

Beauty Hint for Women

When food is only imperfectly digested, it gives rise to fermentation, clogs the bowels, and renders the blood impure. This results in dull eyes, muddy skin, blotches, pimples, and other disfiguring marks. Beecham's Pills act immediately on the stomach, liver and bowels; regulate them and keep them in a vigorous condition. They are mild, harmless and dependable. They are compounded of remedies of vegetable origin having great medicinal value.

Lady Wyvernes' Daughter.

CHAPTER XXIX

"Certainly, my lady," replied the willing maid. "I am so sorry your face is bad again. I would have been up hours ago, if I had known."

When Stephanie brought the little phial, she looked in alarm at her lady's pale face.

"The pain must have been very bad," she said; "what can I do?"

"Nothing now," replied Inez.

When the maid disappeared, Inez carefully dropped a small portion of the liquid into a spoon and drank it. After that she slept, the heavy, unrefreshing sleep that results from opiates.

Lady Lynne and Agatha were full of commiseration the next morning; Stephanie had told them how her lady had suffered so much from her old complaint, neuralgia in the face, that she had been obliged to procure opium to rub it with.

"I thought something was wrong last evening," said Phillip, "you were so quiet, but Inez, my darling, be careful of that opium; a small quantity mayadden the pain; but mind you do not take too much."

The afternoon brought Count Rinaldo to the Palazzo Giordani. Lord Lynne spoke much of the Leighs, and of the pleasure they should feel in being all together once more.

"I should not wonder," he said, "if they arrived this very day."

An uneasy expression came over the count's face.

"Do you expect your friends today?" he said, turning to Inez.

"They will probably reach here," she replied, understanding fully all that was comprised in the question.

Lord Lynne was not deceived in his expectations; for just as they had finished dinner, the door opened and Sir Allan Leigh and Miss Leigh were announced.

Evelyn had quite recovered her bloom; her smile was as bright as ever; all trace of her long illness had vanished. Sir Allan had altered wonderfully. He was now a tall, handsome man, with a bronzed face and dark mustache. There was one thing in which it was quite evident he had not changed,—that was his deep and lasting love for Agatha Lynne. Tall and strong as he was, poor Sir Allan trembled like an aspen leaf when her little hand lay for a moment in his grasp and her sweet, true eyes smiled upon him again.

And Miss Agatha Lynne, who had felt uncomfortable when Lord Rington had paid open attentions to her,—who shunned the handsome, courteous Count Montaldi,—looked very shy and conscious, as the honest, manly young baronet lingered near her, and seemed to forget that any one else existed. Evelyn and Lady Florence were very happy,—both had the same love and keen appreciation of humor; and Lord Lynne's face positively beamed with happiness when he heard the ripple of silvery laughter that sounded through the room. In the course of the evening Count Rinaldo appeared, and was cordially welcomed by the hospitable nobleman, who really liked a house full of visitors.

"I was passing by," said the Italian, "and thought I should like to know if your friends had arrived."

He was introduced to Sir Allan and Evelyn, and watched, with scrutinizing eyes, the devotion paid by the young baronet to Agatha.

Coffee having been handed around, the long windows that opened on to the balcony were opened. It was one of the prettiest in Rome; graceful flowers were entwined in the iron-work, making quite an ornamental bowler of it, and there was a view of unrivaled magnificence in it, that Inez had spent hours in admiring.

It was with great, though silent amusement, that Lord Lynne saw Sir Allan, with seeming indifference, gradually persuade Agatha to come out upon the balcony to him.

"There is no chance for Lord Rington," he said to himself. "Allan has been the favorite all along."

Some one else watched this proceeding with a dark face and angry glance.

"You have known these—your friends—some time," said the Italian to Lord Lynne.

"Ever since we were children," he replied, with a smile.

When quite sure of not being overheard, Count Rinaldo drew near Lady Lynne. He held a small engraving in his hand, and under pretense of asking her opinion about it, he bent over her.

"What progress are you making in my case?" he asked.

"None," she replied, briefly.

"Answer me truly," he continued.

"Have you spoken to your sister as I wished you?"

"Not one word," she said, raising her clear eyes unflinchingly to his face.

"Count," said Lord Lynne, "will you give us your opinion? Is not this engraving copied from Giorgione?"

He muttered something that sounded like an execration, and leaving Inez, went to her husband.

CHAPTER XXXI

"How strange it seems," said Sir Allan to Agatha, "for us all to meet here in Rome! But how altered your sister looks! She must have been very ill."

"She has," replied Agatha; "but Rome suits her; she is much better and stronger now."

"Do you know what brought me to Rome, Agatha?" he continued.

"No," said she, looking up into his face; but she saw something there that caused a vivid crimson to flush her own, while her sweet eyes dropped shyly before the ardent gaze that seemed to read her very thoughts.

It all came out very,—the long-treasured secret of his love; and his story was so well, and so eloquently told, and bore in every word the impress of such truth and nobility, that no girl could have listened to it unmoved.

"You are as far above me, Agatha, as that blue sky," said Sir Allan; "but if you will try to love me, my whole life shall repay you. Do not keep me in suspense, beloved; tell me, will you try to love me?"

He could hardly hear the faintly whispered answer. It was favorable to him, he knew, by the droop of the golden head and the flutter of the little hand in his own.

"Miss Lynne, are you not afraid of the night dew?" said a voice which made Agatha start and look guilty.

Turning round, she saw Count Rinaldo, with a strange expression on his face and a light like flame in his eyes.

"There is a splendid view from this balcony," he continued, carelessly turning to Sir Allan, who heartily wished him at the antipodes,—while Agatha made her escape and re-entered the room.

The half-quizzical smile she saw upon Lord Lynne's lips, sent her, with a burning face, to her sister's side.

Count Rinaldo was the first to take his leave; as he did so, he silently placed a small folded piece of paper in Lady Lynne's hand. Then Sir Allan and Evelyn rose to go.

"Phillip," said the young baronet, in a low voice, "you are Miss Lynne's guardian. What time can I see you to-morrow?"

"About three," replied Lord Lynne;—"and Allan, dear old fellow, I understand it. I wish you all the happiness in the world, and I believe you will have it."

When the visitors had departed Lord Lynne went to Inez.

"Are you tired?" he asked, kindly. "I am afraid all this talking and laughing has been too much for you. It is like old times to see Allan and Evelyn once more. Do you remember the charades and the tableaux, Inez? If Bertie Bohun were here we might have them all over again."

Did she remember them? A pang, sharp and bitter as death, shot through her heart. Was not every hour of that happy time burned in upon her memory! Had she dreamed then, in the hour of her beauty and triumph, of the fate that awaited her!

"Come here, little sister," said Lord Lynne to Agatha. "I wonder what took place in that very romantic-looking balcony. I wonder what Allan is coming to say to me to-morrow."

"Do not tease her, Phillip," said Lady Lynne, as she saw her sister's face grow crimson.

"I will not tease her, my dear," replied Lord Lynne. "I will only say one word,—I think she showed good taste when she returned the white hyacinth to me."

"Returned it to you?" cried Agatha, with a wondering face. "Why?"

But the words were arrested upon her lips. Inez had fallen back with a cry that rang through the room.

"That is my fault," said Lord Lynne, raising her tenderly. "I invite people here, and forget how necessary quiet and repose are for her."

Inez had not fainted; it was rather as though some sudden blow had struck her.

"Phillip," she said, in a low, faint voice, "what trouble I give you! But you love me, my husband, do you not?"

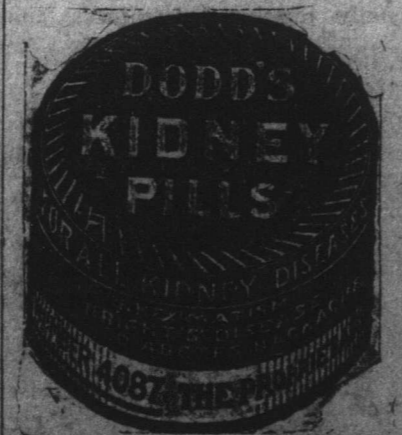

"Of course I do, darling," he replied; "and I ought to be more careful of you."

"Tell me just once again that you love me," she said, gently.

He bent over her, and smiled into the beautiful pale face, while he whispered that he loved her better than his life.

Lady Lynne would not go to her room until Agatha and Lady Florence had gone to theirs. Then, when she was sure her sister and her husband would not meet again that evening, she went upstairs to her own chamber, a handsome apartment, with some traces of the old Roman luxury in it,—large mirrors, rare statues and pictures, silken hangings, and thick soft carpets; were all there; but Lady Lynne noted nothing of the magnificence that surrounded her. Stephanie awaited her mistress, a blue silk dressing-gown thrown over her arm.

Eat More Fish.

Illustrating the importance of Canada's fisheries as a source of food supply, Mr. Arthur Bouillier, president of the National Fish Company, says: "It takes an acre of land to support two sheep or one ox. On the other hand one acre on the fishing banks will often yield ten times this amount of food." He says further as to the necessity for a larger consumption of fish if we are to properly utilize this great natural resource, and to furnish employment to our large and needy fishing population: "There are 400,000 people in Canada directly dependent upon the fisheries, and yet our annual per capita of fish consumption is only 21 lbs. Great Britain, on the other hand, consumes an average of 26 lbs., almost three times as much as we do. Could we raise our consumption to that amount we would at the same time lower immensely our cost of living and increase the amount of employment throughout the Dominion. There is no question about the supply, it is exhausted. On her west and east coasts, Canada banks two of the three great world fisheries. Down from the Arctic every year flows a great glacial current carrying with it a detritus that is depositing on the banks. The St. Lawrence river and the Gulf Stream assist in the fertilizing process, which annually renews the fertility of the ocean floor. And as for catching the fish, two large modern trawlers, such as Venosta and Lemberg, both equipped with wireless, can catch in one day, more fish than the maritime provinces consume in a week. Additions to this trawler fleet would mean additions in the number of men employed and the amount of good food enjoyed. The only problem then, since the problem of supply has been so well settled, is to build up the demand. I have personally eaten a pound of fish a day on the average for years past, because I have learned to like fish. I learned because I was content with good cooking, and in this, my experience confirms that of the people in Europe."

Dramas of the Derby.

In addition to the excitement of "spotting the winner," this famous race frequently provides the spectator with "dramatic" episodes with which the most melodramatic film or play fades into insignificance.

The Derby, which was first run in 1780, has often turned out to be a dramatic and sensational affair.

For example, in 1823 the betting was 4 to 2 against Mr. Petre's The Colonel, and 4 to 1 against the Duke of Rutland's Cadland.

After a terrific struggle these two horses ran a dead heat, the first in the history of the race. At their second meeting 5 to 4 was laid on The Colonel; but this time he failed, and Cadland won the blue ribbon of the turf.

The Derby of 1840 gained romance from the fact that England's beautiful girl Queen (Victoria) attended the race with her husband. It was won by Little Wonder, with a jockey called MacDonald up, and afterwards the Queen sent for the boy and congratulated him.

Refusing a Royal Request.

When, however, the Queen asked him what his weight was, the youngster conscientiously replied: "If you please, your Majesty, my master says I must not tell anyone my weight."

At this the Royal couple burst out laughing, and Prince Albert congratulated the lad upon his obedience.

The year 1844 saw one of the most sensational Derbys on record. Before the day of the race several objections were lodged against a horse called Running Rain, on the grounds that he was more than a three-year-old and was not the horse his backers claimed him to be.

After some investigation the stewards allowed him to run, but declared that further inquiries would have to be made.

The race was run and Running Rain came in first, with Colonel Peel's Orlando second.

Won, And Lost Again.

The stakes were, however, withheld, and an action at law followed, the question at issue being "whether a certain horse called Running Rain was a colt foaled in the year 1841, whose sire was The Sailer and dam Mab?"

The result of the case was that Colonel Peel conclusively proved the horse to be in reality a four-year-old, whose sire was Gladiator, and dam a mare called Capalcum. A verdict was given to this effect, and Orlando figures at the Derby winner of 1844.

The story of the 1855 Derby reads more like fiction than fact. A gentleman named Popham owned a horse called Wild Dayrell which was doing extremely well in its training. But, in spite of this, the bookmakers were curiously ready to lay money against Mr. Popham's horse.

Some friends of the owner began to suspect that foul play might be contemplated, and said as much. But Mr. Popham only laughed at the idea until a happy thought occurred to him. He thought he would score off his friends by showing them how foolish their suspicions were.

Tampering With the Van.

At that time horses were taken to Epsom by road in vans, and suggestions had been made that Wild Dayrell's van might be tampered with. Mr. Popham therefore collected his friends, placed a bullock in the van, and had it driven off under their eyes.

