v. 12. no. 1.

Another year has begun for College literature and learning. Literature as represented by the COLLEGE TIMES, and learning by our able staff of masters.

We need say but little about the former, for the TIMES is an old friend of the boys and we shall endeavour to give it the same general character, that it has had in the past. The TIMES is essentially the boys' paper, published by the boys in the interest of their comrades, and we shall strive to place before our subscribers a true and permanent record of College events, made readable by what satire, humor, and wit we may possess. Our columns are always open to the free and impartial discussion of all matters of interest to the students and we shall be glad to receive, in the form of letters or essays, the opinions of our readers on the—to us—important questions of College life.

On the College staff we have to record only two changes. The Rev. F. W. Terry, whole in life and limb—strange to relate—after two years spent in the boarding-house, has regained his freedom. We regret the loss of Mr. Terry as in him we lose one of the best cricketers on the continent, and his valuable assistance will be missed on the crease, at practice and in our matches where his marvelous batting has added many double figures to the College scores. In the class-room Mr. Terry was indefatigable in his efforts to instil into the youngsters the rudiments of learning.

To his successor in the boarding-house, Mr. Pelham Edgar, we extend a hearty welcome, and we sincerely hope that he will find the occupants of the "flat next door to heaven"—by heaven we mean the blue firmament above—as tractable as those nearer the earth. No doubt Mr. Edgar will be able to catch some lofty poetical thoughts at such a height.

It has been suggested that a column of the TIMES be put at the disposal of the "Old Boys," and as we think that this corner of our paper can be made both valuable and interesting, we have set apart for them the first column on the fifth page, and in future it will bear the title, "Old Boys' Column." While we have the choice of subjects, to our predecessors in College life we would suggest that as often as possible our friends furnish us with scraps of interesting College lore and anecdotes of the school life of the many boys who have since distinguished themselves the world over.

Among last year's changes was the placing of prize-day at the end of the school year—with a view to giving the deserving boys who were not to return to college an opportunity to receive their prizes—instead of in the first term of the following session. The object was a good one, but we doubt whether it counterbalanced the lack of the usual uproarious vivacity and mirth of the boys as their companions returned down the aisle with their trophies. Now, this is a serious drawback, and even the masters deplored it, for though we take great interest in the speeches of our learned friends who come up to address us, still we miss the hearty and long continued applause which is due their efforts. There are several causes which will satisfactorily account for this loss. The boys in the hall were those who had remained with the expectation of receiving a prize—for the prize-lists were kept perdu until noon—and as they were disappointed, they somehow felt a sinking of the heart and were only half interested in their more fortunate comrades. And again, on the other hand, the successful student had a self-satisfied feeling and was not overly interested in the others' successes. Add to this the anxiety with which the watches were consulted so that the trains might not be missed, and we think we have very well accounted for the absence of the usual college uproar.

Our visitors were as numerous as ever, and greatly enhanced the pleasure of the fortunate youths: however, we missed several of our old-time friends, and hope that the scorching heat of summer—which, we believe, accounts for their absence—will not prevent them from being present next prize-day.

And as for the masters, we pitied them from the bottom of our editorial heart. To have to read exam. papers! (to write them is bad enough) and in that sweltering weather! It must have been melting, and our respected teachers must have lost much weight as well as many hours of sleep. Nor was there time for iced drinks between whiles, as the returns had to be made within an hour-and-a-half of the writing of the last paper.

"More haste the less speed," is an old adage, which, perhaps, suits this case, and if the weather, the masters, and the boys were given an opportunity of cooling off in the first days of September, then the old prize-day and the old friends might return again.

Bachelor friend (to old married man): "What would be your answer to the question, 'is marriage a failure?'" "It depends on whether my wife was present when the question was asked."

The boys were very sorry to hear of the death of their late school-fellow, E. S. Badenach of last year's sixth form, while he was spending his vacation in Muskoka. He took a prominent part in the College Athletics, representing us on the hockey and foot-ball teams. He stood well up in the school and had successfully passed the matriculation examination. On the morning of his funeral, the Principal spoke a few words, saying that there were few boys who had left a better record at school, and that he wished all the boys to follow his manly example. Mr. Dickson added that he knew it was unnecessary to ask the boys to keep him in kind remembrance. He was a favourite with all who knew him and his early death will cause a great loss to many a friend.

