A Wayside Parable.

A lonely rock by the wayside.

All night long it pondered and rest.

Yet over its brow the daisies.

Their sun, bright faces bent.

Gay volubleness dinned on slender stems.

And Fairy troops of elves.

From every crevice tufts of fern.

And feathery grasses green.

This gone were the outlines sharp and bare.

That weight offend the eye.

And the wayside rock was a charming sight.

To every passer-by.

Dear heart, alone and lonely.

Though mastered life's hopes may be.

The Lord who cares for the wayside rock.

Block more will care for thee.

The flock of heaven's birds of love.

Will pay small orders and quantities. Send your name and address to-day for a free copy.

When Like Cures Like.

Miss Reed almost ran down the steps from the house bearing the sign 'Mons. Voire, Clairvoyant.'

The lady's communications had upset all her preconceived plans and ideas. Her mother had always opposed her trying anything of the kind, but when she saw the sign an overwhelming desire to inquire into things unknown had beset her. The rest of the party had gone down to the beach, and after staying in her room at the summer hotel for an hour with a headache she had slipped out to buy a fascinating kimono she had seen in a Japanese store the day before. The clairvoyant's sign had caught her eye, and for a whole hour she had sat in the darkened study little room with her nerves all at strained attention.

She went back to her room and, walking straight to the dresser, looked carefully at the picture of a frank boyish face surrounded by a little plain gold frame.

'I never would have thought it,' she whispered. 'I thought you were the truest, noblest thing on earth. And she said the man with black eyes, now one of my circle of acquaintances, was deceitful to the core and that I did not separate his path from mine he would prove the blighting sorrow of my life. Jimmy, dear, it seems impossible to believe you could bring sorrow into any one's life, but it must have been you who sent for me to be the only man of my acquaintance who has black eyes. And, being only nineteen and believing she had come face to face with the big sorrow of her life, she threw herself across the bed and sobbed because she felt that she must immediately take steps to separate Jimmy's path from her own.'

Jimmy's path from her own? Jimmie, who had lent her his red ball to play with the very first day she went to kindergarten.

James Kent, unconscious of the heavy cloud of suspicion hovering over him, came from his ocean swim and lay idly on the sand, hoping Miss Reed would get over her headache and walk down to the beach. Finally, unburned and glowing, he went back to the hotel and found the on the veranda, gazing listlessly at the sea.

'Is it as bad as all that, little girl? You are the most forlorn looking specimen I ever saw,' he said, as he sat on the porch rail and eyed her commiseratingly.

Miss Reed, seeing the sympathy in his eyes, wished fervently that they were any other color than black.

'What on earth made you have black eyes, Jimmy? I dislike them so,' she said petulantly.

Jimmy opened the offending orb very wide in his surprise.

'By Jove, you are a queer one, Missal. You told me yesterday down on the beach that I had the most beautiful eyes you ever saw. Positively magnificent. I know I was so beautiful. 'Fraid to sleep, then, last night lest I should spoil 'em. And now—Missal, you haven't met any fellow with grey eyes, have you?'

'No, I haven't, but you see if they're black eyes are treacherous—and I never could trust them.'

Whether they were treacherous or not was left an open question, but they certainly proved persuasive, and finally Jimmy was in possession of the whole story.

'Missal, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Do I look like a blighting sorrow? I might be mistaken for a prize fighter, exhibiting his muscular arm with pride, but I'm blam'd if I'd know how to start out in the blighting sorrow business.'

Missal, anxious to believe, still looked dubious.

'If your eyes only weren't black,' she sighed.

'Now, look here, my child, I'd get a special set of congress to change them to suit you if I could. You know I've done everything I can for you all my life. Why will you believe that utter rot? Did she tell you anything tangible that you absolutely know was true? Jimmy, who is training for a lawyer and wanted to contest all evidence in the case.'

'She told me my name and age, triumphantly.'

'Duh! you have to write it on a piece of paper first,' suspiciously.

