Nationalist Gatherings.

Dublin, May 25.—Notwithstanding the Government had proclaimed the proposed Nationalist meeting in Tipperary, 2,000 persons met Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien and seven other members of Parliament on their arrival at Limerick Junction today, and a meeting was quickly organized. Speeches were made by Messrs. Dillon, O'Brien and John O'Connor. The police were powerless and had to content themselves with warning the speakers. After the meeting, the Nationalist members of Parliament drove to New Tipperary, where an attempt was made to hold another meeting. The police, however, stopped Mr. O'Brien when he attempted to speak and dispersed the crowd by a free use of their batons. Mr. O'Brien denounced the police as cowards, but he advised the people not to offer undue resistance as the Nationalist leaders desired to avoid bloodshed.

The Pigmies of the Great Forest Region of Central Africa—An Interesting Description.

[London Times.]
From the chimpanzees, baboons and onkeys, with which the forest abounds, is but a step, according to Darwinism, to the pigmy tribes whom we found inhabiting the tract of country between the Ihuru and Ituri rivers. They are known to exist by the father of poets nine centuries before the beginning of the Christian era. You may remember Homer wrote about the sanguinremember Homer wrote about the sangum-ary battle that was reported to have taken place between the pigmies and the storks. In the fifth century before Christ Herodo-tus described the capture of five young ex-place between the pigmies and the storks. In the fifth century before Christ Herodotus described the capture of five young explorers from Nassamoves while they were examining some curious trees on the Niger basin, and how the little men took them to their villages and showed them about to their fellow-pigmies, much as you would like us to show the pigmies. about England. The geographer Hekateus in the fifth century located the pigmies near the equator of Africa, under the shadows of the Mountains of the Moon, and I find that from Hipparchus downward geographers have faithfully followed the example of Hekateus, and nearly a year ago we found them where they had been located by tradition under the names of Watwa and Wambutti. The forest which we have been just considering extends right up to the base line of the Mountains of the Moon.

Near a place called Avetiko, on the Ituri River, our hungry men found the first male and female of the pigmies squatted in the midst of a wild Eden peeling plantains. You can imagine what a shock it was to the poor little creatures at finding themselves suddenly surrounded by gigantic Soudanese, 6 feet 4 inches in height and weight and black as coal. But my Zanzibaris, always more tender-hearted than Soudanese, prevented the clubbed rifle and cutlasses from extinguishing their lives there and then, and brought them to me as prizes in the same spirit as they would have brought a big hawk, moth, or mammoth longicom for inspection. As they stood tremblingly before me, I named the little man Adam and the miniature woman Eve, far more appropriate names in the wild Eden on the Ituri than the Vukukuru and Akiokwa which they gave us. As I looked at them and thought how these represented the oldest people on the globe, my admiration would have gone to greater lengths than scoffing cynics would have expected. Poor Greekish heroes and Jewish patriarchs, how their glory paled before the ancient ancestry of these manikins! Had Adam known how to assume a tragic pose, how fitly he might have said of Darkness, and, like the giants of the for-ests, we despise time and fate."

But, poor little things they said nothing of the kind. They did not know they were heirs of such proud and unequaled herit-age. On the contrary, their faces said clearly enough, as they furtively looked at one and the other of us. "Where have these big people come from? Will they eat one and the other of us. "Where have these big people come from? Will they eat us?" There were some nervous twitches about the angles of the nose and quick upliftings of the eyelids, and swift, searching looks to note what fate was in store for them. It is not a comfortable feeling which possesses a victim in the presence of a possible butcher, and a possible consumer of its flesh. That misery was evident in the little Adam and Eve of the African Eden. The height of the man was four feet, that of the woman a little less. He may have weighed about 85 pounds; the color of his body was that of a half baked brick, and a light brown fell stood out very clearly. So far as natural intelligence was concerned, within his limited experience, he was certainly superior to any black man in our camp. The mysteries of wooder of the could have given us valuable lessons how to find our way through the forest. It saw also that he could adapt himself to circumstances. If the pot was to end him, a very little shrinking only would betray his fear of pain; if he were to be treated affectionately none could be so ready to appreciate affection and kindness.

The volumentances if the pot was to end him, a very little shrinking only would betray his fear of pain; if he were to be treated affectionately none could be so ready to appreciate affection and kindness.

