> London, Aug. 29 .- The Times' corespondent at Pekin expresses astonhment that the editors of well-informed European papers continue to write us if the Manchurian question had been settled by Prince Ching's promise to tign a treaty with the United States providing for the opening of Mukden, dl the approaches to which are in the

There can be no doubt that we are within measurable time of events in the far east which will attract the attention of the world, the corresponding taxys. The position is simply this: Is an amicable arrangement with Russia possible? Can or will Japan accept the present situation and retrain from a counter movement in the far acquiescence means her reduction to a position hardly less inferior than after defeat in war, because she would be deprived for ever of the oportunity of exercising the authority to which she is entitled by her geographical position, military resources and superior civilization. Personal observation confirms the justice of the apprehensions of the Coreans. Their independence is doomed, as cirgreat height and the farmers in that vicinity were treated to a great spectacular sight. The explosion could be heard for miles around. The train crew had very narrow escapes from death, but very fortunately no one was in the least injured. The fire consumed both oil cars, two cars of box, and part of another car of hay.

tources and superior civilization. Personal observation confirms the justice of the apprehensions of the Coreans. Their independence is doomed, as circumstances have forced Japan to take action, and she is compelled to adopt stern measures in order to obtain in Corea advantages similar to those granted to Russia in Manchuria. Whether this will be effected with or without the consent of Russia depends upon the results of the negotiations between Tokio and St. Petersburg.

The correspondent says he spent some days lately at Dalny and Port Arthur, and at both places there is marked military activity, as the result of the recent Port Arthur conference. Dalny is being transformed into a garrison city, and provision is being made for a permanent establishment of 16,000 men. There is absolutely no trade done, as the port cannot compete with Newchwang; hence the rejuctance of Russia to relinquish her grip on the latter. At Dalny, where the largest hospitality has been promised to foreigners, there are three adult male Britons, one female and one baby. There is one United States firm represented by a Russian agent, and a wealthy American trading company recently closed its agency. At Port London, Aug. 29.-The evidence riven before the Royal Commission on the South African war is issued in the form of three blue books, containing 1,700 pages. Lord Roberts considered that the initial error of strategy was practically irretrievable. He criticized the War Office with regard to the general preparations and equipment, the first plan of campaign, the under-estimating of the enemy, ignorance as to the geography and extent of the country, and the lack of artillery and mounted infantry. party. There is one United States firm represented by a Russian agent, and a wealthy American trading company recently closed its agency. At Port Arthur large increases in the military establishment are being made. Ten new barracks, 330 by 50 feet, are being built, and the western basin of the harbor is being dredged to a depth of 28 feet. Russians of all classes are more confident, and defiant towards Japanese pretensions. If this attitude represents official Russian opinion there is little reason to expect an amicable settlement of the proposals for a modus vivendi, presented by Japan on the 12th inst, which require a recognition of the respective rights of the two powers in Manchuria and Corea.

Terrible Fatality on the Lake Erie Railroad Near Blenheim.

Edward White, a Deaf Mute, In stantly Killed and Rig Demolished-Horse Escaped

A terrible fatality occurred on the Lake Erie railroad about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, by which Edward White, of Harwich, lost his life. The accident occurred at the Gravel road crossing, about a mile north of the Blenheim junction. The Sarnia train from Chatham-Engineer Chris Stafford and Conductor Sam. Piercecollided with the covered buggs containing White. The harness was torn from the horse, which escaped The rig was smashed to atoms and the remnants thrown to the west side of the track, while the body of the between the cow-catcher and the wheels and was cast northward a few, yards further on in a terribly mutilated condition. The heart was torn from the body and death was instan-

Coroner Dr. Hanks was immediately summoned from Blenheim and was on accident, while Conductor McGarry, stopped the Eau train, which passed shortly later, to allow Detective Skirving and a couple of helpers to alight;

The remains were carefully removed o Greenwood's undertaking establishmrnt.

A careful investigation by Dr. Hanks and Mr. Skirving followed. The result showed the fatality to be purely accidental and the coroner deemed no inquest necessary.

The deceased was a deaf mute, about 55 years of age. He resided with his brother Arthur, about a mile and a half south of Charing Cross, on the townline in Harwich. He was driving in a covered buggy with the top up and evidently neglected to look for the approach of the train. A number of people, both passengers and pedestrians, testified that the whistle of the engine had been repeatedly, blown and the danger signal shricked again and again.

No blame attaches to the railroad. Engineer Stafford is proverbially a most careful and cautious man, and he made every effort to avert the accident. The brakes were thrown on and the engine reversed in such a prompt manner as to give the train terrible jolt.

Agent Stephenson, of Bjenheim, was on the scene a few moments after the accident and superintended the removal of the remains.

It is said that a brother of the desceased, also afflicted with deafness, met a similar death on the M. C. R. a few years ago.
Deceased is a cousin of J. W.
White, of this city.

"Grass Widow"

"The origin of the term 'grass widod," said a philologist, "is puzzling. Some say it came from the French that it was originally 'grace widows'; that is, widow by grace of courtesy. Others say it is derived from the old English custom of a man hanging out a broom when his wife was away over night. To hang out the broom was a common phrase. When the thing was done the meaning was that the house had been swept clear of the wife's presence, and the husband's friends were to visit him and do as they pleased. In time, instead of hanging pleased. In time, instead of hanging out a broom, the husband came to hang out only a bunch of grass. Thus he grew to be called a 'grass widower,' and his wife a 'grass widow.'"—Phil-adelphia Record.

International Bible Lesson for To-Morrow-David Spares Saul; Practical Forgiveness.

Golden Text-"Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you."

King Saul, with 3,000 picked men, ere on the warpath after David, but he had his spies watching their move-ments, and as they camp for the night in false security every one of them fall into a sound sleep from the Lord. David and Abishai steal in amongst David and Abishai steal in amongst them and, finding the king, Abishai would have killed him with one thrust but David forbid him, and desires him to take his spear and drinking cup from beside his pillow as a proof of thir midnight visit. David would not have them stain their hands with the blood of the Lord's anointed. From a distant hill top David, arouses the sleeping camp and rebukes their care-lessness of the king's safety. Saul relessness of the king's safety; Saul relessness of the king's safety; Saul recognizes David's voice and feels the rebuke keenly, confessing his sin and folly in persecuting David, who has

Now and again there is an item in the newspapers concerning the birth of a puny baby so small that a quart cup holds it comfortably. If the article told all the facts it would probably tel also of a mother who in weakness and misery had looked forward to the baby's advent with shrinking and fear had looked forward to the baby's advent with shrinking and fear.

To have fine, healthy children the mother must be healthy, and it is the common testimony of mothers that the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only promotes the mother's health but also gives her strength to give to her child.

"Favorite Prescription" accom-scription accomplishes these results by tranquilizing the nerves, promoting a healthy appetite, healthy appetite, and giving refreshing sleep. It increases physical vicor and gives great muscular elasticity, so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best of tonics for nursing mothers.

"I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription." writes Mrs. J. W. G. Stephens, of Mila. Northumoerland County. Va. "Before my third little boy was born I took six bottles. Ele is the finest child and has been from cirth, and I sullered very much less than I ever did before. I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use the 'Favorite Prescription."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

A HERMIT'S DEATH.

