TWO HANDSOME GIFTS. The employes of the various departments of the C. P. R. in this city made a handsome presentation to Mr. Fred Hurkett, who has resigned his place as chief clerk at the depot, on Monday. About fifty of Mr. Hurkett's fellow-employes gathered in the freight offices, and Mr. Charles Martin read an address, after which Miss Margaret Bar-clay presented Mr. Hurkett with a handsome traveling case and a gold-headed umbrella. Mr. Hurkett was completely taken by surprise, but he thanked those present and expressed his great regret at leaving them. Minneapolis is to be Mr. Hurkett's home in future, where he is going to enter into business. He will leave in a few

CORBETT IS A REFINED ACTOR

Ex-Champion Pugilist Appears in "Pals" at the Grand -Show Is Good.

Aside from the fact that James J. Corbett is a world-renowned athlete and a large drawing card in himself. the four-act comedy drama "Pals," in which he appeared at the Grand last night, is a very praiseworthy production, and one well worth seeing solely on the merits of the performance. The company supporting Mr. Corbett is well balanced and each part is taken in a natural free and easy manner that pleased the audience. The latter by he way, was not encouragingly large very amusing scenes are placed in the little comedy drama, the third and fourth acts being particularly humorous at times. Interest is kept up throughout, each act being stronger than the previous one, and the last one terminating in a strong, lively climax, in which Mr. Corbett, as Jim Graham, uses his sparring proclivities in a most realistic-looking drubbing that he gives o Ned Brumley-his old college pal. Miss Inez Macauley's acting has a charm of manner pleasing to witness. and her personal appearance fits her very well for the role of Grace Winston, the girl with whom both the chums are in love. To Hal Davis as Higgins, a great share of the funmaking was due, and he deserves much praise for his work. The situations in the fourth act were ridiculously funny and kept the audience in roars of laughter. Others in the company deserving of particular praise was Mr. D. F. Powell, as Dr. Jerry Sharpe, and Miss Florence Hamilton, as Kate Blakemore. Doubtless the many counter attractions last night was the chief reason that a larger audience did not attend "Pals," but another opportunity is afforded tonight, when it will again be given. AT THE LONDON. La Tell Brothers, the famous Euroean gymnasts, made a big hit with the audience at the vaudeville performance in the London last night. The La Tells are certainly the eleverest in their line in the business, and all who have not seen this wonderful pair should lose no time in doing so. No matter what class of acrobatic work London theater-goers may have seen, they will find this turn of La Tell Brothers a reveation. The audience was not a large one, but all were greatly pleased with the entire bill. "WAY DOWN EAST." With an entirely new scenic production and with a capable cast, "Way Down Flast" will be seen at the Grand on Saturday, matinee and night. The popularity of this celebrated rural play oes not seem to wane. Acknowledging the merit of the play, there are other factors that have to do with its success. Foremost is the fact that Manager Brady has kept the cast up to its original standard of excellence. Every year he has given the play an entirely new scenic setting and in every way has given the play the same care and attention that he would a new production. That these things count in the long run, is evidenced by the continual success of the play.

The weather was fine and a large crowd of patrons were on hand to encourage the directors and help the Indians in the ways of agriculture. And there were evidences of great progress since the Muncey Fair was started. There was a large outlay in building a new hall this year. A host of Moravians came with their noted brass band, and discoursed sweet music during the day. But the baseball nine of Moravians was scalped, the score being 19 to 12 in favor of the Muncey Reserve nine. The merry-go-round did a fair business. The Liberal candidate is a man of vigorous intellect, ripe scholarship and indomitable energy. He has few equals as a political economist, and is thoroughly equipped for public life. He would not be long in making his mark in any deliberative assembly.