The volumentances is the coup, he grasps his leg to show us the size and nods his head rapidly, informing us that he knows where to find bananas of the size of his leg. One sees that he can exaggerate as well as Mark Twain. (Laughter.) We point to the four quarters of the compass, questioningly. He points to the sunrise in reply. "Is it rar?" He shows a hand's length. Ah, a good day' journey." Is there much food on the road?" He pats his abdomen lovingly with an artful smile and brings his two hands to a point in front of him, from which we may infer that our paunches will become like prostrate pyramids. We ask him why Avelike has so little food. The little man attempts to imit There were some nervous twitche place by their side a European, a Soudanese or a Madi they appear exceedingly diminutive. By the side of dwarfs at mature age a Zanzibari boy of 13 would appear large. The agricultural settlements in this region are to be found every nine or ten miles apart, and near each settlement at an hour's march distance will be found from four to eight pigmy villages situated along the path leading to it. The larger aborigines are very industrious, and form a clearing of from 400 to 1,000 acres. Amid the prostrate forests they plant their banana and plantain bulbs. In twelve months the postrate trees are almost hidden by the luxuriant fronds and abundant fruit of unrivaled quality, size and flavor. It would be easy to prove that in the forest an acre of banana plants produces twenty-five times more fruit than an acre of wheat produces in England. The pigmies appear to be aware that a banana plantation is inexhaustible, and to think that they have as much right to the produce as the aboriginal owners. Therefore they cling to these plantations and make the larger natives pay dearly for the honor of their acquaintance. In another manner they perform valuable service to them by warning them of the advance of strangers and assisting them to defend their settlements; they also trap game and birds, and supply the larger natives with peltry, feathers and meat. It appeared to me that the pigmies were regarded somewhat as parasites, whose departure would be more welcome than their vicinity. When honey and game, meat, peltry and feathers get low or scarce in the neighborhood the pigmies pack their household goods on their women's backs and depart elsewhere to attach themselves to some other plantations. A forest village consists of from 20 to 100 families of pigmies, and probably in that area between the Ihuru and Ituri rivers there are as many as 2,000 families living this nomadic and free life in the perpetual twilight of the great and umbrageous forests of equatorial Africa.

Upon arriving at the church Rev. S. J. Allin, the grand chaplain of the Sons of England in Canada, preached a very suitable discourse from St. Matthew, xxii., 21: "Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and unto God the things that are God's." He said this was one of Christ's mottoes, and it was a motto of the British nation, and it was also a motto of the Sons of England. France made a mistake when it supposed that liberty was the mother of light. It was just the other way, light was the mother of liberty, and light was that which the Bible was gradually sending into every part of the earth. Put the Bible in the hand of a man and the British flag around his shoulders, and he would never be a slave. There was no true liberty but that which was taught in the Bible. When a man understood the teachings of this book he knew that light, liberty and love were part of true brotherhood. There could be no practical charity without regard to the teachings of Christ, and whatever charity there was in a society was oved to the Bible. There had been a cry that there were too many benevolent societies, but there was no fear of that as long as they were too many benevolent societies, but there was no fear of that as long as they there was no fear of that as long as they remembered the teaching of the open book. One of the great principles of their society was to protect the Protestant religion. The links of that notable chain in England—the signing of the Magna Charta, the Spanish Armada, Oliver Cromwell's rule and the landing of the Prince of Orange—were not by chance. They were all overruled by Providence for the furtherance of the Protestant faith. In America, where the Protestant dence for the furtherance of the Protestant faith. In America, where the Protestant religion was now strong, there had been events which at the time seemed of little importance; they could now look at and see that God's hand had overruled them all, so that to-day they were blest to a great extent with light and liberty. Mr. Allin then showed how other nations of the world had been Christianized, and were now engaged Christianizing others. He the world had been Christianized, and were now engaged Christianizing others. He said that this country, however, was still leaning toward the Pope of Rome. When the deputation from his church waited on the Parliament of Canada and the Congress of United States, asking that he should have a hand in the civil affairs of these countries,

FERSONS ENTITLED TO VOTE.

Must be or voters' list.

Must have resided in Ontario from months preceding time fixed by shaw; see R. S. O. 193, 149, or twelve months preceding time to which complaint may be made to yindge under Voters' List Act, viz., days after list posted by clerk; see Gnostat, 1889, cap. 3, sec. 13. Get cerficate at once from municipal lerk when osted.

