FIGHTING TO PRESERVE THE NEW RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT

ST. PETERSBURG, June 8.—The critical moment in the life of the duma has arrived, and Premier Stolypin and the Constitutional Democrats are fighting with two fronts to save the new parliament.

minister of Dundee in Ontario. Returning to Scotland afterwards he became minister of Campbelltown, and finally of Dundee, where he died five years ago. McGregor's experience was varied. He spent ten years in Nova Scotia, and twelve years as minister of St. Andrew's church, Victoria, B. C. He also returned to Scotland, and after short periods at Fort Augustus and Glenoe was minister of Appin for ten years, retiring in 1902.

He was the first to pass over to the majority. Grant spent all his after days in Canada, with the exception of occasional visits to Scotland. He had charge of a congregation in Prince Edward Island, from which he was soon called to the pastorate of St. Matthew's church in Halifax.

I will remember the first time I saw him. Our junior students, let loose from our morning class, were rushing out furiously at the front gate. Suddenly we collided with a man carrying a large basket of eggs on his head. He asked his basket were thrown down, the eggs broken and scattered upon the pavement. The poor man looked at them in dismay. Many of us stood and laughed at his sad plight.

Just then a fair-haired student, older than most of us was entering. Quick as thought he addressed us: "Boys, this is for you, but no fun to this, he has got to account for the value of the eggs or probably lose his position." Then tossing up his cap and held it out for contributions. The result brought gladness to the poor man's heart. I witnessed many such scenes, but not one that showed more clearly the quality of generosity and courage which was characteristic of George M. Grant.

It was easy to discern in these early days that he was destined for a great career. The others also gained prizes and were prominent members of the various students' societies. The Nova Scotians formed no small factor of the society life. McGregor, inheriting the blood of generations who had dwelt amid the Highlands, was the poet of the fraternity; Cameron, the humorist; MacMillan, the philosopher; and Grant, the all-around man of affairs.

The four were licensed by the Presbytery of Glasgow in 1860 and returned to Nova Scotia. Cameron was settled as

No decision has yet been reached, but the latest indications are that the premier is winning out. The Constitutional Democrats are bending all their might to secure a majority. To compass this, they are even willing to shelve compulsory expropriation, and amnesty, both cherished and cardinal planks in their platform and effective slogans in the last election.

Patience's heart ached painfully. She had never loved Jack as she loved him at that moment. He represented in himself all that was most fine and chivalrous in man, but she was more than ever determined to give him up. She told herself, apart from her promise to Lady Erline, that she was not fit wife for Jack Brantwaite. Gossip might even now be making free with her name and he repeating the story of how she had escaped the prison cell. No better let her marry a man she loathed and detested than bring shame on the man she loved. She raised her eyes and looked Jack in the face. How handsome he looked, how strong, how manly! All the woman in her yearned to throw herself in his arms, to be caught in his embrace, and so protected from the whole world. But she must not yield to this wild longing; for Jack's sake she must be firm and resolute. "If I can only make him believe that I am a thief," the girl thought to herself, "surely he will cease to love me. He will turn from me with horror and aversion. His love will die. It cannot help dying." So she argued, feeling that at all costs she must make Jack believe her to be guilty of the crime with which Lady Erline had charged her, and think her that vile and detestable thing—a thief. For it was inevitable that she must cease to love her believing this, and surely that would be the best thing that could happen—the best thing, at least, for him. She cleared her throat and glanced up nervously, apprehensively, to find that Jack's eyes were fixed upon her, and that he was studying her as if he would read her very soul. She uttered a little half-inarticulate cry, for how could she speak when he looked at her like that? She wished that the fire-light would die down, and leave the room in shadow. She thought she could be better in the dark. "You are making things very hard for me, Jack," she muttered, "very hard, forcing me to confess to things I don't like. Couldn't you spare me, and go?" She shivered as she spoke. "No," he cried defiantly. "I will not spare you. Things have come to such a pass between us now that the matter of your innocence or guilt must wait until after I leave this room tonight." There was a ring of authoritative command in his voice. "You say you are a thief," he continued, "you accuse yourself of having stolen Lady Erline's Blue Diamond, and I refuse to believe you. Yes, I refuse to believe you. You went on, taking a step towards her, unless you can raise your hands above your head and swear in the name of Heaven that you stole the gem. Can you take such an oath—dare you?" He gripped her hands in his own firm grasp, and looked steadily and scrutinizingly into her face. She turned white to her lips. He had asked more of her than she could do. For Patience Strangway, who could swear a lie to Heaven. She shook her head in silent protest, and two large tears rolled slowly down her pale cheeks. "No, no," she muttered faintly. "I cannot swear. I cannot. You are right, Jack—I am no thief!" "I knew it—I knew it all the time," he cried, passionately, triumphantly. "You knew you were innocent. Oh, my darling, why did you try to deceive me, my brave, sweet girl?" "I did it for your sake, Jack," she murmured, drawing her hands away from him and walking slowly towards the window. "I thought," she continued, slowly, "that if you believed me to be a thief you would cease to love me." "I guessed as much," he answered, spreading out his hands to the fire and warning them in the blaze. A look of intense relief had come over his face now that he had at last wrung the truth from Patience, and he did not notice the start the girl gave, nor observed the frightened furtive way she stared out of the French window. Stared out into the mist and the rain, asking herself if it had only been her fancy, or if she had really caught sight of a face pressed against the glass—the evil cruel face of Spencer Stern. "Why are you gazing out of the window? Come to the fire, darling, and you shall tell me why you acted so strangely," Jack glanced over his shoulder as he spoke. But Patience made no reply. She was staring, staring intently into the darkness, but the face had gone.

Daily Fashion Hint for Times Readers.

