TO ASSASSINATE KING ALFONSO

Discovery of an Anarchist Plot at Madrid and Arrests

Dynamite Cartridges Found on the Premises with one of the Prisoners Captured.

Madrid, May 18 .- An anarchist plot against King Alfonso has been dister, including that of Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance company, have been made. Dynamite formed.

As in Friday's fiasco the principal the King is confirmed by the news-papers here. It is now said that nine dynamite cartridges were seized.

Further arrests have been made, and the prisoners include medical stushape for the great night perform-

The captured cartridges are being analyzed by the military authorities. According to the newspapers here the police have had no inkling of the anarchist plot against the King since last March, and in April they discovered an anarchist meeting place in a fashionable quarter of Madrid. Three Andalusian anarchists arrived here May 2, and were arrested shortly after their arrival. rest it was learned that a door-keep-er of an assurance company, which is situated in the Carrera San Geronimo, on the route of yesterday's royal procession, and near the Chamber of Deputies, Lad a number of cartridges, believed to be of dynamite, in his possession. The man was arrested at three a. m. to-day. Gabriel Lopez, the door-keeper, is a man of middle age. He was examined before the magistrate , when he declared that the man who gave him the cartridges and told him to throw them as the royal coach passed was Francusco Suarez. Saurez s notorious for the part he played in an attempted outrage under the late Canovas de Castillo, seven years ago, when he accompanied an anarexplode a bomb in Canovas del Cas-tillo's garden. The bomb exploded prematurely, Ruiz was killed and Suarez was badly injured. He was and has only recently been liberated. Suarez and accused the latter with giving him the dynamite cartridges, This Suarez denied, and both men are detained. Four other men have been arrested in connection with the affair, and none of them deny being anarchists. According to the Heraldo some vacillation was shown by cer-tain men who recently attended an anarchist meeting here, whereupon Carpentes Palacios, one of the anar-chists taken into custody, said—"We must decide at the King's oath-tak-

HEAVY RAIN

A heavy shower passed over this city this morning. George Bartlett had been down to the Malcolmson store getting out the boat order, and he was getting out the boat order, and he was returning home about 6.30. Mr., Bartlett saw the storm coming and hurried home, afraid of getting wet. The storm crossed over part of South Chatham, just missing the Raleigh St. terrance, where Mr. Bartlett lives. Lust beyond Mr. Bartlett lives. This year he and Judge Houston four more. Just beyond Mr. Bartlett's home the rain fell in a regular deluge. The rain was one of the heaviest in Chatham, yet Mr. Bartlett was able to walk home without the use of even an umbrella. STICKS BY THE CORPORATIONS.

On Saturday the local "Liberal" organ spent two columns in defending the corporations against Mr. Fraser's assessment attack. The Banner is considerably muddled as to the facts, as usual, but let that pass. The point is that Mr. Fraser seeks to have the municipalities aided by the receipts of a just assessment of railroads and other corporations, while Mr. Pardo's organ attacks him vigorously therefor and seeks to prove that the railroads and other corporations are sufficiently taxed, anyway. The machine and the corporations hang to gether well, but it is the people who will pass judgment on the 29th. And the verdict will be for Whitney and Fraser and the people's rights, as against corporations and monopo-

WHY

The following is from the Detroit Journal, whose recent pro-Boer ardor and slurs at Canada's south African contingents gave evidence of the affectionate interest it takes in this country and its people. The Windsor Record and other Rossite publications are quoting it extensively.

The Journal says :-

They (the Liberals) have a leader in whom the people have every confinier Ross is counted the ablest man in Canada, next to Premier Laurier. If anything happened Pre-mier Laurier, Ross would be his sucor. Indeed the Conservatives were the first to mention Ross' name in connection with the Dominion premiership when it was recently reported that Laurier would resign on count of ill-health. Mr. Ross has been premier since the death of Premier Hardy three years ago. He was then Minister of Education and to his superior ability as an educationist is credited the splendid school system that obtains in the province. He is the ablest premier Ontario ever had, although Sir Oliver Mowat, the present lieutenant-governor of the province, who carried the province at every election for 25 years, was a leader of no mean ability.

To all of which patriotic Canadians are inclined to query,-Why are the interests of the Yankees so identical with the success of

Is it because Ross so ardently sought the interests of the Michigan lumbermen, until the able Liberal-Conservative chieftain, Mr. Whitney, forced his hand by arousing public sentiment?

THE MAN THEY COULD NOT BRIBE.

