FIFTY THOUSAND LOYAL MEN OF CANADA WILL GO TO FRONT FOR ENGLAND'S CAUSE

Second Contingent is to be Organized at Once, With Premier Borden as Organizer—Col. Sam Hughes Will Sail For England at Once.

Germans in Berlin, Ontario, Have Raised the Sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars Towards the Patriotic Fund, and Have Cabled Their Best Wishes to Kitchener.

(Advocate Special Wire)

Montreal, Oct. 7—Despatches say that fighting is becoming more violent each day with neither side gaining any appreciable advantage.

German cavalry have appeared again in considerable numbers near Lille, but official sources are silent as to the details of fighting. It is believed that the cavalry has been brought from other points to relieve the pressure on Von Kluck.

Montreal, Oct. 7—Russia continues to make progress and seems to be able to handle the Germans how she likes.

Montreal, Oct. 7—Canada is to have fifty thousand men at the front. A second contingent is to be organized at once, and will contain more cavalry.

Col. Hughes is going to England at once, and in his absence the work of organizing will be undertaken by Premier Borden.

Montreal, Oct. 7—Antwerp is prepared to hold out to the extreme limit, and report says that the Germans are slackening somewhat in force.

President Poincare has paid a visit to the battle scene and has been in conference with Sir John French. Winston Churchill is reported as being in Antwerp at present.

Montreal, Oct. 7—German residents in Berlin, Ontario, have raised fifty thousand dollars for the Patriotic Fund, and have sent a cable message to Lord Kitchener that their best wishes are with the Allies. They declare that Militarism in the fatherland must be crushed if their country is to prosper.

Montreal, Oct. 7—The first shipment of clothing, etc., for Belgium leaves here next week. It weighs fifty tons. Help in cash and kind is coming in from all over the country.

Paris, Oct. 6—The following official communication was given out in Paris this afternoon:

"On our left wing the front is extending more and more widely. Very important masses of German cavalry have been reported in the environs of Lille, coming from forces of the enemy which are making a movement in the region to the north of the line between Tourcoing (in the Department of Nord, seven miles northeast of Lille), and Armentieres (nine miles northwest of Lille)."

London, Oct. 6—Telegraphing from Belfort, France, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"The Germans are trying to make the world believe that they still hold Alsace, but as a matter of fact, the French are there in thousands and so well established that the enemy has not dared to attack them.

"There is nothing in front of the French force of occupation. If they wish they can walk right through to the Rhine."

"In East Prussia, the retreat of the Germans continues. They are, however, making attempts to offer resistance in previously selected and fortified positions, on a line from Werjbolowe, to Lyk."

Montreal, Oct. 6—The action of the Kaiser in dismissing Von Moltke is the subject of much comment in Britain. Gen. Von Moltke and the Kaiser have had serious differences of opinion lately, and many of the reverses that the Germans have suffered is put down to the latter's interference.

The Kaiser wished his subordinate every consideration to annihilating the British forces, and has compelled Moltke to change his plans with this object. Moltke was unwilling to comply in cases where the German plan of campaign would suffer by the change, hence his dismissal.

The morale of the German army is bad, and the men are dispirited at having to continually fight losing battles. In order to put new heart into them, fresh offensive movements are being undertaken, but the Allies are ready to meet any move that may be made.

Montreal, Oct. 6—Spain is now facing the question as to how much longer she can remain neutral.

Parliament should have met some time ago, but was delayed by war in order not to afford an opportunity to discuss Spain's neutrality. Public opinion, however, is strongly in favor of France, and with Portugal having openly announced that she is ready to join England at any moment she is needed, Spain cannot very well keep out.

Montreal, Oct. 6—The London press, commenting on the supply of pit props and other mine timbers, says that the Board of Trade has been informed that Quebec and New Brunswick can supply all necessary lumber, but the Board considers the price asked as altogether exorbitant, and unless the lumbermen are more reasonable, the government will commandeer what they need to keep the Welsh coal mines, which supply the navy, going.

Montreal, Oct. 6—Complaints have just reached London from the front that the soldiers have run shy of tobacco. A fund was opened and contributions are pouring in. One million cigarettes were despatched yesterday.

THE INVASION OF GERMANS IN RUSSIA COMPLETELY CRUSHED

Rome, via Paris, Oct. 5, 11.20 p. m.—The Russian embassy here tonight made public an official communication received from the Russian headquarters staff saying:

"The defeat of the Germans is complete. Their retreat is changing into a rout that is so disorderly and precipitate that they are forced to abandon everything.

"Two Russian armies are proceeding, one from the west and another from the south, toward Allenstein (in East Prussia, fifty miles southeast of Elbing.)

"The German losses have not yet been officially ascertained, but it is estimated that they had 70,000 men disabled."

London, Oct. 5, 11.50 p. m.—A Reuter despatch from Petrograd says:

"Side by side with the official account of the German defeat on the Russo-Prussian frontier, details are published of the Russians crossing the Carpathians, which, as one writer says, destroys the legend that the eastern Carpathians are impregnable.

"Before attaining Uzok Pass the Russians successively captured, thanks to a wide flanking movement, three well masked positions, which were strongly defended by guns. Each time the Russians charged the enemy fled, and the Russians followed up the Austrian retreat with shrapnel and quick-fire, inflicting heavy losses.

"During the Russian retreat through the Mazur Lake district, in East Prussia, a Russian battery was surrounded on three sides by the enemy's quick fire. The infantry was on the other side of the lake, and the Russian ammunition was exhausted. In order to avert capture, the commander ordered the battery to gallop over the declivity into the lake. His order was obeyed, and he himself was among the drowned.

"During an assault on the fortress of Ossowetz, a German column got into a bog. The Russians shelled the bog and the single road crossing it. The Germans, in trying to extricate themselves, sank deeper into the mire, and hundreds were killed or wounded. Of the whole column there were only about forty survivors."

ANTWERP STILL HOLDING OUT

Of Antwerp the official report says that the situation in the fortified positions remains unchanged.

Fighting, too, continues in the near east, and the Anglo-French fleet has succeeded in destroying Lustica, an outer defence of the Austrian seaport of Cattaro.

While the Servians and Montenegrins are attacking the outer fortifications of Sarajevo, Belgrade, which has been so often under fire, has not been bombarded for several days, probably as a result of the re-occupation of Semlin by the Servians.

Skirmishes have occurred on the Anglo-German frontier in East Africa, due to German raids into British territory for the purpose of cutting the Uganda railway. All these raids have, according to the British official report, been repulsed.

While the usual life in England is not seriously upset by the war, the regulations in many respects are becoming more stringent. An instance of this is to be found in the action of the authorities, who, in order to keep the army provided with warm clothing, have commandeered large quantities of woollens in Leicester, a step which is likely to be followed elsewhere.

Belgium, Oct. 5—Then ews from Brussels is very disquieting. All communication with Ninova is impossible. The Belgians have blown up bridges and blocked the line with wrecked trains so as to compel the Germans to retreat through Namur. This renders Brussels useless to them.

Montreal, Oct. 5—The situation today at Antwerp is causing

Newcastle Loses Valuable Officer In Death of Late Thomas Hill

Has Served the Town for Twenty-one Years as a Guardian of the Peace—Blood Poisoning the Cause of Death—Funeral on Saturday Largely Attended.

The citizens of Newcastle were deeply shocked at noon on Thursday last to learn of the sudden death of Thomas Hill, who for the past twenty-one years had been a faithful officer of the town, and who, while in the performance of his duty, received an injury to his hand which brought on blood poisoning resulting in his death.

Immediately upon learning the sad news, the flag was at once hoisted to half-mast in the public square as a token of respect to one who had served the town's interests as a guardian of the peace with an unbroken record for so many years.

The late Mr. Hill was 59 years of age, and while he had passed the turning point in the life of man, as an officer of the law he was by every one respected and his word was as good as his bond. While many, throughout his long service, have been led by him to the bar of justice, it is safe to say that he had not a single enemy among them, and the town of Newcastle has met with the loss of an officer whose place it will be hard to fill.

How Mr. Hill Was Injured
The late Mr. Hill, by his own preference, was night officer, and while on his rounds on Monday night came in contact with a Norwegian, named Nels Nelsen, about 11 o'clock, who was under the influence of liquor, and who was also raising a disturbance on Prince William street. Upon being arrested he put up a stubborn resistance, forcing the officer, to use violence, striking the man in the face with his hand. His hand coming in contact with the man's teeth, caused a slight abrasion of the skin. This the deceased officer paid no attention to until Wednesday night, when he consulted Dr. Nicholson, who advised him to go off duty and to go home at once, which he did.