M. Must have been bona fide resident of and domiciled in municipality at the time fixed by stome, and an of the should have a hand in the civil affairs of these countries, he hanked a thing, which, if granted, would mean an alienation of the allegiance they should pay to God and to an unlawful clear. No man had a right to exact allegiance to God. In conclusion he urged his hearers to do their duty, to stoop to nothing which would tend to weaken the Protestant religion, and, if they would do their duty, God would overrule events for their own benefit. God would remember God. While they were giving all lawful allegiance to their earthly sovereign they must see that day by day they paid their allegiance to their rearthly sovereign they must see that day by day they paid their allegiance to their fleavenly Father, seek to be temperate, and to do for their country all that conscience dictated would be for its benefit.

Rev. J. G. Contrasts of the Service.

The contrast between the Union and Conederate armies was very great. The exclass contrast was very great.

The contrast between the Union and Confederate armies was very great. The exclamation of the pious southern woman on seing the Confederate army: "The Lord bless your dirty, ragged souls!" expresses the feeling that every stranger had upon seeing a body of southern soldiers. They looked like a mob. Their uniforms consisted of odd garments originally intended to be worn with those of the same color and cut, but the design was not carried out for lack of supplies. Hats and caps, jackets, blouses and frock coats were side by side in the ranks. On the Union side, after the abandonment of the fancy zouave suits in 1862, the uniform regulations for different arms of the service were strictly adhered to, and the regular United States uniform was supplied to all the troops. They were required to keep them in order. The same with arms and camp equipage. The standard of the regular army was introduced by the regular regiments and by the regular officers who served with volunteers.

The war gave rise to many surprises in the development of the efficiency of the different arms of the service and proving the carebilities of men. The north becan with the development of the efficiency of the differ-ent arms of the service and proving the ca-pabilities of men. The north began with the notion that its problem was to be the sup-pression of local insurrections; the south that it would be called upon to resist coer-cion and invasion. The Union leaders asked for bodies of armed men to march, or stand still and shoot, and the Confederate aimed to still and shoot, and the Confederate aimed to fire the people's hearts and incite them to armed resistance. Every type of ability and every kind of military engine were called into use, and naturally where everything be-gan at the primitive stage the fitness of this or that arm of service could only be deter-mined after trial. The same with men. The military knowledge of both sides came from the same school—West Point, Mexico and the plains. The fame won at Bull Run by the same school—west rollin, medico and the plains. The fame won at Bull Run by the Black Horse cavalry, and the Union reg-ular batteries, led to an appreciation of these

In the south the formation of cavalry and In the south the formation of cavalry and artillery commands was somewhat of an accident. Young men owned horses and men were accustomed to travel on horseback. Their government could not buy mounts for a large force and good humoredly yielded to the inclinations of the hour and accepted mounted men and batteries as fast as they were offered. Furthermore, the different were offered. Furthermore, the americal states where government arsenals were located had seized large quantities of field guns and equipments, and as the artillery volunteers furnished their own animals the organization of this army went on rapidly and without organization.

In warfare affoat both sides had much to learn. The north had a small navy of wooden learn. The north had a small navy of wooden ships and the south had to improvise one from such craft as she could find in her waters or buy abroad. The Confederates had the first real victory through an ironclad—the Merrimac—and the north quickly turned to the use of monitors and armored gungles. boats. As the sea fights were principally at boats. As the sea fights were principally at close quarters rams came into general use. On the Union side A. H. Foote, D. G. Farragut, D. D. Porter and J. A. Dahlgren became distinguished fleet commanders, with the rank of rear admiral. The Confederates did not maintain a good fleet at any point, and glory was won by southern tars chiefly in cruising. The south made three wonderful rams—the Merrimac, the Albemarle and the Arkansas—but their careers were short. The most famous cruisers were the Sumter, the Alabama, the Florida and the Shenandoah. —George L. Kilmer.

There was a hole the size of the log in the roof and side of the car, and the corn was strewn along the track for some distance. When the log struck the car the shock to the train was so violent that a brakeman in the rear car thought it was a collision and jumped off; the car, however, remained on the track.—New Orleans Picayune.

Queer Dancing.

The French Countess Maria d'Annoy, who died in Paris in 1706 and left behind her memoirs of a journey in Spain, says that "at Bayonne we stopped and a grand ball was given in honor of the princess." The fashions of the dancers were so strange that the countess could not deny herself giving a detailed description. "Each one of the lady dancers present carried under her left arm a little young pig, with gay ribbons around its neck. When it came a lady's turn to dance she put her animal down on the floor and danced her part through, while her four footed companion grunted in all manner of tones. The gentlemen carried in their hands long staffs, gentlemen carried in their hands long staffs, which they threw up in the air and caught again while dancing."—From the German.