WHEN DRIVING HER OWN CAR. The girl who drives her own car should be as sensibly and well and smartly dressed as her brother driver. Though utility is the first consideration in her auto garments it need not, of necessity, eliminate the element of fashion. The most practical, and withal the most fashionable, suit which the chauffeurs will wear this summer is the suit of a very lightweight leather, in the popular golden brown shade. Her suit or coat, whichever it may be, is made entirely of leather, and exp. gloves and footwear are of the same material in the same shade. A military is the maid pictured. The short walking-length shirt is severely plain, cut with a good top and a circular flounce, and finished with a stitched hem, all the stitchings being done with brown silk. Topping this shirt is a skirted blouse with high military collar inset with brown suede and trimmed with heavy cords in military fashion at the neck and across the fronts. The entire suit is lined throughout with taffeta silk in a moss green shade. The gloves are brown suede and viewed cap of the leather which makes the suit.

mond and put in prison; or, worse still, she could hurt someone I love. Jack, you must let me go and get this man. Stern said to him with pleading voice and pleading eyes. "Very well," he muttered, "you must go if you want to, my darling; but get rid of the brute as soon as you can." He clenched and unclenched his hands. It was hateful to think that Patience must pass even a few minutes in the society of Spencer Stern. Still, she had brought forward a powerful plea when she pointed out that the man was an intimate friend of Lady Erline's, and consequently a person who must be conciliated at all costs. "I will send him away as soon as I can," Patience's voice faltered, for she could see how annoyed the woman at the proposed tele-tele between herself and the man he so heartily disliked. She moved towards the door, her face pale and troubled, her eyes cast down, and Jack let her go without a word. "He is annoyed with me, he is annoyed with the murdered man's work, to be sure; but she crossed the dark hall, for the servants had forgotten to light the lamp. A spirit of disorder appeared to reign in the household. There was light enough to spare in the study, though, too much light, for flames leaping up in the grate and a big lamp on the table made Spencer Stern's figure stand out in startling distinctness. Patience gazed at him with troubled eyes. He was leaning back against the mantelpiece, and his face looked more dark and stern than she had ever seen it. He was looking at her with a cold, pale hand. "You have brought me a message from Lady Erline," she murmured, almost mechanically, and held out her cold, pale hand. Fruit-a-tives

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" differ from any other remedy in the world. They cure, absolutely, Stomach, Liver, Kidney, Bowel and Skin Troubles. Because none of the usual remedies have given you relief, is no reason why you should not give "Fruit-a-tives" a good, honest trial. Fresh fruit acts directly on the three great eliminating organs—Bowels, Kidneys and Skin. But fruit contains only a minute quantity of the medicinal principles and in order to receive any marked benefit from fruit, one would be compelled to eat more than could be assimilated by the system. "Fruit-a-tives" contain all the curative virtues of fruit in a wonderfully concentrated form. In making "Fruit-a-tives," the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes are combined—and, by a wonderful discovery of a famous physician, a chemical change takes place in the juices, by which the medicinal action is many times increased. Then tonics are added, and the whole compressed into tablets. "Fruit-a-tives" contain no Calomel—no Cascara—no Senna—no Morphine—no violent purgatives—only fruit juices and tonics. "Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—strengthen them—and arousing them to vigorous action. With the Kidneys healthy—the Bowels moving regularly every day—the Liver active—and the pores of the skin doing their full share towards ridding the system of waste—there can be no disease. "Fruit-a-tives" mean health for every member of the family. 50c. a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Sent to any address on receipt of price if your druggist does not handle them. AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured a Severe Case of Anemia and Weakness. Anemia—poor watery blood—is the cause of most of the misery which afflicts mankind. The housewife especially falls an easy prey to it. The long hours and close confinement necessary in performing her household duties sap her strength. She becomes run down and often suffers extreme misery. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the housewife's friend. They make new blood—lots of it—and pure blood banishes all women's ailments. Mrs. E. St. Germain, wife of a well known farmer of St. John des Chateaux, Que., found new strength through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"A year ago I was extremely weak. I could not attend to my work. I suffered from dizzy spells; my head ached; my blood was poor; I had a bad cough and the doctors feared I was going into consumption. I followed their treatment for some time but without relief. I grew discouraged and finally gave it up in despair. I was strongly advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so I procured six boxes. Before they were all gone I felt relief. The headaches and dizziness became less frequent and I felt a little stronger. I continued the pills for a couple of months at the end of which time I had gained in weight; the pains had left me, my appetite was good and I felt as strong and well as ever I did. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for I certainly owe my good health to them."

The woman in the house the man in the office, the boy or girl in the school will always find a friend in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich red blood and good blood banishes rheumatism, general debility, kidney troubles and those aches and pains caused by overwork or overstudy; good blood builds up the tired unstrung nerves and makes pale thin cheeks rosy and healthy. The pills are sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by all medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"What! Has she told you?" Patience interrupted him with a sharp cry, gazing very earnestly into his face. "Has she told you all—everything?" she went on. He nodded his head. "Told you that she herself put the diamond into my hand—disclosed the shameful part that she played?" "Yes," he returned. "Lady Erline has no secrets from me."

"But you may have secrets from her," replied Patience; "strange, mysterious secrets of your own. Oh, how can you come here, she continued, clasping her hands, "and stand up and look me in the face, when you know that you are really the man who investigated the theft of the diamond? For it was you, Mr. Stern, who blackmailed my unhappy sister into robbing Lady Erline of her gem. Don't deny it!" Patience sank down into a chair as she spoke, for a sensation of trembling sickness was coming over her, and she wondered if she was going to faint. She was afraid to stand.

THE COUNCIL'S ACTION

The city council yesterday, after an acrimonious discussion, dismissed the director of public works. This course, or his voluntary resignation, has seemed inevitable for some time past. The constant friction could not continue. It is the immediate duty of the council to secure another director or reorganize the departmental work. At this season of the year, with so much important work in hand, there is a great need of competent supervision by a man who can give points to the aldermen as well as carry out their instructions. The story of the course pursued by the council since the question of shelving City Engineer Peters and enlarging the duties of Director Cushing first came up is not the most pleasant reading. There was too much hesitation and too much casting about for temporary expedients. If the council had the courage to reorganise all the departments, it could find less competent heads than Director Cushing has proved to be, and perhaps at the same time effect economy in administration. The question whether the retiring director is entitled to pay for the balance of the year has nothing to do with that of securing a successor, which must be attended to without delay.