His hand and wrist quickly began to swell, all attendance being unavailing. His heart was weak, and about 11 o'clock Thursday morning he was found dead in bed by his family.

The late Mr. Hill was a member of the Foresters, having joined that organization in 1904, and also of the Orange Order.

The funeral of the late Thomas Hill was held Saturday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of the town's citizens, by whom the deceased was held in high esteem.

Services were held at the house and grave, conducted by Rev. S. J. MacArthur. The town council were present in a body, as were also the volunteers at the Wireless, headed by the Newcastle band.

The funeral was held under the auspices of the Scarlet Chapter of the Orange Order, who attended in a body.

The pallbearers were D. C. Smallwood, W. J. McCormack, James Hailley, Peter Aharan, James Forrest and E. O'Donnell.

The late Mr. Hill is survived by his wife, (nee Miss Martha Sutherland) and a family of seven children, Abigail, of the post office staff; Sarah, teacher at Bown Road; Maude, Catherine, Janet, Elizabeth and Thomas, who attend school. There is also two brothers and one sister in Cassilis, Mrs. McGregor and Adam and Joseph.

Among the floral offerings were a magnificent stand of flowers sent by the Mayor and Town Council, a pillow by the Newcastle merchants, and wreaths from L. O. L. No. 47, and the Northumberland Royal Scarlet Chapter, Dickison and Troy and the family, and a sheaf of wheat from Postmaster Troy.

PRETTY WEDDING AT BRYENTON

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bryenton, of Bryenton, Wednesday evening, Sept. 30th at eight o'clock when their daughter Charlotte E.

was united in marriage to Oliver E. Vye, of Millerton. Rev. John A. Ives performed the ceremony in the presence of the near relatives. The bride was becomingly gowned in white crepe de chene with silk allover and pearl and rhinestone trimmings, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The happy couple were unattended. After the usual felicitations a sumptuous repast was served. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly gifts from her large circle of friends. The newly married couple left on a short wedding trip and on their return will make their home in Bathurst. The bride's going away suit was dark blue serge with hat to match. The young couple are followed to their new home by best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

Shells Rained Incessantly on Antwerp Fortifications

Bombardment Kept Up All Night by the Germans, Who Moved Their Guns to Closer Range During the Darkness and Hurlled Shot After Shot Into Forts

Antwerp, Oct. 2.—The bombardment of the southern chain of the Antwerp fortifications continues without interruption. Under cover of last night the Germans moved a number of their guns closer to the city. However, they have not yet opened with any of the long range 16.3 inch siege mortars, and so far as can be ascertained by the Belgian air scouts not a single one of them has yet been mounted. The Germans have razed most of the small villages which constitute the outlying suburbs of Antwerp. They have guns posted on the outskirts of Heysel, Desbize, Thisselt, Londerseel and the other little towns which heretofore have been spared the war pestilence.

London, Oct. 2.—In describing the attack of the Germans on Antwerp the correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, wiring from Antwerp under date of Thursday noon, says: "From the top of a gas tank at Hobeken (three miles southwest of Antwerp), last night, was witnessed a scene of sombre grandeur. The line of attack on the city was defined by the clear night air very sharply by flashes of the enemy's great siege guns. Similarly the line of defence was shown in points of light which stabbed the night from the Belgian forts. It was almost possible occasionally to see the effect of the falling shells.

"The artillery duel continued throughout the night. The German fire seemed to be directed chiefly toward emptying the outlying villages and every road into Antwerp was choked with refugees.

"There is no doubt that many alarming reports of German operations will creep across the frontier to Holland. We cannot give definite information from here on account of the prohibition against news, which might be useful to the enemy, but it can be said with official sanction that the position, while calling for the utmost vigilance and effort, is not alarming. The Belgians have suffered in some quarters while in others they have inflicted loss. The general balance inspires confidence.

"All scouting officers agree, however, that the German attack is merely a demonstration which is not intended to be pushed home. No Belgian aviators have uncovered any great masses of German infantry."

THE COST OF LIVING IN THE UNITED STATES

Still Increasing Steadily—The Underwood Tariff Has Not Produced Promised Reductions

It will be remembered that some radical advocates of the Underwood Tariff prophesied that, when it became law, the cost of living would fall like a parachute.

Even the moderate adherents of the Underwood theories argued that lowering the tariff would reduce to some extent the burden of securing the necessities of life.

Is the Underwood Tariff producing this happy result?

Bulletin 138, which is just being issued by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, at Washington, dealing with fifteen staple articles of food, shows that, when the price of each of these articles of food is considered according to the average consumption in workmen's families, retail prices were on a higher level on October 15th, 1913, than at any other time during the last twenty-three years. Retail prices of food on October 15th, 1913, were 70.9 per cent. above the average price for the ten-year period, 1890 to 1899; 7.9 per cent. above the price on October 15th, 1912, and 16.9 per cent. above the price on October 15th, 1911.

This bulletin is one of the Bureau's regular series on retail prices. It shows actual prices for September and October, 1913, and September and October, 1912, and also summarizes retail prices for the period from 1890 to October, 1913.

Comparing retail prices on October 15th, 1913, with prices on the same date in 1912, thirteen of the fifteen articles for which quotations are given advanced and two declined in price. Potatoes advanced 42.3 per cent.; eggs advanced 14.2 per cent.; round steak advanced 12.9 per cent.; ham advanced 10.6 per cent.; rib roast advanced 8.8 per cent.; sirloin steak advanced 8.3 per cent.; bacon advanced 8.2 per cent.; hens advanced 7.5 per cent.; pork chops advanced 6.3 per cent.; butter advanced 3.7 per cent.; milk advanced 2.7 per cent.; corn meal advanced 1.7 per cent.; and lard advanced 1.0 per cent. Sugar declined 8.8 per cent., and flour declined 3.8 per cent.

As the Underwood Tariff went into effect on October 13th, 1913, it was operating only twelve days before the above statistics were taken; hence it would be unreasonable to expect marked results in so short a period. However, the passage of the Act was practically certain for months before it was finally approved; yet this certainty did not cause prices to be lowered.

This is a further proof of the old saying that "Trade laughs at Tariffs." It would seem to indicate beyond a doubt that the increase in the cost of living cannot rightly be fastened to the system of protection, moderate or otherwise. United States has for over a generation been an example of what a policy of extreme protection can do to build up the country.

PUBLIC MEETING THURSDAY EVE'G

Steps Taken to Establish Branch of Canadian Patriotic Fund

A public meeting to take steps to establish a branch of the Canadian Patriotic fund, was held Thursday night in the town hall, Mayor Morrissey presided, and H. H. Stuart was chosen secretary of the meeting.

Mayor Morrissey explained the purpose of the meeting, reading circulars from the Hon. Sec. H. B. Ames, M. P., explaining the constitution, and stating that the services of Mr. C. A. Warburton were available as organizer whenever needed. The fund would be for soldiers' families only, not to relieve the poverty of any who might suffer indirectly from the war, as through loss of employment, higher prices, etc. A soldier's wife with 3 children would receive $45 a month—$20 from the government and $25 from the Patriotic Fund. In the case of British reservists the British government paid $17.10 per month, leaving $27.90 to be made up from the local fund.

Rev. Father Dixon suggested that the full particulars be published in the local papers so as to make everyone familiar with them and thus save the collectors from having to explain every time they asked for subscriptions.

The Mayor agreed.

J. D. Creaghan wanted the organization to definitely organize that night and make a start.

Rev. Dr. Harrison noted that the merged with the Central fund.

St. John Patriotic fund had been E. A. McCurdy endorsed Rev. Father Dixon's idea of publicity.

J. D. Buckley wanted organization completed as soon as possible, before the mills should shut down and money become scarcer.

He moved, seconded by J. D. Creaghan, that the meeting adjourn, to meet again on Friday, Oct. 9th, at 8 p. m. in the Town Hall, to complete organization. Carried.

Adjourned.

Russians Silence Austrian Batteries

Peking, Oct. 3, 1.10 a. m.—The Japanese government has requested China to remove the Chinese soldiers from the railway line that connects Tsing Tau with Tsi Nan.

The request is made, Japan says, because it is her purpose to occupy the railway up to Tsi Nan, the western terminus. If any opposition is encountered, the Japanese government states that it will be considered an unfriendly act.

London, Oct. 3, 12.05 a. m.—Reuter's Rome correspondent says that news received in the Italian capital from the Russian headquarters is to the effect that Przemyśl, Galicia, has been attacked by the Russians on all sides.

Two of the forts, it is stated, already have been taken, and from these the Russians have been able to silence several Austrian batteries.