The old Dominion riding of East Middlesex had a creditable representative in Mr. Gilmour, and the provincial riding has a worthy member in Dr. Routledge. Mr. Peter Elson is a respectable man, but in point of ability and capacity to represent the riding in Parliament, his best friends can hardly say that he measures up either to Mr. Gilmour or Dr. Routledge. If the electors of the riding send Mr. Mc-Evoy to Parliament he will not be a nonentity. They will have the satisfaction of knowing that the member for East Middlesex will be heard from in the House and will reflect credit on the constituency.

The Conservative Preference.

Mr. Borden and his followers talk a good deal about a British preference, which they are supposed to favor. What is it? They claim to be Mr.Chamberlain's true friends. The preference of which Mr. Chamberlain is an advocate involves the putting on of a tax dependent cigar manufacturers would on all agricultural imports coming into have been forced to the wall. Britain from foreign countries, and allowing grain from the colonies to come in free. And in return for that the colonies will allow British manufactures to enter the colonies at lower rates of duties than now apply. In other words it is to be an arangement for the mutual benefit of the Canadian farmer and the British manufacturer. And this is what the Conservatives are supposed to favor.

But how would it be brought about if Mr. Borden got into power? In the first place, a tax on agricultural im- ning side ports into Britain can only be adopted by the British people. It is not a very popular idea in Britain. What influence can Mr. Borden bring to bear on the English voter to effect this radical change in a long-established fiscal policy? There are only two ways of doing it. He can make an offer to Britain. and say: If you will tax foreign grain, and admit Canadian grain free, we will give your manufactures free admission into Canada; or, if not absolutely free, we will at least make the present rate much lower. Dealing with the extravagance charges, Mr Little said that economy was very desirable, but every person knew that the country was advancing and that person cannot run a business of $50,000 with no greater expense that is entailed in the management of a business amounting to $20,000. Mr. Little took up the question of the Grand Trunk Pacific briefly, and warned his hearers not to be frightened by the figures of the Conservatives as to the cost of the road to the country. The necessity of the railway, the speaker pointed out was agreed to by both political parties, and even Mr. Osler. himself, a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, had made the state ment that there was room enough ir the Northwest for six railways. Little dealt with the advance in trade showing that now Canada, with its population of less than 6,000,000, did as much trade as all of the South Ameri can countries, with their population of over 40,000,000 combined. Why should there be any attempt to remove the men who brought about this condition of things? They had been accused of stumbling across these things. 'Well," concluded Mr. Little, "all can say is let them do some mor stumbling." (Applause.)

MR. HYMAN'S ANSWERS

Liberal Candidate Replies to Criticism of Mayor Beck and Harvey Hall.

When the chairman arose and introduced Hon. Mr. Hyman as the next speaker there was an outburst of applause that continued for some considerable time. The mention of the popular candidate's name was the signal for an outburst of cheering, the majority of the audience rising to their feet and joining heartily in it. When the applause subsided M Hyman proceeded to express the pleasure he felt at the privilege of address ing the people of East London for the first time. He had the pleasure and honor, he continued, during the last Parliament of being the chairman of the redistribution committee, for the redistribution of seats, and there was no single act of his, while acting in that capacity, that he performed with a greater pleasure than the signing of act which made East London part of the city of London for electoral purposes. (Applause). It was the place, where East London should long ago have been. (Applause). "I notice," said Mr. Hyman, "that last evening Mayor Beck referred to the question as to why there was only one member for the city of London Now, if there is one dangerous ground upon which our opponents can tread in this contest, it is upon the redistribution of the constituencies. Look back for one moment to the redistribution of the Conservatives on the two occasions prior to the redistribution by the Liberals. What do we find?

The Hamilton Spectator says: There are very few carpenters and stable hands in this city who know that they can be summoned to appear in police court if they are caught smoking in their shops or stables. And yet it is so, although the police magistrate did not know that such a bylaw existed until this morning. He is indexing the bylaws and statutes for handy reference in the police court, and came across the one mentioned. It says that any carpenter who smokes in his shop, or any stablehand who smokes in his barn can be summoned, as it laimed that this smoking is a danger to property. So far as is known, no such case has ever been pressed in the local police court, and certainly not in the time of Magistrate Jelfs' sitting.

there had been many men out of employment. There had been a great change, and now there was plenty of work. There was no need for the scenes which at one time or another this and every other country had gone through. The workingmen were the men always above all others. From their ranks the brainy men had come. They kept the equality of the times, and tutil the class distinction was introduced by these "walking delegates."

