This was caused by a series of neat little tricks performed by the municipal and Conservatives machines, ardent electrifi-

Two Voters' Lists.
In spite of the fact that the 1912 list was used a number of persons on that list were refused votes. The majority of the refusals were to those known to be opposed to the scheme. A Grand Trunk conductor, who paid his 1912 taxes and was on the list of that year, went to the polls to record his vote. He was surprised when he was informed that he was not on the list. He was incredulous, and depended to see it. His permeable approach

Appeal to the Country When Home Rule Is Safely Through.

[Canadian Press.]
London, Oct. 23. — The London morning newspapers devote much of their space to Chancellor Lloyd George's land scheme, which is vaster and more far-reaching than had been anticipated. It is expected to involve an appeal to the country as soon as home rule bill is safely through the final stages at the next parliamentary session.

The Daily News says that the Gov ernment scheme will be welcomed by everyone who is conscious of the disastrous effect of land monopoly and of the divorce of the pepole from the soil. Discount Promises. The Daily Mail speaks of Mr. Lloyd George's "wild promises," which, i says, are now at a heavy discount The public, it adds, had not forgotten that the chancellor's land tax, which was to have provided funds for old age pensions and Dreadnoughts, yet actually yielded a dead loss to the nation of $5,845,000 in four years.

Merely a Ruse. The Times regards the chancellor's and campaign as an effort to distract attention from the gravity of the sit uation in Ireland. It declares that. while the problems of rural England are of the deepest interest to all, any minister who deliberately concentrates attention on such problems, while Ireland steadily draws nearer the verge of civil war must be mad, adding.

Legal Action May Be Taken To Prevent Expenditure of

FOR ELECTRIFICATION

Bearing On Case Believed To Be Unconstitutional.

Legal action, on behalf of the Grand Trunk Railway, may be taken to prevent the expenditure of the $700,000 on electrifying the road. On good authority it was stated this morning that such an action was not improbable, the Grand Trunk owning almost one-third the stock of the road and being therefore financially interested in anything that might increase the debenture and capital debt of the road.

It is not a generally known fact, but shares of the London and Port Stanley are in the hands of the Grand Trunk and private owners, the latter having a representation of 270 shares. The control of course lies with the city, a total of 8,631 being the number shares voted by the corporation.

Could Enjoin City. As shareholders of the road, the Grand Trunk would have the legal privilege of enjoining the city against the expenditure of $700,000. It is this action that it is said will be the next move in the electrification fight. Further than this, the Grand Trunk has as an argument the fact that the road is Dominion one, operating under a charter from the Dominion Government, and therefore legislation on the part of the Ontario Legislature cannot legal when it affects this Dominion

The Dominion Port Stanley act of 1903 places a limitation on the bowrowing powers of the road. It de. clares that no further debt or incumbrance shall be created against the road till the existing debenture debt (approximately $1,300,000) has been paid off. The provincial legislation overrides this particular act is to be unconstitutional, and on Opening Tonight.

The opening production in London of the Stratford-Upon-Avon Players, with Mr. F. R. Benson, the famous actor-manager, at the Grand Opera House tonight, will be that uproarious farce-comedy, "The Taming Shrew." This was also the initial production during the engagement of this company in Ottawa last week, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden and other dignitaries of the capital, were present, and joined in the cheers and applause which proved the appreciation of the audience at the end of the play.

Some conception of the fever of en-thusiasm with which Mr. Benson and his company have been received in the cities where he has appeared, may be had from the review of this performance, which appeared in the Ottawa Journal:

"The Stratford-on-Avon Playersthe long-advance-noticed Benson Shakespearean company—have at last appeared. Further, last night they gave their first performance. The universal verdict last night at the Russell was undoubtedly that the company had not been over-heralded, but, rather, under-rated. As a company, on the whole, they gave one of the best representations of Shakespeare that Ottawa has ever seen. And this is where they succeeded—they even beat the Manchester Players in the uniform excellence of their acting. They play for and not at the people. There is the secret of their success. They are what the old players were—the king's players. There was not a weak spot in the acting of | Only One of the Crew of the 'The Taming of the Shrew.'"

LONDON, THURSDAY, OCT. 23.

THE VOTE.