Amsterdam, via London, Oct. 3, 12.10 a. m.—An official despatch received here from Vienna denies all Serbian reports of victories over the Austrians, and says that the Austrians not only are secure in the positions they have captured east of the Drina river, but are advancing uninterruptedly.

Again reports are in circulation that the Germans are making preparations to evacuate Belgium or, at any rate, that portion as far east as Brussels. It is said that their force in Brussels is picking up. Still another rumor has it that the German staff headquarters has been removed from Luxemburg to Mayene.

BRITISH TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYER IN A HEAVY SEA

The destroyers are the scouts of the sea. Constructed first twenty years ago to destroy the torpedo boat, they have taken the place of the torpedo boat. Driven at tremendous speed they spy out the enemy and send word back to the admiral; they carry guns and can fight others of their kind but their chief weapon is the long slender death-dealing torpedo. A destroyer under full speed is a mass of throbbing, palpitating steel, resembling nothing so much as the interior of a machine shop.

Allies Steadily Gain In Flanking Movement

German Troops Wearing Out Under Terrible Strain—British Despatch Riders Win High Praise For Daring and Effective Work

At the Battlefront, Oct. 1, via Paris, 9.21 p. m.—The generals in command of the allies are full of praise for the corps of despatch riders who, since the beginning of the great battle of the Aisne, have kept up communications between the various corps along the line now spreading from the Somme to the Moselle, and along the frontier of Alsace-Lorraine.

The corps of despatch riders is composed mostly of volunteers from British universities, many of them very wealthy youths, who night and day have made dashes throughout the country invested with German cavalry, carrying messages which have kept the brigades and army corps in close touch and enabled commanders to send reinforcements to points where they were most needed.

On many occasions these despatch riders mounted on motor cycles through sheer audacity and speed have scattered reconnoitering parties of German cavalry, sometimes facing enormous odds in their dangerous work.

The recent terrible hand-to-hand conflicts on the western and eastern wings arose from the attempts of the German and the allied generals to execute flanking movements in great force at the same time in the open country. The lines of the armies have been growing even longer in the last ten days, in a mutual endeavor to overlap each other. The wings have been heavily reinforced, but the allies have been able to bring greater power to bear, and not only have prevented the Germans from breaking through, but have gained ground steadily, and now have the advantage.

German prisoners, who have been taken in large numbers on the western end of the line, show that the reinforcements which have arrived recently consist largely of older men, who are nearing middle age. Some of them are fathers with families who had been away from the active army service for ten or fifteen years.

This seems to indicate that many corps have been withdrawn to meet the Russian advance.

The German practice of maintaining an incessant offensive appears, according to military men, to be having the result of wearing out their human material. Some of their corps have been almost wiped out of existence. The fighting, if the beginning of the battle of the Marne is taken as the commencement, has been unceasing—something previously unknown in military history—and before this fight started many German regiments had fought all the way down from Liege, Belgium.

The issue of the war, says Sir J. J. Barrie, is as to "whether soldiers or citizens shall rule in Europe." That is the case in a nutshell.

WESTERN FREE-TRADER AND "MADE-IN-CANADA"

Dr. Michael Clark Champions the Home Product—An Extract From His Speech

"The vital point, however, is not as to relative costs, but that a home-built navy would be a Canadian cost, and every cent of that cost be turned for the protection of Canadian industry.

"The money if spent in Britain, is a dead loss to Canada, a dead financial loss, a dead loss to autonomy, a dead loss to economy, and a dead loss to self-respect. Were the navy constructed here, Canadians would get the wages to dress their children better, to feed their children better, to house their wives and children better."

Dr. Michael Clark, M.P., the stalwart free trader from Red Deer, is not often found championing the "Made-in-Canada" principle. The above extract, therefore from his speech on the Naval Question in the House of Commons will come as somewhat of a surprise.

It will be noticed that Dr. Clark not only champions the "Made-in-Canada" Navy, but emphasizes the fact that the workmen engaged making ships in Canada would get wages which would enable them to live on a better scale apparently than would the ship workers that Dr. Clark knows in his old home in England. The President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will no doubt rejoice that Dr. Clark has become a champion of the "Made-in-Canada" idea, particularly when he suggests that the Canadian workman would support his family on a higher standard of living than his fellow workmen under free trade in Great Britain.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A "PAX ROMANA" FOR GERMANY

Berlin's supreme confidence in a successful outcome of the Kaiser's war has been badly shaken since news of real conditions at the front has found its way among the masses of the people.

It will be noted that there is little reflection in this soothing journalistic appeal of the cocksure spirit which has been characteristic of public opinion in Berlin for years past.

The "Deutsche Tageszeitung" writes: "Germany does not only fight for an honorable peace. It fights for a peace which assures for it, for a generation at least, a certain peaceful place in Europe and in the world."

The Socialist Democratic "Vorwaerts" endorses these pacific views, and adds: "We wish only that a peace which includes a guarantee of continuity shall crown this war."

If all this is not humbug, it is the acme of self-deception. If Germany is so much concerned about peace, why did she so determinedly set about breaking it?

GERMAN FINANCES AND THE WAR

A recent issue of the Revue des deux Mondes, the great French review, contains a passage on the origin of the war which is worthy of attention.

give to Germany in debt the huge sums in the Bank of France and an indemnity, quite as much as to satisfy the threats and swagger of the military party, the pan-Germanists, and the dreamers of a greater Germany.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Dread of public opinion will always have some influence to restrain even the least civilized nations from savagery on the battlefield, says the Mail and Empire.

When the Red Cross had been repeatedly fired upon by German soldiers, when many non-combatants had been slaughtered about Liege, and when the hands of the Germans were stained with the Louvain massacre and with the barbarities of Charleroi, it was to the Washington Chamber of Commerce the Belgians made their appeal, as it was to the British government they made their appeal when their neutrality was outraged.

The United States may well feel proud of the great respect thus shown for its conscience and humane feeling. High honor and responsibility are thereby thrust upon it by its fellows in the family of nations.

Why is the United States looked to as the impartial referee? It is one of the great powers. It is perfectly neutral. It is completely detached from the parties and the causes at issue.

Its good offices in promoting peace between Japan and Russia, and its efforts to establish arbitration for the settlement of all controversies between nations were actuated by good will towards its neighbors.

JAPAN IN THE PACIFIC

One of the attaches of the German embassy at Washington has got into trouble by expressing the opinion that Japan intends to go to war with the United States.

of the Panama Canal has placed the American fleet on both oceans. That fleet is much superior in strength to the Japanese navy and this fact alone is to negative the German diplomatist's opinion.

A FATAL ERROR

Not only in Europe but in this country and in all other countries, should the outcome of this war be the end of the theory that the way to prevent peace is to prepare for war.

THE FRENCH-CANADIAN REGIMENT

The government has assented to the proposal, submitted by a delegation of prominent French-Canadians, wife of President Taft's ambassador to Japan in 1912.

UNITED STATES TRADE DECLINE

An analysis of the trade returns for last month shows that the United States export trade to Germany has practically ceased since the outbreak of war, while that to France and Great Britain, where shopping has not been so seriously interrupted, showed only a comparatively small decrease.

THE COMMAND OF THE SEA

Not until the war is over, and its various phases may be studied in the light of the fullest reports can it be said with any approach to accuracy what would have been the fate of the French army if the English force had not succeeded in escaping from the enveloping German movement.

UNJUST CRITICISM

In the Chatham World of the 2nd Inst., we read the following with reference to the Bathurst Road, which has just been opened by the Chief Commissioner, the Hon. John Morrissey:

"The Old Bathurst Road, as a highway for automobile tourists, is a good thing, but the money that has been spent on it should have been devoted to the rebuilding of the Barnaby River bridge. This is the opinion of all except the automobile friends of the Chief Commissioner. The Barnaby River bridge is a necessity and the automobile track between Chatham and Bathurst is a luxury."

Instead of criticising Mr. Morrissey for the interest he has taken in his own County by the completion of such an important highway, it would be much more to the point for our contemporary, the "Commodore," to get busy himself and justify his existence as a representative of the County of Northumberland by doing something besides criticising a public man, who is working so energetically for the interest of his County.

It is just possible the Chief Commissioner may intend to use the Railway Bridge at Barnaby River for the purposes of the public highway at that point and it is quite probable that this bridge will soon be available for this purpose.

BELGIAN RELIEF

Canadians cannot show too great willingness in their contributions to the funds being raised for the relief of the gallant Belgians. While there is no wish or desire to detract from the splendid work of the allied armies in the fields of France, it must not be forgotten that it was the soldiers of Belgium who, by their gallant defence of Liege, contributed the first check to the Germans. The German military authorities who directed the march on Paris selected Belgium as the country through which the troops should pass, because they believed the Belgians either would not or could not offer successful resistance to the onslaught. That they were mistaken was abundantly proven to them in a series of engagements in which the Belgians, man for man, showed themselves superior to the finest soldiers in the Kaiser's army; but as the German forces were reinforced the gallant Belgians were called upon to pay a terrible price for their resistance.