No more convincing arraignment of the Ross Government has been made than that put forward by Mr. J. J. Foy in his speech at Carleton. Mr. Foy takes good care to make a sharp distinction between the comparatively few Liberals who, since they are at the head of affairs, take advantage of their position to enact unrighteous ness, and the far greater number who have become more and more dissatisfied with the corrupt bossism and heelership of the party leaders, until now they are prepared to sacrifice party to principal. The broadness of miral which characterizes Mr. Foy's address is one of the traits of the man. As a political factor in Ontario he ranks high, high enough, in the opinion of the Dominion Government, to be offered the highest position on the bench, in the hope of removing him from the political world. But against the allurements and

At Carleton he spoke in part as follows:

"However, Mr. Chairman, the Conservative party does not in this election rely solely upon what we call the wickedness of-I won't say the other party-but of the dominating party in the other party. I claim, sir, that there are thousands and thousands of honest Liberals who deprecate what has been done, just as much as the Conservatives do. These facts have the party in various constituencies. ers and office seekers, of men in govimplicated, are really responsible, because they have virtually condoned what these men have done. GOVERNMENT LIBERALITY. The government organs are constantly harping on what the Ross administration has done for the people of New Ontario. It has been lavish, at all events, in helping its friends with the property which the whole people own. Conservatives as well as Liberals are interested in what the government has been doing with the property which they own jointly. But below are given some instances of what has been done, for which the Liberal papers have not given them credit. The Mail and Empire supplies the omissions: The Ross Government has placed debt of $5,800,000 upon Ontario and has incurred new railway liabilities aggre gating $7,752,000.

It has given 6,560,000 acres of land with all their minerals to railway companies, and 15,660 square miles of pulpwood secretly and without public competition, to syndicates. It has supplemented its revenues by depriving the municipalities of income from licenses and corporations.

It has proposed to take 15 per cent. of all the corporation taxes the municipalities now collect; and it has seiz ed authority to levy direct taxes upon every citizen, and to compel the county, city, or town tax gatherer to colect them.

It has locked up land in New Ortara that the colonist may not occupy it; it has driven 4,617 settles out of New Ontario in ten years; it has squandered colonization road money upon politicians; it has handicapped the miner with laws that are pro nounced "rotten" by experts.

It has refused agricultural schools for the farmer, and has declined to reform the educational system, to miti gate the text-book monopoly, and to nodernize the public schools,

Why are John S. Fraser and T. L. Pardo very sweet just now? Because they are candy-dates.

The Bankers got a slight check on Saturday. Pete McAuley's team caused the draft and the result was a dash of a note. I reckon that the Bankers' base the Soul of Honor and Justice.

Rome, May 17.—The trial of the brigand Mossolina still continues. A witness, in giving his evidence before the court, stated that he assisted at the ceremony when Mussolino was made a member of the Mafia. He further stated that this society helped the brigand time after time to outwi the ends of justice. Mussolino, speaking in a high voice, and striking a theatrical attitude, cried out:

"This witness is a liar. I am not a member of the Mafia; but he is a vilmember of the Mafia; but he is a vil-lain, and came to me on behalf of the society, and asked me to kill two peo-ple for him. This I refused to do. I do not kill to order. I am not a person to seek such commission. When I have slain anyone, it has been in the cause of justice. I, Mussolino, am the soul of honor and justice."

The confinement for several days to which the President of Assizes con-which the President of Assizes con-demned Mussolino on account of his impudent behaviour did not have the desired effect.

On the trial being resumed he was more loquacious than ever, and the greater part of the sitting was occupi-ed in a dispute between the prisoner and a witness. The witness testified that Mussolino had two accomplices when his brother Martha Giuseppe was murdered. Mussolino greatly resented this, and in violent language declared that he had no need of accomplices.

Another witness affirmed that the brigand—in seite of his undoubted.

Another witness affirmed that the brigand—in spite of his undoubted piety—used to call for vengeance to wait upon his victim even in the next world. To one of these, Francesco, who asked for a short respite to commend her soul to God, he replied with a blank refusal, saying:—"The blood of Mussolino must be paid for."

VIGOROUS COMPLAIN

"I would like to know," said Orville Dolsen this morning, "who pays R. A. Hughes for testing the scales. Is paid by fees which he collects. I think that there is something wron in the way the fees are charged. The drayman is hired by the day. Yet every store keeper is assessed 20 cents drayage. Why from the business drayage. Why from the business men on this corner over $1.50 was collected for drayage alone. Imagine charging 20 cents for carrying the weights across the street. They charge enough in addition for testing the scales, 75 cents each. It isn't so much what they charge for test-ing the scales as that 20 cents imposition. I object to that and I am going to find out about it."

A Ruined Book.

The man who has an old book re bound can never be too minute in his instructions to his binder. Once upon a time, it is said, a tattered "Shake speare" was sent to the binders for the sole purpose of preserving a number of marginal notes in manuscript. What was the chagrin of the owner when his book came back with the edges neatly pared and gilt and the notes that he treasured half cut away.