In the afternoon the classes were dismissed earlier so that the boys might attend the funeral.

CHOCORUA.

Away down in New Hampshire, nestling snugly in a valley of the White Mountains, lies the little village of Chocorua. Beauty is not what the village is noted for, although it, like most of the villages in the White Mountains, is not lacking in that quality. Small as it is, there is a legend connected with it, or rather with the mountain, beside which it is situated, and from which it gets its name, has the legend, which is as follows. The story brings us back a century or two when the red men were the terror of the white settlers of North America, and before civilization had made much progress here:—

A party of settlers, in journeying northward from the English settlements of Massachusetts, came to a beautiful valley surrounded on all sides by mountains. Here, as game was plentiful, and there seemed to be no sign of Indians, they decided to settle and make their home.

It was not long, however, before their fancied security from Indians was disturbed by a large party of red men, who came and took up their quarters in a grove adjoining the settlement of the English.

The new comers did not appear to be hostile, and as both sides made friendly advances, it was not long before they were both on good terms with each other, and often joined in hunting and trapping expeditions.

Matters went on smoothly for some time until an accident occurred, which changed the peace into bitter and deadly enmity. It happened in this manner: A son of one of the bravest, strongest, and most intelligent of the English settlers, while playing with a son of the head chief of the Indians, accidentally discharged a musket the use of which he was explaining to the young redskin, and shot him in the head, killing him instantly. Chocorua, the father of the young Indian, took the notion into his head that it was an intentional act, and, though against the advice of some of the other chiefs, he planned a fearful and bloody revenge. He appeared, at first, to take no notice of the affair, but waited until Gaston, the father of the boy who had shot the young chief, had gone away to another larger settlement further east to get supplies; then one night while Gaston was still away, Chocorua, with a few of his braves, burned his cabin to the ground and murdered his wife and children, except one boy who escaped unseen, ran to the nearest settler's cabin, and soon spread the alarm.

The settlers gathered together at once and pursued the Indians, who immediately fled up the mountain side. After following them for some days, they came suddenly upon them, encamped in a hollow. They laid an ambush and killed all but Chocorua, who again fled, but was quickly followed by the settlers, who were determined he should not escape, but should suffer the penalty of his crime. It was no easy task, however, to catch an Indian who was much better acquainted with woodcraft, and knew the locality much better than did the English. They still pressed after him and were at length rewarded by seeing him go towards a precipice, from which it was impossible to retreat without falling into their hands. Chocorua ran to the edge of the precipice, and then, seeing all hope to be gone, he paused and in a loud voice laid a curse on the surrounding country, which was, that henceforth it should be rocky and yield scantily the produce of the soil. Then seeing that in another moment he would be captured or killed he leaped off and dashed his brains out on the rocks below.

Since then that mountain and the village beside it has been called Chocorua, and whether the curse of the chief had anything to do with it or not, that neighbourhood is unfruitful, and the farmers thereabouts produce very little more than what they need for their own use.

FOOTBALL.

With the autumn term, football again takes the place of cricket in the out-door sports of the College, and though it is not likely that we will be represented by as strong a team as last year, still the prospects are very fair.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year:—Hon. President, Principal Geo. Dickson, M.A.; President, W. S. Jackson, B.A.; Vice-Presidents, A. A. Macdonald, M.A., J. H. Collinson, M.A.; Captain, B. F. Bull; Secretary-Treasurer, G. Hoskin.

The first practice was held on Thursday, 14th Sept., when quite a large number of boys turned out, and since then there has been a steady practice each day, chiefly owing to the exertions of Captain B. F. Bull, who hopes to put in the field a team which will do credit to the College.

The team will this year probably be strengthened by the presence of Brooke and Wright, who come from the Church School and play wing and half-back, respectively.

It was not thought advisable to enter the team in the Junior Series of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, although a communication was received from the Secretary of the O.R.U., asking what Series we would like to enter.