Imagine the honest gentleman's surprise and dismay, therefore, when the flooring fell out of his van and the bullock's leg was broken. This had been the fate prepared for Wild Dayrell.

Of course, after that there was a tremendous reaction in the betting. The price shortened until Wild Dayrell was favorite at seven. And the price was justified, for the favorite won by two lengths from Lord of the Isles and ten other runners.

The Derby of 1867 was another dramatic affair. A few weeks before the race The Rake was favorite, and on this horse the Marquis of Hastings stood to win a fortune.

Custance, the famous jockey, had been retained to ride Mr. Chaplin's Hermit; but when Hermit broke a blood vessel a fortnight before the race, Custance was released, and he agreed to ride The Rake.

Lost by Looking Round.

A tremendous contest now ensued, the horses racing stride for stride, while the crowd yelled itself hoarse with excitement. Then, right on the post, Archer seemed positively to lift Bend Or forward, and Robert the Devil was beaten by a head. But it is the opinion of experts that Rosseter would have won if he had not looked round.

The sequel to this race was an objection to Bend Or, on the ground that he was a changeling. But the objection failed, although some people still maintain its truth.

When Lord Rosebery won the Derby with Ladas, in 1894, he realized one of the ambitions of his schoolboy days. And then, in the following year, he repeated his success, this time with Sir Visto.

Edward VII. won the Derby in 1899 with Minerva, and led his horse in a duel between the great Fred Archer and Bend Or, and Rosseter on Robert the Devil. When a quarter of a mile from the post, Robert the Devil seemed to have the race well in the horses had just rounded Turn Corner, a suffragette rushed from the rails and snatched a bride of the King's horse, Amber turned a complete somersault and fell on his jockey, H. Jones, untidely he was not seriously injured, but the woman died.

The race became a battle between Craganour and Aboyer, who proved to bump each other like polo balls all down the course. Crag was first by a short head, but he soon disqualified, because, in steward's words, he "did not keep straight course, and interfered with Shotgun, Dan Comet, and Aboyer. Having bumped and bored the odd horse, they disqualified Crag."

So Aboyer, an outsider at 100, gained the verdict.

Steel Workers on Strike at Sydney.

Riot Act read at Whitney Pier--Great Britain will not Agree to Proposal that U.S.A. search Vessels 12 miles from Coast -- Expedition to Relieve Allan Crawford.

STRIKE AT SYDNEY DECLARED.

HALIFAX, June 28. The Sydney Steel workers walked out on strike at the plant of the British Empire Steel Corporation at five o'clock this morning, demanding an increase in wages, and inauguration of the check-off system in the works, both of which have been rejected by the officials. The number of men on strike is not known but it is believed fifty-five per cent. will remain at work, providing the striking element is unable to furnish a strong enough picketing squad to keep them off the premises.

8000 OUT.

SYDNEY, June 28. About 2000 of the 3500 employees at the Sydney steel plant walked out this morning. The workers in the blast furnaces, rod mill and rail mill left their work without any warning and attempted to force others to go along with them. Although a good percentage of employees reported this morning, the work in several departments is held up. Officials are of opinion that little damage will be done as a result of the walkout. The U.M.W. are taking no part in the strike but say they will take a hand if the fight becomes unfair. They are taking measures to see that none of their coal reaches Sydney while the strike is on.

RIOT ACT READ AT WHITNEY PIER.

SYDNEY, June 28. Magistrate W. A. G. Hill was struck on the head by a stone and knocked unconscious about 10.30 to-night while he was endeavoring to read the Riot Act at Whitney Pier, where a series of raids and clashes between strikers and Steel Company and city police commenced after 8.30 o'clock. Several policemen who were guarding the Magistrate were hit by volleys of stones, the most seriously hurt being Patrolman Andy Campbell who was cut on the arm. The injured Magistrate was carried into nearby number four gatehouse where he was attended to by Dr. James Bruce who found that he was not badly hurt although dazed. By midnight the city police seemed to be in control of the situation. The disturbance followed the walkout of men to-day in the Sydney steel plant of the British Empire Steel Co. The walkout started about 5 o'clock in the morning and it is estimated that about twenty-seven hundred men were affected to-night. The plant has recently employed about thirty-eight hundred men. The strike follows the demands of the workers for increased wages and adoption of the check-off system of collecting union dues which would involve recognition of their union.

BRITAIN WILL NOT AGREE TO 12-MILE LIMIT.

LONDON, June 28. The British Foreign Secretary, Marquis Curzon stated in the House of Lords to-day, in the course of the debate over the ship liquor question, there was no chance of Great Britain agreeing in any circumstances whatever to the proposal that the United States authorities be given the right to search vessels for liquor within twelve miles of the United States coast line. Curzon said the Government was fully alive to the importance of the case and that all channels of diplomacy were being utilized in an effort to find a way out of a situation which was undoubtedly disagreeable and ought not to be allowed to continue.

OTTAWA, June 28. The redistribution Committee yesterday decided to report to the House of Commons recommending that the distribution of constituencies be deferred till next session.

TURKISH OFFICIAL DEAD.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 28. The death of Bendri Bey, former chief of police, Constantinople, is reported from Afghanistan. He has earned an unenviable reputation for his treatment of war prisoners, and Turkish sources declare he was assassinated.

WON'T USE HALIFAX ROUTE.

LONDON, June 28. Sir Guy Grant, Conservative member for Buckrose Division of Yorkshire, asked in the House of Commons to-day whether the Government is allocating mail contracts would seek to encourage British steamship lines to use routes via Halifax, which he claimed would do away with the present grave difficulties affecting immigrants to the United States and the inconvenience caused by the application of the United States domestic legislation to other nationalities. Sir Lomington Worthing Evans, Postmaster General, replied that the mail service contracts called for the direct New York route. The Halifax route, he said, caused extra landing and delay and he was not prepared to make the change.

TO RELIEVE CRAWFORD.
TORONTO, June 28. Harold Noice, an associate of Steffanson, is in Toronto, to-day on his way to Nome, Alaska, to organize a relief ship to relieve Allan Crawford, who has been keeping a long, lonely vigil on Wrangell Island since left there by Steffanson two years ago. Noice said the Canadian Government had so far been indifferent to his fate.

A New Industry.

A new industry has developed in the fishing countries of Northern Europe, which, says the "Trade Bulletin of Montreal," may be of interest to Newfoundland. It is the herring scale industry. The fishermen of Holland have achieved great success in it and have made quite a bit of money in collecting and selling the herring scales when prosecuting the herring fishery. The scales are used in the manufacture of artificial pearls, which in all respects cannot be distinguished from the genuine pearls of the Indian and Chinese Seas. The market for the scales is unlimited, and the industry has now extended to all the countries of the world. There is an inexhaustible supply of herring scales in Newfoundland, and if there is so much money in the industry as reported it is to be expected that some enterprising man or company will take it up.

Crop Outlook.

Recent heavy rains have greatly improved the growing wheat crop throughout the Prairie Provinces and the Northwest of Canada. Seeding was completed under the most favorable conditions. In these words does the second report of the Bank of Montreal describe the outlook, which, it is added, "could not have been more favorable." In Manitoba there has been a marked improvement, the same applies to British Columbia, but in Ontario and the Maritime Provinces conditions are not so promising as the cold weather delayed the seeding two to three weeks.

Fire at Hr. Grace Dock.

SCHER ROMAIN BADLY GUTTED.

A message received yesterday by the Assistant Collector of Customs from the Sub Collector at Hr. Grace, states that a rather serious fire had occurred at the Hr. Grace floating dock on Wednesday evening. At the time the motor schooner Romain was on dock undergoing repairs, and the vessel was badly gutted before the flames were got under control. Apparently the fire started on board the schooner, and was caused by the ignition of a quantity of oily waste, which had been used cleaning the vessel's engine.

Farm Hand Strays.

LOST IN WOODS FOR 3 DAYS.
One of the farm hands employed with Mr. George Ruby, Goulds Road, spent a very unpleasant time during the storm Wednesday night. Leaving the farm on Monday afternoon to look for some cattle that were in the woods, he strayed away and did not turn up until yesterday evening at 5 o'clock. Meanwhile search parties had been out scouting the countryside and much relief was felt when the safety of the man was learned.

League Football.

GUARDS VICTORIOUS OVER STAR.

Last night's football game was largely attended. Although the weather was excellent, a rather high wind did not conduce to good footing. The Star lost the toss and had to defend the eastern goal, playing against the wind and facing the blinding rays of the setting sun. Play opened with the Guards making a sharp advance on Star territory, which was quickly repulsed. After several minutes indiscriminate play Clouston, on a pass from Macklin, scored number one for the Guards. When play recommenced the Star tried hard to equalize and paid a quick visit to Gushue, the Guards' goalie, but he was prepared and successfully defended his position. When the ball had been cleared the Guards took it right down to Star territory and bombarded the goal, but Browne cleared safely. Play then became brilliant once more and was not very brilliant, being marked by too much high kicking and long shooting by both teams. The Guards second goal was scored from a kick by Macklin. Clouston followed in and Browne, in trying to set the ball out, was blinded by the sun and missed it completely. No further scoring resulted up to half time. On resumption of play, with the wind in their favor, the Stars tried hard to score but the Guards were not having any and repulsed attack after attack. The latter then began another offensive and after a splendid forward dash up the field Quick had a shot at Browne which he gathered in his hands. The Guards forwards swooped on him and forced the ball into the net. A dispute arose over this as it was claimed that

The Best Medicine For Women.

When Mr. Myers of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, stepped into the drug store and asked his druggist for the best medicine he had in his store for woman's ills, is it any wonder he was handed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Mrs. L. K. Myers in writing of it says: "I had been weak, run down and had a pain in my left side for a long time, so I could not do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me in a short time so I was able to do all of my housework including washing and ironing, and now I feel fine all the time." As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for benefiting 88 women out of every 100 women who take it, it will pay every suffering woman to try it.

THE ROBIN.
A robin, singing in a tree,
Saw something that I couldn't see.
Here is the self-same world, thought I,
We dwell beneath the open sky.
Yet richer is my lot than yours,
I dwell behind these friendly doors.
I have a roof above my head,
Within a nest you make your bed.
I am safe sheltered from the rain,
And yet I whimper and complain.
Red-breasted bird, you are the prey
Of cunning foes both night and day.
Cold blows the wind where you abide,
Scarce is the food you must provide.
And yet despite the cares which sting,
With every rising sun you sing!
From your high perch, courageous
bird,
Your song of happiness is heard.
Surely, red robin you must see Something denied to men like me!
Against the pain and care of strife
You sing the glorious joy of life.
While I go, blinded by my care,
Wailing the burdens I must bear.
Surely, with all my strength to do,
I ought to be as brave as you.
Surely the countless joys I see
Should make a singer out of me.
When filling a hot water bag for an invalid be sure to exclude the air
as the bottle will be much softer and the water will stay hot longer. To do this, fill the bottle half full, lay it flat, hold the mouth up until the water
or appears in the neck of the bottle,
and screw in the stopper.

At the House.

AMENDMENT TO HUMBER PROPOSITION ACCEPTED.

House met at 3.15 when the following questions on the order paper were considered.

NOTICE OF QUESTION.

Hunt—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, on the Table of the House a statement showing: (1) that expenditures have been made of the sum of $800,000.00, placed to the credit of Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines for Pitt Prop. act; (2) what amount, if any, has been to the credit of the account; (3) the amount on the Table of the House of original vouchers for payments made.

The Prime Minister hopes to table answer on Monday.

Walsh—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs: If telegraph or telephone connection with Odeira Island, P.B., promised by Sir Richard Squires to the Pastors of Odeira Island and members for Placentia and St. John's in 1921, will be given this year?

The Premier replied the Executive had yet considered the matter.

M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister if any fishery supplies have been issued or guaranteed season to any merchants of Water Street, or to any of the planters the outputs, or to any other person, to give the names of same and the amounts in detail. If the Fishery Supplies were or will be guaranteed by the Government this year?

M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the amount of money allocated for the purchase of cold storage plant and the amount of frozen bait for the years 1921, and 1922 at Holyrood. The Prime Minister tabled the following reply:—

1922—J. J. Carroll $300.40
1921—J. J. Carroll 258.50
1922—J. J. Carroll 305.00
1923—J. J. Carroll 257.40
1923—Wm. Veitch 80.00

House then went into a Committee of the Whole on Industrial Development Resolutions when the order made it known that Mr. Jno. St. John, at present Assistant Manager of the Schwininger Paper Mills at the Humber and a contract has been made with him to take up his immediately. Mr. Stadler has twenty years experience in the making business and it was noted with a concern that it was turned 350 tons daily with the same machinery as will be installed on the new plant.

