THE JULY ROD AND GUN

Conspicuous amongst the contents of the July number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont., is a story which surpasses in thrilling power and interest that of Hubbard's death in Labrador. This incident—one of the many Klondyke tragediee—took place in the restreme of Canada, and is told with a simple pathes and force that its deeply moving, and brings vivily before the mind of every reader the fine herism of many of our explorers. It is a story of wonderful human endurance under the most trying conditions, and Mr. W. H. Fisher, who has himself experienced many of the hardships of a frontier life, writes it under the double inspiration of personal knowledge of the conditions which made the grim regardy possible and of close personal relations with the victim. The extracts from the dead man's diary require no setting and Mr. Fisher has wisely left them to carry home their own moral. The devotion of the explorer's dogs and their unsuccessful open Day and Night Thome use

A QUAKER ROMANCE.

Wooing of Katherine Hollings worth by George Robinson.

Valentine Hollingsworth accompanie William Penn in the good ship Welome and settled in Delaware upon the banks of the Brandywine. Katherine, his daughter, "a delectable Onaker naiden," the pride of the little settlement, was wooed and won by big George Robinson. But George was of the Church of England, and Katherine 'must be married in meeting.'

"George," writes the author of "Heirlooms In Miniature," "was willing to join the society, be a Friend and be married in meeting or anywhere else that Katherine said. Accordingly he and Katherine made their first declaration fifth day, first month, 1688."

The elders, however, had "scruples, seeing that George's conversion was very sudden, and they asked him this searching question:

"Friend Robinson, dost thou join the Society of Friends from conviction or for the love of Katherine Hollings

George hesitated. He prized the truth and he did wish to marry Katherine So he answered:
"I wish to join the society for the love of Katherine Hollingsworth."

The Friends counseled "delay and that Friend Robinson should be persuasively and instructively dealt with." Shrewd men as they were, they allow ed Katherine to deal with him, and within a year George joined the society as a true convert.

An old manuscript reads, "He and Katherine were permitted to begin a long and happy married life togethe being for many years an example of piety and goodness to those around them and retaining their love of truth them and retaining their love of truth and loyalty to the society to the last."

HE HIRED WEBSTER.

Sharp Nantucket Man's Bargain With the Great Lawyer.

Of course Webster was in demand by those who could afford to pay for his services. A sharp Nantucket man is said to have got the better of the great defender of the constitution in an amusing way, however. He had a small case which was to be tried at Nantucket one week in June, and he posted to Webster's office in great haste. It was a contest with a neighbor over a matter of considerable local interest, and his pride as a litigant was at stake. He told Webster the particulars and asked what he would charge to conduct the case.

"Why," said Webster, "you can't af-ford to hire me. I should have to stay down there the whole week, and my fee would be more than the whole case is worth. I couldn't go down there for less than $1,000. I could try every case on the docket as well as one, and it wouldn't cost any more, for one case would take my time for the entire week anyway."

"All right, Mr. Webster," quickly responded the Nantucketer. "Here's your $1,000. You come down, and I'll fix it so you can try every case." Webster was so amused over this proposition that he kept his word. He. spent the entire week in Nantucket and appeared on one side or the other in every case that came up for hearing The shrewd Nantucketer hired Daniel out to all his friends who were in litigation and received in return about $1,-500, so that he got Webster's services for nothing and made a good profit to

The Hygiene of Underwear.

The average person wearing two sets of underclothing a week, says the Youth's Companion, will make the change in the middle of the week, but it would be far better if the two sets were kept going the entire week on alternate days. With the biweekly change, the clothes worn during the day are aired only for seven or eight hours in the twenty-four and never have the purifying process of a sunning. With two sets going on alternate days, one set can be aired two nights and one day, and, if possible, should be hung up where they can receive the direct rays of the ceive the direct rays of the sun for some hours. #### A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. Galt, July 19.—The mystery surrounding five daring robberies committed on East Main street residences on the night of May 22, has been cleared up.

Yesterday there was in the police cells in Galt a man who has confessed that he did the burglaries. He adds, however, that he did not himself force entry into the houses, but that part of the work was done by a pal. whose whereabout he does not know. The police have this man's name and know enough about him to justify the belief that he, too, will presently be in custody.

belief that he, too, will presently be in custody.

