Practising and Preaching.

Very few persons—the clergy excepted—practice what they preach in all things. They don't act on their convictions of right and justice, because an expenditure of time or money would be required. Mr. Wm. Francis of Willow Grove is not one of this class. He came into our office the other day and said: "I like the WEEKLY TRIBUNE, like a dollar's worth, and he paid for it a year in advance. What do you think of the School Law, Mr. Francis?" "I like it like the full amount of my taxes, and I paid them promptly."

"You are not among the Free School men who wait for the termination of the assessment, then?"

"No, sir; I do as the Quaker did. He was one of a crowd that gathered around a poor man who had lost his horse. They said they were very sorry. The Quaker took and said, 'I'm sorry—sorry to the amount of fifty cents; how sorry are you, and you, and you?' Now I believe in the School Law to the amount of my taxes, and I paid them every cent."

M. McLEOD, BUSINESS MANAGER.

The School Law is giving great satisfaction all over the Province to all who do not object to it on religious grounds. In St. Stephen, says the Courier, "the registers show an aggregate attendance of 400, against less than 200 under the old system; and it is gratifying to learn that the largest taxpayers—those who are most interested peculiarly—are gradually accepting the law, and manifesting a desire to see its provisions successfully carried out." The children of the Catholic poor have reason to bless the law, as it caused the Catholic Schools to be thrown open to them free of charge.

The prospect is that there will be no justification at the opening of the "International" to Halifax on Monday the 11th, there being no fund from which the necessary funds can be conveniently drawn. In this emergency we suggest the raising of the required sum by subscription. We are not so accustomed to railway openings as to be able to afford to let them pass uncelebrated. If nobody has made any money out of the road, which he is willing to spend for the purpose, let those who expect to make money by using it for commercial purposes supply the coin.

One of the most serious results of the horse distemper in the rural districts, is the stoppage of the mails. Whatever our troubles in comparison with those of the farmer deprived of communication with the world? We fancy the parish that had no mail, and that the mail arrived late, would be a more grievous affliction than the loss of the mails.

The Upper House of the Prussian Diet is playing the part of Upper Houses the world over—that of obstructing reforms. It refuses to obey Bismarck in his character of leader of the Liberals, and rejects the Reform Bill. It held immediately, says a cable dispatch, it was proposed.

NOTES AND NEWS.

A notorious anecdote is the title awarded a runaway horse by the Halifax papers. The united tale of an unbroken family of twelve children in Eildon, County, N.S., is 804 years.

The Emperor of Germany has conferred on Hepworth Dixon, the decoration of the Knight of the Golden Cross.

The surveys for the enlargement of the Welland Canal have been completed, and the necessary plans and specifications are being prepared.

The Ottawa Free Press says that the Board of Selectmen, or Court of Revision, Newark, have decided that a woman shall have the right to vote.

Carelessness in setting broken bones is a boy's hand at Teddiss, says the Sackville Post, forced Dr. Bleak to amputate the hand in order to save the boy's life.

George E. Wilson, the theatrical manager, has gone into bankruptcy in Newfoundland. An attempt made by some of his creditors to show fraud proved unsuccessful.

The Dominion Public Works have entered upon the execution of some of the improvements in the inland navigation of British Columbia, for which provision was made at the last session of Parliament.

At Liverpool, N. S., last week the barn of Mr. B. O. DeWolf, which was valued at $10,000, was burned down wantonly. The lock of the barn had been forced, and kerosene oil, it is thought, poured on the floor to make it burn.

Louis Piolet, Reg., of Andover, Victoria County, was severely injured last week, says the Trinidad Express, by falling from a hay mow. He struck on his knee and side, breaking the knee cap, and bruising his body in several places.

Mr. W. T. Urquhart, late editor of the Omega Times, was presented, by the employees of the office, with an address and a beautiful lantern, letter case and gold pen on the occasion of his retirement from journalism. OUR TRIBUNE.

One of the saddest sights in this season of the year is a young man who has waited outside the church on an evening until he is chilled through, only to see his girl walk off with some rascal who has been inside all the time taunting his sinful self at the stove.

In Sacramento, Cal., on Wednesday, the jury in the case of McLaughlin, found him guilty of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was allowed to leave the courtroom, accompanied by an officer. He visited the saloons about town, but has not since been heard from.

