THE MARTYRDOM OF NURSE CAVELL SHOWN IN PICTURES Outstanding Feature in Week of Big Things at Gen Theatre

Few incidents of the great war shocked the world more than did the German murder of Nurse Cavell in Belgium. Civilization stood aghast. This intense episode has been woven into a four part motion picture production and it will be at the Gen next Wednesday and Thursday. Go and see what the Germans are and then you'll wonder that they never can be allowed to win the war.

Next week will be a big one at the Gen. A feature will be the introduction of "Going Straight," one of the best pictures in the Gen has ever shown; also a tip top comedy.

LOCAL NEWS

Owing to the blowing out of an old plug in one of the smaller mains at the junction of the Hanover and Edin street connections, the residents of that vicinity were without water yesterday afternoon and evening. Three pumps were kept going all afternoon and until the connections were completed in the night.

That the daylight saving scheme, which has met with such favor in St. John during the summer months, will be brought to a close on September 16, was the recommendation of the council of the board of trade at a meeting yesterday.

Harry F. Jackson, driving an automobile yesterday afternoon, crashed through the crossing gates at the entrance to the new bridge, just escaping an engine that had crossed the bridge. Samuel Ball, C. P. R. gatekeeper, had let the gates down to stop traffic, but this was no hindrance to the man in the oncoming auto, who went right through both sets of gates. Several charges will be laid against him, including one of not stopping on the bridge when ordered to by Constable Shank.

"He left her without a penny"

"Isn't it terrible? She's taking boarders and trying—goodness knows how—to make ends meet. The children are in an institution."

Will that be said of you—and about your wife? It may be, unless you have provided for her a legacy or annuity through the medium of an Imperial Home Protection Policy. Why not secure one of these policies while you are good health? To-morrow may be too late.

Write now for our booklet "The Creation of an Estate." It's very interesting and it's free.

Furniture Value Means "Quality" at Low Prices

Low price by itself is not inducement enough for you to buy your furniture from any particular store. Neither can you afford to go to any one house that offers only "quality," as inducement. But when you find a store offering LOW PRICES ON HIGH QUALITY FURNITURE, that is the store you should visit before you even think of buying elsewhere.

For man years we have had the reputation of selling all that is good in quality furniture, and our prices have always been such that we absolutely defy competition, even from houses who handle only the cheapest grade of goods.

Protect Your Eyes Those to whom nature has given extra good vision are apt to be rather proud of it and rarely always abuse it. The commonest complaints we hear of are regrets for impaired sight, which was once above the average. Good vision is priceless. Health, happiness and prosperity depend upon it, yet our eyes are being persistently ill-treated and little attention is given to preserve their usefulness. The symptoms of eye-strain should be heeded.

BUSY DAYS FOR LONDON'S BISHOP

The photograph shows Rev. Dr. Ingram, Bishop of London, speaking on board a British dreadnought, during his ten day visit to the grand fleet in the North Sea.

Hour For French Cavalry Is At Hand, Says General

Supporting Units Reinforced, Brought up to Full Strength and, Powerfully Armed, Indicating That Trench System is About to Give Way to Mobile Warfare

"The hour for the cavalry will come one of these days in France, as it has come on the banks of the Pruth and the Stripa," declares General de Lacroix, a military critic, in the Paris Temps.

Recent use of cavalry on both eastern and western fronts by the Allied armies leads General de Lacroix to conclude that a style of warfare is about to ensue more mobile than the trench system which has held the troops in the west immobilized for the last twenty months.

Lately, however, cavalry attacks have been numerous in connection with the Russian drive from Bukovina to the Pipet marshes, especially in Galicia and around Lutsk. Quite recently reports of British cavalry action in the battle of the Somme have aroused the desire of the French horsemen to rival them in the field.

It is to the action of cavalry that General de Lacroix attributes the large number of prisoners captured on the Russian front. He thinks it contributed to the lightning-like rapidity of General Brusilov's operations and to the extent of the results achieved. If the Russian offensive had been restricted to the use of the other arms of the service, the pursuit of the Teutons and the complete accomplishment of a victory would have necessarily limited. At such times the attacking infantry, exhausted by the effort it has made, must call upon fresh troops, necessarily remote from the positions won. Artillery cannot be thrust forward without, being supported by other troops, and although modern guns of long range can pursue with their fire a retreating enemy for a long time, they are, on the other hand, much slower to be moved to new positions when the foe is out of range.

"Cavalry, then, together with bombing-dropping aircraft," says General de Lacroix, "constitute the indispensable element for putting the finishing touches to a victory. Alone, they may be used to follow up the enemy's dog his heels and to increase the expression of his spirits and the isolation of his equipment."

There is nothing to prove that it would be impossible for French cavalry to imitate the Russian Cossacks, General de Lacroix thinks, though he believes the German defensive in the west is more powerful than the Austrian lines. The question for cavalry is not the breaking of the enemy's lines, but their value in the pursuit which can take place only after the lines are broken.

By the objection that the nature of the ground in France differs from that in Russia, being more broken and offering less facility than the Gallician plains, General de Lacroix replies that the network of roads is much better in France than in Russia and that batteries, machine guns and automobile guns can be moved much more easily, adding that the power of gun fire is that of cold steel. These aids, he says, are becoming more and more important in such operations, and it is essential that each cavalry unit be provided with them.

Infantry units transported in automobiles, perfectly trained and familiar with their duties," he declares, "ought to aid with their offensive along the principal routes of approach, break down obstacles and check rear-guards at dangerous quarters, while cavalry squadrons, turning around impediments in order to reach vital parts of the enemy, would dash into the midst of the disorganized troops causing disorder and panic."

periences in creating the half-million-dollar motor, that is being mailed gratis to all interested—from the factory at Jackson. Mr. Briscoe has surrounded himself with an organization of unusual caliber. The company's vice-president in charge of sales, is L. E. Wilson, well known for his intensive methods of cultivating sales territories. Mr. Wilson's experiences date almost from the start of the automobile industry. Production is in charge of one of the most expert men in the industry—S. H. Humphrey.

