THE PANGS OF REMORSE — OR — A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER VII.

The doctor, who had transferred his benevolent smile from the invalid on the bed to the invalid at the door, bowed with respectful dignity, and Lillian, flushing—a strange face, the slightest incident out of the ordinary, brought the rich blood to her pale face now—returned the bow and drew near with her basket.

"Are you better to-day, Mary?" she asked, stooping and taking her hand with the soft touch of loving pity.

"Yes, miss, I am better to-day," said the girl, casting a shy glance at the doctor. "I've been laughing at the gentleman, and it's done me good."

Lillian looked surprised, and raised her large sad eyes to the doctor's face.

"Laughing!" she said; "at what, Mary?"

"At him," replied the girl, with a piteous archness. "He says I ain't a-going to die, but that he's going to cure me, dear Miss Lillian."

And the dying girl laughed with hollow merriment.

Lillian looked pained and turned to the doctor.

He stepped to the door and standing there with his handsome, powerful face in the shadow watched the two.

Lillian laid the grapes she had brought upon a plate, with her own hands cut up the chicken, poured out a glass of wine, and with tender, gentle force got the girl to partake of them.

"Now the glass of wine," she said. "There, dear Mary, try and drink it."

As the girl stretched out her wasted hand the tall doctor came up to the bedside with two noiseless strides and calmly took it from Lillian's grasp.

"An excellent opportunity," he said with a smile. "We will take the first dose, Mary at once. There," and he shook a small powder into the wine, "drink it, slowly if you like. There is no taste and the wine is not spoiled."

The girl took it with that confidence which comes with patience, resignation and half a hundred other virtues to such dying ones, and sipped it leisurely.

Lillian, with cast-down eyes, waited till she had finished, removed the plates from the bed, whispered some words of comfort and consolation, and prepared for her next visit. She found the doctor outside, and, impelled

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N.S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."

Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

keynote of life in all its grades. May it bring her more happiness than it has brought me!"

At which kindly wish her eyes filled with tears again.

"Papa will see that I have been crying," she murmured, suddenly, "and it will grieve him. Alas, he is sad enough as it is!"

And, overcoming her weakness by a great effort, she went to her dressing room to bathe away the traces of her tears. She needed no light, the moon was flooding the room, and after she had smoothed back the thick, luxurious hair from her brow she turned to descend. It was impossible to leave the room without looking upon the night, so she stepped to the window.

The roses, the meadows beyond, the wood beyond that were flooded with the soft, beauty bestowing light.

"Lovely!" she exclaimed, "and how peaceful. Oh, if one were happy how the song would burst from the light, free lips, how the heart must leap at such a sight; but now my heart is dead and timeless, sighing over: 'Where is my master? Where has he gone?'"

She was about to turn—for the tears were coming again—when something came from out the shadows of the shrubs in the roseary on to the moonlit path. She stopped, looked closely and saw two figures—a man and a woman. The man's was that of the strange doctor whom she had met at the laborers' cottages, the woman's was—could she believe her eyes?—Kate Lucas!

She wiped her eyes, pressed almost onto the glass itself and watched them. They were standing talking earnestly.

Lillian could not see the woman's face, but the whole attitude betokened eagerness, docility, and an imploring manner so unlike Miss Lucas that she doubted the evidence of her own senses. Impossible! I could not be she! And yet the figure, the straight, upright bearing!

She wiped her eyes, pressed almost onto the glass itself and watched them. They were standing talking earnestly.

Lillian could not see the woman's face, but the whole attitude betokened eagerness, docility, and an imploring manner so unlike Miss Lucas that she doubted the evidence of her own senses. Impossible! I could not be she! And yet the figure, the straight, upright bearing!

"I—pardon me, sir—I know too little—I am ignorant. It may be as you say; I pray to Heaven, for poor Mary's sake, it may."

Then she moved on and entered the next cottage.

The new doctor had been here, too, and the old man whom she usually found groaning with rheumatic pain was up and sitting cheerfully by the fire.

The inmates of the next cottages had benefited by the new doctor's skill, and Lillian, full of the most glowing eulogies on the stranger, returned to the Hall.

Strangely enough, she could not have accounted for it herself even, she felt a repugnance to mention her meeting with the tall doctor, and sat silent and meditative as usual.

It was a beautiful night, the moonlight streaming through the painted windows of the hall and throwing fantastic shadows upon the huge slabs of mosaic.

Lillian, her head aching with the twinkling waxlight of the drawing room, opened the door quietly and passed on to the hall.

There the solitude, the ghostlike, mystic beauty of the moonlight charmed and fascinated her, and, walking to and fro noiselessly in her tiny, white satin boots, she went over the story of these last few sweet days and their dreadful climax.

She shuddered whenever her memory pictured that handsome, grave, mournful face with all its youth erased by the shameful, soul-staining scar!

And he had suffered all this for her, and she would never see him again; a bitter thought enough, and so overpowering that with a low cry she stepped aside and hid her tears even from the moonlight behind a statue.

As she did so, scarcely had she reached the shadow, than a light footstep, almost as noiseless as her own had been, sounded near her.

Fearing that one of the servants might find her and see her tears, she drew yet farther back and waited for the owner to pass.

A dark figure, wrapped up almost to the pitch of disguise, sped lightly by her, and opening the large door with evidently a practiced hand, for the lock gave no sound, and the hinges that usually creaked when they revolved were dumb, passed out.

Lillian's curiosity was excited for the moment. Who could it be? One of the maids on her way to meet some young lover who had arranged a moonlight assignation?

She thought over the long list, and judging by what little she knew of them all, could fix none of them as likely to steal out of the front entrance with such confidence.

"Ah, well, poor girl," she sighed, "love is master of us all; it is the

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

No Dirty Streets There

Herbert Charles Dew, aged 38, a company director, of Knatchbull road, Camberwell, S.E., who said he was one of the largest ratepayers in the borough, was fined 10s. at Lambeth, recently, for disorderly behaviour.

A constable said Dew was standing on the footway at Denmark Hill, eating cherries and throwing the stones on the pavement. Pointing out that the stones were dangerous to pedestrians, the constable asked Dew to remove them, but he refused and was eventually arrested.

Mr. Rooth told Dew he was overwhelmed with the sense of his own importance. Any of those stones might have caused a person passing to fall and break a leg.

Monkeys Brush Their Teeth

Fish that climb trees, monkeys that brush their teeth after every meal, and birds that sleep upside down are some of the strange creatures discovered in the Malay peninsula by Carver Wells, an explorer. He has just returned from six years of adventure and amazing discovery in the jungles.

Another funny freak of this odd part of the world is a fish that flirts. It is the only swimming animal known to have a real wink. Then, too, there is a live teddy bear, 15 inches high, and a deer half that high, which would fit in a coat pocket.

Electricity May Supply Unlimited Light, Heat and Food

BUT GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF POWER SYSTEMS WOULD CURB DEVELOPMENT.

"If electrical development and scientific research proceed at their present rate, light may become so cheap that it will be used universally, thus abolishing night, electric heat may be derived directly from the sun or the interior of the earth, so that winter will no longer hamper mankind, and food may be made from its chemical elements, thus averting all danger of famine," said General Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, in an address on "The Future of National Electric Service" recently before the convention of the Southwestern Public Service Association in Houston, Texas, U.S.A.

