IN POLICE COURT THIS AFTERNOON

Thomas McGuinn, who was before Judge Ritchie this morning on a charge of drunkenness, appeared again this afternoon and charged George Garnett with assaulting him. He said he was in Garnett's place drinking yesterday and spent two dollars. He also claims that Garnett struck him and knocked him down. He went out and reported the matter to the police who advised him to get a warrant and went again to Garnett's. He passed over the remaining three dollars that he had to the attendant for safekeeping and states that Garnett offered to put him up for the night but at 10 o'clock told him to go out on the street and he would see him there. He also states that Garnett called him some unseemly names, Garnett denies the whole thing and calling complainant a lummox in court.

FLAGS MUST FLY SIDE BY SIDE

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—A whole Canadian convention and the manager of the Chicago Beach Hotel were brought to a recognition of United States patriotism last night by Miss Emily T. Foster, of the hotel, who advised Manager Gray that if he was to fly a British flag over his hotel, he must fly an American flag from the same staff. Gray held out to her the same staff. The flag at the Union Club today is at half-mast on account of the death of Mr. Barry, who was a member.

who were overpowered and confined below decks. The fire of the rebellious torpedo boat destroyers was answered by the batteries ashore and from the gunboat Mandjour and the torpedo boat destroyers Grosvo, Smely and others. They surrounded the Skory and poured a raking fire into her, which battered her to pieces, exploded her two boilers and caused fire to break out on board. Nearly all the mutineers of the Skory were killed on the spot. The three or four survivors threw themselves into the sea. The mutiny on board the Trevozhny was quelled by her own crew after six of the mutineers had been killed and six wounded.

understand why Mr. Duncan would raise an objection as the interests of both governments were to have the facts brought out. He felt very strongly that the employment agencies were practically responsible for getting the Japanese into the country, and he had occasioned much public concern, and was a matter of negotiating between the governments of Canada and Japan. Ultimately, the examination of Mr. So-gawa of the Nishi Goshi Immigration Company, until today, to permit of the books of the company being examined.

WANT TO INCREASE THE DAM CAPACITY

MONTREAL, Nov. 1st (Special)—The International Waterways Commission meets here on Wednesday next. The chief question before the body is the application of an American concern (The St. Lawrence Power Company) to increase the dam capacity above Cornwall. This application is opposed on the ground that it would seriously lower the level of the water in the Cornwall Canal on the Canadian side and more or less injure the channel from that point down.

HITCHCOCK MAKES CANADA HIS PLACE OF REFUGE

FUND IS IN GOOD SHAPE. Methodist Supernumerary Fund of the Maritime Provinces Now Amounts to $120,000. At the annual meeting of the general committee of the Methodist Supernumerary Fund of the Maritime Provinces, held yesterday in the parlors of the Centenary church, the annual augmentation account, amounting to about $17,000, from all sources, was passed.

A BIG DROP IN DOMINION COAL. MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(Special)—Dominion Coal touched 39 on the local market this morning. This point which is the lowest on the recent movement has caused much wonderment as to the reasons therefor. President Ross is believed to have been the chief influence in upholding the stock up to the present, making it a point to keep it up to 40, and the inference is made in some quarters that he has changed his policy. However, as considerable of this issue has been thrown on the market lately it is quite possible that the decline is due to quite other causes.

COUNTRY MARKET OR A FAMINE

It looks like 8 cent milk or a milk famine. The farmers in Kings county or at least those in the vicinity of Bloomfield have decided that they must receive more money for their product or the supply will be stopped. This morning only about half the usual supply was sent down here and what there was sent at the increased rate.

Comedian Wanted in New York on Grave Charges.

Traced to Rutland, Vt., Where He Took Last Night's Train for Montreal—Young Girls Accuse Him of Serious Offences. NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The police theory concerning the whereabouts of Raymond Hitchcock who disappeared on the eve of his indictment and probable trial on charges made by several young girls, is that the fugitive has gone to Canada. Al railroad conductor who is sure his train far as North Adams Mass., yesterday, furnished the clue. It is learned that while in North Adams the men escorted him on the quickest route to Manchester, N. H., or Rutland, Vt. Late Wednesday night, according to advices received here, the men were seen in Bennington, Vt., so it is presumed they were making Canada as fast as possible.

It is said that if Hitchcock has fled across the border, he will be safe there from extradition as the crime with which he is charged is not extraditable. HITCHCOCK, Nov. 1.—Advices received from various sections of New England tend to show that Raymond Hitchcock, the fugitive comedian, is bound for Canada, if he has not already made his way across the boundary line. It is reported in Pittsfield that a New York man who is acquainted with the actor, saw him last night in a private house, starting yesterday afternoon for Rutland, Vt., and connecting at the latter place at 9 o'clock next night on a train bound for Montreal.

