TURKS SURRENDER DAMASCUS TO FORCES OF GEN. ALLENBY FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE BEYOND ST. QUENTIN

METHODISTS INADVERTENTLY DISCRIMINATED AGAINST IN THE FIRST 14 MONTHS OF WAR, DECLARES DR. CHOWN

General Superintendent Refutes Statement That Members of His Denomination Enlisted in Less Numbers Than Others—General Conference Opens at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Oct. 2.—That every facility was given to adherents of all other large churches in the country who enlisted for overseas service, to say to which communion they belonged while Methodists were inadvertently discriminated against, was the declaration of Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent, who presented his quadrennial report at the opening session of the General Methodist Conference of Canada this afternoon. Dr. Chown pointed out that for fourteen months after enlisting the attestation papers did not contain the word, Methodist, the papers having been printed in accordance with the English style and the word, Wesleyan, having appeared instead of Methodist. There has been no Wesleyan Church in Canada for more than fifty years. Thus the figures on which the periodical return for the four denominations, Anglican, Presbyterian, Roman Catholics and Methodists, the last had supplied the smallest number of recruits, was refuted. Five hundred ministers and probationers, the report stated, had enrolled among the citizen soldiers.

Christian Unity.
"The war," said Dr. Chown, "was a challenge to build the tabernacle of God amongst men, that he might wipe the tears from the eyes of a redeemed world, in which there shall be no more faith, sorrow or pain. Would that humanity should seek without delay the opportunity of bringing to pass a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwell righteousness and love."

Touching on Christian unity, Dr. Chown said that the most noteworthy movement looking forward toward the intellectual and spiritual unity of Christendom, that has ever been attempted, is now in course of being worked out in the proposed world's conference on faith and order. A church divided against itself could not speak effectively to a divided world, and the war had brought this home with great poignancy. It was for the conference to decide whether the church should continue to have representation in this movement. It was to be regretted that union between the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches had not taken place before the war. What had been accomplished in local union and co-operation between churches was dealt with at length.

Statistics showed a turnover in the book and publishing house of 3,222,946. Sunday school membership, 454,803; money raised $105,802; total raised by fearlessness institutions, $200,822; department of social service and evangelism, $127,675; educational fund, $282,541; missionary, $3,115,107; women's missionary society, $784,021.

GREAT FINANCE BOARD.
The superintendent suggested the creation of a board of finance, with power to establish a department of finance. This will be considered by the conference, as well as be proposals regarding the church carrying its own insurance.

Phutocraft had never found a congenial home in the Methodist Church, said the speaker. The personnel of the conference bore witness to this. The church accepted the gifts of rich men as gifts, not to be repaid in dividends of influence in guiding its affairs. The attitude of Methodism towards moral reform has been emphatically vindicated. As to the future, the foremost work of the church was to discipline rather than discipline the world.

The doors of the churches should be kept open all the week. The successful church of the future must ring with the evangelistic note. A great many other vital points were touched on by the general superintendent, and he declared that when the full program of the conference was revealed it will appear as the most important gathering Canadian Methodism has ever known.

The conference opened with devotional exercises this morning. A public reception for the delegates will be held tonight.

BRITISH SEIZE
GERMAN MINES AND PROPERTY
Expedition to Spitzbergen
Makes Rich Haul.

UNLIMITED WEALTH
Vast Iron and Coal Deposits
Have Been Worked Only to Limited Degree.

London, Oct. 2.—Seizure by a British expedition of German mining property and other development plants at Spitzbergen, including a big wireless installation, is reported by the Express, with the intimation that the work of developing immensely rich iron and coal deposits, is proceeding. It is said they will be of the greatest importance to Great Britain and her Allies. The expedition to Spitzbergen sailed a few months ago under the protection of the British navy. Sir Ernest Shackleton was the commander, but he was subsequently obliged to leave to take up other duties.

His successor, W. S. Jones, who returned to London yesterday, gave an enthusiastic description of the vast mineral wealth which has hitherto merely tapped to a limited extent, by British, German, Swedish and Norwegian companies.

The expedition, Mr. Jones said, took a large number of miners, an enormous quantity of mining material and supplies for three years, and work is now going on on a large scale. Capt. Wild, who was with Shackleton in the Antarctic is in charge of operations. Mr. Jones says the expedition met with considerable difficulties and danger, including encounters with eight German submarines.

of General Critical Situation of Country.

Paris, Oct. 2.—Premier Malinoff appeared before the Bulgarian Parliament on Monday and read the speech from the throne, which was postponed at the first sitting last Friday, according to advices from Sofia by way of Basle.

The reason for this step, he said, was the general situation which confronted the country.

REORGANIZATION OF GERMAN AND PRUSSIAN MINISTRIES NOW UNDER CONSIDERATION

Plan Outlined by Von Payer Is To Change Present Methods to That of One Along Parliamentary System—Abrogation of Portions of Constitution To Be Discussed.