One automobile dealer describing the car said: "I have ridden in some of the best high-priced cars built, but I had a new experience in motor car comfort, efficiency and motor power in Mr. Briscoe's new car. This is the greatest model Mr. Briscoe has ever built, and when you realize that Mr. Briscoe had a hand in the first Buick, a Cadillac, the Maxwell-Briscoe, and other well-known models, this is a significant statement. After Mr. Briscoe sold out the Maxwell-Briscoe he went to France. "The new car has the same body lines as have high-priced models for 1917 at double and treble its price, and is as completely equipped. No Michigan sand, of which there is plenty, nor none of the hills feared the car in the smallest degree. It surmounted them all with smoothness and sureness."

Mrs. Julia Collins and daughter of Lincoln, Ind., during 1915 quilted fifty-two quilts, tacked nine comforts and wove 465 yards of carpet and rugs. In the last six months they have quilted thirty-two quilts, made two spreads and woven 355 yards of carpet and rugs.

CLEANS 12,000 ROOM SIZE RUGS

The makers had the Lady Torrington vac sweeper connected with the machinery at their plant, which pushed and pulled it over 500 miles—equal to cleaning 12,200 9x12 rugs—and still was in fine serviceable condition.

The "Lady Torrington" has a triple-reinforced hardwood Case, hand-rubbed and polished a beautiful mahogany. Less than 6 1-2 inches high, weighs but 10 1-2 pounds.

LAST NIGHT'S WAR CABLES

The Balkan situation again looms large on the horizon of the world war with the official announcement in Paris that the Bulgarians have attacked Drama and the seaport of Kavala, both of which are garrisoned by Greek troops. This announcement is confirmatory of press dispatches received from Greece during the last few days in which it was stated that fighting was in progress between the Greeks and Bulgarians. The reported attack on Kavala threatens to render the situation between Greece and the Central Powers acute. Ever since the first Balkan war, Sofia has claimed that Kavala was one of its rightful fruits of victory, and its concession to Greece has been the source of much ill-feeling between the two countries.

Apparently from the French statement, the allied troops do not plan an advance on the right wing, as British cavalry detachments are reported to have destroyed bridges over the Angitis river. On the left wing Paris reports "appreciable" progress for the Serbians, and the capture of several hundred prisoners. In the center, where the main effort of the Allies is expected, heavy artillery action is taking place, but there is no report of infantry operations.

The full on the eastern front continued, but the renewed offensive by the Grand Duke Nicholas in Armenia is steadily growing in extent. The recent fighting in the region of Lake Van is described in Petrograd as a crushing blow to the Turks, and Russian military critics predict the resumption of the Grand Duke's advance toward Asia Minor.

The usual period of comparative inactivity has occurred on the western front, following the gains reported by Paris and London, and partially confirmed by Berlin, on Thursday. The Germans, however, have attempted a new blow at the French at the point of the famous St. Mihiel salient. This salient juts far into the French line, southeast of Verdun, and has been the scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in France. The force of the German blow carried them into the French trenches but, according to Paris, they were immediately evicted by a counter-attack.

AWARDED THE D. S. O.

Lieutenant Guy Roderick Turner, of the Engineers, has been honored with the D. S. O. (Distinguished Service Order). This gallant young Canadian is a son of Mrs. Annie Turner of Ansonia, N. B., and enlisted as a private, winning his commission by gallantry on the field.

The official announcement reads:—"Lieutenant Roy Roderick Turner—when voluntarily undertaking a dangerous reconnaissance, he received a painful shrapnel wound. He refused to go to hospital, and the same night volunteered to take charge of a working party."

ONTARIO'S EXCUSE FOR DELAY

(Toronto Telegram, Sons) British had to muster 35,000 mechanics out of her armies into her munition factories.

Ontario has mustered men out of her munition factories into Canada's army. Enlistment of Ontario mechanics is one reason for a delay in the production of munitions from this province.

A still greater reason for delay in the output of Ontario munitions is the non-employment of women. Ontario manufacturers have not given women a fair chance in the past because the Shell Committee did not give the Ontario manufacturers a fair chance.

Time was needed for the adaptation of munition factories to the employment of women. Ontario manufacturers were compelled to waste time cooling their heels in the ante-chambers of the Shell Committee. That time should have been profitably employed in planning for the employment of women and in training these women.

In one day Martins Perry, O., used 4,000,000 gallons of water. The town has a population of 12,000. Washing clothes and the heat wave are blamed.

Astonishing Power of Iron to Give Strength to Broken Down Nervous People

Physician Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate Folk 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night; others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonderful claims of new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron, like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated, and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the new forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100,000 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Watson's Drug Store and all other druggists.

MUTT AND JEFF BACK AGAIN

Their Career Nearly Ended When "Bud" Fisher Was Close to Death in Auto Accident

Well, "Mutt" and "Jeff" are back on the job today, and thankful to be alive. They had a narrow squeak from sudden death on July 8, when "Bud" Fisher, their creator, unexpectedly found a 5,000 pound automobile resting on his chest and boring holes through his nose and lower jaw.

Fisher had been on his vacation just a few days when the automobile accident happened. It occurred while he was on his way from Saratoga Springs to Glen Falls, New York. It was raining, the road was high crowned; suddenly the car took a little skid and the next thing Fisher knew he was pinned underneath the overturned car in a ditch that was rapidly filling with rain water.

On being released, Fisher was rushed to the Saratoga Hospital. There it was found that one rib had been broken, his nose pierced from side to side, his under jaw punctured and the roof of his mouth severed. Several teeth knocked out and others so loosened that they had to be pulled, and his lower lip torn and twisted.