Up to date the following matches have been arranged:—

October 7th, Hamilton Juniors, on College grounds.

October 14th, Royal Military College, Kingston, on U.C.C. grounds.

November 1st, Trinity College School, Port Hope, on T.C.S. grounds.

THE COLLEGE TIMES.

After the football season is over, there is always some time before the Christmas holidays begin, and if the boys who intend to play Hockey, would turn out to practise Hockey on the boards in the covered skating rink, it would keep up their football training for Hockey. Besides, Hockey played on boards is a very good game. More boys are needed on a side, because the ground cannot be covered as quickly as ice can on skates, but that is an advantage, as there are usually lots of boys who want to play.

THE INTERNATIONAL CRICKET MATCH.

The annual International Cricket Match between the United States and Canada took place on the 12th, 13th, and 14th ult., at the Rose-dale Lacrosse Grounds.

The Captain of the Canadian team was the Rev. F. W. Terry, who was last year a master at Upper Canada College. The American Captain was G. S. Patterson, of Germantown.

The Canadians went first to bat, but did very badly. J. W. Laing, an old College boy, made a duck, and Captain Terry only 3. P. C. Golding-ham and G. S. Lyon were the stars of the innings; they made, respectively, 25 and 30 (not out). The score for this innings was 87.

The Americans then went to bat, and were out by 4.45 p.m. for 177 runs.

The Canadians made 64 in the hour left, F. W. Terry contributing 32, and P. C. Goldingham 25. These two turned up in fine fettle the next morning, P. C. Goldingham making 50 before he was turned out, and Terry the magnificent total of 111, the first century ever made by Canada in an International match. The innings closed for 236 runs, of which Terry had contributed nearly half.

Seven of the Americans batted that afternoon and made 106 runs. 147 was the requisite total of the innings, and when F. W. Ralston and A. G. Thompson, the two best bats of the five left to come, went in the next morning, the chances were, that if the Canadians could dispose of them quickly, they might carry off the laurels. The effort, however, proved futile, and though in one final struggle, they managed to get Thompson out, the innings closed for a victory by 4 wickets.

The following is the complete score:—

"HARE AND HOUNDS."

Last Thursday the Football players turned out for a paper-chase (preparatory for the cross-country run for the "Macdonald Challenge Cup") through the country just north of the College. The "hares" got off at 15.54 o'clock, and nine minutes afterwards were followed by the "hounds." In 46 minutes the "hares" finished under the goal posts, and 13 minutes afterwards the first "hound" reached the College. A. Macdonald and H. M. McBean acted as "hares" and the first five hounds, spurring well to get their places, finished in the following order: Laker, Edwards, Todd, J. L., Lepper, Temple. A brisk wind was blowing from the north and scattered the "scent" considerably.

Owing to the trouble, at first, of finding the trail the pace was rather slow, but the lost time was made up towards the finish. The course was between four and five miles in length.

Old Boys' Column.

On June 30th, after the prizes had been presented, the Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association held their annual meeting, with President W. H. Beatty in the chair. The reports for the last year having been presented and adopted, the following officers were elected for the year 1893-4:—

President, W. H. Beatty, Toronto; Secretary, Arnold Morphy; Treasurer, W. J. McMaster.

Society Notes.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

The Musical and Dramatic Society will shortly re-organize for the ensuing year, under the able management of Mr. Robinson. We need not tell the old boys what a success it was last year: how the boys nobly responded to Mr. Robinson's call, and showed what College boys could do; or of the success which they, together with the Rifle Co. and Banjo Club, met with at Hamilton, and here also, when they, assisted by outside talent, performed before an appreciative audience, on the occasion of the Concert in behalf of the fund required to finish the cinder track.

We are sure that if the boys enter into it with the right spirit, it will be as great a success this year as it was last. Old boys and new will do well to join.

RIFLE COMPANY NOTES.

We see no reason why every boy of suitable stature in the College should not become a member of the Rifle Corps. Its physical benefits, although they may not, perhaps, be as apparent as those of out-door sports, are yet by far the more sure and lasting. Again, it should be the aim of every boy who has a spark of national spirit in him, to make himself as thoroughly acquainted as possible with the means by which he might help to save his country in time of need.