Remance of the Laurentian Range-Why Honore Paquette Fled From and Shunned Haunts of Mon.

Honore Paquette, the hermit of the sixth range, Quebec, is dead. Thirty years ago a man of this name, in the full flush of manhood, loved a pretty country maiden of St. Jerome, and seemingly fortune smiled for him, for the wedding day was named, and the bans were published in the little church near the girl's home. But before the hour of Honnome. But before the nour of Hon-ore's happiness arrived, even as he stood bedeeked for the ceremony, a man came with a note, and the ex-pectant bridegroom crushed it in his pectant bridegroom crushed it in his hand. The friends who had gathered learned afterwards the contents of that note; it had told that the girl had gone with another lover. But Honore walked away, and no man would have known his great sorrow. He went into the backwoods, into the Laurentian Hills, and thereafter, repelling all advances of friend or stranger, eked out his lonely life. Few persons ever saw him for Few persons ever saw him, for he chose an unfrequented part of the range, and seldom again sought the haunts of man.

But a few days ago some lumbermen came by chance upon the her-mit's home. In the little clearing surrounding the dilapidated shack lay the old man, prone upon the ground, one hand clutching the tin with which he had been about to prepare a meal. How long he had been there could not be told, for the body was fast returning to the dust from which it had come. A shirt, trousers, boots, scarcely holding to-gether, were the only protection. The shack had but one room, and all that it contained was a stove, a heap of straw for a bed, and a few cooking utensils. Rumor had credited the mysterious hermit with having much gold, but all the treasure that has been found is a bag containing $160.

Buried treasure is a magic word. and the minds of an imaginative peo-ple cling tenaciously to pet theories. Everyone had heard that the hermit was wealthy; not a man in the county but had spoken of gold which the strange old man had hidden in the earth and guarded with the zealous watchfulness of a miser. ...

So, ever since the discovery of the body, when the sun has shone bright down upon the little clearing in the sixth range, men have probed and dug, hunting for the treasure. But Honore has taken the secret, if any, to the burial ground in the village of St. Adolphe de Howard.

People whose money goes in a slump of the stock market, are, as a rule, blamed more than they are pitied. Sympathy for them there is, but it is of the mixed kind to which the great heart of the public is moved by the case of the culprit caught and brought to punishment. Mercy justice tempered with mercy, is the portion of the unsuccessful stock dealer. When Job's sores were in the rawest state his friends gathered about him to comfort him with tempered with justice, rather words of sharp reproof for his form-er naughtiness. So when the unfor-tunate victim of a stock market re-action is trying to staunch the fresh financial gashes that are fast bleed-ing him white, he is forced to listen to the lectures and the censures of the innocents who never speculate. This salting of his wounds may be a moral duty and a public service. It makes the wretch writhe when he might be taking a little ease between spasms; and thus helps to keep him in a state of suffering which should be to all beholders a warning against the temptations of the stock market.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Our Chinese Placer Miners. Our Chinese Placer Miners.

A place where the Chinese have assumed control of a British Columbia industry is on Wild Horse Creek, in East Kootenay. This is one of the most famous historical placer mining camps, and from it fully $15,000,000 were taken in the early days. The Celestials work the "side-hill ground" with modern hydraulic appliances and no little success. The gold they obtain is worth $18,25 an ounce, and the exact amount they win is never told, though it is exwin is never told, though it is expected to reach $50,000 for the current year. That it is considerable is shown by their staying by the creek. The Bun Quon company has two sixinch "giants" in operation on the lower part of the Invicta ground. The Nip and Tuck ground has been leased by Celestials, and several other Chinese outfits are working along the bed of the creek, taking out on an average from three to five dollars a day per man.

Te Encourage Latin.

An interim schedule of regulations for high school examinations has been published. One change is to give encouragement to pupils to take the Latin option in languages by allowing all marks over 50 per cent. in Latin to count as a bonus on the other subjects. The examinations for the commercial course diploma are abolished, and hereafter each school board will lay out its own commercial course, and grant its own diplomas, the object of the change being to provide greater elasticity. plomas, the object of the change being to provide greater elasticity. Each district may now teach the commercial subjects best suited to its individual requirements. For instance, cities may place emphasis on ateuography, and in towns the greater stress may be put on simpler forms of bookkeeping.

OF INTEREST TO MOTHERS

Safeguard for Children Cut ting Teeth in Hot Weather.

The time when children are cutting teeth is always an anxious one for mothers and when this occurs during the hot weather solicitude often deepens into alarm. So many ilis that often result fatally are liable to ensue that every mother will be interested in a medical discovery that robs this period of many dangers. Mrs. R. Ferguson, of 105 Mansfield street, Montreal. Que., gives her experience fer the benefit of other mothers. She says: "My baby has always been small and delicate, and suffered so much last summer with his teeth that I did not think he would live. FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MON-THLY FOR SEPTEMBER.

Besides keeping up its summer record of nine short stories and a serial, Leshie's Monthly for September has a varied assortment of more serious articles. The first and most attractive of them is a little essay called "The Heart of a Man," which interprets a delightful series of drawings of children by E. B. Knipe. There are some heroic tales of the cod fisheries off, the banks more thrilling than any fiction, and a vivid account of the war between the cattle and sheep on the Western ranges.

Among the short stories, that by J. J. Bell, she auchor of "Wee Megreegor," is a delightful love story, and the fishing trip of a Few Real Boys, particularly amusing. There is a story by Jack London, who wrote the "Call of the Wild," a romance of the savage Northwest, and one by Justus Miles Forman of a more sophisticated kind of sentiment. There is a striking study of a pontict be phisticated kind of sentiment. There physicated kind of sentiment. There is a striking soudy of a conflict between a manufacturer, a trust and a walking delegate that comes just now at a particularly appropriate time, and also a number of other stories and articles and some clever skits in Maginalia and in Men, Women and Rooks. men and Books.

STRANGE CASE AGAINST CITY

The Thompson Suit May Untangle Many Threads of Ancient History.

City Did Not Receive Satisfact ory Dynamos and Claim $400 is Not Owing.

The suit of the Thompson Electric light Co. against the City, to recover $400, held by the latter as a guarantee, has revived all the old rumors of mismanagement if not mis-dealings Wanted, good boy for trimming de-partment. Apply Wm. Gray & Sons Company. in connection with the installation of the civic electric plant. That the dynamos were never satisfactors is well known, and they were not capable of carrying the lights attached to them, As a result, the Royal dynamo had to be purchased from the Chatham Ga You can buy $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 shirts to-day from Stone The Hatter for 85 cents. This is the snap of the season. Stone & Co., Garner Block.

After the defeat of the by-law, by which it was proposed to give the electric light contract and other inducements to a company on condition that they built an electric road here, the City Council on the 31st of May, 1897, decided to advertise for tenders for a civic electric light plant.

On the 7th of June the tenders were opened. A number of tenders were received

The Thompson Co. tendered for the work at $7,800, while the Stevens Mig. Co. offered to do the work for $6,496 There were other higher tenders, but all were rejected.