Yes, but she didn't see it—honestly, she didn't. I folded it tightly and put it on the table, and she sat and looked at it while she talked.

'The mischief she didn't see it! growl'd Jimmy. 'Anything else?'

'She said I had an aunt Mary in the apt. It had that was trying to guide me,' hesitatingly.

'See there! You never had an Aunt Mary in your life! It's all plain humming.' Jimmy spoke with satisfaction of one willing to leave his cousin's hands of an intelligent Jimmy hanging at.

And yet nature calls upon them to bear far more pain than men. With too many women it is a long narrow path from the time they are beginning into womanhood, until age begins to set its mark upon them. They are no sooner over one period of pain and distress than another looms up only a few days ahead of them. No wonder so many women become worn out and old looking before their time.

In these times of trial, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold to women. They actually make new, rich blood, and on the richness and regularity of the blood the health of every girl and every woman depends.

Mrs. Urbane C. Webber, Welland, Ont., is one of the many women who owe present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Webber says:—'About three years ago, when I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, my health began to decline. The first symptoms were headaches and general weakness. After a time the trouble increased so rapidly that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I lost flesh, looked bloodless and had frequent fainting fits. I was constantly doctoring, but without any benefit, and I began to feel that my condition was hopeless. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them a trial. I had followed their use. After some urging I decided to try the pills, and had only used them a few weeks when I began to feel benefited, and from that time on the improvement was steady, and by the time I had used a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the blessing of good health. I cannot too strongly urge others discouraged sufferers to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.'

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles due to poor, watery blood, such as anemia, general weakness, indigestion, neuralgia, skin trouble, rheumatism, the after effects of a grippe, and such nervous troubles as St. Vitus dance and partial paralysis. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Force of Habit.

A Boston psychologist was recently reminded of the story of the Russian jailer who, changing his occupation, found the chief interest of his leisure moments in catching birds, putting them in cages and selling them to the highest bidder.

The scientist having to attend to a series of lectures in a large public hall struck up acquaintance with the janitor of the building and soon noted in him a suggestive bent of mind. The man seemed fond of counting the people and occasionally report the exact number present. 'We have 173 here to-night,' he would say, or 'Just 201 all told,' or, when the hall was crowded, 'I make it 370.' There was a problem in all this, but it took some time for the psychologist to solve it.

A bit of friendly, familiar talk, continually renewed, did the business, for it brought out the fact that the janitor had spent many of the previous years of his life as warden in an eastern prison. With rifle on shoulder, from some enclosed wall, the man had counted his convicts until the habit became ingrained. In the recesses of his brain the lecture hall took the shape of a jail yard and the audience were his prisoners. He counted because he wished to know if all were there.—Boston Herald.

Desperate Coughs

Dangerous coughs. Extremely perilous coughs. Coughs that rasp and tear the throat and lungs. Coughs that shake the whole body. You need a regular medicine, a doctor's medicine, for such a cough. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Are You a Dyspeptic?

Nine people out of ten suffer from dyspepsia and don't know it. Half the pale cheeks, poor appetite and sleepless nights are the direct result of dyspepsia. The cause lies in failure of the stomach and the kidneys to cleanse and do their work. Nothing gets vigor into those organs so fast as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They tone up the whole digestive system, relieve the strain on the stomach, absolutely cure dyspepsia. Simply take and sure to cure—better try Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

An old man well known for his powers of observation, at a supper one night was describing a voyage.

'Cruising in the Pacific,' said he, 'I passed an island that was positively red with lobsters.'

'But,' said one of the guests, 'lobsters are not red until they are boiled.'

'Of course not,' replied the undaunted observer; 'but this was a volcanic island, sir, with boiling springs.'—The Bites.

"Around the World in 40 Minutes."

Mr. T. S. Simms, of St. John, who has just made a tour of the world, lectured in College hall on Wednesday evening. His subject as he quaintly expressed it was 'around the world in 40 minutes.' In the brief space of time which he had allotted to himself, Mr. Simms delighted his audience and left them with an added knowledge of the world they live in.