THE WHEAT CROP

Despite the terribly severe winter and the backward spring, the outlook for the western wheat crop is said to be excellent. The C. P. R. reports issued yesterday told of growing crops and favorable weather, confirming the statement made by Hon. Frank Oliver a few days ago. Mr. Oliver declared that last winter the heavy snowfall before the severe frosts came was of vast benefit, as it prevented the frost from entering the ground to any extent, and thus the conditions were favorable for seeding. Speaking to a reporter with regard to western prospects he said: "Judging from what I have heard, the conclusions that I have been able to draw from the various statements made to me, coupled with my experience of the country, I should say that the crop conditions in southern Alberta are perfectly favorable. The fall wheat is in very good condition, the spring seedings have been got in sufficiently early, and the ground is in excellent condition. In northern Alberta and the rest of the country the spring was late—that is to say, the snow remained considerably later on the ground than usual—yet the circumstances are all in favor of a good crop. Throughout northern Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba nearly all seeding was done by May 24. The ground was never in better condition, and there is every prospect of a favorable season. There may be some destruction in the wheat area in Manitoba in localities where the land lies low, and was therefore too wet to get the seed in, but it is probable that it will dry out sufficiently to enable some grain other than wheat to be planted. There may also be some destruction in the area planted in regard to a few large holdings where there has not been sufficient time to plant, but on the whole, with ground moist and warm at the time of seeding, more favorable conditions for the crop I never saw."

Mr. Oliver made the further important statement that the railroads will be much better prepared next season to handle the crops, as they are making determined efforts to secure more cars and motive power. "Men who could not get their wheat to the market last fall or winter are not," says Mr. Oliver, "inclined to be particularly savage with the railroads, as the failure of the roads to haul grain out has enabled the farmers to get from fifteen to twenty cents more per bushel for their grain than they would have received if they had been able to get it to market last fall."

The amount of last year's wheat to be moved, and the problem facing the railroads is indicated by the following statement made by a prominent Canadian Pacific official in Winnipeg: "It will take 300 cars a day from now until the first of September to move the wheat crop. With fine weather we can do that easily enough, but that gives you an idea of the enormous amount of work there is ahead of the company. Just as soon as we get up with the 1906 crop this year's crop will be ready, and we will have to get it to market. This gives you an idea of what is ahead of the transportation companies out here."

JOHN MORLEY'S SPEECH

"British rule in India will continue, ought to continue, and must continue." These are the words of John Morley, secretary of state for India. Coming from a man who was by many regarded as a "Little Englander," they prove how office and responsibility broaden the views of an English statesman. Mr. Morley did not assert that India must be oppressed, but his policy is one of enlarged powers of local self-government in India. He points out clearly enough the terrible results that would follow the withdrawal of Britain from India, and declares that it is the duty of the government to meet and overcome the difficulties and dangers in the interests of the millions of that great dependency. Mr. Morley strikes a high imperial note, and at the same time suggests to those who would destroy the opium traffic in India that it is open for them to point out some other source of Indian revenue. If, he says in effect, we thrust our righteousness upon these people, we must provide a means of replacing the lost revenue. The point would seem to be well-taken, however much one may be disposed to denounce the traffic in opium. There is a practical as well as a theoretical side to reform movements.

Some of the aldermen are filled with forebodings relative to the water supply of this city. One sees a complete renewal of the distribution service all over the city. Another fears much time may yet elapse before the new supply reaches the distribution system in full force. There appears to be a feeling that further large expenditures must be made before the system is completed. This is the second time such views have been openly expressed at the council board. Evidently they would not be made without some reason. But whatever the cost (already close to half a million) the system must be completed.

Ontario continues to lose population to the new western provinces. Home-seekers' excursions are now in progress and Thursday's Toronto Globe says:—"At 1:45 p. m. yesterday the first home-seekers' excursion for the season left the Union station for the west. It comprised two special trains, which contained almost 600 passengers. The immigration officials are quite satisfied with the number who went out. It is quite equal to the average and surpasses their expectation. Most of those who are going west have been residents of this city and of parts of the province west of here."

Municipal ownership of the waterworks plant was discussed at a session of the Ingersoll, Ont., town council this week. The company's offer to accept $60,000 for the plant was taken and a bylaw was submitted to the rate-payers in the near future. The council will also deal with the electric light and gas plants, as offers from both companies have been obtained.

The beautiful village of Hampton has several times in recent years suffered from fire, but that of yesterday is said to have been the most serious in its history. A new industry has been wiped out and the loss to the community is large. No doubt the factory will be rebuilt, but in the meantime there is very serious disarrangement of business.

With a record surplus in eight Canada continues her progress along the high road of prosperity. If the political atmosphere were a little less clouded here and there, and the word "graft" not so flung about so carelessly, the critic would find himself rather short of material for fault-finding in this country.

The calling for tenders for the Moncton Chipman section of the C. T. P. indicates that there will soon be an increased demand for railroad laborers in this province, and for railroad supplies. The general business outlook in New Brunswick is very satisfactory.

The Socialist members of the French chamber of deputies who described Great Britain as "a precious instrument of peace for the world," must have forgotten about President Roosevelt and the Big Stick.

Ald. Hamm and Ald. Lewis displayed unusual vigor of speech at the city council board yesterday. If they do not weary at the task they may make the meetings much more interesting hereafter.

ST. JOHN WILL HAVE A CABINET MEMBER

Premier Robinson Says We Will Have Representation in Provincial Government.

Lieut. Governor Tweedie, Premier Robinson, Hon. F. G. Sweeney and Messrs. E. Lantieri, M. P. F., and George Robertson, M. P. P., came to the city last evening from Fredericton. Premier Robinson and Hon. F. J. Sweeney went through to Moncton. While at the depot last evening, en route to Moncton, Hon. C. W. Robinson, the new premier of New Brunswick, was asked regarding the make up his government. "The probabilities," he said, "are that St. John will eventually have a representative in the cabinet. With regard to the report that Mr. Barry will be appointed attorney general, I will say that he would be a fine man for the position, and one whose ability is generally recognized. We had a good gathering in Fredericton last night and this morning, with the governor we attended the closing of the Normal School. Reference was made to the increase in teachers' salaries."

PHARMACEUTICAL EXAMS

The results of the semi-annual pharmaceutical examinations held here on Thursday show that less than half the candidates made the required marks. Those taking the examinations for general subjects numbered five and two—Claude B. Avery, of St. Mary's, and Cloran Hay, of Chatham—passed. Ten candidates presented themselves for the final examination and four passed. They are: Harry E. Hipwell, Woodstock; Rodrick D. Fraser, Chatham; George A. Lezer, Moncton; and Joseph E. Hawker, St. John.