Amsterdam, Oct. 2.—Plans are under consideration for the reorganization of both the Imperial German and Prussian ministries on the lines of a parliamentary system, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, which quotes Friedrich von Payer, the imperial vice-chancellor, to this effect. The vice-chancellor, the newspaper says, received the leaders of all the parties yesterday and discussed the contemplated parliamentarization, which the vice-chancellor declared would extend to the Prussian as well as to the imperial ministry. He also said that the abrogation of portions of the articles IX and XXI of the constitution must be taken in hand as soon as possible. The representatives of the Right, of the Independent Socialists and of the Poles, the Tageblatt states, have refused to co-operate in the formation of a coalition government.

ACCIDENT AT SHEDDEN DELAYS M. C. R. TRAINS

Broken Truck Causes Considerable Damage to Cars and Roadbed.

St. Thomas, Oct. 2.—The evening passenger train on the M. C. R. running into this city were all from two to four hours late last evening as a result of the derailment of a number of cars on a freight train at Shedden.

The freight train, a box car special, was traveling toward this city at a fast rate, early in the evening, and as it was passing the Shedden station a truck on one of the cars suddenly gave way and derailed seven of the cars behind it. The cars piled up and blocked both main lines for a considerable time. The wrecking crew from this city was called to the scene and succeeded in clearing the wreckage off the track sufficiently for traffic to be resumed about 11 o'clock. Train No. 10, which is due in this city at 9:50, arrived here about 11:30. Train No. 48, due at 9:20, arrived about 11:40.

Little damage was done except to the cars and the tearing up of the roadbed and a few rails. No one was hurt, but this was due more to good luck than anything else, as when the accident occurred one of the large trucks of the cars was thrown several feet and alighted upon the platform of the station, damaging it to some extent.

HAIG ADVANCES NEAR ROULERS.
With the British Armies in Flanders, Oct. 2.—Field Marshal Haig's forces today captured Rolleghecapelle and advanced for a distance of 3,000 yards southeast of Roulers.

London, Oct. 2.—Damascus, the capital of Syria, was occupied by Gen. Allenby's forces this morning, according to an official statement issued today by the British war office.

The Turkish commandant at Damascus, asked for terms for the surrender of the city to Gen. Allenby.

Damascus is the Turkish base in Syria and Palestine, and its reported fall probably means the end of all Turkish resistance to Gen. Allenby in Palestine and Syria. The city, which dates back to the dawn of history, is the junction point of railroads leading to the port of Beirut and Aleppo, 180 miles northeast.

Aleppo is the most important Turkish base in this region of Asia-Minor, as it is a junction point of the railroads from Palestine and Mesopotamia.

Damascus is the capital of the vilayet of Syria, and has a population of about 150,000. It is one of the holy cities of the Mohammedans, and the Arabs regard it as one of the four paradises on earth.

The capture of Damascus marks an advance of 130 miles by Gen. Allenby's forces since September 20, the day he launched his victorious attack north of Jerusalem. In that time the British have captured more than 50,000 prisoners, destroyed at least three Turkish armies and driven the enemy from Palestine and a great part of Syria.

GERMAN DEFENCES BROKEN.

London, Oct. 1.—Between Cambrai and St. Quentin the German line of defences has been broken. It is uncertain what lines the enemy has in the rear.

The British advance threatens the German line of retreat in the Oise valley, and also from the massif of St. Gobain.

MASSIF OF ST. THIERRY NOW IN FRENCH HANDS

Paris, Oct. 2.—Heavy fighting took place in St. Quentin last night. Resisting stubbornly, the Germans were driven back to the east bank of the canal, according to the French war office statement today.

West and north of Rheims the French have made further important gains. The entire massif of St. Thierry is now in French hands.

Northwest of Rheims, the French have taken Pouillon and Thil and have reached the southern outskirts of Villers-Franqueux. North of Rheims they have pushed forward their line to the outskirts of Betheny. There was no change in Champagne during the night.

HAIG TEARS GREAT GAPS IN ENEMY'S LINES OF DEFENCE

London, Oct. 2.—The British are pushing farther into the German positions on the front between St. Quentin and Le Catelet, Field Marshal Haig reported today that the Australians had finished the work of clearing out the German defences south of Le Catelet and Gouy and had freed Juncourt, just to the south, of enemy troops.

Wide gaps have been torn in the German line between St. Quentin and Le Catelet by Field Marshal Haig's forces. The British commander reported today the breaking of the German line on the Fensommes.

Sequhart, 4½ miles southeast of Bellicourt, has been captured, as has the hamlet of Preselles, just to the north.

South of Cambrai, British troops, including Scottish and New Zealanders, have occupied Crevecoeur and Rumilly.

HUNS SET FIRE TO FLANDERS' TOWNS OF MENIN AND ROULERS

Paris, Oct. 2.—The towns of Menin and Roulers, railway junctions, in Flanders, have been set on fire by the Germans, in face of advancing Belgians, British and French troops. French guns now control the railway line running from Ostend through Thourout and Roulers to Courtrai.

British monitors are co-operating actively in bombarding the German lines on and near the coast.