Starting from Boston, Mr. Simms sailed by a White Star liner for the Mediterranean. He touched at Gibraltar and Port Said, landed in the Holy Land at Joppa and spent two weeks there in the country of the Bible. Through the land of Goshen he passed into Egypt. Leaving Egypt he came through the Red Sea to Ceylon and India. Mr. Simms just struck India in the cool season, the thermometer registering only 105° in the shade.

In India he travelled from the wonderful tribes of fire worshippers called Parsees, and the great tomb at Agra. At Serampore he saw the college started by Wm. Carey. The great size of the building was surprising. On the eastern coast of India, which is taken up entirely by Baptist missions, he had the privilege of visiting the different stations. In the Maritime Province mission field he met the different missionaries and saw the conditions and results of their work.

He could not describe clothes worn by most of the boys as they had none. A woman can be clothed in India for 65 cents a year. One of the Rajahs in India, a friend of Mr. Simms, is very generous to his servants, he has an income of one-fourth of a million dollars and pays them each the magnificent sum of 5 cents a day. After leaving India, Mr. Simms spent two and one-half minutes in China and Japan.

One thing that was impressed upon him by the trip, was the greatness of the British Empire. Everywhere he saw her flag and felt her protection. In closing he asked the question, 'Why are the peoples of the West so much superior to the rest of the East?' He answered he believed it was because of the fact of Jesus Christ in the West.

Forest preservation and the perpetuation of existing forests are the essential objects aimed at by the Canadian Forestry Association. This is a national body, which now numbers about 1200 members, having on its rolls representatives of all the provinces and districts of Canada, and United States, Great Britain and several European countries.

Prominent lumbermen and manufacturers of lumber, pulp and paper, teachers of forestry, well-known scientists, professional foresters, prominent government officials having charge of the public timberlands and others interested in one or other of the many aspects of forestry are included in its membership. The first president of the association was Sir Henry Joly de Lotbiniere, lately Lieut-Governor of British Columbia, and among his successors have been prominent lumbermen, such as Messrs. Hiram Robinson, of Ottawa; Wm. Little, of Westmount, P.Q.; and E. G. Joly de Lotbiniere, of Quebec, and prominent officials, such as Messrs. Aubrey White, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, and H. Stewart, late Superintendent of Forestry for the Dominion.

The president for 1907-1908 is Mr. H. M. Price, of Quebec, well-known in the pulp wood industry, and the secretary is Mr. R. H. Campbell, of Ottawa, Superintendent of Forestry for the Dominion.

The Canadian Forestry Convention, held at Ottawa, in January, 1906, was organized by the Association, and has resulted in greatly increasing the interest in forestry throughout the Dominion. Provincial forestry conventions held during the past couple of years in Vancouver, B. C., Fredericton, N. B., and Yarmouth, N. S., have also owed much to the example and encouragement of the parent association.

The Association meets annually in March. The next annual meeting is to be held in Montreal, on March 10th and 11th, 1908. Previous annual meetings have convened at Ottawa, Toronto and Quebec.

The Association was organized in 1901 through the efforts of Mr. H. Stewart, then Superintendent of Forestry for the Dominion. Its objects, as set forth in its constitution, include the advocating of judicious methods of dealing with Canada's forests and wilderness, the awakening of the public interest in the consequences of reckless deforestation, the exploration of the public domain and its division into agricultural and non-agricultural land, with a view to having the latter set aside for permanent forest reserves, the encouragement of tree planting and the spread of information with regard to forests and forestry.

To aid in the last-named object the Association has established the CANADIAN FORESTERS' JOURNAL, which is issued quarterly and sent to each member of the Association.

Plans for the new Presbyterian church of St. John, N. S., have been completed in Lunenburg, P. E. I., and it is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy in the early part of 1908.

The Art Railway Club will meet on Thursday evening of next week at the home of Mrs. Smith, Victoria avenue.

Letters to the Editor.