"But," averred General Tripp, "if the government should undertake to own and operate the electric power systems, the forces that cause the adoption of revolutionary discoveries would be weakened, and progress would become almost at a standstill."

"The conceptions of the imagination, scientific or speculative, are always interesting," said Mr. Tripp. "Jules Verne foresaw the submarine, H. G. Wells the aeroplane, and Kipling the dirigible air service long before these things became realities. Bellamy, in his famous book, 'Looking Backward,' described a system of bringing music and education into the home which closely resembles radio broadcasting."

"Following the lead of these eminent writers, I, too, am going to risk mentioning one or two future possibilities in the electric field, and I shall indulge in nothing more extravagant than the examples I have just cited were thought to be in their time."

"The imagination can conceive of a cold light obtained by activating paint on walls by radio waves."

"Electrical processes of producing food from the nitrogen of the air or other substances may rescue civilization from sinking to the economic level of Asiatic countries."

"The production of electricity direct from the heat of the sun or the interior of the earth may, by the elimination of the wasteful steam engine, solve the heating problem of the future."

"If electrical science has these great possibilities for future discoveries, what shall be our national policy toward it?"

"To the rational mind the question is not, do we want large organizations to carry on electrical development, but what kind of large organizations do we want?"

"Electrical development took place in the United States, rather than in Europe, because the driving force of private initiative in the United States was not throttled by the policy of government ownership of the public utilities."

"There is nothing in history that teaches us nor in human nature which warrants a hope that government organizations will or can advance into new fields of science and industry with the smallest part of the vigor and enterprise of private capital, which adventure in the hope of gain. If, through a misconception of the relative importance of rates and returns as compared with progress, the march of National Electric Service is retarded by the dead hand of bureaucracy, I believe a future generation will charge a great mistake against this one."

Autos Outnumber Phones

There are now 2,000,000 more motor cars than telephones in use in the United States, according to statistics recently announced by the Western Electric Company. A census by this company shows 17,740,236 motor cars in operation, as compared with 15,769,454 telephones, or 100 motor cars for every 86 telephones in the United States.

In France the proportion is even more startling. There the latest figures show 573,967 motor cars in operation compared with 524,532 telephones, or 100 motor cars to every 81 telephones.

Radon-Rarer Than Radium

A new substance, radon, has been discovered, which costs $5,000,000 an ounce. Although it is the most expensive substance in the world, its use will make the treatment of cancer cheaper. It is a gaseous emanation of radium and will be cheaper to use than radium because it is 160,000 times as active. From $25 to $50 worth of it, explains Dr. Charles H. Vioi of Pittsburgh, will do the same work as from $2000 to $4000 worth of radium. Radon is put up in tiny glass "seeds."

35 Killed and Many Injured in Motion Picture Theatre Fire

Fourteen Candidates Lost Their Deposit in N. S. Elections--Cancer is Declared Curable by British Surgeon--Earl Haig Arrived at Quebec Yesterday.

LIVES LOST IN MOTION PICTURE HOUSE FIRE.

KANSAS CITY, June 26. An indefinite number of persons, probably 35, were killed, and scores were injured, when an explosion, followed by fire, destroyed the Gillis Theatre, a burlesque house, here last night. An audience of about one hundred was viewing motion pictures. Hours after the destruction of the five storey theatre building to-day no definite estimate of the number of dead could be made, although police and fire officials said they believed from 30 to 35 of the hundred or more persons in the theatre and restaurants and stores of the building had been trapped in the debris. Firemen to-day organized a volunteer party of 100 men to search the smouldering wreckage for bodies. They predicted it would take many hours of digging before an accurate appraisal of the casualties could be made. The explosion came at 11 o'clock. Flames enveloped the structure almost immediately following the blast and the roof and floors of the ancient building collapsed.

GIANT RUM SYNDICATE DISCOVERED.

BANGOR, Maine, June 28. A rum syndicate, backed by millions of dollars at the command of British and French financiers and operating in the United States, is revealed in the ship's papers of the schr. Cherie, it is disclosed. She was seized off the Maine Coast with half-million cargo of high grade liquor which is now under guard in the rum room of the Federal building here. The names of the French and British liquor owners are in the hands of Government officials.

FRENCH POSTAL STRIKERS GO BACK.

PARIS, June 28. Unanimous decision was reached last night by the Postal Federation that its members, who went on strike yesterday, for payment of a bonus due them by the Government, should return to work to-day.

CANCER CURABLE.

HEGGINA, June 28. Cancer, dependent upon its location, is absolutely curable, provided treatment is applied anatomically in the early stages, H. W. Carson, senior surgeon of the Prince of Wales General Hospital, London, Eng., declared to-day at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

THE UPHEAVAL IN NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX, June 28. Nova Scotia found itself this morning in the hands of a Conservative administration, elected for the first time in forty-three years, while the Liberal forces, which had wielded uninterrupted power during that period, found themselves with but three sure representatives in an Assembly of 43 as a result of the most astonishing political upheaval recorded in Nova Scotia since confederation achieved at the polls in yesterday's provincial general elections. The Liberal Government went down with only three survivors, and Premier Armstrong went down with it, when Shelburne County, which he contested, returned two Conservative members with safe majorities. Only one Liberal member of the last House was returned, Hon. William Chisholm, Minister of Works and Mines, who, with his colleague, was elected in Antigonish County, Alister McLeod, a new comer to the political field, was elected in Victoria County. Labor was obliterated and eight of the candidates are believed to have lost their deposits. In this connection it may be noted that Archibald Terris, Labor member of the last House, was returned in Cumberland County, where he ran under the endorsement of the Conservative Party. Great enthusiasm greeted the victory of the Conservatives throughout the Province wherever returns were publicly posted, but the celebration was greatly curtailed and moderated by a drizzling downpour of rain that started early in the afternoon and continued until midnight, especially in Halifax where the newspapers had made elaborate arrangements for showing returns on screens. The storm, which was accompanied in some districts by thunder and lightning, rendered quick transmission of returns difficult or impossible and telegraph companies, but the result was not in doubt after eleven o'clock.

DEFICIT OF CANADA'S MERCHANT MARINE.

OTTAWA, June 28. The House of Commons last night voted $668,000 to cover the deficits in operation and capital expenditure of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine for the present fiscal year. There was no discussion.

SAYS ZEPPELINS COULD FLY ACROSS POLE.

BERLIN, June 28. It is the opinion of Dr. Hugh Ecketer, director of the zeppelin works, that zeppelin airships as they are now constructed could fly across the North Pole.

GRENFELL GONE NORTH ON BOWDOIN.

SYDNEY, June 28. Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, famous Labrador missionary, will go to Battle Harbor, Labrador, as a passenger on the MacMillan exploration ship Bowdoin, when she sails from here to-morrow. Dr. Grenfell had intended travelling by way of Newfoundland but accepted Commander MacMillan's invitation. The Peary will follow the Bowdoin several days later, being delayed here for certain repairs.

FOURTEEN CANDIDATES LOST THEIR DEPOSIT.