THIS WEEK,
NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition. I was worried most of the time and I could not stop that. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. M. Worthline, 2842 North Taylor street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo. There are so many demands upon their time and strength that the result is invariably a weakened, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

Bulgarian Collapse Likely To

CUT OFF TURKEY
Naval and Military Attack On Dardanelles Is Expected
This Winter.

By Frank H. Simonds.
(Copyright, 1918, New York Tribune, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A discussion of the political consequences of Bulgaria's amazing surrender may well be adjourned until certain military problems of immediate significance are solved. On the political side, the telegraph has done little to clear up the military side of the situation. The military side of the situation is the one that is most important.

On the military side the first objective must be the physical separation of Turkey and the other central powers. This can be substantially realized only when Allied troops have restored the Danube front between the Rumanian frontier and the Bosnian boundary. Communication between Berlin and Constantinople must be interrupted by cutting the Belgrade-Constantinople railway, and commanding the Danube River to sea.

Bulgaria has surrendered and agreed to turn over her railways to the Allies, control the vital links in the line between Germany and Austria to Turkey. Gen. D'Epercy and his army must, therefore, push northward from Uskub and take the railway line vital to Teutonic communications. This is the first step.

The second must be an advance from Nish down the Morava Valley to Belgrade. When this has taken place the Danube route will be commanded, and the Allies will be in a position to direct communications with Rumania. And just as soon as the Allies are in touch with Rumania we may rest assured that the nation, resentful of its treatment at German hands, will be ready to join the Allies.

This will be restored the southern front, Austria-Hungary will be threatened with invasion both from Rumania and Rumania. An instant demand will be made upon German and Austrian reserves to meet the new danger, and these reserves can only be obtained by weakening the western and Italian fronts.

In this way, and with very short delay, the Balkan campaign will begin to have direct and enormous influence upon the western campaign. The German line will be compelled to retire in order to shorten their line and get re-served in the new field.

We may then see the Balkan front as no longer a "side show," but become a main front. From invasion, to save Austria-Hungary from invasion, which spells ruin, Germany must get out of the Balkans. The surrender of Bulgaria is a strategic move.

It is a line of attack advised by the Greek general staff in 1915. We may then see the Balkan front as no longer a "side show," but become a main front. NO ELECTRICITY FOR LATE RISERS OR FOR THOSE IN OFFICES

Morning "Shut-Offs" Cause
People Great Inconvenience.

One is led to wonder just how many people there are in the city who go to work in the morning breakfasts. There must be some who are so afflicted or else the breakfast they do have is a cold one.

The reason is that the hydro power is dictating to the users of electric stoves as to what time they shall get up. If they are early risers they receive the many of approval from the hydro bosses by finding their electric stoves still hot the kettle or fry an egg. If they are late, after 8:30 or 9 o'clock risers, their chances are poor.

Some mornings are pretty dark and the unfortunate with the electric stoves, but all householders and office staffs suffer. The lights are off. That is, they are in zones.

There was an amusing case this morning. A stenographer in a certain office was pounding the typewriter and trying to read her notes by the light of a candle. Not a hundred yards away the utilities building was brightly illuminated. It did not suffer from the shortage of power. The lights were actually needed in the building, but at a glance it would seem that they might have shared up with the stenographer.

One office manager in the city stated this morning that his employees were completely shut out because their stoves were unable to get light. This was not a joke. The dark morning made the dark days of the summer, but it was dispensable.

General Manager A. O. Hunt stated today that for a time this morning the power of the whole city was cut off. The dark morning made the dark days of the summer, but it was dispensable.

Former Minister of Rumania
Says His Country Will Get Back Territory.

Paris, Oct. 2.—"If the Allies have succeeded in ending hostilities in Macedonia, it is to be hoped that we will also succeed in reaching an agreement which will bring about lasting peace among the Balkan nations," was a statement made by Take Jancescu, former minister of the interior of Rumania, who is visiting Allied countries in the interest of his native land.

"Rumania must get back the territory on the other side of the Danube now occupied by the Bulgarians," he continued. "It is indispensable toward economic life, and would in no wise be a Bulgarian capitulation. Bulgaria would have other advantages which would counterbalance with the withdrawal of our army from this territory."

"Allied troops will approach the Danube and the Rumanian army will take up the arms withdrawn from it by the so-called peace of Bucharest," he said. "It is indispensable toward economic life, and would in no wise be a Bulgarian capitulation. Bulgaria would have other advantages which would counterbalance with the withdrawal of our army from this territory."

GOVERNMENT A LA WASHINGTON.