Now, however, Fisher has recovered from his various injuries, bruises and the shock and is back again on the job. "Mutt" and "Jeff" are back on the job today, and thankful to be alive.

CANADA'S PULP SAVES PRINT PAPER MAKERS

Over two-thirds of the more than a billion pounds of wood pulp imported into the United States during the year ending June 30, 1916, and used in the manufacture of paper, came from Canada.

"The pulp importations for 1915-16 have been 180,000,000 pounds less than for the previous twelve months, yet the amount shipped into the United States during the past year was 180,000,000 pounds in excess of her 1914-15 shipments.

"During the year just closed nearly 70 per cent of our 1,185,000,000 pounds of pulp came from our neighbor to the north, while most of the remaining 30 per cent came from Norway and Sweden.

The enormous volume and importance of the paper manufacturing industry in the United States is seldom realized by the chief beneficiary, the average reader. According to the most recent figures of the United States Department of Commerce (1914), the value of the annual production of the paper mills of this country exceeds $880,000,000.

Over 1,000,000,000 of this sum is represented in newspaper—1,028,264 tons, or enough to print ten and a half billion fourteen page eight column papers.

Day's Games Result in Several Shifts in American League

Detroit In Second Place Red Sox Trimmed By Tigers; Cleveland Takes Double Header in Philadelphia; Giants Break Losing Streak; Braves Win From Cubs

Several teams in the American League switched around as a result of yesterday's games. Detroit jumped into second place with the St. Louis Browns on their heels, while the Yankees dropped to fourth place one point ahead of Chicago and Cleveland. The Red Sox are still six full games ahead of Detroit and St. Louis, although they were defeated by the former. The great question is will they be able to maintain a lead when they take to the road?

The Giants at last broke their losing streak and apparently recovered their batting eye. They are fifteen games behind Brooklyn and will have to go like a cyclone to overtake such a lead in the remaining forty odd days.

The Braves continue to win and are now some distance ahead of the Phillies. They must be causing Brooklyn worry for they are uncomfortably close in case the Dodgers should fall into a slump.

FILM SUIT A JOKE TO FORD. His Lawyers Call the Vitagraph Action An Advertisement.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—When asked regarding a million-dollar suit brought by the Vitagraph Company of America, Henry Ford referred the interviewer to his attorney, Alfred Lucking.

Notwithstanding the size of the action, Mr. Ford refused to regard it other than as a "joke" so far as actual liability under the law is concerned.

The suit is merely a new form of advertising, said Mr. Lucking. "Not once in 20,000 times is such a suit put into type as this one has been even before its first hearing. The company had large quantities of notices prepared all ready to send out to the newspapers as soon as the suit was filed. The entire action is based on a paragraph in one of Mr. Ford's advertisements for universal peace, in which he swore a picture to some extent. The suit will not have its primary hearing until mid-winter.

Roy at time of writing was still in the hospital, but expected to be very shortly sent to a prison camp. He has only been there a month, but he says it seems like a year. He writes to send him a number of necessary articles and also an occasional box of "cats." In asking for the latter he states that it's very few nights they don't go to bed hungry.

GERMAN MORALE BROKEN BY DRIVE

Letters Say British Artillery Fire Unbearable

No Food From Homeland Now; People There Write That Meal Tickets Issued by Government Are Often Unredeemable

Letters to and from German soldiers confirm and amplify previous evidence of the same kind as to the physical and moral effect of the British bombardment of June 24 to 30 between the Ancre and the Somme, and also as to the growing dearth of food in Germany and the unrest which it is causing in some German towns.

One of the latest letters gives a German soldier's account of the fighting in the Fricourt and La Boisselle region early in July. It was written from Guendecourt, on July 11, by a man of the 100th Regiment, part of a division transferred from the Champagne to the Somme area between July 3 and 6. He says: "To the front and back again, always backward and forward. Yesterday we marched from Beaumont to Veuilly, today from Veuilly to this place, camping in the open all the time, with no sleep, and with feet burning so that we can hardly stand up."

"What our regiment has accomplished and suffered here you can learn from the papers. Between Fricourt and La Boisselle the most severe fighting in the English offensive took place. We were at Contalmaison. To the right and left the English advanced, but not where the 100th Regiment was. But what is left of this line regiment? The whole of the first battalion has scarcely 130 of its 1,100 men left. The rest and the last remnants each have lost more than 100."

"Now we are again directly behind the lines, this village being fixed at night and again. There is no thought of leave at present. I hope this awful business will soon stop. It is simply dreadful here."

"If the enemy offensive would only come to a standstill peace would not be far off."

"English Play the Game" Another letter of interest was written on July 16 by a man of the 8th Company of the 10th Regiment of the 10th Bavarian Infantry Division. He is clearly an educated man; his writing is soberly and with precision.

"He relates how his regiment has been transferred to the Somme region and has been in an unbroken position since July 1. "There," he says, "the English had seen in fact to play the game properly." He continues: "Our trenches have been completely overgrown and what we have suffered under the English artillery fire can scarcely be described. It put the greatest strain on the physical strength and endurance of our troops and one asks one's self if it is possible for men to hold up under such things."

"He describes carefully the effect of English gas shells on himself and two of his comrades. They suffered extreme bewilderment and partial or complete unconsciousness but not, it seems, intense pain or very long disablement. At the same time he considers gas shells "the worst means of fighting that one can think of," and asks: "What are ordinary shells or shrapnel to this?"

A note on the quality of reinforcements recently sent to the Third Battalion of the 10th Bavarian Infantry Division is found in a message from Major von Reitz, apparently commanding the battalion, to Oberst Lieut. Kummle. It was sent on July 11. "It has been ascertained that the line on my left flank, where recruits of the Lehr Infantry Regiment were stationed, is absolutely unoccupied. The trenches are completely fattened out and numbers of dead are in them. Presumably the survivors have got away."

