"I Can Now Do My Work Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box, and continued taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXXV.

"How I wish, my sweet Iris, you would come home for the wedding! I am sure you would enjoy yourself. Mr. and Mrs. Bardon have been to see me. It was a trial at first; but I grew interested in the millionaire, and his wife did her best to conciliate me by presenting me with an Indian shawl, which I accepted, and so overwhelmed her with delight. Fulke seems very happy. I caught him the other day looking at that lovely little photograph of yours, and he said to me, 'How beautiful she is, mother! But I must have been made to think she could have loved me. I was full of vanity and conceit in those days when I asked her to marry me. No wonder she could not tolerate me. Only a man who has made his mark in the world will ever do for Lady Iris.' If you will come to the wedding you will make us all very happy."

She read the letter aloud to her father, who was delighted with the contents.

"It is a most sensible marriage," he said. "A clever, quiet girl like Marie Bardon will make Fulke an excellent wife; she will keep him in order—and, after all, that is what most men want."

"You are very complimentary to your sex, papa," returned Lady Iris, laughing, but he saw that his home news had touched her strongly.

"Will you go to the wedding, Iris?" he asked. To his surprise, she burst into tears.

"Papa, I want to ask you something. Do not be angry with me, my heart is broken. I want you to grant me a favor."

"I will do anything for you, Iris; you know that. You could hardly express a wish which I would not grant."

"I want you to let me live all my life here at Fenton Woods, never to ask me to go to Chandos or to London again, to let me live here always with you papa."

There was such a ring of passion and pain in her voice that he could not refuse her. He knew that opposition at present would have been worse than useless. He laid his hand lovingly on her head.

"You shall do as you please, my darling," he said. "But you are very young to give up life."

"I am young in years," she answered, sorrowfully; "but I have suffered so much that my heart is old."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"What a difference it makes to the whole county when Chandos is empty!" said Richard Bardon to his son.

The desire of his heart was accomplished; his son and daughter had both done well—they had brought him into some degree of relationship with one or two of the noblest families in England. When Marie's letter reached him, he turned to his wife.

"Julia," he said, "I shall shut my eyes and die happy now."

"It will be much better," returned his spouse, "to keep them open and live."

"I mean that, when I do die, I shall shut them happily enough. Here is Marie going to be Lady Clifarde of Clyffe Hall. Let me tell you, Julia, that with the fortune I shall give her she will be one of the first women in England."

"I am sure of it," said the proud mother; "but it is not even that which pleases me the most. My daughter is going to marry the man she loves. I always knew that she loved Sir Fulke. Whenever she saw him that sweet calm face of hers used to turn very red, and she trembled like a leaf when he spoke to her; but, to tell you the truth, Richard, I never thought he would marry her."

"Why, my dear Julia?" asked the millionaire, knowing well that in matters like this women saw much further than men.

"Because he seemed so entirely taken up with that proud Lady Iris Fayne. She was very proud; but still I liked her. My son John," continued the good woman, "has married well; but he is not what I call a happy man. I am sure he also loved Lady Iris."

"He has done much better than if he had married Lady Iris. We should never have put up with her pride, Julia."

"I do not think we should. After all, our children have done well."

The Heir of Bayneham

Lady Hutton's Ward

CHAPTER I.

See, I have brought the money, Magdalen. Now tell me, is there anything more I can do for you? Do not ask me to alter my conditions. I cannot do so. If I take Hilda now it is for life; and I exact from you a solemn promise that you will never seek her again, never ask for her, but remember always that for her own good you have parted with her until you meet in another world."

Magdalen Hurst clasped the little child still more tightly in her arms. Her lips lingered lovingly on the fair little face, the golden curls, and the sweet lips.

"My darling will be a lady," she said, "a grand lady; she will have dresses and rare jewels; she will be rich and honored; but my heart will be empty, and she will have no mother; she will never know me, never love me."

Lady Hutton took from her purse gold and bank-notes and laid them upon the table.

"The sum we agreed upon is there, Magdalen," said Lady Hutton. "It is growing late, you had better say good-by to Hilda. We must leave you now; write to me when you reach your journey's end. I can only hope your future may be happier than your past has been."

A low moan came from the white lips still touching the child's face. Then Magdalen Hurst rose and took from her finger a thick, plain gold ring.

"Lady Hutton," she said gently, "may I give this to Hilda? Will you let her wear it?"

With her own hands Lady Hutton fastened the ring to a little chain the child wore.

"I promise you," she said, "Hilda shall always wear it. I will put it on her finger when she is old enough."

It was a plain ring, made in a peculiar way: the single word, "Fidelity," was engraved upon it.

If Magdalen Hurst could have foreseen all that would arise from the fact of her daughter's wearing that ring she would have risked her life sooner than have given it to her.

"Good-by, Magdalen," said Lady Hutton. "I trust you will have a prosperous voyage. Never let a fear for Hilda's welfare cross your mind; she will be to me as my own child. Bid her farewell. See, the sun is setting; we must go."

She turned aside while the unhappy mother held her child in that last close embrace. In that minute Magdalen Hurst died as loving, suffering woman die. Death when it came held no pang half so bitter as that which rent her heart now. She covered the little wondering face with eager, passionate kisses; she pillowed the golden head on her breast and bent in untold agony over it.

"Hilda," she whispered, "my own little child, I shall never see you again. Say 'good-by,' and 'God bless you, mother.'"

The child repeated the words, then clasped her arms round her mother's neck.

"Let me stay with you," she cried. "I love you best."

In one moment it seemed as though the mother's soul must leave her. Then she clasped the child, murmuring words that Lady Hutton never forgot. To the last her mournful eyes followed the little figure, drinking in, as it were, every movement, every action. The child passed forever from its mother's home. She gazed after it, watched the sunbeams shining on the sweet face and golden hair, watched the stately lady take the little one in her arms and dry her tears, watched the child as it smiled, and then knew herself forgotten. With a cry that rang out in the clear summer air, startling and shrill, Magdalen Hurst fell to the ground, and the sunbeams played upon her white, unconscious face; while the child from whom she had parted slept softly and sweetly in Lady Hutton's arms.

CHAPTER II.

Five years before the opening of our story there was not a happier or more beautiful girl in Scotland than Magdalen Burns. Her father was head gamekeeper to Sir Ralph Erskine, her mother had been Lady Erskine's maid. They married and lived in a pretty cottage close to the woods of Brynmar; they had one little daughter, called Magdalen, to suit some fancy of her mother's. On the same day that little Magdalen was born at the cottage, a daughter and heiress was born at the Hall. Lady Erskine was however dangerously ill, and her babe was nursed by Mrs. Burns. As the heiress of Brynmar grew up she retained a great affection for her foster-sister. Lady Erskine offered to send little Magdalen to school, but the sturdy gamekeeper refused. He was quite willing, he said, for his daughter to learn reading and writing, but he did not want a useless fine lady about the house. Magdalen must learn to wash, to brew, and to bake; then, at some future day, she would make a good, sensible wife. What, for instance, could be better for her than to marry one of the young gamekeepers, who might perhaps in time succeed him? He was not ambitious, this honest Donald Burns.

The Dramatic Story of Kenilworth.