Cats have very "level" brains and are too self centered and self contained as a rule to show the distinctions which exist between them. Their strongest instinct is toward a kind of domestic comfort not exactly shared with human beings, but enjoyed in their company, to which the cat perfectly adapts itself. Yet there are misanthropic cats which make no secret of their dislike and contempt for mankind in general, only come into the house under protest and would prefer to sleep in a coal cellar to taking their nap in good society. These are the exceptions in the cat world, but every one has me

EXPERIENCES WITH VOYAGERS ON AWAY BACK WATERS.

Savage-Through an Indian Hunting Ground-A Good Word for the Indian -In His Own Business He Cannot Be

An interesting account of experiences in the Canadian forests is given by a writer for The Empire Review, under the title, "Canadian Voyageurs." In the course of it he writes as follows:

But to those who know the smell of the balsam and the aroma of the twisted cedar, who have seen the infinite cliffs, the hollow canyons and the dashing cascades of the Caradian northland, the yearning for the goods is not one which passes understanding. The fever is still in the blood though the breed has changed. The coureurs de bois were the lost legion of the French regime, but they were empire builders, after their kind, who stayed not for forest nor torrent, but pressed north, west and south, to spread the Gallic lilies over half a continent. To-day Canadian voyageur is the scout another empire. Still resolutely he pierces the sub-Arctic wilderness, and paddles his birch bark into unknown waters. The rulers of the old regime set themselves against the woodland fever. To-day the government turns it to account by organizing and despatching exploring parties into that vast country lying between Hudson Bay and the Great Lakes,

Expeditions of this kind are naturthrough an Indian hunting ground; but in that broad district stretching from Labrador to the Lake of the Woods, where once the populous Montagnais, Algonquins, nd Pottawattamies roamed, tribes are few and far between. century of commercial hunting trapping has made the peltries scarce and now the straggling natives are selling their birthright for a mess of pottage. The aborigines are surely passing with the game. Hunger and exposure bring consumption, and it is now rare to find an Indian whose ungs are sound. It was about 5 o'clock on a June norning that our small fleet of canoes pushed off in the rain from the south shore of Lake Helen, and paddle of three miles brought us to the Narrows; 9 miles further up we came to Camp Alexander, which lies at the foot of two miles of rapids, the first chute on that magnificent waterway, which is also the first trout stream in the world. Here, in a blinding rainstorm, — we pitched our tents, and, besides the discomfort of being wet, we were rav-Nothing can equal aged that night by mosquitoes. All next day, and the next, we wad the ed over the portage through mud, weighed down by loads ranging from 100 to 200 pounds, according as we were whites or Indians, The derfect or seasoned packmen. man who has never had a pack strap across his forehead or staggered mile or so under a hundredweight of pemmican will know but faintly of the joy of a two-mile portage or the perspiration which attendeth it. On the fourth day we had our canoes once more in the water, and an early start brought us to Split Rock Portage before noon, Islet Portage was reached in due course, and for the night we camped at the south end of Pine Portage, At the foot of these rapids we landed several five and six-pound speckled trout, which made a pleasant variationn in our menu. The day following we forwarded our supplies across Pine Portage, a distance of two miles. Passing around the foot of the White Chute we came to Little Flat Rock early in the afternoon, and, leaving the Nepigon River, crossed little Black Sturgeon Lake to the west, camping for the night on Flat Rock Portage—the home of the original

At daybreak we made our way across the trail and had our first glimpse of Lake Nepigon, the largest body of water between Lake Superior and Hudson Bay, measuring about 40 miles long by as many abruptly from the dark, deep water, and forest fires have scorched its bleak headlines. Here the Hudson Bay schooner Bella was waiting for us, and as soon as our supplies were on board she slipped out of the bar-ren harbor. I must not give the impression the Indians as a race,, idle, childish and incapable. In his own business, so to speak, the Indian cannot be surpassed. In the woods he is agile as a deer. He will carry his canoe through undergrowth that almost balks you empty handed. one occasion we were making our way overland to a small lake. There was no trail to speak of, and the distance was five miles. We rested only once, and, although I was only burdened with a rifle, I had great trouble in keeping pace with the cop-perhead who bore on his shoulders my 50-pound canoe. Seeing that the savage triumphs over his environ-ment through the sharpening of his wits, one half expects the ingenuity by which he secures his prey. His traps and deadfalls are marvels of crude engineering, but he does not rely on such implements exclusively. One day a partridge started up in front of us as we were crashing through the brush, and by some through the brush, and by some chance we were without a firearm. The bird looked down upon us foolishly, after the manner of partridges, little suspecting the sequel. In about a minute an Indian had cut down a sapling, pulled forth a tendril from under the moss, and, executing a flank movement, he soon had the silly bird dangling at the end of his pole.