"I must refer to my request for troops that are of use for fighting, since the recruits, even those of my own regiment, have completely failed. I do not get such troops I cannot guarantee the holding of the second line."

Transportation Difficult In letters received by German soldiers from home one now finds repeated mention of the difficulty of continuing the despatch of parcels of food to the front.

"On May 2, a soldier's relative writes to him from Nurnberg: "I am not sure whether I can send you any more sausage or cheese, as the meat and cheese tickets cannot always be exchanged for food."

Similarly a Munich friend writes on June 27 to a lance corporal in the 10th Bavarian Infantry regiment: "Next week I will send you a parcel. This week I am not able to get any sausage or cheese; everything is promised but nothing is obtainable. I cannot bake any cakes for you, as I am not able to procure any sugar or flour, and one cannot buy cakes any longer."

In a letter from Muenchen on June 28, a woman asks her brother at the front to send her food. In these letters from German civilians it is a common complaint that official food tickets do not always secure an issue of food itself.

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advices the Use of "FRUIT-A-TIVES," the Famous Fruit Medicine

MR. ROSENBERG, 289 Casgrain St., Montreal

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-tives'. I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, music, brought about a kind of intestinal paralysis—with nasty headache, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and now for six months I have been entirely well."

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and you will be, as you will receive. A BOTTLE OF 'FRUIT-A-TIVES', a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 50c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This week I am not able to get any sausage or cheese; everything is promised but nothing is obtainable. I cannot bake any cakes for you, as I am not able to procure any sugar or flour, and one cannot buy cakes any longer."

In a letter from Muenchen on June 28, a woman asks her brother at the front to send her food. In these letters from German civilians it is a common complaint that official food tickets do not always secure an issue of food itself.

"On May 2, a soldier's relative writes to him from Nurnberg: "I am not sure whether I can send you any more sausage or cheese, as the meat and cheese tickets cannot always be exchanged for food."

Similarly a Munich friend writes on June 27 to a lance corporal in the 10th Bavarian Infantry regiment: "Next week I will send you a parcel. This week I am not able to get any sausage or cheese; everything is promised but nothing is obtainable. I cannot bake any cakes for you, as I am not able to procure any sugar or flour, and one cannot buy cakes any longer."

GREEKS MURDERED ALLIES' SENTRIES

Retired Nurse Says Treatment of King Constantine Too Lenient

Serbia is Worth Saving—Titled British Ladies Do Menial Work in French Hospitals For Glory of Empire.

Miss Mary A. Crowe, a professional nurse, who was attached to the Scottish Women's Hospital organization during the early stages of the war, going to Serbia and thence back to France, returned home to Montreal this week.

At her home, 1806 Esplanade avenue, she related to The Gazette many interesting details of the work being done by women in the various theatres of war.

Serbia is, she says, well worth fighting for, and her people are worthy of protection and reconstruction by the Allies at the end of the war. She found them ill-fed and over-worked, and will never forget the white-faced soldiers of Serbia when they left Salonika for Corfu and Corsica. A recent advice say that they will give a good account of themselves beside their English and French allies in the campaign now opening against Austria and Bulgaria. Returning to Salonika, Miss Crowe's experience taught her to place little confidence in the Greeks, and especially the dirty, long-coated soldiers. Miss Crowe says that when the British first landed and placed their sentries, many of the latter were assassinated by the Greeks, no doubt in the pay of the Austrians or Germans. These infamous attacks became so common that in many cases the sentries were doubled. The people, however, had a mortal dread of the British, their fear being increased by the presence of so many British warships in the harbor. Miss Crowe said she knew very little about Greek politics, except to say that the British and French were far too lenient in their handling of Greece, "as they should have put the pro-German King and his wife, and their children, and sent them off early in the game. From Salonika to Toulon Miss Crowe made the trip on a hospital ship, which brought hundreds of poor fellows to France. Later she was attached to a hospital at Royanmont, some twenty-five miles northwest of Paris, and twenty miles or more from the firing line, it being the nearest hospital to the firing line in the country. The French, she says, are very grateful towards these Scotch women nurses and surgeons, for apart from Red Cross or similar training, the French women are not given surgical and medical instruction as in Great Britain. At first the French surgeons operated, but finally, seeing they were quite as capable as men, the Frenchmen were sent in their practices, and frequently a surgeon would call the attention of his assistants to some method in surgery adopted by the ladies. There were fifty hundred beds at Royanmont, and Miss Crowe learned, after going over to England, that the operations were greatly increased daily, following the recent movement along the Somme.

The experiences with the Algerians were interesting, as these Gyp. fighters are not more than half-civilized, and when a leg or arm was amputated, the sufferer got the impression that, instead of being a surgical necessity, there were other reasons which prompted the work.

of the British women. The French soldier, Miss Crowe states, is a splendid sufferer, and decidedly grateful for any kindness shown him. While the officers are reserved, they are courteous in the extreme, and even go out of their way to teach a little French to the foreigners. The women employed as orderlies in the hospitals of France, Miss Crowe says, are an exceedingly interesting class by themselves, being of gentle birth, and some are titled ladies who had never before done a stroke of work. They came and gave their services for nothing, doing all kinds of menial work, all for the glory of the Empire and her soldiers. These orderlies are also for the greater part expert linguists and act as interpreters in the hospitals of France, to the great delight of both officers and men.

Miss Crowe found a great similarity between the French villages and those in the vicinity of Montreal and elsewhere in the province of Quebec, their appearance and customs being much the same. The one long street, with a church at the end, made her think much of Canada, especially when the old parish priest put in an appearance. The wonder of the French country people is the splendid appearance of the British troops, constantly passing through their villages and proceeding to the front to give their lives, if necessary, that France might live.