R. L. BORDEN ENDED HIS TRANS-CANADA TOUR LAST NIGHT

Conservative Leader Enthusiastically Received at Port Arthur Yesterday—Hundreds Turned Away From Meeting. PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 1 (Special)—Port Arthur greeted R. L. Borden and his party yesterday most heartily, and the trans-Canada tour of the Conservative leader was brought to a close with some remarkable enthusiasm. About one thousand attended the meeting, every seat, aisle, and nook in the place being filled.

QUESTION OF PAYMENT FOR A DEAD HORSE

Who is to pay for a dead horse? It was this question that Judge Ritchie had to decide today at the sitting of the city court, which, as yesterday was a holiday, was held today. It appears that Alexander Clark had purchased a horse from William Grannan for $100, paying $80 cash and giving a note for the remaining twenty. It is also evident that Mr. Clark sold a horse to Mr. Grannan for $20 under rather extraordinary circumstances. The animal, it seems, was not in the best of condition, and it was agreed that if the animal lived Mr. Clark was to receive $15, and if it died, only ten. The latter case the case and it was over this that the trouble arose. After Mr. Grannan had the horse for a while the noble beast "kicked the pail."

THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

HIRAM AS A CRITIC. Mr. Hiram Hornbeam attended the matinee at the opera house yesterday afternoon and was mightily tickled with the adventures of the deacon who bet on the horse races.

Hiram said this morning, as he detailed the plot of the play to the Times newspaper.

I've heard a lot about slums, an' I guess they were represented in that gallery yesterday. I don't spit on the floor. That struck me as bein' mighty queer. What sort o' men have you got round here—that they'd try to make a huggen out of a decent room? I'm glad I'm bush. Let's o' things we don't know out there, but I guess thea's we don't want to know. "THE LATE TENANT"

By GORDON HOLMES

(Continued.) Amidst the madroom of his double and fears one fact stood out so clearly that he could not fail to recognize it. Not Violet alone, but some other hidden personality, most earnestly desired his absence from the flat that night. In a word, Van Hupfeldt, who knew of the photograph and the letter being hidden there, had the strongest possible reason for seeking an opportunity to make an absolutely unhindered search of every remaining nook and cranny. But how was Violet's anxiety on this head to be explained? Was she, too, wishful to carry out a scrutiny of her own account?

Then, with a sort of intuition, David felt that it was she who had recently visited her sister's latest abode at such unanny hours of gloom and mystery that her presence had given rise to the ghost legend. And with the consciousness that this was some a hot flush of shame and remorse that he had so visited Violet in his thoughts on the night of his long run from Chalfont. It was she whom he had seen standing at the end of the corridor on the first night of his ever-memorable tenancy of this sorrow-laden abode, and no doubt, her earlier efforts at elucidating the dim tragedy which cloaked her sister's death had led to the very experiences of Miss L'Estrange and Jenny.

Well, thank goodness! he held nearly all the threads of this dark business in his hands now, and it would go hard with Van Hupfeldt if he crossed his path that night. For David resolved, with a smile which had in it a mixture of grimness and tenderness, that he would obey the letter of Violet's request while decidedly disobeying its spirit. She wished him to be "away from the flat between midnight and two a. m." Certainly he would be away; but not far away—near enough, indeed, to know who was in it and who came out, and some part of their business there if he saw fit. Violet, of course, might come and go as she pleased; not so Van Hupfeldt or any of his myrmidons. Thereupon, determined to oppose guide to guide, he dismissed his charwoman long before the usual time and called the friendly half-porter into consultation.

"Jim," he said, when the lift shot up to the floor in response to a summons, "I guess you want a drink." "Jim knew Harcourt's little ways by this time. "Well sir," he said, stepping forth, and unshipping the motor key, "I'm bound to admit that a slight lubrication wouldn't be amiss."

"In fact, it might be a bit, a palpable bit. Well, step lively. Here's the whiskey. Now, Jim, listen while I talk. I understand there is to be a meeting of ghosts here tonight—no, not a word yet; drink steadily, Jim—and it is up to you and me to attend the convocation. There is nothing to worry about. These spirits are likely to be less harmful than those you are imbibing; indeed, we may be called on to grab one or two of them, but they will turn out to be ordinary men. You're not afraid of a man, Jim?"