Mr. Hunt was the first to speak on Resolutions before the Chair. He wished to delay the Committee of the Whole as they had not been fully covered by the speakers on the Opposition. He, like the previous speaker, the Leader of the Opposition, dealt with the Resolutions from a business viewpoint. The country, he said, is satisfied to give the guarantee but not with the amount of a second class mortgage. The guarantee was led to believe to be a first class mortgage. If the proposition was to be a success the mortgage did not matter. It turned out a failure, a second class mortgage is absolutely valueless. He said the duplicity practised by the Government in not taking the position of its confidence on the Resolution agreement should not go to the hand with that of the Humber. During the election the Government had no idea that the Humber would receive two million dollars for railway services. The Prime Minister did not indicate such in his Manifesto or election address. He said he could not vote for the resolutions or the measure as it now stands. He would do so if certain amendments are accepted. He referred to the clauses which exempted the corporation from taxation for all time. He drew the attention of the Assembly to the attitude of Sir W. F. Coaker who, in 1915, made some strong pronouncements against voting for any enterprise which looked for life time exemption of taxation. He agreed with this view of Sir William of 1915 and other leaders in the Assembly such as the Hon. Justice Kent, Sir Wm. Lloyd, and others who stood firm for such a policy which would mean, if nothing else, the establishment of an unfair precedent and a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the revenue. He was one of the trustees of the people, consequently he would not betray their trust reposed in him by supporting such an unfair agreement. He regretted the failure to have inserted a clause governing a scale of wages, the absence of which would permit the Company to import cheap labor into the country. In the contract of 1915 it was stipulated that not less than $2 a day be paid the workmen which was a fair rate at that time. He hoped Mr. Brown, a well known Trade Union Man, would make known his stand in this respect. He had no objection to the general policy of the Bill. We must be prepared to give and make certain allowances, but we should do so as an assembly that represents a country that is not bankrupt. We should be very careful before granting a monopoly. We should look well into the future of the country when conditions would improve. He in closing hoped the amendments referred to would receive the favorable consideration of the Government.

MR. MOORE'S MAJORITY SPEECH.

Mr. James Moore, member for Carbonear, in rising to address the Committee, said like others of the Opposition Party, he promised his support to the Humber Deal. He believed he owed his election, as did others in the House that were elected they would do all possible to get through the Humber Proposition. But contained in that pledge was the fact that a better Deal than the one now before the Chair was possible. He would, however, be satisfied if the amendments suggested would be accepted. He was out against any attempt to import or employ cheap labor. He was unquestionably opposed to the railway being run by the Government as he feared they would make no better job of it than they were making with the various departments now under their control. He asked certain questions a day or two ago and was told to visit the Departments and procure the information. He was surprised to find that for the $10,000 allocated and spent in Carbonear in March, 1921, no returns had yet been received by the departments and beyond record of allocation nothing else was forthcoming. He was amazed when he was confronted with that situation. It was a condition of affairs that had to be cleared up very quickly. It would be better for the Government to pay a contractor a greatly increased subsidy than to attempt to operate the Railway themselves as it would be made a dumping ground for all and sundry. When the Government have operated a year or two they will then find out what the Reids have had to contend with. He was sorry that the Reids have been exploited in every election since 1900. In the recent election it was the same and the big game had done so much good as the names of Cashin and Morine. He hoped that the promise given by the Premier that in a short while a good many men would be employed on the Humber.

Mr. N. J. Vianello said he was against exempting the Company from taxation for all time. He was going to support the project provided the responsible amendments were inserted in the agreement. He could not understand Mr. Downey's remarks when he said it would be a wise decision on the part of the Government to take over and run the railway which, in his opinion, would be a grave mistake. Now that the Department of Fisheries had an active head who would attend to his duties daily he looked for better results than we have had during the past three years. He reviewed the strike at Grand Falls a few years ago, which he could not understand after learning that the Harmsworths had a profit of one and a half million dollars last year. He asked Mr. Brown for his view on labour conditions and also that of the necessity for a minimum wage. He was going to support the Humber agreement if it was not coupled with that of the railway.

Mr. P. Cashin in a forceful speech dealt with many details regarding the railway and Humber proposals as contained in the resolutions. He told the people of Ferryland he was going to support the measure provided it was going to be a fair deal for Newfoundland, but as it now appeared to him the colony was getting the wrong end of the deal. The Government told the people that Newfoundland was going to enter into a 50-50 agreement with the Government at the same time did not tell the people of the second class mortgage or the giving of $2,000,000 to the Reids. To-day if put through the National Debt would be in time increased to $25,000,000 as this Deal alone made it possible in the course of time that we would have to pay $18,000,000. We have a project with a manager but no known Company to operate. He said it was a good deal for the Armstrong Co. and the Reids, but a steal for Newfoundland.

Mr. Grimes asked did he mean to institute that we are dealing with crooked people.

Mr. Cashin replied I take your leader's word for it if you wish it and answer it from his 1915 Manifesto and from his statements in the House. In both places he termed the Reids crooks and said they presented crooked accounts. This man Stadler may be a good man but he was only a paid servant. It was time we ceased giving guarantees. The taxation clause was a betrayal of the people who sent them to the House. It was time we stopped talking of guarantees. The people were forced by guarantees for fishery supplies in 1921. Right opposite him in the House was a member who had taken thousands of dollars from the Government in 1921 for fishery supplies and as yet had not paid back one cent. How could we have a free parliament. He dilated on the campaign in Ferryland and charged that one man in that district had been allocated $500 Government money and had not spent one cent. His job was to run up and down the district sending messages for Mr. Hoar. In this way he earned his $500. What about the charge made at the last sitting. A Minister of the Crown takes from the public treasury money to pay his personal election expenses. Was no enquiry going to be made? It was about time this stealing of public money was stopped. The guilty Minister should be punished. Speaking of the railway he said all we have is two streaks of rush from here to Port aux Basques, which, together with six worthless steamers and a dilapidated dry dock, we are going to pay $2,000,000 for. He then recited some interesting facts concerning the C.P.R. system and said it was urgent that before doing anything with the railway it would be necessary to substitute 100 pound rail right across the country. He praised the Reids for the splendid service rendered by them and the Company during the years of the war, also their unselfish assistance to charitable and worthy enterprises, yet they were year in and year out the target of unscrupulous politicians. He lauded the enterprise of Mr. H. D. Reid, who is solely responsible for having brought to a head after many years of adversity this big proposition now before the Chair. He was out and out for the encouragement of our fisheries and would support a bounty on codfish paid direct to the fishermen. He deplored the appointment of Dr. Mosdell who was made Chairman of the Pension Board and concluded by stating he would vote against the Deal in its present form.

The Committee then rose to consider the Amendments to resume at 8.15 p.m.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Mr. Hibbs took the Chair. The Premier announced that the Government would accept some amendments and others held over until the Company can be communicated with. The amendments agreed to provide, briefly: (1) That the Company shall have no exclusive right to game found on its premises, that the game laws of the Colony and regulations made thereunder shall apply upon the lands of the Company, as elsewhere in the Colony, that a width of not less than 25 feet along the sides of all lakes and rivers shall be reserved, etc.; (2) That the public shall have the right to fish, shoot, hunt and trap over the lands and timber areas of the Company and of navigating streams, river and lakes included therein and to maintain thereon for use in such navigation or travelling any kind of vessel or boat, subject to regulations safeguarding the property from injury by fire; (3) That the Government or its assigns for the time being operating the railway shall have the option of purchasing the surplus electric power which the Company does not require for its own use at a price to be agreed upon; (4) That the stock, dividends, debentures, etc., of the Company shall not be exempt from taxation. The other amendments, which were moved and which have been held over to enable the Government to communicate with the Company provide: (1) for a minimum wage of $2.50 for a working day of ten hours; and (2) that the Company's property and assets shall be exempt from all taxation for thirty years only, instead of "in perpetuity," as the amendment now reads.

Mr. Higgins also intimated that he will move a resolution asking that the minimum wage be $2.50 per day for ten hours.

The Prime Minister gave notice of a Bill to amend the Audit Act.

The Minister of Marine & Fisheries gave notice of a Bill for the encouragement of shipbuilding.

The House adjourned at 9.30 p.m. till the usual hour to-day.

Amundsen's Polar Flight

The Norwegian-American, Mr. Hakon Hammer, is now in Berlin. Mr. Hammer states that he is organizing a relief expedition in connection with Amundsen's Polar flight, and is sending a German Junker aeroplane of the same type as Amundsen is using to Spitzbergen, whence it will proceed to lay food depots over the ice, subsequently patrolling the route agreed upon between Amundsen and Mr. Hammer at a meeting in America.

Canada's Halibut Fishery

A convention designed to secure the preservation of the halibut fishery of the Northern Pacific Ocean which is being rapidly depleted by overfishing has been signed by Canada and the United States. By this convention a closed season of the halibut fishery is established from November 15th to February 15th of each year, and both countries have arranged to provide penalties for violators of this regulation. The closed season will continue from year to year until it is modified or suspended by joint agreement.

This treaty comes as the result of a resolution formally adopted by the Executive of the Canadian Fisheries Association which directed the attention of the Government to the serious damage being wrought to Canada's halibut fishery in the North Pacific and suggested the only drastic remedy possible. The treaty between the two countries followed this being incidentally pointed out as the first occasion of direct diplomatic intercourse between the Dominion and the Republic and probably creating a precedent in this regard.

The halibut is an important fish to Canada, ranking fourth in value among all Canadian sea fish according to the last season's catch. For years the catch has been increasing in volume both on the part of American and Canadian fishermen. The Canadian catch in 1917 amounted to 140,024 cwt., valued at $2,066,635; in 1918, 207,139 cwt., worth $5,490,226; in 1919, 243,449 cwt., worth $5,113,842; in 1920, 282,726 cwt., worth $4,112,942; whilst in 1922 this fish had a value of $3,910,492 and a volume of 361,854 cwt.

Both United States and Canadian fishermen take their toll of the Northern Pacific waters, where the halibut, once considered inexhaustible, is rapidly proving to be not so. This fishing has as a rule, continued every year during the spawning season, which corresponds with the period which has been declared closed. Since the waters are international, being beyond the three mile limit, neither country can actually prohibit the fishing, but will achieve the same end by forbidding the landing during the closed period of halibut at Canadian and United States ports.

The halibut is a very slow maturing fish, taking an average of twelve years to develop to breeding age, when it starts spawning in the waters of the Northern Pacific, off Prince Rupert in British Columbia, far out to sea. Once developed to breeding age, it is believed to be the most long-lived of fish, instances of halibut spawning to a century being known, while some experts claim it lives as long as two hundred years. With a fish capable of reproduction to such an advanced age, it is clear that the agreement of a closed season during spawning time will preserve these rich fishing grounds in their fertility forever.

Though the Canadian catch is a substantial one, there is clearly an opening for a greater exploitation on the Dominion's part of the halibut fishing grounds directly off its coast. The greater volume of the Canadian catch is consumed by the domestic market, and in the last fiscal year only 66,399 cwt., worth $354,592 was exported to the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. So far short did Canada's catch fall of satisfying the domestic market that it was found necessary to import 52,508 cwt., worth $195,416 from the United States Alaska and Newfoundland.

The Humber Amendments.

The Opposition members in the House, particularly the Leader, Mr. Higgins, are certainly entitled to congratulations on the fact that all their proposed amendments to the Humber Proposition except one were accepted and passed at last night's session of the House. The amendment that is still held up for further consideration by the Government is that which provides for a minimum wage for the workmen. The principal change which is of advantage to the colony is that regarding taxation. The original agreement stipulated that the Company was free from all taxation in perpetuity. The amendment provides that after the expiry of thirty years, or June 28th, 1953, this exemption will come to an end and the corporation shall pay the ordinary taxes according to the schedule then current the same as any other business firm or company. The amendment of next importance is that relating to surplus hydro-electric power. Whatever power is generated in excess of that which is required by the operating company to carry on its work the Government shall have the first option of its purchase in the event of the company wishing to sell. The idea behind this is the possibility that the power may be successfully applied to the electrification of the railway system, or a part of it at least, so that trains may be run by electric power, and that the expensive item of coal may be eliminated and the road be made a paying proposition. The third privilege secured is that freedom of fishing and hunting is reserved for the general public of Newfoundland as well as visiting tourists over all the Company's lands and rivers and the usual riparian rights to traverse the banks of all streams and rivers, which custom prevails everywhere else in Newfoundland, will be kept inviolate. The Nfld. Game Laws will apply to the Company's territory and except in the payment of the usual cost of shooting and fishing licenses to the Government, visiting sportsmen would be free to roam at will and fish and shoot in the territory. This will have a very important bearing on the future tourist traffic of the West Coast, which we all look forward to developing into a great financial asset to the country in the years to come. The Government deserves to be congratulated also in their readiness to accept these suggestions of the Opposition and to co-operate so gracefully in having them embodied into the Bill, which will be read a second time this evening. We understand that the Premier has to cable to London before adopting amendment of a minimum wage.