HALIFAX, June 28. Six Government candidates and eight Labor lost their deposits in yesterday's election. The Liberals who failed to obtain half the number of votes scored by their lowest successful opponents were, M. J. Archibald and Frank Reynolds, in Colchester; Mayor James McConnell and Dr. Dan MacDonald, in Cape Breton centre; and James L. MacKinnon and D. C. MacDonald in Cape Breton East. The Labor candidates losing their deposits were, A. L. Breen, Robert Daw and Walter Mosher, in Halifax; J. G. Calkin, William Murphy and James White in Pictou; and Emerson Campbell and Joseph Steel, ex M.P., in Cape Breton Centre. With sixteen polls to hear from in Halifax, Attorney General Hao, W. J. O'Hearn was within forty-five votes of losing his deposit.

ALBERTA MINERS TAKE STRIKE VOTE.

EDMONTON, June 28. Four hundred miners employed in five Edmonton districts were to-day taking a strike vote against an agreement calling for a reduction in wages of one dollar per day.

CAPITAL LEVY REJECTED.

PARIS, June 28. The Chamber of Deputies to-day rejected a Socialist proposal for a capital levy.

NINE DROWNED WHEN TUG SINKS.

QUEBEC, June 28. Nine men were drowned when the Tug Ocean King was rammed by the Canadian Pacific liner Marloch off the harbour shortly after seven o'clock to-night. The Ocean King, on her way to assist the Marloch to her pier, was struck amidships and almost cut in two by the impact and began to sink immediately. When the rushing water reached her boilers they exploded, there was a swirl of water, and the tug with all her crew had disappeared. The Ocean King was the property of the St. John Dry Dock Company, and was commanded by Captain Stevens.

PLAYING AT THE NICKEL MONDAY.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

"Oh, Billy Breeze, dear Billy Breeze, Blow away the rain clouds, please, Mr. Merry Sun please try To shine down from the big blue sky."

begged Little Miss Mousie as the dear old gentleman rabbit hopped out to the garage in the rear of his red-shingled house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street. You see, she was worried for fear nice Uncle Lucky would get the rheumatism in his pinky. But he wasn't. The plucky old fellow never worried about himself. Perhaps that was one reason why he was so healthy and wealthy and wise.

Just as he hopped into the garage with his old cotton umbrella, Mr. Merry Sun burst in with his glory through the clouds, sending golden sunshine over for a fine meadow.

"Well, that's just what the old gentleman bunny needs is a lovely world. Now a shower, then a flower. First a stalk and then a leaf, soon the grain within the sheaf," and with a cheery goodbye to the Old Red Rooster happy Uncle Lucky cleared the Lucky-noble out on Lettuce Avenue and turned into the Shady Forest. Following the Winding Trail in and out around the rocks and the bushes under the tall trees he came by and by, not so very far, to the Old Bramble Patch. There at the little gate in the white picket fence, his trademark umbrella in his paw, stood the bunny boy, his face all smiles and his pretty pink nose twinkling with delight. Hopping into the Lucky-mobile, he cuddled up to his kind bunny Uncle. With a wave of his paw to Lady Love, the little rabbit's mother, the dear old gentleman bunny hoiked the horn and started off. Up the Old Path sped the motor car and through the gate in the Old Rail Fence to the road that led to Rabbitville. Just in front of them rumbled the Billygoat Stagecoach, the Old Dog Driver on the front seat, a corn-cob pipe between his teeth and long whip in his right paw.

"Hold on!" he shouted turning around. "Don't frighten my Billygoats. And, besides, there are two timid passengers in the stagecoach, Timmy Meadowmouse and pretty Miss Fawn, Mr. Buck's youngest daughter, Go easy with the horn, Mr. Lucky Lethindfoot!"

"Give me room to pass by And I'll not blow my horn, I promise both Timmy And pretty Miss Fawn," answered obliging Uncle Lucky, as with a slight turn of the steering wheel, he passed the stagecoach and sped down the road.

Up the Old Path sped the motor car and through the ga-

Pretty soon, just a little while, he stopped before the Three-in-One Cent Store -- that wonderful shop to which all the furry and feathered folk in Rabbitland went to buy needles and pins, sugar and coffee in neat little tins. Hopping out with his bunny nephew, the dear old gentleman rabbit made his way to the basement to enquire of the Black Poodle Dog Salesman if he had a strong garden rake. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that, provided that you always do what Mother daily asks of you.

27-inch Eel in the Water Pipe

Trouble with the water pipes at the King George the Fifth Institute yesterday, led to an investigation, the result of which was that an eel, twenty-seven inches in length, was found dead in a two-inch pipe, supplying water to the building. From the appearance of the intruder it was apparent that it had been dead in the pipe for some time. As it seems hardly possible for the eel to have grown to such dimensions in the pipe, it would appear that it must have passed through the screen system at Windsor Lake, and it might be as well to have an examination made as soon as possible.

Rotary Luncheon

At the Rotary Luncheon on Thursday, the following address was delivered by Miss Ella Morris, Librarian at the House of Assembly:—
Mr. Chairman and Rotarians:

You, who have the encouragement of the tourist traffic so much at heart, will appreciate my embarrassment, when I am sometimes asked by visitors, "Have you a Public Library?" And when I answer "No, our Public Library was destroyed in the Great Fire," they again ask, "When did the fire occur?" I very reluctantly answer, "1892." This, indeed, is a reflection on our community. We should have a Public Library, and the number of its volumes should at least be equal to the population of the city.

I shall endeavour to cite for you some historical facts in connection with Libraries and Literary Clubs organized in St. John's in the years gone by: In 1810 there existed a Library—probably earlier; at least in 1809. In the years 1811 and 1812 the annual meetings of this Library were held in the Court House. The population of St. John's at this time was twelve thousand. In the year 1820 Simon Solomon, proprietor of the Free Mason's Tavern had placed therein, boxes where newspapers were kept for the perusal of his customers; and an apartment in his house was taken over for a public reading room. Records of 1822 disclose a Library meeting presided over by Dr. Carson. At this meeting, Chief Justice Hon. Francis Forbes was re-elected President, Thomas Brooking, Treasurer; and the committee consisted of Dr. Carson, Newman W. Hoyles, Robert Wakeham, James Clift. Chief Justice Forbes, it will be remembered, was the composer of "The Banks of Newfoundland." A report of this Library Committee dated 1833, states that "the price of shares, notwithstanding the number and value of the books in the library, continue at five pounds per share. In addition to this there is an annual subscription of one pound sterling. The number of shareholders is unlimited. A catalogue for the Library has been printed."

A report of the St. John's Library and Reading room, dated 1837, expressed satisfaction on the flourishing condition of the Organization. The number of volumes was 490 exclusive of reviews, and new books were being ordered from New York. The number of shareholders was stated to be 82, and a catalogue for the Library was printed. The Committee rejoiced at the reduction in newspaper stamp duty. Mr. John M. Brine was then secretary. The report of the following year continued to show satisfactory progress. An arrangement for the interchange of papers with the Halifax News Room had been made, and ninety volumes added to the library. The shareholders and subscribers now number one hundred and ten.

February 3rd, 1840 was a red letter day for the literary folks of St. John's. The first scientific lecture ever heard in the city was delivered by Mr. J. B. Juke—his subject being "Geology." Mr. Juke was afterwards "Geologist Royal." He was the author of "Excursions in Newfoundland" and "Geology of Newfoundland." The secretary of the committee on this occasion was Mr. Richard Barnes, who is recorded as having, in 1843, introduced the "Education Bill" into the House of Assembly. He was also the founder of the "Native Society."