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN: SIR,—To the wave of anonymous copy which has lately flooded the press-room permit me to add a ripple. One of your contributors, who writes himself down 'Impertinent'—and something else, has taken the town council of Kentville into his lap to teach it law. This interests nobody here, and the kindly office would have been performed more fittingly in the columns of the bi-weekly Stationer or the Sub-Target Ragerfinder. It would almost appear that this lecture to the Kentville folk was intended as a mere setting for the gem of local import, found in the first and wholly irrelevant paragraph.

O, those sons of Jehu, who art normally genial, kindly and of a good heart, what evil spirit came upon thee that thou shouldst slip? For slip thou hast, well nigh to the undoing of thy thy reputation, in that thou hast yielded thyself to caricature a town clergyman and his church service of a recent Sabbath day. And what possessed thee that thou didst lug into thy prating the professor, 'late as us-that falls down? Howbeit, the hemp is not yet planted that will hang thee, I trow. Thou satest no fine and feathers on the man, and thou dost pervert in thy reflection that he had 'just crawled out of bed.' Thou dost sore amaze us with thy little pig in the organ.' G-o, to, now. Hast thou so fear that the window-shaking Beadle peradventure may pass by the organ and make inquisition in the pews? Suffer me to entreat thee that thou no more mingle gall in thine ink-horn, lest some worse thing come upon thee than this,—that thou art found to sit in the seat of the scornful and to be verily shamed before the congregation, even as a son of Belial.

Pass we now to the empty bottle statisticians who so appropriately writes himself down 'Odds and Ends.' This person, who rails against certain of our mothers, wives and sisters because they pray to the God who made him and keeps him yet out of the universal compost, is doubtless the same Jew-dealer who several years ago offered to betray seven places in the town where liquor was sold, but failed to 'make good.' He seems to spend his Sunday mornings picking up 'empties,' or 'odds and ends' for his stock in trade. He is such a monopolist that the rest of us, who are of course in church, never see these outward and visible signs of his inward and faulter spirit. Being, apparently, a judge of the quality of intoxicants and a somewhat scientific man withal, he presents us with a chemical analysis, derived either from the smell of the 'empties' or through the medium of a doctor's prescription.

After reading this vivid analysis one can almost see the analyst 'sit on his hind legs and spit in a bulldog's face.' Poor bulldog!

I distrust this writer's insinuation that his Sunday harvest of drug store planting. However, if in any Scott Act county drug stores can be converted into gin shops, as has been alleged at times, the responsibility for this must rest upon the shoulders of the physicians of the community. Under that Act, if they choose to debase themselves and to prostitute the high calling of a noble profession, they have uncontrolled power to conduct a liquor traffic, through innocent druggists, largely to the nullification of the statute.

A way can be found to end such a state of affairs; but as I am not writing for any local application and have already overstepped the bound of propriety in asking for so much of your type, I cut out any suggestion, and so subscribe myself

THE EXECUTIVE. EDITOR ACADIAN,—I note in your last issue a letter signed 'Voter,' dealing with the action of C. A. Campbell, M. P. P., in voting for the election of Mr. Farrell last year as speaker of the House, and again with the Government this session on the legality of holding the bye-election in Hants county in July last. Now I think it could be lazier had the writer signed his name to the correspondence, but opinions may differ on that point. I want just to make one or two observations with reference to Mr. Campbell, whom I look upon as a Liberal at the old school (as before 1896 Liberal) and not one of the many loaches and kangersons who are trailing the name of Liberalism in the dust to-day. Personally I think Mr. Campbell should have voted differently on the Farrell matter. Had he the same thing to do over again I think it most probable that he would vote differently; but all men are liable to err and Mr. Campbell claims not to be divine. It was his first vote, made not ten minutes after the House opened, under very peculiar circumstances. For my part, am willing to forgive Mr. Campbell for any mistake I may think he made in that regard; and think 'Voter' should do likewise. Mr. Campbell during the last session, while making very few speeches reported in honour, attended regularly the sittings of the House in the afternoon and was busy in committee work during the forenoon. In committee his advice had great weight, due to the business and practical training which he possesses. It is to be regretted that he was not a member of the Legislature.