MEMORIAL PARK

At GRAND PRE. By J. F. Herbin.

Grand Pre, the scene of Longfellow's "Evangeline," and one of the best known places of historic and scenic interest in Nova Scotia, is to have a memorial park. It will comprise fourteen acres of land, a knoll of "upland" on the edge of the famous Acadian dyked lands of Grand Pre, near the railway depot of that place. Thousands of people have been drawn to visit the place, and the number increases every year. The memorial scheme has been in contemplation for some years, and this centenary year of Longfellow's birth will be marked in Grand Pre by the commencement of the work.

The land is favorably situated and replete with historical associations. It has a row of willows probably two centuries old, a well dating from the French period, the site of the Acadian church, the foundation and cellar of an Acadian dwelling, the original road leading to the village on the hillside, and the Acadian burying ground.

To the north lie the Grand Pre dyked meadows, a mile in extent. One mile east is the mouth of the Gasperaux River, whence the Acadians were removed to the ships which bore them away from their homes. South, a mile away, lies the beautiful Gasperaux Valley. The surrounding country is foremost in agriculture and horticulture, populous and prosperous. Cape Blomidon, Look Off and the Basin add to the scenic attractions of the country.

The whole work contemplated will cost probably $50,000, as monuments are to be erected and the whole ground suitably enclosed and beautified with drives, walks and trees, and the historical points of the place restored and preserved so far as possible. It is proposed to erect a monument in honor of Longfellow, and one to commemorate the Acadian occupation of the country.

S. S. BRIDGEWATER WRECKED She Went Ashore in the Breakers 100 Miles From Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., June 7.—The steamer Bridgewater went ashore in the breakers off Nissey Mate, 100 miles east of Halifax, this afternoon and will be a total loss. She left Halifax late last night for Casco with a full cargo and a large passenger list. The passengers and crew all got ashore safely but whether any of the cargo will be saved depends on the weather.

The fog was dense when the Bridgewater struck on the rocks. Capt. Hesse, who was in command, tried to turn and get into deep water again, but he found the rudder broken and the steamer unmanageable and there was nothing to do but allow her to drift on the breakers. The boats were lowered and after a hard struggle they got through and reached shore.

The Bridgewater was owned by the Coastal Steam Packet of Halifax and she was under six months' charter to the Halifax and Casco Steamship Company. Six months ago this company lost their steamer Strathcona which was burned at the wharf in Port Dufferin. The Bridgewater was of steel, built in 1880, was worth $12,000 and was insured for two-thirds her value.

IN THE SWEAT OF THY BROW SHALT THOU EAT BREAD

(W. T. Arnold, in T. P.'s Weekly London)

My spirit has fed full of idleness, And through the empty chambers of the mind, Goes wandering ill at ease, nor can it find What may console or stay its loneliness. With shortly, rebelling feet follows behind The phantom of Unrest. Sad thoughts oppress An unseen hand, but blightful none the less. The spirit's summer air from toiling there, Thus hopeless, sick at heart, it onward stirs Through many a dust-strewn chamber, till at last To a window looking outward it has passed. And there the whole tollsome earth with one long gaze, Sees, and, borne downward on the trumpet-blast, Hears God's oracular answer, "Work and Pray."

IN LIGHTER VEIN

BY THE SEXTON. "Did I tell you the story of the old church bell?" "No, let's hear it." "Sorry, but it can be told only on Sunday."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PRIDE AND POVERTY.

"Takes all kinds of people," make a world," rejoined the hobo. "Here you is too proud 't beg, an' I'm too proud 't work."

"I thought Spawny had a good job." "He had, but he lost it. He never holds a position long."

"I suppose that's because he's given to drink." "No, it's because drink is given to him. He never buys."—Philadelphia Press.

WHAT HE LET GO.

"Haven't you sometimes sacrificed your conscience in conducting your Trust operations?"

"Oh, yes," answered the billionaire, "but a man who succeeds in the world must expect to make some sacrifices."—Washington Star.

NOT YET COMPLETE.

"Where," asked the tenderfoot, "was the last man killed here?"

"He ain't been killed yet," replied Arizona Al. "There's goin' to be at least one more killed as soon as him and me comes face to face."—Chicago Record-Herald.

ARCHBISHOP BRUCHESI SPEAKS ON TEMPERANCE

Distinguished Prelate Talks at Young Women's Christian Temperance Union Meeting in Montreal -- A forcible Address--Protestant Clergyman Express Appreciation.

(Montreal Witness) Archbishop Bruchesi was the chief speaker at the annual rally of the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union in Montreal last Saturday evening.

The Archbishop touched lightly on the actual fact of intemperance and its attendant evils, but devoted the greater part of his time to the emphasizing of the best ways of stopping the growth of the evil until it should die out altogether.

HOW TO STOP THE TRAFFIC

The best way, he declared, to cause a sober and upright nation to spring up in the next generation was to teach the evil effects of alcohol in the schools and at the homes of the present day.

His Grace went on to take liquor in small quantities such as on New Year's Day, when visiting, before or after meals or the sipping of a little wine was merely part of the social life.

HOW TO GIVE INSTRUCTION

Continuing along these lines the Archbishop made an earnest appeal for scientific instruction in schools and at the homes of alcohol.

By scientific teaching he did not mean the display on the walls of a number of charts, which was merely an insult to the child, but the constant warning of the child against these evils which are daily apparent to him on the streets of the city.

He said that if a child is disobedient, the parent should not be too quick to punish, but should try to understand the cause of the disobedience.

THE MEN'S CORNER

TRADE TALKS.

The Electric Engineer.

Within recent years many distinct branches of engineering have been developed—civil, mining, mechanical, electrical and a dozen others. Specialization in any profession is usually the outward sign of its great growth and the great future it offers to clever men.

Electrical engineering? The explanation point is not only appropriate, but necessary in designating a profession, whose present performance are astounding and whose future outlook the liveliest imagination can conceive. Naturally, this same bright vista opens out to the youth who looks toward electricity in the humbler phase of a mechanic and not with the technical training of the engineer. With the required training secured, the practical electrician will have a widening sphere of usefulness. From the economic standpoint, the telephone is rapidly triumphing over the telegraph. The rapidity of its extension means great opportunities for young men in this distinct field, where the smallness of the power and the delicacy of the mechanism necessitates a special knowledge even in the well-equipped electrician.