It afterwards developed in the suit of John Pleasance vs. Thompson & Co., and the city garnishees, that on the 14th of June, 1897,-seven days tenders were rejected-an agreement had been drawn in the Merrill Hotel, on Merrill Hotel paper and in the whereby Thompson had agreed to pay the late George Rankin five per cent. or practically $500, on condition that thereof should be accepted and paid for by the city. Rankin had given orders upon this $500 to John Pleasance and others and the city was garnisheed.

On July 7, new and separate tenders were received by the Council for the different works. In every inthe different works. In every instance, as note the following, the Thompson tender was the highest and yet the Thompson Co. got the contract. Dynamos—Stevens Co., London, $1,175; Thompson Co., $1,675. Arc lamps—John Abell, Toronto, $1,600; Stevens Mfg. Co., $1,625; Thompson Co., $1,875. Construction of the line—Electric Supply Co., Detroit, $4,783; Stevens Mfg. Co., $5,220; Thompson Co., $5,580.

The Fire and Light committee reported in favor of accepting the Electric Supply Co.'s tender for the construction but, on motion of Ald.

A citizen was laughing over the affair this morning and instanced Mr. Jones, who is city engineer and also superintendent of the waterworks department. "Must I," remarked the ratepayer, "first tell Mr. Jones that I am talking to him as city engineer when I wish to converse with him on city business? Must I then turn round and inform him that I am talking to him as superintendent of waterworks before I talk to him on waterworks business? Must I consider him split in two and talk to both sides individually lest his breath crosses? To me, the stand of the Waported in favor of accepting the Electric Supply Co's tender for the construction but, on motion of Ald. Carpenter, seconded by Ald. Phelps, the Thompson tender was accepted, although in bulk it, was $1.672 higher than the lowest tender. The garnishee case was non-suited on the evidence of the City Clerk that the money was held as a guarantee for

The city has been at a large expenditure in connection with the defective dynamos, but whether it shall have to pay over to Thompson $400 more will depend upon the lawsuit now started against the city. Thompson claims that the works were accepted by the city through its officials in 1897, and that the contract does not require a certificate in writing by the engineer of completion. Mr. Thompson is suing on the ground that the dynamos were accepted by the city officials. The City Clerk, when asked about this, state that the contract had never been accepted by the city, as the records contract.

that the contract had never been accepted by the city, as the records would prove. On Oct. 25, Gilbert, Wilkes, the expert from Detroit employed to superintend the installation of the dynamos, presented a communication to the Council referring to the failure of the dynamos to deve'op the necessary power. A letter dated July 16, 1897, also appeared from Thompson to Mr. Douglas, acknowledging a receipt of a telegram from the latter, but very respectfully declining to accept a draft on him, and a similar letter to Mr. Rankin declining to pay any money until the work was done and paid for.

SOMETHING TO DO

this issue of the Big Saturday Planet will prove both interesting and profitable to every parent and student. The large advertising announcement of W. J. Kenny, the enterprising King St. book-seller and stationer, while it doesn't deluge you with words, is possessed of much import. This is the season of the year when the anxious, thrifty parent is up against the school-book problem. Mr. Kenny this scason has done his utmost to help you solve it. He has a complete assortment of all the standard books ready for your selection — and with every purchase he purposes enclosing a beautiful present. Everything counts when it comes to buying school books, and Mr. Kenny's enterprise should be rewarded by an immense matronage.

And—even if you don't want school books—call at Kenny's, anyway. You receive the most courteous attention and have the privilege of inspecting one of the best and most up-to-date stocks in the west.

ANOTHER PUBLIC APOLOGY DUE

J. W. White visited The Planet this morning and the subject of discussion was, as usual, the matched race be-tween himself and Dr. Mussen. The popular champion evidently purposes bringing matters to an early focus.

purposes oringing matters to an early focus.

"There are two things only left for the doctor to do now," he commented. "One is to run the race in accordance with the arrangement—the other is to immediately join the ranks of the local public apologists, for I shall certainly demand a public apology.

"The doctor can have his choice—but he must act quickly."

In event of the White-Mussen race being pulled off in the immediate future, the friends of Dr. Russell purpose challenging the winner on his behalf.

THE PINKHAM CURES

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Had to Leave School

The Pitiable Story of a Young Girl

Every Mother of a Growing Girl will be Interested in the Story as Told by the Young Lady.

Miss Laura Dumontier is the daughter of a well-to-do farmer in St. Cuthbert, Quebec. The circumstances under which she was forced to discon-Cuthbert, Quebec. The circumstances under which she was forced to discontinue her studies and leave school will be of interest to all mothers of growing girls, and Miss Dumontier consents to make them public for the benefit her experience may be to others. She says: "At the age of twelve I was sent to a convent school in this parish. At that time I was as healthy as any girl of my age. At the end of a couple of years, however, I felt my strength leaving me. My appetite grew poor, and I suffered from severe headaches. I nevertheless continued my studies until October, 1901, when I became very ill and was forced to leave school. The headaches that had bothered me became almost constant. I suffered The headaches that had bothered had became almost constant. I suffered from pains in the back and stomach and the least exertion would leave me almost breathless. A doctor was called in and he said I was suffering a constant of the said I was suffering and the said I was suffering the said I was called in and he said I was suffering from anaemia, and was in a very dangerous condition. He treated me until February without the least beneficial result. Then another doctor was called in, but no better results followed his treatment. My parents cial result. Then another doctor was called in, but no better results followed his treatment. My parents were now thoroughly alarmed and two other doctors from St. Barthelemi were called in, and after consultation their verdict was that my trouble had reached an incurable stage. I was greatly disheartened and did not expect to live long when one day one of my friends asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had lost confidence in all medicines, but was willing to try anything that might help me, and my father got me a supply of the pills. When I had used a couple of boxes it was very plain that the pills were doing me good, and after I had taken them a couple of months I was once more enjoying the blessing of good health. I feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved my life and I gladly give my experience in the hope that it may be of benefit to some other young girls."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to young girls and women as Dr. Williams' Pink Pils. They act directly on the blood and nerves, invigorate the body, regulate the functions and restore health and strength to the exhausted patient when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or may be had by mail post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Remember that no other medicine can take the place of these pills and see that the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Palc People, is on the wrapper around every box.

The mother who would be horrified at the thought of letting her daughter wander away to a strange country without guide or counsel, yet permits her to enter that unknown land mits her to enter that unknown land of womanhood without counsel or caution. Then, in utter ignorance, the maiden must meet physical problems whose solution will affect her whole future life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been well named a "God-send to women." It corrects irregularities and inparts such vigorous vitality ti the delicate womanly organs, as fits them for their important functions. Many a nervous, hysterical, peevish girl has been changed to a happy young woman after the use of "Favorite Prescription" has established the sound haalth of the organs peculiarly feminine.

THE COLOR OF STARS.

They Differ in This as They Do in Bright ness-A Five-Fold Division That Suggests Itself,

The wide difference which there is between star and star as to bright ness is apparent on the very first glance toward the heavens; it re quires a more careful scrutiny to re alize that they differ also in their color, and in the character of their shining. The ancient carried their discrimination of the difference of the brightness of stars so far as to re-cognize six magnitudes, but when it came to the question of color, they hardly noted any difference at all hardly noted any difference at all.