A House Drawn by a Locomotive. A sizable two story building was being moved along Commercial street, when it slewed across the railroad track, obstructing the way for the morning Grand Trunk passenger train. The conductor and engineer were equal to the occasion, and the locomowere equal to the occasion, and the locomotive was attached to the rope by which the building was drawn. Steam was put on and something had to come. In a few moments the structure was pulled clear from the track, and the train passed on to its western connection. A locomotive drawing a house was certainly a unique sight.—Portland Argus.

Farming in Spain.

Spain adheres to the customs of a primitive age. Grain is cut with a small reaping hook, and threshed as in the time of the Casars—that is, by tramping about with asses hitched to a stone. The plow is a crooked stick, pointed with tren. In the towns are to be seen heavy wooden ourts drawn by ozen. Most of the carrying, transferring, etc., is done by donkeys. Sand, briok, lumber, in fact, almost everything that has to be moved, is carried on their backs.—Montreal Star.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

Prevailing Funeral Habits Criticised as Of the several fashions of which we are the victims there is none more sublimely idiotic than that of the present mode of at-tending funerals. There is no nation in this regard which makes itself so thorthis regard which makes itself so thoroughly ridiculous as that of the American. Respect to the dead is beautiful and fitting, but when that respect is carried at the danger of one's life the tribute to the memory of the deceased should take some other form, more sensible and equally as decorous. The present style of coffin or casket is not light. The inner shell is generally of heavy metal, which is fitted into a ponderous wooden casket, replete with silver handles and gorgeous trimmings. When the body is in the casket the weight can be imagined.

Is it church, out in the open air, heated with the unwonted exercise and bareheaded. Is it any wonder that they catch a cold? Then a long drive at a snail's pace to a cemetery, where hats are again doffed, and the body is borne to the grave. The assemblage gathers around, and despite the fact that a chill wind, freighted with death, is blowing upon them, there they stand in this bleak and exposed spot, listening to the prosy rhetoric of a preacher, who alone is interested in his discourse. What is the inevitable consequence? A serious sickness. There is no exaggeration in this, affirms The San Francisco News letter, and adds: We have had during the past two weeks two deaths from attending a funeral in the manner just described, and three prominent men have been so ill that their lives have been despaired of. It is to be hoped that we shall in future be guided more by common sense than make ourselves the victims of a fashion which has no recommendation other than custom. other than custom.

When the hands are of good color, but the skin lacks softmas, glycerine is useful, but it has no effect on the color. The hands may be, however, greatly improved in texture if, after the nightly wash, they are well coated with glycerine and dipped into oatmeal, or well powdered with the same.

Bran is supposed to have great influence on the skin, and some manicures advise glycerine and bran which has been stewed in water. The bran is used quite moist, and is, therefore, of similar type to the bran poultice which our great-grandmothers used on the neck and arms, which, being daily exposed by the then fashionable decollete gown, were no doubt a source of trouble to them. trouble to them.

In one case of epilepsy he gave the horse nettle steeped in whisky, a tablespoonful three times a day, continuing the treatment for months. After the third day from beginning the use of the remedy the patient had not a single convulsion. The remedy was also found of marked value in hysterical attacks.

How Stage Effects Are Produced.

The round full moon is but a piece of tissue paper with a candle behind it. Thunder is imitated by rattling behind the wings a huge piece of sheet iron. In large theatres, however, the property room is located above the stage, and a truck loaded with round shot is wheeled along, from which the balls are tilted, producing a hollow, reverberating sound as they roll along the floor.

Lightning is imitated in various ways. A long tin tube filled with powder gives out vivid flashes as it is passed over a spirit lamp. Sometimes zigzag strips are cut out of the scenery and replaced with varished muslin. When a lamp is flashed behind the muslin it produces the effect of forked lightning. A strip of carpet is spread from the curbstone to the door. If the day be rain; snow is produced by a slow downward sifting of small bits of white paper; the breaking in of a door, or a fall down stairs, is imitated by a policeman's ratie, or by emptying broken glass from a basin.—Philadelphia Times. which has made it so justly popular. Since it is a tea, an ample amount of this beverage must be provided. Many people serve coffee or chocolate also, but not necessarily. If one have a handsome chocolate set it adds much to the beauty of the table; it occupies one end, while the tea service is placed at the other. This brings up the query about steeping the tea. The kettle is kept steaming and swinging above the spirit lamp until all are served. A the spirit lamp until all are served. electors that he could not make any con- author and prime instigator of the verts to his side by his speeches he uttered a rock-bottom truth. Mr. Tooley's speeches are not built of the material that makes converts. As the Hon. J. H. Pope used to Mr. Balfour has challenged his detractors say, "There ain't nothin' to them."

