A Momentous Question!

The great question under discussion now—not in rural lycæums, but in leading journals—is whether Americans love the English. For a fortnight Smith has been the champion in an address at Sheffield by stating that his "observation in the United States convinced him that feeling against England is very high and very deep-rooted." The Times expressed concern, the Telegraph wept aloud, and the Pall Mall Gazette suggested that "after all, the love of America is not absolutely essential to our national or individual existence. The earth will revolve, the sun will shine (occasionally at least), seed-time and harvest will regularly each other with the same regularity whether the Americans hate us or whether they do not." Then the Times, the great sheet, writes to the Times that forty years' study convinces him that "the Americans, as a people, entertain for the English a profound and sincere friendship." The Gazette replies that if Barnum can get up an exhibition of Americans who profoundly and sincerely love England, he can make more money than he ever did by any other show. Prof. Tyndall, and every other Englishman who has ever been in the States, has had or is expected to have, something to say on this momentous question, and the New York papers are discussing it volubly and anxiously.

Well, we suppose the truth is that Goldwin Smith is about half right. We don't love England in this country. We like the Englishmen very well, but John Bull considered as a collective entity we don't like. Such—we are sorry to say—is the real sentiment at the bottom of every Yankee heart.

No Englishman or Canadian who has lived in the United States any length of time will question the statement of the Sun. Individuals are welcomed, honored, loved; but the nation is derided and disliked.

"It never rains but it pours," especially in Nova Scotia. Of the fifteen lectures yesterday the Ministry carried all but three. There were two laughable farces—one in Halifax, where Mr. Robb was put up by the funny man of the Reporter as the workman of the candidate, and the other in Cumberland, where Mr. Hibbard was run in opposition to Hon. Dr. Tupper. It was really believed by some that Cumberland would disgrace himself by giving Dr. Tupper the cold shoulder in his adversity. This shows how poor an opinion some people have of their fellows. Mr. Hibbard was the strongest man, for many reasons, that could have been run by the Local and Dominion Governments, and his defeat was decisive. Hon. Mr. Anand had set his heart on electing Mr. Hibbard; but he and his iron mine, and his coal mine, and the Parrsboro Railway, and the promised subsidies, have failed.

If Gladstone had waited until now Wolsley's bloodless triumph would have been of much service to him in the election contest. England seems destined to be the conqueror and civilizer of Africa. The Ashantee war, like other apparently unproductive expeditions, may pay in the end. Wolsley will, doubtless, take the indemnity in land, at his own valuation.

Edward Jenkins must have been agreeably surprised at his election for Dundee, which he personally canvassed a few months ago in vain. He is not in accord with Gladstone, being more radical than the Premier, but he will support him for the sake of keeping the Tories out.

Nova Scotia News.
A Company is being formed to provide steam accommodation between Halifax and St. Pierre via Sydney, Cape Breton, and French Mountains.
A woman named Munroe, living at Forchu Gut, Sydney, fell down stairs in her house on Sunday last, breaking two of her ribs and inflicting other serious injury.
Sometime on Monday some unknown person or persons secured an entrance into the vestry of St. Paul's Church, Halifax, stole a small sum of money which they found there, and wilfully destroyed a number of books and papers—the records of the church.

It was Dennis Oslawski, the Conservative candidate, who was elected in Gullford Saturday. His opponent was Gullford Oslawski, Liberal, who represented the borough in the late Parliament.

The Dominion Government have forwarded to the Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick a gold watch for presentation to Capt. John C. Wilson, who gallantly rescued the crew of the schooner Swordsail, of Miramichi.

The Budget Committee of the French Assembly have voted to recommend the appropriation of $800,000 for repairing the damage done during the last days of the Commune to public buildings in Paris, including the Tuilleries and Palais Royal.

The returns from Greenwich show that the vote for the two successful candidates is as follows:
Gladstone's vote in 1868 was 6,398.
Mr. Gladstone's vote in 1868 was 6,398.

The English Conservatives gained seats in Knaresborough, Maldon, Peterfield, Scarborough and Winchester. The Liberals gained two seats in Shrewsbury, and Mr. John Corbett, a Liberal, has defeated the Right Hon. Sir John Pakington, Conservative, and High Churchman, in Donk. At the last election Sir John had a majority of 187 over Mr. Corbett.

The Journal of Chemistry says that a chain of compressed gases of gun cotton tied around the trunk of a large tree and exploded will cut it down instantly by the violence of its action. The cut through the trunk is as sharp as that done by the keenest axe.