The stars in general were described as yellow, six only being recorded as "fiery." Of these six we should class five as being distinctly orange or red—Antares, Betelgense, Aldebaran, Arcturus and Pollux. The sixth, Simus, is to us an intensely white star, and there have been many discussions as to wictor it has changes. sions as to wiletner it has changed its color in the last 2.000 years, or whether the description given of it—
"fiery red"—is due to some mistake in the record, or whether the excessive scintillation of the star may ac count for it. For, as we see it now when near the horizon, a momentary flash of vivid red fiame shoots out from time to time due to the irregular dispersion of its light in passing through the tremulous atmosphere.

Assuming that the light of any star is partly white and partly colored, we may divide the stars into ored, we may divide the stars into classes, depending entirely upon the depth of tint which they show, and not upon its color. A five-fold division suggests itself, something in the following effect: (1) Pure white, (2) tinted, (3) colored, (4) fully colored, (5) deeply colored. After the question of the depth of tint which the stars show correct the source that such colors. tion of the depth of tint which the stars show, comes the question of the color of that tint. For naked eye stars the more refrangible colors do not come into consideration. The range is from orange red up to yellowish-green, or, possibly, in a single instance—that of Beta Librae—to green. Alpha Lyrae, and possibly one or two other stars, have a distinct bluish tinge, but in general stars not passed as white may be very well scheduled under one of the five following heads: (1) Red yellow, (2) orange, (3) orange yellow, (4) reddish orange, (5) yellowish green. In working upon star colors with the naked eye it is impossible to use any artificial standard of color, but the wide field of view, and the ease and rapidity with which the attention can be turned from one part of the heavens to the other, will much more than make up or this deficient (1). heavens to the other, will much more than make up for this deficiency. The stars must be compared one with another, the estimations of color must be purely relative and the method will be found much the most accurate possible.—E. Walter der, F.R.S.. in Knowledge.

Speaking once of languages to Max Muller, a woman of India, herself a scholar asked how many he knew. "I hope I know my mother tongue," he replied. "I am acquainted with a few others." 'Why this caution?" laughed the

"Since then," said Professor Muller, "I never say that I know any language. It was merely the difference hetween the spoken and the written dead tongue that had puzzled him. But that takes nothing from the humility of the linguist—a humility as refreshing as it is rare, and scarcely mark of the age to which Max Muller belonged.

The poet, Walt Whitman, was, as is well known, dependent during most of his life upon the kindness of friends and admirers for support, making little or nothing on his writings. A few years before his death one of his friends called upon him in his little home in Camden, a suburb town of Philadelphia. "Well, Walt," he said, "how goes it this winter? Any subscription needed for Christ Any subscription needed for Christ-mas?" "No," said Whitman. "No, I'm at work new. I'm in the em-ploy of George Childs. He pays me $50 a month. "You at work! May I ask your occupation?" "Why, I ride in the street cars. I fall into talk with the drivers and conductors and find out which of them have no overcoats, and guess at their size overcoats, and guess at their size and notify Childs, and then he sends the overcoats. It's not hard work," said the poet. "And then, you know, it helps Childs along."

In the tropical northern territory of South Australia travelers need not carry a compass. Nature has provided a living compass for them. TELLING IT TO US.

The Wallaceburg Herald-Record quotes Manager Babcock's interview, which appeared in this journal recently, and adds:

The above item from the Monday issue of the Chatham Planet but, confirms our opinion that Captin Frank Babcock is adicted to the habit of talking through his hat, and that in an effort to square himself for the violation of lacrosse rules—and incidentally to salve the wounds of the many good Chatham players who were squeezed out to make room for his importations—he has taken to making reckless charges. As a matter of fact only one player, not a bona fide resident of Wallaceburg, played on the Wallaceburg team, and that one was Pete Leddy, of London, who has played every C. L. A. game with the home team this year. The rest of the players mentioned, to whom is denied the honor of not having been born in Wallaceburg, are yet residents of the town, earn their living here, and play the game for the love of it, not for the she kelsa Can Captain Babcock say the the game for the love of it, not for the shekels: Can Captain Babcock say the same of his picked-up aggregation?

GER BEER

"The Beer That is Brewed in Glass"

Ours is the only plant in Western Ontario having a glass-lined, closed tank stem, which is the only system affording absolute security against pollution of the beer.

Wood rots, green wood rots faster than dry, quickly seasoned wood rots quicket of all, and when exposed to air and water in Brewers' cellsrs wet rot comes on rapidly, and the beer brewed in open tanks is injuriously affected by it.

Our tanks are like a bottle inside, clean, no mould, no slime, no chance for rot. Our tanks are like a bottle inside, clean, no moving, no slime, no chance for rot.

Which is better, beer made in a closed, glass lined, steel tank, or in a sold mouldy wooden one?

Color is no indication of strength as producers of thin, washy beer resolut to coloring matter and other materials to conceal its weakness. A good beer gives a coloring matter and other materials to conceal its weakness. A good beer gives a "full mouth" feeling when drank.

A heavy foam is no indication of good quality, in fact in many localities they demand less foam and more solid beer. Brewers of weak beer often try to tempt the consumer by furnishing a beer charged with Kreusen (beer 24 hours old) and having a beautiful cream, but if used to any extent is sure to produce sickness.

Poor goods are nasty competition and the public should sustain those producing the better goods.

A pure beer is a pleasant beverage and very healthful and should always give off a delicate aroma of hops and malt only. Any other smell or taste is almost POSITIVE EVIDENCE OF AN INFECTED AND IMPURE BEER.

Mr. Nicholson says he has bought store teeth since he married, and he, therefore, considers himself a new man. "And," he adds, "a young man,

The trophy, which August 22, 1852. The trophy, which is valued at 100 guineas, was presented by the Royal Yacht Squadron of Cowes, and the contest was open to the yachts of all mations. The cup is in the form of a silver pitcher, and stands 27 inches in hight, is 36 inches in circumference and weighs 134 ounces, or over 111 pounds. The famous cup is kept in the vaults of Tiffany & Co., New York, and is seldom seen except on state occasions. It will be hard for Sir Thomas Lipton and friends to drink a toust out of it, if he wins it, as either through constant use at dinners in the early days of its history or some mishap in later years, it has no bottom.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 29. A CITY'S GOOD NAME.

The letter of Civitas, relative , to the action of the City Council in repudiating the responsibility of their recorded promise to some two hundred young citizens who attached themselves to our Regiment,-which appeared in the local press on Wedmesday,-has the right ring to it. Councils and corporations would lose much of the contemptible stigma which appears to attach to so many of their manoeuvres and methods by adopting such a policy of out-and-out straight-cut honesty and integrity as Civitas looks for-not only about this matter, but also about all others.

This is an important matter in itself-important to the prestige and good name of our city; important to the character and standards of our civic representatives.

The City Council to-day owes each of nearly 200 of our young men-all citizens of the town-a certain sum of money. This amount was definitely promised them and the promise recorded in the minutes of the Council. The conditions governing the promise have been fulfilled and the money is due. The young citizens, through their representative, have submitted their claim-and the city's representatives, relying upon the technicality that the promise was said to be not legally binding, have ignored the obligation. Not even an explanation is tendered.