In January, 1846, the Incorporated Society of Mechanics, founded a Library and Reading Room. Bishop Fleming presented the committee with 200 books. He, when a Priest, had been treasurer of the Society. Unfortunately, this splendid Library was burned in the great fire of 1846. Few amongst us, to-day, have had the intellectual treat afforded by the reading of the letter written by Bishop Fleming to Mr. Thomas Maher, President of the Mechanic's Society, on the occasion of the presentation of the first volumes of the library. The letter is, indeed, a classic, and I would like to present it for the perusal and benefit of the present generation. (The document was read).

In 1848 a new institution was organized, and held its first meeting. Mr. Kenneth McLea presided, and the orom was crowded. E. M. Archibald, Attorney General, was elected President, and Mr. Allan Fraser, Secretary. 600 books were ordered at a cost of one hundred and sixty pounds; many donations were received; and suitable apartments were rented in Brick House. The Institution formally opened on November 24th. Mr. Wheatley was appointed Librarian, and an address was presented to Governor Sir Gaspard LeMarchant, requesting him to become Patron, to which His Excellency sent the following reply:—

"It is with great pleasure I comply with your request, for I am satisfied I cannot more wisely, and, at the same time, more effectually promote the best interests of Newfoundland, than in lending my assistance to a Society, having for its objects the general spread of knowledge, and the social and intellectual improvement of the inhabitants. . . . increased advantages of education, happiness and wealth."

In 1849 a lecture was delivered by Doctor Joseph Shea, on Physiology. After this lecture, Attorney General Archibald addressed the audience, and spoke of the contemplated formation of the "Mechanic's Institute." A large number of those present subscribed to the new undertaking, and in the following year, 1850, the "Mechanic's Institute" was formed. Attorney General Archibald was elected President, and the committee consisted of Dr. Joseph Shea, Mr. John Kent, and Mr. Andrew Milroy. Mr. Allan Fraser was secretary. Shortly after, a most interesting lecture was delivered by Commissary Oliver Goldsmith, on "China"; on this occasion an all-illuminated map was used by the lecturer. The "Mechanic's Institute" must not be confused with the Incorporated Mechanic's Society which was founded in 1827, and which, two years hence, will celebrate its Centenary.

In the year 1852, the Annual Meeting of the St. John's Athenaeum took place, and with it were now amalgamated the St. John's Library and Reading room, the Young Men's Literary and Scientific Club, and the Mechanic's Institute. The secretary was Mr. D. W. Prowse. The foundation stone of the Athenaeum Building was laid in 1875. On this occasion, in the absence of the President, Hon. C. F. Bennett, Hon. Ambrose Shea opened the proceedings, and requested Sir Hugh Hoyles to lay the stone. The Hon. Mr. Shea traced the history of the work, and the result of the praiseworthy efforts of those lecturers who had devoted their talents to the public, and created a taste for literature which the building now being erected would foster and develop. It would also be an ornament to the city. Sir Hugh Hoyles congratulated those who had laboured for the success of the undertaking, and dwelt on the many advantages the community would derive from the Institution. Whilst many had given their aid, notably the Hon. Mr. Bennett, Sir Hugh felt that there was one who was deserving of special congratulation and thanks. He referred to the Rev. Moses Harvey, whose indefatigable labours both in lecturing and writing in regard to the Athenaeum, as well as by his wide diffusion of information outside the Colony, had done much to refute the propaganda of ignorance and prejudice which had so long prevailed with regard to the resources, climate, and characteristics of Newfoundland and its inhabitants. He it was who had given the biggest service to the community. Southcott, and the first meeting was held in 1879. The Reading room, Concert Hall, and Library were all steam heated, but had open fire places as well. The first lecture given in the new building was delivered by His Lordship Bishop Jones. His subject was "A Visit to the Holy Land." The Hall was crowded. The Lecture Hall had a seating capacity of one thousand. In 1883 the Rev. Dr. Harvey acquainted the committee that his literary work prevented him from taking an active part in the work of the Athenaeum, and declined reelection. In retiring, he said: "I have been so long connected with the Athenaeum that I have now fairly earned the privilege of retiring in favour of younger and abler members. I need not add that I shall feel deep interest in the prosperity of the Athenaeum." In the great fire of 1892, the Athenaeum perished. The late Mr. Wm. Frew considered it the greatest loss that the town had suffered through the fire. The committee obtained temporary rooms in the Seaman's Home, and on March 18th removed to Tobin's Building on the Beach. They were there when the Bank Crash occurred in December, 1894. In the winter of 1895 a collection was taken up by Mr. James Murray to help the Institution, and lectures were given. The report for the year says: "Many places have been visited, with no success in procuring rooms. An effort was made to procure land on Duckworth Street, but without success. Had this plan succeeded, we might have a Library at present, as nothing keeps an Institution together like owning a Hall." In the spring of 1896 the Athenaeum Club moved into they had the whole of the top flat and the rooms were bright and pleasant. However, things did not prosper, and from 1896 to 98, it was kept going with difficulty, and it was later closed. After the fire, the books had been donated by Publishing Houses and friends, and for this reason the Government of the day decided to take them over and add them to the Legislative Library, which was done on April 30, 1898.

In 1897 a course of Lectures was opened by Archbishop Howley. Mr. M. W. Furlong opened the course with a lecture on the "Last Leaf." Canon Brown, another lecturer, delivered a lecture on "Zogarth Aroon." In 1902 the "Public Library Act"

REGATTA COMMITTEE.
Weekly Meeting.
The weekly meeting of the Regatta Committee took place last night in the T.A. Armoury, with President Hiscock in the chair and a large attendance of members. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Capt. English, acting on the suggestion of the Committee at last meeting, visited the bottom of the pond in connection with the moving of the buoys further to the south, and in reporting back stated that this could be carried out, and all crews would have an equal chance of turning. Vice-President Higgins informed the meeting that the Parliamentary Committee, from England, would be leaving by the new steamer, "Caribou," on or about August 4th. Owing to the late sailing date it would be impossible for them to arrive here in time for the Regatta, and the extra provision made to invite the visitors for lunch on was abandoned.

The notice of motion relating to the rule governing the Senior Football Race was adopted unanimously last night. The rule now reads that any player registered with a team and playing either of the first two games, be permitted to row for his team in this race. It was felt that this rule would ensure that only the best footballers shall row in the race, as all the teams in the first games play their best men. A discussion as to the rule governing the Intermediate Race was given much thought and consideration, and the notice of motion laid on the table last week was withdrawn. As soon as the rules and conduct of the races are printed they will be distributed in public places for the information of all interested. It was decided that the rules as they now stand will be adhered to. President Hiscock reported that a deputation had called on His Excellency during the week, asking for his distinguished patronage at the Annual Regatta. His Excellency very graciously agreed to the Committee's wish, besides donating a silver cup for the crew making the quickest time on that day.

In response to a communication from M. L. Bartlett, as to Hickman's Mercantile crew, he is to be informed that bona fide checkers and clerks employed in wholesale and retail departments are eligible to row in this race. A publicity committee, consisting of Messrs. P. F. Collins, J. J. Lacey and E. Smith, was appointed. It was decided that the collectors begin work on Monday week, and it is to be hoped that they will receive a ready response from the public.