The Bangor Commercial says: "The Halifax Reporter complains of body-scratchers operating thereabouts. There are several bodies herabouts that we would gladly see scratched over before being placed in the antinegro graves to which they are destined." The Tribune agrees with this sentiment.

The death sentence of Joanna Hamilton, the Newfoundland murderess, has been commuted to imprisonment for life with hard labor. St. John's Chronicle says "this act of clemency, though perhaps undesired, will not think not be followed up with our people, in whose breast pity often takes the place of justice."

The Bangor Commercial is happy amid the raging epidemic. It says, under the heading of Heaven be Praised: "We are sensibly happy to be able to state that the prevailing epidemic has attacked the fellow family. It was but a day or two ago that a much respected and pious friend said that the distemper was a 'blessed plague in disguise.' We believe it now. The midnight choir is silenced, and we soon shall request that prayers be offered in the churches for the long continuance and fatal termination of the disease among outcasts."

In New York, Thursday night, Mr. Geo. Volt, a German merchant, 70 years of age, was found lying dead on the bed, with a pistol ball wound in his head from which his brains were issuing. The pistol was still tightly grasped in his right hand. No cause could be assigned for the act. Mr. Volt was much esteemed as an honorable and upright man.

Great excitement was caused at Moorestown, Ont., this week, by finding a laborer named Jas. Workman dead in his bed with evidences of having come to a violent end. An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict to the effect that Mr. Workman came to his death from violence inflicted by his wife, or by Samuel Butler, or by both. Mrs. Workman and Butler have been taken to Saratoga jail.

Under the heading of Poor Fellows the Ottawa Citizen tells this tale: A young man who parts his hair in the middle and suks a cane, entered our station this morning and handed us a poem for publication. Below we give the opening stanza. We learned from the unhappy youth that he had attended the Ruderodoff concert and heard the great soprano sing "She was a Weep of Roses." He was so enchanted with the melody that he knocked off work for eight days, and poem of the following—

She wore a Dilly Garden,
The night was fustiest and wet;
Her chip hat, like a garden,
With posies gay was set.
Thumping down the street,
While brawlers met the wear;
Her skirts spread out from wall to wall,
And dusted all the street.

The crew of the ship "Ironides" which arrived at Savannah, from Liverpool on the 25th ult., refused to proceed with the vessel to Mobile, to which port she was ordered. The ship was beyond Tybee at the time, but the Captain, finding them unwilling to go, returned and anchored the vessel. The former was cleared at Liverpool for any port in the United States and the crew was accordingly; the latter for Savannah and the crew so engaged. By some mistake the crew of the "Ironides" got on board of the "Ironides," and having shipped for Savannah only were willing to proceed to that port. The Captain considering that he had no right, in this case, to use force, yielded; the only course now left for him to pursue is to await the arrival of the "Congress," and then make an exchange of crews.

An Array of Hard Names.

The details and accidents of the epidemic distemper will add a queer chapter to the science of history. Were that careless historian of New Amsterdam, Diedrich Knickerbocker, to return again to continue his labors and relate the story of recent difficulties, the unutterable pandemonium, disastrous projects and chaotic achievements of the Dutch Government would sink into insignificance before the curious episodes of the past week.

The prospects of selecting a proper head promises to be attended with so many difficulties that it may be well to set about considering what's in a name? Gotham has suggested hippo-malaria, the epileptic, the mysterious malady, the staggering steeds and Bergh's Horror, and hippomonias; and nearer home the euphonious pseudonyms of typhoid laryngitis, hippotipoid, epitipoid, epitipoid influenza, horse-aphony, horse distemper, horse plague, plagued equine and stricken steeds have been conspicuously flaunted. The aspect of the streets has been viewed as a scene of epidemic malady, and the slumbering pavement. What a Thesaurus might have done in a question. It certainly could not have enabled men to make a more striking panorama of vowels and consonants.

Horseshoes on the Border.

The Courier reports that the prevailing disease made its appearance in St. Stephen and Calais on Saturday last. A truck horse belonging to Mr. E. Kelly was taken sick on that day and died on Tuesday. The horses of Messrs. Hardy & Bridges and Foster & McKinnik are all down with it; but with the exception of the one in the stable of the first-named firm, the cases are all of a mild type. The heavy stables in Calais are mostly closed and on both sides of the river the disease has been confined to private stables. A diseased horse was taken from St. John in the steamer, by a person belonging to Liverpool, on Saturday, and his landing was forbidden by the Mayor and Council; but when it was found that the horse was already in town, he was allowed to land on Monday morning.