Tens of thousands of Belgians have given their lives in defence of their homes and their country's honor. Their cities have been razed and their once peaceful farmsteads converted into debris heaps. Naturally there must be great and severe distress and the condition existing now will be aggravated during the winter months. Belgium has rendered wonderful service to the allies, and the most generous contributions the people of Canada can make to Belgian relief funds will not pay the debt we, in common with other portions of the Empire, owe to the men who first checked the German advances and gained the time necessary for the allies to bring effective forces into the field.—St. John Standard.

Reopening of Bathurst Road
Celebrated by Automobile Parade

Were Met By a Number Of Cars From Bathurst And Escorted To Town—Sumptuous Repast at Robertson House

The old post road between Ferryville, opposite Chatham, and Bathurst which was used as the main highway to Bathurst prior to the completion of the Intercolonial Railway, and was abandoned after the railway came into use, was re-opened to traffic on Friday, the 2nd inst., when the opening of the road was celebrated by an automobile parade in which a number of automobiles from Newcastle, Douglastown and Chatham participated.

The procession was met about ten miles from Bathurst by eight or ten automobiles from there and escorted to Bathurst, where a hearty welcome was extended the visitors. A sumptuous repast awaited them at the White House. The visitors were given the freedom of the town and during their stay toured the town and over to the Bathurst village, observing with great interest the various extensive manufacturing industries there located. One of the principal attractions was the extensive new Pulp and Paper mill being erected by interests identified with the Bathurst Lumber Co., Ltd.

Another object of interest was an imposing building, being erected by the Trappist Fathers on a prominent site not far from the railway station. Judging from the many signs of prosperity in our sister town, Bathurst, we predict for some a very successful future and would not be surprised should it become one of the leading towns of the province within the next ten years.

Such enterprising citizens as Messrs. Angus McLean, T. M. Burns, George Gilbert and others are bound to make the town prosperous. We are sure they appreciate to fullest extent the enterprise and foresight of the Chief Commissioner, the Hon. John Morrissey, in the early competition of such an important highway as the new Bathurst road—as fully as do the citizens of the Miramichi, not only

RHEUMATIC MISERY
Can Only Be Cured Through the Blood Liniments of No Use

In no disease does the blood become thin so rapidly as in rheumatism. Not only does it become thin but it is loaded with impurities—rheumatic poisons. Without the proper treatment these poisons increase, the inflamed joints swell and the patient becomes a cripple. There are a number of methods of treating rheumatism, most of them aiming to keep down the rheumatic poisons until nature can build up the blood sufficiently to overcome them. But unfavorable conditions of cold or dampness may give the disease the advantage and a relapse or renewed attack follows.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People build up the blood and enable it to cast out the rheumatic poisons with the natural secretions of the body. Thousands have tried this treatment with the most beneficial results. That every sufferer who does not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is neglecting the most helpful means of recovery is shown by the following statement. Mrs. Emeline Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I was attacked with what the doctor said was inflammatory rheumatism. The joints of my hands, feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I suffered the most excruciating pain. Notwithstanding medical treatment the trouble became so bad that I could not go about. My appetite began to fail and I was growing physically weak. A neighbor who had been benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try them and I decided to do so. In the course of a few weeks I noted some improvement, and my appetite began to return. Then the swelling in my joints began to disappear, and it was not long until I was perfectly cured and I have had no return of the trouble."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Demonstration Car Containing Wool and Egg Exhibits

Of Live Stock Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, to be Run Over Lines of C. P. R. in Ontario, Quebec and Maritime Provinces

As a result of the success, which has attended the presentation of the Wool and Egg Exhibits of the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, at the larger Western Fairs this summer, arrangements have been made in cooperation with the Canadian Pacific Railway to place these exhibits before the people of the Eastern Provinces through the medium of a Demonstration Car. This car will leave Ottawa on or about the middle of October and will be operated over the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stops being made at a large number of important agricultural centres. The detailed itinerary is now being arranged and further announcement of the date of the arrival of the car at each point will be given later. The car will be in charge of Egg and Wool Specialists of the Poultry and Sheep Divisions, respectively, and Demonstrations will be given at each scheduled stop.

The Egg Exhibit

The principal features of the Egg Exhibit are contained in two large show cases, and strikingly illustrate right and wrong methods of marketing eggs. In one case, by means of models and appropriate descriptions are depicted the careless methods of handling eggs, prevailing on too large a number of Canadian farms and in country stores. In this illustration the eggs are gathered infrequently and from questionable places. They are held until it is convenient to carry them to market and are often traded on a fat-rate basis for merchandise at the country store where little or no attention is paid to their preservation. Here they are frequently held indefinitely, in anticipation of a rising market and often are shipped in damp and musty cases to the Wholesale Dealer where they are candled and graded. The result of the candling is indicated and it is to be noted that a relatively small proportion grade "select." The manner in which the average retail grocer permits eggs to deteriorate is also pointed out, and it by chance, a portion of the uncandled eggs should have gone direct to the consumer the result is very evident.

An additional and important feature of the Exhibit is a large candling booth, in which continuous demonstrations are given in the art of candling eggs. This phase of the work is of particular interest to consumers, for the reason that but few appreciate the fact that the quality of an egg can be accurately determined without breaking the shell.

The candling of eggs is not a difficult process and the small amount of labor entailed in candling presents no valid reason why the consuming public should not candle their own eggs. It should be recognized that as a business requirement the wholesale trade regularly, candles and grades the product which it receives. Merchants generally, however, should acquire facility in candling and every housewife will find it to her advantage to attend one of these candling demonstrations. She will be interested in observing the methods practised and by obtaining one of the simple cardboard candling appliances which are distributed, free, she will be in a position to safeguard her family from many unpleasant occurrences at the breakfast table.

The Wool Exhibit

The object of the wool exhibit is to assist farmers and city dwellers alike to gain a more complete and definite knowledge of the character of wools grown in this and other countries, and of the products manufactured therefrom. It will demonstrate how wool may be handled to secure the best advantages to both producer and consumer. Carelessness in the preparation of Canadian wool has resulted in an injury to its reputation upon the markets of the world. In an endeavour to overcome these conditions by aiding the wool growers of Canada to place upon the market a high grade product, the Sheep Division presents this exhibit to the public.

One of the most interesting and instructive features comprises samples of wool in both the greasy and scoured product, showing the injurious effects of using insoluble paints, which are difficult to remove. There are also samples of wool tied with binder-twine (sisal), which show how the sisal fibre becomes incorporated into the wool and the consequent defect in the finished cloth. The injurious effect of shearing sheep while damp, or of permitting the wool to become wet while in storage is exhibited, together with the damage caused by the incorporation of straw and chaff into the fleece.

DOWN AT VALCARTIER

(Helen Ball)

Rimmed round with misty mountains,
Blue in September's haze,
The nearer hills a riot
With autumn's gorgeous blaze,
Where tiny hamlets cluster
'Neath roofs of softest grey,
Down in that gentle peace land
There lies Valcartier.

Nature all lavish with color
Hath blazoned her world gold and red
Orange and crimson and purple
' Sky washed with blue overhead.
Down at the foot of the hillsides
Wild fow'rs of blue shyly stray
Near, cluster wee purple daisies,
Sunny Valcartier.

But see, on those broad rolling acres
Thousands of tents glisten white
Here as on far field of battle
Camp fires glimmer by night.
Here tens of thousands of soldiers,
Drilling and marching by day,
Down in the midst of God's peace land
Here lies Valcartier.

Bugle calls sound through the valley,
Trumpet blast gives war's alarm;
Every man eager and thrilling
Answers the summons to arms.
Cavalry dash with drawn sabres,
Infantry tramping away,
Nearby artillery rumbles,
Down at Valcartier.

God! how your pulses all throb as
You look on that khaki-clad world
Canada loyal, there answers
To Britain's war banners unfurled,
Bravely the pipes sound their pibroch
Gaily, the bugle bands play,
Hark! 'Tis the tramp of our soldiers
Marching from Valcartier.

Spirit of Canada's manhood,
Dwells in each heart, fine and brave
Love of the Motherland burning
Britain's dear honor to save,
O God and Father Eternal,
Humbly to Thee now we pray,
Be very near to our soldiers
Who've left Valcartier.

Rimmed round with misty mountains,
Blue in September's haze,
Silent the camp that was pulsing;
Those eager sunny days,
Never while hearts that now yearn,
Still live in the world of today,
Will those magic words be forgotten,
"Down at Valcartier."

