; Cemetery Committee, the Rector; War Memorial Committee, Rev. Mr. Clayton. Regarding the War Memorial it may be said that the chime bells is now installed in the church and it is hoped that the balance of the cost will be collected in a few days, so that the dedicating service will be able to take place on St. George's Day, April 23rd. The tablet in connection with the memorial has not yet arrived, and it is not known at present just when it may be expected. Mr. W. S. Monroe, was re-appointed Rector's Warden, and Hon. Robert Watson re-elected People's Warden. The election of the Select Vestry resulted as follows: Rector and Church Wardens, ex-officio, Messrs. C. E. Hunt, F. M. Stirling, Hon. Tasker Cook, R. R. Wood, Hon. M. G. Winter, R. G. Macdonald, Thos. Winter, R. Dowden, A. Findlater, G. H. Cook, Wm. Churchill, Jas. Billard, Messrs. T. H. Griffiths and A. Findlater were re-appointed auditors. The Cemetery Committee were re-appointed, viz. Messrs. J. C. Oke, A. G. Cartwell, F. Bursell, E. S. Pinsent, R. Dowden. Representatives to the Protestant Industrial Society, re-appointed: Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. C. A. Moulton, Messrs. F. Bursell, F. Miller, C. J. Miller. Votes of thanks were passed to all church officials and organizations of the parish for their splendid work during the year. The meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology and the pronouncing of the Benediction.

Ten Per Cent. Dividend.

The shareholders of J. J. Lacey Co. Ltd., held their fourth annual meeting yesterday and declared a ten per cent. dividend. The company has added a new department to its activities, that of trading on the New York Curb. Last year's directors were re-elected with the addition of Mr. R. J. Manning, as Treasurer.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boldly. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said just to humor her. Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

Fondest Hopes Were Fulfilled, Says Mrs. Brown

"Tanlac Did Even More For Me Than I Thought It Could," States Sydney Woman.

"A lot of wonderful things have been said about Tanlac, but not a word too much in praise of it. I am a well and happy woman to-day, and I have to thank Tanlac for it," said Mrs. N. R. Brown, of Cabot Street, Sydney, Nova Scotia, when speaking to the Tanlac representative at Turnbull's drug store recently.

"You can't imagine what I've suffered during the last four years. During all that time I have had chronic indigestion. No matter how careful I was as to what I ate, my food would sour, the gas would form so badly as to nearly choke me, and I would so bloat up that I felt I should explode. I was in a constant state of misery. I had no appetite and often would take nothing but a cup of tea at a meal. I had the most frightful headaches that kept me in bed for days at a time, and that always ended in a bilious attack that was worse than sea-sickness, and that left me weak and miserable. At night I would lay awake for hours unable to sleep, and in the morning would be so worn out that I simply had no energy or strength to do my work. I often thought I should have to give up entirely.

"I owe a debt of gratitude to the people who made statements in the papers about what Tanlac had done for them, because that is how I came to hear about it. My expectations were more than realized, for from the very first dose I began to improve, and now after taking four bottles I am not like the same woman. My stomach trouble has disappeared entirely and I can eat just anything I want without having the least trouble afterwards. My appetite is just splendid all the time, and I have neither headaches nor bilious spells any more. I sleep like a child at night and get up feeling fresh and strong. All my old energy has returned to me, and the day's work is now a pleasure instead of a drudgery. Tanlac is certainly a very wonderful medicine, and I shall always recommend it to my friends."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

The Mysteries of Stage Realism.

Of course you've often seen the stage storm and a most realistic thing it is. You see the cosy room and its glowing fire and its general atmosphere of cheerfulness and warmth, made all the more so by the howling of the blast outside. Suddenly the door is flung open, you catch a glimpse of the Arctic world and the wind rises to a positive shriek as the hero or villain of the piece rushes in, pursued by a hurricane of snow, and bangs the door in the face of the baffled storm-fiend whose clutches he has just escaped.