To the ordinary layman the whole situation appeals unpleasantly; to those who possess a fine sense of honor and reverence the sanctity of a promise it is offensive; to all it is a transletion bearing vital import.

And it is not only important in itself-it is infinitely more important in making manifest the disposition which is permeating so much of our public life. Men, who in private life and in their own business relations, establish a standard of uprightness and integrity, pay their debts, revere their promise and guard their good name, apparently cast all these considerations to the winds when they mingle in the intrigues, wire-pulling and political technicalities of the publie arena.

Chatham must guard itself against any toleration of, or "winking at," these methods. It must nip every tendency to moral looseness in the bud; it must maintain, at all cost, civic honor and unsullied integrity.

For "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

Meanwhile, two hundred young citizens, with their parents and friendsand all other ratepayers loyal to civic uprightness and strict integrity-are entitled to a full and adequate explanation of this episode by the whole Council, from Mayor McKeough to the last alderman, ere these gentlemen again seek their suffrages as candidates to represent Chatham and its good name.

THE CITY GRAND

Maple City theatre-goers will experience considerable satisfaction in noting the extensive improvements being made by the enterprising young equipment. Mr. Brisco's efforts in this matter will be appreciated by the public to whom he caters.

But, more important to the theatregoer, is the announcement, made authoritatively, that Chatham is to be favored during the ensuing season with a very superior class of productions.

Last year there was much criticism on the general style of show presented here-and considerable of it was deserved.

This has evidently been recognized by Manager Brisco, and he has set out this season to secure the best obtainable. Several genuinely first-class productions have been already signed and others will be sought after.

It is up to Chathamites to demonstrate to the young manager that they appreciate his efforts-that good shows are the ones that pay here.

In this way we may, once and for all, get rid of the dog days of the farce-fizzle, the blood and thunder fiasco and the dreary imitations of called standards.

THE HOPELESS OUEST

It seems to be practically impossible for a boat built on the other side of the Atlantic to win in the America's Cup under the present conditions. While everyone must admire the Homeric struggle Sir Thomas Lipton has made to lift the trophy, further persistence could scarcely add to his reputation as a sportsman. All that English skill and money can do has been done, and, broadly speaking, has been done, and, broadly speaking, ham by C. H. Gunn & Co., Central at no time in fifty years has the cup Drug Store.

been in danger. Only once, as has been previously noted, has a challenger won a single race, let alone a series. Surely only the most ignor ant of patriotic Americans believes that the relative positions of challenger and defender in the history of cup races represents the relative skill of Engish and American designers. Yet, just such am erroneous belief is encouraged by these contests The great handicap which every British yacht must assume before starting in a race on this side of the At lantic should not be lost sight of The challenger, according to the deed of gift, must cross the ocean on her own bottom. She must travel three thousand miles, after having been keyed to racing pitch, and sustain a thousand jerks and strains every mile Only those who understand what a dainty and delicate piece of mechanism a racing crafft is can appreciate what this means. Under ordinary conditions it means defeat, inevitable and sure. For this reason America's Cup races are no criterion of the relative skill of English and American yacht-builders. If they prove anything, that thing might be represented by saying that no British boat can give the best American boat ten minutes start over a 30-mile course. The Englishmen are simply unable to to pick up their handicap and win. Nor do these contests, which have come to be regarded as the greatest sporting event of the year, serve the original purpose of yache races. They do nothing to suggest improvements for the Merchant Marine, Not the slightest practical good comes from them. A modern racing machine is useless for all purposes but one-racing, and in racing is supreme in only one branch-sailing into the wind. It is probable that there will be contests for the America's Cup as long as yachting is a sport. England will continue to challenge, and one day will win. But why should not an English yacht club offer another valuable trophy, which might tempt United States sailors across with boats like Reliance, Columbi and Constitution? Then it would be seen if our neighbors to the South do "beat creation" at this game. If they should win this second cup let us take off our hats to them and quit the seas. Until they are able to demonstrate that they can struggle under disadvantages to which English yachtsmen have been condemned, and win, we must respectfully decline to admit that they are supreme in the sea's great sport .-Mail and Empire.

while we are carelessly engaged eating our suppers, in the twilight, our good luck comes back to us again. We see the dark line fretting the water out upon the lake. Mearer and water out upon the lake. Mearer and nearer it comes, filling our sails with a first faint puff, then stronger and stronger, and in a little while we are racing along the shore again in the dying light, the wind steady in the south once more. And night settles down upon us, and, as there is no moon, darkness.

There is an indescribable charm in this evening sailing—in the uncertain this evening sailing-in the uncertain light, in the far off sound of the surf rolling upon the sandy beach, in the sighing of the wind as it comes from far away over the dark waters, in the silvery star-light that gently fails upon us from between the ragged edges of the clouds, in the voices of the waves—what are they saying?—in the cool, fresh beauty of the early morn, in the noon-day heat, at gentle evenide, in the soft summer breeze, in the fierce fall gale, to-night in the gloam-ing; always "the same sad song" -what are they saying; the sad voiced vaves? One amongst us has been here One amongst us has been here before, and, as he is very keen of sight withall, he steers, keeping along the dim shore, which we do not wish to lose sight of, as we have no compass. An hour and a half passes and we are anxiously looking for Kingsville light. By-and-by we make out its feeble twinkle, which grows brighter and bigger every moment; then the little red range light on the pier head looms up, and the many lights in the little red range light on the pier head looms up, and the many lights in the windows of Hiram Walker's great folly, the Mettawas Hotel. In a short time we find our way into the middle of the little harbor, where we let go our anchor and turn in for the night. In spite of the rolling and pitching of the boat we sleep long and well, the sun being high in the heavens when we awake. After pulling ourselves together we pull one another up onto the high dock and sally ourselves together we put one another up onto the high dock and sally forth in search of breakfast. One individual cynically suggests the Mettawas, but we feel that our general getup would put the guests already there at a disadvantage, so, considerately, we go further afield. Having found breakfast and gotten outside of it, we hunt up the telegraph office, wishing to wire friends and obtain the weather probabilities. At length we find the little office, but it is not yet open, and we kick over heals about outside and we kick our heels about outside somewhat impatiently, I am afraid, until it is opened by a kindly, courte-ous old ghentlernan, who informs us that he often did not get the probs. that he often did not get the probs. until late in the morning, but that he would do what he could for us, so he called Amherstburg. After waiting patiently while Amherstburg — from whence the probs. come—sends at least three or four miles (for it came on a tape) of message stuff through we get them,—"Fresh south winds veering to westward, hot and fine." The hot and fine are beyong probabilities: we have them in very fact, and The hot and fine are beyong probabilities; we have them in very fact, and upon arriving at the harbor we find that the veering business had been already gone through, for the wind was blowing fresh and strong from due west. Everything is quickly packed away, the craft made snug, and in ten minutes we are clawing out of the little harbor under our mainlail and jib. By the time we reach the pier haad the foresail is set, and we dart out swiftly upon the broad lake, heading south-east for Point Pelee, sixteen miles away. The shore on our left, rounding away to the eastward, is soon only a dim haze under our lee. How can I describe the delight of this morning sail! The bright sky rests, the life-like spring of the good boat as she cuts through the clear water and rises and falls in graceful motion obedient to the waves, the sense of freedom, the healthful excitement to a lover of the water and citement to a lover of the water and sailing—it was an ecstacy.