Fifty Thousand Loyal Canadians Will be Sent for England's Cause

The Allies some anxiety, although the Belgians declare they can hold out indefinitely.

The tremendous power of the German siege guns is proving more than any ordinary forts can stand for any length of time.

A considerable number of the Allied troops have been rushed to Antwerp to try and dislodge the Germans, and some victories made by the Belgians have caused great losses to the Germans. Two German regiments were completely wiped out.

Montreal, Oct. 5—The arrival of the Czar to the battlefield was the signal for a great demonstration on the part of his soldiers, who have inflicted a very great defeat on the enemy, which is retiring in all directions as the Russians advance.

Italian people are hot for the war, and the entry of Italy into the conflict cannot be much longer delayed.

Japan is very active in the East, and has made a very successful bombardment at Tsing Tau.

Montreal, Oct. 5—The latest despatch from Paris just come in says: "A battle is raging with great violence on the Allies left wing, and they have had to give some ground, but the result is undecided so far. There is no change anywhere else along the battlefield."

London, Monday, Oct. 5—The Morning Post publishes from Antwerp the following despatch, dated Friday:

"I witnessed today from Lierre a most interesting aerial engagement, if engagement is the proper word for a flight under heavy shell fire. A little after 4 o'clock a British naval biplane rose out of Antwerp and headed for the German lines between Willebroeck and Heyndonck. These machines fly with almost incredible swiftness. This one passed a fast motor car going in the same direction as easily as a swallow passes a sparrow.

"As soon as the British aeroplane got over the German lines it came under the fire of German guns especially designed to attack aviators. Two of these guns engaged the aviator. They first fired ranging shells which, on bursting, left a thick ball of black smoke. These shells apparently were fired with a difference in elevation of 500 feet, and were designed to ascertain the elevation of the aeroplane, but the aeroplane seemed to shape its course so as to avoid passing near the smoke balls which were in any case at a greater height than itself. The German guns then began a shrapnel fire, as if satisfied by the information given by the ranging shells. Twelve shells were fired all at a greater height than the aeroplane, as if the design were to scatter balls on it from above. Changing its course occasionally, the aeroplane flew about, completed its work, and winged its way back to the Belgian lines.

Fierce Engagements In Russian Poland

Constant Fighting Going on in Which the Victorious Troops of the Czar Press Germans Back to Border, Leaving Many of Their Best Troops on the Field of Battle

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—The General Staff has given out the following official communication:

"The Russian troops have continued to repulse the enemy from the boundaries of the Government of Savelki and Lomza. The engagement has been very fierce west of Symna.

"The German troops that were attacking Ossowetz are retreating hastily to the north. Considerable forces of the enemy, of which the bulk arrived from the west, are concentrating in the districts west of the governments of Piotrkow and Kielce.

"The Russian cavalry and vanguards are reconnoitering energetically through that region impeding through vigorous attacks the movement of the enemy. The Germans always endeavor to use the highways in Russian territory, because the other roads being rough paralyze their artillery trains.

"An attack by the Russian cavalry against the German vanguard in front of Andrew and marching on Kielce was crowned with great success. The German infantry was caught unaware and is retreating in disorder, pursued by the Russian cavalry.

"The bombardment of Ossowetz did damage to only a few private dwellings and a few telephone lines, as the garrison was sheltered by numerous concrete walls.

"The offensive by the Russian troops marching through the forests of Augustowo was not covered by the artillery. South of Augustowo a hand-to-hand engagement took place. It was particularly fierce in the semicircle between the Bialobrozek canal, which was crossed by a Russian column, and the Augustowo Canal, near Borki Basin. The issue of this engagement was decided by an attack from Augustowo.

"Northwest of the forest of Augustowo, the Russians were compelled to attack the rear guard of the Germans through numerous defiles and in fortified positions, where the Russian infantry received great help from its heavy artillery, which caused great losses to the enemy, who were dislodged from the entrenchments and retired under our fire.

"The battle is proceeding over an extensive front, the Germans occupying positions near Mariampol and south of St. Shushin. In the vicinity of Wrosouch the ground is very rough making it very difficult for the troops to keep their battle lines. This has resulted in a series of individual engagements. The advance of the Russian troops is meeting with success everywhere."

Gen. Joffre Could Dispose of Opposing Forces in One Day

(Bulletin Special Wire)

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Although the retreat of Von Kluck's army has not actually taken place, today's despatches indicate that he is making all preparations for a "get away" as soon as possible. Troops are being sent to cover up his rear and keep his line of communication open.

The unceasing pressure from the Allies is forcing him out of his position, which has become so precarious that two army corps from the Crown Prince's Command have had to be rushed to his assistance to hold the Allies off.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Col. H. H. McLean is trying to get up a cavalry regiment to go to the front, and will ask the Provincial government to pay the cost of equipment, as there are lots of men waiting to go. If the government will not defray the cost, a public subscription will be gotten up.

London, Sept. 30, 10.01 p. m.—The nineteenth day of the battle of the Aisne finds the allied armies pushing with all the strength they can bring to bear in their great effort to outflank the German right wing and force it back from its line of communications through Belgium.

There is evidence that this movement is beginning to tell and unless something unforeseen happens this portion of the German army must fall back to another defensive line.

The French official report issued this afternoon says that the action continues to develop to the northward, so that the French left must now be pushing toward Cambrai, as yesterday it was in the neighborhood of Albert.

Even further north than this the French cavalry are operating, and last week a German force which was sent to Orchies, sixteen miles southeast of Lille, to punish France-Tiereurs for an alleged attack on a German hospital at that place met with superior forces and had to fall back.

while his preparations for retreat are being carried out.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—The publication in the London Times today of the Kaiser's orders to his army to concentrate their first effort to wiping out "treacherous English and walk over General French's contemptible little army" has caused a sensational feeling throughout Britain, however, is one of supreme confidence. Germany and France have already got the limit of their resources engaged in war, while those of Britain and Russia are hardly touched yet.

Von Kluck's Army is Making Preparations For Speedy Retreat

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Despatches from Paris indicate that Gen. Joffre could dispose of the German forces opposing him in one day, if he would only agree to sacrifice a large number of men.

Both he and Gen. French, however, realize that the defeat of the German army is only a question of time anyway, and they propose to let the enemy wear himself out.

Another Paarderberg will happen shortly with the Germans in front.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Reinforcements now pouring in from Britain, are, it is said, causing the Kaiser grave anxiety, and Berlin has come to realize that the British army is not at all what the German public had been led to believe it was.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Russia has offered Roumania certain territorial concessions if she will join in the war against Germany and Austria. Roumania council will consider the proposal next week. The people of the country are anxious to join Russia, but King Charles being a Hohenzottern himself, is of course against it. It is said that if the Council decided on war, King Charles will at once abdicate, as it would be the only thing left for him to do.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Despatches all agree that Germany is making a frantic effort to break through the Allies' line, but without success. The slaughter of the Kaiser's troops is said to be appalling. Two of his sons are badly hurt.

Cronje's place.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The Admiralty's decision to lay a mine field is generally approved of in Britain, as it would effectively cut off the German approach to Ostend or the Straits of Dover, if their navy ever got free.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The Kaiser is spending his time in running about between the east and west theatres of war, apparently having the conducting of operations in both under his own direction.

Japanese Sink a Torpedo Boat Destroyer

The Engagement at Kiau Chau Developing Into a Struggle of Large Proportions and a Constant Rain of Shells is Being Precipitated Into German Defences

Tokio, Oct. 1.—It was officially announced that a German torpedo boat destroyer had been sunk off Tsing Tau. There are no details.

It was officially announced late this afternoon that a Japanese mine sweeper, off Kiau Chau, was blown up and sunk. Three men were killed and thirteen others were wounded. Another Japanese mine sweeper was damaged, one man being killed and six injured.

A severe engagement has been opened by the German warships, which cannonaded the Japanese positions near Tsing Tau, seat of the government of Kiau Chau, the German leased territory in China. Two officers were killed. German aeroplanes assisted the warships.

The German war offices announced that the artillery duel at Tsing Tau continues.

Arrival of British Reinforcements Has Told Heavily on Germans

(Bulletin Special Wire)

Montreal, Oct. 2.—"The situation continues satisfactory and the Allies are making progress," is about the sum and substance of today's despatches.

There seems to be no question that Von Kluck is about "all in" and that his retreat to the German frontier cannot be much longer delayed.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The Italian government has just officially announced that it will exercise a rigid censorship over all cables sent through that country. It is foreshadowed that Italy will soon be in the fighting line.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—A despatch says that Austria has paid Italy a million dollar compensation for families of sailors blown up by mines.