Training necessary? The "piecework" system in great electrical plants, the technical schools and even correspondence courses will afford it. Electrical shops, like the Westinghouse in Pittsburgh, and those in every large city, are eager for bright young men, employing beginners at a minimum wage of $1.50 a day, that may be doubled by the rapidity of their work.

The kinds that interest the ordinary investor are government bonds, which are issued by national governments (the United States rate is now 2 per cent); municipal bonds, issued by states, cities, villages, counties and school districts; public service bonds, which are issued by corporations that furnish transportation, gas or electricity to cities; railroad bonds, which are mortgages issued by the great railroads; industrial bonds, which are issued by companies engaged in any sort of business.

Government and state bonds pay such low interest as not to appeal to the beginner in investments. The other three kinds—railroad, public service and industrial bonds—are mortgages on something and in many different classes. They are always issued for some specific improvement, such as to extend railroad trackage, build factories or office buildings.

The most valuable of these bonds is a first mortgage bond, which means that you have first claim on the property of the issuing company in case of disaster. The second mortgage bond gives the possessor second claim. The general-mortgage bond covers all the property of the corporations responsible for it, from real estate to equipment. The first and second mortgage bondholders have prior claims.

INVEST YOUR SAVINGS.

What Are Bonds?

The simplest form of investment is the savings bank—in fact, that admirable institution must mark the very beginning of investments of any kind. The first step toward amassing wealth is saving a little at a time, and, consequently, no man or woman is eligible to join the large class who are investing their money judiciously unless they have had a long disciplinary experience with the savings bank.

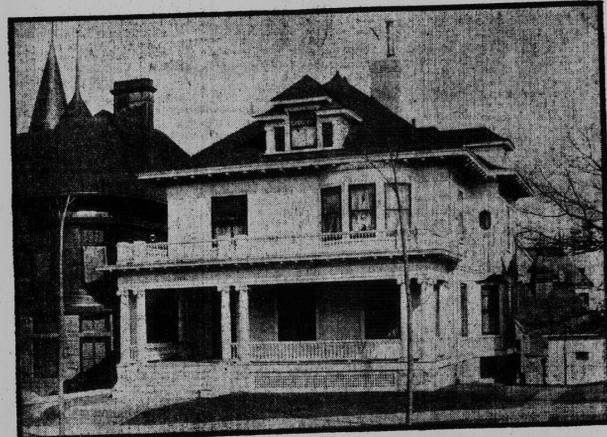

Suppose now the bright dollars have been slowly piling themselves up in the bank and have reached an extent that warrants you looking out for an investment—that is, in stocks and bonds. Investments of mercantile or commercial character there are, at every man's very door, and little businesses, that if the man is experienced or is the kind of a "silent partner" who keeps his eyes open, are better to the individual than even Standard Oil stock. This, however, is a matter of personal initiative.

Bonds are the highest type of conservative investment. The prosperity of the country rests squarely on bonds, yet the ordinary citizen has but a glimmering idea of what they are. A bond is a receipt (made out in the form of promise to pay) for money borrowed by a state, city, corporation or a government. This receipt is engraved on paper, and by means of coupons detachable (in fact, semi-annual checks), by which interest is paid until the year when the bond matures and the principal is due.

A MODERN HOUSE OF COLONIAL TYPE

on a group of properties, railroads, traction lines that combine into a "system." However, the mortgage bonds of each individual company have prior claim over this bond. Equipment bonds, in the case of railroads, are mortgages on engines and rolling stock. A debenture bond is nothing but a promissory note, and has no security to guarantee it except the good name of its sponsor.

BUSINESS PHILOSOPHY.

Be better than yourself, rather than better than others.

Advertisements will bring patrons, but only square dealing can hold them.

You say So-and-So succeeds because he is a "jollier," but look closer and you'll find some better quality is responsible.

Don't harass your boss with trifling suggestions. Wait until you have one great idea—then make it count.

Many a man spends his time kicking against the trusts when he ought to be reading the "Business Chances" ads in his newspaper.

The man who thinks he can drink steadily and succeed in business is something like the acrobat who does not use a net. When they fall they never get up again.

Don't cringe—that's cowardly.

The Demand for Men

The condition of labor, skilled and unskilled, throughout the country is most unusual. From all points the complaint is general that responsible labor, as, for instance, men with intelligence enough to be motormen, are extremely scarce at a fair price. In all the big cities of the land laborers and mechanics never earned so much money and did so little work for it as at the present time. In mill and factory towns, as, for example, Pittsburgh and the towns in the south, the manufacturers are driven to such straits that they employ "runners" to greet likely young men at railroad stations and steamboat wharves and practically "slaughter" them into the jobs that await them.

Railroad men throughout the west are having great difficulty in procuring common laborers who will work steadily away from the city. A railroad president is authoritatively quoted as saying that his road cannot employ even necessary improvements because of the lack of help. Bonds have been issued, the money is at hand, the "master" is crying by the roadside—but no labor!

In the great southwest there is a new labor situation. The young men have left the farms of their fathers and taken up their own land. Farm help at the price the farmer can afford to pay is very scarce at harvest time. Skilled help throughout the whole land is commanding its own price, and, notwithstanding the influx of immigrants, the wages of the common laborer are also going up.

WORK.

Let me but do my work from day to day. In field or forest, at the desk or loom; In roaring market place or tranquil room.

Let me but find it in my heart to say, When vagrant wishes, beckon me away: "This is my work—my blessing, not my doom; Of all who live, I am the only one by whom

The work can best be done in the right way."

Then shall I see it not too great nor small.

To suit my spirit and to prove my power, Then shall I cheerfully greet the laboring hours.

And, cheerful, turn when the long shadow falls.

At eventide, to play and love and read, Because I know for me my work is best!

A MODERNIZED "COLONIAL" TYPE

By Chas. S. Sedwick, Arch., Minneapolis, Cost, Exclusive of Heating and Plumbing $5,000.