It is all so terribly real that you insensibly shiver in your warm seat and draw your coat closer round you; and yet if you only knew how it is all produced you would—well, you would smile. Where, for instance, does that wind come from, with its wonderful crescendo from the faint sigh to the shrieks and howls of a lost spirit? Let me introduce you to the genius of the storm, a gentleman who is busy turning a small wheel with projecting paddles which, as they revolve, scrape against a tightly-stretched piece of strong silk. As he turns very slowly the wind just sighs gently, like a child in its sleep; faster, and the gale grows, the wind sobs and moans and whistles, until it rises, as the wheel goes swifter and swifter, into a tumult of shrieks and howls, as if all the demons of the air were roused to a frenzy of fury.

The snow? Oh, that's simple. The landscape, of which you catch a shivering glimpse is made Arctic by plenty of cotton-wool and a paste brush, and the flakes which cover the hero from head to foot and melt and trickle under the genial warmth of the fire are so many splashes of soap-suds.

As for the fire which glows so warmly, it is merely so many electric lights shining through a medium of ruddy gelatine-paper; while the smoke by no means comes from the fire, as it ought to do, but from a concealed receptacle containing a little quicklime and hot water. There you have it all—shrieking wind, drifting snow, and glowing fire realistically produced in the most absurdly simple way.

You can make the lightning zigzag in blinding flashes, and the thunder roll and rattle equally easily. You can get capital thunder by rolling a canon-ball or two along the floor overhead, or by shaking a piece of sheet-iron pretty much as you would shake a duster.

But hark! There's the rain pattering on the roof—I knew it would come; and so did a certain man behind the scenes, who has poured a pound or two of split peas into a barrel. Inside the barrel, you must know, are several cross-pieces of wood, against which the peas rattle in their descent—that's the rain—and when they get to the bottom the turns the barrel and the pattering continues while wanted.

Ten Per Cent. Dividend.

The shareholders of J. J. Lacey Co. Ltd., held their fourth annual meeting yesterday and declared a ten per cent. dividend. The company has added a new department to its activities, that of trading on the New York Curb. Last year's directors were re-elected with the addition of Mr. R. J. Manning, as Treasurer.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boldly. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said just to humor her. Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

COMPLETED NEXT WEEK.—It is likely that the extensive repairs which the Sagona is undergoing, will be completed by the end of next week. The steamer will then resume her service on Cabot Strait.

Mothers who delight in keeping their children neatly and well dressed will welcome this Splendid Showing of Girls' Hats.

There is an attraction in the simple youthful lines that can hardly be expressed. "Simply delightful," many mothers have said—and they are, in every detail. Material is of quality that you'll approve; colour in design is typical girlish, and there is a quaintness in the style and trimming effect which is altogether irresistible.

And yet, though so pretty, the designers have not forgotten to make them practical, and herein lies their greatest attraction. Mothers of girls should most certainly see this splendid showing.

Mainly About People.

When Miss Frances Alice William Lawrence, an American heiress and relative of the John Jacob Astors, married Prince Andre Poniatowska last December, her allowance was $7,000 a year. She has been forced to increase it $19,000 a year, for the prince's income is but $1,000 a year as an officer in the French army. Somebody must pay expenses.

When William W. Culver, his son, Arthur Culver, and his grandson, Wesley W. Culver, were present at the meeting of Washington Lodge in Manchester, a new Masonic record was made, for never before in New Hampshire had three generations attended the same lodge meeting. The elder is 86. The oldest Mason in New Hampshire is Luther W. Paul, of Manchester, who is 102 years of age.

Champ Clark is 70 years of age. When any one criticizes his candidacy for President of the United States because of age, he points to Clemenceau, who is 79, just out of the French premiership; Gladstone, England's premier, at 82, and Palmerston, when he was 80; Speaker Cannon as spry as ever at 83. Champ Clark was a hired hand at 9 and a school teacher at 16.