Distress in Belgium has reached an acute stage. There are now seven hundred thousand people in Brussels alone who are almost starving. The last lot of flour was distributed today.

St. John, Oct. 2.—A Belgian Relief Committee was organized today, which will rush supplies to Belgium with all speed.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—Col. Sam Hughes has disappeared. He was last seen in Quebec on Monday, but has not been heard of since. It is believed that he slipped away with the troops on board one of the transports.

Moncton, Oct. 2.—The fires last night are said to be not so bad as was at first thought. It was reported that fifteen thousand dollars damage was done to the freight shed, but officials say this is excessive.

London, Oct. 2, 2.10 a. m.—A Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Telegraph says:

"The Germans in Rotterdam are aghast at the tone of the German newspapers which arrived today (Thursday). Only one meaning can be attached to what they contain—they are preparing the German people for defeat, and the ruin of their hopes.

"Official messages ask that judgment be suspended if news should arrive that the German troops have been compelled to abandon certain positions.

"The British troops are mentioned as pushing on by the sheer might of their masses, and the French are admitted to have taught a severe lesson.

"A week ago such statements would have meant the suppression of the newspaper printing them."

London, Oct. 2 (2.41 a. m.)—Despite the fact that thousands of Frenchmen are laying down their lives and thousands of wounded are arriving daily from the front, Parisians says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, are regaining some of their customary buoyancy of spirit.

"Victory is in the air. All indications point to the fact that the German commanders and the German troops are realizing for the first time that they are in a desperate position. Their attacks during the last few days, delivered as they were at no decisive point with overwhelming numbers, but haphazard all along the line, show that they have been driven desperate and that their plan of campaign has been completely frustrated.

"The German right wing is completely in the air. It rests on no fortress or entrenched position and daily its position becomes more critical."

Paris, Oct. 2 (1.05 a. m.)—Two German aeroplanes were observed Thursday morning flying towards Paris by way of Compiègne. Immediately several French aviators climbed into their machines and flew up, prepared to meet and attack them. The Germans, however, seeing the French aeroplanes coming in their direction turned about and disappeared.

The arrival of British reinforcements has told heavily against the Germans, who are worn out with continual fighting.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—Great activity is manifest in China, where the combined forces of the British and Japanese are bombarding Kiau Chau, which is now on fire.

The Japanese Emperor and the British commander have exchanged fraternal greetings.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The Italian government has just officially announced that it will exercise a rigid censorship over all cables sent through that country. It is foreshadowed that Italy will soon be in the fighting line.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by 'Fruit-a-tives'. I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of 'Fruit-a-tives'. I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking 'Fruit-a-tives', I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives'.

FRENCH TRAP GERMANS

London, Oct. 1.—During the strategic retreat of the Allies southward from the Belgian frontier the French troops exacted from the Germans bloody revenge for the French defeat at Sedan 44 years before.

On this same battlefield, according to the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Mail, the Germans suffered one of the worst defeats of the present invasion. They were led into a trap which cost them thousands of men, he says. The French could have held their position indefinitely, but strategy required them to continue falling back with the remainder of Allies along the line.

Here is the story of the second battle of Sedan, as told by the correspondent:

Germans Enticed into Trap

"The French General ordered his troops to fall back across the river and take up positions on the opposite heights. The bridges were mined, but were left standing in order to deceive the Germans into thinking that the French were retreating hastily. Then they proceeded. The Germans advanced across the bridges in close formation, and when several German regiments had crossed, the French blew up the bridges and the French artillery started firing into hundreds of German columns, which retreated hastily to the river, only to find the bridges gone.

Sir J. D. P. French has a good many letters in front of his name, and the chances are he will come out of this war with the balance of the alphabet after it.

Has it occurred to allies strategists to have the Russian soldiers dye their whiskers green and thus cause the foe to mistake the army for a field of alfalfa?—Kansas City Star.

NO GENERAL ELECTION BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The Standard is informed that there will be no general election before Christmas as has been hinted at in some quarters. In the ordinary course of events had there been no war there would have been a general election one year hence, but conditions may render a departure from this programme necessary.

"A Man who tries to run a business without Advertising might as well try to run a motor without gasoline. It may be a good business, but it wont go."

Why be content to remain in the same old rut, never making any effort to increase your business, and, worst of all, not offering any inducements to hold the few customers you have?

When you come to look over the matter, do you ever figure out what assurance you have that you will always cater to your present trade? How do you know but what your customers are passing your store and patronizing the man next door, who advertises? In all probability this is just what is going on, and there is only one way to stop this and that is to advertise. This you want to do in the

Union Advocate

one of the oldest papers in the Maritime Provinces. You say you never did advertise, and you do not believe it pays. Don't you think you are giving your own opinion rather a high rating when you put it against that of the great majority of those who do advertise? Surely majority is a better judge.

Do not let your mind rest too strongly on the amount of money you would have to pay; rather think of the increased business which is sure to be yours. You say you do not want any increase, because you would have to increase your staff. Well, if ten new customers came to your store every week would you turn them away? And if that number increased until you had to enlarge your staff of clerks, would you not do so, or would you neglect them? You would certainly increase your staff, attend promptly to your new patrons, and keep your stock of goods on the move, so why not make up your mind to-day to take a space in this paper and keep your name constantly before the buying public.

As an advertising medium, The Advocate is firmly taking its place at the head. If you, Mr. Merchant, are not among the number who are using its columns, why not talk the matter over with our representative and select a good space while you have a chance. We are at your service any time you wish to consult us, and would only be too glad to quote you rates. A telephone call will bring our representative to your store in ten minutes.

THE UNION ADVOCATE'S JOB PRINTING DEPT.

The Advocate is not only taking the lead as an advertising medium, but its Job Department is decidedly in the lead.

Remember that this office is in better shape to handle your Printing than it has ever been before, due to the fact that only competent printers are employed and the most modern machinery used.

There is a difference between plain Job Printing and the kind of Printing that draws business. At one time any kind of a printed letter-head or envelope would do so long as the work was done by a printer. Good paper and high priced ink, the customer did not know enough about to be fussy. It is not so now. The customer to-day figures these items into his contract for printing the same as he does the quality of the goods he purchases to carry on his business.

This is the class of customers who have their printing done at The Advocate Job Dept. Only the best lines of writing paper are kept in stock and the highest grade of inks used for all work. There is not a CHEAP line in our office, for experience has taught us to carry only the best and the most serviceable.

People who leave their order for printing with this office, have that inward feeling of assurance that they are going to get just the kind of a job they want. They do not speculate—they know, and they are never disappointed. We spare no pains to give our customers just what they want, and that is one reason why this office has gained the reputation it has for turning out the highest class of Job Printing only.

If you are not yet a customer, join our list and have your letter heads and envelopes, or whatever nature your work may be, printed in an artistic manner. It does not cost any more for good printing than it does for the cheaper kind, and a small order is given as good care as a large one.

We are now in a position to handle all kinds of and would be pleased to quote prices for this class of work at any time. We guarantee strict satisfaction in all cases.

A CRUEL DECEPTION

OR WHY DID SHE SHUN HIM? BY EFFIE ADELAIDE ROWLANDS

Dimly she was glad to see the golden glory, for the night had seemed as though it would never end. Thoughts—horrible thoughts—had beaten and clashed and buzzed incessantly in her brain through the weary hours, and she longed vaguely for morning as for something fresh and pure and beautiful—something that would bring a relief to the scene, if not to her actual sorrow.

She felt very ill. She had been weary and faint and sick at heart ever since that moment when Hugo had bowed obedience to her cold words, and with one quiet gaze into her eyes had gone from her side. The anguish of love seemed to burst upon her in the realization of what she had done, the disappointment she had inflicted upon him, the loss to which she had vainly tried to become resigned.

The furious scene with her mother had dulled the exquisite torture of her pain a little. She had fallen into a short, heavy sleep somewhere about three o'clock, and had been forced to throw herself on her bed to stretch her chilled, weary limbs. When she awoke, it was an awakening to all. Her heart leaped to her throat and then dropped in a dull way that made her turn sick for the moment.

What an "all" it was for a girl to contemplate! What a burden for a pure, proud soul—a mind that eagerly for honor, and for the higher and more sublime influence of human life! Alwynne shivered and closed her eyes from the gradually growing glory of the rising sun. The brightness and freshness she had craved, only a moment before, hurt her now. They seemed only to point out more clearly the hideous truth, to throw a fuller light on the situation, and to drag forth in prominence the story of her mother's shame and sin.