CANADIANS as a people have no serious lack of brains or initiative. Whether or not the same can be said of Canadian leaders is a matter of doubt. It is neither wise nor justified to size up the efforts of this country with the United States in order to belittle what Canada has done, but at the same time the average citizen is getting tired of the continuous "follow the leader" game as played by the solons at Ottawa. Uncle Sam chooses a food controller, let us say. Canadians have been demanding the appointment of the same kind of official for a long time. But he does not appear until Washington has set the fashion. The same thing applies to fuel control, to the regulation of railways, to the handling of most of our problems, to our shipbuilding program. We have, thanks to Ottawa, become imitative in matters of war policy and public policy. Even in the adoption of conscription, Canada did not move until the United States, intent upon securing an overwhelming force of men by the quickest means possible, had adopted the principle of selective draft. Before that time the politicians had not breathed the word, but as soon as Wilson had taken a stand they turned about and cried "Look what Washington has done." And we were told we should follow the leader.

It is quite the truth that much may be learned from our American neighbors. Ottawa will adopt American methods in connection with the next Victory Loan, instead of originating and leading the way. But a man gets into the new land quickest who is ready to blaze his own trail. Canada does not lack the inspiration or ambition, but she has not at home acquired faith in her own judgment, at least not so far as Ottawa has been able to demonstrate.

A GLIMPSE OF THE AUTUMN.

WE ARE a lover of nature, always in search of the rare, haunting prospects that come into the focusing glass of the optical organs at this wondrous autumn time. So we wandered our way to the south end of Maitland or Colborne or Richmond street. It was some of these streets, anyway, but one does not travel with a city map in his hand when he is seeking transport and autumn tints, and cannot be definite as to material outlines. And as the refulgent orb, referred to by embryonic reporters and short story writing females as Old Sol, was sinking in the west directly in a line with the streak of moisture known as the River Thames, the Dame pulled back the curtains and revealed her latest creation. The soft sails of a prow or a gondola or a junk (we really think it was a junk) were reflected from the silvery surface of the stream. And as one looked over the panorama he saw the beauty with which the banks of the stream were clad, as for instance, oaks, discarded barrels, old mattresses, tons of the greyest ashes, with here and there a stain of saffron, soap boxes and a wonderfully blending conglomeration of stumps and roots and old planks and broken down signboards (one with the face of a baby that once had yelled for bread, and now seemed to be yelling for help). Half a broken down chair was jutting out of the strange mass, giving the heart throbbing touch, and inviting a tribute to the old arm chair, copied from the second reader. It was worth the journey, if only to contrast the river to the north of the city with some parts to the south.

THE RONALD GRAY MEMORIAL.

CITIZENS of London have been deeply touched this week by the announcement of the form which a memorial to one of its gallant young sons who has given his life a sacrifice to the cause of freedom and righteousness will take. As a living monument to their beloved son, Sergt. Ronald Maxwell Gray, who died as a result of wounds on February 2, 1917, Mr. and Mrs. James Gray have made possible the acquiring by the Salvation Army of a large building, adapted for the purpose of a children's home. Here, in the immediate future, orphaned, neglected and destitute toddlers and infants in arms for whom, up to the present, local institutions have been unable to provide, will be given the tender care of women officers of the army who serve, not because they are paid for it, but for the love of the Master who took the little ones in His arms and said, "Suffer the little ones to come unto me." Eventually, the home will be devoted to the care of children of soldiers, orphaned by the war, or for some reason neglected. In this way, the Ronald Gray Memorial Home for years to come will shelter and nurture and give a chance in life to the children of comrades in arms of the brave soldier lad for whom it is being named, comrades who like him have endured hardship, many of them making also the supreme sacrifice.

The war has given to the world a new conception of theology and of eternity. It is impossible to believe that the radiant, useful young lives cut off by shot and shell in action front are abruptly concluded. Canada's hero sons, the records tell, sleep in cross-marked graves in France and Flanders. Some place they are living lives of larger, freer service. And meantime, in the world of turmoil which their sacrifice has enriched, and their passing has saddened, men and women, youths and maidens are inspired also to give their own measure of service. Those who have loved best and felt most keenly the burden of anxiety and grief have laid upon them the responsibility to be worthy of soldier sons, husbands, brothers, sweethearts. They must "carry on" for the sake of those who have struggled and now sleep in Flanders field where life blood has given to the poppies the rich red hue. Mr. and Mrs. Gray have given to the challenge to "carry on" unflinchingly. The former several months ago accepted the heavy responsibility of the office of district representative of the Canada food board, giving his time and service gratuitously, that he may do his part in insuring food supply to win and shorten the war.

And now comes the generous gift which has made possible the home for children. Ronald Gray laid down his life that coming generations in Canada, little children such as will be cared for in the home, might know a world of security, peace and liberty. Not only his name, but his spirit and the ideals for which he stood will be perpetuated in the Ronald Gray Memorial Home, and many lives made safe for democracy thereby.

THE CAPTURED TURK MAY BE HAPPY.