Se we speed along until we see, indistinctly at first, the long, low line of the Point running far out into the lake. The keen-eyed man who is steering sees, away to windward, so he says, the light-house on the extreme end of the Point. The others stare out in that direction and think they can. There is no doubt about it now; there it stands like a little stare out in that direction and think they can. There is no doubt about it now; there it stands like a little white pillar, far away on the weatherbow. Going as we are it does not take long to come to close quarters with the Point, and as none of us have been round it before there is some uncertainty as to how far out some uncertainty as to how far out we must keep. The broken water running upon the sand-bars, however, warn us to keep off, and as we have no desire to deave the bones of our good boat on one of them, we haul her up close to the wind, and stand along available to the Reist. parallel to the Point, until certain of a passage. Presently a smooth spot among the rollers proclaims deep wat-er. Then, helm-a-weather, sheets slacked off, centre-board up, at it we go, and, in less time than it takes to tell, have gently jibed her over on the other tack, round into the smooth water on the lee side of Point Pelee, two hours from Kingsville.

Yes. it looks very quiet and pretty upon this summer day, under the warm sun, in the fresh breeze, and harmless withall, but in the cold November days, under the leaden skies of winter, when the south-east gale is driving the blinding rollers of surf upon the desolate sand-bars thy beauty wears another face. Oh, Point Pelee. I want none of thee! Many Many a ave left stout schooner and boat have left their timbers to rot upon thee, and many a brave life, too, has closed in the icy waters aroung thee!

We race away up the shore in the smooth water, heading direct for the farthest point we can see. In the meantime we are hungry, and out comes the ham bone, etc., etc., and there is silence for a space. We drink adieu to Point Pelee in glasses of its native water, slightly dash of microbe po poison, light pipes, then lie about and chat or read pipes, then lie about and chat or read all but the helmsman. There is a queer looking yellow patch far up the shore, miles away in the dim future, that puzzels us, but it is a good mark so we steer for it. As the afternoon advances the wind increases and ominous looking clouds are slowly rising from behind the waters to the westward, and now that we are far away from the shelter of the Point the sea runs pretty high. Astrong puff forceruns pretty high. Astrong puff forces the little ship along at a furious rate, making her steer rather wild, and as she yaws up into the wind somewhat, a curler theatens for an instantial. somewhat, a curler theatens for an instant to come aboard, but the old craft is too nimble, and further, she is not in the habit of allowing such liberties. She pays off again in an instant and the sea, in a last dash to eatch her, is cut by her sharp stern, and passes harmlessly along the sides, hissing and foaming in disappointment. This wakes us all up and puts up on the "qui vive." Another squall, harder rhan before, is tearing along, blackening the water astern. We are ready; down quickly comes the harder final before, is tearing along, blackening the water astern. We are ready; down quickly comes the mainsail, and, relieved from the after canvas, away she shoots before it straight as an arrow. She goes along that the veering business had been already gone through, for the wind was blowing fresh and strong from due west. Everything is quickly packed away, the craft made snug, and in ten minutes we are clawing out of the little harbor under our mainlail and jib. By the time we reach the pier head the foresail is set, and we dart out swiftly upon the broad lake, heading south-east for Point Pelee, sixteen miles away. The shore on our left, rounding away to the eastward, is soon only a dim haze under our lee. How can I describe the delight of this morning sail! The bright sky fleeked with woolly summer clouds, the cool, fresh breeze driving the waters of the lake in long, sweeping seas, their blue, swelling sides, patterned with the changing shadows of the clouds that float high above, and crowned with their glistening white this distance on the water, to what it does on the land, it is some time before we are certain as to where we are. Presently we get sight of a saw-mill, which one who knows it well pronounces to be Pardo's mill; then, says another, we ought to be able to see the cottages at Buckhorn; and so we can, says he of the keen eye. Yes, there they are, sure enough, right

As we pass the cottages we see the cottagers lounging in hammocks or under their verandahs enjoying the or under their verandals enjoying the breeze. Only six miles from the Eau and yet we cannot see the light-house or Pointe aux Pines, the soft summer haze covering all as with a veil. Then as we cut along it all looms up at once. The Point, the Light-house, Canvas Village, Cottages, the Eau itself, dotted over with the white sails of many boats. We are seen by our friends from one of the cottages, who wave their handkerchiefs to us, which wave their handkerchiefs to us, which salute we return. Speeding along we quickly open the "fair, broad channel" between the piers, the boat is hauled sharp up to the wind and we glide swiftly through the smooth channel into the quiet, safe waters of the Eau. A couple of short tacks and at our moorings, and within half an hour are enjoying the hospitality of our friends, and, around a plentiful tea-table, sail over again our pleasant voyage.

WHAT THE BRIGHT, UNDIMMED EYE OF FAITH CAN SEE OF HEAVEN.

NO FIGHT FOR AN EXISTENCE.

Consequently There Is No Need of Rest There-Perfect Renewal of Our Powers Day by Day That the Passage of Years Leaves No Trace of Decay, Saith the

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1993, by William Saily, of To-ronte, at the Dep't of Agriculture. Ottawa.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—From the glitter and fascination of worldly pleasures and enjoyments the preacher in this sermon directs us to the contemplation of the greater joys of the "better land." The text is I Corinthians xv, 49, "We shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

What is heaven? Some people think that we do not know much about it. I remember how my father think that we do not know much about it. I remember how my father who loved to preach about the "celestial city," used to say he felt when he described it—that he was looking through a glass darkly."

That is true. No human mind can conceive, no human voice or pen can depict, the beauties of the celestial kingdom. There are, however, pasages in God's word which open the kingdom. There are, however, passages in God's word which open the pearly gates a little way, so that we can catch a glimpse of the supernal grandeur of that city of celestial glory. We can, as it were, pluck a rose of Sharen or a hily of the valley and learn in miniature what the fragrance of the heavenly gardens shall be, where every hillside and meadowland is covered with perpetual fora. Through the crevice of that open gate we can, as it were, for a moment catch a sight of the redeemed. ment catch a sight of the redeemed, whose garments are as white as the driven snow and whose joys are lim-ited only by their own capacity to mjoy the happiness provided for them by their almighty and all lov-ing Father. It is for such a glimpse of this heaven, to which all Chris-tians are heading, that I would open my Bible to-day and speak from the text, "As we have berne the image of the earthy we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

image of the heavenly."

Heaven is the place of immortal residence. What does that imply? "Why," answers some one, "that means that we shall live on millions upon millions of years." It means that long after this earth as a burning star shall flicker and go out our spiritual existence shall continue. It means a conscious life extending to means a conscious life extending to ages which dwarf into brevity the longest term even of the inanimate relies of the most remote past. But the immortality of heaven is not to be measured in years alone. It is the immortality of eternal youth. Old age implies weakness of body and of mind. In heaven there will be such a perfect renewal of our powers day by day that the passage of years leaves no trace of decay.