Our cook, Perrot, was a French-Canadian who knew the backwoods from the Ottawa to Hudson Bay, but before we reached home we had dragged him over a country he had never seen before. Perrot was also our interpreter, He knew all about Indians. Some said that his own mother was an Ojibway squaw, but this Perrot denied with a good Scotch oath, and as he wore a long, fair moustache and parted his hair in the middle, I believed him. As a linguist, his repertory was great, including English, French, Ojibway, Cree, Chinook and the profane. The last named he had perfected in long course of river driving on the Gatineau, where a sharp tongue as useful as an ox, and a stark oath as fetching as a canthook. Our guides knew no English, but they told their yarns to Perrot with the most butrageous powpow. And afterward he repeated them to us.

To be with Perrot in the canoe was to be at ease. No matter how fierce was the rapid or how high the wave, his paddle seems to throw oil upon it, and he brought us safely through the flood. A rushing river or a foaming cataract had no hidden terrors for him. He knew by the shade of the water and the curl of the wave how deep was the reef, and he would juggle his canoe through the rocky jaws of death. One slip, one salse movement, and the tiny craft would be shattered on rocks or swamped by the back eddy. A Canadian voyageur seldom has two chances, and on account of its element of constant danger the running of rapids is a most exciting sport.

Imagine yourself bounding down a watery stairway, perhaps half a mile in length, swept around a bend by the milky cataract, the banks flying by like the panorama past the win-dow of a train. Your pulses are galloping, but your eye is fastened on ment you must second. His paddle is now on the port, now on the star-board side; anon it is thrust out in front to guard against false chan-Over the last chute you bound like a toboggan on the ice, and slide at length into smooth water. The other canoes race down, taking exactly the same course, but running less risk now that you have picked out the safe waterway. A landing is made at the foot of the rapids, since here is always the best fishing ground. The axes ring out for awhile, and then in the little clearing the tents are pitched. Meanwhile the cook has made a fire, on the beach, and over it on a pole the kettle is hung. Tea, bread, pork and beans—with stewed prunes as the plat du jour-make a banquet in the woods, with hunger for a sauce piquante. One will eat anything, and lots of it, when the aromatic balsam gets in his lungs and the taffrail log shows 30 or 40 miles a day. Then a good long smoke round the campfire to keep the flies at bay; a game of cards; more of Perrot's stories, or your own; and if you have run across a flock of wild duck during the day there will be a bowl of bouillon before you turn in for the night.

A Ghostly Game of Chess.

Monico is a truly palatial chamber, over so many feet broad by ever so many more feet long. On the evenings of Friday and Saturday of last week," says London "Outlook," "it was divided by a barts, into two unequal parts. In look," "It was divided by a barrier into two unequal parts. In the smaller sat, each at his board, the British chess-players competing against the American chess-players—who were not there. Through the larger roamed a selection of the chess public. . . Inside the barrier, and next it, sat Mr. James Mason at a chess-board, facing us. We seem to have known Mr. Mason as a fine player these—well, say twenty years. On er these—well, say twenty years. On this occasion he is opposing Mr. J. R. Barry of America—who is not here; Mr. Barry is sitting in a room in Brooklyn three thousand miles away, under the eyes of American spectators. It is easy to say that the two men are connected by electric telegraph; but it is not wise to dispose of the mystery and romance of space in so rude a way. . But Mr. Mason, in this grand International Hall, seated opposite nothing better than a man with a book of telegraph forms who waits unconcernedly for the move, can he play thus dumbly and in absence against Mr. Barry in Brooklyn and think it chess? It is a very ghostly busines and we wonder Mr. Mason can get through with it at all. But he does. He is as solemn, as rapt in thought, as oblivious of all but the game as if Mr. Barry were opposite to him in the flesh, and not opposed to him only by electric telegraph. Clearly to him the play is everything, whether the oppon-ent's move comes to him by actual touch, by telegraph, or by psychic suggestion. But for our part we cannot throw off a dread of the uncanny nature of the business. We feel infastation of Mr. American Barry's epirit. What better evidence of it could we have than the arrangement of these wooden pieces on that wooden board? There is Mr. Barrymost effectually Mr. Barry, for he is causing Mr. Mason to think, and think, and think; to purse his lips in the old familiar way, to fall into immovable stiences, wherein you would think he was revolving schemes of a new order of creation or puzzling out the mystery of man's origin and destiny; and Mr. Mason is doing the like to him in far Brooklyn. A strange and fascinating pursuit is chess, strange and unprofit-Not politics, nor fame, nor wealth, nor love can so engross a man These objects are usually comp by flashes of passion, insight, and daring; but this slow, prolonged struggle of brain against brain, through the medium of pieces of fantastically carved wood, is pure devotion to an abstraction. The man who wins, who so hems in the piece of wood called a king that he may not move, gain nothing, proves nothing, established nothing but-"checkmate." Yet when he accomplishes that he tastes of a satisfaction deeper and more permanent than is accorded to statesman or complish it he deliberately, and for very love of the doing of it, undertakes an enormous mental effort, a thing which mankind in general shuns as if it were Satan himself. Truly a most myetical business this chess. In Para-dise you will find politicians reading poetry, and poets studying morals; rchants will be cultivating the arts, and critics weeping on other people's necks; but the chess-players will be playing chess.