WHAT OF THE Turkish prisoner in the hands of the Allies? He gets razzed and a few cigarettes from his puzzled Tommy captors, but what of his better half, that is to say his better half? What of his harem back in Ukul-gluck or some other tank town on the proposed railway built in the crazy kaiser's brain? What are all the fair jewels of Pte. Abdul Namud going to do since the light of their lives has been snuffed out by the Allahy terrors of the desert? Can the decrepit Turkish Government pay them separation allowance, and how in thunder will the pensions be arranged? The loss of a Mohammedan big toe may mean a score or fifty howling women clamoring around the Moslem pensions officers. The Canadian pensions problem with all its complexities, will be a clean-cut issue compared with the wild riots and female furores that must swarm about the heads of the unhappy sultan and his staff. Yet the sultan's soldier may be enjoying a Turkish delight unknown before when he contemplates his escape from his wives. He may even make signs to the recorder of casualties to strike him off as dead, thereby creating a flock of widows, and loading upon his government a burden that will be an aid to victory.

BURN BERLIN TO THE GROUND!

THE WANTON spirit of destruction that finds nurture in the German breast has not been chastened by recent severe defeats of the west front and developments of the general war situation. The Hun has set the torch to Cambrai, in an endeavor to make the path of the Allied armies as difficult as possible, but at the same time out of a sheer frenzy to mutilate and destroy all things that could be reclaimed by the French people. He has burned and razed hundreds of other villages, making a desolate plain of a land that blossomed with villages and held the homes of thousands of people who desired to live at peace with the world.

Separated by thousands of miles from the people who must bear the brunt of the Hun's black devilishness, the people who can never reconcile themselves to a rebuilt home to take the place of the one from which they were cast out, it is none the less possible to feel the most poignant desire for vengeance upon the nation that has made arson its companion and ally.

Burn Berlin! That is the thought that arises hot from the smoking picture of Cambrai's ruins. Burn Berlin to the last palace and the last pigsty as a beacon fire to the people of Germany and the world that destruction must be paid with destruction! As a preliminary to the burning of Berlin, let Berlin be bombed by hundreds of Allied aviators! Let the people be warned to depopulate the place, which would be showing more kindness than has been shown to the French! Then for a bonfire of material such as the world has never before witnessed in order to chasten a people that has turned upon humanity and from God! No counsel of wholesale murder is advanced. But the need for meeting the fires of hate with a counter-fire of stern discipline has never been more apparent in the history of the world.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A war saver is a life saver!

Canadian cash can hasten the crash—in Germany.

The thoughtless spender is today Canada's worst offender.

The Bulgarian quitting habit appears to have struck the kaiser's ministry.

There is this to be said of Ferdinand—he did his best to line up to his nickname.

Bulgaria is willing to attack Turkey, but only if aided by the Allies. Sofia intends to play a sure thing this time.

The kaiser proposes to use Belgium as a "pawn." He may have to pawn the family plate in order to help pay Belgium's indemnity.

THE ONGOING.

[Mary Sieglrist in New York Times.]
"Lose me from fear and make me see aright.
Homer has back what once he stayed to weep—
Homer his sight, David his little lad."

He will not come, the gallant flying boy.
Back to his field, somewhere he wings his way
Where the Immortals keep; where Homer now
Has back his sight, David his little lad.
Where all those are we dully call the dead.
Who have gone greatly on some shining quest.
He takes his way. That which he quested for,
That larger freedom of a larger birth,
Captains him, flying into fields of dawn.

He has gone on where now the soldier-slain
Lies in light. Somewhere he takes his place
And lends his comrades in untrodden fields.
For never can these rest until our earth
Has ceased from travail—never can these take
Their fill of sleep until the Scourge is slain.
And so they keep them sometimes near old ways
In the accustomed fields—now flying low,
Invisibly, they cheer the gallant hosts,
Bidding them be, as they, invincible.

Still he leads on, the gallant flying boy!
Among the "great good dead" he steers his boundless course
Now where the soldier-poets pass in light—
Where Brooks and Seeger and the others keep—
The singing slain, the peerless fighting dead—
He takes his brilliant way; or where those lately come
Our flying Groat, Mitchell and all his men,
Wait him in large, warm-hearted welcoming.

He will come never back! But we who watched
Him take the upper air and steer his boundless path
Firmly against the foe, we know that here
Death could not penetrate. Life only is Where all is life, and so, before us, keeps Always the vision of his faring on
To unspun fields where his great comrades wait.
And, joyful, take him for their captaining—
The brave Adventurer,
The gallant flying boy!

Dear Luke—I am a working girl and I am engaged to a fellow who thinks he knows more than Paw, and Luke knows that Paw knows everything. My fellow beau says the reason Indians have such funny names is because when a papoose has just been born, the Indian father goes to the door of the canoe, looks out, and the first thing he sees he puts into words, and them words is what makes the name of the papoose. So I says to him: "Suppose the Indian father looked out and saw Luke taking a swim out of a flask of his famous 'Nose Paint,' what would the name of the papoose be?" And the fellow says: "You talk like a darn fool. What would the name of the papoose be?" And I says: "Luke-Pass-The-Tamaraak" would be the name of the papoose." Ain't I right?—E. E. L. M.

Luke McLuke Says

Be careful how you knock an enemy in public. Remember that no matter how much you hate a man, he is liable to have a few friends in the neighborhood.