John L. Cope, who is to lead another expedition to the Antarctic, and who, it is reported, may attempt to fly to the South Pole, was one of the earliest to foresee the tremendous possibilities of the heavier-than-air machine. Once, while watching an aviator make a trial flight of a few hundred yards in one of the first aeroplanes to be built in this country, a spectator standing by remarked: "Of what use are these powder-driven box kites, anyway?" Like a flash Cope turned on him. "Of what use is a baby just born?" he retorted.

ANOTHER BRITISH CHAMPION ARRIVES IN U. S. A.

New York, March 30.--Tommy Noble, British featherweight champion, and his wife were among the passengers on the Lampart and Holt liner Vestris, arriving yesterday from Liverpool. Noble is seeking a match with Kilbane.

$20,000 TO BOX IN DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., March 30.--An offer of $20,000 to Georges Carpentier to meet Battling Levinsky, a light heavyweight in a ten-round bout here, was announced today by Max L. Barbour, president of the Wolverine Athletic Club. Mr. Barbour proposes to stage the match either at Havin Field or the State fair ground.

WILDE GETS DECISION FOR $3,000.

New York, March 30.--Judge Luther A. Campbell, sitting in the Hudson County Circuit Court in Jersey City, this morning handed down a decision in favor of Jimmy Wilde, the British flyweight champion, in the legal proceedings that cropped out of the action of George Dwyer, when he attached $3,000 of the receipts of the recent bout between Wilde and Mickey Russell in Jersey City.

At the time Mr. Dwyer served the papers on Promoter Dave Driscoll, who staged the Wilde-Russell bout, which caused the tying up of $3,000 of the purse, he announced that he decided on the course he took, claiming that was the sum due him for acting as the American representative of Wilde since he arrived in this country.

A FIGHTER DE LUXE.

New York, March 30.--Callers on M. and Mme. Georges Carpentier became convinced yesterday that the French champion is a prize fighter de luxe. Their flower filled sumptuously furnished six rooms constitute the best suite in one of the city's newest and best hotels.

From France they brought a valet, a maid, a secretary, a manager and a trainer and thirty-five trunks. In addition to nation Appollo-like gifts, Carpentier is enabled to be a bead brummel by the following wardrobe, according to the Evening World: 'One hundred silk shirts of various hues, stripes and dots, with collars to match.

Twenty overcoats, three fur coats and one fur robe.
Seventy-five suits.
Seventy-five pairs of shoes.
Two hundred neckties.
The wardrobe has been found to be insufficient for American purposes and Carpentier is rapidly increasing it by visits to Fifth avenue shops.

JAMES J. CORBETT IMPRESSED.

New York, March 31.--James J. Corbett is positive that the contemplated fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier will not be a one-sided affair. In fact, he believes that the Frenchman possesses the necessary qualification to contest in the ring for the heavyweight championship of the world.

This was the opinion expressed by the former heavyweight champion after sparring for a few minutes this afternoon with Carpentier at the home of Jack Curley at Great Neck, L. I., where the French champion spent the day with Mme. Carpentier. It was the first time that Corbett had ever seen the pugilistic sensation of Europe.

"I want it distinctly understood that I am not attempting to pick the winner of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight," said Corbett, when asked regarding his impressions of the Frenchman, "but Carpentier showed such wonderful form during the brief period I was sparring with him that I am convinced he will prove a worthy opponent of Dempsey, and, we all know how great a fighter Dempsey is.

Carpentier is heavy enough to battle with any heavyweight for the championship. Of course, a man to aspire to the title has to have a certain amount of weight behind him, but a man of Carpentier's weight is heavy weight.

"Carpentier weighs 173 pounds and would probably step into the ring against Dempsey at that weight. Dempsey's weight is about fifteen pounds more than that. When I fought Peter Jackson in 1891, I weighed, 168, five pounds less than Carpentier.