Some genius has according to his own advertisement, invented an ap-paratus to dispense with getting up so early in winter time to sat the kettle bolling. As far as we un-derstand it, you fix the new invention on your clock, and at the hour required it starts a fire under a kettle of water. As soon as the water boils a bell rings, and you wake up. This is not the sort of thing that takes the cake;

the sort of thing that takes the cake; it simply grabs it.
We once saw a remarkable invention of this nature in Sheffield. It consisted of a small, but powerfully built bedstead which had an ingenious clockwork arrangement attached, as you would expect, to the ticking of the mattress. In the morning a phonograph got up from under the bed, walked round to your side, and announced it was seven o'clock. After walked round to your side, and announced it was seven o'clock. After giving you two minutes to reply, one of the hands of the clock reached up and pulled your ear playfully. These were just preliminaries so to speak. If you didn't move then, the patent bed began business. It got up on its hind legs and ran downstairs with you inside it till it got to the garden, where side it till it got to the garden, where you were shot into a modest little heap under the pump. By a clever arrangement of the process of suction you were drawn up to the mouth and a refreshing stream of cold water crawled down your back. If this didn't wake you, you had to wait for Gabriel's trumpet.

As a matter of fact, the inventor explained, it did wake most people. But in case you were too sleepy to collect your thoughts into fitting shape, by pressing a little knob in one of the blankets a second phonograph would blankets, a second phonograph would grind out a little appropriate profani-ty to ease your feelings. The invention is patented; and when it is put on the market it will best all the spring mattresses going, as it does for summer, autumn, and winter as well.—"Pick-Me-Up."

An "Infernal" Dinner.

A tiny girl of seven gave a dinner-party the other day, for which twolve covers were laid, and that number of small maidens aat down to dies. It was a real little girls' dinner, and the little hostess herself presided, sitting at the head of the table. She had been very anxious, in looking forward to ft, to do everything as it should be done. "Mamma," she asked, "shall we say grace?" "No," sald mamma; "it will be a very informal dinner, and I think you need not do that." That meant one ceremony the less to be gone through and was a relief. But the little lady was anxious to how all her guests understand it. So as they mained: "Mamma says that this is such an infernal dinner that we mad not have grace to-day!"

" Judge Pennypacker of Philadelphia tells a story which shows the readiness of the Pennsylvania Dutchman to obey those in authority: In 1864 Sheridan, under orders, burned every barn from a valley above Staunton to a certain point below Winchester. A band of angry rebels followed this raid, watching for a chance to pick up any stragglers. Among others who fell into their hands was a little Pennsylvania Dutchman, who quietly turned to his cap-tors and enquired: "Vat you fellows going to do mit me?" The reply owne short and sharp: "Hang you." "Veit, he said, meekly, "vatever is de ruis." His good-natured reply threw the Confederates into a roar of laughter and saved his life. One day last autumn Bennet Burleigh, the noted English special war correspondent, was encountered a few miles outside Pretoria by that volcanic rhetorician, General Tucker. "What are you doing out here with that — thing?" asked the general, pointing to a kodak which was slung round his shoulders. "Well, sir," promptly replied Mr. Burleigh, "I was intending to take some photographs; but had I known that I was to have the pleasure of meeting you I should have brought out a phonograph." At this audacity, it is said that even General Tucker's stock of sulphurous adbility of some Englishmen in the colonies, recently told the following story: Once in Australia on my way through the bush, with my friend Cabbage Tree Bill, we were accompanied by a burly and intelligent young gentleman from Devonshire, and as we came along we saw along the road, if it might be called a road, a young kangaroo. Bill said: 'Now wait a minute; you will see him take the letters.' The kangaroo was sitting up as if waiting for something, and Bill said, 'He has his pouch and everything ready to carry them,' but as we came along Bill snapped his whip and said, 'Nothing to-day,' and the kangaroo trotted off, the young LINIMENT on my vessel and in my family for years, and for the every day ills and accidents of life I considgentleman believing for a great part of the rest of the journey that the object of the kangaroo's presence was as Bill