"MEREDITH has nothing to do with Sir John Macdonald" say Tory canvassers in the present campaign. Pray, then, tell us behind his back. Shame on such tactics! how it comes that Birmingham, the paid agent of the Dominion Government, is bossing the elections for Mr. Meredith? There is no getting over the collusion between the poss and his lieutenant when a fact like this is shown up.

Ripley, Bruce county, to-night, and at people of Ontario must come to the Tory Paisley to-morrow evening. Mr. Charlton, leader's rescue at once. He shall not be as a consistent Equal Righter, refuses to allow vacillating Mr. Meredith, the lieutenant of Sir John Macdonald, to turn the movement to his personal advantage in his present attempt to attain office in Ontario. He holds, and rightly, too, that the Ontario Government has always given equal rights to every section of the community. His grounds for reaching this decision are given in another column.

It is announced from Lucan that Mr. Ed. Meredith is on a still-hunt in that neighborhood for Tory candidate Hutchins. We venture to predict that Mr. Meredith will not go into Biddulph and deliver the same speech that he gave at the Clarke's Bridge meeting. That would interfere with Mr. Hutchins' declaration, uttered for the ear of Biddulphers, that he does not indorse every plank in his leader's platform. And thus the despicable tactics of the Tory bosses are worked. They will not succeed.
It would be a disgrace to the intelligent shectors of the Province if they did.

AT the Nipissing nomination for the egislature the Tory candidate, Mr. Purvis, made the statement, "I'll oppose any man-Mr. Meredith himself-if he dares to lay sacreligious hands on our separate school system." Mr. Purvis has many imitators among the still-hunters.

That is the cry of Sol. White in certain districts of Essex, of Mr. Hutchins in Biddulph, and of many other Tory candidates—when they think they can get votes by it. They are a fine lot to talk about being over $6,000,000, from which the Province united in a common aim! They have one derives a handsome revenue for the support common aim, indeed, and that is to get of its asylums, hospitals and other public fleet but they have a different platform | institutions !

for different sections of the country, and almost for every other man they meet.

PRINCIPAL CAVEN, speaking at Galt the other night on Equal Rights, again warned his hearers not to allow the movement to be used to the present advantage of either of the political parties. He had reference to the attempt of Sir John Macdonald's allies in Ontario to turn the agitation against the non-disallowance of the Jesuits' Act in favor of the authors of "The Facts for the Irish Electors" and other compromising documents. Dr. Caven, like Rev. Mr. Milligan, Rev. Professor Gregg, Dr. Proudfoot, Dr. Dewart, Dr. Castle, Dr. Middlemiss and other Protestant leaders in the Province, has no faith in the sincerity of the Meredith-Clancy-Creighton crowd. Think of Dr. Roome, R. M. C. Toothe, Richard Tooley, Duncan Macmillan and Ed. Meredith undertaking to tell these pillars of the Protestant faith that they do not know what they are talking

THE enormous rainfall of yesterday calls o remembrance the great downpour which preceded the Johnstown, Pa., calamity, the anniversary of which comes aroun Saturday next. Some people an idea that the disaster would be a lasting blow to the city, but the contrary has proved to be the case, Johnssown being now more prosperous than ever. The output of the Cambria Iron Works for the last six months has been greater than that of the same period of last year and the employment of labor has been proportionate. The Gautier Steel Works, operated by the same company, has been rebuilt and will be enlarged. Therebuilding of the town has gone on rapid ly. There has been spent in the building of ouses and bridges $380,000. There are in course of erection buildings costing upward of $141,000. Many of the men who were in business before are recovered and are again prospering.

THE issues in Ontario and in Nova Scotia are entirely different. The Nova Scotia Reform Government gave satisfaction to the people of that Province—the Ontario Government has not done so.—[Hamilion Spectator.