Train Notes.

Yesterday's express arrived at Bishop's Falls 45 mins. late. The incoming express with the Kyle's mails and passengers left Port aux Basques at 9.45 a.m. The Caribou train arrived at 12.25.

The Fishery.

Up to the present time there has been very little fish landed on the coast of Newfoundland. The operations this year are curtailed to almost half of the normal of previous years owing to the fact that so many fishermen have abandoned the avocation and either have left the country or gone to the Humber. The number, however, who have gone to the West Coast and have secured employment with the contractors of the Armstrong-Whitworth Co., is insignificant compared with those who have abandoned the fishery and are now seeking employment. Hundreds of fishermen were in town from Trinity and Bonaville Bays this week looking for tickets to go to the Humber Valley, and not being able to get passes and assurance of employment, were obliged to return home greatly disappointed. It is possible that seeing no hope of getting a summer's work at land industries at an early date, many of these men will, some way or other, return to the fishing industry. If too late to get a chance to ship for the Labrador, they will no doubt find a way to get sufficient outfit to fish at home if the fish strikes in.

Up to the time of the recent storm of the 23rd and 24th inst. there was a good sign of fish in many harbors along the coast. Placentia Bay was full of fish, but there was a scarcity of salt, and the fishermen could not take proper advantage of the situation. The storm too, swept away hundreds of traps, and though most of them were recovered they were badly damaged and four to six days has been lost in getting them repaired and set again. The Bank fishery farther west is little better so far than a failure, and even if the conditions improve greatly now, it is too late to make up for lost time. The caplin have struck in plentiful this week all along the coast, and better work will no doubt result during the next three or four weeks. There is a very good sign of fish between Cape Spear and Cape St. Francis since the storm, and now that the weather seems to be settling, it is to be hoped that big catches in the traps will be reported next week.

Dog Attacks Citizen.

SPORTS COMMITTEE MEETS FOR AIRE ATHLETIC GARDEN PARTY.
The Sports Committee of the Methodist Guards Comrades Association met in the club rooms last night for the purpose of drafting up a sports programme in connection with the Aire Athletic Garden Party, which event takes place on July 11th. The meeting, which was a most enthusiastic one, decided to prepare a programme and the necessary committees, etc. for the big day. The events will comprise the usual sprints and middle distance racing, one mile walking match, while several new and novel items will be a special feature, one of which will be the thread the needle race with lady and gentlemen partner. The committee felt that the sporting events should not conflict with the G.W.V.A. sports which takes place at St. George's Field on the same day. An arrangement will be entered into between the two committees in this connection, and competitors who are desirous of taking part in the two meets will be afforded an opportunity of doing so.

Magistrates Court.

A 39-year-old seaman of Plymouth Road, drunk, was discharged.
A 37-year-old steward, Plymouth Road, stood charged with the larceny of $70.00, the property of Stanley C. Duder from on board S.S. Silvia on the 23rd inst. Accused was not asked to plead, as the police are not ready to proceed. Bail was granted in the sum of $500.00 on his own behalf and securities of $250.00 each from two others.
A few civil cases were disposed of.

Good Salmon Fishing Reported.

The following message has been received by the Reid Nfld. Co. from the agent at Spruce Brook:—"Harry's Brook and nearby rivers in splendid condition. Mr. J. B. Orr landed 15 lb. salmon at North Brook yesterday. Six fish caught at Black Duck; five at Dumy Pool; six at Island Pool, and seven at Fishell's this week."

Men's Tan Low Shoes, with rubber heels for $5.00 and $5.50 at SMALLWOOD'S.—June 29, 1925

In Passing.

Midnight-to-morrow the Reid Newfoundland Company, according to the Government's proposal, will give up all their rights, titles, claims and management of the railway services, steamship services and Dry Dock.

For which rights, titles, claims and ownership the Company is to be paid the sum of $2,000,000 in 5% per cent. Government Bonds from the Treasury of Newfoundland.

Under the proposed agreement, which eliminates the Company from all its obligations as contractors to the Colony, the railway and other services will, at the appointed hour, come under the direct control of the Government and bring with it an assured liability on the taxpayers who will be called upon to meet a huge deficit for an indefinite period.

In his Manifesto to the electorate the Prime Minister intimated to the public that a responsible company of English capitalists would, when the Reids were eliminated, take over the railway, but upon enquiry it is learned such will not be the case.

Furthermore, at the time, the Prime Minister authorized this paragraph in his Manifesto and made public the statement there was no possibility of such under consideration.

At the time of writing this deceptive Manifesto the Government had no future policy other than the one which comes into force on July 1st—a policy to which only one member of the present Government, Mr. Jos. Downey, member for the district of St. George's, has expressed himself favourable.

Mr. Downey from his seat in the Assembly gave an optimistic view of Government control of our railway system, forgetting, of course, the result of such control during the past three and a half years, which cost the Colony close on $5,000,000, and much less efficient service than that given by the contractors previous to 1919.

That Mr. Downey is alone in his opinion we have no reason to doubt, and it is to be hoped that he is.

An Eventful Trip.

SCHR. "LADAS" HAD A TRYING TIME EN ROUTE TO ST. MARY'S.
The little schr. "Ladas," Owen Whalen, master, arrived at St. Mary's on Monday last after a most trying experience caught in the heavy north-east gale of the previous days, after leaving St. John's on Friday morning, the craft received a severe buffeting. After rounding Cape Race an attempt was made to shelter at Trepassy when a heavy sea boarded her tearing the mainmast to pieces and carrying away the rudderhead. After two hours hard work they managed to rig a temporary rudderhead but not before the schr. drifted to such a distance that with her mainmast gone it was impossible to reach Cape Pine for shelter. Accordingly the master was forced to lay to under a double reefed foresail. A terrific gale was raging all the while and everything on the deck was swept away the crew suffering intensely because of the cold and exposure. On Saturday the gale increased until it blew a hurricane, the little schooner being at the time about 40 miles W.S.W. from Cape Pine. The ship was washed off the bowsprit. The skipper tied a rope around his body and volunteered to cut it away fearing the weight of water it held would force open the craft forward, all the while the Ladas was leaking and the situation was serious. At midnight Saturday the lights of a steamer were sighted and the master signalled for assistance but no notice was taken of them although the steamer was quite close to the craft at the time. Shortly after the wind veered around. The schooner was by this time 75 miles W.S.W. from Cape Pine. Just before dark Sunday evening Cape St. Mary's was sighted, and all on board were thankful that their lives were spared. Arriving at Riverhead, St. Mary's at daylight with her canvas gone and deck swept clean, the crew were exhausted. The voyage is but another example of the seamanship of our hardy mariners who, despite great odds, faced tragedy and averted disaster. Skipper Whalen is quite a young man and he with his crew are to be complimented upon their pluck, seamanship and perseverance.—(Cor.)

Local Banker Rescues Frenchman.

The Marytown banking schr. Olga E. Kenny, Capt. Walsh, which put in here two days ago, from the Grand Banks sailed yesterday for Cape Broyle to secure a bait supply. The Olga Kenny was on the Banks during the storm of last week and picked up two French fishermen, who had strayed from their vessel. Capt. Walsh reported a good lot of damage done amongst the vessels as a result of the gale. His own vessel lost both cable and anchor owing to a Portuguese banker which broke adrift bearing down on him. Capt. Walsh states that fish is fairly plentiful and in two days' fishing his four dories secured 250 qts. A new cable anchor and supplier were secured at Baird's Lad.

Methodist Conference.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

Thursday morning was entirely given over to the work of committees. Committees met in the several class rooms and prepared their reports, some of which were presented to the Conference during the afternoon session.

In the afternoon the report of the Educational Committee was presented by Dr. Duna. Income for the year was $1965. The number of probationers at college during the past year 23. The Conference adopted an objective of $2500 for the ensuing year, this amount being considered necessary in view of the per capita grant made to our students from this fund. Emphasis was placed upon the fact that we supply many young ministers to the Canadian Conference.

The report of the committee on day schools was then presented by Rev. R. White. In view of the changes shown by recent census returns, a commission was appointed consisting of Revs. Dr. Curtis, Dr. Fenwick, James Wilson, Mr. G. Hudson, to take charge of the allocation of the sparsely populated district grant.

Strong emphasis was laid upon the need of a syllabus of religious education to be taught in every Methodist school. Rev. Mr. Joyce made a splendid speech on this subject, in the course of which he pointed out that only 35 Methodist children took the Scripture History exam in connection with the C.H.E. exams. Mr. Joyce, who has taken a great interest in the work of Religious Education impressed the Conference.

At the call of the President on the order of the day, Rev. Dr. Curtis gave his report on Methodist Day Schools. The Superintendent of Education expressed his pleasure at the interest shown by the Conference in the matter of Education. The grant made by the Government was sufficiently large to be a credit to the Dominion. He pointed out that a knowledge of books is not always education in the true sense of the term. He referred to the days when Sunday's worship commenced with prayer service at 7 a.m. followed by Sabbath School at 10 a.m. This was followed by preaching service at 11 and another Sunday School session during the afternoon. The work of education must begin in the home, a point upon which the Superintendent of Education laid great stress.

He also showed how the present curriculum provided for religious education and outlined his efforts to have this carried out. Dr. Curtis was emphatic in favour of religious education in our day schools.

Referring to the work of his department he showed that during his 23 years of office the number of day schools had been doubled. For the past two years there had been a decrease, this he attributed to the aftermath of the war.

At this point the President's gavel reminded us of the order of the day, and Dr. Curtis will finish his report at another time. The President firmly and courteously follows his programme and this manifests his fitness for his honoured position.

The deputation from the W.M.S. consisting of Mrs. Eugene Lindsay and Mrs. Joseph Peters was received by standing vote. Mrs. Peters presented the report which showed that their funds reached a total of $9000. Total number of mothers 4000. A pleasing coincidence was that Mrs. Bennett, wife of the President was this year appointed Superintendent of Northern Branches. Rev. Lench and Mr. Mews moved the reception of the report. During an interval Dr. Curtis moved and Dr. Fenwick seconded, that the thanks of the Conference be given to ex-President Morris for his labour during the year.

The Bible Society deputation, consisting of Rev. Mr. E. J. St. Thomas, Church and Mr. Templeton of the Kirk was then received. Mr. E. J. St. Thomas returned to the fact that he had been a delegate to welcome the Wesleyan Conference on their visit to the city of Hull and spoke of the value of these fraternal greetings. The society needs support because of the needs of the day, and by means of the Bible the leadership of Jesus is revealed.

Municipal Council.

WEEKLY MEETING. The City Council held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presiding and Councilors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden being present.

After the minutes of previous meetings were read and confirmed, a deputation from the unemployed, consisting of Messrs. Bennett, Viscount and Hannaford, were admitted to the Council Chamber. During the week they requested an interview with the Council, to place before them certain matters in connection with the present labour depression.

Mr. Bennett, on behalf of the Deputation, in a lengthy address referred to the hardships to which many skilled and unskilled labourers and mechanics were subjected owing to lack of employment, and asked if the Council had in anticipation the opening up of works whereby ready employment could be obtained. He said he had been informed the Government advanced the Council, by way of guaranteed loan, the sum of $20,000 for purpose of relaying water pipe line and to relieve the situation.

The Mayor, whilst sympathizing with the men in their endeavours to find some means of relief, plainly put the position of the Council before them, and made clear its financial inability to undertake works which would mean heavy expenditure.

The Deputation thanked the Council for the hearing given them, and retired.

The following matters were then taken up:— Communication from Chairman Johnson of the Dickson Memorial Committee, with regard to the lights recently imported for the monument. The Engineer will supply the necessary information as to location.

Mr. C. Lynch asked reasons why services had been dispensed with in connection with the pump, Battery Road. The Council recently placed a new, up to date pump there for the benefit of the residents, and the same attention is not needed as in the past.

Applications were read from the Bandmasters of the C.C.C., C.L.B. and Mr. Cashel Bands, asking permission to hold concerts in Bannerman and Victoria Parks during the coming season. In this connection there has been some dissatisfaction amongst citizens owing to the Parks being used every night for the concerts, and it was thought that if two concerts weekly in each park could be arranged, the applications might be granted.

The matter was therefore referred to the Bannerman and Victoria Committees for their consideration.