Before an election all you hear about is Principles. But after an election all you hear about is jobs. And there should be a drain so that the water in it ran off should not make the mud around the spring. Mr. Pell may have had some questions concerning this, but he didn't ask them for a few days he and Lucy were meeting occasionally in a secluded woodland path to plan the presentation. And all the time Lucy had visions of the big write-up in the papers, and the big money under way, and the surprise that people would feel when they learned about it. And Frances Pell will be still watching the color as it came quickly when she became especially interested in the plans under way, and sometimes he laughed at her, too, but she had ceased to be nettled by the eve of the day when the announcement of the plans was to be made came at last, and Lucy had the first spring ready to send to the little Sentinel press. There was even to be a cut showing the design for the fountain. And it had all been kept a secret between Mr. Pell and Lucy, though people were beginning to wonder why there had been survivors and workmen on the picnic grounds of late.

The Sentinel was just going to press and Lucy was putting the last flourishes on the great announcement when the little office long after other good Peltonites had retired for the night. The owner-editor, an errand boy, the other reporter and a handful of compositors and pressmen constituted the entire staff, and they were too preoccupied with their tasks to notice the figure of Francis Pell as it passed quickly across the floor to Lucy's desk. He sat down beside her, laid a nervous hand on the copy she was still working on. "There's a hitch in our plans. I can't tell you now. But trust me, you mustn't make the announcement now." Then he went, telling Lucy he would wait for her outside the little office and tell her more as he escorted her home as soon as she had finished her work.

"It's this way," he began. "Men from the water department have been feeling around lately, and today I got notice from headquarters. That spring isn't a spring at all. It's a leak from the main. That water is just the same water and now they send me formal word that in future I'll have to have it metered and pay for it at regular rates. I don't mind paying the few hundred dollars it would cost a year, but no one would care about the fountain if it was plain city water, and they're like to have the joke on the old miser. So we'll have to think of something else to do." They walked along in silence for a few minutes. Lucy's pretty lips working overtime trying to hold back the tears of disappointment. Two or three times Mr. Pell tried to begin his next speech before he succeeded.

"I was thinking," he said, "in fact, I've thought it for a long time over since a little while after you came to me that first time—that I couldn't give the Peltonites and the boys at the town hall much more of a surprise than to get married. That would be a real place of news, wouldn't it?" "Yes—but," and the lips worked overtime. "I didn't know there was anyone you couldn't get any more married. There's you," said Mr. Pell simply. "How'd that be for starting something? We could run off and be married, and then when we came back we can do the other things, the curb around the town hall and the drinking fountain for stray dogs and cats and the picnic ground and anything else you say."

Lucy's mind failed to revolve around the interests of the Pelton Sentinel, and when she said that it would be perfectly wonderful, she was thinking only of her own selfish point of view.

Mr. Pell was hardly flattered at being put in a class with these local eccentrics, and had Lucy Brown had as much tact as she had enthusiasm she might have made her appeal in another way. But the fact was that Mr. Francis Pell, whose ancestors had founded the old town, was quite as much of a character in his way of life as any of the local boys. He had been a bookish fellow, "always kept the cent shop." Although scarce forty, and though no one had ever seen him counting out bags of money, nor had he ever been known to be crafty or shrewd in money matters, he was regarded as "the old miser." There were fabulous accounts of the extent of his wealth, which had been glittered large in the mind's eye of Pelton mamas, but had long since ceased to be regarded as in any way available. So Lucy paid her first call on Mr. Pell and was very politely shown to the door after she had made herself quite clear, and she went away feeling as much confused and disheartened as she had some seven years before, when she went out on her first assignment for the big city paper. If she had been she would have known better than to try to make news out of anything that Francis Pell might be doing. But she knew he was one of the most gossiped about personalities in town. Failing to find anything more fertile for discussion about him, the women discussed the size of his grocery bill—though they were perfectly normal—or kept close track of his harmless old mammy housekeeper or the new coat of paint on his house or the condition of his apple orchard. But these things wouldn't make news items for the Sentinel.

Lucy was rebuffed the first time, politely but effectively, and went away perhaps more upset over a certain gracious courtesy that Mr. Pell had shown toward her than because of the actual rebuff.

But Lucy had not been a reporter for seven years for nothing, and once her cheeks had stopped tingling from that first call she decided to make another. She would get some sort of story out of him—that she determined. It was on her third call that Mr. Pell showed signs of weakness.

"You say you want me to do something to make a story about," he began cautiously, looking anxiously into Lucy's eager face and studying the nervous twitching of her still girlish lips. "What sort of thing would you suggest—not, of course, that I intend to do it?"

Lucy chose to take him entirely seriously. "Make some gift to the town," she announced. "Everyone thanks you heads of money, but—"

"I know," smiled Mr. Pell, "they call me the old miser. It has always amused me to choose to keep my benefactions to myself. I have just sent a rather important contribution to an astronomical observatory in Labrador that my father endowed, and the hospital for leprosy Shanghai that my mother was interested in."