"Not if 'e is a man, sir. But will there be any shooting?" "Ah, you heard of that?" "People will talk of bullet-marks, sir, to say nothing of drops o' blood." "Drops o' blood? Where?" "All round our front door. They wasn't there overnight, an' next day there was a revolver bullet stuck in your kitchen skirting-board."

"Excellent! Clear proof that our sort of ghosts will bleed if you punch them hard enough on the nose. Now, I want your help in three ways. In the first place, I am going out about seven and will return about nine. I want you to make sure that no one enters my flat within those hours. Secondly, when I come back, I wish to reach this floor without coming in by the front door. You understand? If any one should be watching my movements, I would like to be seen leaving the mansion but not returning. Thirdly, I want you to join me on guard when you close the front door at midnight, hiding the pair of us somewhere above, so that we can see, without fear of mistake, any person who may possess keys which fit my front door."

"No," said Violet, advancing toward the voice; "but your maid seems to be alarmed by the sight of me. You know me, Miss L'Estrange. I only wish I had discovered sooner that you employed my sister's servant, Sarah Gissing."

Ermyrn was accustomed to stage situations. She naturally grasped her part; for she was fresh from the interview with David, and there could be no doubt that the unmaking of Van Hupfeldt was as settled now as the third act of the farcical comedy in which she would play the subordinate that night. "Sarah Gissing," she said with a fine scorn. "That is not her name. She is Jenny—Jenny—best if I have ever called her anything else. Here, you'll see it is your own name."

"Blackey, miss," sobbed Jenny, in tears. "But you said yesterday that you were Sarah Gissing?" cried Violet. "Yes, miss, an' it wasn't true." "So you have never seen this sister?" "No, miss."

"Why did you lie to me so shamelessly?" "Please, miss, I was pite for it." "There is some mistake," broke in Miss L'Estrange, who was a trifle awed by Violet's quiet dignity. "It was a Mr. Strauss who came here and asked permission for Jenny to have the day free yesterday in order to give some evidence he required."

"But you quite sure it was Mr. Strauss?" asked Violet, turning away from Jenny as though the sight of her was ofensive. "Positive! I rented, or rather I took your sister's flat from him, and he has been plaguing my life out ever since about some papers he imagined I found there."

FINANCIAL and COMMERCIAL GRAIN SITUATION IS GROWING MORE SERIOUS

Fear That Canadian Banks May Curtail Loans Because of Decline in Prices--Winnipeg Anxious Over the Outlook for Money.

WINNIPEG, Man. Oct. 30.—The condition of the wheat market has become more seriously complicated by the contingency of the money market than it was a week ago. On the American side, things have reached a point where the banks have refused to send money in the country for repaying at the elevators, and on Monday all the curb trading was stopped on the Minneapolis market. The Duluth board of trade have suspended trading entirely for three days, to see if the market will right itself, and Minneapolis is talking of taking action along the same lines.

TORONTO NOT WORRIED. TORONTO, Oct. 30.—"First we have heard of it," is the answer of local banks to the story that banks have shut down on the western grain men and that the purchasing of wheat has practically ceased. The principal "grain" banks in this district are the Dominion, Bank of Montreal, and the Imperial. The Imperial Bank claims to be looking after its customers as usual in the west, and to have heard nothing of the kind.

BANKS ADVISE CAUTION. (Montreal) "Winnipeg," said a bank manager, this morning, "being made out of the monetary situation. The Dominion of Canada was never more prosperous financially than it is at the present time. What the business men should do if they are loyal to their own interests is to make the best of existing circumstances and patiently wait. There is no need of any anxiety if people will only keep their heads and permit their own interest to govern the situation until such time as money loosens up somewhat."

SPECULATION MUST CEASE. MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—Fears that banks here may follow the example of institutions across the border and begin curtailing their loans on grain caused some uneasiness on "Change this morning, which was accentuated by the fact that the wheat situation appears to be technically strong, with the present dominant force an outside influence, the use of clearing house certificates has been adopted in almost every important grain centre except Winnipeg, where money is almost as tight as it is anywhere. The depression in prices will probably obtain as long as banks find it necessary to follow the present procedure.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK? Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Nature warns you when the track of health is not clear. Kidney and bladder trouble compel you to pass water often through the day and get up many times during the night.

Unhealthy kidneys cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sal-low complexion, puffiness of the face, and a weak, nervous system.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease. Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physician, who content themselves with the usual remedies, while the original disease undermines the system.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone. If you are sick or feeling badly, begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better, they will help the other organs to health.