The electrification bylaw has been adopted by virtue of special legislation. The municipal act requires an affirmative vote of at least one-third of the list to give effect to any proposal to grant money to a railway enterprise. The electrification scheme has failed to poll one-third of the votes on the roll, but its promoters took care of this contingency by inserting a special clause in the City of London bill, permitting the bylaw to be carried by a simple majority of the votes polled.

In 1911 the bylaw to aid the North Midland Railway was approved by a very large majority but just failed of the one-third vote. The City Council asked that the bylaw be validated, but the Legislature refused. Mr. Beck took special pains to see that the same handicap was not placed on his own project. Its exemption from the general principle of the municipal act was grossly irregular, an exhibition of favoritism, and one of many recent proofs that we are governed in this Province, not by rules, he may say or do against Tammany but by exceptions made to please cer- will be discounted almost to nothing tain individuals or to shield the Government from the ordinary processes of law. It is on all-fours with the Attorney-General's usurpation of the functions of the courts in the mining cases and in the hydro-electric suits.

The champions of electrification must now redeem their promissory notes, scattered so liberally from the platform during the past three or four weeks.

The city is in for an interesting, if not a profitable, experience. Its first ask will be the borrowing of over $1,000,000 for various purposes in a market flooded with unsaleable municipal securities. An interest rate of 5 per cent, upon which the electrification estimates are based, has failed of late to tempt the money lenders. We are free to admit that when this difficulty is surmounted and the London and Port Stanley Railway "electrified," citizens will not be compelled to wait long to see the contrasting prophecies of the supporters and opponents of the bylaw brought to the test. The earnings of the road can scarcely be juggled or concealed as in the hydro-electric enterprise, in which the city sells electric energy to itself at a rate fixed by those who are interested in charging a high figure in order to create a paper surplus for the electrical department. In the case of the railway the municipal corporation cannot be its own customer. The revenue must come from private sources, from shippers here and elsewhere. In this respect at least business principles must prevail, and the enterprise be carried on in ordinary competitive conditions.

The scheme has not been approved because of an unquestioning faith of all its supporters in its financial soundness. Other influences were more decisive. Mr. Beck's assertion that he staked his public career on the fate of the bylaw was an open lid for support on party grounds. A purely civic question was thus made the football of party politics, a pawn in one man's game. His powers of patronage had due weight with those in enjoyment of his favors and with others who coveted them. A certain popular sentiment for the bylaw was manufactured by appeals to citizens who were not property owners and had nothing to ter for all parties. It is natural for visions of summer picnics and 30-cent jailer, and with his surroundings; but the stage setting for the platform performances. Demagogic anti-corporation impute to the opponents of the scheme We should see that he gets fair treatan animus against the principle of public ownership no doubt had some effect. Undoubtedly the bylaw had friends who were uninfluenced by any of these factors, but it is safe to say the independent exercise of sober judgment upon the purely financial side of the question was much more largely represented in the negative than in the affirmative vote. The weight of financial argument was wholly against the bylaw. This was admitted by Mr. Beck and his spokesmen in their careful avoidance of it.

The great majority for the storm sewer bylaw shows that citizens at last realize the absolute necessity of a work too long deferred. A new drainage system will relieve the present hygienic sewers, with corresponding benefits in health and comfort, and will help in the solution of the roads problem. The city must face of municipal government and its results. The tax rate and the evidences have clinched the matter. SULZER ON THE WARPATH.

Convicted of embezzlement and perjury by the highest court of the State of New York, Mr. Sulzer, the deposed governor, is at once made the nominee of the "Progressives" for election to sympathizers met him at the station in New York on Tuesday night. As a hero he rivals Thaw.

It has been proved that he used campaign subscriptions to cover his margins in stock market speculation, and gave a false statement of election expenses to conceal his embezzlement. He has made no straight denial and would not go into the box to give testimony. This man the Progressives select for honor, who make such prolessions of political reform and think to clean up American public life. Many stand by Sulzer for the encmies he has made. Since he got into power he has tried to do better, it appears, refusing to do the bidding of Tammany, and no doubt a more vigorous anti-Tammany leader or worker would be hard now to find than the vengeance-breathing ex-governor.