Perfect adjustment of the resurrected body to its celestial surroundings proves there is to be no fight for an immortal existence. Why does the physical body grow tred? Because it is not in perfect accord with its physical surroundings. In order to make the heart pump I must breathe. Yet every time I inhale the air that oxygen burns up part of my physical being, which must be replaced by food and physical nourishment. Why do the great clouds of smoke ascend from the funnels of the locomotive and the chimneys of the locomotive and the chimneys of the factories? Because those clouds form omponent parts of wasted energies. component parts of wasted energies. Imperfect consumption of fuel implies that the coal must be continually shovelled into the furnaces or else the machinery will stop. But in that heavenly land there shall be no need of sleep, because the redeemed body, perfectly adjusted to its celestial surroundings, will never know fatigue. There shall be no need of physicians, because pain, which is the warning because pain, which is the warning ignal of infirmity, shall never have my of our joints in its twist. There shall be no need of recreation, because then all stings shall be. once

We marvel at the perfect adjust-We marvel at the perfect adjust-ment in the natural world. We won-der at the vast resources of power which can swing the stars in their courses and make whirling constella-tions marshal themselves upon the heavenly plains and yet have no con-fusion in passing reviews. Once in awhile we are horror struck when some of the elements seem to balk and the lightnings, as fractious colts, kick over the traces and start to some of the elements seem to balk and the lightnings, as fractious colts, kick over the traces and start to smash things. We stand aghast when the dark garments of a tornado sweep past us, or two storm clouds collide and the heavens are ablaze with electricity and the ear is startled with the crashing of the thunder and the freshets come and bridges are swept away. But all the time when these elements are at war we think of the greater power which holds the moon and the sun off from the earth at arm's length. We think of the greater power of the laws of evaporation, which with golden pulleys lifted those waters into the clouds. We think of the law of cohesion or of specific gravity, which holds this old earth together in a compact sphere. We think of the power inherent in vegetable and animal life of sucking up the waters which flow by their sides. We marvel at the great adjustment of nature—marvel not only because it works like the wheels of a perfect automaton, but because it seems to work without friction.

seems to work without friction. Now, my friends, if we wonder at the seemingly perfect adjustment of the mundane elements, can we not the more marvel at the perfect adjustment of the redeemed body with its heavenly surroundings? Shall we not rejoice over the they with the statement of the redeemed body. its heavenly surroundings? Shall we not rejoice over the thought that all our faculties shall be enlarged and developed and yet keep on enlarging and developing and never grow tired? We have read that for over fifty years John Wesley preached on an average sixteen sermons per week, or nearly three sermons per day. How vigorous must have been the constitution that could perform that facilities. tution that could perform that task!

But in heaven we shall all have vigorous constitutions.

Oh, the rapture of that better land Oh, the rapture of that better land m which the services we render will never produce weariness nor the infinite subjects that will engage our attention ever cause satisty! Our hands grow weary, even though they may be busy in well doing. But in that "beautiful land" we shall never be weary of well doing. Then our redeemed bodies shall have a perfect even a perfect tonger. eye, a perfect ear, a perfect tongue, a perfect foot, a perfect hand clasp. Then all our faculties shall not only have the resilience of youth, but the nave the resilience of youth, but the alertness and perfect adjustment of immortality. We shall live and continue to live, because decay and corruption shall flee away when "death, the last enemy, shall be destroyed." Heaven is to be a place of progressive enjoyments. If the resurrected brain is to be alert it must have something to feed upon. Though something to feed upon. Though there may be many intellectual en-joyments of heaven, I believe there shall be two which will most appeal to the denizens of the skies. The first is in studying the wonderful con-struction of the celestial city. "Oh," answers some one, "I know now what is the formation of heaven. It is a great walled town. And the length and breadth and the height of it are all equal. And the city is made of pure gold, and the foundations of the walls of the city are a collection of precious stones, and the twelve gates of the city are twelve massive pearls. Why, the book of Revelation describes the city to its minutest detail."

Do you truly mean what you say?
Do you affirm that the streets of heaven are to be literally made out of yellow bricks and the city to be a wailed in town with a lot of precious stones for foundations? Why, the apestle in the book of Revelation is merely talking in figurative language of earth. merely talking in figurative language or in the language of earth. He is giving us a description of heaven in figures which we can comprehend. He does not mean that heaven is to have streets of gold any more than he literally means that hell is to be a place of fire. Fire is a symbol of corture. Gold and precious stones are the symbols of unlimited luxuries. Thus the apostle piles together a great mass of diamonds and sapphires and emeralds and topazes and amethysts and says: "Heaven is to be like that. Heaven is to be like that. Heaven is to be like that the pearls, like mansions of white, like golden boulevards. Picture to yourself the brightest place you possibly can, and heaven is to be multipotently, infinitely, transcendently more beautiful." Yet when at last we reach heaven all will be so new, so strange, that our minds through all etersity will never tire of exploring the grandeur. We shall take wings of the morning and fly away as a bird, and every place our eye lights upon shall offer inexhaustible fields of investigation. investigation.

bird, and every place our eye lights upon shall offer inexhaustible fields of investigation.

Now, the more you live with some people the more you appreciate their love and devotion and realize their true worth. When you were a little child you thought you leved your mother, but every year you grew older the more beauty and tenderness you found in her life. When she was you found in her life. When she was old and her hair silvered and face wrinkled and form emaciated she thought that her work was done and wondered why God did not come and get her. But she became dearer to you then every day. You said to her just before her death: "Mother, mother, I cannot get along without you. I am just now beginning to appreciate what your love means." Yes, it takes some of us ten, twenty, forty—aye, sity—years to fully appreciate the beautiful characters of these who have lived by our side. Bach month reveals some new sweetness or gentleness, each year some new worth. So our heaven is to be a place of continual surprises. We shall all be hourly and daily discovering some new manifestation of purity and love in the lives of those with whom we are spending eternity. We shall be continually surprised with their thoughtfulness and sacrifices and tender attentions. When they do us the unexpected kindnesses which only heaven can offer we shall delightedly exclaim. "Why, Mary, though I have been living with you now in heaven for a thousand years I never realized before how thoroughly kind you could be. Their spiritual beauties, their fioble deeds, their self sacrificing attentions, shall be as a changing kaleidoscope, ever revealing to us new natures and wonderfully new developments of love.

Heaven is to be a place of manifested gratitude, a place where we can lay at the feet of our heaven.

Heaven is to be a place of manifested gratitude, a place where we can lay at the feet of our benefactors the rich golden sheaves of our lives the rich golden sheaves of our lives which came as a result of their seed planting. It shall be a place where others may rejoice in our gospel conquests because their words of advice and their prayers and their examples were the means of first leading us to the foot of the cross and starting us forth as gospel messengers.

the foot of the cross and starting us to forth as gospel messengers.