"However, I do not want to create an impression that I do not believe that Dempsey is clever and that I am picking a winner for the fight, but what I want emphasized is the fact that I believe reports that the battle will be uninteresting because Carpentier is not heavy enough are not well founded.

"The brief sparring I did with the Frenchman demonstrated to my satisfaction that he will not be a ready target for any man's blows. Carpentier knows how to handle himself, and in less than sixty seconds of our little affair he showed that he has the art of side-stepping and ducking down to a science."

Manager Descamps accompanied the French champion and Mme. Carpentier to the Curley residence. A group of the theatrical and sporting fraternity of Great Neck were guests of Curley and witnessed the sparring exhibition. Corbett is several inches taller than the Frenchman.

German Government Anticipates Another Revolution.

Plot Has Extensive Ramifications-- British Miners Accept Twenty per Cent Increase -- Railway Chiefs Present Ultimatum to Brotherhoods -- Canadian Anglicans Refuse to Change Name of Church.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER REVOLUTION.
PARIS, April 15. The German Government has decided to place guards around the Government and other public buildings, and has sent for fifteen large tanks and twenty armoured cars, because of the rumours of a new attempt to overthrow the Government for the purpose of forming an alliance with Soviet Russia, according to advices from Berlin to-day.

RAILROAD MANAGERS' ULTIMATUM.
NEW YORK, April 15. The Railroad General Managers' Association of New York, to-night delivered an ultimatum to the "Big Four" Railroad Brotherhoods, giving them until noon Saturday "to have their men report for work." After that time it is stated the railroads "will themselves open their books for a period of twenty-four hours, ending at noon Saturday for such men as register during that period and who are acceptable, will be taken back into service retaining their rooster fight. In any event, "the ultimatum added, "the railroads retain the right to refuse to reinstate or employ certain employees who have shown during the period of trouble by violence, seditious utterance, intimidation or other well defined means, an unfitness for further railroad service."

REACTIONARY INTRIGUES ATTRACTING ATTENTION.
BERLIN, April 15. Revelations regarding continual reactionary intrigues are attracting great attention in the Berlin press. The Tageblatt to-day publishes an interview with Lord Kilmarnock, British Charge D'Affaires, in which the latter is reported to have said, "I am convinced that a new military attempt would provoke the greatest indignation in England, and the British Government would repudiate it decisively. Every chance Germany has of obtaining help in the way of food, raw materials and credit, would be spoiled by any acts of violence."

CANADIAN ANGLICANS RETAIN OLD NAME.
MONTREAL, April 15. The question of changing the name of the Church of England in Canada came up in the Anglican Synod here this afternoon. A resolution expressing opposition was moved and carried by a large majority. Lt.-Col. Renouf, in seconding the motion, said that if the name were changed, it would be one more link broken between the Mother Country and Canada.

FLOATING DOCK TONNAGE RECEIVED FROM GERMANY.
PARIS, April 15. The Council of Ambassadors at today's session received the report of the naval experts with regard to German floating dock tonnage to be handed over in compensation for the scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow. It developed that a total of 192,000 tons of this material had been discovered by the commission. A basis for the distribution of this tonnage among the Allies was adopted by the Council. The reply of the Hungarian peace delegation with regard to the peace terms submitted by the Allies to Hungary was taken up and further considered. Discussion of the reply, however, was completed at this session. The Council has decided to ask for a report from the international commission appointed to supervise the fixing of the boundary between East Prussia and Poland in the Marienwerder district, before deciding the date of the plebiscite to be held in that district under Articles 96 and 97 of the Peace Treaty.

Fashions and Fads.
Sailor hats are popular. Handbags are very elaborate. Some blouses are very simple. A new hat fabric is straw cloth. Flowered toques are in high favor. The short sleeve is still in vogue. The bib sash is frequently seen. The set-in pocket is very fashionable. Colored chenille veils are in great favor. Marabou neckwear is greatly in demand. Soft colors are preferred for children. Organdie still holds the center of the stage.

"Sally in Our Alley" is Historical Piece.