Although the French soldier is not as martial looking as his British ally, there can be no question as to his fighting qualities.

Miss Crowe became a nervous wreck and secured leave of absence, it being uncertain if she will return to hospital work in France.

Ireland Past and Future

(The "Manchester Guardian")
 The Irish debate, though nominally concerned with the immediate future of the country, necessarily turned in large part on the failure of the negotiations, as to this, all we need say here is that Mr. Asquith entirely failed to answer the charge of breach of agreement brought by Mr. Dillon. The case is very simple. Mr. Asquith tells us that not only Lord Lansdowne but all the Unionists in the cabinet revolted against the extension during the provisional period of the full number of Irish members. On the merits of the question they may or may not have been right. But on July 19, almost a month after Mr. Redmond had publicly announced this as one of the terms of the agreement, Mr. Asquith stated in the house of commons that the cabinet were prepared as a whole to embody the terms in a bill and recommend it to the house. Yet before the end of the month the cabinet refused to do anything of the kind. The breach of faith is definite, and the present government cannot complain of anyone, Irish or other, in its future dealings with it bears this incident in mind.

Agreement having failed and Ireland not being destined for the moment to govern herself, what is to be her lot? Up to the present she has been under military law. Mr. Asquith tells us, indeed, that the proclamation of martial law was of verbal significance, and he denies that anything has been done that could not be justified under the Defence of the Realm Act. That act must be more drastic even than we thought. For it is admitted that innocent people lost their lives in Dublin at the hands both of the rebels and of the soldiers, and all inquiry—except in the Sheehy Skeffington case—is forbidden. Is that, then, also possible in England under the De-ulation is not to be allowed to organize itself for the repression of the small minority of turbulent idealists of late scattered among it, but must submit to coercive rule at the expense of military and diplomatic disadvantages to the empire all because a few Unionist leaders stand in the way of agreement.

Mr. Asquith still cherishes hopes that some agreement is possible. If so, negotiations will have to be conducted on different lines and between different parties. The one hopeful sign in the whole affair has been the frank attitude of Sir Edward Carson. For the moment he has been frustrated by English Unionists who have chosen, to be more Orange than Orangemen. But opposition to the Home Rule in England, in spite of Lord Hugh Cecil's vehemence, cannot survive the attainment of any accommodation between the two Irish parties. England has relevant her old lesson, the lesson which she first taught the world, that there is no opposition between local liberty and united empire. English people are aware that the best way of attaching the Irish to them in permanence is the way of giving the Irish their own government. They have hesitated it is because they have seen no way out of the tangle of the Ulster problem. If that problem can be solved, then the future of Home Rule is assured. The position now reached is that Ulster cannot be brought into a self-governing Ireland by coercion, but that there exists a more excellent way of securing an Ireland both united and free. That way is to begin with the self-government of that part of Ireland which desires it and to let the rest come into it at the time and under the circumstances of its own choosing. We can imagine a Provisional Bill drafted by Mr. Redmond and Sir Edward Carson in concert on these lines, and if such a measure were recommended to the cabinet as being in their judgment the best that could be done for Ireland during the war, it could not well be rejected. As yet, it is to the continuance of discussion between the Irish leaders themselves, who have come out of the transaction as well as the English leaders have come out ill, that we must look for any improvement in the situation.

TREASURE HUNT IN ILLINOIS

A story equalling any of the thrillers of the movies, including a ten-year hunt for a hidden Astec treasure, was revealed recently in a Justice's court at Effingham, Ill., when William McCaw, a prominent and reputable Effingham county farmer, was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery.

For the last ten years, says the St. Louis Star, it has been known that McCaw and a party of Robinson, Ill., citizens, had been digging on McCaw's Effingham farm for a hidden Astec treasure.

Several hundred years ago, when Cortez settled in Mexico, he contacted all the treasure of the Astec Indians. A few, however, escaped and came north. They built several big mounds, it is contended, in western and southern Illinois. In Union township, Effingham county, there is such a mound. It was located on a farm.

Twenty years later, according to the story told in court, McCaw was standing on a street corner in Robinson fumbling a curious stone, bearing Indian inscriptions. He was approached by an Indian chief. The sight of the stone greatly affected the Indian. In broken sentences he told the mystery of the mound and declared it was an Astec treasure stone and revealed the hidden place of unknown wealth.

It was contended at the trial that the Indian dropped dead, due to the excitement following his revelation of the stone. On the information given by the Indian, McCaw went to Effingham county and purchased the farm on which the mound is located in Union township. He began digging, worked many years and spent a good-sized fortune, but was unsuccessful.

A few months ago a party of Robinson citizens, learning of his purpose, went to McCaw with a proposition to aid in the search for the treasure. In connection with an agreement to divide the treasure, McCaw was to receive $10 a month for allowing these men to dig on his farm. The party, including McCaw, labored day and night for a few weeks.

Finally the searchers came to a heavy slab of rock, which thus far has withstood several varieties of explosives. It was believed that the treasure was beneath this rock. Then, it is contended, McCaw, seeing a great wealth in his grasp, broke his original agreement and demanded more from the parties.

After a heated argument he began to eject them from his farm at the point of a knife. One man resisted. McCaw grasped him around the throat and was about to sink the knife into him, it is charged, when the stranger told how he had saved McCaw from freezing in a blizzard years before in Montana. Upon hearing that the stranger was his rescuer, McCaw released him and decided that the best way to decide the search for the treasure would be to place it in court.

The charge against McCaw in court was dropped when he and his co-treasurers announced a compromise by which they agreed to return to the mound, which is supposed to hold the treasure. Before the contending slab of stone is upturned, in the presence of the sheriff and attorneys for both sides, a new satisfactory working agreement will be made.