The chief justice, however, who voted in his favor on a legal technicality, spoke of his "moral turpitude." A man so tarnished should hardly be taken up so soon by the party of higher political purity. Out of the governor's chair, Sulzer is lucky to be also out of jail, and should be given time to do penance and thoroughly repent before reaching after new honors. Anything by the consideration of his personal motives and his record. The Progressives are making heroes out of shoddy stuff.

Of course, we in Canada cannot afford to throw stones. We send to Parliament self-confessed corruptionists and men of decidedly shady business record. And it may be admitted that the main motive of the Progressive mob is right enough, if confused. Tammany is the arch enemy. Sulzer is

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

An investigation has been in progress for some time lately as to conditions in the Kingston Penitentiary. The disclosures are by no means as bad as those brought out by a similar inquiry in regard to the state prisons of New York. At the same time there is evidence to show that there is room for some improvement at Kingston, No matter how trifling any of these abuses may be, the investigation will have a good result if it brings about their

The old idea that the sole thing to be considered in the treatment of criminals was punishment is passing away. Society formerly thought its duty was accomplished when it had revenged itself on the criminal for his wrong-doing, and made him suffer in return for the suffering he had inflicted on others. Today the reform of the criminal is deemed of more importance to the community than his punishment. To make a useful citizen of one who has been breaking the law is deemed the great end and aim of penology.

Doubtless the idea is a good one. But at the same time it is not well to go to extremes. There is a tendency among certain classes of people to gush over criminals, to supply them with luxuries, to help them to escape punishment for the evil they have done to accept their statement in any dispute with prison officials; in fact, to do more for the criminal than for the poor, honest man who has never committed an offence, and who is striving under difficulties to do his duty to his family and to his neighbor.

There is a happy medium between the two extremes which will be betlose or risk. They were regaled with the prisoner to find fault with his rides, and while they had no votes they indulgence in crime does not tend to created an atmosphere favorable to the truthfulness, and anything he has to project, and provided the hurran and say requires some corroboration as well as fair consideration. He is at war with society, and he will not be cries and the grossly unjust attempt to over-scrupulous as to his methods. ment, but it is not for us to become his active sympathizers. Honest men should be on the side of the law, not of the lawbreaker.

> The old method of submitting a prisoner to mental and physical torture; of incarcerating him in underground dungeons, where light and air never entered, and surrounding him with filth and disease, has passed away. But that is no reason why his place of detention should be made a' comfortable hotel. He is entitled to a dearest, I was just thinking this will clean and sanitary room, but it need not be decorated with bouquets and supplied with upholstered furniture. He should have good, nourishing food, but there is no reason why it should be anything but the plainest and cheapest. In other words, it is not the place of society to provide its criminals with a home where they will feel more comfortable than is absolutely necessary.

But philanthropy may take charge of his spiritual and moral welfare; it should try to improve his mind and clevate his moral nature. Above all, it should keep a compassionate eye upon him when he has served his sentence, and secure for him the means of earning a livelithe state assembly. A great crowd of hood and becoming a good citizen.

Law and philanthropy should unite in the one object, to have the criminal leave his cell a better man than when he entered it. This is no easy problem, but it can be accomplished in many cases. A better classification of prisoners is needed, so that the hardened criminal shall not an evil influence on his fellow-prisoners, and a teacher of crime to those of less experience in sinful practices than himself. The prisoner should have a course of useful study and practical education in the workshop or on the farm that will qualify him for an honest life. And society should follow with a kindlier treatment for the criminal who has served his sentence and desires to turn from his evil ways.

WORKED LYING DOWN. [London Chronicle.]

The sale of a couch belonging to Sir Walter Scott gains additional interest from the fact that he did much of his best work in a recumbent position. Several of the Waverley novels were dictated in their entirety whilst Sir Walter lay in bed or on his couch, dictating so rapidly as to keep two or more secretaries busy. The weakness of his leg was responsible to some extent, no doubt, for this predilection, but many other famous authorsincluding James Thomson, Jules Verne and Mark Twain-have found inspiration flow most easily when lying down.

THE RESTLESS LEGION.

We're off to the end of the world again, We're off on another trail. Away from the crowded towns of men And the airs that are sick and stale. There's a job at the end of the world for us So we're done with our labor here, And it's pack your grip for the outward trip, We're off to the New Frontier. And it's "Well, so long!" to the toiling throng, We're off to the New Frontier!