No name in musical history has attached itself more securely to romance than that of Henry Carey. He was born about 1655 and was reputed to have been the natural son of the Marquis of Halifax, George Saville. For many years it was believed that he was the composer of "God Save the King," but this has been disputed many times. He did, however, during his eccentric career, write numerous operettas and plays. He is best remembered, however, by his song, "Sally in our Alley," which was not only immensely popular in its day—but was said to have been the great vocal hit in that famous pastiche "The Beggar Opera." His tale of how he was inspired to write that famous piece is very refreshing when read at this date. "A shoemaker's apprentice making a holiday with his sweetheart, treated her with a sight of Bedlam, the puppet shows, the flying chairs, and all the clean-cities of Woodfields; when, proceeding to the Farthing Pie House, he gave her a collection of buns, cheese cakes, gammon of bacon, stuffed beer and bottled ale, through all of which scenes the author dodged them." This was that inspired a song which has lived for two centuries. Addison was a great admirer of the piece.

Odds and Ends of News.

James Weatherbourn, a Lancashire (G. B.) man, was acting as M.C. at a dance at Addlestone, when during a waltz he collapsed and died.

Martin Plestina, a Chicago wrestler, has a neck so thick that he wears a sized 22 collar, which he can slip over his head without unfastening the collar.

The British Admiralty has sold about 40 patrol boats of the fast trawler type to private owners for conversion into cargo boats of about 600 tons.

The governors of the Aldershot, G. B. hospital have decided that none of the nursing staff work more than six days weekly. Increased wages have also been granted.

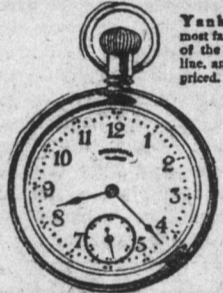

Freaks of the recent Western tornadoes are reported. In Elgin, Ill., a tree five feet in diameter was uprooted, while 25 feet away a slender sapling stood firm and strong. The Elgin chief of police tells of a baby that was lifted from the floor where it had been playing and laid on a bed, where it was found crying by a frantic mother, who had seen the roof of her home go sailing away.

More than two weeks ago two large St. Bernard dogs, pets of virtually every child in the neighborhood, disappeared from the home of their master, William Tanner, in Hathor, Penn. They have just been found in the bushes on a farm half a mile away, the younger dog held prisoner in a steel muskrat trap. A pile of bones and scraps of refuse was lying near the trap, and it appears that the trapped dog's mother had been bringing food to it for a fortnight.

On the 16th visit to the warehouse of the Fair Chance Distillery at Gransville, Md., thieves took the last drop of 45 barrels of liquor left at the distillery at the time war-time prohibition became effective. It is believed that the distillery was the most robbed whiskey warehouse in the United States. It is located in a rather lonely spot. The whiskey taken is valued at between $30,000 and $40,000.

There is wealth just now in old wine glasses in England. Prices have been rising for the last six months—and as much as 365 pounds was paid in an auction-room last week for one Jacobean wine glass. Three dealers who are specializing in old glass wanted it, and the rest of a large audience watched the battle with wonderment that grew as the bids mounted. The "boom" in wine glasses began with the sale of a Somersetshire collection a few months ago. These glasses, purchased at 2 shillings, 6 pence apiece, in the lifetime of the vendor, fetched from 40 to 60 pounds apiece. Kensington and Knightsbridge have found something like a corner in wine glasses.

The Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race

The honors of the Oxford and Cambridge boat race, or "The Boat Race," as is the all-sufficient designation in the United Kingdom, have certainly been fairly equally divided. When the war suspended the event, in 1914, of the seventy-one races which had then been rowed, Oxford had won thirty-nine and Cambridge thirty-one, with one dead heat. The win by Cambridge on Saturday, March 27, reduces Oxford's lead to seven.