The meeting adjourned at 10:45 p.m.

HOLY CROSS TEAM PRESENTED WITH MEDALS.
An enjoyable evening was spent at Holy Cross Schools yesterday, when the football team, champions of the Nfld. Junior Football League, for the past two years, and owners of the first Higgins-Hunt trophy, were presented with medals from the League. Present besides Rev. Bro. Eagan and members of the team, were the Executive of the Junior League, and representatives from other teams, as well as many supporters.

In a short speech, explaining the reasons for the delay in the arrival of the medals, and referring to the splendid manner in which the champion team was handled by its manager, as well as the work itself, the President paid a tribute to the manner in which the victories were achieved, and hoped that the same spirit of good sportsmanship that exists amongst all the teams at the present time, would continue. The medals were then presented to the members of the team amidst much enthusiasm. Songs were rendered by Messrs. F. Neville, R. Owens and E. Jackman, and altogether an enjoyable evening was spent.

The Browning-Drake Circuit
EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

There are a number of new circuits which are known to a lot of the broadcast receiving fans and which a lot more are interested in. One of them is the so-called Browning-Drake circuit. This circuit is a one-stage neutralized radio-frequency amplifier plus a regenerative detector, in its simplest form. Audio-frequency amplification can be added, increasing the number of tubes to 4, or possibly an additional stage of radio-frequency amplification can be handled easily.

The antenna coil L consists of 15 turns of any size wire from No. 20 to No. 28 wound on a wooden form to rotate inside of the coil L1 which is the secondary of the antenna coupler and which consists of 60 turns of No. 24 wire wound on a 3/2-inch tube. The condenser C and C3 can both have a maximum capacity of .00025 mfd. Also coil L3 is similar to coil L1, but has a tap taken off at 15 turns from the bottom end of the coil. Coil L2 is arranged to rotate inside of the bottom of coil L3. L2 should consist of 20 turns of small wire. The coil L4 is the regeneration coil, feeding back into the top of coil L3. L4 should consist of 25 turns of rather small wire (No. 24 to No. 30) wound on a form having the same diameter as coil L3, and arranged to turn toward and away from coil L3.

The neutralizing condenser C1 can be either a regular "neutrodon" type of condenser or else one of the very small vernier type of variable condensers having a maximum capacity around 40 mmf.

The neutralizing method for adjusting the capacity of C1 is similar to that employed with any neutro-dyne type of receiver and it so well known, it needs no comment here.

When placed in operation if the detector tube will not regenerate or oscillate no matter how close the coupling between L3 and L4, reverse the leads to L4. They must be properly "piped" before the tube will oscillate.

At a later date we will give full constructional details for a receiver of this type. The above information is sufficient for those who have experimented with circuits to any extent.

CRICKET.
Holmes 815 Not Out—Highest Score Ever Made At Lord's.
(By H. J. HENLEY.)
Yorkshire were in an ideal position when they came to bat again at Lord's yesterday.

They were over 100 runs to the good with only one batsman out; they had plenty of time in front of them. In fact, they could have afforded to bat for the rest of the day—provided that the Middlesex bowlers did not get them out—and to have a whole day to spare in which to rest rid of Middlesex.

As a matter of fact, Yorkshire's new captain, A. W. Lupton, decided to declare the total at 538 for six—a declaration entirely with risk.

For the second day in the match Holmes was the man who mattered. And how much he mattered in the innings as a whole is shown by the fact that out of a total of 538 he claimed 315—the biggest score of his life, the biggest of the present season, the thirteenth highest obtained in the history of cricket, and the biggest ever made at Lord's.

105 Years Ago.
The highest innings previously made at Lord's was 278, by William Ward for M.C.C. against Norfolk, so long ago as 1820. Hendren, in 1922, gathered 277 at headquarters. But Holmes, without realizing that he had a chance of beating record—passed all "previous bests" with ease. He looked like going on for ever when the declaration was made.

Holmes batted over seven hours for his 315, and he was generally travelling at a good pace. There were times at which he did not time well—and curiously enough these came when he should have been thoroughly set.

And it was at these times that his scoring rate slowed up. For he was always eager for runs, and he has never showed more variety of stroke. He actually jumped out to hit!

The Middlesex bowling was never loose, except when Hearne bowled; the pitch was very fast and Holmes had to work for his runs.—Daily Mail.

OFFSIDE IN FOOTBALL.
New Rule Adopted—Throw-In Rule Also Changed.

PARIS—At the annual meeting of the International Football Board, held at the offices of the French Association Football Federation here, under the presidency of Mr. White (Scotland), two important decisions modifying the laws of the game were adopted.

The first altered the offside rule so that a player shall not be offside if two instead of three opposing players are between him and the opposing goal line. The second decision was that a player throwing in from touch must stand outside the line instead of with his feet thereon.

The delegates present were: Messrs. W. McKenna, W. Pickford, and F. J. Wall, for England; Messrs. White, Campbell and McDonnell for Scotland; Messrs. Thomas, Nicholls, and Robbins for Wales; Messrs. Bridge, Small, and Watson for Ireland; and M. Delaunay for France.—Reuter.

Hobbs, playing for Surrey against Essex at the Oval on Saturday, June 13th, scored his sixteenth century of the season and his 119th in first-class cricket.

He also reached his 1,000 runs, being the first batsman to accomplish the feat this season. He, however, was only managed to get there first, as Holmes when he went in to bat for Yorkshire required only 14. He, however, failed to make more than 10.

Hobbs appears to have an excellent chance of beating W. G. Grace's record of 128 hundreds in first-class cricket.

Monday's Big Feature at the Nickel
BEVERLY BAYNE IN "THE AGE OF INNOCENCE."

Where, oh where is that long-sought "Age of Innocence"? No other place than at the Nickel Theatre, where report has it that the screen adaptation of Edith Wharton's "best seller" of that name will begin a three days' run, on Monday.

Judging from Miss Wharton's reputation for authenticity, plus the fact that "The Age of Innocence" won the Pulitzer Prize in 1923, it is a safe bet that the photoplay, which was produced by Warner Bros., will finally answer the eternal quest for that almost forgotten commodity—innocence.

The disturbing element is none other than Delia Bayne, known to all movie fans, in the role of Countess Olenska, while Elliott Dexter, as Newland Archer, is the upright and noble young man. Willard Louis has been chosen to interpret the very interesting Cornelius Beaufort, collector of china and women. Edith Roberts, Mrs. Chas. G. Craig, Gertrude

TELLS FACTS OF SINKING CRUISER, BLACK PRINCE.

LONDON, June 16—One of the mysteries of the Battle of Jutland which has long been known to the Government, but has been kept from the public, has now been revealed by the German Commander Groos, in the fifth volume of the German Official Naval History of the War. General Groos tells how the British cruiser Black Prince joined the German fleet in the middle of that battle owing to a mistake made in signalling by the German searchlight, the German battleship, Thuringen recognized the identity of the Black Prince and immediately opened fire at short range with her full battery of ten heavy, 27 medium and 24 light guns. Three other battleships joined in the firing on the Black Prince, which soon was transformed into a glowing mass of scrap iron offering a most stupendous and terrible spectacle, as she drifted slowly down the line until an immense explosion sent all that remained of her to the bottom.