It's off to the land of dreams we are. Somewhere on the Seven Seas. Do we go in Peace, do we go in War? Well, that's as the Fates may please. There may be a King to fight with us Or a jungle for us to clear: Whatever the game it's all the same. We're off to the New Frontier; We're primed all right for work or fight, We're off to the New Frontier!

We're off again on a long, long chance To the lands beyond the law. We're off in search of the True Romance And the realms that are new and raw: There is much still waits for the white man's eyes And the feet of the pioneer; So we're off once more to a distant shore, We're off to the New Frontier. And we shout "So long!" to the toiling throng, We're off to the New Frontier!

But if the headgear is of dark-colored fell perhaps a good sponging of the following liquid compound will help: One drachm alcohol, ½-drachm chloroform, 1/2 -drachm sulphuric ether, 1 pint deodorized benzine; mix and add enough cologne to give a pleasant odor. This is excellent for all cleaning purposes. 2. Spread them on a kitchen table and scrub with a hand-brush dipped was married two months ago, last August, or to be exact, the 30th day of July, I'm sure of the date, for Albert went to the coast on business the day before. Did I know Mr. Bryant?" (She turns to Mrs. Shaw, know-ingly) "I should say I did, I remember when his mother took in washing, but her lunch was delightful, I mean Mrs. Bryant, junior." The two ladies dulge in a hearty laugh, in which Mrs. Smith, who does not see or hear the oke, joins just to be sociable.

"Her lunch was delightful, really Mrs. Shaw, it was served perfectly, coos Mrs. Jenkins, "Such salad, and er ices were dreams." She rolls her eyes ecstatically, and is about to describe the merits of the lunch, but is interrupted by Mrs. Smith, who as usual, harps on her hobby of fashions. "How was the bodice trimmed? I think here were two rows of tucks, then Irish crochet lace faced with pink satin, and finished with a band of the pink charmeuse. I almost forgot how the neck was finished. I really forget, it seems to me it was finished tulle, or no, I've got Mrs. Grant's gown mixed

Mrs. Smith subsides into silence, to nuse upon the description of the dress, and Mrs. Jenkins turns once more to Mrs. Shaw: "Of course you are coming to the literary meeting next Wednesday? You are? I certainly did enjoy the last paper, it was decidedly interesting. I can't remember what the opic was, but it was either on George Washington or King Alfred the Great, anyway, it was one of the poets. Which ever it was, I really enjoyed it im nensely. I do dote on poets."

Mrs. Smith breaks into the conversation at this phase, and Mrs. Jenkins answers her somewhat impatiently, "Yes, my suit is being made hat way, just a mere suggestion of a slit on one side, I'm having the coat cut-away, and three buttons, and a satin collar." Mrs. Jenkins mentally wishes Mrs. Smith would swallow fashion book, but hesitates to mention he subject to that particular body. "No, I don't see," she resumes Mrs. Shaw, "Where Mrs. Bryant can afford to put on such style, her husband is only a book-keeper, and Mrs. Greene told me for a fact that her sister-in-law has a nephew who married a Mr. Gibson, who is cashier at the same store, that Mr. Bryant makes

Just at this minute Mrs. Jenkins moves excitedly, "I forgot," she exlaims, "I left my husband in the vestibule, and I must match some ibbon. Well, if they aren't closing up. If that isn't the most provoking thing. These store clerks are such disobliging creatures. I never have any satisfaction in shopping, and I promised to be only five minutes. Oh, no, Albert won't mind, I'm sure, you see, Mrs. shaw, I have him trained properly, it is all in the way you train them. I really must go. Yes, Mrs. Smith, it was faced with pink satin, and draped up on the left side, and caught with a bunch of tiny roses. The folds of the charmeuse were caught up in the back with pink satin. "Indeed, I dare not tell you," said Peter. "Well ,ask the good Lord Peter to come and see me," said the king as he bid farewell to Peter.

"H'm, a pretty kettle of fish you have me in now," said Peter when he saw his cat the next day.

"Here the king insists on seeing Lord Peter and wants to go to his What am I to do?" "Do not bother yourself, Peter," said the cat consolingly. "In three days you shall have a coach and horses and fine clothes, too. Only remember that when you go to the king's palace you must be sure to say that you have everything better than he has." "All right," said Peter, "I will do that."