"Who was the mysterious lady who was kept so closely guarded in Cumer Old Hall, near Oxford town," was the problem which engaged the attention of the villagers on the night of November 20, 1571. Had they known it, she was none other than Amy Robsart, daughter of Sir Hugh Robsart, a Norfolk knight, and she was being kept a prisoner in hiding by the powerful Earl of Leicester, who had fallen in love with her, abducted her, and married her. The reason she was in hiding was that, although Leicester loved his bride, she stood in the way of his great ambition, which was to be virtually King of England as the husband of Elizabeth, who had singled out the handsome and courtly Dudley for special favour. The town of Kenilworth was in a fever of excitement. For a whole week Leicester was to entertain his Queen on a scale of regal prodigality never before seen in England. He was jubilant, for his ambition was near realization, the only bar being his secret wife. To make matters worse, Elizabeth insisted on seeing Amy Robsart, of whose fame as a beauty she had heard, but whom she imagined to be the wife of Varney, Leicester's Master of Horse. Whilst strolling through the park, Elizabeth chanced across Amy, and the latter disclosed the fact that she was secretly wedded to Leicester. The Queen was furious, and commanded Leicester to be arrested for high treason. When the now terrified Amy discovered that she had placed her husband's life in jeopardy, she hastened to give the lie to her previous assertion, and denied being Leicester's wife, so that the Queen's anger was quickly appeased. Leicester now realized how nearly his ambitions had been wrecked, and though he was madly in love with his wife, he decided she must not stand in the way of his acquiring that upon which he had set his heart. The scoundrelly Varney was not loath to take advantage of his master's weakness, and very soon Amy was being carried off to Cumer Place, and to her death, with Varney for gaoler and executioner. He knew the secrets of the Hall well, and conducted her to a little room at the top of the Hall, access to which was guarded by a trap door so placed that, when its supports were removed, anyone stepping on it would be plunged into a deep well in the lowest vault of the castle. On the following day the supports were withdrawn, and the villainous Varney, imitating the voice of his master, called Amy to come forth, and thus the unfortunate girl went to her doom. It will never be known whether Varney was afterwards conscience-stricken at his crime, but he was found dead the next morning in his room, an empty poison vial by his side.

Sound Sentiment at Lausanne Conference.

The Christmas Message Will be Theme of Discussion -- United States Will Actively Participate -- Marine Horror in Gulf of California.

THE EAST CONFERENCE OPENS. LAUSANNE, Nov. 21. Peace that peace on earth would result from the labors of the Near East conference was voiced by speakers at the brief opening session to-day. The sentiment was voiced first by the Swiss Federalist Hans, of the Swiss Federalist League, who presided over the opening plenary meeting, and it was taken up by both Lord Curzon and Ismet Pasha. The prospects of United States activity in the conference, and the possibility of the United States joining the conference, were discussed by the foreigners appearing at the launching of a new program in Europe, and the presence of a strong delegation from Japan, gave world wide significance to the conference. Benito Mussolini, the new strong man of Italy, drew eyes as he moved to a place not far from the white-headed ex-Greco-Venezian, Venizelos sat in the center of the conference, and Ismet Pasha that the Greek army, with its modification had systematically defeated the Turkish countryside and made a million innocent Turks

CLYNES LEADS OPPOSITION.

LONDON, Nov. 21. John Robert Clynes was recognized as leader of the Opposition in Parliament to-day, after the members of the Commons had scrambled in a good natured but intense rivalry to get favorite seats. Premier Bonar Law was given a great ovation by his supporters and Clynes by his. When the Black Rod summoned the members to the House of Lords the Prime Minister went first, but was joined immediately by Clynes, and they shook hands and walked out together. The significance of this was accepted as settling what had been a controversy since the election. The Commons re-elected J. H. Whitley as Speaker, and adjourned for the State opening on Thursday. While the Government hopes to find a safe seat for Lt.-Col. Leslie Wilson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury, Winston Churchill is not planning an early return. As soon as his health permits, he will visit Rome, expecting to be absent several months.

ISMET IN UNCOMFORTABLE SITUATION.

PARIS, Nov. 20. Ismet Pasha, chief Turkish delegate at the Lausanne Peace Conference, has again been instructed by the Anglo-Greek Assembly positively not to yield on the question of capitulations, according to available information reaching Paris, sent in view of the probability that one of the biggest battles of the conference will be fought over the point of the Turks insisting that foreigners be amenable to Turkish laws and Courts and of the other nations declaring for their Nationalism to be accorded extra-territorial rights. Ismet is declared to have been warned in no uncertain terms that he will be hanged if he yields on the capitulations.

Make Gillett's Lye your household assistant. Use it for making soap for washing dishes, for cleaning sinks, for washing greasy pots and pans. It cleans and disinfects.

Just Folks.
By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE RICHES OF THE PAST. These are the things, you'll laugh at by and by-- The little cares and worries of the day. The time the baby wandered far away And you were sure she'd walked away to die; You'll tell it over many a happy night, Describing the excitement and the fright.

"When I was younger," you will proudly say, "I didn't have a dollar to my name! Into this town in ragged clothes I came. As green as the grass, to fight my way."

And proudly you'll describe to all you meet Even the patch upon your trousers' seat.

The past is rich with humor and delight, It is a mine of hardships glorified. Of many a weary day and troubled night Which chuckling Age recalls with honest pride; Though it seemed cruel as its price you paid, You'll tell with joy the first mistake you made.

These are things you'll laugh at by and by-- The burdens and the terrors of to-day. For hand in hand goes laughter with the sigh, And mirth remains when trouble flies away. Care's but a trower patch at which we'll smile, And proudly boast of in a little while.

Cost Never Considered

WHEN PERFECTION OF DETAILS DEMANDS UNUSUAL EXPENDITURES.

"Straight From Paris," With Clara Kimball Young, The Latest And Best Example.

The motion-picture enthusiasts realize how much on little scenes lasting but a few minutes, actually represents in the money it costs the producer to film. In the latest photodramatic masterpiece of Clara Kimball Young, "Straight From Paris," we have a convincing example of the pains and expense that producers go to in an effort to reproduce life with literal faithfulness.

As the title indicates, "Straight From Paris" presents Parisian life in all its splendor and gaiety. To give the spectator a vivid picture of the Parisian shops and French life, the director of "Straight From Paris" had to go to Paris for his background. It would challenge the ability of a layman to estimate the expenses involved in such an effort. The story was laid in France, then there was no question that the company must move there, even for the sake of but one picture. This explains the striking realism of the French atmosphere with which "Straight From Paris" abounds. The luxury and lavishness of the Parisian flavor of the entire photoplay. So infectious is the "smell of the soil" which this brilliant picture emanates that anyone seeing "Straight From Paris" will come out of the theatre with the feeling that he had actually come "straight from Paris" himself. See it to-day at the Majestic.

Miss Major Goes "Over the Top."

The vast audience at the popular Star Movie last evening simply went wild over the performance of this talented lady at both performances. Without any disparagement to any previous violinist, Miss Major is about the best that has yet appeared in this city. In her violin solo, "Sovynon," she showed herself to be a most finished artist. Her execution bringing forth rounds of applause. In her rendition of "I Sing - It While Dancing," she showed to be an agile dancer, as whilst playing this number she also danced. This is a novelty which has never been performed by any artist in this city, and it immediately won for her the highest approval of the audience. On to-morrow night Miss Major, in an Irish costume, will dance an old-fashioned Irish Reel. Last evening's performance will be repeated this evening, and those who did not see it will no doubt do so to-night.

New Beauty Came

A story that millions know

Millions of people have gained new beauty through a new teeth cleaning method. You see them everywhere. Their teeth now glisten, and they show them when they smile. If you don't know that method, make this test.

Combats the film It is film that makes teeth dingy--that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film. Under old methods, very few escaped them. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Old ways failed No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So much film remained to night and day threaten serious damage.

But dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. One acts to erode film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use. A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants were embodied in it.

Fights acid, too Pepsodent brings other much-desired effects. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth before they ferment and form acids. Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Each use of Pepsodent gives them manifold power. These combined effects mean a new era in dental hygiene. Careful people of some fifty nations now share it, largely by dental advice.