An institution of this size should support a Corps of at least 100 boys; and we hope to see, therefore, a much increased standard of military enthusiasm among our readers.

There are about a score of the "Old Brigade" and three of the officers back again. This leaves an opening of two non-commissioned officers, for which the boys should strive, as an officer's training will never be out of place.

Lieuts. Upper and Wright arrived on the 18th ult, and in all probability, before this copy is issued, the Company will be regularly drilling.

A large number of recruits have already applied for admission: others who wish to join should apply to any of the officers. The drill days are, Tuesday for recruits, and Friday for company drill.

CAMERA CLUB.

The U. C. C. Camera Club met in Mr. Neilson's class room for the first time this year on Wednesday, the 27th ult. Eight members were present. On motion, C. H. Bradburn took the chair and the election of officers was at once proceeded with. The result is as follows:

- Hon. Pres. . . . . Mr. Geo. Dickson, M.A.
- Hon. Vice-Pres. . . . . Mr. W. S. Jackson, B.A.
- Pres. . . . . Mr. W. A. Neilson, M.A.
- Chairman . . . . . Mr. R. Holmes.
- Secy. . . . . D. A. Ross.
- Treas. . . . . O. M. Biggar.

Mr. Neilson then took the chair and motions were in order. Among other things, it was decided that copies of all the pictures, which were awarded prizes at the last annual exhibition were to be handed in to the club for framing, or to be otherwise disposed of. Thus it will be seen that the club will soon possess a picture gallery.

The finances of the club were found to be in a satisfactory condition. Thanks for this are most especially due to Messrs. Holmes and Neilson, and last year's treasurer, H. F. Gooderham.

The Camera Club is open to every boy in the school who has a camera, or is in any way interested in photographic matters. Papers on different subjects will be read at the meetings and processes discussed. The dark-room will be ventilated soon, we hope, and photographic magazines subscribed for. The Second Annual Exhibition will probably be held towards the end of next January, and will, we trust, be even more successful than last year's, which went off better than we had dared to hope. A Lantern Exhibition will, in all probability, be held about the same time.

THE LECTURE.

Last Tuesday, Mr. Rigsby, of Grace Church, Detroit, an old Rugby boy and Oxford graduate, gave much pleasure to the boys by his lecture on English schools, and that of Winchester in particular. Mr. Rigsby first conducted his hearers up High street, Winchester, to the "Hall of Princes," where may be seen in effigy, in the clothes which they wore in life, the dead kings and queens of England. Farther up the Cathedral was reached—Winchester Cathedral, "towering to the heavens, every part as delicately carved as lace-work," and containing its lofty pulpit, "as high as the walls of the Assembly Hall." (Were we to address the boys from it we fear he might be told to "come off the roof.") At length the school is reached. Its gate is decorated with the horse-shoes presented to the school by sovereigns, who have visited it since the time of Henry VIII. The Emperor of France presented a silver one, and the German Emperor, not to be behind, had his made of gold. Around the close are scattered the stones of the wall, lying as they were left, when, by the aid of the students, Charles I. defeated the Roundheads. Then we cross over to the head-master's house and pull the bell. The door swings open and a little page-boy ("you haven't reached that dignity here"), decked from head to foot with all the buttons he can carry, and bearing a silver salver, takes our cards, we are shown into the library which has the disadvantages of all old rooms—"you can reach up and touch the ceiling with your hand." But it has a fine floor, and it is in these old floors, which never wear out, we learn the meaning of "English oak." It is black as ink and polished so that you can see your image reflected as in a mirror, and when time has been given to take in these details the head-master comes in. Head-masters in England, when they are offered a position, never ask, "What is the salary?" They never consider that; their question is, "What are the perquisites?" At Eton these are valued at $80,000 a year, while those of Winchester reach the respectable figure of $20,000. "You notice one thing which the head-master says, and on which he lays special emphasis, 'It doesn't cost much to send a boy to Winchester, £200 for board in the head-master's house and £70 with an under-master.' And then, lest you would be shocked at the lowness of the charge, 'But there are extras.'" Then the head-master conducts us to the refectory where the tables are spread out for dinner. That meal in English schools is served in mediæval style. The joint is placed on the table in a metal dish on wheels and each boy helps himself and pushes it on to his neighbor, and, as the dish is filled with gravy, in a day or two the table cloth is "beautifully ornamented with landscapes done in oil."