All very well as an excuse. But don't you know that the Halifax Herald, as good an authority on Tory principles as the Spectator, on the morning of election day charged the now victorious Liberal party of Nova Scotia with being "the most hypocritical, dishonest and incapable Government ever afflicting a country." That is the statement of the chief Tory paper in Nova Scotia. The Hamilton Spectator makes similar charges against the Ontario Government. We believe they are even worse founded than were the charges made against the Liberal Government of Nova Scotia. For this reason, we differ from the Spectator in entertaining the view that the Ontario Government has not given satisfaction to the people of Ontario. That the Spectator holds differently goes for little in any political contest. Why, in the last mayoralty contest in Hamilton it was certain that its candidate would be elected, but had to confess to being a false prophet after the otes were counted.

MR. BALFOUR, the Liberal candidate in South Essex, is making a splendid run. The policy of detraction, of libel and abuse pursued by the unscrupulous men who oppose him is really reacting on them. The Windsor Review published a most remarkable story last week, asserting, among other things, that Mr. Balfour had forged Bishop Walsh's name. In the same piece, the name of Mrs. Balfour was lugged into the campaign in a dastardly manner. A letter is fabricated, and she is charged with having written it. Mr. Balfour has promptly taken an action for criminal libel against the Windsor publisher of the gross libels and also against the notorious N. A. Coste, WHEN Mr. Tooley told the South London of Anderdon, who is alleged to be the to appear along with him on the public platform and formulate their charges, they refuse to meet him face to face, preferring

POOR MR. MEREDITH.

He is promised a judgeship if he is defeated in promised a judgeship if he is defeated in his new dodge to sail into power by a most unwarranted ery. By voting for Liberal candidates, as we believe the majority of the people will do, the country will be insured good government, as it has been in the past, boodlers of the Rykert stamp will be kent out of our timber limits. Mr. Mere, be kept out of our timber limits, Mr. Meredith will be saved from the impending ruin, and he will be able to get away from a position which it has long been apparent, despite his efforts to conceal the fact, is most distasteful to him.

WORK OF THEIR CHUMS.

The Toronto Monetary Times, that standard commercial journal, in reviewing the work of the last session of the Dominion Parliament, says: "Of the tariff changes nothing good can be said. The Minister of Finance distinctly avows that, in raising the duties, he was not simpelled by the necessity of securing more revenue, and that his object was not to add to the contents of an overflowing treasury, but to favor special industries; that is, in plain English, to give favors to a fraction of the population at the expense of by far the greater part of it." In other words, the Macdonald motto is, "Tax, tax, tax!"

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

and witnessed one of the closest and most interesting games of the season. It would also have been a very satisfactory game but for the fact that the two runs secured were pitted against the long string of the home team's cyphers. Jones pitched a fine game, the eight hits secured off him being strewed out over six innings. Knauss played well in the box for the visitors and with the exception of the eighth inning was as cool as an iceberg. Roche furnished the amusement for the audience in the seventh inning when after two men were out he fouled about fifteen balls to the great annoyance of Knauss. He was finally struck out on three successive lobs. The visitors scored both their runs in the second inning, Virtue opening up the fun with a safe hit over second base. He stole second and scored on Rhue's two-base hit to Leighton. Rhue was advanced to third on a passed ball and made a daring start home on a ball that bounced out of Roche's hands and rolled slowly toward Jones, who watched it with the greatest complacency and did not move a muscle. In their fourth Virtue cracked the ball out to Leighton for three bases, but was left there, the next three batters going out in succeesion. The London's chances for scoring were good in both the first and eighth innings, but fine work by Knauss nipped their aspirations in the bud. In the first with one man out, Leighton drove the ball past second for a base. He was sent to second on Friel's hit to Donnelly, but Wright striking out and Lutenberg dubbing the ball to Knauss left them without a run. Hiland made a clean hit towards Hulin in the eighth, after Jones had accomplished his third strike out, stole second and was sent to third on a scratch by Leighton. Friel and Wright then flied out to Campau and Higgins, which retired the side. Lutenberg opened up the last inning in good style with a hit to center. He stole second, but the next three batters going out in succession left the game in the hands of the visitors. PLAYERS.

WILL BUFFALO DROP OUT?