You'll be amazed The effects of Pepsodent are quick and apparent. They will amaze and delight you. A short test will convince you that this method is essential, both to you and yours. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how thick white as the film-coats disappear. Then judge by what you see and feel. Cut out the coupon now.

Chinese Murder Trial. The King vs. Wo Fen Game.

(Afternoon hearing.)
The hearing of the charge of willful murder preferred against Wo Fen Game in connection with the shooting of three occupants of a Chinese laundry on Murray St. in May last was resumed before the full bench and a special jury at 2.30 p.m. yesterday. Up to recess hour in the forenoon two witnesses, Messrs. Parsons, photographer, and Noel, Crown Lands Surveyor, had been taken. The first witness to be put on the stand in the afternoon was Mr. Chesley Noseworthy. The witness lives next door to the laundry in which the shooting took place. He said that on the night in question at about 8 o'clock he heard what he at first thought was an explosion. He went to his doorway and saw a man with his coat buttoned up pass from the direction of the laundry. Looking up the street the witness said he saw the form of a man on the ground. At a distance of about 40 feet from the laundry, investigating he hurried to St. John's store and asked someone to phone for the police. He then proceeded to inform Dr. McDonald. Returning towards his home he met Sergeant Nugent and informed him of the occurrence. He then went back to Dr. McDonald, and both proceeded to Murray Street. He did not go into the laundry, but stood in his own doorway. Being questioned the witness said that when he heard the shots he knew they were from a revolver and not the noise of an explosion as he at first supposed.

Prosecutor—"Do you know any more of what occurred in the laundry?"
Witness—"No, but the following morning I picked up a cartridge near Saunders' place."

Prosecutor—"Was it a cartridge or a bullet?"
Witness—"It was an empty shell. A boy named Holland picked up a cartridge, which he gave to me and I handed to Inspector Noseworthy."

Prosecutor—"Could you recognize the cartridge?"
Witness—"The witness on being shown the exhibit said it was just like the one picked up."

Cross examined by Mr. L. E. Emerson witness said he had been living on Murray Street for 22 years and that Chinamen had a laundry there for quite a while.

Mr. Emerson—"Did other Chinamen have it before the murdered men?"
Witness—"Yes."

Mr. Emerson—"Do you remember when the accused went to live there?"
Witness—"No."

Mr. Emerson—"Did you ever hear noises on the premises?"
Witness—"No except the Chinamen at their work and the noise of their conversation."

Mr. Emerson—"At what hour do you have tea?"
Witness—"Usually six o'clock."

Mr. Emerson—"Do you, remember what sort of a night it was on which the shooting took place?"
Witness—"It was quite stormy."

Mr. Emerson—"Was the door of your kitchen closed that night?"
Witness—"Yes."

Mr. Emerson—"When you heard the noise was it not like the falling of some object?"
Witness—"No, absolutely no."

Mr. Emerson—"Is it possible that you were mistaken as to hearing the first shot?"
Witness—"No, there were five shots—one and then a hesitation and then 4 in succession."

Mr. Emerson—"Did you hear anyone running after the first shot was fired, or doors banging?"
Witness—"I heard moaning, but it did not last long it came from the other side of our partition. It was not in the nature of a scream, and then I heard shuffling."

Mr. Emerson—"When you heard the shuffling, what did you think it was?"
Witness—"I thought some one was trying to get away in a hurry, and was tripping over some object."

Mr. Emerson—"How long were you in the front door before you saw the man pass?"
Witness—"About a half minute. I thought the man was a Chinaman, but I did not notice if he came out of the laundry. The man had his hands in his pocket and was going at a 'jog trot'."

The witness in answer to another question said that his wife and his mother told him not to go into the laundry as it might be dangerous to do so. He further stated that as far as he knew Sergeant Nugent was the first to enter the laundry but he could not tell how long after the shooting he did so.

Mr. Emerson—"Did you see Kim Lee enter the place?"
Witness—"I could not swear I did, but I saw a Chinaman come out with him."

Mr. Emerson—"Is this man now the proprietor of the laundry?"
Witness—"I do not know."

A short re-examination by Mr. Winler followed, when the witness stated that the shooting occurred after all the shots had been fired.

Mr. Justice Johnson—"You saw someone whom you thought was a Chinaman pass you, which name had he in his pocket?"

Justice Johnson—"Where did this man who had his right hand in his pocket come from?"

Witness—"He might have come from the laundry, or he might have come down the street, he could have come out of the laundry unnoticed by me."

Inspector Stephen Noseworthy being called to the stand on being shown an exhibit said it was an empty cartridge handed to him by Mr. Chesley Noseworthy on May 4th, the day after the shooting.

Sergeant John Nugent being called stated that on May 3rd he was doing duty east on LeMarchant Road. At about 8.45 p.m. he was informed by Mr. Chesley Noseworthy that a man was lying down outside the Chinese laundry on Murray Street. He found the man 48 feet from the laundry door. He was wounded and was unconscious. When he lifted him up he saw that the man had only a shirt and pants on. He had on no shoes and had nothing on his head. Constable Stranger, said the witness, then came along and I went into the laundry. Directly in front of the door of a partition in the shop I saw another Chinaman lying on his back, both arms were extended and his legs were drawn up. There was blood on his mouth and a wound on his breast. He had nothing in his hands.

Prosecutor—"Did you make further examination?"
Witness—"Yes. I found another Chinaman in a room reached by a short alley-way. He was lying in a clothes basket. In this room the stove was going and all the irons were on."

A photo of the room was shown the Sergeant by the prosecutor. The witness recognized it, and said it was just as the scene appeared. Continuing the witness said he found wounds on the man's breast. He was dead.

Prosecutor—"Did you make further examinations?"
Witness—"Yes. I searched upstairs in four bedrooms, but found no one there. I looked under the beds and everywhere."

Prosecutor—"Did the laundry show signs of a struggle?"
Witness—"No everything looked to be in order, and all the clothes were hanging around as they would be usually."

Questioned about what he did after his examination of the place the witness said they first brought in the body of the man lying on the street, and then phoned for the Superintendent and the Inspector General. They came within 10 minutes and during that time Hong Moon a Chinaman came into the laundry. We kept him there as we thought he might know something of the shooting. Two hours later all the bodies were removed to the morgue.

Mr. Emerson, (cross examining)—"You say it was 8.45 when you were informed of the occurrence. Mr. Noseworthy places the time at 8 o'clock. How do you account for this difference?"
Witness—"I do not know. There was a mistake made about the time in taking my deposition, I had it corrected when I read it over."

Mr. Emerson—"Were the lights on upstairs in the laundry when you made your examination?"
Witness—"Yes, I had my flash light and used it to examine under the beds."

Mr. Emerson—"Was there a lavatory in any of the rooms and were there trunks there?"
Witness—"I am not certain."

Mr. Emerson—"Did you search any trunks?"
Witness—"No, I am not certain. We turned down the bed clothes, and went together, the Inspector General and I, through the various rooms. I don't remember finding any bullets."

Mr. Emerson—"While you were making your first examination upstairs, was there anyone on guard down stairs?"
Witness—"No."

Mr. Emerson—"How far is it from Casey Street to Murray Street?"
Witness—"About three quarters of a mile."

Mr. Emerson—"Did Hong Moon when examined at the laundry say anything?"
Witness—"No. He came in while I was there, and went to speak to one of the dead Chinamen but I did not know what he said."

Dr. John McDonald remembered the night of the 3rd of May. I live on LeMarchant Road. A man knocked at my door and called me from my home to go down Murray Street where a man was lying on the street. He ordered him to get a policeman, a few minutes later he returned and I went with him. I did not know what time he was then. The man was lying about thirty feet above the laundry. I examined him and found he was dead. I did not know how long, neither did I look for any wounds. A constable told me another man was in the building. When I went in I found a second Chinaman lying on his back. I also examined him and found that he was dead. I noticed a black spot on the left breast, the officer said "He must have been hit with a fat iron."