As examples of the many great men who had come from the families of workingmen, Mr. Purdom pointed to the more praise than if he had also been thinking of a reason why anybody should choose Mr. And he had also been thinking of a reason why anybody should choose Mr. Gray against Mr. Hyman. But he had been unable to find a reason. All knew that all knew Mr. Hyman. All knew that all their fathers were Liberals or Conservatives? It is a grand Canadian policy and why should they not vote for it if they believed in it? He quoted an authority who had gone over the situation in Germany as follows: "If you want to become sick of the running of Government railways, come over to Government railways, come over to deverything in this country. But it is not right to appeal to workingmen as any one class. You have to judge people by their actions and success in life, and Mr. Hyman is entitled to more praise than if he had

Now this was a most unwarranted assertion on the part of Mr. Meredith, because the officials of the public works branch in this city are all respectable men and good citizens. Mr Sing, the chief, had been appointed by the Conservatives years ago, and he and his staff were entirely capable. The branch had been brought to London because it was needed in the west, and London was the proper place for it. And Mr. Sing has stated that the branch will save its expenses ten times over in the course of a year in traveling expenses alone. And yet Mr. Meredith, talking in a perfectly reckless manner-in fact, not knowing what he was talking about-says that all he sees as yet of the public works department in London is three Grit pluggers tolerated in London. On this Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, the Liberals feel that the Government is also absolutely right. Personally, Mr. Gibbons said, the more he found out about it the more convinced he became that t was in the interests of the country, and the very best thing that could be done for the country. Prof. Saunders has stated that there are 170,000,000 acres of wheat lands in the Northwest awaiting the coming of the railways. There is room for this railway. Look at the geographical situation. Only one railway, which was never built on up-to-date lines. It is up grade, roundabout and anything but the class of railway required in the year 1904. It is because of this line, which is unable to carry the wheat to the seaboard that housands of bushels stay at Port Arthur all winter. That was all right when Canada was a small country, but if the country is to be filled up, you must have a modern railway such as the G. T. P. proposes to build-a railway which will keep open all winter and bring down the wheat all winter. What would the railwaymen present think if the wheat which they now haul to the east had to remain all winter at Chicago? We can't stop where building of the railroad would bring no we are. If we don't build roads the less an amount than $100,000,000 of Americans will tap the Canadian West from the south and will carry our wheat away through the south. Mr. Hays, of the Grand Trunk Railway, is not a fool. He is not going to build a railway that will not pay.

interested in this policy. Would they let their party politics go so far as to make them say, I will vote for a gentleman like Mr. Gray against a man like Mr. Hyman?-a man of whom every man, every Conservative, is proud? (Cheers.)

The speaker said he would not give a rap for a man who would not change his opinion when he had good cause to change it. And every man in the rink should vote for the Grand Trunk Pacific policy. Turning to the corruption cry, Mr.

Gibbons said that all men who knew him in the party and out of it knew that he detested any interference with the ballot, and if he knew of any tampering with the ballots he would be the first to lay an information against the offender, even though he should be on his own side of politics. But the electors should remember that though there had been certain revelations in Ontario and though many things had been said of the Ross Government, not a thing had been proven against a minister of the Government. Some of their supposed friends may have done wrong in their efforts to, as they thought assist them, but the ministers' hands are clean. It is bad enough to have elections, but it would be 50 times worse if the members of the Government were corrupt. Not one charge of corruption had been made against the public works, over which Hon. Mr. Hyman now presided. All should work if they had love for their native country, for the city of London, and respect for Mr. Hyman, who has stood by the Liberals for many years.