The United States and The War

(Life, New York)

No; there is no present prospect of getting into the war. If we are to help the Allies we must look for other ways. Let us put our minds on it.

A Rochester paper spoke a while ago of "Americans having but a passing interest in the winning of this war by one side or the other."

Never a greater mistake!

Americans are deeply concerned, every one of them, in the outcome of the war. That outcome will affect all human life for a generation; more likely for many generations. It will greatly affect the United States and every mother's son in it. It will determine on what lines the next experiments in civilization and political government will be made. It is far more than a war for trade. It is a war in which the very fundamentals of life have been locked horns. Whoever wins that the United States is part of the world is bound to admit that it has more than a passing interest in what happens to the world.

All the peoples are passengers together on the ship of souls, and all concerned with the way she is sailed and what port she heads for. At various times different peoples have different offices in her management. The office of the United States in the present crisis seems to be, chiefly, to serve as ballast. We repose in the hold while a tremendous scrimmage is going on on deck for the control of the steering apparatus. We find our chief duty in sending up supplies from the cargo for the use of the combatants.

This may not seem a glorious office. It does not seem so to Dr. Eliot. Nevertheless it is important. There must be ballast or the ship may turn turtle; and it is handy for the combatants to have someone to lobst supplies. But gross international outrage like that of the execution—quite properly described as a judicial murder, since it had no justification in the practice of war or the decrees of life understood by civilized nations—of Captain Fryatt. Obviously retaliation in kind is out of the question. To descend to it would be to place ourselves on the moral level of those whom we are all the neutral world condemn. Yet, short of what we require have we except protests which will neither deter the transgressor from repeating his crime nor induce in him any sentiment of regret or of self-condemnation? Obviously the dilemma was fully present to Mr. Asquith's mind when he replied to Sir Edward Carson's question. He evaded it by promising punishment, but postponing it till the end of the war. The government, he said, "are determined to bring to justice the criminals, whoever they may be and whatever station they hold. That would no doubt be an excellent thing if it could be done, but it is not an excellent thing to proclaim the intention if there is no serious expectation of translating it into fact. And we are obliged to ask who exactly are meant by the criminals of high station indicated. Who is responsible for these atrocities? Obviously not the instruments employed in their execution, nor probably those who gave them their orders, nor, it may be, even the superiors of these. How far are we to pursue the chain of responsibility, and if we are to execute true justice can we stop short of ministers of state, of the generals in the field, and of the head of the state, who in Germany certainly exercised a very real personal responsibility and power? Is this what Mr. Asquith really means, and, if so, does he seriously intend to include this provision in the terms of peace? Sir Edward Carson, who has what the French call a very positive mind and sees things pretty clearly, makes a suggestion which is perhaps closer in reality. He did not explain exactly what he meant by excluding Germany from the count of nations. "But, clearly, what is needed is not to threaten personal punishments which it will be almost impossible to apportion even if we are in a position to exact them, but to bring to bear on the men and the nation who have violated all the decrees of warfare and the restraints of civilization the effective pressure of the judgment of the civilized world."

"TODY" HAMILTON

Famous Because of His Work As Circus Advertiser

Had Traveled the World; First of Press Agents; Millions Charmed by His Choice of Adjectives

The Times last week announced the death of Richard F. Hamilton, known the length and breadth of the country as "Tody." He died in his home in Baltimore. "The noblest Roman" among all the press agents was in his scientific year and had been in ill health for several years.

"Tody" Hamilton had a career that never was chronicled adequately. From time to time in the last twenty-five years little snatches of his life have been printed, but as the result of his incurable modesty the full story has not appeared. Any one who wanted to interview "Tody" found him bubbling over with good stuff about the circus, about European traveling, about the thousands of newspaper offices that he had been in, but invariably discovered that he stammered and halted when it came to talking about himself.

Although he was born in New York, Mr. Hamilton was more familiar with thousands of American and European cities than his own birthplace. His idea of taking a vacation after traveling with the circus all year was to drop in on Coney Island.

Powers Charmed Millions.

"Tody" came from a family of newspaper men. His grandfather and father were writers, and at the age of twelve he was in the game, turning out "help wanted" advertisements. Few persons read his prospects in those days, but later on in life, when he became the keeper of the adjectives of the Barnum & Bailey circus, millions of persons fell under the charm of his power. He was the man who dished off the circus programmes, posters, advertisements and all reading matter for the big show. The marvels of alliteration that smote softly upon the ears and sang their way into the minds of the ticket buying populace have become so famous that they have come pretty near being household words.

The newer generation of circus press agents, talented men all of them, have today followed in the path that "Tody" blazed with the splendors of his rhetoric. One might almost say he created a new branch of literature. His words were translated into many of the languages of the continent. Fourteen years ago, when he returned from abroad, he brought with him a Hamiltonian effusion in Magyar.

"We couldn't go to Spain or Russia," said "Tody" on that occasion, "because the gauge of their railroads didn't fit our cars. That is why I didn't have a chance to study Spanish and Russian. I regret that I couldn't look at a translation of one of our posters in Russian describing the greatest showtwitch on earth."

As for the missionary work that Hamilton did in Europe, convincing the editors and the public that his circus was about the most wonderful aggregation of marvels on top of the earth, that is a story all by itself.

Before he joined the circus Mr. Hamilton worked for W. A. Coup, who had an aquarium in New York, where the Herald Square theatre later stood. When Coup bought a circus, Mr. Hamilton made his first plunge into press agent work. It was in 1881 that he joined the Barnum forces. He was so successful that it didn't take him long to catch the public eye. Old timers must recall that famous episode of the alleged white elephant from Siam which had been put on exhibition by rival circus.