The school rooms in Winchester, a hundred years ago, were very different from the modern school room. "There were no mutual aid societies," and if a boy didn't know the answer to a question it was not passed, but he was questioned until he gave some answers before he was allowed to sit down, and by that time, as likely as not he had several impositions and a few half holidays were lost. In one book I saw the following definition of a boy, and it was so good I could not pass it, so I stole it and have it now! "A boy is a little animal with a body and a soul and a Latin imposition."

And then came the stories: of a boy who died of a broken heart; the episode of the squirt, the ink, the key-hole, the ear, and the master's frill; and of the recitation illustrated with woodcuts.

And then the tomb of Thomas Arnold, who spent his boyhood at Winchester, was reached and at the marble crypt, covered with roses and forget-me-nots, the lecture ended.

Mr. Rigsby had to hush the applause several times during the lecture and was roundly applauded at its conclusion.

Brown—"How often have I told you not to play ball in the house?" Johnny—"Every time you have caught me at it."

"How is business?" asked Jones addressing the astronomer. "My business," replied the investigator of celestial phenomena—"my business is looking up."

The following heading appeared above an article in one of our local magazines: "Nature's best work is done during the hours of repose" Perhaps so, but it looks incongruous.

PRIZE DAY.

This year prize day was held on the 30th of June, instead of as usual, in the fall. Perhaps it is a good thing, because all the boys are in town, but still we lose our prize day half-holiday, which is no small disadvantage.

It turned out to be a very fine day and although it was rather hot, "prayer-hall" was well filled with venerable ex-pupils, ladies, and pretty girls, who come every year to the College to see their friends and relatives receive the prizes for which they have worked hard during the year. Among those present were Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and Mrs. Macdonnell, Goldwin Smith, J. Herbert Mason, Rev. John Burton, Rev. Dr. Scadding, Rev. G. H. Sandwell, New Britain, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ross, Winnipeg; Mrs. Thomas Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Boulbee and Mr. W. H. Scatty.

Before the prizes were given Mr. Dickson made a short speech, in which he said:

"I am glad to be able to speak of another year of earnest and successful work. The attendance, though not up to that of last year, was above the average. The enrolment was 314 and the average attendance 250 or about 80% of the enrolment.

"This large body of boys has worked steadily, and on the whole, in a way that gives me a great deal of satisfaction.

"A congratulatory letter reached me the other day, in which these words occurred, 'the blue and white can't be beat.' They sounded like a school-boy's vigorous English, and I venture to say that this is fast becoming the spirit of the school in work and in play. I hope it may be so. The daily papers during the year have announced an almost uninterrupted succession of triumphs of the College in the world of athletics.

"The year has closed with a season of contests that will live in the annals of the College for many years to come. Last Saturday saw the first eleven, captained by Counsell, overcome good bowling and good fielding, and we heartily congratulate him upon his victory. That the boys have acquitted themselves very creditably in their sports, the printed pamphlet, giving an account of the various matches, fully attests.

"School boys of the motherland play energetically, as well as work hard, and in this brighter

Britain the same traditions rule, and a good thing it is. A school without a well-used playground is not doing its whole work. School athletics, however, must be brought under a system, if any good results are to be obtained; no good, but more evil, comes from aimless and desultory play. If a boy is to become strong, active and brave strong in checking his temper and gaining the advantage of a cool judgment, brave in a courage which chooses a career and adheres to it; active that makes a boy a hero on the playground, and a student in the class-room, he will be seen in autumn in the football scrimmage doing battle for his school, and in winter on the ice, bending all his energies to score a victory, and in the warmer days of summer, he will keep himself in training for the best of all school games, cricket.