So when the three days were the cat came with coach and horses and fine clothes. Peter set out at once for the palace. The king met him and treated him very graciously, showing him all over his beautiful home. Whenever Peter admired anything he followed it up by saying, "But it is not nearly so fine as I have in my palace."

"Well, well," at last said the king. 'I will go home with you and see if what you say is really so. But if you are telling me a pack of lies instead of the truth, heaven help you." "Aha, now what am I going to do?"

For a church bazar, where a number of the younger girls desire to do something to help, they will no doubt enjoy preparations for a "museum" and are sure to reap a neat sum of money from it. For a "mu-seum" it is best to set aside a small room where the "collections" may be exhibited, and charge a small fee of 5 or 10 cents for admission.

Following is a list of "curiosities" to have in the museum. It will be seen that little expense is attached to their preparation, and a great deal of amusement will be afforded. Each article should be numbered and labelled plainly, and the explanation given on typewritten slips tacked here and there around the room. You will easily see what objects are necessary from this list:

Hamilton, Oct. 23.—A proposal that the Government of Ontario should make provision for work under one of the departments of the Government similar to that being done by the local government board of Great Britain to insure proper housing accommodation in the cities and towns, was an important feature of the speech on the housing problem given on Wednesday night to the Hamilton board of trade by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., M.P.P.

This question of poor housing, said Mr. Rowell, "and the possibilities of remedy is not any fanciful or theoretical subject for us in Canada. There are already disquieting conditions in many of our cities and towns. All who believe that one of the main functions citizens, must be deeply interested in this problem, and although we have not yet developed the unfortunate housing characteristic of older civilizations, the existing conditions Our chief demand immediate action. work, however, should be primarily one of prevention."

Reduces Crime. Mr. Rowell gave interesting examples and figures to show that healthy housing led to an intensive improvement of population, and that it reduced crime. He emphasized the fact that the ordinary law of supply and demand did not meet the situation in regard to good housing, and that to solve the problem there must be towards reform. At the same time, experience shows that such organized efforts at housing reform and the building of better houses in definite districts has not proved a discouragement to private builders or to private enterprises, but has, on the other hand, had a tendency of stimulating such independent activity.

Only One in Canada. Mr. Rowell pointed out that at present Toronto is the only place in Ontario, or in Canada for that matter, ously at the Legislature at the 1913 session, whereby city entire trip. councils may guarantee the bonds of housing companies under certain conditions and gave a detailed account of what the Toronto Housing Company had accomplished under the act.

"In spite," he said, "of the recent promising beginnings, Ontario and Canada as a whole, are still ten years behind the rest of the civilized world, except for the United States."

A Big Problem. gave a most interesting survey of the housing question in various parts of the world. He traced the English acts of the work of John Burns and the ocal government board, and of definite Letchworth. He gave considerable attention to conditions in Germany and outlined some of the particularly interesting features there, such as the custom of German municipalities in owning lands themselves, the use of on vacant lands, and the increment tax varying from 8 per cent to 10 per cent. Other countries considered in the survey were France, Italy, Australasia, Brazil, Chile and the United States of

"This question," Mr. Rowell said in conclusion, "is not one of charity, but an economic problem of great import to the state, to provide suitable dwellings for the laboring classes, and," he added, "indications are not lacking that more and more as time goes by the problem will be one not only for workingmen but for all classes of the peo-The housing problem is one of that important series of questions relating to the general welfare of the We are now beginning, feebly enough to be sure, to think in terms of people and of human lives rather than in terms of vested interests and

Finally, each man carried a bundle of snakes in his hand, from a player named Elmer Knox, who give Knox a trial. With Rube so that the snake could strike if it wished. Most of the snakes showed no anger or resentment. But occasionally one, usually a small sidewinder, half-coiled or rattled when thrown down; and in picking these up much caution was shown, the Indian stroking the snake with his eagle feathers and trying to soothe it and get it to straighten out; and if it refused to be soothed he did his best to grasp it just back of the head; and when he had it in his hand, he continued to stroke the body with the feathers, obviously to quiet it. But whether it were angry or not, he always in the end grasped and lifted it-besides keeping it from crawling among the spectators. Several times I saw the snakes strike at the men who were carrying them, and twice was sure they struck home-once man's wrist, once his finger. Neither man paid any attention or seemed to suffer in any way. I saw no man struck in the face; but several of my friends had at previous dances seen men struck. At the foot of the cliff, or on the plain, they dropped the snakes, and then returned to purify themselves by drinking and washing from pails of dark sacred water — medicine water—brought by the women. It was a strange and most interesting ceremony