In Mexico, one State of which has recently adopted the jury system, all litigation has heretofore been decided by judges and magistrates. The result is universal corruption. Petty magistrates make no concealment of bribes and sale in court, and many even of the higher judges retire on comfortable fortunes at a suspiciously early period.

The lumbering camp of Matthew Gless, who belongs to Canaan Settlement, back of Coal Branch, Kent Co., was recently destroyed by fire during the day, when the occupants were absent. The parties lost all their bed clothes, apparel, and the other contents of the shanty. The camp was located between Canaan Settlement and the Intercolonial Railway.—Western Times.

The Pottsville, Pa., Mirror's Journal of the 20th says: "Prospect about the Lehigh Coal Company, about one and a half miles from Wilkesbarre, took fire on Sunday night at explosion of gas. The timber below is all on fire, and considerable damage seems inevitable. The smoke of the burning shaft can be seen from a distance, rising as it does two hundred feet above the opening. There are three fires on fire in the vicinity, the prospect, the Old Baltimore, and the Empire, all within a circle of two miles.

Mr. Gladstone addressed an assemblage of five thousand people at Newcastle on Monday. He confirmed the statement of Baron Rothschild that the proposed remission of taxes would cause a loss to the revenue of £2,000,000, which would have to be made good by new taxation. He declared the government's place of right in the contest, and placed it in relation to the abolition of the income tax or any measure of relief for the general people.

A. S. George telegraph says that Mr. Gilmour left Grand Manan in a fishing boat, on Monday evening, the 2nd inst., at nine o'clock, bound for St. Andrews, and was not seen again until the 10th. During the night the boat was overtaken by a violent snow storm, followed by a hail storm and a heavy rain. The boat did not reach the mainland until Wednesday evening the fourth inst., at six o'clock. Mr. Gilmour and the crew suffered severely from cold and exposure, and Mr. Gilmour escaped a severe illness.

The city of Lincoln, represented in the last English Parliament by two Liberals, returns Colonel Chaplin, a Conservative, and Mr. Charles Seely, one of the former members of the Liberal party. The contest was close and exciting and attended by great disorder. A large mob at one time seized possession of the streets; attacks were made on the polling places, windows were smashed and property was carried off. The military were finally called in and charged upon the mob. The mob was then dispersed, but the military were then charged upon the mob. The mob was then dispersed, but the military were then charged upon the mob.

The Murderers of Limours.
It is only when there is something of peculiar or mysterious interest about a murder that prominence should be given to the story of the crime. Such a case is the murder of the Limours, which attracted the attention of the criminal court at Rambouillet, in France, where the public officers are endeavoring to solve the mystery which hangs around the perpetration of a series of murders.

Early in January, 1873, an old gentleman named Limours and his wife were murdered in their little dwelling at about six o'clock in the evening, by the bright moonlight. The opinion of the magistrate and the surgeon, who were soon called to the spot, was that Madame Limours was struck dead by the assassins with a large wooden stake, which was afterward found; and that the husband, coming in soon after, was stunned in the same way by a blow on the skull. Their shrines were then cut, the head being almost severed from the body. The house was ransacked, and the bodies of the murdered couple were found in the fireplace.

Eight months passed, and Vaugrues, a neighboring village, was the scene of a murder of the next crime. On Sept. 24, at about 8 o'clock in the evening, the curate, who was coming to a Sunday school in the vicinity of Angerville, a village in the district of Limours, about half way between Paris and Orleans.

Christmas, in which the same method had been followed. Two old maid ladies who lived in an isolated farmhouse in the parish of Chateauguay were killed in their house about 9 o'clock in the evening. One of them was struck with a wooden stake at the threshold and the other was crushed by an iron bar in a last some packages of bank notes escaped the attention of the robbers.

We are told that the people in the surrounding country are terror-stricken. The doors are barricaded at nightfall, and no one dares whose turn will come next. The local selected for the commission of the crime and the manner in which death has been visited on each instance would indicate that the same individuals are guilty in all these cases. It is to be hoped that detection is not far distant. That it is possible, however, for murderers to escape for years is shown by the Roussin case, which has been revived in France, to confirm the theory that initiation is now preventing the discovery of the Angerville criminals.

In the year 1851 Francois Roussin, his wife, a young son, and an aged grand mother, were all found murdered in or near their dwelling in the country. A little child, six years of age, had been strangled by a blow at the hands of the murderer, but she did not die. Her father, however, was affected with a fatal disease, and he died shortly after.