Yesterday morning Chief Gorman got a wire from Guelph, ordering the arrest of Louis Sevenski, alias Maconald and other names. In arresting him the chief mentioned that he was wanted for burglaries, whereupon the prisoner, not thinking of Guelph, proceeded to make a clean breast of the East Main street affairs.

SEVEN YEARS FOR THEFT. Man Who Grabbed Lady's Watch Gets

Montreal, July 19.—"You will go to the penitentiary for seven years." were the concluding words of a scathing judgment rendered by Judge Choquet on Alfred Beauchamp, who snatched a gold watch pinned to the breast of Miss Blanche Hardy on Tuesday, afternoon, and made a desperate attempt to escape up City Hall avenue.

He was overhauled and captured by the gentleman who was with the lady at the time of the robbery.

IT IMPARTS STRENGTH

Just think of the enormous strengthening power Ferrozone possess s,—consider what it did for H. V. Potter, well-known in Kingston. "I was subject to spells of dizziness. For eight months I had intense pain in my right side between the shoulders. I was almost incurable with ders. I was almost incurable with weakness and lack of vigor. Often I scarcely ate any breakfast and felt miserable all day. Nervous, easily excited, troubled with heart weakness, I was in bad shape. Ferrozone restorad and nourished me back to health in short order." Whatever your weakness may be, Ferrozone will cure. Pfice 50c. per box at all dealers.

ACID EXPLOSION KILLS TWO.

Midland Woollen Miks Wrecked-Man May Lose Eyesight. Man May Lose Eyesight.

Midland, July 19.—An explosion which caused the death of two men and the injury of another occurred yesterday in O'Hara's woollen mills.

The dead are Edward O'Hara of Midland, and Elmer Hewson of Thornbury. John O'Hara, brother of the dead man, was seriously injured and will probably lose his eyesight.

John O'Hara was examining a tank of acid when the gas became ignited. A violent explosion followed, partially wrecking the building and killing the two men.

CAID MACLEAN ESCAPES. Sir Harry Takes Refuge On Sacred Marabout Territory.

Tangier, July 19.—Aided by sections of the Elkmes, the Beniarrous and the Beniarrous and the Beniarrous and the Renimansour tribes, Caid Sir Harry MacLean has succeeded in eacaping from the hands of the bandit, Raisuli.

He has taken refuge in the inviolable sanctuary of the territory of the Marabout of Zaouia Yonstidi.

It is suggested that Raisuli connived in the escape of the Caid as the best way out of a difficult situation.

"Track 12," came the response. "Hurry up! They're just closing the

With a little shrick of excitement Margaret dashed down the concourse and slipped through the gate just in time. She paused uncertainly, looking for the private car. A brakeman darted forward, half pushed her upon the rear platform and the train began to move. There was a clamor at the gate, evidently from the people who had missed the train, and Margaret smiled contentedly as she realized by how narrow a margin she had caught the train herself.

The friendly brakeman looked puz-aled when she spoke of a special car, but at last a light dawned upon his

"It's all right if you want to go to New York. We'll get there about the time they do." "Then I may as well stay on." Margaret moved forward to the Pullmans still attended by the brakeman. She had just entered the first of the parlor cars when she felt a tug at her sleeve. "Jimmy," she cried in astonishment.

"What are you doing here?"
"Bearing defeat back to New York," he explained. "I got the license, and tried to get word to you, but it seems that your father took the precaution to put a couple of private detectives on guard. One of them had me arrested for disturbing the peace when I tried was not like father." "But you see he's worked so hard that he wants to land the match."