Killed at the Avill by the Explosion of a Tube.

A young man named Patrick Kennedy was severely injured Tuesday afternoon, at Mr. John Hunter's brass foundry, Halifax, says the Express, that he died next morning. The deceased was holding on the axis in the smelting room a hollow pipe of brass, which was being broken up for smelting purposes. One end of the brass had been heated, and as Mr. Hunter struck it with a sledge the hollow tube exploded, there being no escape for the gas generated inside. It is supposed that the pipe was damp when put into the fire. A piece of the brass, about two feet long and four inches in diameter, struck Kennedy in the stomach, knocking him down on the floor. He was picked up and taken to his home in lower Water Street.

The "Glenden's" Trip.

Mr. T. D. McDonald, managing owner of the steamer "Glenden," requests us to state that the "Glenden" will continue to run on the route between St. John, Portland and Boston. She arrived in Boston on her last trip on Monday morning in 38 hours, and not in 50 hours as stated by the Morning News of this date.

Another Robbery.

A man named Ross was robbed of $100 in bills by some parties in the vicinity of the King Square a few nights since. The matter it is said has not been laid before the police.

The Cambria Iron Works Rising from its Ashes in Three Days.

The works of the Cambria Iron Company at Johnston, Pa., which were destroyed by fire on Sunday, the 13th Oct., went into operation again on the 16th. The employees get the labor gratuitously to be repaid the company. The works, while the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and large manufacturers in Philadelphia furnished cars, tools and materials to effect this unexpected resurrection. The raw materials, such as their coals, coal and carbonaceous iron ore, are taken out of the adjacent hills, and thrown from the mouths of the mines into shutes, which carry them down to the level of the top of the cupolas, in which the ore is melted into pig iron.

Prof. Stone will give his last farewell lecture under the distinguished patronage of his friends in particular, and the public generally, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 5th.

Dangerous Drifters.

Wm. Dwyer and Mark Powers live on Brussels street, and are too fond at times of a little liquor. Last night they got no other, and in attempting to move a stove pipe up it and set on fire the bed, and the imminent danger of the premises. They were arrested this morning and fined $5 each.

Attempted Burglary.

About 11 o'clock last night an unknown man gained access to the grounds of Mr. Miller, gardener, off Water Street, and attempted to raise one of the windows of the dwelling house. The noise was heard by Mr. Miller, who prepared to go out to secure the stranger, but Mrs. Miller changing her mind saw the man again approaching and this time armed with a plank by which to force an entrance. Becoming alarmed, she knocked at the window, when the man seeing he was discovered turned and fled. In the darkness of the night it was impossible for Mr. Miller to follow, and he would be burglar escaped.

SERIAL NOTICE—Complimentary notice to Professor Stone, Tuesday evening Nov. 5th.

Still Another Drugging Burglary.

A TAILOR'S SHOP ROBBED OF ALL ITS READY-MADE GOODS AND THE BURGLES UNKNOWN.

The rapidity with which one burglary has followed another during the past few nights cannot be deemed otherwise than extraordinary, and it would seem that no man can retire with a feeling that against the shops of burglars his property has the slightest security. A few nights ago the store of Mr. John McNamara was entered and money and goods carried off; following this came the Bartsch robbery; on Friday night the Sears drug store was entered; but the most daring of all burglaries occurred last night, when the tailor-shop of Mr. S. Hollis was entered and a large portion of his stock carried off by parties unknown. The store is situated on the corner of German and Church streets, the door being on the former. On the Church street side is a common window, the sill of which is about seven feet from the sidewalk. On the opposite corner is a gas lamp which was burning last night when Mr. Hollis left. This morning it was found that the shop had been entered by raising the window and reaching the workroom and from thence to the other portions of the shop. The articles taken were nearly all the coats belonging to customers, and which were at least valued at $150, besides a quantity of cotton and pieces of cloth. Scarcely an article remained untouched by being cut with some dull instrument, as the goods were evidently packed in bundles before being taken away. During all this time the window must have been up and a lamp burning, while the party entered their booty from the window to the street. It is surprising that the burglars were not seen either by the police or other parties, and it really appears that for the safety of the public and the credit of the police, some measures should be taken to punish the offenders and prevent the repetition of such lawless acts.

Man Missing.