The Buffalo club is a white elephant for which Detroit, Toronto, London and Hamilton have to provide food. If continued in Buffalo the club will be a loser to the extent of at least $20,000 on the year. Montreal wants a club, and London, Toronto and Hamilton are in favor of transferring the aggregation to that city. This gives Mr. Mills a chance to do the league some good and establish it on a better basis. He ought to take steps in the matter before it is too late, as the situation is daily becoming more alarming and the fact dawns upon all that something has got to be done very soon.—[Detroit Tribune. WILL BUFFALO DROP OUT?

FASTER COMPANY FOR DETROIT.

FASTER COMPANY FOR DETROIT.

The affairs of the Detroit Baseball Club are in a tangled up condition. It becomes more evident each day that if the club remains in the International it will lose more money than it did last season. The team has but one chance and that is to get into the American Association, where the company would be much faster and there would be some prospect of at least coming out even. Unless something is done rather suddenly there is liable to be a crash, and Detroit will advertise for a ball club, lost, strayed or stolen.—[Detroit Free Press. Where would Detroit be if in faster company than such teams as are in the International? It is only by luck that they have had such a successful run of victories. Any of the Canadian teams can keep the Any of the Canadian teams can keep the champs hustling. The raving of imaginative Detroit writers will not make the ball team of that city into a combination of of that city into a combination of ess stars, so they may as well cease tournament dwindled down to one game in which Exeter secured the first prize, $45 by defeating the Grand Trunk club of this city. The second prize, $25, was awarded to the London boys by default, as the St. Marys team declined to play owing to a misunderstanding in arranging the games. The Grand Trunk played an exhibition game with Exeter in the afternoon at the request of the latter club, who did not wish to disappoint the large number of spectators who visited the grounds. Both games were close and exciting, and there is no doubt but that the London boys would have brought home first money if the Exeter team had not secured the services of Dolan and Hume, of St. Thomas. NOTES ON THE RACES. Mr. Daniel Curtin, of this city, rode Kitestring. Curtolim, the dam of Kitestring, won the Woodstock plate five years ago.

The accident to the Peters mare caused much regret, as she was very promising.

Rose Maybud wrenched her "whirlbone," which was the cause of her death. Rose Maybud was taken off the track after she had fallen, but expired in about half au hour.

Eleven years ago a London horse won the Queen's Plate. It was King George, owned y Col. Peters. Colonist, the winner of the Queen's Plate last year, was sold by Mr. Hodgens three months before the race.

The Queen's Plate was thought to be between La Blanche and Rose Maybud. But the bookmakers were fooled.

Kitestring is a 3-year-old mare, raised by Mr. Hodgens, of this city. She was sired by Judge Curtis, her dam being Curtolim.

being most useful in forming the character for success in the battle of life.

Today's game.

The ontario jockey club's meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club was commenced to-day at Woodbine Park and an excellent day's sport was enjoyed by an attendance numbering close upon 12,00c.

The afternoon was gloomy and occasional showers fell and the course was heavy and sodden by recent rains. As a result the times made were slow.

The starters in the Queen's Plate race were Johnny Hunter (G. Kennedy), Aide-de-Camp (Col. Milligan), Wild Morn (W. Hendrie), Rose Maybud (M. S. Douglass), La Blanche (A. E. Gates) Fip-Flap (Orkney Stables) and Kite string (T. D. Hodgens). Rose Maybud was the faverite with the turfmen, and good odds were offered on that filly. The horses made a good start, Rose Maybud, La Blanche, Flip-Flap and Kitestring being about neck and neck for the first mile. Rose Maybud then made play in the latenance of success in the battle of life.

Today's Game on The Saylum Creicket Club this afternoon will leave Trebilcock's Hall at 1 o'clock sharp (12:30, if possible), as wickets must be drawn at 6 p.m. Some members of both teams are anxious to try the American innovation of "flocks of three," which most English players regard, to paredy Gen. Canrobert, as "magnificent, but not" cricket. To-day's match will aford a good chard to the the value of the new style, which has, however, been gotten up more with the idea of drawing spectators and consequent gate money than in the interest of good cricket. Cricketers generally regard gate money as a secondary consideration.

MR. GRACE'S CRICKET ANTIQUITIES.

Dr. W. G. Grace, in his new work entitled "Forty Years of Cricket," says: I have traced the game from its earliest beginnings down to the end of 1862, and now give a short resume of the important landmarks in its history:

(Lib ball was played in the 13th century.

The Doomed Man's Case Deemed Hopeless-Another Subject for Electrical Execution.