Meg frowned as she always did when reminded of her approaching marriage. An English duke with vast estates and an infinitesimal income had asked her hand in marriage, and her father had given assent in her

Francis Cadmus had been ambitious for his daughter. He had always frowned upon Jimmy Dorval's suit, even while admitting that he was a fine young fellow and bound to make his way in the world. Tibbettson's daughter had married a baronet. Here was a chance to administer a final coup to Tibbettson, who had boasted of his titled son in law ever since. So when young Dorval began to show signs of insubordination Cadmus had hired private detectives. The events in Philadelphia had proved Margaret had planned an elopem

Meg's mother came from one of the old Philadelphia families, and her aunts had insisted upon a visit that they might shine in reflected glory of her engagement to the duke. Cadmus had sent her over in a private car and had arranged that she should come back the same way. The gateman had not caught her reference to man had not caught her reference to the private car when she came back from the telegraph office, and by mis-take had directed her to the regular train just pulling out.

"It's a dispensation of Providence," declared Dorval when she had explained the situation. "There are his dukelets, the detectives and your re-spected parent cooped up, waiting for the other train, and here we are, to-gether, and with a Pennsylvania lise in my pocket. If we can be mar-

"Of course I will," she declared briskly. "I don't want to marry the duke, and I do want to marry you. Is there a clergyman on board?"

train slowed up for West Philadelphia, and a boy in blue and brass came through the car calling her name. She held out her hand for the telegram. "Father says to wait here." She smiled as she read it through. Dorva! fished out a bill and handed it to the boy, together with the message.

"You could not find the lady, understand?"

"I'm wise," agreed the boy. "Mebbe the lady didn't hear me."

He passed out, and just as the train began to move Meg saw him going leisurely across the platform, the envelope still in his hand.

"I have just begun my pastorate," explained the nervous man, "but am a regularly ordained clergyman. I leave the train shortly. If you can satisfy me that there is no legal impediment, I should advise celerity." Rapidly Dorval explained the situation.

The drawing rooms were all engaged, but there was a cafe car on the train, and the tiny pantry was empty. The porter mounted guard to keep out the curious; the simple ceremony was concluded and a certificate made out long before the minister reached his stop-

"It was my first marriage," he said nervously as his slender fingers closed over the yellow backed bill. "I am sure that I wish you all happiness." He pecked Meg's cheek much as a bachelor kisses a baby and returned to his own car to hide his confusion.

The passenger in the seat adjoining Dorval's, who had been impressed as a witness, expressed an overwhelming desire for a smoke and went forward that the young couple might not be separated.

"Are you sorry now that it's over, dear?" he asked as he leaned forward and placed his hand over hers.

"I shall never be sorry," she said bravely. "I was only afraid that you would not be able to rescue me from the duke."

"I bet he drops his eveglass when "I bet he drops his eyeglass when we tell him," said Jimmy with a wicked smile. "He'll drop his eyeglass and say, 'My word!" See if he doesn't." "I'm thinking of what father will say," she answered, trying to smile. "It will be a great disappointment to him."

"Then he shouldn't sell his daughter," explained Jimmy. "I guess that's He pointed out of the window as an-

Before There Were Naval Uniforms. A little prior to the Revolutionary war, says the Newport Bluejacket, there was no such thing as a naval uniform. The officers wore civilian clothes or some sort of an adaptation of an army uniform as suited their fancies, and the mer dressed any how though they generally agreed in wear-ing their hair long and done up in a cue, or pigtail, and with a lovelock or two straggling down either side of the face. The sailor seems always to nether garments must be so constructed that they could be easily rolled above the knees when washing down decks. Sometimes the old time sailor did not wear trousers at all, but a sort of kilt like a highlander's. Look at any old print showing a man-o'-war's crew as late as 1818 and see what a motley lot of garments are shown on the men. Some of them even wore stevepipe hats upon their

The Twinkling of a Star.

The twinkling of a star has never been explained to the satisfaction of all investigators, but it is generally believed to be due to controlling causes the star earth's atmosphere. That within the earth's atmosphere. That the cause may be looked for within the belt of air that surrounds our planet (to particles of vapor, dust, etc.) may be inferred from the fact that the planets never exhibit the characteristic planets never exhibit the characteristic twinking so noticeable in the star. One reason for this is the size (apparent) of the planets, each of which shows a sensible disk, even to the naked eye, while the strongest instrument in the world only shows the stars as being mere points of light. This being the case, any foreign substance in the atmosphere would momentarily hide the light start make the star appear to twinkle.