The history of the great race extends, of course, much further back than seventy-one years. Indeed, it was as long ago as 1829 that the first inter-varsity race took place. This was decided on the upper reaches of the Thames, at Henley, and resulted in an easy win for Oxford. There was no race between 1829 and 1836, but, in the latter year, the crews met again, this time over a new course, extending from Westminster to Putney, a distance of about five and one-half miles. For the next four years the same course was used. Then, for two years, there was no race, and when the crews again met in 1845, it was on the present-day course, which measures just four miles and two furlongs. From 1845 down to 1914, the great annual athletic event took place each year without a break. Its resumption is one more of the many reminders to the Londoner and to many others of a return to the ways of peace.

On Saturday, March 27, everything that goes to make up a boat race day seems to have been present, the same huge crowds, lining banks of the river, jamming the bridges, camping out in barges, punts, and house boats, packing into grandstands, and dispersing themselves slyly on the roofs of houses and other buildings. Even the weather was typical boat race weather. For although the race, in its long history, has been rowed in all manner of weathers, snow, rain, or shine, yet the light rains and strong breeze of Saturday, to those who remember many boat race days, were still typical.

As to the race itself, it was unambiguously a good race, but the win had the best of it, practically all the way through. For although Oxford shot away strongly at the start, and succeeded in taking the lead, the gain was only momentary. Cambridge soon forged ahead. At the mile post the Light Blues were a full length to the good, and, in spite of everything that Oxford could do, this lead was more or less steadily increased. It was when the crews were opposite the famous Duke's Meadows that Porritt, the Oxford coxswain, took the courageous, if rather despairing, course of cutting right across to the middlesex side of the river, in order to get the shelter of the right bank, which Cambridge had enjoyed from the start. The slack water, however, proved of no avail. Oxford had to come out again into midstream in order to shoot Barnes' Bridge, and, thence onward, the Light Blue's gain was rapid. When the Cambridge boat finally shot past the mark to victory, at the Ship Inn, Mortlake, she was a good four lengths ahead.—Christian Science Monitor.

Does Prohibition Prohibit ?
 The Case for the Moderates.

(By WARWICK SMITH.)

ARTICLE IV.
 ONE METHOD OF CONTROL.

In my last article I promised an explanation in detail of the plan proposed by myself and those associated with me. I shall mention alternative details, so that the public may consider which would be the best methods. We are committed only to a rationing scheme. We are ready to listen to any reasonable method of attaining that end. In fact we invite public discussion on the question. We want all the light that can be thrown upon this subject, and we shall give careful consideration to any reasonable suggestions.

First, I would have only one importer and wholesaler and that would be the Controller, and he should not be allowed to retail a single drop. He would bottle everything imported in casks, and make each liquor of a certain standard. The liquor should be good—neither wishy-washy nor yet overproof. It should be properly aged and bought subject to a test for purity. It should be put up in bottles or flasks of a standard size and each container should be sealed with his seal. It should be an offence to break the seal before the container is handed to the consumer. The liquor should be sold at a reasonable price sufficient to cover expenses.

The Controller should be subject to removal on a memorial of the Board of Control, and so should the dispensers, who will be paid a salary to dispense the liquors. There should be dispensers all over the country, who will receive neither profit nor commission but only a salary. This salary will come from a general fund to be created from the profits on liquor. The price of every container will be printed on the label by the Controller. Any breach of the law will result in fine, imprisonment, dismissal from office and disqualification of the dispenser ever again to hold any position in the Civil Service. The dispenser will have to account for every container received from the pension of license. I would do this so as to oblige him to use discretion as to the class of man he treated. Of course sales by individuals should be forbidden. After a certain number of convictions for breach of the law, the name of the offender should be published.

In my next article I shall give my reasons why I think such a law would work.

Aged Newfoundlander Died at Montreal.

Mr. John Hurd, the aged father of Adjutant Hurd of the Salvation Army here (Moncton, N.B.) succumbed to heart failure at Montreal on March 17th.