Witness said "No. Firearms." The officer who was searching in another room said there was another man in an inside room. I examined him and found he was also dead. I made a thorough examination of the bodies. Sometime later I was told that another man was lying at Dr. Robert's house. I proceeded there, but found that the man had been removed. Witness stated he knew the first Chinaman. Had been treating him medically for about a week. Before being cross-examined, witness stated that he had been treating Hong Loeh about six weeks previous to the tragedy. The Chinaman was not seriously ill. When he went to the laundry a policeman was there.

Patrolman J. O'Neill, sworn and examined. I am Superintendent of Police. I remember well the night of May 3rd. The evening of the tragic event I received a telephone message informing me that a shooting affair had occurred at the Murray Street Laundry. Upon arrival there I found Sergeant Nugent in charge, while three Chinamen were dead, lying on the floor. Dr. McDonald was there at the time. Witness gave a description of the dead Chinamen and the position they laid in, also stated in his evidence what clothes they had worn. From the appearance of the bodies and the wounds, it was apparent that the assassin fired at close quarters. His impression was that the shots were fired from the outside of the shop. The third victim was lying in the washroom. There were wounds in his right and left sides. In the opinion of the witness the wounds were caused by one bullet going right through the body. He searched closely, but could not find the bullet. No weapon could be found in the laundry. A thorough search was later made by witness and Sergeant Nugent. Upstairs there were three rooms, which were examined, but no weapon could be found. When he saw how serious was the occurrence, he notified the Inspector General. He also notified Kim Lee, who came that night. There was a Chinaman named Hong Moon in the shop when he arrived there. He came from Hamilton Street. He was searched and questioned but nothing bearing on the case was found on him. He was allowed to go. Interrogated by Kim Lee, who acted as interpreter, Hong Moon stated he had just dropped in casually and was totally unaware of the killings until he arrived. On instructions from the Inspector General the bodies were conveyed to the Morgue. He sent a police escort with the undertaker, and also went himself. At the morgue a post-mortem examination was held by Dr. Anderson. Dr. Grievie assisted him and two policemen were detailed to attend. Deft. Walsh also assisted. A guard was placed on the laundry, with instructions that no one be admitted without orders from the Inspector General. Dr. Anderson reported that he could not locate any bullet in the body of So Ho Kai. Witness visited the laundry and searched for the bullet. He found it on the floor, on the left side just where the body had lain. The bullet was marked and carefully sealed. No other bullets were found near him. In his opinion this was the bullet which went through So Ho Kai, (bullet was produced and identified). Later witness went with the undertaker to prepare the bodies for burial. Their clothes were kept in the Morgue. Although a careful search was made nothing was found in the pockets. Cross-examined by L. E. Emerson, witness thought that So Ho Kai was shot from the shop. There were about ten men tramping around in the shop and the snow from their feet probably blotted out any blood marks. He did not go to Casey Street when the Inspector General was summoned there.

Head Constable Byrne, remembered the night of May 3rd. Investigating the affair he viewed the surroundings and position of the dead man, and also examined the upstairs to see if anyone was alive in the building. The next day he had a photo taken, interior and exterior of the building. (Photos here put in evidence.) He took an inventory of the things found there, which included two boxes of cartridges. The first room, on the landing was Hong Loeh's. The second was Wo Fen Game's. He found one box of cartridges in a trunk in room No. 3, which was Hong Kim's room. Very little clothing was in No. 2 room. Photos of the Casey Street laundry were taken by Parsons. At Casey Street he was given a dipper which had two bullet holes in it, and was also given a bullet; he was also given the bullet that was extracted from Wo Fen Game. The box of cartridges in No. 3 room were 38 calibre, (box produced.) Cross-examined by L. E. Emerson, witness stated there was nothing disturbed in the rooms upstairs. There was about $7 or $8 in the cash drawers. He found $70 in No. 1 room. No money was found in No. 2. In No. 3 room the sum of $14 was found. In room 391 was found on the premises. Duplicate drafts were found in No. 1 room that totaled a sum of $2,000. A very old duplicate draft was found for $60. Very little clothes was seen in No. 2 room. The bed clothes in No. 1 and 3 room were good, but were not so plentiful in No. 2. A search was made for a weapon which would suit the cartridge found, but none could be found. All the revolvers and guns were collected from the Chinamen in town. Seven were thus taken. He did not know if any were of 38 calibre. There was one, an automatic, which took a large bullet. Several bottles of machine oil were found in the Murray Street Laundry. When he took over the keys of the Murray Street laundry there was no one left on guard, as when he went away he always locked up and took the keys with him. The key was an ordinary one and fitted a common lock. The dipper was produced by a Chinaman at Casey Street, who was demonstrating how Hong Wing held it.

At 5.40 adjournment was taken until 11 o'clock this morning, when the evidence of Head Byrne will be continued.

Yesterday afternoon Messrs. A. E. Hickman, Sir John Croable and Capt. A. Keen, the latter buying for another firm, made offers of $4.50 for Labrador fish. Enjoyable Gathering at Grenfell Institute.

MANAGER WATSON MAKES AN ANNUAL REPORT.

Members of the Grenfell Association of Newfoundland, the Institute Committee and the Ladies' Auxiliary were guests of Manager Watson and chairman Capt. George Holmes at the House Committee at the Institute last night.

His Lordship White, and Mayor Cook, and a number of other friends were also present. The Institute has recently been on a new lease of life, in all its activities. The interior has been redecorated and the whole building presents a very creditable appearance.

It was for the purpose of inspection that last night's gathering was arranged. On arrival the visitors were greeted by Manager Watson and Supt. Holmes, and showed to the Gymnasium, the first place visited was the Gymnasium, where Mr. Holmes senior gave a very excellent display.

A Fox news reel was also shown. There the party were taken to the Bowling Alley where a match was played between teams comprising Messrs. Eric Bowring and Mayor Cook, Messrs. L. E. Ousebridge and R. J. Job, the latter team winning the match.

A visit to the swimming tank and a display of swimming and diving by members of Mr. Holmes' team. The Library, which is packed with some fifteen hundred volumes, comprising fiction and standard works, was visited, and the quarters were also inspected.

The party expressed themselves highly pleased with the up-to-date manner in which the institution is now managed. After the inspection of the various departments, the party retired to the Girls' Living Room where tea was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Capt. Whiteley presided.

In a few words, he congratulated Manager Watson and Supt. Holmes on the efficiency that was everywhere apparent. He then called upon Mr. Watson to give a brief report of the activities of the Grenfell Association.

MR. WATSON'S REPORT. Mr. Watson gave a very interesting report, and in his opening remarks, announced that the deficit of $5,600 the running expenses of the Sea-side Institute for last year, had been covered by the local Committee and outside sources, and the Association had received a grant from closing down buildings, the amount which would have been allowed to go further in the year, however, the deficit was much less, due to the fact that the Institute is being made a revenue producer. A Gymnasium class of 200 members has been formed. Two Bowling teams with 12 teams are playing a considerable number of matches. Boarders are on the register. Grenfell Hall has been opened for public lectures, concerts, dances, all of which will mean greater revenue. The Girls' Department has been made more attractive and probably the most up-to-date of its kind on this side of the Atlantic.

NEW ORPHANAGE COMPLETED. Mr. Watson also referred to the new orphanage, in connection with the Association, in connection with the Northern activities. All orphanages have in operation along the coast this year, and $80,000 had been spent in connection with the orphanage's undertakings. The new orphanage at St. Anthony was now completed. It had been erected at a cost of $100,000 and had accommodations for 50 Orphans and staff. Educational programme had been started out during the season, with the assistance of 22 school teachers spent from six to ten weeks on the coast. Two nutrition units were working, one in Northern Newfoundland and the other on Labrador.