I do not think any adequate explanation of the immunity of the dancers has been advanced. Perhaps there are several explanations. These desert rattlesnakes are not nearly as poisonous as the huge diamond-backs of Florida and Texas; their poison is times bitten; usually they show no effects, but, as above said, in one instance the bitten man was very sick for several days. Wally and Bob Schang Arrive Back on Farm

Athletics Famous Catcher Says He Intends to Buy a Farm Near Wales, New York, With World's Series Money.

Wales, N. Y., Oct. 22.—"Wally" and day, when we struck rain and bad roads. Robert Schang returned home last evening when they completed their 500-mile here we are. It seems pretty good to be automobile jaunt from Philadelphia,
"Wally's" new car was mud-spattered and looked to have tasted the dirt and grime of many miles on the road. It appeared to be anything but the spic and span machine that was fresh from the factory a week ago. It seems pretty good to be back home now, I can tell you, and I'm glad I live in Wales. The city is all right, but when a fellow needs a rest there's only one place, and that's on the farm.
The papers have been saying that I was a Buffalo lad—that Buffalo was my home span machine that was fresh from the factory a week ago.

The boys' reception at the Frank Schang farm was a hearty one, for many of the neighbors had been forewarned of their arrival and there was a big crowd gathered at the front gate to welcome home the famous player of the world's going to spend my money for."

Bob Proud of Wally going to spend my money for."

Bob Proud of Wally.

Bob was as quiet as a church mouse, and looked proudly on his famous brother as he spoke. It was a happy reunion of Mother Welcomed Them.

Mother Schang flung both arms about the boys' necks and cried for joy, while Frank was more stoical, and welcomed the lads with a hearty handshake.

"Wally" was the first to speak, and he ignored baseball completely, electing to talk about the roads and his new autotalk about the roads are roads and his new autotalk abo "It was a fine trip," said he, "till Satur- delphia championship team.

BROKE WOLGAST'S RIBS LEACH CROSS THINKS HE CAN KNOCK OUT WILLIE RITCHIE

> thinks more of his punch than he does he does, it's sure as the landlord that of anything else in the world. Failure to apply it to any of the really first-class men he has met has not discouraged him in the least.

Leach is down at Rockaway beach settling his training camp preparatory to beginning work for the bout with Champion Ritchie at Madison Square Garden.

Leach will pay particular attention to the development of the wallop that will lay his foe down and out. He's usually in very good shape, and only needs the smoothing off of the rough edges to harden him for any attack of the champion.

As in the case of the Athletics in the recent unpleasantness with the Giants, Leach says it's the punch that counts. He figures that the come champion is to lay that good quite right. So far as boxing is concerned, there is no question that Ritchie is the master. To say that the chie is the master. To say that the Californian is almost as good as Packey McFarland is not saying too much, and we all remember what Packey did to Leach.

Ritchie is a hitter as well as a clever boxer. Besides, he is the champlon, and when a boxer goes into a ring with the title he usually carries a big percentage in advantage over the > other fellow. Around town it is said some of the Cross followers are willing to lay one against three that Cross will land his knockout punch. That's the reason for this little piece on the Cross hitting ability. The wish prevails and it would be as well for those who would bet that way to sit down and figure it out for themselves. Betting on a knockout is taking the worst of the percent-

Draw With Steve Ketchell in Eight-Round Bout.

Windsor, Oct. 22 .- Patsy Drouillard, of Windsor, Canadian lightweight champion, looked like a winner in the first five rounds of his battle with Steve Ketchell, of Chicago, before the Windsor A. C. tonight, but the Windy City fighter came back strong in the last three stanzas, and, in the opinion of the spectators, earned a draw. Neither man suffered injury or a knockdown.

Arthur Pelkey and Tommy Burns occupied ringside seats, and the former challenged "Gunboat" Smith for the heavyweight title.

on election day. He landed at 11 o'clock, while the crowd on the pier made feeble efforts to cheer him. He walked through the principal streets to the house of his brother-in-law, where he has taken up his temporary residence.