With reference to the death of Mr. Hurd who was in his 80th year, mention might be made of his early life. Mr. Hurd was born in Water Street, St. John's, Newfoundland on September 16th, 1840. His parents died when he was quite young, so that he only acquired a common school education, but with great memory and a strong body leaving school when eleven years of age, he set out to face the world, and shift for himself.

During the next seven years he served an apprenticeship, learning the carpenter trade, after which he was employed by the Newfoundland government to travel around the Island and do government carpenter work where needed.

In those days there was no railway beyond Harbor Grace, so that much inconvenience was met as he travelled from and to distant parts of the Island—his work being then the building of light houses along the rugged coasts of Newfoundland. Dog teams were utilized over the fettered waters and white mantled earth while in summer and fall, boats were utilized where possible.

The deceased's work as a lighthouse carpenter, yet stands as a monument to his memory, some of which, are yet a boon to the Mariner. Aside from the light houses the deceased built many Newfoundland public buildings, including hospitals and jails, being in the employ of the government for some thirty years. After the fire in St. John's on July 8th, 1892, which destroyed over a thousand buildings and left many homeless, the deceased took contracts to rebuild sections of the burned city. In the spring of 1894 he left St. John's and went to Montreal, being later employed in the Montreal street railway shops completing twenty-five years of honest and faithful service for the Montreal Railway Company last July and owing to ill health was compelled to give up his work last November 10th and was given a pension on March 4th, passing away two weeks later on the 17th ultimo. The deceased was of a robust nature and had never known a day's illness with the exception of minor colds and a sprained hand working and making an honest living since twelve years of age.

Deceased is mourned by his wife, now seventy years of age; three sons and three daughters and nineteen grand children and one brother. The family consist of William Hurd the eldest son, a marble polisher in Montreal, Adjutant Hurd, travelling financial representative of the Salvation Army for the Maritime Provinces with headquarters in this city, and Arthur A. Hurd, who is an employee of the T. Eaton Mail Order house, Moncton. The daughters are Miss May Wilson, a widowed lady of Boston, Mrs. Sadie Bonner, of North Sydney, another widow who lost her husband in the early days of the Great War and Mrs. Albert Hale of Montreal. The surviving brother is Mr. Murray Hurd of 1545 Mance Street, Montreal.—Moncton (N.B.) Transcript, April 4.

Fr. Duffy on Profanity.

Father Duffy—and if you have ever heard of the Old Sixty-ninth New York Regiment, which fought at the 165th in France, you'll know who Father Duffy is—talked on swearing and other army habits the other day.

"I noted an odd thing in France," said he. "City boys swear less than do country boys. Most of us, I fancy, had always thought the reverse to be true. But a regiment of boys from the farm can swear a flickering halo around any city regiment I ever saw."

Not that Father Duffy was unduly censorious. The boys swore mostly for emphasis. The country boy, he thought, swore more than the city youngster because he was in the habit of handling horses and mules. After watching army horses and army mules the chaplain thought he understood.

"It wasn't regular swearing," said he. "Just O. D. stuff."

On A Change of Menu.

His name is Jimmy, and he is classed as a bad boy in his western home. Not really bad, perhaps—mostly spoiled. Among other bad habits he has picked up that of excessive profanity. Last week his father shipped him to the home of a well-to-do friend here in the hope that some of the rougher edges might be rubbed off.

"Jimmy," said his father, "has always had his meals served in the old fashioned way, with everything on the table at once. But his first dinner in the city mansion happened to be of a formal sort. As the meal progressed Jimmy grew redder and redder. Finally he burst out in a flame of indignation.

"Luxury" taxes in the United States apparently had little effect in curbing extravagance, for the New York World estimates that since the armistice that country has spent $5,500,000,000 on "luxuries," including automobiles, $1,400,000,000 on jewelry, $275,000,000 on theatres, $507,000,000 on fumeries, $174,000,000 on musical and sporting goods, $370,000,000.

Obituary.

MR. JOB COATES.