For axample, one night Mr. Sousa was standing in a railway station, on the platform, waiting for a train. A belated traveler ran up to him and asked, excitedly, "Has the nine-three train pulled out?" "I really don't know," pulled out?" "I really don't know," responded Mr. Sousa. "Well, why don't you know?" shouted the traveler. "What are you standing here for like a stick of wood? Aren't you a conductor?" "Yes," said Mr. Sousa, pleasaintly, "I am a conductor." "A nice sort of conductor, indeed!" exclaimed the man. "Well, you see," smilingly responded the musician, "I am not the conductor of a train, but of a brass band."

Music in the Dark.

Musical Germany has recently been discussing in all seriousness the ques-tion whether it is true that a perni-cious effect is produced upon mu-sic-lovers at public concerts by feminine beauty, with its delightful accessories, as seen in a blaze of artificial light reflected by crystal, gold and glittering diamonds? Germany answers yes, and declares that in future lights must be turned down; in fact, some of the bolder spirits have already put them out and left the audience in darkness.

The idea was first suggested to concert reformer in Darmstadt, who took to reading Goethe, and came upon a chapter in Wilhelm Meister," in which an eccentric lover of music is described: "He could not five without music, more especially singing, and he was wont to listen to it without seeing the elegent." This quaint individual the singers." This quaint individual used to say that music is really intended for the ear only, whereas in concert rooms it is made to minister mainly to the eye, to accompany movements, not sensations. The gentleman from Darmstadt thereupon concluded that the first step in the way of rational reform would be to lower the lights and shut his eyes to the consequences, and as many people jumped at the idea, it has already been realized, first in Darmstadt, and then in Frankfort-on-the-Experiments are about to be

A man goes to a concert to hear music. But when he gets there he sees a great deal more than he hears, and his attention is distracted. The pillars, the statues, the lusters, all turn his thoughts away from the strains meant to soothe or inspirit. That is not as it should be, and yet it is not by any means the worst. He looks around at the ladies, many of whom come to be looked at. He sees the luxuriant tresses of one sylph-like figure before him, and as he cannot catch a glimpse of her charming face, he tries to guess at the features. His neighbor, a rich tradesman, is engaged in estimating the cost of the riviere of diamonds round her shapely neck. A third worshiper of Terpsichore finds himself behind the sweetest thing in hats, and must be content with hearing, since he can't see anything because of the beautiful obstruction. Now, all these things were brought to the concert for the purpose of sing seen, whereas people come primarily to hear. Suddenly a burst of applause reminds them of this factand of the other, that they have not been listening to the sonata.

Kissing the Baby.

There are many mothers who give themselves infinite trouble about the big and obvious things connected with nursery management—who strive bravely to be up to date in the matter of plumbing, ventilation and infectious diseases — who yet fall woefully when it comes to certain details. One of the most important of these is the disgusting and dangerous habit of allowing every comer to kiss and maul the baby, says the "Youth's

A baby, no doubt, is a delightful object and almost irresistible, but that is no reason why advantage should be taken of his helpless condition to offer him constant hygienic outrages.

Here is a speech a well-meaning goose of a young mother made to the father of her child on his return from business: "Mrs. Smith called to-day, She has a fearful cold and sore throat. She thought the baby was just too sweet for anything, and wouldn't let him out of her arms. He took to her wonderfully, too." Naturally the baby developed a bad case of the snuffles in a day or two, and then it was : The baby has a dreadful cold. cannot think where he got it, we are always so careful." This mother and the hundreds like her should be taught the lesson that promiscuous kissing is a bad and vulgar habit, productive of much danger to adults as well as to children. Adults can proteot themselves if they like, but infants cannot, and so it is the duty of the mothers to protect them. Even if they mercifully escape tual infection in babyhood, there still remains the fact that a silly and unclean habit is formed, resulting in schools full of kissing children, and by and by in ridiculous communities of kissing acquaintances. We may learn a useful lesson from the Japanese in this regard. They are not a kissing race, and the little children do not know what it means, except perhaps from their mothers. It is generally acknowledged that the Japanese babies are the healthiest and happiest of youngsters, and who shall say how much wholesome restraint from the kissing habit may have to do with this fortunate state of affairs? To make too much of children is to spoil them, but in one respect they should be treated like royalty-if they must be kissed it should be only the back of the hand.

Prognostications.