Medical and nursing staffs comprised a Doctor, Nurse and ten trained workers. At least thirty students from the British Isles and 13 boys, were attending school in Canada and getting an advanced training. In the case of all other students, the same exception, they will be returning to the coast when finished.

THE ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN. The endowment campaign conducted by the Grenfell and the Committee has been a remarkable success, and the objective of one million dollars is now being reached, with every prospect of the full amount being secured. Industrial activities in the form of the manufacture of toys, mats, baskets, have been increased this year, and to the extent of $10,000 have been sent to Canada and the States. It is greater than in any previous year, and it is hoped to even do better in the coming year.

TO REPLACE STRATHCONA. A letter from Dr. Grenfell, who is present in the Old Country, contains the information that the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, had offered to present free of charge to the Grenfell Association, the steamer "Alpha" to replace the "Strathcona". This gentleman has recently lost. This gentleman is disabled five hundred miles from here, inbound from Yokohama, according to radio, and a tug has been sent to her assistance.

rous offer will be considered at the meeting of the Board of Directors, which is being held in New York on December 9th. The Alpha is a splendid ship, 140 feet long and is much larger than the ill-fated Strathcona. Doctor Macpherson, C.M.G., served on the Alpha during the war, when she was being used as a hospital ship in the North Sea, and he speaks highly of her. The address was listened to with very close attention by all present, and the affair was thoroughly enjoyed.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CLIMBING DOWN. LAUSANNE, Nov. 21. Ismet Pasha, and his associates of the Turkish Delegation to the Peace Conference, appear less confident than when they arrived, and a feeling is growing that they will reduce their program materially, in the hope of restoring peace and re-establishing trade relations with the outside world. It is evident they are coming to realize it was Greece, and not the great powers of Europe, they defeated in the recent campaign about Smyrna.

TWO SCORE DEPARTED. BELFAST, Nov. 21. Ulster authorities have deported from Belfast forty Protestants, whose presence they thought detrimental to the city's peace.

SHIP ON FIRE RETURNS TO PORT. NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21. With fire raging in her coal bunkers the British cargo steamer Asian of the Leyland Line docked here late yesterday afternoon, racing back two hundred miles to this port following the discovery of the fire. The ship had left here Thursday night for Liverpool.

GLAD TO BE CLEAR OF HIM. CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21. Officials of the Sultan's Palace received a Radio from Mohammed, from Malta, inquiring after the welfare of his wives, all of whom he left behind. A message sent back said all well and happy. Turkish newspapers assert he took away five hundred thousand dollars in currency and gold plate valued at a quarter of a million, and as much in jewels.

OFFERED CARDINALATE. ROME, Nov. 21. Pope Pius has offered a red hat to the German Jesuit, Father Ehrle, former Librarian at the Vatican, but the offer is not yet accepted.

THE DOLLAR IN DISTRESS. VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 21. The Canadian steamer, Bessie Dollar is disabled five hundred miles from here, inbound from Yokohama, according to radio, and a tug has been sent to her assistance.

U.S. SHIP SUBSIDY BILL. WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.

Republican members of the Merchant Marine Committee have agreed on an amendment to the Ship Subsidy Bill, designed to offset losses to United States passenger ships, by reason of prohibition against the sale of liquor. The amendment provides that such ships shall be paid directly by the government for carrying mail instead of turning the amount into a revolving fund, out of which all companies would receive compensation.

OUR ATTORNEY GENERAL DINED. MONTREAL, Nov. 21. Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C., Minister Justice in the Newfoundland Cabinet, was a guest of honor at a dinner given by the Newfoundland society at the Engineers Club, here, last night. C. E. Whitten, Secretary of the Newfoundland society, was chairman. Mr. Warren gave a brief address, referring optimistically to the present outlook at home, and to prospects for future development of the colony's resources.

EARTH SHOCKS IN ALGIERS. ALGIERS, Nov. 21. Two great shocks to-day, following fire tremors on Sunday evening, sent the inhabitants from their homes, near Cavalaire, into the open country and damaged the principal buildings, so that they are crumbling, but no other damage is reported.

LABOR WILL MAKE IT LIVELY. LONDON, Nov. 21. Parliamentary writers have already decided that the House of Commons will be livelier than its predecessor, with Opposition furnished by the Laborites. Attention is called to the radical sentiment of Laborites from the Clyde districts, as already evidenced by outcries from the gallery. Whether Clynes will retain the post of leader will be decided at a meeting of the Labor Party to-day, but the position of Labor as the Opposition seems assured, after an incident yesterday, when the Premier took Clynes with him in the heading a procession to the Lords.

Lasker Raps Dry Rule.

"GREATEST BLOW THAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED TO MERCHANT MARINE."

CHICAGO. — Across a banquet board, A. D. Lasker, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, told U. S. Attorney General Daugherty and the other banqueters that the attorney-general's recent ruling that all ships entering American waters must be "dry" was the greatest blow that could have happened to the American merchant marine.

"I can prove," said Lasker, who with the attorney-general, spoke before the audit bureau of circulation and its guests, "that Mr. Daugherty is the greatest law maver of all time. Moses only made the Red Sea dry." Lasker said that while he opposed the saloon, he spoke rather as a wet nor as a dry, but from the standpoint of the Shipping Board.

"I want foreign ships to come in, as is their right, wet," said Mr. Lasker. "Forty per cent. of the passengers are foreigners and will not subscribe to our views." The principal profits of ships coming to American shores is the emigrant traffic, Lasker said. Emigrants regard wine and beer as much as food as they do bread and water, he asserted.

He called attention to one result of the Daugherty ruling. "The American ship Resolute was to make a Mediterranean cruise, he said, and 300 reservations had been made. Within 72 hours after the decision, 64 cancellations were received, including one from the head of a great New York bank, who was to pay $38,000 for his accommodations.

The Shipping Board chairman said he entered the government service hoping to show that government ownership was possible, but added: "Government ownership is the poison ivy in the garden of industry. Policy dictated by expediency of votes, with losses paid by the government and no responsibility is a blight on the faith of the people. It is hypocrisy in government. I plead with you to help get American out of this morass: America owns 1500 steel ships that cost millions. They are operated by the government and private ownership is withering under it. Under the ship subsidy bill we can add a loss of $50,000,000 a year in 30 months." Daugherty, in his address, touched only briefly on his "dry" decision. "I know there is a great difference of opinion," he said, "as to the question of liquor used and carried on all ships. I did not have that question before me as attorney-general. That has been passed on by the people and the supreme court. I was obliged to follow the law. The question was a naked, legal question."

The Use of Journalists as Spies.

A controversy has been raging in British journalistic circles for some weeks and which influential publications like London "Truth" refuse to drop, throws a sinister light on present conditions in Russia. Incidentally it takes a highly reputable news syndicate, The Associated Press of the United States, in a rather unfavorable light. Some considerable while back, Robert Collins, European Editor of the A.P., sent to Russian an American woman journalist, Mrs. M. Harrison, as one of the correspondents. Whether Mrs. Harrison was guilty of serious indiscretions, or whether the motive was blackmail, or whether the event was dictated by a purely vicious desire to insult an American citizen is not clear. At any rate Mrs. Harrison was arrested and held in durance by the Bolshevik police. Apparently Mrs. Harrison did not trust the Washington Government to secure redress for the representative of so powerful an organization as the Associated Press, for she proceeded to make a deal with the police whereby she was to act as a spy on British and American sojourners in Moscow, while ostensibly acting as A.P. representative.