A laboring man named John O'Donald has been missing since last night. He was an employe of the Sewerage and Water Department and had charge of the lamps placed on excavations being made in Charlotte, Princess and Prince William streets. After placing and lighting his lamps last night he went home to tea and left again to attend to his duty about 7 o'clock, since which time no information has been had of him. He is about 50 years of age, of medium height, spare build, sandy complexion and face slightly pitted. He was a man of steady habits and exceedingly civil and faithful; and from the fact that all the lamps in his charge were found burning at daybreak this morning, it is inferred that they must have been visited and trimmed late in the night. He had no money about him and taken it to his wife at tea time, when he gave directions for the preparation of some supper at midnight. This is the second man who has disappeared mysteriously from our city within the past three weeks.

Man Missing.

The Circulation of the Daily Tribune is rapidly increasing.

Steamers.

The "Soud" arrived in the harbor from Digby and Annapolis, last evening between 9 and 10 o'clock, having made the trip in a little over 24 hours. The Captain reports heavy weather in the Bay. She left this morning at her usual hour.

The "New Brunswick" left Portland last evening at 7.30 o'clock and will probably reach here about 7 p. m. to-day. The "New York" has not been heard from since she left here.

The "Seymour" sailed at noon to day for London.

The "City of St. John" still remains in port, being detained by the storm. She was ordered to sail, but had to return.

The Price of Folly.

During the month ending the 30th of September the amount of fines collected at the City Police Office was $384.79.

Regiment for Rabbits.

One of the mortars for Major Rabbits, who suddenly departed this city between two days, has written the following obituary stanza, for which we gladly give place—at the usual price of ten cents a line.

He told us grandly he was here—
Rabbit, king of mirth and magic,
And that before us he'd appear
In various forms of stratagems.

His tricks were various, some were good,
The last one played met interference,
And sundry days had hopes he would
Not make this magic disappearance.

They told us gently he was gone:
Then Daffy mourned and printers gumbled;
And tradesmen swore when, ere the dawn,
The tumbler from the city tumbled.

For Arab like he silent packed
His tent, and left behind no traces:
And such it may be will occur
To some of us, ere many traces.

Now ready, finely executed Lithography of the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception, St. John, published by and for sale at the office of the St. John and Halifax Lithograph Company, 1 Church Street.

Another Result of the Horse Disease.

A result, uncomfortable for all parties concerned, was shown, to arise from the Horse Disease, in connection with the Police Department this morning. Several prisoners unable to pay their fines were committed to the penitentiary, by some account of the sickness of the horse which usually draws the van the police were compelled to walk their prisoners to the place of destination. The morning being wet and the roads muddy, the operation was not agreeable.

Moths at the Marsh.

Three young men named George Currier, Daniel Griffin and John Griffin were complained of at the Police Court this morning by Dumas McDonald for assault. It appears that a night or two since McDonald who lives near the corner of Brunst street caught some one of a crowd belonging to the neighborhood rapping at the window. As one went for that youth and succeeded in catching him, but was not successful in getting him, he went for the man who was with the crowd who went for that Mr. McDonald, whereupon the latter said, while his assailants followed with such encouraging cries as "Kill him, kill him," and other language of the same nature. Mr. McDonald was not killed, but caused three of the crowd to be arrested this morning; and their trial took place. The prosecutor versus positively to all the parties being in the crowd, though his assertions were positively denied by the defendants. He further detailed a long list of grievances such as setting his blind on fire, &c., and expressed himself in fear of his life at night. He was sharply questioned in Court by the defendants until at last he threatened to "give them in charge" if they stopped their insolence. After a large amount of argument on both sides the prisoners were fined $30 each.

THE DAILY TRIBUNE is not excelled as a city advertising medium.

Greenbacks at a Discount.

Mr. John Turnbull, the last man in St. John to be taken in by shippers, has received a letter from "Fraternally yours, Reid, Dalzell & Co., No. 88 Broadway, New York," offering him the St. John agency for the sale of genuine, but fraudulently issued by the Treasury clerks. The following newspaper extract is enclosed, and many more to be that will be received thereby.

The authorities in the Treasury Department at Washington have been considerably astounded concerning an over issue of "Greenbacks." It seems that some time ago the printing department was required to furnish quite a large amount, and in getting the paper ready a mistake occurred involving an over issue of many million dollars. "This excess came into the hands of the printers, who were understood to be offering it at a great discount. Of course the money being perfectly genuine is as good as any ever issued.