Perfect Cure for Bronchitis

This disease can be treated only by remedy carried to the affected paris long with the air breathed, for ture intended these organs for the passage of air alone, and sprays, atomizers and internal medicines utterly fail. But Catarrhozone doesn't fail, for it goes wherever the air breathed goes, and its healing antiseptic vapor is sure to reach every affected part. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth and after passing through every air cell of the breathing organs is slowly availed through the statement of the statem exhaled through the nostrils. Catarri-ozone protects and heals the inflamed surfaces, relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and perfectly cures all bronchial affections. Price $1. Small size 25c. #### 57-62 The Critical Age

Height of vigor past—nature's pow-er slowing down, vitality less, recup-erative power less, endurance less. Stop the progress of decay, tone up the weakened nerve centres, impart vigor to the tiring brain, prepare for the crisis. A means of remarkable protency in the renewal of decreasing vigor is found in Ferrozone. It brightens up the whole being, imparts brightens up the whole being, imparts a sense of power and strength. By the use of Ferrozone, old age is pushed, back twenty years. Ferrozone gives strength, vigor, endurance, vim. Your druggist has it. Get a box to-day at McCall's.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP. It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. health causes serious trouble. No-body can be too careful to keep the balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sick-ness, weakness, or debility. The sys-tem needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best onic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it en-joys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine.

Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance. True poiliteness consists in being asy one's self, and in making everybody about one as easy as one can.

A lazy liver may only be a cired liv er, or a starved liver. A stick is all right for the back of a lazy man. But it would be a savage as well as a stu-pid thing to beat a weary man of a starving man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging liver it is a great mistake to lash it with drastic drugs. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a torpid or sluggish liver is but a symptom of an ill-nourished body, whose organs are weary with overwork. Let your liver alone. Start with the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in proper working order, and see how quickly your liver will become active and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvellous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful con-trol of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands. cleanses the system from p accumulations, and so relieves the live er of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

SUCCESSFUL ANNIVERSARY

Crowded Congregations Attend Service in First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Mr. Tolmie's Splendid Ad-Excellent Services.

Rev. J. C. Tolmie, of Windsor, occued the pulpit of the First Presbyerian church yesterday. It being the anniversary of the church's erection, of a special character.

Mr. Tolmie, who is ever a welcome visitor to Chatham, was greeted with very large audiences both morning and evening, and those who attended rewarded by hearing two of the ablest sermons ever delivered in the city. In the evening it was with difficulty that seating accommodation was found for the large crowds who sought admission. Chairs were placed in the aisles and every seat in the church was occupied.

Mr. Tolmie chose for the subject of his discourse the words of Apostle Paul, uttered near the end of his life, "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the

With his clever descriptive powers the preacher took his audience back to the days of this noble martyr and described very eloquently his life and work in Rome, pointing out the numerous trials and troubles with which he had to contend, and how, in the face of all of these difficulties he was able, in the last years of his life to say the words of the text.
"Will you and I ever be able to say those words?" he asked his listeners.
"I think it is one of the noblest things

"I think it is one of the noblest things in this earth to live a life of self victory—to crush down the base that is within us and lead a pure, holy and true life. Temptation is a good thing and is a source of strength to all of those who are truly trying to live pure Christian lives. There are some men who, by the temperance movement would wipe off from the earth every vestige of the liquor traffic. They would have a garden traffic. They would have a garden without the tree of temptation. If such were done man would go through this life sapless, spiritless and useless. Give me the man who has withstood the temptations of this life and who has come through it all with his muscles developed in the battle of life. You don't have to have a good government sit to do it. Any man can do it."

Here he gave instances where men such as Samson, Judas and others had failed to keep their trust and how in each case they suffered untold mental agony for their sin.

"No man," said he, "can be happy in his sin. Heaven needs no walls or gates to bar such creatures from entering. They could not be happy in the company of righteous men. "I have finished my course! We should be very careful in choosing which course we are to pursue in life. One of the great evils in this world to-day is that one man is try-ing to do another's work. A parent should be very careful in selecting a profession for a son without consulting his own tastes. 'Train up a child in the way he should go' is good advice and should be seriously

"I have kept the faith." This was done by him, when he was surround-ed by heathen who did all in their power to discourage him in his work. I think we as Presbyterians have great reason to feel proud and hold up our heads in the world as men who come from a noble stock of martyrs who have lived and died for their religion.

"Then Paul also looks forward to his reward as a crown of Righteousness. I have heard this preached about as a crown with stars to be worn on the head. This is a sample of the literalness which is killing our religion. The crown of Righteousness is a crown of right living."

Mr. Tolmie closed his sermon with strong appeal to his audience to copy more after the life of the Apostle Paul.

The choir, under the directorship o Mrs. John Cooper, rendered special music both morning and evening.