Before a gathering of scientists he demonstrated—yes, that was the best he did, demonstrate, and as the years rolled on he did more and more demonstrating for publicity purposes—that it was mighty easy to make a sacred white elephant from Siam if one had the right kind of chemicals.

Tried Many Lines.

By scientific demonstrating "Tody" got the circus into the paper more frequently than any other American institution. When the state was about to use electricity instead of the hangman's noose for the execution of criminals, Hamilton had experiments conducted with different kinds of animals.

He published magazines and newspapers, he invented things, he took a try at the brokerage business more than once. He worked at one time for Kostr & Bial. He is said to have been the first man who thought of holding a ball in Madison Square Garden and of running off six day roller skating contests.

Somewhat or other his ideas seemed to flow more smoothly in the circus business than in any other and he was acknowledged to be the kingpin of the publicity men of the sawdust circuit. To hear him dilate upon the science of publicity was highly educational.

"Exaggerate? Certainly not. It is the duty of the press agent to be enthusiastic and to entertain. The press agent

THE MUTILATED SOLDIER PROBLEM

Few more important works are being performed in connection with the war than that of the inappropriately named Hospitals Commission, whose real chief function is to provide for the restoration to economic usefulness of the mutilated soldier. At the present stage of events, the work of this commission is chiefly concerned with organizing vocational training and generally preparing the machinery for the handling of the wounded men from the moment when they are fit to leave the hospitals and convalescent stations; but there is also a most important function which is engaging its attention, namely the production of a proper public opinion as to the treatment of the returned wounded and their true economic position and requirements. It is in the highest degree important that the Canadian public should not make the mistake of thinking that a life of pensioned idleness is the proper reward—the best reward, the most generous reward, or the kindest reward—for it most certainly is not. It is infinitely better for the men themselves and for the community to which they belong, that they should be given (regardless of expense) the training necessary to fit them for whatever economic callings they are physically and mentally able to perform, and then encouraged to earn the proper reward of industry and trained efficiency by pursuing one of such callings—the earnings being of course additional to a pension calculated to make up, so far as possible, the economic loss which they have suffered through their mutilation.

The treatment of mutilated soldiers in this war is totally different from that which has been practiced in any past conflict. There has never before been any organized and disciplined effort to educate the wounded for those numerous vocations for which their wounds leave them fitted; a "laissez-faire" policy has always regarded the duty of the

Shamrocks Win First of Series

Defeat Maples By a Score of 6 to 1; Game Interesting After the First Inning

The first game of the series between the Shamrocks and Maples of St. Peter's baseball league was played last evening and resulted in a win for the former. The score ended 6 to 1, but the game was more evenly contested than this would indicate.

The Maples won the toss and took the field, but before they returned to the bench their opponents had scored four runs. This was due to the fact that their pitcher, O'Connor, did not have an opportunity to warm up and as a result he was quite wild and was hit freely. He was replaced by Dever, who pitched well.

The Shamrocks played like champions and it was not until two men were out in the last inning that the Maples were able to get a score across the plate. McMurray singled and stole second and was driven home by Hansen, who doubled to left field.

The Maples chose on three former Roses, Hansen, Harrington and McMurray, who added considerable strength to the team.

The box score follows:

Shamrocks		Maples
A. B. R. H. P. O. A. E.		A. B. R. H. P. O. A. E.
Kelley, cf	3	1	1	0	1	0

Summary—Triple play, Hansen to McGovern to McMurray; two base hits, Hansen, Elliott; home run, Haggerty; struck out, by Elliott, 6; by O'Connor, 1; by Dever, 3; bases on balls, by Elliott, 1; by O'Connor, 4; Dever, 1; time of game 1 hour and 5 minutes; umpire, Lynch.

The next game will be played on Monday night and as McGovern and Hansen will in all probability form the battery for the Maples the game should prove interesting.

SPORT NEWS OF THE DAY HOME AND ABROAD

GOLF.

Drove Ball 355 Yards.

From the west comes news that Robert A. Gardner of the Hinsdale County Club, national amateur golf champion, is driving a long ball as ever from the tee, and those who saw him perform at Detroit last year know what that means. Playing at the Omaha Field Club recently he is reported to have driven 355 yards, or within ten yards of a 365-yard green, and to have reached another green 465 yards away with a drive and a mashie-niblick.

Some of the western courses become "hard-baked" at this season of the year, and that comes to the rescue of the 365-yard drive of the amateur champion, for eastern golfers are rather skeptical of great drives made somewhere beyond the bounds of civilization, where there may be only thirty inches or so in a yard. On the subject of Gardner's driving, however, a remark made by Gardiner White, himself a long hitter, is "flattering." He said that when he was playing with the amateur champion in the west last year he was being outdistanced so far that he thought his driver was cracked until he looked at the distance markers and found he was driving at his top form.

BOSTON GIRL LEAPS TO DEATH IN NEW YORK

Violet Bishop, Patient in Hospital, Jumps from Fourth Story Window While Delirious

New York, Aug. 26.—Violet Bishop, a twenty-one year old pneumonia patient in Presbyterian Hospital, climbed over a three foot wire guard in a window in a ward on the fourth floor at 8:30 a. m. and jumped to the ground. She died in the hospital about half an hour later, of internal injuries.

The hospital authorities said that Miss Bishop jumped from the window while in a delirium such as is usually associated with pneumonia.

Miss Bishop was a native of Boston. She was the support of a widowed mother and a graduate of the Sargent School of Physical Training. Her specialty was playground work and she was brought to New York seven months ago by Miss Margaret Shearer, the head worker of the Varick street house.

Miss Bishop was assigned to a playground at Edgewater, N. Y., as instructor. On Saturday she complained of being ill, and was sent to the Presbyterian Hospital, where it was found she was suffering from pneumonia.