The modern colonial house and the colonial house of old New England are as different from each other as they are far apart in years. Domestic architecture in the United States from the early New England days down to the Colonial of 1870 followed closely along classic lines, and the revival of the colonial means simply "getting back" to first principles, dropping many of the vagaries and absurdities which were fast running into and training our taste down to more plain common sense ideas.

This beautiful home shown in our illustration is simple in outline and modest in detail, with a convenient arrangement of liberal sized rooms.

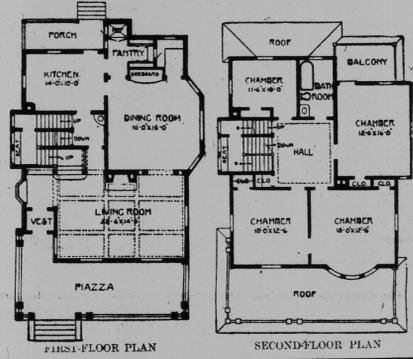

The height of ceilings is nine feet and eight feet six inches. The side vestibule opens into a large, ample living room, extended the full width of front and finished with beamed ceiling, generous open fireplace and the main staircase leading up from colonnade archways, making a very artistic and attractive combination.

The main living room and staircase hall are finished in white quartered oak, in dark Flemish; the dining-room is in birch, stained mahogany red. The kitchen, butler's pantries and recessed sideboard all lend to the completeness of this modern house. The second story is well arranged, with four good bedrooms, each provided with ample clothes closet. The bathroom is commodious and well located for central plumbing. The floor of bathroom is tile and the walls tiled up to a height of six feet. The vestibule has a tile floor and a tile wainscoting. The walls of the kitchen are finished in Keene cement, blocked off in the tile and wainscoting to a height of five feet. The walls and ceilings throughout have a rough sand finish and tinted in diaphanous colors.

The attic study furnishes a fine amusement room and servant's rooms. The basement is finished complete with laundry, drying room, vegetable and fruit cellars, and ample fuel and heating room. The heating is by hot water. As shown by cut, the outside of the house is painted white, with a modest grey tint for the roof.

The treatment of the exterior is pleasing and will attract more than a passing notice, not because of anything strange or ornate, but on account of the pleasant harmony of its parts. The piazzas, liberal but not overpowering; the cornice is neat and looks in good proportion; the round projected window in the second story breaks the monotony of the front. Even the triple dormer window sets easy and natural in the roof. Any information regarding the construction or arrangement, if addressed to the author, will be cheerfully and promptly furnished.

FINERY FOR BRIDES AND BRIDESMAIDS.

It is decidedly marred when it falls over a gown with too many frills and furberies, while nothing is more charming than a graceful clinging robe, defining the figure in unbroken lines under a clinging tulle or lace veil.

One of the favorite styles for the wedding gown of soft satin shows the bodice in surplice style, the V-shaped opening being filled in by a transparent guimpe of lace. Some of these models show this surplice line continued down the side of the skirt, this fashion suggesting a graceful way of using handsome lace.

The skirts of most of these satin wedding gowns are cut in circular flare style, fitting snugly over the hips and rippling to ample width at the bottom. A few are trimmed, the tendency toward flat trappings being marked, but a great many of the most desirable models show the skirts quite untrimmed, the beauty of the material and the graceful cut being depended on to give style.

The skirt of the wedding gown shown in the drawing is quite untrimmed, although the bodice is elaborately laced with tucked mousseline and point lace. The sleeves of this gown show the long mittens line, and are of lace, the upper part having little frills and white satin straps and tassels as trimming. These long, close-fitting sleeves, by the way, are seen on a great many of the new French models, and it must be admitted that they harmonize better with the long, sweeping lines of the gown than does the elbow length sleeve, although the short sleeves are still most frequently seen.

As to the bridal veil, there are no essential novelties to chronicle, and the arrangement on the head is much the same as in the past season, the draping of the tulle or lace being arranged as usual, coming to the individual wearer. The coronet style is usually affected, the loops of tulle or lace being caught with orange blossoms. In selecting gowns for the bridesmaids more latitude is permissible in material and design, and much originality can be gained by selecting picturesque looking frocks in artistic colorings. At some of the large weddings recently the costumes of the maid of honor and the maids were modeled after those of a certain period, and were in Directorate, Louis or Empire style. When the bridesmaids vary in height and figure very markedly such picture costumes are, however, not always successful, and as all such unusual frocks need very expert makers, the less pretentious modes are usually safer. After all the ensemble of the wedding party depends not so much on the gowns considered individually as on their becomingness in coloring and style to their wearers, and if one chooses soft, graceful materials and delicate colorings the effect is sure to be successful.

It must be remembered, too, that the maid's bouquets can be depended on to give the color accent, and for this reason an all white wedding is probably more attractive than the usual varied color scheme. When white frocks are selected for the entire bridal party the maids should carry large sheaths of American Beauty or pink roses, and if hats are worn a touch of the same color in plumes or ribbon can be introduced.

The color scheme of the bridesmaid's and the honor maid's gowns shown in the illustration was in cream white, pale blue and very soft, delicate pink. The bridesmaid's frock sketched at the right was of pale blue chiffon cloth, trimmed with white shell lace, which was arranged in a fichu-like drapery down the skirt and on the bodice. The sleeves were puffs of the chiffon cloth and lace, with a square cap of the white shell lace falling over the top. The hats were of pale blue chip, with an inch and a half wide bias band of black moire as a facing on the underbrim. Long pale blue plumes were used as trimming, the end of the plume being hidden by a single large pale pink rose with foliage. The bouquets were of pale pink roses with midwinter fern foliage. The frock of the maid of honor was of white marquisette, trimmed with lace and hand embroidery. The skirt was made with a gracefully cut overskirt. The two side sections of this over drapery were joined by a panel of the material with a wide band of lace at the bottom. A design in hand embroidery was placed on this panel. The bodice showed hand embroidery in pale pinks and faded greens, and was trimmed with ruffles and insertion of cluny lace.

The hat was on white Neapolitan trimmed with pale pink roses and foliage, and a few loops and ends of pale blue velvet ribbon. DOROTHY DALE.

To Wash Lace

It is not advisable to trust hand-made lace of the finer sort to the wash, each different kind of lace requiring individual treatment. As a rule, some substitute for treatment is advisable, though often, if each point and edge is pulled out, the ironing may be done.