Now as to the 'odds and ends' who writes himself down 'Odds and Ends.' In brief the argument was as follows: The statute states that when the same license is issued on or after the same date, the elections to those committees shall be held on the same day. Of course there is the legal contention that the word 'shall' is peremptory and not imperative, but Burned the Mortgage.

THE LAST OF WOLF'S BRY, MR. McDONALD CALLED AN 'OLD FRIEND.'

'We are saying 'good-bye to an old friend.' With a very grateful heart in the name of the congregation I do what I do.'

These were the words of Rev. P. M. McDonald, of Cowan Avenue Presbyterian church, last night as he applied a lighted taper to the mortgage which has stood against that church for thirteen years. The document had outlived its usefulness, said the pastor. It had been a real support, but was not needed now.

The congregation sang the doxology, and cheered as the smoke ascended.

A debt of $5,500 has been paid off by the congregation in three months and a credit balance of $122 remains. The membership is just 408,—almost twice what it was when Rev. Mr. McDonald became pastor.

(Rev. Mr. McDonald was formerly pastor of St. Andrew's church, this town.)

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—I note with interest what Observer says about the importation of 'boozie' at Grand Pre. Why is he so particular about the year 1908? The year 1908 is quite young yet. As he seems to know all about the business perhaps he could tell us how many 'suspicious' packages arrived during the year 1907, and incidentally what was in the 'suspicious' packages that arrived a few days ago.

Another Observer. Grand Pre, Feb. 25th, 1908.

Gaspereau. Although but little news from this quarter, have been seen in the paper of late, the old valley if far from dead, and I trust these few items may prove of interest.

Mrs. A. Davis, of Spencer, Mass., who was called home on account of the death of her mother, the late Mrs. Martha Coldwell, is spending a week here before returning to her home.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. George Hunter, who is being treated in the hospital, Halifax, is improving, and we hope her health may soon be restored.

White Rock Division paid us a very fraternal visit last Saturday evening. Although the attendance was small on account of the snowstorm, a very pleasant evening was spent.

With the social news may be added some pleasant 'At Home's.' On the evening of the 18th inst., a number of young people, from Gaspereau, Wolfville, Wolfbrook, Grand Pre and Long Island, were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Coldwell, Melancon. At seven o'clock the guests sat down to a bountiful repast, and after an hour had been spent, the evening was passed in playing various games, including the amusing game of 'Linnelka.' During the evening Miss Floella Palmer rendered a number of fine selections on the piano and was assisted by Miss Lydiard, of Kentville. This was spent one of the most enjoyable evenings of the winter.

Following this, may be mentioned a pleasant evening spent at Summer Hill Farm on Wolfville Ridge. About 20 guests were present from Wolfville, Gaspereau, Wolfbrook and Grand Pre. After a most generous supper had been partaken of, the evening was well filled with games and music. After ice-cream and cake had been served, the party broke up, each and all feeling that a very enjoyable evening had been spent.

A Much Prized Book.

Few books are so universally known and so highly prized as Dr. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is the medicine which has done more for the relief of the human race than any other medicine in the world over and is practically the only actual cure for all forms of cough.

CASTORIA.

"Rabbit has given up bank clerking to take a position as a conductor on the electric cars." "But that's an odd change." "Odd change? Sure! That's what I should have said."

CASTORIA.

"What is it?" inquired the stage manager. "Last night you gave the last act first. Probably nobody noticed it, but it shows lack of system. Don't let it occur again."

CASTORIA.

The lanky tramp removed his tattered hat and displayed his intellectual brow.

CASTORIA.

"Indeed!" she said. "Well, you go down to the road pile. You will find that last load the most knotty problem you ever tackled during your career."

CASTORIA.

"First interse—Doctor, there's something wrong with the ship. The surgeon commander—What's the nature of the attack?"