Mr. F. B. Williams drew attention to the fact that motorists were in the habit of using that very congested thoroughfare, Casey Street, in order to reach the Higher Levels, and he considered this was most dangerous owing to the many children playing in the street daily, and should not be permitted, as serious accidents were likely to occur. A copy of his communication will be forwarded the Inspector General, for an opinion as to the advisability of closing this street to motorists.

Mr. E. S. Eggs, Allendale Road, asked why the Sanitary Department did not call in this as in other sections of the city for collection of garbage. This was referred to the Sanitary Supervisor.

Tender of Messrs. Wm. Heap and Company for supply of cast iron pipe was accepted. Application of T. W. Crossman for permission to install electric motor Ranger Towed Seal to Lord's Cove. HEAVY ICE CONDITIONS REPORTED. The Department of Shipping received a message from Capt. A. Keen of the Ranger yesterday afternoon, advising them that she got to the assistance of the Seal on the previous evening. Owing to the heavy ice conditions which were met with, towing did not commence until daylight yesterday. Two hawsers were attached and the disabled ship was towed at a much difficulty to Lord's Cove which is near Snug Harbor, when anchor was dropped at 6.30 a.m. The Ranger returned south to call at Battle Harbor and other point which she missed when going to the Seal's assistance. Capt. Jacob Keen also wired in last night, stating the 275 passengers were on the ship. Arrangements have been made by the Coastal Department to transfer them to the Ranger and Sagona for passage to their destination.

Pearls of Great Price. Most persons have placed the lustre of the pearl above all others. The Chinese, however, together with other eastern peoples, prefer the yellow pearl, believing that it preserves both luster and color longer than the white. This pearl is said to owe its yellow to the fact that the oysters have been allowed to die and putrify in their shells, the shells opening of themselves on the death of the oyster.

This custom has been ascribed to the fact that the pearl generally lies close to the edge of the shell, and it is feared that many fine pearls would be spoiled if the process of opening the shell with a knife were practiced. Black pearls are very much valued. The famous necklace of black pearls belonging to the late Empress Eugenie was sold for $25,000. Pink pearls are much desired among the Buddhists, who employ them profusely in the adorning of their temples. The inhabitants of Chipirana are said to place a pink pearl in the mouth of a dead relative or friend before cremation of the body.

Jimmy Wilde Loses Title.

40,000 FANS WITNESS BOUT WHICH ENDED IN SEVENTH ROUND—
PANCHE VILLA THE VICTOR.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Jimmy Wilde
lost his title of champion flyweight boxer to Pancho Villa last night, in a manner that the forty thousand who saw him do it will remember while they live.
The forty thousand who sat in the Polo Grounds and saw the title pass,
were so captivated by the exhibition of gameness the little Welshman gave that for fully five minutes after it was over they sat there, mostly quiet, waiting for him to open his eyes and come back to consciousness that he might hear the mighty roar that was their sincere tribute to a genuine fighting
man.

Villa, an unheard of Filipino more than a year ago, won because he obviously was the better man. Whether now at his very best he is a better man than "the Mighty Atom" he de-throned
when Wilde was in his prime is a matter of debate. But he proved his superiority last night by wading in at the first gong, getting the edge and hammering away until Wilde sank in a stupor.
Wilde heard the greeting of those lusty throats though he could not see a person in the crowd for both eyes were closed, he could not about eye even a faint acknowledgment, for his mouth was swollen grotesquely. His arms were tired, but he lifted them as a token, he shook his aching head and went to his wife, who was waiting for him in his dressing room.

Old timers who saw the battle said
it reminded them of the passing of Batling Nelson, the durable Dane, who was so game that he had to be counted out on his feet. Beaten to the point where the crowd asked that the punishment be stopped, helpless to either defend himself or attack, he yielded not an inch.

The glorious manner of his passing,
the courageous manner in which he waved aside requests that he stop and saved the ignominy of a knockout,
dwarfed other aspects of the battle.
Jimmy Wilde, a great, courageous little fighter from the Rhonda Valley of Wales was battered to a sanguinary
horror Monday night in his last fight
as flyweight champion of the world by Pancho Villa, the sulphur colored Phi-lipino kid who has swept through the flyweight class in the short period of two years like measles through a kindergarten.

Three times little Jimmy, the skiny,
boyish looking old brawler who learned his business at the rate of a shilling a round in bare knuckle bouts, while working as pit-boy in the Welsh coal mines, was knocked cold
but twice it chanced that the knockout caught him just a barely perceptible instant after the bell had rung for the end of a round.

FINISH IN SEVENTH.
The finish came in the seventh with the tiny Filipino, whose every move
in a poem of feline grace, standing flat
on his soles with his legs wide spread,
and not troubling to defend himself
against anything that Villa in desperation might have been able to do. Villa was simply battering Wilde to unconsciousness and Patsy Haley, the referee, would have stopped in and stopped the massacre but for the fact that Jimmy had shown such amazing ability to pull himself together in several previous crises, which seemed to be disastrous but were not.

WHERE KILBANE FELL.
The laws of nature and gravity have twice asserted themselves over an old former great champion on this very spot over the Giants' pitchers' box within the last three weeks. For it was here in this ring about three yards
from the spot where poor exhausted Jimmy Wilde's bloody visage slipped into the resin dust, that Johnny Kil-bane passed on his title to a younger man, Eugene Cright. But Kilbane took no such beating and showed not the faintest glimmer of the enormous courage that made Jimmy Wilde's trampling little legs bear him out from his corner for more suffering round
after round, when he knew there was no hope of winning.

GAVE AWAY HIS CROWN.
From the first moment of the first round when Villa hoisted a far-fetched left solbly against Jimmy's waist, it was very plain that Wilde in giving way ten years advantage to Villa had given away his championship. That left him half doubled for an instant in a gesture of excruciating pain and yet
it was only the Pancho Villa left body which Frankie Genaro and all the stronger young flyweights, including several third raters, have been able to digest without distress.
Poor Jimmy was in a terrible way from the start and the only wonder of the show was that he did not stay in his corner and forfeit his title
by a technical knockout after the second round when the first of the three knockout punches put him to sleep.

or less popular and thus a night battle drew one of the greatest fight crowds ever assembled on Manhattan Island or anywhere else.

Wilde weighed 108½ and Villa 110.
Round 1—Villa came in low with arms folded before face. Villa sent left to head and swung right to head.
Villa led with heavy left to body and Wilde crumpled Villa with two hard swings to the head. Wilde landed two left jabs. Villa nailed him hard with left to the head. Wilde labbed twice more. Wilde led with right to the face and two lefts and rights to Villa's lowered head. Villa cracked Wilde with a set of swings to head and body and Wilde was dizzy again at the bell. Wilde seemed doomed
at this point.

Round 2—Villa led with hard right
to the head and left to the body, which swung Villa backward. Villa landed two stiff lefts to the face and missed hard right swing. Wilde jabbed lightly, but Villa's head was lowered and they only hit his forehead.
Villa suddenly shot a left out of cover and Wilde staggered back and almost down. Villa paused an instant and then sailed in savagely, smashing Wilde with both hands to the head and body, and with back-hand blows to the face. Wilde made a feebly stand in Villa's corner, and then Villa shot him backward so again with another volley of swings to the head. Wilde was almost out and almost without strength or defence.
Just an instant after the bell ended
the round Villa caught him with a right to the chin and Wilde went down and out cold, but the round had ended. Wilde's seconds took him to his corner and worked on him.

CAME ON GAMELY.
Round 3—Wilde came on gamely
and took a left to the neck. He jabbed to the face and hooked both to the body with little force. Wilde hooked left to the face. Villa attacked with two lefts to the chin. The first one rocked Villa on his heels, and the others simply battered him from corner to corner. Villa's swings even to the side of the head were so strong they dazed Wilde. A left uppercut caught Wilde's chin. He lowered his head and tried to pin Villa in a corner, but the Filipino came out of it easily and was still smashing away
when the bell came. This was Wilde's best round so far, poor as it was, and it followed a real knockout from which he had recovered between the second and third rounds.

Round 4—They stood toe to toe in mid-ring and Wilde held his own this time. They began to trade blows, and began advancing toward his man, slowly and warily, sending in light
jabs and hooks. The two back-hand punches jolted Wilde, but he came back with inspiring gameness in a great slugging melee. Villa backed to the ropes and gave an exhibition of head-rolling as Wilde stood wide-legged and attacked. Wilde ran up a large aggregate of cleanly scored points, however, and Villa's tactics
here were very puzzling for Wilde seemed to be actually gaining force
in his blows.

Round 5—Villa led with two lefts
to the body and two to the head, all hard. Wilde jabbed Villa's lowered head repeatedly, but Villa flashed out of it and swung to both head and body solidly. Wilde sent in numerous short left blows to the head as Villa crouched. Villa took a hard left on the chin and gave one back. Wilde landed hard right to the jaw. Villa landed hard straight left to the face
and right to the body and head.

RIGHT EYE SWELLING.
Round 6—Wilde's right eye was swelling shut as he came up for the round. Villa slugged him about the head. A back-hand left sent Wilde backward. Wilde lay on the ropes and took a terrible beating with almost no defence. Villa whacked him all the way across one side of the ring trying to bring him down. Wilde scored half a dozen jabs and protested against Villa's back-hand blow.
Villa landed three lefts to the head and Wilde seemed he must die right there. Ten, twelve more terrific slams nailed Wilde and again at the bell he was almost knocked out for he was in the act of falling from smashes to his unprotected chin when the gong once more interrupted and Wilde rushed to his corner.

Round 7—Villa smacked Wilde with lefts to the body and stood wide-legged and flat-footed with Wilde against the ropes, edging around slowly after the Welshman, giving him a merciless beating. Wilde resumed jabbing semowh. His right eye was shut tight. Then the inevitable right hand to the chin flashed out of the melee and Wilde keeled forward, knocked out cold as his seconds poured thru'
the ropes waving their towels in surrender.
There was no count and no need
for one.

WORLD SERIES CROWD.
The Polo Grounds held a world series crowd for the drama. It was estimated that fully 40,000 fans were present. They stretched away in tiers of darkness as far as the old favorite landing place of Babe Ruth's home runs. The prices were more

the thousands around her were asking that the fight be stopped, her voice was still.

"Well, it had to happen some time"
was her comment. "We shall go home now and rest."
Jimmy received about $50,000, 37½
per cent of the total receipts, and Villa about $30,000, 12½ per cent.
The total receipts were about $100,- 000.
Villa occupies a peculiar pugilistic position. Though world's champion, he is not the United States title holder. He won the United States
title from Johnny Buff and then lost
it to Frankie Genaro. He was matched to meet Wilde instead of Genaro because Promoter Tom O'Rourke believes the Filipino to be the better drawing card. Genaro has been assured a match with the winner of last night's bout.
"I have nothing but admiration for Wilde," Villa said. "He was one of the best."
Jimmy said Villa deserved to win.
"I simply met my best," were his words. "I don't know whether I shall try to get a return bout. It's too early now to say that. It was the first knockout I ever suffered in my own class, and maybe that means I'm getting too old, I don't know."

Cabbages Have Hearts.

Biologists now believe that in all plant life a pumping action, similar to that performed by the heart of an animal, takes place to cause the ascent of sap in all forms of vegetation.
The pumping is done by minute
cells, which expand and contract with a throbbing action. Water is drawn up from the soil by root-hairs, along which the water flows to the root, thence it is propelled upwards
to the cells.

To live, a tree must obtain its inorganic food from dissolved substances in the soil. After the liquid is sucked up by the roots and conducted along the stems, any excess is ex-haled into the air through minute openings in the leaves.
The amount of food in solution
raised by the "heart beats" of a fairly large tree is something like a hundred pounds per day. When it is remembered that the height of certain giant trees may be as much as 450 feet,
and that the outermost twig and tin-
nest leaf must daily receive its ration of liquid, the energy required for pumping must be enormous.

Under normal conditions the ascent of sap exceeds a speed of a hundred feet per hour. This delicate and wonderful action is all brought about by the tree's heart pressure from below and a tug, as it were,
from above.
The records of the heart-beats of both animal and plant display certain striking similarities. In animal life
the best increases with a rising temperature, and if the cold becomes too acute
the action of the animal heart comes to a stop. The heart beat of a tree is also arrested immediately too low
a temperature is reached, and sap falls to be pumped. This explains the whole phenomenon of "falling leaf
and fading tree."

There is this vital difference, however. The animal heart beats from the base of life till death; in vegetation Nature applies an anaesthetic which puts the plant into a state of coma. There is still life, but the action of the heart has become dormant.

Reads With His Tongue.

Strange Case of Blind and Handless Man.

There is a man in Kansas City who loves his Bible so much that he reads it most of the time, although he is blind and has no hands with which to feel his way over the raised alphabet commonly used by blind persons.