She lay crouched and shivering, faint and cold at one moment, burning as with a consuming fever the next. Her throat was parched. She lifted herself on her elbow, and struggled slowly to her feet. How her head reeled, and how pitilessly the cold, golden sunrays fell upon her dishevelled hair! She moved with leaden feet to the table. Marie always placed some fruit near her dear one, as she called the girl in her own heart, and there was a bunch of glorious blue grapes resting daintily and beautifully on a dish before her.

Alwynne put out her hand, and then drew it back with a shudder. As by a lightning flash she remembered the cost of this fruit, and her hand fell to her side. She poured out some water instead, and drank with difficulty. The sight of the grapes kept her reticent to the spot. It brought a sudden fresh train of thought. If she could not eat this fruit, why, then, she could not sleep again in this luxurious room or wear such a gown as was then upon her. She looked around her in a calm, slow way, as though appraising everything. It was the ordinary hotel room such as she had experienced a hundred times before, but its hard corners were rubbed away, softened as it were by the dozens of luxurious appointments that Marie's picturesque hand had scattered about.

The toilet table, with its ivory ornaments, each one bearing her initial in raised gold, the glistening scent bottles, the rugs and skins flung on floor and couch, the silken dressing gown, the rows of small slippers and shoes, the glimpse of lace and other silks caught through a half-open door of the wardrobe—all seemed sudden and miserable mind.

Vaguely she wondered how she had accepted them all so long, how it was these dumb witnesses to her degradation had not cried out to her in distinct, and warned her against their origin. She shrank from it all now, and she seemed to be tarnished and shamed in that she had not shrunk from it all long before.

The thought came deliberately, relentlessly. She had accepted them so far in ignorance. Now she was no longer ignorant, she would accept them no longer. She sat down quietly on a chair, and, resting her elbow on the table, supported her weary, aching head while she thought on and on. She must act now!

Alwynne had not known until this moment how strong a spice of her mother's firm, determined spirit had fallen to her lot. It spoke within her now. She felt it spoke not fall her in the future.

She saw no path clear, she had no way made open to her, but she set her teeth firmly together, and said to herself that she had a task to perform and she would perform it. She had the impetuosity and courage of her youth to support her will. She had the unclouded strength of her honorable soul to reflect a glory on all she did. She was her mother's child. That must ever remain a truth but mother or no mother, Alwynne determined her present state of life should end once and for all. She was not so ignorant of the world as to know nothing of the world's privation and poverty. She had never shut her eyes to suffering. It had been her joy many and many a time, in her three years' sojourn with her mother, to have been able to relieve some sorrow that money could almost heal. The sum that Mrs. Lavante had given her quarterly for all her own individual expense had gone, as Marie could well testify, in nearly every direction save to enrich the girl's possessions.

She rose from her chair, and tried to walk to and fro while she thought. Her feet were so chilled, her limbs so cramped, she could barely move at first, but youth is very strong, and fair and fragile as Alwynne's beauty was her health and constitution were perfect. She grew stronger each moment, and her thoughts became less hysterical and confused.

The sun was high above the trees now, and the traffic had commenced in the wide street below. Alwynne stood at the window and looked out. There were many passers to and fro even at this hour, some of them girls, young like herself, shabby in garments, hurrying to some daily toil. Alwynne's heart gave a leap as she stood there. Inspiration came to her all at once.

"I will work," she said to herself, and there was an added touch of comfort in this thought. Work—honorable, honorable labor! What a vista was opened out to her, suddenly! Her very pulses thrilled again at the thought. It was the solution to the horrible problem.

She turned away from the window almost invigorated. Her bath was ready for her. Marie knew the girl would rise sometimes almost with the dawn, and the water stood always waiting. With a sort of eagerness to be strengthened for the fray, Alwynne threw off her things and plunged into the cold water. When she felt another being. Every sort of thing crowded her mind, but it was thought of a more healthy tone—thought that was not overwhelming in its horror, as it had been the night before. As she bound her hair about her shapely head, she made her plans.

She was strung up, like a David of old, to go forth and fight against this Goliath that had threatened last night to overwhelm her and to crush the very light of life out of her. She stood for one moment motionless in the middle of the room, her heart beating heavily, quickly. She moved forward, then paused and going hurriedly to her bed, knelt down beside it.

"God show me the right way, and give me strength to follow it," she prayed silently.

The simple little prayer strengthened and calmed her. She was perfectly self-possessed, and her pulses were still as she went slowly out of the room and walked to that one where her mother slept.

CHAPTER X

To Lady Augusta Trevelyan's disappointment, her brother did not immediately follow the arrival of his telegram. He sent a second one, saying he must go straight through to London on important business, but would present himself without fail at Torre Abbey within two or three days at the very latest.

Lady Augusta almost wept.

"And I have not seen him for so long!" she cried disappointedly, petulantly.

"Dear child, it is only a question of a few hours," her husband said cheerily.

Lady Augusta snapped his head off at this.

"So like a man!" she declared. "As if hours did not count at all! I want Hugo now—this very moment!"

"On a blue plate," finished Mr. Trevelyan quietly; then his eyes twinkled. "Sent your letter to Miss Glenlee yet?" he inquired in the most casual tone.

Lady Augusta's face cleared as if by magic.

"Much better than that; I sent a telegram to Belgrave Square to know if they were in town. I expect the answer every moment."

And, indeed, the answer arrived there and then. Her ladyship and Miss Glenlee were in town. Lady Augusta gave a little jump of delight.

"I will write to Blanche at once—at once, Jack," she declared, and forthwith sat down at her faintly scribbled during which time her husband watched her with mingled tenderness and amusement. She was so graceful with her little birdlike movements, he was never tired of looking at her. By and by she glanced over her shoulder, her eyes sparkling, and her face all abeam.

"After all, it is for the best. Hugo shall travel down with her from London. Isn't it a splendid notion, eh?" "Yes, if she can come."

"Jack, you are always a wet blanket! Of course Blanche will come! She must, when I want her so badly!" "Ah! You see, because you're rougher over me, you expect all the world to bow down to you in the same humble fashion!" Mr. Trevelyan stopped in his passage out of the room to pat the quiant face, and steal a kiss from the pouting lips.

"You must write another letter, while you are about it," he added, his voice serious now. "A letter of condolence to Lena Graham. Her mother's death has shut her eyes to suffering. It had been her joy many and many a time, shocked. "Really, oh! How sad! Poor Lena Graham—and poor Lena! It must have been very sudden." When Lena wrote to me last, she said her mother was better. Oh, I am sorry!" Lady Augusta rose, and slipping her hand through her husband's arm, strolled with him into the hall. "I should think Sir Henry would feel sorry for all the trouble he gave her, poor thing!" she said. "Dear me! he led her a lively dance, the wretch!" Mr. Trevelyan did not answer all at once.

"How strange it is that a bad man always receives such a wealth of devotion and never-failing affection! That poor creature adored Graham always, despite his neglect and shameful treatment of her." Lady Augusta smoothed her husband's coat, standing before him small and critical, surveying his general appearance with an air of keen appreciation, ill-disguised. "It shows what a bad man you must be," she said, nodding her small brown head, "for I am nothing but your slave!"

Mr. Trevelyan stole another kiss and ruffled the pretty brown hair.

"Saint Augusta, the martyr!" he laughed; and then, as he took up his gloves and riding crop; "you will not forget to write to Lena?"

"Of course not, dear. I will ask the poor thing to come down and stay with us as soon as she is able to do so. Hugo will be certain to have the reins of household government whirled—and Lady Augusta's face wore a portentous air—"until Blanche takes them," was what she meant by that, but she did not speak the words. Instead, she continued the subject of Lady Graham and her sad death. "I never rightly understood what the trouble was between the Grammas, Jack."

"All I know is that Lena will not help it. It is such an awful bad job, as you men call it!"

"In a public sense, no little wonder, Mr. Trevelyan explained. "We can't afford to lose such a politician as Graham, but in private life I have no hesitation in calling him a blackguard. The man who wantonly sets himself the task of breaking a good woman's heart gets very few soft words from me, and Graham has just sent that poor woman to her grave through grief at his absolute neglect and indifference to her. And, after all, he would have been nothing, or at least not half so great as he is if he had not married her and her money."

Lady Augusta's pretty little brows were drawn.

"I suppose, Jack," she said ruminatively, "it was a case of other women?"

"Another woman I believe, some well-known singer or dancer—I forget who. Graham has been devoted to her for years, has followed her about all over the globe, and I make no doubt now that she will become Lady Graham as soon as possible."

Mr. Trevelyan's wife uttered a sharp exclamation.

"No wonder poor Lena will not speak of him, Jack. This woman cannot be very young, can she?"