As time went on it became necessary that she should "deliver the goods." It was a case where a victim must be found; and Mrs. Harrison, it is alleged, adopted a practice peculiar to informers since the days of Titus Oates and probably long before his time of accusing an innocent person. The victim selected was Mrs. Stan Harding, a British Press Correspondent, who Mrs. Harrison secretly charged with being a spy and an emissary of enemies to the Bolshevik regime. The result was that Mrs. Harding, who was perfectly innocent of such dealings and had come to Russia with permission of the Lenin Government was arrested and grossly maltreated. It goes without saying that her money and personal belongings were stolen. Your Bolshevik is no exemplar of brotherly love at any time, but he is especially valiant when he has a defenceless woman at his mercy. British agents intervened as soon as her plight was known and she was released; but she was long enough in custody to find out who her accuser was.

Journalists the reverse of Hecate like "Truth" and the "Manchester Guardian" state that the chain of circumstantial evidence fixing guilt on Mrs. Harrison as the instigator of the atrocity, is complete. The latter admitted that she had acted as a spy for the Bolsheviks and the officials of the Russian government in granting the release of Mrs. Harding, stated that she was the informer who had laid the charges. They were apparently quite indifferent to the future welfare of their spy once her usefulness was gone.

On the facts becoming known, the British Institute of Journalism took up the case of Mrs. Stan Harding with the Associated Press, on the ground that Mrs. Harrison had not only been guilty of an act of gross perfidy toward one of her own sex, but had violated the spirit of professional honor on which all decent journalism is founded. After a good deal of sparring for time, Mr. Collins, European representative of the A.P. allowed the intimation to get about that Mrs. Harrison had been dismissed. On being pressed for documentary proof, he changed his attitude, and pooh-poohed the charges as mere "gossip and hearsay." He refused to accept "circumstantial evidence" (a singular piece of humbug, as coming from the lips of an experienced newspaper man) and said he would not accept the word of the Bolshevik officials who admitted having employed Mrs. Harrison as a spy. It is understood that she is still in the service of the A.P. and has been transferred to the Far East.

If the A.P. were living up to the traditions which have long been associated with its name the mere fact that Mrs. Harrison had served as a spy for a foreign government while in its employ should have been sufficient to ensure her dismissal, but the added fact that in all human probability she was guilty of perfidious lying about a fellow correspondent, must besmirch any organization that employs her. The whole episode cannot fail to impair the usefulness of the Associated Press as a distributor of European intelligence, so long as it continues to condone the dishonorable dealings of one of its accredited representatives.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

Should Tag Days be Abolished.

(Vancouver World.) "Tag Days" won a vogue during the days of the war when war charities were in urgent need of funds. No one begrudged either time or money. Conditions are different to-day. With decreasing financial results for the efforts of the public spirited collectors who stand guard at the street corners almost every Saturday, there is also a note of annoyance in some quarters at the city council for its easy consent to requests for tag days.

A workman writes to the World protesting against a system that makes almost weekly levies on salaried workers of the lesser-paid classes. Many women who are urged to serve as collectors find it hard to refuse. Is there no better way of collecting funds from the charitably minded?

San Francisco has adopted the community chest plan for the collection and distribution of funds for charity. This means that there will be one big campaign every year to raise the necessary money to carry on the welfare work of the community. It means elimination of incessant campaigns by the various organizations and institutions carrying on social welfare work.

Extravagance.

AMONG COLLEGE STUDENTS DEPLORED.

LONDON—Much criticism has been directed against the faculties of Cambridge and Oxford, as being responsible for the extravagant life lead by many of the undergraduates of the universities. The subject gained wide publicity recently when a student committed suicide because of financial difficulties. Dr. Farnell, vice-chancellor of Oxford University, in his address at the opening of the fall semester, said he had to admit that complaints, occasionally lodged against undergraduates of extravagant living, were not altogether without foundation. He blamed the local shopkeepers for giving students credit, and urged that students be limited in the amount of money allowed them. Dr. Farnell pointed out that the days of "pendents," when undergraduates were allowed to have parties in their rooms and to be without restrictions out of school hours, had gradually come to an end, and he said that nowadays cases of drinking among students were almost unknown.

College Fraternities Unite

IN MODERN CLUB BUILDING.

NEW YORK—College fraternity men are the latest New Yorkers to turn cliff-dwellers. The high price of lodgings, which has driven many families from private houses into apartment houses, has caused members of various fraternity clubs to seek a common roof. To meet this need the Fraternity Clubs Building, a sixteen-story structure, is being erected at Madison Avenue and 33rd Street. Members of the various clubs, nearly all of them college graduates, will have their own private club quarters and sets of sleeping rooms, but while they may lounge and slumber under the Greek emblems of their own brotherhood they will eat and exercise in a communal dining hall and gymnasium. The house committee will name a representative of each participating club. National headquarters of fraternal fraternities will be located in the building. Serving on the advisory board of the housing committee are Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; Major-General Sir L. Bullard, T. Coleman DuPont, Iron P. Harrison, Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General; Scott of State Hughes, Joseph E. Ransome, Dr. Ernest M. Strong, Gustav Underwood and former Governor Charles S. Whitman.

"I Was a Fright!"

Nothing I Could Take Made Me Any Fatter."

"Up to the time I was seventeen years old, I believe that I was the most unattractive and unhappy girl that ever lived. Honestly, I was a fright. I was the most unattractive looking creature you ever saw. I was thin as a reed—straight up and down. My height was five feet nine inches and I weighed exactly ninety-one and one-quarter pounds. No matter what kind of clothes I put on I looked like a fright. I was clumsy and I used to stand before the looking-glass and study my features. I found I had a good nose, good eyes and a good mouth, but my cheeks were so thin that my face looked like a piece of parchment stretched over it. But nothing I could do could make me any fatter. Men never even glanced at me. When they did, they merely gave me a passing, amused or pitying look—an expression which I am sure meant, 'Why is a being like that allowed to live?' I used to lie awake at night wondering at a time when my eyes were so many beautiful girls in the world and I was so hideous. I

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

LIFE WOULD BE ENDURABLE IF—

Said some old cynic once upon time (I think it was Lord Byron, it sounds like him), "Life would be endurable if it were not for its pleasures." Said a modern dinner table last night to me at the time when I was talking to a group of people who wouldn't try so hard to have a good time, most of them they have a better opinion, says he and Lord Byron (if you Lord Byron) meant much the same thing.

Do you think they were right? Perhaps before you answer this, you might be fairer to the modern cynic as he expands his statement as to his life.

On the Move.

People think I'm queer because I am tired of the chasing around after things that do not seem worth while. I have tried the way they tell me to do it, but I find myself thinking I'm having a good time if I'm not chasing around and away from home, but what they're doing.

Think of the times you've been just because other people were and you thought you wanted to, because someone said, "Come on, let's go!" when you were bored and would have had a lot better time at home with a good book or a game with the kids.

Planning too hard for good times when you're away. The best times you have when you feel like doing nothing and just get up and do it. The time you feel like it, instead of trying to do it a week from Tuesday and then not feeling like it and then you think you planned it.

The Eternal Picnic.

One reason I hate picnics is picnics and that sort of thing.

Don't tell me I don't know. I've been at plenty of picnics. I don't know what other people did in the past, but I really don't want to do it. And I've seen a lot of people start off enthusiastically and then when things don't turn out the way they're supposed to, they have a rotten time, they get cross and wish they hadn't gone. I've heard them. And they go swearing they'll never go again.