He is William M'Pherson, says a Reuter New York message, and he reads the scriptures by picking out the raised letters with the tip of his tongue. Mr. M'Pherson lost his eyesight and his hands in an explosion almost seventeen years ago. He was born in 1866 at Inverness, Scotland, and went to America in 1883. He was engaged in the rock quarrying business, and while he was planting a dynamite charge in a bed of rock in a Colorado quarry in 1906, the dynamite exploded prematurely, and Mr. M'Pherson was maimed for life.

When She Kissed the Bible. It was six years later that he began to learn to read in the strange fashion which he has since then so thoroughly mastered. He was living in a home for blind persons when he heard an evangelist tell of a blind woman in England, whose finger tips suddenly became paralysed so that she was unable to read her Bible. She bent down to kiss the Braille Bible, and she was happily surprised to discover that her lips were as sensitive to the raised alphabet as her fingers had been.

Mr. M'Pherson thought a great deal about the experience of the woman. He was unable to learn to read by touching the type with his lips, for he could not feel the letters distinctly. One day the thought came to him that he might use his tongue.

Alphabet in Two Weeks. A teacher of the blind, from Chicago, was sent for, and the lessons started. As the blind man picked out the characters of the raised alphabet with the tip of his tongue the teacher traced the same letters upon his shoulder with her fingers. After more than two weeks of patient effort the alphabet was finally mastered, and Mr. M'Pherson began to read the Gospel of St. John.

SIDETALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

RUSTY NEEDLES AND DISTANT FUTURES.

America is a prodigal country. Doubtless it is inevitable that she should breed prodigal people. In my needle case the other day I found some rusty needles.

What to do with rusty or broken needles and their blood relatives, old razor blades (no, I would not be deliberately guilty of such a ghastly pun), is one of the eternal problems. I fancy most housewives sidestep it by putting such articles in a box and sticking the box on a high shelf to be taken down at house-cleaning time, looked at and put back.

So, running true to form, I said to the inhabitant of my kitchen: "I'd like to throw these away, but I don't know just where to throw them."

"Don't throw them away at all," said she. "Just put them on a stone and rub your foot back and forth over them and they'll be as shining as ever."

They Just Buy New Ones. And then she added: "Folks don't do those things in this country, though. They just buy new ones." Surely a true indictment—if I do say so against whom it was made.

Many Americans don't know what thrift means. They know what economy means. It means going without things. But in the matter of thrift—which means making the most of what you have, making things last by proper use, making every cent count—there are very few of us who do not have to take off our hats to people brought up in the economic pressure of Old World conditions.

Two Inheritances.

Here is another clever summing up of a typical American attitude. A man whose business is the understanding of financial conditions said to me in regard to America's attitude toward money: "If an American inherits some money he says: 'I have inherited $2,000' or whatever the amount is. If a Frenchman inherits the same amount of money he says: 'I have inherited 500 francs,' or whatever the interest on that amount is. That is, the American looks upon the principal as something to use, the Frenchman regards it as capital to be kept sacred."

America is a prodigal country. Perhaps it is inevitable that she should breed a prodigal people.

Facing the Future.

But she will not always be so prodigal. It is estimated that in the year 2100 there will be about one hundred and ninety-seven million people in the United States. And that will be practically the saturation point. Moreover, at the prodigal rate at which we are using up our oil, and our forests, and our coal, we shall have used up long before that the natural resources that make life on this side of the water the comparatively easy thing it has been. That all means that American people will have to develop thrift.

The more we teach the principles of thrift to our children, the more we are going to make the transition that they or their grandchildren may have to make.

Manitoba Opposed to Prohibition.

UNDER THE NEW BILL THE GOVERNMENT WILL APPOINT COMMISSION TO ADMINISTER SALE OF LIQUOR, AND BREWERIES CAN DELIVER DIRECT.

WINNIPEG, June 25.—Manitoba has gone "wet." By a sweeping majority which went beyond 25,000 in Winnipeg City and which was going up slowly as the country was heard from, the bill of the Moderation League was endorsed and the policy of prohibition represented by the Manitoba Temperance Act, the law of the Province for seven years, was overturned.

The weather also was wet and a violent electrical rainstorm which swept the city at ten o'clock drove the bulletin crowds to cover, darkened newspaper offices and hampered seriously the collection and compilation of returns. It had been shown, however, that the country had reversed its traditional policy of "dryness" and appeared to be voting fairly evenly, while the city, which voted wet in the importation referendum of 1920 by about 7,000, rolled up tremendous majorities in almost every poll and more than tripled that figure.

Prohibitionists Admit Defeat. Prohibition workers admitted by ten o'clock that their cause had met decisive defeat. They were surprised and disappointed at the showing from the rural polls and the smaller towns, and at the size of the majority in Winnipeg. Moderation League workers expressed gratification and pointed out that they had claimed a change in sentiment throughout the Province.

Under the bill of the Moderation League which Manitoba has to-day adopted, the Government will appoint a commission of three members to administer the sale of liquors for consumption as a beverage in the permanent or temporary residences of permit-holders, who may be residents of the Province or guests. Breweries will be permitted to deliver direct.

The Legislature will meet in July pledged to enact into law the bill which was approved to-day. A second referendum is to be taken on July 11 on a proposal of the Hotel Men's Association for sale of beer and wine in dining rooms of licensed hotels with meals, and should it be adopted also the two systems will be amalgamated under the administration of the Government Liquor Commission.

Finds Tomb 3,000 Years Old.

A tomb, believed to be about 3,000 years old, has been discovered at Catterline, four miles from Stonehaven, England, according to the Stonehaven correspondent of the London Daily News.

While James Scott was digging in a field his spade struck a large stone slab. He continued digging and exposed to view three layers of stones. He sent for the Rev. Mr. Fraser of Kinross, an antiquarian. With assistance the large stones were removed, and a grave was revealed containing the skeleton of a full-grown man, lying on his left side, with an earthenware food urn beside him. Mr. Fraser expressed the belief that the remains belonged to the bronze age, and might possibly be 3,000 years old.

The greater part of the urn is in a good state of preservation.

Tourist Traffic.

The question of encouraging visitors and tourist traffic to this country is one that meets with ready consideration. For many years we have heard the many advantages and possibilities that would accrue from a spirited campaign in this direction but regretfully we affirm no outstanding efforts have been made to secure the desired result. In Canada to-day the Dominion and Provincial Governments and Municipalities are striving and working unceasingly to encourage tourist and pleasure seekers to visit their cities and provinces with the two fold purpose: first, to reap the benefit of the advertising thus secured, and secondly the high revenues and commercial gains that such traffic would in course of time ensure. Nova Scotia has recently organized a Tourist Association which the Nova Scotians hope will have an active branch in every part of the Province. New Brunswick has had such an Association for some years. These sections of the Dominion are mindful of the fact that between forty and fifty million dollars were spent last year in Maine. Every possible attraction is held out to tourists to visit these provinces this year, and for the year coming a special campaign is in course of preparation to increase the traffic for 1924 and succeeding years. The very first essential in regard to the encouragement of tourist travel and getting the most out of it as a permanent source of revenue, is the recognition of the fact that the visitor must in all cases receive a good impression of hospitality and comfort which is more important than scenery or temperature. He may be quite willing to spend but he will look for something in the line of good accommodation and ordinary courtesy. The Association in the Canadian provinces referred to, acknowledge the importance of such; consequently the main works of these organizations is mainly confined in this direction. Throughout the year, particularly during the months of the summer season, appropriate propaganda and literature is circulated to the best advantage and with splendid results. A spirit of co-operation prevails amongst the members of these Associations, which is responsible for the improved general appearance of the communities and hotel and traffic accommodation. Behind all the advertising that may be done to attract tourists, there is a sincere desire to have them enjoy themselves as far as is constitutionally allowed. Newfoundland, because of its many attractions and geographical position, time and again received the favorable recognition and approval of many of the world's celebrated sportsmen and tourists. The Colony won this recognition because of its scenery and natural assets which are equalled in very few parts of the world. Newfoundland is thus properly designated "The Sportsman's Paradise," principally due to her many invaluable lakes, rivers and ideal pleasure resorts which are dear to the heart of the fisherman, hunter and pleasure seeker. But there is one of the great needs we suffer most, the lack of accommodation, of a modern method, to meet the expected requirements of the wealthy visitor and health seeker. In many other respects we are qualified and are justified to seek a share of the advantages which certainly will be derived in this direction. At a recent meeting of the Vancouver Publicity Bureau, the reports showed a remarkable growth in this—the new industry of the coast province. The money left in the city by tourists amounted to over twenty million dollars in one year which is in excess of the money brought in by the fishing industry which exceeded some sixteen million dollars. The fishing industry in this province is one of the oldest industries on the coast and has been a very profitable one for a generation. Some seven hundred thousand strangers to the province visited Vancouver last year. What the Canadian Provinces have done in building up tourist traffic can be to a large and even greater extent duplicated in Newfoundland. Whilst it is important for the Government to take the initial steps, it is just as important that the people should likewise get interested; particularly business men in our local Board of Trade, and other similar institutions, who stand to receive direct gains by such traffic. What is needed is a comprehensive campaign, and, in short, we will reap the benefits that are now enjoyed by countries which have not the valuable opportunities we possess.

BIG AND LITTLE.

The big men make a great success, achieve a wide renown; the little men, in their distress, unite to run them down. The big men's courage is sublime, they dare to take a chance; they give their energy and time to make the town advance. They have great dreams and strain and strive to make those dreams come true; and if our village seems alive, to them the praise is due. They give their substance every day to help each worthy plan; like pioneers they clear the way, they're always in the van. And as they work and plan and give, they hear the shrill trade of little men of sordid goals, of cheap and timid deeds! The little men have shriveled souls as small as mustard seeds. Because mean motives are their own, mean motives they ascribe to those who build in brick and stone, the giants of our tribe. And as the big men nobly work, discouragement is theirs; in all the shadowy small men lurk to curse the man who dares. And still the great men, since they're great, pursue their destined course, though Lilliputians at the gate may howl until they're hoarse.

Public Opinion.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—With profound apologies we borrow this heading and would gladly boast (if we could) of a perfect inspiration to deal with the subject in a forceful and masterly way.

Let me first ask a question or two: Are we keeping pace with the times? Are we shrewd enough to keep on re-vising and properly defining the causes and the rise or decline in strength of this decidedly abstract and rather elusive force? In short: does present-day public opinion represent moral force and on some lines the personification of stability?

It is really no mental stunt to go back to the time when public opinion was an intangible lash of correction; but to-day as a result of a system of give and take,—of plans to lull, evade and dodge,—of the ready acquiescence of the public mind to ease itself on an offered or promised cushioning,—it has fallen to sheer impotency; and because of this, twisted principle and warped morality may tread its threatening way without feeling or even evincing a fear of it. Do you not think so?

Look alive now, drop every other study from your mind except this and push along your real deductions on public opinion. What! Did you not witness the seething of this supposed force for a whole twelve month prior to this spring's elections? Was not the very air charged with a feeling of reform and healthy security? What persistently bitter condemnation of public wrongs sent forth its sentiments on the voice of wounded conscience and confidence betrayed. Sure and inspiring hope! We put it this way, hoping to portray the healthy pulse of public conscience, but alas! plain delusion drew back its hand and within its grasp it held a misnamed cloak of charity to cover a multitude of grievances.

Casualty the brain visualizes repentance on the part of public oppressors. Was there any such thing? Look me in the face! Now was there? Not at all, nothing of the kind, nothing but the trail of a camouflaged nightmare—a substitute for the realization of material dreams—the display of the empty dollar mark with the chink of the real coin coming from the deluders pocket swept across the voters vision and in a major degree swept away the once audible voice of public protest and exposed it for once at least to the stigma of being unsound—unstable.

Was the chink of the dollar a reality from the voters own pocket? What! Can public opinion be bought? Hands up for this sickening system! We pause dismayed for if so, public opinion, sir, come now, what value has it?

Let us still hope for the best, but if public giants deliberately grew beards by the sheltering of moral vermin, let us not fear to push a finger through the shaggy locks and give them a sharp pull for if we cannot reach the giant and control him by public sentiment, then misled public thought must be corrected through the giant by individual leverage. It is not human! Will it not therefore steady itself on the brink of deceitful rum and invite correction? It certainly will and on this assurance we gather courage to pursue our own thoughts on the forcible whims of it.

Calling on public opinion for an adjustment of public wrongs we fear to ask you for an instance where it is based right and sanctioned wrong without reason. We ourselves utterly despise such cases in the making, but afterward we gladly take advantage of the situation to back up our claim that public opinion, personified is an ever and inconsistent creature as our own insignificant self. Here's a letter to hand. A short while ago (by this letter to the Mail) we were brought to a private mental review of

Mr. Morne's political career.