"As a result of the addition of a swimming tank to our equipment for physical training, and the attention given to the art of swimming, there are only three boys in the school who cannot swim, and we expect to see a well contested swimming competition next season.

"The quarter mile track, from which we expect so much in the future, is one that College ought to be proud of. It has not cost the College anything so far.

"It was my pleasure last year to refer to the success of a few old boys of the school and to ascribe it in no small degree to the spirit that pervaded the old school and the training, mental and physical, that it imparted."

The prizes were then given, the following gentlemen assisting: Rev. Dr. Scadding, Goldwin Smith, Rev. Prof. Wallace, Rev. G. H. Sandwell, Rev. John Gillespie, J. Herbert Mason, Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, Rev. John Burton and R. G. Kingsford. Each of the gentlemen spoke briefly when presenting the prizes and it encourages a boy greatly to have a few well chosen words spoken to him when receiving his prize.

Then in the next hour after the prizes had been distributed, a great change came over the College; all was to be silent for the next two months, where so many boys had lived and learnt during the last session.

The following is a complete list of those who received prizes and of those who were promoted:

Who is the College sport? That name "Fitz" me to a "T."

Local and Personal.

Geo. Clayes is captain of this season's Football team at 'Varsity.

J. R. McMillan has matriculated at the Boston Institute of Technology.

Norman Wilson will take a course in the Guelph Agricultural College.

"Dug" Eby is now filling a very responsible position in the firm of Eby, Blain & Co.

Davy Rayside, our last year's Silver Medalist, is in the lumber business with his father.

Who lent him the wheel Thursday morning? It was geared too low for such an Eager man.

Charles Thompson Haskell has passed the Matriculation Examination of McGill University.

F. C. Denison has passed the Entrance Examination of the Royal Military College, Kingston.

Hector Robinson is in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Co. at Peterborough.

H. C. Dension has gained seven places in the annual examination of Cadets on H. M. S. Britannia.

Harry Gooderham has just returned from the World's Fair, where he has been spending a few weeks.

Rev. F. W. Terry has taken his departure from the College and is going as missionary among the Indians in Alberta, N.W.T

Johnny Bain of '92 is studying for the Trinity Sups. We hope he will have better luck than he had at the Toronto Matriculation.

Fred MacLennan, captain of our last year's hockey team, is studying law in his father's office preparatory to his course at Osgoode.

Capt. F. F. Hunter, Lieut. W. A. Gilmour and Lieut. Lorne Cosby, took a Midsummer course and received certificates at the New Fort.

J. Hugo Ross is shooting big game and exploring the vast unknown region north of Winnipeg with a large party of "cheap" sports.

"Tiny" Counsell, captain of our last year's cricket XI, was in the city last week, but has evidently forgotten the way up to the College.

Ferd says it is on account of a sore ankle that he does not practise Football, but the boys think it is because something Els(i)e occupies his mind.

"Puggy" Ellis has gone to New York, where, under the instruction of a tutor, he will prepare for the Matriculation which he hopes to be able to pass next year.

There were three old boys on the International Cricket XI of 1893 viz. Gillespie, Martin and Laing. Mr. Terry was captain and filled the position faultlessly.

Philly appeared on the scenes last week with a pair of spike-toed patent leathers and a Musical Hair-cut. The boys were all glad to see him and wish him success in Fort Said, where he has accepted a mercantile situation.

Freddy Waldie is filling the position of Ast. Auditor in the office of R. & T. Jenkins, real estate agents. His spare moments are devoted to Football, in which game he is rapidly making a name for himself as quarter-back for the 1st Torontos.

The returning tide of College life stranded on our shores a couple of babes—successors in the boarding house of the renowned "Swipes Brothers." They dwell on the same flat and under the special care of the successor to the Swipes Brothers' guardian.

When a certain U. C. C. boy was returning home westward bound, after a hard term's work, a very thrilling accident happened. After the berths were turned down and he had made a few preparations for the night he tumbled into bed. The next instant a female voice was heard screaming "Help! Porter! Police!" and Reddy was seen with his arms full of wearing apparel rushing up the car as though he were doing a hundred yards dash on the College track.