"Pelton people don't care about that," interrupted Lucy. "They want you to do something for Pelton. If it is only a drinking fountain for the stray dogs or a new curbstone around the town hall. Just think how the boys over there would like to see and read the Sentinel if you were to do something like that, and there would be presentation speeches and everyone would turn out and there would be a big time—and then maybe if you did something like that they'd put you up for mayor and—well, you can see what a lot you might do to keep things going." Lucy sighed, and somehow her concern amused Mr. Pell more than anything she had done before. She had already proved immensely diverting.

Then one day Mr. Pell called at the Sentinel office to see Lucy, and that was enough to keep Pelton tongues wagging for a few days. He told her he wanted her to tell him exactly what sort of thing he might do for the old town. Lucy that afternoon had been reporting a picnic given by one employee of one of the local factories. The place chosen for it was part of the old Pell estate, and because of a bubbling spring of water that flowed out from the shale there it had proved a favorite spot for picnics for some years past, and Mr. Pell had never objected, in spite of his too from a bubbling spring of water, which seemed to come from the neighborhood around the spring so that thirsty folks might quench their thirst with ordinary water, and it was a favorite spot for pedestrians on hot Sundays, who came there to get a little folding camp to quench their thirst at the Miser's Spring, as it was sometimes called.

Lucy had seen the picnickers drinking at the spring that afternoon, and she was sure that if she could get something to do was to give this tract of land as a picnic ground and to put up a sort of fountain of rough-hewn rocks from the neighborhood around the spring so that thirsty folks might quench their thirst with ordinary water, and it was a favorite spot for pedestrians on hot Sundays, who came there to get a little folding camp to quench their thirst at the Miser's Spring, as it was sometimes called.

The eve of the day when the announcement of the plans was to be made came at last, and Lucy had the first spring ready to send to the little Sentinel press. There was even to be a cut showing the design for the fountain. And it had all been kept a secret between Mr. Pell and Lucy, though people were beginning to wonder why there had been survivors and workmen on the picnic grounds of late.

ANOTHER SHOW AT THE MOVIES.

After Mr. and Mrs. Possum got home from the show, at the movies by Longbill, Teddy Possum was very happy to see his father and mother living together like two fond kittens; and Teddy said privately, "Mother, I think you had better take father again to the Longbill show, for all the neighbors had better see father and mother living together like two fond kittens, and that father had reformed and had turned over a new leaf."

Tomorrow—Teddy Possum Gives a Dinner Party.

So that very evening Mrs. Possum took her husband to another show at Longbill's Movie. Again Mrs. Possum got Mr. Possum a back seat beside her self, where they could not be seen. They were both just in time for the show had just begun; and Lady Woodcock was the only one in the audience. And you would have laughed to see Lady Woodcock yawn, and nod her head, as if half asleep, and she snipped out, "Oh, Longbill, I'm awfully bored. Those are old tricks, and I know hundreds of handsome chaps who have whistled to me, and jumped and down higher and faster than you ever can." That made Longbill furious, and he began to prance around and "show off" more than ever. And he said in his sweetest tones, "Fank, Fank, Fank" and he beat his wings faster and soared higher, and his wings made a wonderful sound to hear, as he shot in circles above the tree-tops, and he finally landed at his Lady-Love's feet. And then Longbill began to dance a new-style two-step. He thought his jig was up in the latest mode, but Lady Woodcock was very coy and bored, and she groaned, "Oh, Longbill, you ought to try to dance, for you are not funny, and you are not a clown, and I only laugh at your awkward and clumsy performance and antics."

But Longbill was not discouraged for he had set his little heart on winning his True-Love. And then Longbill tried to act dignified and important, and he stood motionless before her, and he pressed his very long bill against his beak, and thrust his head back, as if he was the only Woodcock in the world. And Longbill at last won out and so he and his new mate started off to build their nest. And Mrs. Possum said to Mr. Possum, "Don't you remember when you were a fool of yourself to win me; and when you used to dress up in your ridiculous and just like Longbill? Now I want you to be like that again!" And Mr. Possum perked up and stuck out his chest, and stepped off with high steps, and said, "I'll try my best to be a lover like Longbill." And Teddy Possum was very happy to see his father reformed. That night Teddy went to see Jimmy Coon, and he told Jimmy that his father was reformed, and Jimmy was so happy with him, and he danced a jig in the moonlight. He pressed his very long bill against

A pretty wedding took place in Milton on Saturday afternoon, September 28, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, when Amy McClelland, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jardine, was united in marriage to Walter Service Scott, youngest son of Finlay S. Scott of Brantford.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Mackay of Milton. The bride was given away by her father, and the wedding march was played by Miss Nellie Fox of Brantford. The bride looked lovely in a charming gown of white georgette and crepe, and carried a bouquet of white roses and orchids. After congratulations and the signing of the register the company retired to the dining-room, where a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's traveling costume was brown gabardine, with velvet hat to match, and fox fur, the gift of her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left on the evening train for the east, and on their return will reside at Blair Athol, Brantford.

