CROFTER EMIGRATION.

Nor long since it was announced, through the public press, that negotiations were on foot between the Imperial authorities and the Government of British Columbia...

It is easy to understand the effect statements of this kind would have on the minds of those poor people; for love of their native land is one of the strongest passions that glow in the Celtic breast.

It would be a matter much to be regretted should this scheme fall to the ground, through the mismanagement of those charged with carrying out its details.

On the other hand, it would be still more deplorable should failure be caused through the sowing of discord among the simple and unsuspecting people by selfish and unscrupulous persons.

Even if all the improvements that the most sanguine of their champions have in view become accomplished facts, says the Gazette, they would never be so thirty or 40 independent as they are now.

The preamble of the treaty states that "considering that the cohesion of the two empires will be more easily secured by their own safety, while it threatens no one, and at the same time is well adapted to consolidate the peace of Europe on the basis of the Berlin treaty, the two Emperors...

At an exchange, referring to the funeral of the late Mr. Fox, says: "The unique spectacle of the burial of a soldier with military honors, recently took place at Portsmouth, England, she was the wife of Quarter-Master Fox, and Connaught Rangers. Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Meistr, wife of a sergeant of the same regiment, were with their husbands in the Box war, and were present during the fight at Groenker's Spring, when Mrs. Fox was wounded. The severe nature of her wounds compelled her to remain at Groenker's Spring, where, upon her recovery, she worked indefatigably among the sufferers, and was rewarded with the Order of the Red Cross. Her health subsequently gave way, and she died at Portsmouth. Her funeral was attended by the representative of every regiment in the garrison, Colonel Guinness and five other officers bore the coffin, which was borne through a double blind, placed between them and such a lead of promise, she committed a wrong which it may take generations to atone for."

THE AUSTRO-GERMAN ALLIANCE.

The simultaneous publication, at Berlin and Vienna, of the secret treaty of 1879 between Germany and Austria-Hungary, is regarded as the strongest indication that could be given of the gravity of the European situation.

This, coupled with Bismarck's speech in the Reichstag on the military bill, has created so small amount of excitement and speculation in European military circles. A large number of the London daily papers interpret the German Chancellor's speech as a re-assertion of peace, while the Standard says it does not point strongly in the direction of peace, but leaves us to our surmises.

The exponents of public opinion in the French capital seem to think the speech is more peaceful in appearance than in reality, Germany, they say, is desirous of peace as France; but they think Bismarck's course, in publicly declaring Germany's readiness and ability to fight, is better calculated to wound the pride rather than soothe the feelings of the other nations.

In Russia, Bismarck's speech and the publication of the treaty are keenly felt and severely commented upon. St. Petersburg advises of the 7th inst. thus speak of the matter:—"The Prudenski says the publication of the Austro-German treaty is an act of political incivility, and advocates Russia's abstention from all European counter alliances. Russia, it says, can have no dealings with Europe, not even with France, but must confine herself to her great eastern mission.

The Moscow Gazette proposes nearer re-approachment with England, and asserts that Lord Churchill's recent visit, conversed seriously with Russian statesmen on the necessity of England and Russia mutually guaranteeing themselves against the dangers of the central European league and Bismarck's Caesarism.

General Vannoski, Minister of War, is holding frequent conferences with the Czar, who is attended by chief of staff Gen. Albrecht. Regarding the position on the frontier, trustworthy reports state the utmost confidence prevails in the transport commission service. The accepted belief in official circles, that the Government will make no change in the military arrangements already determined upon.

The Moscow Gazette, discussing the Austro-German treaty, says: "Henceforth it will be impossible for Russia to confide in allies whose hostility towards her has been proved. An alliance between Russia, England and France should be effected to counterbalance the peace league."

The Austro-German Treaty above referred to contains the following stipulations:—"Art. 1 stipulates that should either of the two countries contrary to the hope and wish of the contracting parties, be attacked by Russia, each is pledged to assist the other with its entire military force, and only to conclude peace on such terms as both agree to jointly.

THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

The Public Accounts of Canada for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1887, the latest of the departmental accounts, issued, contain much interesting information relative to the country's finances. The year produced a small surplus, $97,313, which may be attributed to the large withdrawals of iron from bond in July, in consequence of the large quantities which went into the following month. The twenty years elapsed since Confederation have produced a surplus in ordinary revenue three times, and a deficit once, the aggregate of the former being $30,375,382, and of the latter, $16,044,817, giving a balance on the right side, of more than fourteen million dollars. The revenue in 1887, $35,754,993, has been exceeded in the present year, 1888, when it was $40,000,000 larger, and is two and a half times greater than the amount collected in the first year after Confederation. Compared with 1866, the principal sources of revenue yielded:

Table with 4 columns: Item, 1866, 1887, 1888. Items include Customs, Interest, Post Office, Public Works.

The first two of these items represent the taxation of the people, which amounted to $28,687,001 last year, the highest amount in 1886, an increase of $3,467,000. The year 1888, when it was $40,000,000 larger, and is two and a half times greater than the amount collected in the first year after Confederation.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General of Canada, has been appointed to succeed Earl Dufferin, as Viceroy of India, and Lord Stanley, of Preston, has been appointed Lord Lansdowne's successor, in the Governor-Generalship of Canada. An exchange gives the following account of Lord Stanley:

Mr. Stanley was born in London in 1814, and received his education at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. He was a member of the House of Commons, and in 1858, was appointed to the Admiralty from August to December 1868, and financial secretary for the year 1874, till August 1877, when he became financial secretary to the treasury. On April 12, 1878, he was sworn of the Privy Council, and in the same year he was appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies. He was first Lord Stanley of Preston in 1880, and was again appointed to that office in 1885, when he was elected to the office of Secretary of State for the Colonies in 1886. He was again appointed to that office in 1887, when he was elected to the office of Secretary of State for the Colonies in 1888.

The election for a member of the House of Commons, in Halton, Ont., on the 7th inst., resulted in the return of Mr. Henderson, Liberal-Conservative, by a majority of one hundred and forty-nine votes, thus securing another constituency from the Grits. Halton was formerly a Grit stronghold. In 1878, Hon. William Macdougall succeeded in carrying it in the Liberal-Conservative interest, by the small majority of eighteen. In 1882, however, it fell back into the hands of the Grits, and at the general election, in February last, Mr. Waldie, Opposition, was elected over Mr. Henderson, who has just carried the constituency, by a majority of nine. On petition, Mr. Waldie was unseated, for corrupt practices, and the constituency being again thrown open, the Grits nominated a Mr. McLeod as their strongest man. The result was, as above stated, the election of Mr. Henderson, by a large majority. This, with the election of Mr. Dickenson, for Charlton, Ont., one of Sir John Macdonald's constituencies, adds two more Liberal-Conservative to the roll of the House of Commons. Since the general election, about a year ago, nineteen bye-elections have been held, and seventeen Liberal Conservatives have been elected. Of these, five have been elected to seats carried by the Opposition, at the general election. Not a bad showing for one year.

Mr. Barnell will move an amendment to the address censuring the Irish administration and praying that the operation of the coercion act be stopped. An amendment will be moved condemning the execution of Ireland from the local government bill, Parnell's amendment will probably be reached Monday. The new procedure rules will be laid on the table on Monday. It will be proposed to meet at 3 p. m., and adjourn at 4 p. m., and the session will close on the 12th inst. The majority necessary to apply closure rules will be reduced. The speaker's power over disorderly conduct will be increased. Smith's bill to create the office of under-secretary for Ireland will provide for the payment of one thousand pounds salary. At the meeting of Parliament to-day, Biggar, Deasy, Sidel and Carr, proposed a resolution in relation to the proposed bill, which was decided that Parnell should move an amendment to the Queen's address, raising the question as to the administration of the crimes act. Parnell stated that the object of his bill was to reduce the term for judgment of the accused from 15 to 7 years, and give tenants further rights over improvements.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Governor of Alaska has issued his official report for the past year, which is a document of no little interest, not only to the United States, but also to Canada. According to this report the country abounds in gold, coal and other mineral wealth, and its rivers are full of salmon, herring and other fish, while the seal fisheries on the coast are known to be of the greatest value.