In the morning the choir sang an anthem, "Jubilatee Deo," very acceptably with the solo parts well taken by Miss Helen Smith, contratto, and Duncan Robertson, basso. Mrs. and Duncan Robertson, basso. Mrs. Bogart also rendered a magnificent solo, "Calvary." In the evening the choir sang an anthem, "The Shadows of the Evening," with solo parts again taken by Miss Smith and Mr. Robertson. At this service also Miss Lucy McKallar a commission source. McKellar, a promising young soprand sang "Not a Sparrow Falleth." Mrs Cooper deserves a great deal of credit for the excellence of the musical portion of the service

Money and Dreams.

He settled himself in his roomy chair in his big, old house, where he had lived so long that the city had grown up away and beyond him, leaving the house, which had been in a fashionable neighborhood, so far down town that there was little more than the hum of business to be heard all day around it. The old man's housekeeper brought him a cool drink, and one of his nephews came in to enquire how he had stood the unusual heat of the day.

He had so many nephews and nieces to look after his comfort. Some even stayed in town all summer to be near him. When they tried to persuade him to go away for a little rest in the hot weather he would say:

weather he would say:
"Rest! Who wants rest? If you let money rest it rusts-rusts! Turn it over, keep turning it over; it grows, it grows!" And he would add that the summer was the best time of all for work. The old financier was the pos-sesser of many millions. But he waiked alone. This evening he sat in the twi-light which settled itself hot and thick about him. The night was bringing no cooling breath. The roar of the metropolis was dying away in tired sobi outside. The city's life seemed sapped with the heat. Even the old man, who never stopped his work for anything, realized that it was unusually hot to-night. He fanned himself with his newspaper and took a sip from the glass which stood near him on the ta-

He closed his eyes. He felt such a strange sense of oppression. No, he was not dizzy. It had passed. He opened his eyes and put up his hand to unfasten his collar. At his neck he touched a twisted cord of silk that was around it. He pulled at the cord and drew out its length. From it hung s ring-a silver ring-old-fashioned and worn, and on it two raised hearts lying against each other and rubbed smooth by time.

He sat now with his eyes closed again and his hand folded over the ring on his breast. He dreamed wace more, and it was his last dream. It was summer—yes—but it was nearly fifty years ago. The dust and roar of the city gave way to the scent and quiet of an old garden; the heat to the dew of a country evening, its breeze lightly moving the leaves of the trees and fluttering the ruffles of a girl's muslin frock, with its pattern of summer blossoms upon it.

A boy-such a boyish country boytook the silver ring, then new and shining, from his pocket and put it on the hand of the girl in the flowered muslin frock. Then they kissed each other, and the girl fell to sobbing, with her arms about her companion's neck, and he spoke:

"Never mind, dear; Annie, dear. am going away to make a fortune, and I'm coming back for you, and we will be married, and I will take you away to the city, and you will be rich and have everything you want." "But I don't like the city. I should might not love me there as you do now here in the country. People in the city forget each other so."

"No, they don't; not if they really love each other, and I love you. Nothing can ever make me forget you. See not as long as evening comes after the day and the stars come with it." They kissed each other again.
The ring came back to him in a letter with a flower from Annie's grave.

Never once did he go to seek the grave to rest by it a moment. Work became his love and gold the star that Now he clasped the silver ring tighter, tighter. By and by he gasped and fell forward. His clasp relaxed; he sighed once, a deep sigh, then lay there quite still. And later they found him so.-Margaret Klein in the New York "Herald."

A Useful Helpmate.

The editor of the Grapevine "Telegraph," after spending six years without a break, in the editorial harness, felt himself entitled to a vaca ion, and went away to the mountains for a month's hunting and fishing leaving his wife in charge of the paper.

On his return he was astonished to find his office overflowing with potatoes. Everything that could be turned a receptacle was filled with them. Each pigeonhole in his desk contained a potato. The drawer of his editorial table was bursting with potatoes. Old ink-kegs, lined with papers, were filled and heaped with them. -There werpotatoes in the coal-bucket, in the ashpan, and even in the stove itself. They were no small potatoes, either, Every one of them was as big as his

"Oh," she almost sobbed, "I wanted to do something original, and so I announced, in the first number of the paper I printed after you went away, that the 'Telegraph' would be sent for one year to the per-son sending us the largest potate raised in this county, for six months to the person sending the next largest, and for three months to the one sending the third largest. The potatoes began coming in right away, and they've been coming ever since. Some persons, I am afraid, have tried to get all three of the prizes. I have begged the people not to send any more, and I do believe they are doing it now for a joke. We can't announce any prizes till they quit coming, and there are some boys in the other com with their pockets bulging with them right now, and—Oh, Cyrus, what shall