WILL WORK AMONG THE MOHAMMEDAN WOMEN OF CHINA

Miss Winnifred Stevens Has Been Designated to Missionary District.

An interesting field of work in China has been designated to Miss Winnifred Stevens, daughter of the Rev. F. A. Stevens of this city. She will be in the province of Kansu, in the northwest of China, directly on the border of Tibet, and will work among Mohammedan women of that district. Although the China Inland Mission, under whose direction she went to China a year ago, has not yet been able to secure a passport to go there, as the way through which she must pass is very dangerous. This section of China is known as the robber country, and a passport is not issued until the road is considered safe.

Miss Stevens, although born in England, spent ten years of her childhood with her father and mother in China, attending school in Shanghai, where she absorbed much of the language and customs. It was during this period that she first began to think of missionary work as her own calling, although she did not decide definitely in this regard until many years later.

She attended both collegiate and normal school here in London, and taught for a few years, after which she spent two years with the Moody Institute in Chicago, graduating from there two years ago. On October 10, last, she left for China, accompanied by a party of seven missionaries, and for what may be a long time. She is now in Yangchow, passing successfully her first examination in the language. Her work among the Mohammedans is bound to be interesting and successful.

PERSONALITY HAS AN IMPORTANT BEARING ON CAREER OF NURSE

Says Dr. Craig in an Address Before Nurses' Alumnae.

Dr. D. A. Craig delivered a most inspiring and at the same time instructive address before the Nurses' Alumnae at Victoria Hospital last evening. Dividing his address into two parts, he dealt first with the subject in which he is most interested, the nursing of cases of tuberculosis, and secondly with the personal characteristics necessary to the success of an efficient nurse.

Speaking of the latter he declared, "Personality has an important bearing on the successful career of a nurse. She must be able to adjust herself to her patient, and be in perfect sympathy with him. Miss Mitchell says that one must not only be a nurse, but a person. One should realize the truth of this saying more than the nurse herself, and should consider the patient as the one in pain. Her life must be a life of service, and she should be a person who should be a most ardent pupil. Her work must be her greatest pleasure, and she should cling to the stimulating effect of difficult cases, for very little is gained when the work is easy and smooth."

"Every nurse should know that the greatest reward of the medical profession is not money, but rather the joy that comes from every attempt to make the community a healthier place, and to relieve the individual of suffering and restore him to his normal place in life once more. Every nurse should consider her calling as one of the noblest, and should enter upon such a career unless she is prepared to live up to the highest ideals of the nursing profession. She should remember, what Cabot of Boston, that what men live by is work, play, love and worship, and not money."

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

Capital of Quebec.

Dear Miss Grey.—What is the meaning of Jane, Glen, Ben, Philip, Wesley and Eliza? What is the name of the capital of Quebec? Have any of the readers of the page got a song, entitled "In the Shadow of the Pines"? Best wishes from.....

Ans.—Jane signifies "Gift of God." Ben (Benjamin), son of the right hand; Philip, a lover of horses; Eliza, consecrated to God.

(3)—Referred to readers.

That Overseas Cake.

Dear Miss Grey.—(1) Will you print the recipe for "Overseas Cake?" I got now who sent it, but I lost the paper.

(2) Will you please tell me what will take the shine off a blue serge dress without hurting the dress?

(3) I enclosed find a stamped envelope, and will you please send me some crochet patterns for an undershirt? Thanking you in advance, I remain, your sincere admirer, L. J. 2, 3.

Ans.—This is the recipe to which you refer. I think Skinny's Overseas Cake is good. 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup mixed nuts, 1-4 cup almonds, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon cream tartar and flour to thicken. Bake in a moderate oven, and when nearly done cover with pieces of paper to prevent burning.

(2) Sponce the shirt with a warm vinegar, using a piece of dark cloth to avoid the lint.

(3) Nothing at hand to send out. Can any reader supply one or two?

Winter Is Near.

Dear Miss Grey.—I saw that a returned soldier's wife has got a nice little made emulsion recipe for chest troubles. As winter is near I would like to get the recipe, as I have a cold every winter.

Ans.—Yes, these autumn nights with their touch of frost remind us of winter. I shall be pleased to send that emulsion recipe to aid or prevent Red Rose's annual cold.

"R. P. W.'s" Energy.

Dear Miss Grey.—May I peep into your Mail-Box? I've read your Page for over a year now, and I must 'fess that I like it just fine. I would like some in gasoline. Can you or any of the many readers of your Page please advise about the best way to get a good emulsion? I am enclosing a stamped envelope for stocking foot pattern, also the addresses of "A. Girl from Huron County," "Rainbow" and "Yankee Girl." It looks as if I would be kept busy writing letters, doesn't it?

I have intended writing before, but have been farming all summer, and I have been cutting corn. Here's good luck to all the Mail-Box.

Ans.—You sound like a very energetic person with your talk of farming; quite different from the old "R. P. W." who fell asleep so long ago. You should be able to wash the skirt suit carefully in gasoline. Immerse and rub with the hands; squeeze, and hang out on the line; when dry, press on wrong side.