Washington, May 25.—Although the Supreme Court decided against Kemmler on all constitutional questions which it is thought can be raised in his case, it is not absolutely certain that the court has heard the last of the case. It is the general opinion that the decision would finally settle the matter and that all that would remain to be done would be the pro forma vacation of the order of Judge Wallace and the resentencing of Kemmler. It may be that counsel will stop there and not further prolong what, in view of the decision, must be regarded as a hopeless case so far as the Supreme Court is conderned; but it is still possible to delay the day of execution till next autumn at least by bringing another appeal to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Hodgens' horses have been unusally successful at Toronto. La Blanche, who came in second in the Queen's Plate, was sold by Mr. Hodgens two years ago.

The well-known animal, Bonnie Gertrude, known as Col. Peters' mare, was at the races in charge of Mr. D. H. Grand. In the helter-skelter it threw the man riding it at the water-jump, and then ran away, having to be drawn.

The owner of Kitestring, Mr. T. D. Hodgens, of London, does not make a specialty of running horses. He enters animals which he has bred, and if not disposed of they are run by him. It proved lucky this time.

At the first attempt to start in the Queen's Plate Col. Milligan's animal fell with its head between its legs and rolled completely over, crushing its rider badly. He was taken to the hospital and another jockey substituted.

The prix de Diane (French Oaks) to-day at Chantilly was won served to the content of the proving her health, and the group of the beauty with which the fiction writer altorns his women. All girls cannot be slender and tall, but even the homeliest can become positively pretty if she pays due attention to her health. What a charm there is in robust and blooming health! Sparkling eyes, clear complexion and rosy cheeks make even a plain girl fascinating. Sallow skin, weak and languid air, low spirits, eyes that have lost their lustre, and whose original beauty is descroyed by great black rings around them, would kill the good looks of a Mary Anderson or Mrs. Langtry. It is the duty of the beauty with which the fiction writer alons he principal redivers and the leading lumber firm Goes Down—

The Business Outlook.

New York, May 24.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's report a fairly active distributive movement in general trade circles at most of the important interior trade centers. Mercantile collections west and northwest are irregular, and increased demand from country merchants is reported at New Orleans, and the recently overflowed district is said to be recovering from the effects of the floods. Intervently wheat crop reports have sent the price up 1% to 3c per bushel, in spite of a smaller weekly decrease in the quantity. Oats, too, advanced fractionally. India corn, under free offerings and shipments, declined & to &c. The week's exports of wheat (and wheat as floor), both coas's, continue heavier than expected by those who watch only Atlantic ports, shipments amounting to 2.73,994 bushels, against 1,564,091 bushels in the like week of 1889, as compared with 1,785,066 bushels last week. The total exported July 1 to date equals $60,481,948 bushels, against 78,73,049 bushels in a like portion of 1888-89. Farmers deliveries, both coasts, for two weeks past have fallen short of exports and home consumption by only about 1,000,000 bushels weekly, showing increasing sales on their part. London, May 25.—The Newfoundland delegates had an interview Friday with Lord Knutsford, the Colonial Secretary, at which the fishery question was fully discussed. The delegates will have another interview with the Colonial Secretary after Whitsuntide. The Chronicle publishes an account of an interview with the Newfoundland delegates on the fishery question. In the opinion of the delegates a settiement might be arrived at by France abolishing the bounty system in return for the repeal of the Bait Act. In this way, they argued, the value of the French shore claims as a lever on the bait question would value of the French shore claims as a lever on the bait question would be destroyed, and the way would be paved to the buying out of the French claims, which matter could best be arranged by arbitration. The delegates protested against British officers aiding and defending French aggression. They declared that there would be no thought of annexation to the United States unless England neglected colonial interests. The delegates further declared that it was a fallacy to suppose that France valued the shore as the nursery of her navy, because the naval training ground was really on the high seas in the vicinity of the grand bank. The real point aimed at by France, according to the delegates, is to secure unrestricted access to the OTTAWA, May 25.—Senator Macdonald, of Victoria, B. C., is here. Speaking of the Behring Sea matter, he said that the sealers will simply ignore the action of the American Executive. "The Canadian sealing fleet," he said, "started on their annual haul early in January last. They go down the coast as far as San Francisco and then follow the seals north, picking them up as they go along. They are going to Behring Sea, as they consider they have a perfect right to do. I have long thought that the whole matter will be brought to sudden maturity by some act of bloodshed on one side or the other. Some bold captain with a shipload of valuable