Tender lace needs something else, however. It should be set on a board or cover board while wet and pinned to the sun. The board is then exposed to the sun. When the lace is dry and the pins removed the lace will be found to be nicely "ironed."

Other kinds of lace which show raised work lose much of their individual distinction if ironed, unless several folds of blanket are placed underneath, in which case it may be ironed on the wrong side, but with this kind of lace the best results are gained by winding it very tightly around and round a bottle full of hot water and iron thus.

The beauty of lace is ruined if it is over-starched with starch, yet some is required to give it a proper consistency. Lace may be made an ecru color by dipping it after washing and drying in a solution of strong coffee previously strained through a piece of muslin.

Fringed dollies should not be hot starched, as it mats the fringe. While still wet the fringe should be beaten against the edge of a table; then the fringe may be wet and gathered in the hand while the centre is starched.

Before sending lace curtains to the wash it is well to mend any little holes in them, as these always are noticed in the process of washing. If they are of ecru color, a pound of coffee will be sufficient for three or four pairs. The best way to make it is to first make the coffee, then strain it, bring it to the boil again, and then make the hot starch with coffee instead of water.

Fine thread lace may be washed in the following manner with satisfactory results: Cover a quart bottle with an old stocking, fastening it securely above and below. Wind the lace carefully around the bottle, sewing the edge securely with a fine needle and thread, making every turn fast to the stocking. Immerse first in cold water, then shake the bottle up and down in warm soap-suds made from white toilet soap, patting the lace carefully through two or three waters, and when quite clean apply a solution of gum arabic and dry thoroughly. Press the lace between the leaves of a heavy book instead of ironing it.

ASPARAGUS OMELET. — Boil ten stalks of asparagus in slightly salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and cut the eatable part into small pieces. Beat five eggs until very light, add a small half-teaspoonful of salt; pour them into a hot frying pan containing a teaspoonful of butter; spread the prepared asparagus upon the upper side, and, when perfectly hot, fold the omelet together and serve.

Every day is a fresh beginning. Every morn is the world made new. Only the new days are our own. Today it ours, and to-day alone. —Susan Coolidge.

A WONDERFUL RAILROAD IN THE ARTIC CIRCLE

Something About the Nome Arctic Railroad Where the Passenger Rate is 10 Cents a Mile and the Pullman Car is Roofless.

A Seattle, Washington despatch to the New York Herald says:— The Nome-Arctic Railroad is the northernmost railroad on this continent. From the shore of Bering Sea at Nome it crosses the flowering tundra and creeps and bumps its way into the heart of the snow-crowded Sawtooth Mountain Range.

The road had been extended to Station Ex., twelve miles from Nome, when the Wild Goose Company sold it in the summer of 1905 to the Northwestern Development Company. With change of ownership came change of name, and to the newcomer the Nome-Arctic is now the Seward Peninsula Railroad.

These facts a statistical Soundough impart as the train wobbles into the first station, Brownsville. Scattered everywhere back of the roadhouse are canvas or tarpaper shacks, derricks, huge dumps—the winter's diggings waiting for water to clean up—a network of sluice boxes and miles of canvas pipes—rolling like huge reptiles through the tundra.

From Nome the tundra seems a level stretch to the foothills. The railroad, however, has a steady upward grade, one hundred feet to the mile, until the highest point is reached, Summit, which is five hundred feet above the sea level. From Dexter, the fifth station, the railroad takes a steep downward grade.

ORCHARD'S STORY OF WHOLESAL MURDERS UNSHAKEN

LEADING COUNSEL FOR STATE AND DEFENDANT IN HAYWOOD TRIAL.

Boise, Idaho, June 7.—Counsel for Wm. D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Harry Orchard at both sessions of the trial today and control their strongest assault on the events beginning with the explosion in the Victor mine and ending with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners in Denver.

Orchard said with Scott he had met K. C. Sterling, a detective in the employ of the Mine Owners Association that had paid his expenses and accompanied him to Denver on the trip when he first had met Moyer and Haywood. He said that he had agreed to report to Scott but that he was lying to him and never did make reports.

They confronted Orchard with Easterly and Ormsy Barnes and paved the way for the contradiction by one of the story told by Orchard and several times during the day he paved the way for the contradiction of his testimony on material points. Orchard stood the test and strain very well and held tenaciously to the story he related yesterday and the day before.

THE EMPIRE DRAMATIC CLUB

Gave a Very Successful Performance Last Evening—A Good Musical Programme.

The Empire Dramatic Club's performance on the stage of the Every Day Club hall last evening delighted a large audience. The two pieces played were well staged and costumed, and the different characters were well personated.

- Part I. The Troubles of Moses. Moses Mulligrub, once the proprietor of a fish cart, but now a rich speculator. Monsieur Adome—a dancing master. Mr. Richard Dasher. J. Leonard Brown. Mr. Lavender Klids—a exquisite. A. G. Boyne, Jr. Mrs. Moses Mulligrub. Mrs. H. G. Taylor. Miss Ida Mulligrub. Miss Laura Gleason. Miss Eva Mulligrub. Miss Agatha Maxwell. Scene—Private drawing room in Monsieur Adome's Academy.

- Part II. A Valet From Mayfair. Mr. Simonides Swanopper, a "model young bachelor." H. G. Taylor. Lawrence Lavender, a "valet from Mayfair." J. L. Brown. Mr. Blomfield Brambleton, "all in a fog." A. There was also a musical programme of great excellence, including solos by Mrs.

WHAT A PITY. That ambitious people through hard work invariably neglect health, it is pitiful to look into their pale tired faces and see plainly written there the evidence of transgressed law. The penalties of overwork are as easily seen as they are hard to bear—sleepless nights—tired mind and body—hearts that flutter and cause all sorts of uncomfortable feelings. Happily if these symptoms have not been so long established as to be chronic, Ferronez will cure them. Its mode of action is very simple, its curative power very great. It makes people eat more because it creates a wholesome feeling of hunger. If you want strength and endurance use Ferronez—it will give it to you. No other tonic so full of nutriment and strengthening properties. Even one box will prove its enormous merits; try Ferronez—50c. per box.