KARL HAIG UNVEILS IT—BEAUMONT HAMEL CEREMONY.

(Daily Mail, June 8th.)

Where once stood the village of Beaumont Hamel, scene of some of the fiercest fighting in the war, Field-Marshal Earl Haig to-day unveiled one of the most striking monuments erected to commemorate the deeds of the Army of the British Empire in the greatest war in history. It was the fine memorial to her dead, erected by Britain's oldest colony, Newfoundland, in the Newfoundland Park which the Government of that island has purchased and will preserve as a permanent reminder of the sacrifice of its sons.

Situated on the heights dominating the the River Ancho, the Newfoundland memorial is in the very heart of the "red" zone. From the rocks amid the old trenches, surmounted by the Caribou, the symbol of Newfoundland, the eye can see no fewer than 20 British war memorials.

Field-Marshal Earl Haig, who was accompanied by Marshal Fayolle, representing the French Army, was received by the Hon. J. R. Bennett, Colonial Secretary for Newfoundland, and by Lieutenant-General Sir Beauvoir de Lisle, who had just previously unveiled the memorial to the 29th Division, of which the Newfoundland Regiment formed part.

A guard of honour from the 29th Division, and one from the 43rd French Infantry—with their battle-scarred colours brought specially from the Army Museum at the Invalides—together with delegations representing the British Legion and a pathetic detachment of French ex-servicemen wearing the Medaille Militaire, the highest military decoration in France, and most of them minus a limb, were drawn up round the monument.

Mr. Bennett in an address stated that in Newfoundland Park 276 of the island's sons gave their lives for the common cause. Newfoundland, he said, lost 1,610 officers and men. The Royal Newfoundland Regiment developed a total strength of more than 9,000.

As In War Days:

Earl Haig, in unveiling the monument and throwing open to the public Newfoundland Park, with its trenches, dug-outs, and barbed wire left as they were when the last shot was fired, sketched in graphic language the record of the Newfoundland Regiment, and referred particularly to its sacrifice at Beaumont Hamel in July, 1916. He said:

We are here to unveil a memorial which will remind generations still unborn of the loyalty and courage of Newfoundland's men, and of the unity and strength of the mighty Empire which is our pride and our inheritance. These slopes were full of many of our best and bravest, are sacred to their memory.

Here your comrades died in the hope of that victory they would never see. To-day, that victory achieved, you set up in place where they died a monument to their faith and courage. Set up here, at Beaumont Hamel, it is curiously typical of those dogged and resolute qualities which the people of Newfoundland share in full measure with the other British peoples of the Empire.

A wreath of white lilies was placed at the foot of the memorial by Sir Mayson Beaton, a director of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co., Ltd., representing Lord Rothermere, who was unable to be present. The Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co., Ltd., had 60 of its staff killed in the war.

The ceremony was followed by a luncheon at the log cabin, erected entirely with logs brought from the forests of Newfoundland.

In a brief speech delivered in French Earl Haig struck a note that aroused the enthusiasm of the gathering when, turning to Marshal Fayolle, he said:

Marshal, an occasion such as this is simply another proof of the international solidarity which exists between France and Britain. We will never forget our friendship and alliance with France, and so long as our sons rest in French soil we will never withdraw from France the friendship of the British armies.

The Loss of the Schr. Florence Swyers

The captain and crew of the schr. Florence Swyers which was abandoned 45 miles off Cadiz on May 30th returned home yesterday by S.S. Newfoundland. The schooner left Oporto on May 28th for Alicante, and two days afterwards whilst in the vicinity of Cape St. Vincent she encountered a storm which caused her to leak. The crew started work at the pumps at 4 p.m. on the 28th, and continued their efforts up to 11 p.m. on the 30th when they were obliged to abandon ship. Ten minutes after the boats got away the vessel sank. After rowing all night the crew was picked up by a tannery catcher and taken into Rota, Spain, where the proprietors of the tannery plant, the principal business in the place, treated them with every kindness. From Rota, Capt. Pine and crew proceeded to Cadiz and from there to Gibraltar where they joined the Australian-Oriental liner Orana, from which they landed at Tilbury Docks on the Thames. Thence they proceeded by train to London and from there to Liverpool and joined the Newfoundland at home.

Obituary

MRS. DAVID PIKE.

On June 24th, there passed away at her home in St. Lawrence, after a brief illness, Edith, beloved wife of David Pike, at the age of 82. Mrs. Pike was well and favourably known in the district around her home, where for many years she had acted as a friend to all who were sick or in distress, irrespective of class or creed, never sparing herself by any means she could relieve pain or sorrow. She was a woman of deep religious conviction and her Christian character was an inspiration and an example to many. She leaves to mourn their sad loss her husband, one son and four daughters. Only two of her children reside in Newfoundland, Mrs. W. J. Clouston of St. John's, who was visiting her mother at the time of her death and Mrs. Cluett, of Belleoram. Those who have made homes abroad are, Philip of Western Canada, Mrs. Rose Bradbury of Halifax and Mrs. Blow of Gloucester. While always of a cheerful disposition, Mrs. Pike suffered many sad bereavements in her life, no less than four of her sons having been lost at sea. To the sorrowing husband and children, and to the many who will miss her tender ministrations sincere sympathy is extended.—1.—COM.

Thinks "Box Cart" Too Small

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I see by your valuable paper that some persons signing their name "Box Cart" writes concerning the work on Topsail Road. I am one of the men working on that road since it started, and know the amount of money spent on it. Mr. "Box Cart" better put on his glasses and see how much work has been done on that road. We are 150 hours at that job. We only make about 40 hours per week, and we have almost completed six miles of road work, such as ditching, fixing culverts, grading, and metalling the road, and watching him going out with his milk cart which he calls a Box Cart. I wonder if he got a chance to have his money on the job would he give value for his money? Is he aware that a box cart can back in and get a load of gravel when the motor truck has no room to do so? I wonder if "Box Cart" sore over some of his friends losing out with the Motor Association? Don't criticize us yet. We are not on the job long enough to know where you are taking your snapshots from. Give us a chance and don't knife us in the back. Remember we have to dig down to the bowels of the earth for that gravel which is going on that road, and swing a 7 1/2 lb. pick over our heads for a long 10 hours for $2.50. Now, "Box Cart" have a heart and keep your eye more on your Bible than the poor laborer.—Yours truly,

MAJESTIC NEXT WEEK.

Mr. and Mrs. James Borden, together with their son Stuart, a typical product of New York's fast-stepping youth are living the conventional society round of wealthy Long Islanders until Stuart's love affair with Betty Allen starts a vicious chain of events. Betty Allen, a very beautiful gold-digger, is working Stuart for all she can get, and when Stuart's father stops the boy's credit she gives him up without another thought. Stuart, on the contrary, is madly in love with her and refuses to acknowledge defeat.

Betty's loveliness has brought Mr. Borden, Sr., to her feet, and the father takes the son's place in her affections. Betty is quite pleased with her conquest and she sends Mr. Borden a note of thanks for his many valuable gifts, but the note falls into Mrs. Borden's hands and she is heartbroken at her husband's infidelity.

The Borden's formal anniversary ball is planned for the same evening that Betty is giving a birthday party, and Borden, Sr., realizing his duty to his wife and home, explains that he will not be able to attend Betty's celebration.