A mixed crowd gathered in front of the house and Diaz made a speech from the balcony, in a half-hearted fashion. Although he is a general in active service, no official reception was given him. The barracks band was not even sent to his brother-inlaw's house to serenade him. Through a trick he might have become president, but apparently he is a man absolutely without followers His present inten tion is to remain here two days.

Madero's Brothers Arrested. Mexico City, Oct. 22. - Daniel and Evaresto Madero, brothers of the late President Francisco Madero, have been arested at Monteroy, in the State, of Nuevo Leon, charged with complicity in a plot to turn over that city to the revolutionaries, according to stories printed in the newspapers here this morning. Lestruction of Point Edward Elevator Will Help Port Huron.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Oct. 23.-The Grand Trunk elevator at Port Huron expects to store a vast quantity of grain this year. It is the policy of the company to contract for as many boats as dock space will permit and seven will lay up there this winter to unload grain brought down from Port Arthur. The destruction by fire of the ele-

The fact that the electrification majority was hardly a ninth of the ag-gregate majority of the four is, to say the least, rather significant. The other three majorities were more than twice as large as the electrification one, that for the West London breakwater being almost triple.

PRISONERS RISK

Will Steal or Break Rules, Says Witness at Penitentiary

Probe.

Object to Wearing Striped Suits and Having Their Hair Cropped.

[Canadian Press.1

Kingston, Oct. 23. - Two ex-bankers and a former real estate agent at present doing time in the penitentiary were called by the royal commission yesterday with a view to getting the convicts' view on how conditions in the "pen" could be improved.

There was striking unanimity of opinion on the desirability of allowing the men to use a stipulated amount of tobacco under reasonable restrictions, although one of the witnesses does not use tobacco in any form.

There was also unanimous complaint of the needless humiliation involved in wearing the striped suit and wearing the hair closely cropped. One of the convicts put up a strong argument against cropping the hair closely, especially in winter, as he caught after a hair-cut.

Some Use Drugs. It appeared in the evidence of the former banker that it is impossible to prevent the convicts from getting And some of them used drugs. They will steal anything, break any rule, and risk almost any punishment to get a chew of tobacco. In fact, he went so far as to say that it was impossible to get satisfactory work out of the inmates unless they got a little of the weed occasionally, and it was a common practice of the guards to give the convict a small a system at present was the lack of amount in spite of the regulations. May Be Too Strict.

Commissioner Downey was apparently impressed with the severity of the rule against tobacco and expressed the opinion that it was too strict. One convict told of having seen a man strapped on the triangle and being whipped, but he did not think the punishment very severe, and he had been told, he said, by a convict who was so whipped that it did not hurt much.

Use the Hose. Asked about the use of the hose on convicts, he said he did not think i was ever used as a means of punishment, but might be utilized to compel a refractory inmate to come out of his cell. In answer to a question by Dr. Edwards, M. P., Witness "F. 173" surprised the commission by giving Deputy Warden O'Leary a splendid recommendation. He thought he was just the man for the job, combining "dignity, kindliness and severity" when the latter was required.

Food Is All Right. The witnesses were all questioned closely as to the quality of food, but they had little complaint to make, although admitting it was much better "the last few months." The inference was made that the appointment of the commission had already borne some fruit, All of the witnesses favored the taking of their meals in their cells, rather than in a common dining-room, on account of the gross vulgarity of some of the other inmates.

Their evidence largely corroborated that of Lawver Russell in regard to the nature of the conversation at the stone piles and its degrading effect on young offenders, also by the use of a common drinking cup, although one convict was said to be suffering from an incurable disease.

