The functions which the Apostles and their There may be, and there is, wide diversity of such a case as this.

1. How we are to be witnesses.

I How we are to be witnesses: I need hardly tell intelligent readers that the word "witnesses" is here the same word as Martyr, like many other words in our language and in all languages as well, came in the course of ages and in consequence of peculiar surroundings to have a signification or shade of at first to bear witness in any way, but by-andbye it came to have the meaning of bearing witness in the highest and most sacred and most self-denying sense, namely, that of laying down the lite for the testimony which one bears to the truth. When we speak of martyrs now, and the amphitheatre, and the gladiatorial arena, and the wild beasts with the far wilder men that looked on and applauded-with the thumb-screws and racks and boots of later days. In the days of trial and persecution, witnessing for Christ meant something; it was not an idle word-it was not an empty term by any means. But while recognizing the law that is constantly at work in the signification of words, let us than dving for the truth: it meant in the most merely shedding the life's blood rather than bring disgrace on Him who loved us so well, but devoting ourselves living sacrifices to Him in our life and labours. And as it had that wide meaning before it had the narrow, definite, precise one, so it now has that wide mean-

There are many striking passages in Dr. Cooney's writings; but we scarcely think his powers as a writer were equal to his endowments as an orator. BEAUTIFUL CHILD. BY MAJOR WILLIAM A. H. SIGOURNEY. Author of "Beautiful Snow."

Beautiful child by thy mother's knee, In the mystic future what wilt thou be A demon of sin, or an angel sublime-A poison Upas, or innocent Thyme-A spirit of evil, flashing down With the lurid light of a fiery crown-Or gliding up with a shining track, Like the morning star that ne'er looks back Daintiest dreamer that ever smiled, Which wilt thou be, my bea utiful child?

Beautiful child in my garden bowers, Friend of the butterflies, birds, and flowers, Pure as the sparkling, crystaline stream, Jewels of truth in the fairy eyes beam, Was there ever a whiter soul than thine Worshipped by Love in a mortal shrine? My heart thou hast gladdened for two sweet

With rainbows of Hope through mists of tears-Mists beyond which thy sunny smile With its halo of glory beams all the while.

Beautiful child, to thy look is given. A gleam serene, not of earth, but of heaven. With thy tell-tale eyes and prattling tongue, Would thou couldst ever thus be young. Like the liquid strain of the mocking-bird From stair to hall thy voice is heard. How oft in the garden nooks thou'rt found With flowers thy curly head around! And kneeling beside me with figure so quain

Beautiful child, what the fate shall be Perchance, is wisely hidden from me. A fallen star thou mayst leave my side, And of sorrow and shame become the bride-Shivering, quivering through the cold street, With a curse behind and before thy feet-Ashamed to live, and afraid to die: No home, no friend, and a pitiless sky. Merciful Father, my brain grows wild, Oh! keep from evil my beautiful child!

Beautiful child, mayst thou soar above. A warbling cherub of joy and love, A drop on Eternity's mighty sea, A blossom on Life's immortal tree Floating, flowering evermore In the blessed light of the golden shore; And as I gaze on thy sinless bloom And thy radiant voice, they dispel my glo I feel He will keep the undefiled, And His love protect my beautiful child.