A Great Day For Lincoln

In the year 1800, King John of England sent a third invitation to render homage to Lincoln, addressed to William the Lion, King of Scotland, and at the same time, Gruffudd ap Rhys, of South Wales, received a safe conduct to enable him to appear; and both Kings came to Lincoln on November 21, with most imposing retinues; so that the old city must have been filled to overflowing. King John brought with him pretty nearly the whole collective Barons of England. Three Archbishops, thirteen Bishops—English, Scots, Welsh and Irish—ten Earls, and seventeen Barons, are named as being present, besides Gruffudd of Wales, and Roland MacUthred, Prince of Galloway. By entering the city, John—like Stephen before him—braved the old tradition which forbade Kings to set foot in Lincoln.

"The first crowned head that enters Lincoln's walls, His reign proves stormy and his Kingdom falls."

But John even ventured to enter the new Minster—some writers limit the superstitious to the cathedral, but earlier ones extend it to the whole city—then in course of construction, and offered a gold chalice at the altar of St. John the Baptist, on November 22. John then went outside the walls and upon a hill to the west of the city he received the homage of the Scottish King, who pressed for the cessation of Northumberland, Cumberland and Westmoreland, but John put him off, promising an answer at Whitenside. The third day at Lincoln saw the Scots depart, and the sad procession arrive that brought the remains of the sainted Hugh of Avalon, Bishop of Lincoln, who had died in the Old Temple, Holburn, London, on the 17th of the month. When the funeral procession reached Lincoln, the whole assembled concourse went out to meet it, and the King and the Chief Barons took up the coffin, and bore it on their shoulders to the Minster door where the clergy received it, and carried it to the choir to be entombed next day at the altar of the Baptist. John stayed in Lincoln until the 26th, when the final reconciliation with the Clertolans took place. On landing in October, John, being still furious with them, had issued orders forbidding any of their animals, the pasture within the Royal forests, a severe blow at the beginning of winter. By the advice of Hubert Walter the Clertolans Abbot came in a body to plead their cause with the king. Hubert managed matters with such tact that John revoked his hostile orders, apologized for his past conduct, and promised by way of amends to form a new abbey—Beaulieu, in the New Forest—for the Order.

Gresham's Law.

Sir Thomas Gresham, who died on November 21, 1579, aged 80, was not only one of the great merchant princes of the Elizabethan era but also served his sovereign for more than twenty years as "Royal Factor" at Antwerp. He built the original Royal Exchange, and established and endowed Gresham College. It was a tribute to his diplomatic abilities that he was allowed to hold his post at Antwerp throughout the reign of Mary, while he was no less successful in the sphere of his own business as a banker and goldsmith conducted by him for many prosperous years in Lombard Street. Indeed, he was known in his day as "the greatest merchant in London," and he has acquired a permanent niche in the history of economics by his advice to Queen Elizabeth, relative to the withdrawal of base money from circulation, his dictum to the effect that "bad money drives out good," having been called "Gresham's Law" by the later economists. The phrase, which since has passed into proverbial currency, was first employed in the proclamation of 1560 respecting the devaluation of base silver coin, and the principle is: "When by legal enactment a Government assigns the same nominal value to two or more forms of circulatory medium, whose intrinsic values differ, then it is certain that payments always, as far as may be possible, will be made in that medium of which the cost of production is least, the more valuable medium tending inevitably to disappear from circulation." The truth of this contention is well illustrated to-day by the way in which paper has ousted gold from most markets of the world.

BY REQUEST.

"Why, Mary, what on earth are you doing with all the broken dishes on the shelf?"
Mary: "Well, ma'am, you told me I was to replace every one I broke."

PAID FOR.

There are more gorgeous cars than mine, with greater lustre do they shine, they pass in gaudy gangs; with silver doodads here and there I see them on the thoroughfare, but have no jealous pang. For many cars are bought on time, and all the panoply sublime means creditors in view; every time the owners drive some fourteen miles, or maybe five, there is a payment due. My ancient bus that swings it creaks and knocks and groans; but none can say, "So strike me blind, now hand me forty bones." It is embarrassing to ride in pomp and circumstance and pride along the Great White Way, and find that creditors in horde are climbing on your running-boards to bone you for their pay. Far better cool a rusty boat whose horn has a discordant note, whose cylinders all mias, than journey in a noble van you bought on the installment plan, for debt destroys your bliss. And what is true of motor cars is true of plug hats and cigars, of prunes and gingerbread; the greatest bliss a mortal knows is in his bosom when he owes no man a single red.

Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

HE KNOWS.

"Well, Tommy, your sister has given herself to me for a birthday present. What do you think of that?"
Tommy: "That's what she did for Mr. Brown last year, and he gave her back before Christmas. I expect you'll do the same."

Russia and Sweden Coming Together Financially.

STOCKHOLM.—A new Russian effort to establish closer financial and commercial relations with Sweden is seen in the arrival in Stockholm of Aron Scheinman, head of the Russian State Bank. Mr. Scheinman has declared that the bank which he heads may place its foreign assets and clearing funds in Swedish banks, providing a safeguarding agreement can be arranged between the two countries. He has been here, he says, to inaugurate the financial co-operation between Russia and Sweden. He considers Sweden one of the safest countries for the deposit of money, owing to its independent position and its well established conditions. The Russian has acquired 26,000,000 gold rubles through its foreign exchange operations, and at the end of the present year will add 50,000,000 to the total figure. The main purpose of the bank is to finance state industrial enterprises.

Obituary.

JOHN W. KINSELLA.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

A wide circle of friends in every part of the country will hear with feelings of the keenest regret the sad news of the death of John W. Kinsella, which occurred at his residence, King's Bridge Road, last evening, after a short illness, fortified by all the rites of the church he loved so well. John W. Kinsella was born in St. John's 68 years ago, being a son of the well-known Mr. John Kinsella, blacksmith, a native Irishman, who came to this country from the County of Wexford in the early part of the past century. The deceased received his education at St. Bonaventure's College in the days of the illustrious prelate, Rev. Dr. Mullock, and as a youth was commended for his high ideals. Some time after leaving College, he entered the General Post Office, on the 18th January, 1877, and step by step he advanced to the responsible position of Superintendent of the Parcel Post Department in that institution—thus he was one of the oldest officials in the public service at the time of his demise. His honesty was proverbial, and his sobriety and moderation in all things were his outstanding characteristics. He was generous to his Mother Church, according to his means, and charitable to her less favored children. In his family he was a model head. It is any wonder that such a father brought up a family of God-fearing children and worthy citizens. John Kinsella was an omnivorous reader, and a man of profound literary ability. He possessed a pointed wit and lively imagination; his communication was rapid, copious and interesting; he possessed a vein of humor rich and luxuriant. He was a storehouse of anecdote—a reservoir of good things—a lively chronicle of past times. The principles of honesty and integrity marked his character through life, and being united with gentlemanly manners and an amiable disposition greatly endeared him to his friends and a numerous circle of acquaintances. His literary productions, both in prose and poetry, published in the Telegram and other newspapers and magazines would fill volumes, were of a very high order, and widely perused throughout the country. When mail-officer on the S. Grand Lake and other ships, some years ago, his communications to the Daily News were both luminous and instructive, and few people could describe outport life more interestingly than the subject of this brief sketch. He had great power of portraying character; also possessed shrewdness and wisdom, a strong imagination, rich humor, deep pathos and a loving fondness for the beauties of Nature. John Kinsella was a man of strong Catholic faith and high intellectual qualities, and as a member of Holy Church he not only practised his religion, but most zealously championed it. His faith and piety were no less remarkable than his rare gifts of mind. As generous as he was humble, his knowledge and time were always at the disposal of others. Mr. Kinsella was one of the oldest members of the Benevolent Irish Society, and always took the deepest interest in the welfare of that time-honored institution. The deceased leaves a widow, one son, three daughters and numerous relatives and friends to mourn their sad loss, to all of whom the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. "Eternal rest grant to him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him. Requiescat in pace."