Decide on Changes. When the penitentiary commission resumed, Chairman McDonnell announced that the commission had already decided that no further evidence was necessary to change the follow-

A board of parole or advisory board o regulate prison matters could if deirable set these examinations and make all the appointments. This would have the effect of eliminating all political interference in the management of the institution. He favored the idea of holding a meeting of keepers and guards once or twice a month to discuss matters pertaining to prison problems. It would be of immense value in discussing special cases, and tend to allay ill-feeling that sometimes arises among members of the staff under existing conditions. Very few applicants once they went on probation were rejected. He favored allowing the prisoners or their families a percentage of their earnings in the pen. The difficulty of adopting such Hospital Appointments. Dr. Platt was questioned closely about the appointment of the hospital overseer and his assistant, after the retirement of Overseer Gunn. Without consulting him the surgeon recommended that Begg he appointed overseer, and Guard Sullivan, assistant overseer, although such recommendations should be made by the warden. When the appointment was made Begg objected to assuming his duties unless a competent druggist was appointed to assist him. Sullivan came before the witness, and said he did not want to take the responsibilty of making up prescriptions.

The communications went on to Ottawa, and the appointments were cancelled.

JOHN EILLS DENIES ALL PERJURY CHARGES

Does Not Want To Return to States and Face Abduction

Charges.

[Canadian Press.] Tokio, Oct. 23.-The case of John Eills, business manager of the Japan Advertiser, arrested here on Oct. 13 on a requisition from the American ambassador on a charge of perjury, came into prominence again today when the accused issued an appeal from the prison where he is confined asking the Japanese not to deliver him up to the United States, and stating that he desired to acquire Japanese citizenship. Eills, who is said to be wanted in Boston for the abduction of his daughter and for contempt of court, declares in his appeal that he is a victim of a conspiracy to obtain possession of his daughter, who was awarded by the Boston courts to his wife after their separation. He declares he has never committed perjury. The United States Government opposes the admission of Eills to bail.

John Eills was formerly a clergyman, a telegraph operator and a broker. After his separation from his wife, he took an office as a broker in a Back Bay Hotel at Boston. About a year ago he took his daughter out for a walk and disappeared. Mrs. Eills in order to trace the couple resorted to the moving pictures and by their means located her daughter and husband in Japan.

Panama route for the physical transportation of your goods. Have you considered how quickly, how far, and at what small cost the Advertising Trade Route will carry domand for those goods?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Depart-

If you are delet a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 103, Lumeden Building, Terente.

Greater than Panama's Bridge of Water

The Panama Canal is the logical outcome of the trend of modern commerce—it is monumental evidence of the present-day need for shortening distance-for lessening time and for reducing cost of distribution between maker and consumer.

In point of distance, the Panama will bring the Pacific nearer to the Atlantic by 1,000 miles. In point of time, the see voyage between Halifax and Vancouver will be shortened by 24 days. In point of cost, the canal will very materially lessen the expense of carrying freight between these places. But there is a stronger factor than even the Panama in shortening distances, lessening cost and saving time between manufacturer and user.

It is Advertising—

It is the quickest-It is the most direct-And it is the cheapest-means of communication between the maker and user of goods.

For instance, Advertising enabled a manufacturer in Nova Scotia to carry a demand for his product > from his factory to the Pacific Coast - in a few days compared with slower and more laborious selling methods.

In one week, thousands learned of his product where it would have taken years for the news to get around without advertising.

Diplomatic circles here cannot be lieve that a man of the experience of Sir Lionel Carden would publicly

Confidence in Carden

The greatest confidence is imposed n Sir Lionel Carden by the Government here. In fact, he was sent to tions between the street railway and Mexico because of his long experience there as counsel, and of the success he achieved as British minister in Guatemala. LITTLE COMMENT.

[Canadian Press.] London, Oct. 23 .- In the absence any definite lead from British official quarters, newspaper comment on the Mexican situation today is scarce, and is generally confined to brief paragraphs questioning the genuineness of the alleged interview given by Sir Lionel Garden, the British minister of Mexico, and calling for the issue of speedy disclaimer. The newspapers recognize that the Americans, being nearer the spot, are better able than Great Britain to judge where the shoe pinches.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "We ought to recognize that British interests in Mexico are commercial, while those of the United States are national and are therefore paramount." It also points out that "the friendship of the United States is more important to Great Britain than any oil concessions. United States Ambassador Page had no intention of going to the British

Sir Thomas Lawrence, according to his recent biographer, Sir Walter Armstrong, was the most procrastinating of artists. "Now and then he allowed as many as 12 or 14 years to elapse between the first and last touches on a portrait. It must have been trying to the most long-suffering to have their portraits put aside for years, after the first sitting-and the first payment!-only to be taken up again, in many cases, ofter the sitters had grown from youth to middle age."