Heaven must be such a place. Why? Because most Christians never live long enough on earth to see the full results of their services for the Master. But few gospel workers can say, as did Simeon of old, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou hast prepared before the face of all people." We shall not live long enough to see our boys and girls, for whom we have slaved and worked and prayed, grow up into worked and prayed, grow up into Christian men and women and see them as teachers in Christian Sun-day schools and leaders in evangelisday schools and leaders in evangelistic meetings and perhaps elders and ministers about the communion table of the Lord's supper. But in heaven we shall know about the glorious results of our Christian labors. In heaven the redeemed mother shall not only see her children, but her children's children, who have been saved through her prayers and consecration. In heaven there shall be rejoicing everywhere, because we shall there know that through the results of our labors the "dead are alive again and the lest are found." And, oh, how many redeemed immortals we shall have to thank in that heavenly kingdom! John Todd, you were dead thirty years before I you were dead thirty years before I was born, but I shall in heaven thank thee for the yellow leaves of that eld boek I found in my father's library of which you were the author. That book was one of the means used by the Holy Spirit of turning my thoughts toward the Christian ministry. William H. Milburn, twenty years blind chaplain of the United States senate, thou didst not, in all probability, ever hear of my name. With thy sightless eyes thou didst make me turn many a grateful glance toward the Christ who in heaven is to-day watching thy rapturous and holy face. I wish to thank thee, O redeemed spirit, thou who years ago as a Sunday school teacher in the old Brooklyn tabernacle didst shed many an anxious tear over thy scheor. That book was one of the means many an anxious tear over thy sche-lars. I would tell thee that to-day many an anxious tear over thy schelars. I would tell thee that to-day in the sacred ministry I feel the touch of thy sainted hand and hear the earnest tone of thy pleading voice. Yes, there are many spirits in heaven we would thank for what they did for us when upon the earth. We would thank them that they may rejoice, as we all rejoice, and that their hosannas of gratitude might be augmented with our halleutahs. As Christian comrades one will say: "Do you remember that time when we started those cottage prayer meetings? As a result of these prayer meetings? As a result of these prayer meetings? As a result of these prayer meetings? What a glorious revival we had—a hundred and twenty souls for Christ!" "Yes," says another. "that remainds me of what a hard time we had in starting that mission school down in the slums. Cynics said it would do no good, but it did," "Yes," will answer many voices, "we were converted and saved through those little meetings." Then the pastors and the different congregations will get together, and they will fave their reminiscences. And the parents and the children will get tegether, and they will take ever again the blessings which came from their alters. And the Bible distributors will tell how they were soofed at and yet hlessed as they distributers will tell how they were soofed at and yet hlessed as they distributed their trays and sacred leaves. And Francis E. Clark and the Christian Eaclesyoters will have their sen-arate reunions. We shall be in that "better land" living over and over again the Christian joys which we passed through when serving Christ upon the earth. Oh, my friends, if this idea is true, that heaven is to be a place of glorious reminiscences. ought we not all to double and treble our energies in the service of Jesus Christ? Shall we not by the power of the Holy Spirit do more and more for our Saviour, who has done so much for us, in order to be able to drink deep out of this golden challce drink deep out of this golden chalice of celestial pleasure? But the greatest celestial joy of all I have reserved until the last. Heav-I have reserved until the last. Heaven is to be a place of perpetual worship. "Does that mean," asks some one, "heaven is to be a great cathedral or church in which all the inhabitants of the New Jerusalem shall assemble and pray to him—and pray to him and never cease to pray to him? In which there shall be a service with no doxology and no benediction, for that service shall be without beginning and without and?"

without beginning and without end?"
Oh, no, my brother. I do not believe you have caught the right idea of the worship of the celestial city. Heaven is not to be a church, where we shall have stated times for pray-ers and hymns. St. John distinctly says in his Apocalypse: "And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord no temple therein. For the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb and the temple are of it." That means, as I take it, instead of having buildings especially dedicated for the worship especially dedicated for the worship of the trinity we shall feel, wherever we may be, that we are standing face to face with Christ. And then our hearts shall be so full of gratitude to him for what he has done for us tnat our eyes and lips and tongues and hearts will never cease to praise him. It will not be the to praise him. It will not be the worship of intercession or of pleading for the pardon of sin, but the worship of adoration and of eternal homage.

Perhaps my thought may be simply illustrated by a conversation I had with a very dear friend some time ago. This noble Christian man turned to me one day and said: "Bo you know that my ideas of prayer and worship have greatly changed within the last few years? When I used to pray I would make out a long list of petitions for which I would ask God. But now I have begun to see that he loves me better than I love myself. Therefore, instead of saying. 'O God, give me this or that,' I simply say, 'O, Christ, thour art so good and pure; suit thyself in reference to my life. suit thyself in reference to my life and thou wilt suit me. They will, O Lord, and not mine, be done." So in that heavenly land we shall have in that heavenly land we shall nave but one prayer and one song, "They will, O Lord, not mine, be done." We shall sing it on the street. We shall sing it in the green pastures be-side the still waters. We shall sing it in chorus with our loved ones. We chall sing it when we are alone.

shall sing it when we are alone. We shall sing it when we are alone. "Thy will, O God, thy will be done!" In that one song, and that alone, we shall find the perpetual and nover ending worship of heaven.

Thus, my dear Christian friends I have tried to open for you a little way the gates of the glorious "city." way the gates of the glorious "city of the redeemed." I have tried to eternally bind our lives with the immortal lives of our dead. Like Christian in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," may you continue to Progress," may you centinue to strive to enter into the "strait gate." And like the Christian Queen Victoria may you hopefully and tri-umphantly be able to write the same kind of an epitaph upon the tomb-stones of your loved ones as she chis-eled upon the mansoleum of the de-parted prince consort: "Farewell, be-loved. Mere at last I will rest with thee. With thee in Christ shall I rise again." Such is the gospel prophecy for all who love him. Meaven! Heaven Glerious heaven! Heaven of the Christians who are resurrected! Heaven, eternal and never ending heaven! heaven!

The Journal of the House of Assembly, when that legislative body used to meet at Kingston, was found in Harrison Hall the other day. The year is 1843, and the old Journal contains an account of the building of the first Fifth St. bridge by the Government. The original cost of the bridge ment. The original cost of the bridge was £1,518 15s Id. The expense since incurred, owing to defects in the construction, was £2211, 14s, 11-2d. There was a great deficit in the construction of the bridge at first, it being toe short and too steep in the ascent; the cost of lengthening was great, over $1156. The drawbridge has been much injured by hauling ship timber over it, owing in some degree to its bad construction, the rise in it being three feat on six feet. It requires an hour or an hour and a half to open and shut it.

Considerable expense has been incurred by the accumulation of flood-wood above the bridge, causing the river to overflow and injure it. It is mot well placed and would have been far better lower down the river, where it might have been built at one-half the expense.

In 1841 the bridge was leased for 1175 pounds, in 1842 for 164 pounds, and in 1843 for 210 pounds.

Prof. Jabez Burkes, of Pottsville, Pa., who in a moment of eccentricity and out of a spirit of fun, started a "crazy society," has become unbalanced by the success of the venture. Burkes advertised his scheme extensively in newspapers and received many applications for membership. The wide notonicity he attained in a few weeks completely turned his head and he insisted on making speeches, singing songs and dancing at inopportune times and places. Owing to these peculiar eccentricities the police have been obliged to arrest him and he is now in the county jail.