The magistrate who conducted the inquiry was assisted in his labors by Michael Roussin, a mild, benevolent youth of about twenty years of age, who had been a servant of the Roussins for many years. The investigation was in vain. Years passed away, and another horrible five-fold murder was attempted. A man named Chabot and his wife and child were killed with a hatchet in much the same way as the Roussin family had been. But the murderer was not caught.

Michael Roussin was tried and condemned to death for the crime of which he was found guilty. He was executed on the 17th inst. The doctor immediately proceeded to the house with the messenger; but when they got inside, for some time he was unable to find the messenger. The messenger was then found in a room, and he was found to be a man who had been a servant of the Roussins for many years.

Adventure with a Maniac.
A doctor in Wales recently had a striking adventure, in which his conduct alone saved him from injury and probably from death. He was called upon in the evening by a man who desired him to go at once to see a patient who was very ill. A local paper gives the subsequent events as follows:

The doctor immediately proceeded to the house with the messenger; but when they got inside, for some time he was unable to find the messenger. The messenger was then found in a room, and he was found to be a man who had been a servant of the Roussins for many years.

Railway Accident.
The express train from St. John to Halifax yesterday met with a serious accident near Memramook. The train was drawn by two engines with a snow plough ahead. Without any apparent reason the snow plough jumped the track, and took with it the two engines and the rest of the train. The train ran along the steep embankment for some distance, when the plough was thrown off and turned round, carrying the first engine, which was thrown on its side, a complete wreck. The second engine and the rest of the train were not thrown from the road-bed, but all are more or less injured. The Halifax train and Shediac express were ordered to the scene of the accident, and the passengers, mails and baggage transferred, those for St. John being put on the Shediac express and those for Halifax going on with the returning train. The trains with Halifax mails, &c., arrived in St. John about an hour and a half late. A force of laborers was at once sent to the scene of the accident and the wrecked train will be removed and the track repaired so as not to interfere with the traffic to day.

The people have been so much imposed upon by several worthless Sarsaparilla, that we are glad to be able to recommend a preparation which can be depended on as containing the virtues of that valuable medicine, and is worthy of the public confidence. Dr. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures when anything can cure the diseases that require an alterative medicine.

Ship Property.—Operations in this market for the past month were quite limited, owing solely to the paucity of tonnage offering for sale. There is very good demand for desirable vessels, fitted to transatlantic and long voyages, but owners generally are not inclined to part with such property, deeming it the best investment to be made. The shipbuilders throughout the country are generally fully employed, and perhaps never more favorably so; but the present high prices demanded for new tonnage must eventually restrict this activity in a measure, until prices recede to a more moderate figure.

Ship Annals, and book A. Kennedy, owned here, have recently been sold in Europe. Sales here for the past month were: ship Holcom, 1200 tons register, built at Mystic, 1868, meted July, 1872, now bound to Valparaiso, private terms. Dark Ocean Home, 807 tons, built at Surrey, Me., 1856, meted August, 1872, about $8000. Brig Egerata, 207 tons, built in Wales, 1854, meted July, 1873, about $7200. Schr. Gresh Banker, 147 tons, built at Staten Island, 1863, meted January, 1872, (as auction) $425. (From A. J. Maguire's Circular, New York, Feb. 1.)

The police last night arrested William Jack in St. James street, and took him to the Station. This morning, on visiting him, his hands and other parts of his body were found to be badly frozen. His hands are very severely bitten, and were very painful. At the time of his arrest the man was too drunk to know what he was doing. The Magistrate sent him to the Public Hospital, where he can be properly treated. He is a stranger and a safe-faring man.

General Debility.
James H. Johnston, Esq., Montreal, wrote in August, 1873, as follows: "I find me great pleasure to bear testimony to the benefit received from using Feltz's Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites. Responsibility of an Editor.
Yesterday in the City Court, before the Common Clerk and Ald. Duffell, a rather interesting case was tried. Mr. Geo. Biddington sued Mr. W. P. Dole for $10, the amount of a note endorsed by Mr. Dole in 1870 and given to Mr. Biddington in payment of a debt of $6 and an advance of $4. Mr. Dole denied having been legally notified of the refusal of the drawer to pay the note, and Mr. Biddington claimed that Mr. Dole, subsequent to the dishonoring of the note, agreed to pay it. Mr. Kerr, on the plaintiff's behalf, contended that this verbal promise to pay the note was a discharge of the defendant's liability. Mr. Dole was subjected to a long cross-examination, and the law and evidence were argued at length by the attorneys. The court could not agree—Judge Peters holding that the defendant's liability had not been satisfactorily established, and Alderman Duffell holding that it had. Mr. Biddington will bring suit again next Thursday in the same court, and the trial will, doubtless, draw a crowd.