Mr. J. W. N. Johnstone received a message last night from the Canadian Sapper giving the ships' position at 6 p.m. as 190 miles N.E. of St. John's. As there is a heavy sea on it is not likely that the Sapper, with her tow, will reach port before to-morrow. The ships report making good progress.

MEETING AT CARBONAR

Four delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement left here this evening to attend a public meeting at Carbonar. The meeting took place last night in St. James' Hall, before a large and enthusiastic gathering; and according to a message to the Daily News, the meeting was of unanimous support. The resolutions originated by the United Fishermen for better living conditions, were crowded and the gathering representative of all classes of the zone. Mr. Thos. Marks acted as chairman.

The resolutions, adopted at a meeting held at the C.L.R. in St. John's, on Wednesday last, were read to the meeting by John Rorke, who strongly urged them and moved their adoption. Resolutions which called for public expenditure, reduction of the Legislature for the despatch of business, were seconded by Captain Len in a practical address.

Other speakers to the meeting were Messrs. Robert Duff, Sainsbury, Peter Roberts, W. H. Stewart, Winsor, George Brooker, E. J. Wornell and Leonard Ash. Mr. Roberts, Winsor and Wornell, who were seconded by the Fishermen, who arrived here by car this evening, and their resolutions were particularly well received. The resolutions were put to the vote and were unanimously approved. Perfect order prevailed throughout the meeting, which was not prolonged in order to enable a number of the audience, including delegates, to patronize the Carbonar Fair which was being held in Rick's Hall. This necessitated speeches, but they were none the less interesting and effective.

A vote of thanks to the delegates, proposed by M. J. Egan, and seconded by W. F. Pennington, was heartily rendered. On the part of Mr. A. Earle, seconded by Mr. Forward, a vote of thanks was tendered the Carbonar Committee. This Committee, it is understood, remain in being to further the interests of the movement.

Pathizer Answers Mr. Jennings.

Editor Evening Telegram.
In my letter to your paper of two days ago I said that Mr. Jennings was very indignant in regard to my article in your issue of the 17th. It appears to show that his indignation was not without cause. I had hoped to have been gently reminded to answer my letter in a more courteous manner, but it seems as if the article in your issue of the 17th had been a rebuke to me. I will say that I do not share him for the hardships he has endured, but by the tenor of his remarks in his first letter one would infer that the men of the Bay had no cause to complain. It is a fair question to know if these were as reported and why. The article in your issue of the 17th is a rebuke to me. ## Indoor Sports Meet Draws Large Crowd.

MANY RECORDS BROKEN BY CONTESTANTS.
Upwards of 2,000 people witnessed the annual Dominion (Indoor) Sports, held in the Prince's Rink last night. The affair which was held under the auspices of the Cadet Boat Club was again the success for which it has been noted in the past. The programme which consisted of the usual running events basket ball and tug-of-war, proved highly interesting to all, each of the events was hotly contested and brought forth loud applause from the entire gathering on several occasions.
GOOD RUNNING TIME.
The short distance running events were closely contested, Gerald Halley in the 100 and 220 yard dashes won out by a very close margin, and taking into consideration the sharp turns of the track his time was remarkable. He clipped 1 1/2 sec. of the last year time in the 100, and 3/4 of a second of the 220 yards. William Thorburn, who is one of our most promising athletes for an excellent exhibition of running, he having carried off the 1-4 mile, 1-2 mile, and 1 mile events. Thorburn's time for each of the events clearly proved to the entire audience that he is a coming runner of repute. He clipped 10 seconds of the last year time in the 1/2 mile, and in the 1 mile race with Stone, which were the most closely contested events of the racing times for the evening, he was clocked at 5 min. 12 sec., having lowered last seasons time by 2 min. and 1/2 sec. His nearest competitor Stone gave him a hard race to the tape. At the 3/4 mile mark, Stone had a comfortable lead of 30 yards on his opponent, when Thorburn uncorked a fine burst of speed in the third last lap, overhauled his man and coming up the final stretch won out by about 3 feet. Stone is a comer, and should he keep up the running game, he will give an excellent account of himself in the future.
O'TOOLE WON FIVE MILE.
The five mile race which was one of the most interesting items on the programme, resulted in Ron O'Toole taking the measure of Dunphy, Dodd, Mills and Fleming. O'Toole took the lead from the very outset, closely followed by Dodd, with Dunphy a few yards to the rear. Up to the first mile O'Toole crossed over first in 5:22 with Dodd running a splendid race right in his heels, while Dunphy was contented with third place some 50 yards to the rear. In the second mile O'Toole opened out, and running in fine form clipped many seconds of his first mile at the completion of the second. Dodd who was running very close to him lost considerable ground, having suffered a stitch in his side and retired from the race leading into the third mile. O'Toole, who had held the lead throughout ran the last mile in fine form, and did not alter the terrific pace which he had set from the outset until he had crossed the wire an easy winner in the splendid time of 28 min. 21 1/2 sec., reducing 36 seconds off his last year's mark. Dunphy finished second with a fine burst of speed some eight laps to the rear, Mills followed, while the kid Fleming, only 15 years of age, was the hero of the evening, he having run the full distance under 32 minutes. He received loud applause from the gathering for his splendid performance. The same lad took part in the race last year.
ENLIVENING BASKET BALL.
The basket ball games were closely contested throughout, and certainly helped to enliven the proceedings. The game, which is an exceptionally fast one, produced many smart and clever

F.P.U. Convention.

LARGE GATHERING OF DELEGATES.
The fourteenth annual convention of the Fishermen's Protective Union opened at Port Union, after the completion of the business of District and other Councils. A large number of delegates has assembled for the annual transaction of Union affairs, and according to a message published in yesterday's Advocate from Bonavista, party politics will not be the least of the business to be considered. It will be highly interesting to the country to learn just where the Union is politically, and the speech from the Throne will be eagerly awaited by all in consequence of this official pronouncement.

Activity at Bell Island.

ORE SHIPMENTS FOR WEEK.
Four steamer loads of ore were shipped from Bell Island during the past week and over 30,000 tons of ore were exported in these cargoes; of this amount the Wascana took 16,000 tons and the Daghigh 10,000 for Sydney. These boats are being employed by the Company during the remainder of the season, making weekly trips to the Iron Isle, in an effort to have sufficient stocks put by for the steel plants' activities during the winter. The steamers Martha Hensoth with 8,300 tons and the Christian Ehrs with 6,360 tons, are bound to Bremerhaven, Germany.

Guards Win Squires' Cup

The tug-of-war event, participated between the Guards Old Comrades and the Catholic Cadet Corps for the Sir. R. A. Squires Cup again resulted in a victory for the former team, they having thus annexed a second year's win on the splendid trophy. In the first pull so great was the strain on the rope that it snapped from the centre after 2 min. pull, a happening seldom heard of. Upon the rope being spliced the contest was proceeded with, and resulted in the Guards winning two straight pulls, the first was won by only half a foot, while the second was won by a scant 2 1/2 inches. Burnell again proved the victor in the walking match lowering his last year time by 8 seconds. While James Kieley in the high jump beating his former performance by a 1/4 inch. Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., was in charge of the sports and he was assisted by a committee of other gentlemen who always take an active interest in events of this kind as well as the members of the Cadet Boat Club. The sports were an unqualified success from every standpoint, and proved an excellent evening's amusement to all.

FOR HAVING IN POSSESSION.

Reporting a Prohibition case in a Telegram on Thursday last, the item was made to read "for selling on his premises," instead of "for having in his possession." It was for the latter offence that Mr. D. J. Pearce, 51 Pleasant Street, was fined $100, and not for selling as the report incorrectly stated.