CASTORIA.

"The surgeon commander—Never mind what the doctor says. I'll try it with sterilized cotton and surgeon's plaster. If the symptoms do not abate report to me and I'll arrange a consultation."

Theory vs. Experience.

"Theory is often very beautiful, but they are not to be treated as a religion. You must know it and use it to save the life of the patient. It is always safe to be guided by the experience of others and only occasionally to try your own."

He comes home at night to find the house deserted.

"There's a rumpled bed on the centre table. He read it. His wife had eloped with a fascinating billiardier."

He hangs the note on the floor.

"Then he shrilly whistled. There was no response. He whistled again. He saw it all now. Blue had gone and taken the dog with her!"

He picked up the note and read it aloud.

"I have gone away with William," she wrote. "I felt that I needed a change."

Twenty minutes later he handed this "portentous" note to the "wuts" counter of the leading morning daily.

"Viola—back the dog and keep the change."

Bank Notes.

A lady who employed in an establishment where bank notes are much handled, said that when she first entered on her duties she was invariably mistaken for a bank note. "I don't know why," she said, "but I have been mistaken for a bank note so many times that I have had to be careful."

It is much the same in our moral life. The soul can detect the false, the untrue and the dangerous. If we do not heed the warning, we shall reach the same—Fidelity's Gleanings.

The New Postal Law.

Few newspapers understand the art of broiling, and consequently chops and steaks are often robbed of their delicate flavor by frying in a pan.

A steak or chop properly broiled should have a thin, well browned crust. Beyond this crust the meat should be red and juicy, hardly a shade less done in the middle than near the surface.

If the broiling is to be done on a range, have the fire very bright and clear. Open every draft, that smoke flames may be drawn up the chimney.

Place the pieces of meat in the double boiler and hold it as near the coals as possible until the surface is brown, turning frequently. It will take three or four minutes for this. Now raise the boiler several inches above the heat of the coals and continue the cooking until the meat is done.

The boiler must be turned off. A good rule is to count ten slowly, then turn the boiler. A steak or chop will cook nicely in ten minutes. If liked well done, it should be cooked for twelve minutes.

Sinking Sensations in the Stomach.

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous system is out of order.

The cause is impairment of nerve tone, arising from failure of the stomach to perform its work.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

The best, because the quickest and surest cure, is Perrozone.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs—it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach trouble," writes Mr. Maxwell Tompson, of Toledo. "I always had a headache and dull feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I didn't relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Perrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Perrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Perrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Perrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

Scalding the milk for custard pie adds greatly to its flavor. An addition of a teaspoonful of brown sugar or molasses is also helpful.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the house clean and tidy, women often use harsh and irritating cleansers.

One day a friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A man who was told by his physician that he could be cured of a serious disease if he would give up smoking, looked long at his cigar and slowly replied: "Doctor, I believe I could give up drinking if I really set myself to do it, but I can't give up smoking."

"Very well," said his physician, "get another doctor and die." The man did both.

'My Guests Touch No Wine.' The most effectual temperance lecture I ever heard in my life was preached to me on New Year's Day, said a young man, recently, in our hearing.

"Why, Horace, where were you and who delivered it?" was asked. "I was visiting in Philadelphia, and with my cousin, John Lewis, set out to pay a number of New Year calls. It is not the custom now, as formerly, to set out wine before guests, but it is still done sometimes. Our second call was at the princely home of Franklin Graves, of whom you have heard. His lovely daughter greeted us, smiling and beautiful, a queen among women. There was also an elegant assortment of choice wines which the father pressed upon the guests. 'Did you come to see papa or me?' was always the question asked of each guest, and, as far as I know, there was but one answer. 'We came to see you.' 'My guests touch no wine,' she said. 'I have other refreshments provided for them.' The wine glasses stood untouched, the fair young girl flitted to and fro among her guests, ministering herself to each guest, and, as far as I know, there was but one answer. 'We came to see you.'