Afraid that she is losing her hold on Borden, Betty drives up to the Long Island mansion on the night of the ball, and insists on seeing Stuart's father. He spends half an hour in the car with her, trying to persuade her that he still loves her, but a flash of lightning sweeps across them, and reveals the scene to Mrs. Borden.

She is somewhat dazed at Borden's faithlessness on that particular night, and when her husband returns to the house, he finds her in an apparently compromising position with his friend, Spencer Hobart, who loves Mrs. Borden and has been trying to take advantage of her grief.

Each believing the other faithless, the Borden's decide to separate.

Borden leaves for Betty's apartment to bid her good-bye, as he is leaving for Europe on the morrow. In the meantime, Stuart, drunk and half-mad over Betty's coldness, starts off for her home with a gun, determined to find out who has taken his place. Mrs. Borden overhears Stuart trying to get Betty on the phone, and the bitter truth flashes over her—both husband and son are fighting for the girl's love.

After a wild ride through the night, Mrs. Borden reaches Betty's apartment just as Stuart draws his gun and aims it at Betty's guest, whom he does not recognize. Mrs. Borden manages to knock the gun from his hand—there is a shot—and Mrs. Borden drops to the floor in a state of collapse.

Borden rushes to his wife—realizes the awful abyss he has so miraculously escaped—and asks his wife for the chance to win back his love.

The Country's Producers

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—Kindly allow me the use of your valuable space to answer the question, "Who are the producers in Newfoundland?"

Some of my friends and correspondents have combated with me with the assertion that the only producers of wealth in Newfoundland are those who are producing goods for export. Some go so far as to assert that the only producers are the fishermen. Let us examine a very homely case, for example.

A fisherman producing codfish, preserved with salt and slightly dried with sun and air. Let us take one hundred pounds of it which will cost us say seven dollars. This fish has produced let us say the full seven dollars worth of a new commodity. There are some items of cost such as salt and wear and tear on gear that are the product of former labour, but for the sake of brevity we will not consider them here. So we take the product of the fisherman to the full value of seven dollars.

The hundred pounds of fish is taken into a fish factory, is washed, dried, skinned, bones removed, cut into strips, shredded, packed into paper boxes, wood boxes and bottles, for market to the consumers of Newfoundland and the world. The fish factory thus converts our seven dollars worth of fish in its new condition. In other words our workers in the fish factory have taken the product of the fishermen and have produced a new product of food worth three times the original raw material as supplied by the fishermen.

The factory workers have thus produced or created by their labors twice the purchasing power created by the fishermen in producing the original salt fish. If the salted fish had been bought in say Norway and brought here for manufacture then the factory workers here would be producing in Newfoundland double the value of the original fish.

Newfoundland workers in the fish factory would thus be producing for Newfoundland and themselves more value by double than the fishermen in Norway would have created in their country by producing the original fish. This is the key to the value of manufacturing of any and all kinds to Newfoundland or any country in which the manufacturing is done. Now again taking our own fish, as we would, the factory workers would create or produce fourteen dollars value that is fourteen dollars producing power for Newfoundlanders and the fishermen seven dollars on this hundred pounds of fish, in all twenty-one dollars value.

I think it will now be made apparent to thinking people that the factory worker is a producer as well as the fisherman and if we change the materials and take a stocking factory using wool as the raw material, the factory worker who makes the stocking is just as much a producer as if he worked in a fish factory or as a fisherman catching fish.

The question of relative values to the country may be measured by the wages per day, per week or per year. Every worker is a producer of wealth who spends his time and energy in building up any useful product from raw materials or partly manufactured materials.

Every worker who in any way contributes efficiently towards the continuance of the social unit that makes this production possible or assists in its transportation and distribution is a producer of wealth to the community in which he works. If we were a self-supporting country, that is if we produced all the necessary materials for our living, we might, by proper application of intelligence and science to our work, become an exceedingly wealthy country without exporting one dollar's worth of products. There is absolutely no difference in the production value of labour to the community whether it be applied to useful products for export or home consumption.

With your kind permission, Sir, we will continue in another short letter, endeavouring to bring this rather abstract discussion into the more widely appreciated realm of its practical application towards the alleviation of our economic or rather uneconomic sufferings.

Yours truly,
H. HERMAN ARCHIBALD.
Hr. Grace, June 21, 1925.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceed Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 18.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a sport, but a steady, healthful climb."

Flapper Guilty of Manslaughter

Jury Finds Dorothy Perkins Killed "Tommy" Templeton—Judge Says Women Have Tendency to Shoot, and Rely on Sympathy.

New York, June 18.—(U.N.)—Dorothy Perkins, the youngest girl ever to face a charge of murder in New York, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree Wednesday night for the killing of "Tommy" Templeton.

The jury which had been out since 7 o'clock, filed back into the court-room at 11:35. As Foreman Day announced the verdict, Dorothy, who stood facing the box surrounded by court attendants, fainted.

She was partially revived and was carried from the room hysterically shouting, "oh, mama! mama!" In view of the condition of the child defendant, Judge McIntyre reserved passage of the sentence until Monday.

The penalty for manslaughter in the first degree, in New York state, is a prison sentence of from ten to twenty years.

Judge McIntyre also has the power to suspend sentence.

Commending the jury on its verdict, Judge McIntyre commented upon what he termed as a tendency among women of the present day to shoot men and then rely upon the sympathies of a male jury to exonerate them.

"This may stop women shooting men," Judge McIntyre said.

The girl-defendant was led into the court-room two minutes after the jury filed in. Her face was pale and her nerves tense. As she stood in front of the jury before the verdict was announced she rubbed her hands over her eyes as if in a daze.

Sidney R. Lash, her counsel, rushed to her aid when she fell unconscious at hearing the decision of the twelve men. He slapped her hands and face, partially reviving her.

Although no announcement was made Wednesday night, it is likely that Lash will seek a new trial.

Utilizing Planes in Northern Canada

Winnipeg, Man.—When the last seaplane is shipped from Montreal by the end of June, there will be 16 planes engaged in forest patrol and photographic survey work in the northern portions of Manitoba. There are at present nine in the service, which is carried on by the dominion department of the interior.

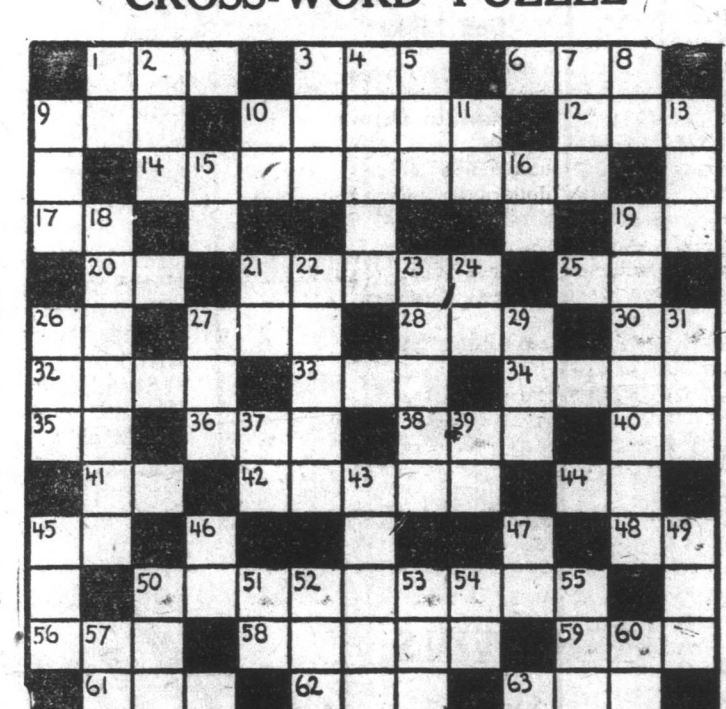

The new machines are being specially built by the Vickers Company, Montreal, and will be of the most up-to-date type. While the aircraft commissioned for service in Manitoba last year made flights from Eastern Canada, the planes now being constructed will be shipped West by train, after being put through a thorough test.