Mr. Morne's political career, which by the way, has not been altogether a successful one. That is to say the public generally, has been against him, and yet, view his record as you will—go search for and bring in every bit of damaging evidence you can lay hands on—and the verdict of an impartial jury must be that his only public crime is the development of a superior intelligence.

That he is misunderstood is quite certain. One flash of close thinking reveals the fact that the aims of local argument lies in evading the point at issue and seeking to contound logic by an overflow of Billingsgate and random remarks, prejudice, not reason, modern bunkum, not logic, are the ever ready foes of concrete intelligence and modern public opinion to a major extent falling to see the fast entwining cause of local yellow journalism reveals in the nothingness and void of unthinkably foolish remarks on the (I doubt not) well intentioned "Greenpond Letter." It certainly must be very gratifying both to Mr. Morne and his many friends to find his avowed foes paying him such a high compliment. They seize upon one little incident, and harp upon it continually. On the face of it there is invariable proof that this is the very worst they know of him. I congratulate him most heartily and thank him for another link in the chain of proof that if public opinion WAS it is not NOW any guarantee of right.

I well remember when the Great War was in progress we grew tense, laboured hard mentally and cursed the German mind for gross misunderstanding of human sentiments. We blamed not the common mind but its teachers. So here we adopt the same attitude and emphatically censure and condemn the teachings of a section of the local press that stoops to anything and stoops at nothing to accomplish its aims, vile or otherwise.

The trumpeting of those papers contains proof reading of a dearth of sound argument, but what it lacks in reason it makes good by shameless persistency and large type. It catches the common mind in a balance between education and illiteracy, generally underrating the centre of mental poise and social gravity and completes its power from the ranks of the educated who carry an axe to grind.

Perhaps we speak plain, but we know we speak the truth. If persistency in misrepresentation and shameful deceit is to continue as a foe to economy, progress and sound legislation we earnestly believe it to be somebody's duty to persist in sharp logic to combat it.

Yours truly,

Canada Increases Newsprint Output.

DOMINION ALONE TURNS OUT 4248 TONS DAILY.

"The growing importance of newsprint manufacturing as a basic industry in Canada has been widely discussed recently in connection with the recent transfer from Belgium to Canada of control of the Belgo Paper Company, Ltd., by the incorporation of a new company known as the Belgo-Canadian Paper Co., Ltd. Newsprint production is not only of vast economical importance to Canada, but is also of extreme interest to the United States, for with each succeeding year that country becomes more dependent upon the dominion for its newsprint paper. Last year Canada supplied the United States with approximately 900,000 tons of newsprint, representing more than 35 per cent. of the newsprint consumed there. Consumption of this product in the United States increases by approximately five per cent. every year, and on the basis of last year's consumption, this would result in an increase of approximately 120,000 in 1923," says the Toronto Globe.

"To meet increases in consumption statistics show that the United States relies upon Canada, almost entirely, inasmuch as production in the former country has, in the best opinion reached very nearly its maximum. The result is that the volume of production in Canada is rapidly overtaking that of the United States, and service bureau of New York has published an interesting table showing daily capacity of principal newsprint mills in both countries. The following table, which installations nearing completion, shows all principal Canadian plants, with daily capacity, as well as the leading mills in the United States.

Mark Historic Spot.

FRENCH FORTIFICATION TO BE PRESERVED.

The major portion of the 90 acres of land on which stood the famous French fortification of Louisburg, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, has been placed under the control of the Canadian National Parks Branch, Department of the Interior, a movement which has been in contemplation for some time.

At the first meeting of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, Fort Louisburg was recommended to the Department of the Interior as one of the historic sites of national importance to which immediate attention should be directed, and negotiations were instituted to obtain control of the lands. The total destruction of the fort by the British in 1760 created a stony desolation, which has lasted to our own times.

Of the historic events connected with Louisburg the student of history, or even the average graduate of the public schools of Canada, will need less reminding than of any other historic place, with the possible exception of Quebec. As with the siege of Quebec, Gen. Wolfe's name is immortally connected with Louisburg, and for all time the teachers and children of the Dominion will thrill to the story of that intrepid soldier boasting the surf of the rockbound coast of Cape Breton "came in hand," and trusting to the fortunes of war and the gallant men behind him to win the prize of victory or to meet the cost of defeat.

At Louisburg the French had built a massive fortress after the system of Vauban and, according to Parliament, costing not less than $2,000,000. By fortifying Isle Royale (Cape Breton) they intended to guard the entrance to the St. Lawrence and conserve their possession of one of the fairest colonial empires the world had ever seen. They wished also to have a convenient base of operations for the capture, at a later date, of the lost Acadia. Their new citadel they called the "Danquerque of America."

Under the treaty of Utrecht, April 11, 1713, which closed the war between the British and French, without removing its causes, it was agreed that Hudson Bay, Newfoundland and Acadia, "according to its ancient limits" should belong to Britain, while Isle Royale and the islands of the St. Lawrence should still be retained by France. But no one regarded this settlement as satisfactory or permanent, and least of all the French, whose territories stretched from the St. Lawrence to the mouth of the Mississippi through the backlands of the continent. At the gateway of Canada they saw a rock-bound harbor difficult to access and easy to defend. There they built their military stronghold. They tried to induce the Acadians to settle in its neighborhood, but those industrious freemen had tolled too hard to make their lands productive to welcome another heifer, and the proposed migration was a failure.

In the year 1717, the building of the fort was commenced from the plans of Sieur Verville, the engineer sent out from France for the purpose, and the work was not finished till 1740. Five years later, in 1745, the citadel was besieged by the New England forces, led by Col. Pepperell with Commander Warren of the King's navy in charge of the naval forces, and opposed by the French Governor, Du Chambon, and Captains "Corsair" Morpatin and de Thierry. The siege ended after a struggle which lasted 47 days in the capitulation of the French defenders, Vinegar for Long Life.

Is there any connection between vinegar-making and longevity? "If you want to live to a ripe old age be a vinegar-maker," said one member of a vinegar manufacturing firm. The abnormal longevity of the employees of other firms which produce vinegars, sauces, and condiments confirm the statement in a remarkable manner.

In some instances the workmen engaged in the distilling of vinegar have been in the service of their respective firms for between sixty and seventy years.

Our Weekly Market Report.

Codfish—The exports this week totalled 11,620 quintals as follows:— From Outports—By schr. Donald II, from W. T. Hollett and E. M. Hollett, Burn, 11,620 quintals to Oporto.

From St. John's—By schr. Frank Adams, 3,000 qts. to Oporto, from C. F. Bennett, Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., and Bowring Bros., Ltd. By schr. Eliza Rodway, 3,000 qts. also to Oporto from James Baird, Ltd. By S.S. Rosalind 1,448 qts. from Bains Johnston & Co. Bowring Bros., Ltd., Harvey & Co., Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., H. Morris, J. Roster, E. J. Sanson, and F. Woodman to New York for transhipment to the West Indies. The Oporto market again holds heavy stock of 36,443 qts. of Nfld. fish and 32,284 qts. of Norwegian. Our weekly consumption is 2,400 and Norwegian 3,600. The "General Ironsides" and "Nellie Walters" will enter this week.

Cod Liver Oil—The Norwegian codfishery is now closed for this year and full particulars will be available shortly. The catch of cod is over 50 million, as against about 47 million fish last year. The latest returns to end of May show that the following catch and yield of oil during the past five years which will give refiners every opportunity of comparison.

Table with 2 columns: Catch of Cod, Yield of Oil. Rows: 1919-26 million, 32,866 Brils; 1920-33, 49,997; 1921-37, 54,468; 1922-45, 76,000; 1923-44, 77,267.

It is plain to all that the large yield of oil during the past two years has created an oversupply and has depressed prices below normal values.

Cod Oil—The S.S. Rosalind took out 6,520 gallons to New York last trip from Job Bros. & Co. There is no improvement in the market and the new Norwegian oil being the product of a large catch of 51,700,000 is now coming on the New York and Boston markets in large quantity, which tends to keep down the price of both cod oil and cod liver oil. It is reported that there will be better prices offered later in the season.

Sugar—The Raw Sugar market was very unsettled the past week in New York. It dropped three-quarters of a cent for futures, and two days advanced to the old point again. The "Refined" market, however, kept steady and has not changed, the New York price holding at $9.75 to $9.90 per 100 lbs., as against 10.70 in Montreal. The S.S. Rosalind brought in 307 barrels this week and the S.S. Canadian Sapper 82 barrels of white granulated. The local price is $10.75. There is heavy consumption as usual.

Canada's Halibut Fishery

A convention designed to secure the preservation of the halibut fishery of the Northern Pacific Ocean which is being rapidly depleted by overfishing has been signed by Canada and the United States. By this convention a closed season of the halibut fishery is established from November 15th, to February 15th of each year, and both countries have arranged to provide penalties for violators of this regulation. The closed season will continue from year to year until it is modified or suspended by joint agreement.

This treaty comes as the result of a resolution formally adopted by the Executive of the Canadian Fisheries Association which directed the attention of the Government to the serious damage being wrought to Canada's halibut fishery in the North Pacific and suggested the only drastic remedy possible. The treaty between the two countries followed this being incidentally pointed out as the first occasion of direct diplomatic intercourse between the Dominion and the Republic, and probably creating a precedent in this regard.

The halibut is an important fish to Canada, ranking fourth in value among all Canadian sea fish according to the last season's catch. For years the catch has been increasing in volume both on the part of American and Canadian fishermen. The Canadian catch in 1917 amounted to 140,024 cwt., valued at $2,666,335; in 1918, 207,119 cwt., worth $5,490,286; in 1919, 243,449 cwt., worth $5,119,842; in 1920, 282,726 cwt., worth $4,112,942; whilst in 1922 this fish had a value of $2,910,492 and a volume of 301,584 cwt.

Both United States and Canadian fishermen take their toll of the Northern Pacific waters, where the halibut, once considered inexhaustible, is rapidly proving to be not so. This fishing has as a rule, continued every year during the spawning season, which corresponds with the period which has been declared closed. Since the waters are international, being beyond the three mile limit, neither country can actually prohibit the fishing, but will achieve the same end by forbidding the landing during the closed period of halibut at Canadian and United States ports.

The halibut is a very slow maturing fish, taking an average of twelve years to develop to breeding age, when it starts spawning in the waters

at this season in American. There is no "carry over" and the crop is short, therefore prices are not likely to decline.

Molasses—The market remains quiet and there is no change in values. The Mtd. schomers John W. Miller, Herbert Fearn, and R. J. Dale are now at Barbadoes and will take cargoes and the Sunset Glow, Inspiration and Hesper are on the way up. The quantity landed here since New Year, mostly new crop, is about 4,580 puncheons, as against 3,320 and of June last year. The quotation here is still 90 cents for Fancy in the puncheon and 80 for Choice per gallon, with an additional 2 cents per gallon when in tonnes and 5 cents when in barrels.

Potatoes—There is no change in the market and prices remain the same as quoted last week. There are large supplies in the city at present, imported mostly from Charlottetown and selling at the wholesale depots at $2.50 to $2.40 per 90 lb. sack. There are no home-grown offerings just now. The importation was heavy again this week and consisted of 1,707 sacks from Charlottetown to different importers. The S.S. Manoa from Montreal also brought large consignments, which will be the last of the kind for the season.

Hay—The latest cablegrams from Charlottetown, P.E.I. are not quoting hay any lower. This is contrary to expectation and the forecast made a few weeks ago for July prices. It is believed that the recent forest fires in Canada together with the adverse weather conditions are the factors that have arrested the decline and given strength to the market. It is said that a considerable portion of the hay acreage has been destroyed by the fires. The local price is $34 to $36 per short ton of 2,000 lbs. The S.S. Canadian Sapper brought in 993 bales this week. The outlook for the home crop looks bad owing to cold weather.

Oats—The market is weak but not quotably lower. Last week's prices are unchanged, viz., Mixed $3.70 to $3.80, White, $3.50 to $3.60, and Black $4 to $4.20 per sack of four bushels. There is a fair supply in the local market which is being kept up by every steamship arrival down the St. Lawrence. This week the S.S. Canadian Sapper from Montreal and Charlottetown brought in 2,507 sacks. There is an improved export demand at Montreal this week, and at Port William large orders for No. 2 Canadian Western were going on board at 61 cents per bushel.

of the Northern Pacific, off Prince Rupert in British Columbia, far out to sea. Once developed to breeding age, it is believed to be the most long-lived of fish, instances of halibut spawning to a century being known, while some experts claim it lives as long as two hundred years. With a fish capable of reproduction to such an advanced age, it is clear that the agreement of a closed season during spawning time will preserve these rich fishing grounds in their fertility forever. Though the Canadian catch is a substantial one there is clearly an opening for a greater exploration of the Dominion's part of the halibut fishing grounds directly off its coast. The greater volume of the Canadian catch is consumed by the domestic market, and in the last fiscal year only 68,369 cwt., worth $354,989 was exported to the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. So far, so good did Canada's catch fall of satisfying the domestic market that it was found necessary to import 2,608 cwt., worth $195,416 from the United States, Alaska and Newfoundland.