"I don't know anything about her, except that she calls herself a woman," Mr. Trevelyan said. Then he pressed his hat down on his close-cropped curls, and swung himself lightly to the saddle. "Fity you won't come for a canter!" he called out. "I am going to see Stewart. Shall ride home by the old church. Hadn't I better call and inquire if your beautiful young man is at home!"

Lady Augusta rolled up her gardening gloves into a ball and fung them at her husband, missing him of course but making his cob his violently and start off in a terrible hurry.

"Take care of yourself, darling," she cried, after the retreating form. "And Jack—Jack—mind you are home to lunch, without fail! Dear old thing," she said to herself tenderly, as she went back to her writing table. "The best and dearest in the world, except Hugo. I wonder—Lady Augusta mused on—"I wonder what important business it is that has taken Hugo up to London before coming here? I should be quite vexed with him by rights, but if it brings him in immediate contact with Blanche I shan't mind as much as I should have done!"

For once, as Lady Augusta declared—not quite truthfully, by the way—everything happened just as she desired it should happen. The little lady was in the habit of considering disappointed in the individual, whereas, as her husband never failed to assure her, she was one of the luckiest. However, "for once," as she insisted upon it, things shaped themselves delightfully.

Lady Rose Glenlee was only too pleased that her handsome daughter should pay a visit to Torre Abbey, particularly when she knew that Lord Taunton was actually home again and would probably be Blanche's constant companion, and Lord Taunton's business was completed just in time to offer his escort to Miss Glenlee from London to Westchester, thence to the Abbey.

"I think my fairy godmother must have been on in this scene!" Lady Augusta declared to her husband, five days after that on which she had expressed such disappointment. "I don't think I have ever been so lucky before!" Her ladyship perched herself on Mr. Trevelyan's knee. "I expect, when I met you, darling, of course," she added softly. "I refuse to be regarded in the light of an afterthought," quoth Mr. Trevelyan sternly, and then he had to listen to a long lesson.

How he must never—no, never—interrupt a conversation between Hugo and Blanche. How—if he came in suddenly, in the dusk, for instance—and saw them sitting together, he must withdraw immediately and silently. How he must not attempt to take Hugo off for long rides or sojourns about the estate. How, in fact, he must maneuver, and help his wife to maneuver in every possible way, to bring about a state of affairs absurdly matrimonial in character between Lord Taunton Torre and Miss Blanche Glenlee.

Mr. Trevelyan took his lesson meekly.

"Of course, I will try and remember all this, Gus," he said sulkily, "but I won't promise I shall succeed. Hugo is certain to want to go over the land; and then, remember, there will be a few more hunting days yet, and you cannot expect the poor chap to do his share of cross-country riding after his long absence."

"Blanche shall hunt, too!" Lady Augusta settled promptly. "Don't let that upset you. Now, you leave everything to me, Jack, and only just content yourself with following my lead, and you will be as right as a stick."

Mr. Trevelyan laughed consent, but when his wife had laughed again, he looked rather grave.

"Women are strange creatures. Talk about courtship! Why, some women seem to regard men as fair game, and open fire upon them from the very start! I suppose my little bird honestly thinks this alliance would be a good thing for Taunton, yet, after such an experience as his, I doubt whether he will view the matter in the same light. Dear old chap, I shall be glad to shake him by the hand once more. It will be like a glimpse of old times to have him here among us, and it will be something to see the shadow brought by his absence chased away from my darling's bright face."

"Well, I will forgive her all her matrimonial schemes. They please her, and they will not be likely to harm Hugo much. He can take care of himself; and, after all," Mr. Trevelyan mused, "it is only right that some day or another he should think of another marriage. The old title has descended in direct line from father to son for so many generations. It would be a pity to break that line now. Besides," Jack Trevelyan said to himself heartily, "because Hugo has had one bad experience, is that any reason why he should have a second? There are, thank Heaven, too many good women in the world to fear such sorrow coming twice in his lifetime to one man!"

"So Lady Augusta, after all, would not count upon her husband's aid in vain—in her schemes for her brother's future. It hardly seemed to her possible that it was really her brother whom she was to welcome home at last. She had so despaired of seeing him. The mere thought of his arrival was strange. She could not but be better at breakfast, and her pretty eyes were blind with tears, and her pretty face pale with excitement and emotion, as she stood in the big entrance and watched the touring-car roll up the avenue from the station.

Blanche—marriage—schemes! All were forgotten as she felt Hugo's arms about her, and heard Hugo's voice murmuring a tender greeting in her ear.

There was no happier little mortal in the world than Lady Augusta as she led the travelers into one of the smaller reception rooms made cozy by all her belongings, and doubly so now, with a bright fire blazing and tea standing ready in its dainty equipage.

"Now confess, Hugo, confess!" she cried, as she busied herself in re-arranging Miss Glenlee's traveling jacket and hat, "there is no place like home after all!"

Lord Taunton smiled at her; it was so good to look on her again.

"It is a very easy confession, Gus, dear!" he said quietly. "There is indeed no place so sweet as home, little sister mine."

Lady Augusta planted Miss Glenlee in a cozy chair, and fluttered about the tea tray.

"I am going to wait on you all myself, Hugo!" she said looking at him every now and then, her eyes still eloquent with emotion. "I dispensed with Brown's services much to his amazement. I am sure he considers this a most ill-regulated household. As a rule," Lady Augusta continued, chatting on to give vent to her excitement and to the joy that beat in her heart, at the near presence of her beloved Hugo at last. "As a rule," she declared, "giving Miss Glenlee her cup of tea, 'I am absolutely browbeaten by Brown. You ask Jack if I am not frightened to death sometimes by his cold superiority; but today—today—I could defy a dozen Browns, with their astonished 'Yes, my lady,' and their disgusted 'No my lady's' at everything I say."

"You are not a bit changed Gus," Lord Taunton said, as she stood beside him, his arm about her waist. "Not a day, not an hour older and just as much spoiled as ever!"

"Spoiled! Blanche did you hear that? Me—I, whichever is the proper grammatical exclamation? I speak well!"

Her guest smiled languidly. Blanche Glenlee was the quintessence of languor. She was, in fact, a most marked contrast to her friend in every sense of the word. A large proportion—she had a distinct grace about her. Big, tall, and fine as she was, she moved marvelously well, and gave one the feeling of being always in the most superb physical health and mental equilibrium. Her face was called beautiful; and certainly the exquisite tint and texture of her very white skin, the regular contour of her features, apart from the wonderful and unmistakable masses of yellow hair, would have sufficed alone to win Blanche Glenlee this name from most people.

Her hair was really marvelous, falling in great, long, soft clouds far below her waist—indeed reaching below her knees when it was unloosed. She always wore it braided, as closely as it would braid, about her shapely head, and she held to this method, no matter how often the fashion in such things might change.

Lady Augusta admired Blanche honestly and immensely. She admired the handsome pose and bearing, and pined to have the same flaxen hair and pink and white skin. Her husband was not quite of this opinion.

"She is exactly like that big ocell that graces the nursery!" Mr. Trevelyan thought to himself. "I can never quite see why my little bird should rave about her so much, unless it is because there is so much of her; but for all her white skin and golden hair I prefer something warmer, something with a little suspicion of a scud about it somewhere."

Miss Glenlee discussed her tea, and clattered in her pleasant, slow voice. She never was known to exhort or hurry herself in the least.

"So nice that Hugo just happened to be coming down today!" cried Lady Augusta, with a most innocent expression.

Miss Glenlee assented.

"We traveled down with a very handsome young man," she observed. "Both Lord Taunton and I were quite struck with him, weren't we, Lord Taunton?"

"The head of an Apollo!" Hugo said half mechanically. His mind was sugaring with thoughts as he stood once again in this old, well-remembered house, and heard his sister's voice ringing in his ears.

"Did this Apollo's head get out here?" Lady Augusta queried.

"At Westchester. He had a roll of music under his arm."

Lady Augusta clasped her hands. "Isn't he beautiful? Now, Jack, you see other people are of my opinion."

"You evidently seem to know all about our young man!" Lord Taunton said laughingly. "One of your usual flirtations, eh, Gus?"

"An awful case," Mr. Trevelyan said.

Miss Glenlee looked a little surprised, and more so as Lady Augusta rattled on an explanation about Mr. Blay Hunter, dwelling on his musical talent and on his exceedingly pleasant manners.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Carter's Little Catarrh Cure. The only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity, Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Diamonds will cut glass. In fact they will even make an impression on the hardest heart.

McDonald was brought to the Hotel Dieu hospital as speedily as possible, where everything was done to save his young life, but on account of having lost so much blood prior to his arrival at the hospital, all efforts proved of no avail, and he passed away Saturday morning.