In referring to the death of Mr. Job Coates, of Upper Gullies, which sad event occurred on the 15th inst., we feel the regret sincere and poignant, which always animates one when referring to the demise of a life long friend and neighbor. Mr. Coates had attained the ripe age of 77 years, and though he was in the "sere and yellow" yet retained the kindness of character, the affability, the bonhomie which endeared him to a host of friends in Conception Bay and other parts of the Dominion. Always a man of splendid constitution and fine physique, Mr. Coates succumbed to a short illness, contracting a severe cold which induced death within a week. Mr. Coates was a man of striking personality, a type of the old-time fisherman-farmer, now sadly depleted in Newfoundland. He was one of the most popular, progressive, industrious and prosperous farmers in Conception Bay, and in a section where farming may be said to be the chief industry. Energy and enterprise were outstanding features in the make-up of a man remarkable even among his contemporaries, and this despite the ills naturally engendered by advanced age. Besides his other industrial activities Mr. Coates operated, and with marked success, for over a quarter of a century, a blacksmith shop near his residence in the Gullies. Unobtrusive and unassuming in demeanor, the deceased withal was a man of remarkable intelligence and this trait in his character was appreciated by the deference given to his opinions on the part of old and young. The deceased was a prominent member of the Anglican communion, an earnest church worker and good Christian, and was tolerant and broad-minded with those who differed from him denominationally. By the practice of the virtue of economy by honest toil he earned a goodly competence for himself as the smiling farmlands which ripened under his energetic care bear witness to. One of the oldest of the inhabitants of the South Shore, his passing will be deeply regretted, not merely by his immediate and bereaved family and relatives, but by all the people of Conception Bay. Hospitality was a predominant trait in the character of this worthy man, and his home was deservedly popular as a summer resort for city residents, many of whom received kindly treatment and bounteous liberality at the hands of Job Coates, including our distinguished Chief Justice, Sir William Horwood. Mr. Coates lives to mourn him a faithful life partner in the person of his sorrowing wife, and one daughter, Miss Jessie Coates, a splendid type of Newfoundland womanhood at its best, and who is now practicing her profession as a trained nurse in one of the largest medical institutions in the United States. A brother also survives, Mr. Peter Coates, besides several other relatives. The body will be embalmed pending the arrival home of Miss Coates, to whom has been bently broken by sympathising friends the sad and unexpected passing of a dear parent. And now one can but say peace to the ashes, eternal repose to the spirit of this worthy man. The Telegram advances its respectful and sincere condolence to the grieving wife and friends.

"Life's work well done,
"Life's race well run,
"Life's Crown well won."

Generous Donation.

At a meeting of the G.W.V.A. held last evening, Miss May Furlong and a number of other ladies tendered a cheque for $1000 which amount they had collected for the purchase of photographs of soldiers and sailors who had made the Supreme Sacrifice. The photographs are to be hung in the G.W.V.A. Rooms.

The collectors with Miss Furlong were Misses Mary Morris, Marguerite Mitchell, Eleanor Clouston, May Higgins, Elizabeth Howley, Margaret Beavis, Margaret Clouston, Alice Byrne, Kathleen Keegan and Stella Shea. The presentation was made by Miss Furlong to Lt.-Col. Bernard, president of the G.W.V.A., who replied expressing the gratitude of himself and the Association. The ladies mentioned formed a quilting party before Christmas, and provided a large number of quilts for the needy poor, after which they took up the work of collecting for the object mentioned above. The meeting closed with cheers for Miss Furlong and her associates.

"The Nfld. Quarterly."

The Spring Number of "The Newfoundland Quarterly" is a credit to its publishers. Many articles of interest and value will be read by subscribers, while the photographs, reproduced, are of an even better class than usually found. A warm eulogy of Hon. R. A. Squires, written anonymously, makes interesting reading. "Some of my Experiences in the Domain of Politics," by an ex-M.L.A., is well written and deserving of special mention.