Stradivari's Secret. The reported discovery of the secret of the old Italian violin varnish used by Stradivari recalls the one-time interest displayed by violin collectors, both connoisseurs and amateurs. The professional, as a rule, denied in public that there was any such secret, but not seldom made it the subject of his private dreams. The Italians certainly displayed great care over the drying of newly-varnished instruments in the sun. A maker wrote to Galileo in 1588 from Cremona apologizing for delay in sending a promised violin. "It cannot," he said, "be brought to perfection without the strong heat of the sun." In those days, of course, oil-varnish was used—a method that was generally abandoned after the eighteenth century.

Lunenburg Catch Less Than Half of 1922.

25,000 QUINTALS OF LAST YEAR'S CATCH TO BE EXPORTED.

The chief item of interest with respect to the fishing industry to-day is the fact that the Lunenburg vessels are all in from their second trip and that the total catch this time amounts to 34,000 quintals, as against 75,000 on the same trip last year. The total catch for the two trips is about 54,000 quintals against 150,000 last year, or quite a bit less than half the quantity caught up to the same time last year. All of the present year's first-trip catch is still in the fisherman's hands, however, and there is probably 25,000 quintals of last year's fish in exporters' hands. Even with this carryover, the stocks of fish to be marketed are considerably smaller than they were a year ago. Such a condition, under other circumstances, would be a bullish factor; and of course even as it is, this relative shortage no doubt keeps the market from being in a weaker position than it is; but the condition of the foreign market is the determining factor in fish prices and it is a fact that conditions in the foreign market are very different from what they were a year ago. Last year there was a good demand, whereas now the markets are all over-supplied and the demand is poor as a consequence. The fishermen talk $6.50 to $7.00 but exporters think that the market conditions and prospects do not warrant more than $5.00. With so wide a divergence in views the prospects are that the fish will be held back for a few weeks awaiting developments.

There has been no improvement whatever in the foreign markets during the past fortnight. Jamaica is still filled up with consignments from Newfoundland, so that orders coming to Halifax are very limited. Further heavy shipments have been made to Porto Rico on consignment, and that market is very weak, to-day's prices barely netting $5.00 per quintal. There is some new demand from Cuba, but the quantity shipped to Havana is too great for that market's requirements, so that values have broken and the price there to-day is barely $5.00. There has been no change in the European situation, which does not particularly interest Nova Scotia exporters, upon from the reflex it has on our markets. No improvement is reported from Brazil, whose exchange remains at the very low level reported in last issue; there is therefore practically nothing going to Brazil.—Maritime Merchant, June 21st, 1923.

The S.S. Ranger and Sagona en route to Labrador, arrived in port within the last few days, and the majority of our fishermen have now departed on their voyage. We trust that they all will be successful in securing a good catch. By to-morrow morning's train a number of men from this District will leave for Grand Lake, or vicinity, where they will be engaged for the summer. This will help to relieve the situation of the unemployed quite a bit.

S.A. Officers Rideout and Thistle went out by Monday morning's train to attend the final Farewell Service of their Leader for Newfoundland, Col. Martin, also Mrs. Martin and son. With regret we chronicle the death of Mr. John Yetman, a resident of the South Side. He had been ill for three weeks, but the thought that the end was so near, was not at all entertained by his family and friends, and his passing, which occurred on Sunday evening, is a sad blow to the family. Deceased was in his sixty-second year, and leaves a wife, seven children, 4 sons and 3 daughters. Mr. Josiah Yetman, Foreman of the Marine Railway Dock, is a brother; also Messrs. Jas. and Moses Yetman of the South Side. Miss Stella Yetman, a daughter of deceased, who had been teaching school at Harbour Buffett, arrived home on Friday, just in time to see her father alive. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and was largely attended, services being held at St. Peter's Church, South Side. Rev. W. E. B. Cracknell performed the last sad rites. To the sorrowing family the sympathy of the community goes out.

The funeral of the late Mr. John St. John, who was drowned at Grand Falls last week, took place from the Riverhead on Sunday afternoon to the Cathedral, interment being made in Regatta Notes.

It is a pity that the delightful water of Quidi Vidi Lake and its surrounding beautiful surroundings are not more availed of by our amusement seekers than they are at present. "There is not in the wide world as valley so sweet as the vale of Avoca, where the bright waters meet," which was thus depicted of a notable tourist resort in the Emerald Isle, we can lay claim as any day to approaching its attractions in the exquisite lake of Quidi Vidi and the vale in which it nestles.

An attempt in this direction was made at one time by the members of the Academia Boat Club who placed thereon for their use and enjoyment, in addition to their regular racing and practice gigs, a number of small but substantial pleasure row boats, whilst there were also two or three privately owned sailing yachts of members who tendered these freely to the disposal of pleasure seekers who enjoyed this form of recreation upon the lake.

These row boats were launched from the club house in the early summer and then on any day or evening during the season were available for use by those who wished to utilize their leisure moments of the morning, afternoon or night. Many a time and oft lady companions would be invited to join in the pleasure thus afforded, and so till shortly after the races when the summer began to decline quite a number of the members and the fair sex would assemble there on the lovely summer evenings to participate in a row upon the waters.

One of the sail boats, called the Wanda, was owned by the late Tom Lamb, who was Secretary of the Academia in its most flourishing days. Being a native of Placentia Bay, he was naturally from his boyhood days, an adept at handling the ropes, the rudder and the sails. In his earlier days around the lake he generally had as his guests many of the youth and beauty of the city, for he was free in his invitations to members and all lady friends to join him in those little welcome pleasure trips when the breeze upon the waters was sufficient to allow the Wanda to disport thereon.

It was not necessary at all times to "wait for the moonlight to shine over the waters and then take your true love out for a sail," as almost any other evening in June, July or August with a gentle ripple on the lake whether in the gloaming or beneath the early starlight, the pleasure of a sail was almost as equally enjoyable as when the moonbeams danced their best. Under the safe guidance of the genial Tom Lamb, the enjoyment was enhanced for he kept a steady hand and keen eye on the guiding ropes and sails leaving the handling of the helm to some other capable member of the club, who would beguile the undiverted moments in "whispering sweet nothings" to the lady beside him, in which capacity our City Councillor of later days, John Mullaly, functioned quite often and so favorably he became the favorite of the fair sex and the envy of the sterner.

Our volatile friend the Councillor, however, tho' always an enthusiastically interested in the success of the Annual Regatta as the average St. John's man never participated as a rower, tho' when the "Heather Belle," the famous Scotch racing gig, reported by the firm of J. & W. Stewart was in commission he practised her a week or so with the intention of rowing on Regatta day in the juvenile race, together with several other co-oper apprentice companions of his, but was obliged to abandon it having contracted an illness which placed him out of the running and obliged the crew to take Tom Stapleton in his place.

There were several spasmodic attempts on the part of other clubs to encourage the building and placing of these pleasure row and sailing boats on the pond, and for a few summers more or more of them were in commission, but the growing tendency of the rising generation for some more "lively, exciting and fascinating forms of diversion gradually lessened the interest in them till we arrived at the stage when we stood by the lake and saw only a few boats in the distance, and then to all real interest lost sight of it till another whole year passed by.

That eccentric Yankee genius, the late Professor Daniell, also tried his hand, in his palmy days, at attempting to cultivate a pleasure resort, in summer on the banks of Quidi Vidi, he went to the expense of erecting and equipping a structure which by a sliding scale of improvement arising out of contemplated pleasure and encouragement, he had hoped to model eventually to the equal of a Fairy Island or a Palm Beach resort, but most people failed to appreciate his beautifying, pleasure-creating effort and so he chopped it down one morning, removed it to the Octagon on Topsail Road, and there reconstructed a hen house out of its remains.

We are glad there is a disposition this year to place all the available boats possible on the lake. It is hoped this intention will be given the fullest encouragement, as unless we have at least four or five racers in each contest of the day, the enjoyment of patrons will be minimized considerably.

Next to President Hiscock, the public who love the races look up expect-

"It'll pay you to shop on the other side of the street."

ally to our foremost Regatta enthusiast, Jim Crotty to expend his usual share of racing energy towards getting these boats in commission, for they know and believe that if the genial and exuberant Jim do this, then we may be sure he will succeed according to all these lovers wishes.

A friend has passed along to us a couple of historic items of Regatta interest which we will be glad to turn to account in due course. For such the writer of these notes is grateful, and as no doubt there are other readers also who are able to refresh our memory in many ways on incidents from the days of the distant past to those of recent years, we should be glad to relate them in those notes from time to time, thanking them in advance for such contributions which will be looked after if addressed with the sender's name in confidence, as an assurance of reliability, to "Regatta Reviewer" care of Evening Telegram, Ltd.

Belvedere

Garden Party.

With summer weather really opening up there is every indication now that this event will be a tremendous success on Monday next, as every preparation humanly possible to make it so has been completed to that end. The magnificent band of Mt. Cashel have kindly consented to play for the Orphans' Day, and the full C.C.C. Band will also be in attendance by kind consent of the officer commanding. Tents and stalls galore are being erected and a field laid out for the football fixtures, while we understand that the gymnastic exercises of last year will be graciously repeated with many improvements. Great preparations are being made for the crowning finish--the Dance under the supervision of Mrs. Peddigrew. One special feature that might bear repetition is the Orphans' Table presided over by Mrs. J. J. Duff and Mrs. Thorburn. Here all friends and sympathizers may bring one or more little ones and give them a treat, and all donations for this table will be gratefully accepted at the Orphanage. Daintily-laden tea and refreshment tables, ice cream stalls, flower and candy stands, the usual side shows, as well as Mrs. O'Keefe's fish pond and a unique post office will be offered for sale and altogether we are safe in assuming an enjoyable time for everyone and a great success for the Belvedere Orphans' Garden Party.

Love, Romance and Adventure in "Conceit."

A MASTERFUL PRODUCTION SEEN AT THE NICKEL.

"Conceit," the latest Selznick Special now showing at the Nickel Theatre, the spectator is provided with a variety of action and scene that is decidedly enjoyable. The story is a spirited one of love, romance and adventure but with the conventional conspicuous by its absence. The locale ranges from the brilliant home of a millionaire to the humble abode of a backwoods trapper. But the setting of the trapper's home is provided with a natural background that is possessed of far greater grandeur than any man made dwelling. The characters range from society leaders to half-bred Indians and each is portrayed by players of ability and fame. Burton George directed and his work speaks for itself in the finished picture on the screen.

Special mention must be made of the excellent work done by W. B. Davidson, Hedda Hopper, Maurice Costello and Petty Hilburn, who have the principal roles. The photography settings and technical work are of the best.

"Conceit" was made from the Michael Phillips story, "The Fall of the Wilderness," and was produced under the direction of Burton George.

Obituary.

DORA SNOW.

On Wednesday, a bright young life in the person of Miss Dora Snow, passed away at the General Hospital. The deceased young lady, who was in her 23rd year, was in the best of health until a short time ago, when she suddenly was stricken with meningitis, which disease caused her death. This blow comes more severely to her sorrowing parent, brother and sister, owing to the death of her brother William, who was drowned with all the crew of the schooner Florence Howard, a few months ago. Although of late years not living with her mother, she still had her loving care and attendance up to the last hour, and from whose residence 33 Bambrick Street she was buried. The city in general joins in offering sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

Horse Killed

by Lightning.

A valuable horse owned by Mr. W. Ireland, a well known farmer of the Goulds Road, was killed by lightning during the storm of Wednesday night. When discovered in the field yesterday morning the carcass appeared as if it had been roasted, the hair having been completely burned off.

Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets and Powders

COULD NOT SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE.

Your Heart Tablets and Powders are a wonderful medicine, and I wish all to know what they have done for me. Before I commenced their use I could not lie on my left side at all nights, and had such a choking sensation in my throat that I could hardly breathe. I would have to sit up in bed nights my heart would beat so hard, and my left arm and side pained me very badly. My heart would also flutter terribly when I would go upstairs, and I would have smothering spells. I have felt none of these symptoms since using your Tablets and Powders, and can lie on my left side with ease. Please accept my gratitude for ever offering so good a medicine.