Non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla. If you think you need a tonic, ask your doctor. If you think you need something for your blood, ask your doctor. If you think you would like to try Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla, ask your doctor. We publish the formula. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Undigested Food

When any portion of food remains in the stomach and refuses to digest, it causes the torments of indigestion. This undigested food rapidly ferments, irritating the sensitive coating of the stomach, while other parts of the body, particularly the head, suffer in consequence.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

stop all fermentation, sweeten the contents of the stomach and give natural assistance that relieves the stomach of its burden. The use of Beecham's Pills gradually strengthens the stomach nerves and soon restores them to a normal, healthy condition. Beecham's Pills positively cure all stomach troubles, while their beneficial effects on the liver and kidneys greatly improve the general health.

Weakness and Debility

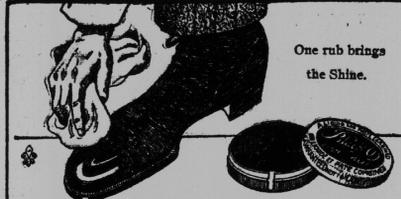

are generally caused by the poor or vicious atmosphere of the city, or by overwork, bad food, abuses, etc. Those dreadful diseases attack both sexes at different stages of life. But fortunately, nature has provided an infallible remedy to cure those diseases which are caused by poverty of blood.

VIN ST. MICHEL

contains all the elements necessary for rebuilding an impaired constitution, strengthening the tissues, giving to the bones the necessary substance, and purifying and enriching the blood which is the source of life. St. Michael's Wine is perfect in the make up; it agrees with the most delicate stomach. St. Michael's Wine means health, strength and life.

LETTER FROM W. E. SCULLY
To the Editor of the Times.
Sir—The Saint John Ice Company are making a big blow over what they call their victory over me. What does it all amount to? They made two charges to the railway commission; namely, first, that the New Brunswick Southern Railway Co. was making an unlawful discrimination in carrying for me ice by the carload at the price was refused to them; second, that prices were refused to them; second, that there was no tariff filed with the railway commission charging a rate per carload. The first charge was founded against them. The evidence given on their part as to discrimination not being believed. On the second charge it was admitted by the railway company that in neglecting to file a special tariff for carload lots. You will see by examining the report of the commissioner that he states this was not wilfully done by Mr. Wetmore. The Saint John Ice Company are out of business. Since the ice business was started at Spruce Lake (over twenty years ago) the rate has always been by carload lots. Let me say this to the Saint John Ice Company: They cannot buy me out or frighten me out of business. I propose to continue selling ice at the same low price as formerly. Everyone knows that if I were driven out of business the price of ice would go up to twice the figure it is now selling for. I defy the ice company to continue proceedings against me. I propose to fight them to the end. British justice will never allow the law to be used to prosecute a business rival and create a monopoly.

HALIFAX LADY SHOOTS HERSELF

Suicide of Miss Adelina Hatfield, Hospital Nurse in Training in Victoria B. C.

(Victoria, B. C. Colonist, June 1.)
Miss Adelina Hatfield, 34 years of age, who was training as a nurse at the Provincial Royal Jubilee hospital, committed suicide last night at the residence of her sister, Mrs. (Capt.) Davis, 20 King's road, by shooting herself through the head with a revolver. She was presumably deranged, having been suffering from melancholia for some time, following an attack of nervous prostration which necessitated her leaving her work at the hospital about three months ago. On leaving the hospital she took up her residence with her sister, whose husband is chief officer of the tug Lorne, which left port yesterday morning for Sydney with the ship Glory of the Sea. Mrs. Davis' children, Marion and Katherine, and Mrs. Gilchrist, a widow, and her son, are also living at the King's road home. Yesterday evening Mrs. Davis was absent for a time, and the unfortunate lady took advantage of her absence to secure Capt. Davis' revolver and two cartridges. The revolver, unloaded, was kept in a drawer in the captain's room.

About 10:20 p. m., when other occupants of the house were in bed, they were awakened by the report of a revolver, and hurrying to Miss Hatfield's room found the lady lying on her right side on her bed, fully dressed, with blood flowing profusely from her head and a shining new revolver clutched at her breast in her right hand. Nothing could be done, death having been instantaneous. The revolver had been pressed close against the right temple and the bullet had passed through the skull and out at the left side, being found imbedded in the pillow.

Miss Hatfield came to Victoria about ten months ago from Halifax, Nova Scotia, and took up her residence with her sister. She shortly afterward she entered the Provincial Royal Jubilee hospital and began training with the nurses there. Since her nervous attack, which necessitated her leaving the hospital, she has suffered at times from severe melancholia, and neighbors have noticed her excessive despondency. It is believed that it was in one of these attacks of melancholia that she decided to end her life.

HALF HOLIDAY BASEBALL GAME

Clippers and Marathons of Amateur League Will Meet This Afternoon.

If the weather man is kind and rain does not interfere, baseball fans will be treated to a good baseball game on the Victoria grounds this afternoon, when the Marathons and Clippers, of the Amateur League, will meet. These teams are putting up a rattling good article of ball, and today's game promises to be an exciting contest. The game will commence at 2:30 o'clock, and as this will be the first Saturday half-holiday game a bumper crowd will no doubt attend. The teams will line up as follows:

Marathons—Roster, c.; Dooly, i.; Shetles, l. b.; D. Malcolm, 2nd b.; Bradley, 3rd b.; Stone, s. s.; Totton, l. f.; J. Malcolm, c. f.; Clawson, r. f.
Clippers—Cooper, c.; Barrett, p.; McDonough, l. b.; Currie, 2nd b.; McBride, 3rd b.; McNutt, s. s.; Home, l. f.; Ritchie, c. f.; Stafford, r. f.
After the ball game the gates will be opened and free sports, similar to those of last Saturday, will be held. Several prizes will be given to the winning contestants.

SERIOUS FIRE IN A CANDY FACTORY

Fire in White's Candy Factory Last Night Did $2,500 Damage.

An alarm from box 12 was rung in last night, at 8 o'clock, for a fire in White's candy factory on Union street, and before it was extinguished $2,500 damage was done. The loss is covered by insurance.

The fire caught from a small furnace used for boiling candy, and when the firemen arrived the rafters of the floor of the fourth story were ablaze. A space of 30 or 40 feet along the eastern wall was affected by the fire, but the loss was nearly all the result of water. The machinery suffered somewhat and the rooms down stairs were damaged.