The photographic survey which was started last year when Major Hobbs covered the Reindeer Lake country, will be continued, and the photographers are concentrating on territory east of Lake Winnipeg and on both sides of the Nelson river as far north as the Hudson Bay. Major Johnson is in charge of the work this summer.

He is a well-known pilot and was a squadron commander in the Great War.

Maps which were made from photographs taken last year are described as remarkable and of inestimable value for commercial and industrial purposes, as well as from a geographical standpoint. They reveal much in the way of smaller lakes, rivers, woods, hills, which are not indicated at all on the ordinary maps of the territory covered.

Brother of Mercy Goes to Prison for Five Years

Brother Umar of Huberdan Orphanage, who was found guilty of manslaughter after a fair trial. The jury found that he had caused the death of Hector Galarneau by holding him in scalding water and I think their verdict was just. You can realize now the gravity of your offense.

Your responsibility, the charge placed on you and the fact that you belonged to a religious order made your crime the worse. Your vow forces you to make sacrifices and to be charitable but instead of maintaining that vow towards Hector Galarneau you silt-treated him. It was plain that you did not have the intention of killing the boy when you placed him in the water, and the jury understanding this held you guilty of manslaughter only.

The Court has the right to sentence you to life imprisonment for this crime but it is inclined to show clemency. The little victim, up in Heaven has forgiven you by this time I know. The sentence of this Court is five years in the penitentiary.

A PREMIUM ON INCONSIDERATENESS.

"If you treat people who work for you decently, they will just turn around and try to do you," says the cynic. "The way to really get good service is just to ride them."

His cynicism has a familiar ring. Who hasn't heard that or perhaps said it, about once in so often?

Is it true?

You think perhaps that I am going to rise up and say: "No, a thousand times, no."

He Tells Us Disagreeableness Pays.

But I'm not. Nor am I going to say it is true. All I'm going to say is that every time a workman favors the man who drives him, who complains, or makes a row when things aren't done on time or to suit, he gives the best of us reason to think that the way to get real service is to be disagreeable.

I know a woman who always treated her maids with exceptional kindness and consideration. She gave them a charming room, gave them liberal time off, good wages and many privileges that maids do not often get. One maid whom she had had for a year had a sister who lived near and was ill. My friend made it possible for the girl to get off every day to help her sister though it was very inconvenient for her, and her husband complained that she was overdoing her kindness. A few months later my friend was ill and had to have a trained nurse. The maid after a few days complained that the trained nurse made too much work, and left without any notice. Of course you might say that the maid was over taxed. As there were only three in the family and the house was small, I doubt it. But in any case, after all the consideration she had received, she surely should have given her employer time to find someone else.

She May Try Another Trick.

Another girl treated in the same kindly manner accepted half pay for a month in the summer as a retainer and then calmly demanded more wages in the fall and on being refused took another place at a dollar more a week.

Should you wonder if that woman decided that it was not the best way to treat those who work for you with consideration?

And these were girls of the higher class, intelligent and apparently kind hearted.

Again I know of a plumber, a man who, with reason, prides himself on his faithfulness, his honesty, and his careful workmanship. Some friends of ours hired him to do some work for them. It was very important that it should be done at a certain time so they gave him plenty of notice. He also had another job on hand which he had taken after he took theirs. Our friends tried to treat him with courtesy and consideration. The other man took the other tack, giving him the devil when things did not move fast enough to suit him. And the other man got his work done first.

Wasn't that workman encouraging the idea that consideration does not pay and that driving does?

Whether It Pays Or Not.

Of course it takes strength of character not to yield to the pressure of blame and bad temper. Fear is apt to be a stronger force than love. Wherefore one cannot say that the cynic's statement hasn't some truth in it.

The only answer one can make is this: There are people who treat those who work for them with consideration not because it pays but because that's the way they're made and they just naturally can't do anything else.

Serve cold, molded, cooked cereal with berries, sugar and cream, as a dessert.

THE OTHER SIDE.

When Punktown first became my home, I heard much talk of Abner Blimm; men would be dictionary comb to find fierce epithets for him. He was the stingiest of skates, he wouldn't loosen up a red to aid the hostess of heavyweights who wished to push the town ahead. He frowned on every sort of drive, he said the principle was wrong; he wouldn't dig a measly five to help the noblest cause along. Men said he was a rank disgrace, they roasted him. In 'angry groups, the town would be a better place if Abner Blimm should loop the loop. We hear a voter roasted thus, and fall in with the ones who knock; a man must be a low-down cuss who causes all this bitter talk. So I began to pan old Blimm. Before I knew the man by sight, assailed his character with vim, and showed his record was a fright. And then some friends of Abner came, and asked me why I talked so loud; "He is a credit to the game," they said, "the best man in the crowd. If any delegate is broke, if some one sick and needy lies, it's good to watch this Abner's smoke—he's old Kris Kringle in disguise. If you persist in running down this man, who puts in noble licks, we'll have to run you out of town, much as we hate to pull such tricks." We're prone to travel with the herd, and knock or praise as others do, and pass along the question denouncing gents we never knew. And when we find that you have wrought injustice to some worthy wight, we wish to soak our domes of thought in water through the long sad night.

Man Also is Like Rubber

Perhaps you thought that you were made of dust. You are not. You are made of glue. At least that is what a number of leading chemists now tell us.

The scientific term they use to describe our make-up "colloid". That means a jelly-like substance containing suspended matter. Solids, liquids, and gases—that is the way we learned to classify matter in school. But not long ago a new range of glue-like substances was added—the colloids. Our tissues, muscles, and all parts of the body fit in with this description, swollen feet, Corns, calluses and blisters, animal, and plant products, are colloids, too.

At the University of Pennsylvania interesting experiments have been made in dissecting microscopic living cells. It was found that protoplasm in cells with stretch and jump back to its original position just like a rubber band. In fact, Dr. H. L. Fisher, formerly of Columbia University, told the American Chemical Society recently that the principal differences between man and rubber is that rubber can be produced artificially.

A War Against Rust

We calmly have been letting rust and corrosion destroy more than $300,000,000 worth of metals every year. Noted chemists throughout the country now are united in warfare against this needless waste.

One reason that so little has been done about it, up to this time, is because we did not know exactly what caused rust. Investigations described before the American Chemical Society recently showed that rust is due to currents of electricity set up in metals by the action of air or water in contact with it, or the two mixed.

Great plumbing economies have been effected, it was announced, by passing water through scrap iron before letting it enter pipes. The scrap scrap iron exhausts the water's rusting power so that it does little harm in the pipes.