ST. ANDREWS DOES 'ITS BIT'

As a result of a self-denial day held in St. Andrews on the 22nd inst., the ladies of that town have secured contributions of more than $611 for the British Sailors' Relief fund. Mr. Fenwick, the secretary of the fund, writes the local secretary that both Victoria and Vancouver have taken hold of the fund in an enthusiastic manner and have appointed strong committees.

Montreal a week's celebration at Dominion Park is being planned for the benefit of the Sailors' fund. It is to be known as "Sailors' Week."

The Man In The Street

Do You Get This?

When is a man on the right side of the street? When is on his left. This answer might appeal to some, but it did not appeal to a recent delinquent who faced the police court recently for driving on the wrong side of Main street. The alleged offender saw that he was liable to a fine of $18 for being on his right side, but on his right side meant on his life side, and by being on the left side he would be on the right side according to law, but would be on the left side according to the position of his left and right hand. During the alleged violation, the driver of the team was told to keep to his right side. This he did, and by following the instructions of the officer he went to the right side and he should have been on the left side, when he would have escaped the arm of the law by being on his right side. The defender refused to see the difference between right, as opposite to wrong and right as opposite to left. Incidentally the "game" got the man's release and a heavy fine was allowed "to stand."

THREE NEW TEACHERS FOR FAIRVILLE SCHOOL

Necessary to Open a New Room Because of Increase in Attendance

On next Monday morning the Fairville school will reopen after the holidays and a good attendance is looked for. It has been found necessary to place a new grade 3 to relieve the overcrowded class and a room upstairs in the new building has been prepared for occupancy.

This work has been done by Contractor Perry Kelly during the holidays since he has prepared a room in which not only the teacher but also the scholars should take pride as everything is entirely new.

Miss Douglas and Miss Gorman of Arthur's staff have both retired and their successors, with the teacher for the extra room make three new teachers. They are Miss Vera Smith, Miss Miss Jansson of Woodstock, and Miss Jamieson of North End.

While classes have not yet been definitely allotted by the trustees, it is likely that Miss Smith will have Grade one, Miss Jansson Grade three and Miss Jamieson Grade four.

The outside of the Point school has been nicely painted. There is no change in the teaching staff.

On Friday evening the board of trustees were in communication with the St. John Board of Health officials and it is understood the same sanitary measures adopted this year in the city will be carried out in the Fairville school.

LETTERS OF SYMPATHY COME FROM OTTAWA TO FATHER OF ST. JOHN HERO

C. F. Chamberlain of 27 Clarence street, whose son, Private Harold Chamberlain, was killed in action on August 12, has received letters of condolence from the prime minister and members of the government and also from Hon. J. D. Hasen. Mr. Hasen's letter reads as follows:

Ottawa, Aug. 21.

Dear Mr. Chamberlain:

It was with feelings of very great regret that I learned today of the death in action on August 12, of your son, Private Harold Chamberlain.

I am writing this letter for the purpose of extending my sincere sympathy to you in your sad bereavement. Nothing of course can lessen the effect of the blow and of the sorrow caused to you and his family and intimate friends, but at the same time it is a satisfaction to know that he died serving his country, fighting in defence of those who are left at home and of the free institutions that are so dear to the heart of every Canadian and Britisher.

The letter from the prime minister and members of the government reads:

The prime minister and members of the government of Canada send their deepest sympathy in the bereavement which you have sustained.

BOY HOME AFTER A WEEK IN THE OPEN

Ten boys from the Knights of King Arthur of the Fairville Baptist Church have just returned from Morna where they spent most of this week camping in the direction of R. P. E. Haywards. The boys were divided into two groups, the Wis-bangs and Buck-eyes, and certainly had a great time. The day's programme was as follows:

7 a. m.—Physical drill on beach and morning dip, followed by half hour of Bible study, then breakfast.

From nine to eleven o'clock scout games in the woods followed by a swim and then a big dinner. After an hour's rest (necessary after the meal), an hour of amusement was allowed, each lad providing his own fun. Later games were played, another swim enjoyed and supper was served.

When tea was over the boys gathered wood for a big blaze on the beach, and after the fire had been lighted Mr. Hayward gave the boys a talk on the standard and efficiency tests. Stories and songs followed by evening prayers concluded the happy day.

The Wis-bangs, under leadership of William Harris, were winners in three contests, driving best map of the neighborhood, best swimmers, fastest berry pickers.

The Biggles, captained by Wallace Forgy, also led in three tests, hare and hound race, best washers, kept neatest quarters.

Smart Styles in Boys' Clothing

How About That School Suit?

Boys who wear Oak Hall Clothes are right up to the day in style — parents need but to please themselves and the boys as to materials, and may rest assured that the style is correct and that the fit will be carefully seen to before the sale is consummated.

Government Acts to End Practice Tending to Bring Services into Disrepute

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—As a result of abuse which has grown up since the war in connection with the wearing of military and naval uniforms, medals and the like by those who are not entitled to do so, the government has taken action to prevent a recurrence of this. Regulations have been enacted under the authority of the War Measures Act which prohibit the unauthorized wearing of uniforms, medals, etc., under pain of penalties provided. The order-in-council passed is as follows:

"Whereas, during the period of the present war there has grown up a practice which tends to bring the military and naval services into disrepute, to discourage recruiting, to weaken military discipline and facilitate the commission of frauds, the practice, namely of the wearing of military or naval uniforms and decorations and medals by persons not authorized or entitled to wear them, therefore, if any unauthorized person wears any naval or military uniform or any uniform so nearly resembling any such uniform as to be calculated to deceive or if any person without lawful authority supplies a naval or military uniform to any person not being a member of His Majesty's forces or of the Canadian militia, or if any person without authority or right wears a naval or military decoration or medal he is guilty of an offence under the criminal code and on summary conviction is liable to a penalty not exceeding $50, and in default of payment is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months.