Love in Thoughts—Love will keep us from sinning against them in thought—command ten. This is most important of all, for sin begins in the secret thoughts of the heart. Every sin has a sed thought before it comes to light in action. Cain nursed his anger before he killed his brother Abel. The thief covets before he steals; unclean and shameare the result of unclean thoughts secretly indulged.

Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit, then our loving hearts will produce loving lives. Love will keep us from sinning against our fellows. We cannot steal from, or kill, or ruin anybody whom we love. Put yourself in your neighbor's place, and behave to him as you would wish him to behave to you, and thus only can we keep the second great command "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyright, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe

For a moment Dora searched the rack, then she remembered that her jacket was upstairs, and she caught up her brother's golf coat. She could slip crosslots to the woods and be back in no time at all. She must have some arbutus for the supper table. As she was crossing the Benton farm she heard an angry bellow and smiled Benton's prize bull was confined in the next lot. He could not bother her Then with a rending crash, the maddened animal broke down the flims; fence and came charging across the lot after the fury inciting red coat,

Dora, in a glance, measured her chances and swung up into the single apple tree that stood in the center of the field. Its branches hung low and it was no feat for the active girl to swing up and find a crotch well above the reach of those lowering

The bull looked about puzzledly for a moment, then he caught sight of the glint of red in the branches and charged again. His impact shook the tree, but it did not dislodge the girl, for she clung with her arms about the trunk.

Being a patient animal, the bull waited, and Dora was so much occupied with the unpleasantness of the situation that she never noticed the approach of a man in a red golf coat until he was midway across the lot.
"Look out," she shrilled, "it's a bull.

Run!" The newcomer obeyed both injunctions, but the cry had attracted the bull's attention, and the animal was fast gaining on his new prey when suddenly the man leaped to one side, and the bull plowed on. By the time it had turned the man was running for the tree and swung himself up just as the bull reached him.

"Narrow squeak that," he chuckled. "I felt like Don Jose in 'Carmen.' Is it you, Dora?"
"I should think you could tell the difference between a bull and a cow," she said severely. "The idea of walking right into a field with that coat."

"I was all right," was the easy response. "King Champion belongs in the next lot. He must have broken the fence. I was taking a short cut to the links. Glad I left my clubs there last night or I should have lost them. How did you get here?"

"I was wearing Ted's coat and that horrid creature broke down the fence to get after it."
"Amiable animal," commented Fra-

"I'd like to get down and pat "We're trespassers. He's on his owner's property," she reminded. "That's so," he agreed, "but that does not affect my desire in the least." "And Ted has some friends to sup-per," she wailed, "and there won't be

"He'll have supper, anyway," reminded Frazer. "That's more than we minded Frazer. "That's more than we are likely to get."

"Don't you think the creature will go away?" pleaded Dora.
"Til ask him if you like," he offered, "but he doesn't look as though he ever would. Frazer lets him stay out all night. Dissipated sort of creature, King Champion is."

"Do you suppose they would hear if

Dora. "Maybe that will satisfy him and he'll go away."

Frazer dropped his coat directly in front of King Champion's nose. Directly the bull reduced it to ribbons and worked himself up to a fresh fury.

"He isn't even happy when he gets it," commented Frazer. "Stubborn sort of brute."

His choice of word had been unfortunate. Dora froze up. She had forgotten in the excitement that she and Frazer had solemnly ruptured their friendship because she had refused to give up Benning as her partner in the double match game. He had called

"Won't you be nice?" he begged. "You can play golf with any one you want, only don't be angry."

"It was not nice to reopen the argunent when you knew I couldn't escape it," she decreed.

"I didn't mean to," he declared. "I wasn't even thinking of that row." "You were," she said very positive ly. "It is useless to deny it, either, for I shall not argue."

He made several efforts to convince her, but to no use, and at last he sank into a shivering silence. The sun had set, and the air was growing chill. He missed his coat sadly, but Dora did not notice his plight until his teeth chattered so that she heard the sound.
"You are cold, and I made you throw down your coat," she cried penitently. "It's all right," he protested. "It's not," she contradicted. "It's all my fault too."

"The coat was sacrificed in the interest of scientific experiment," he de-"It shows that a blooded bull can at least count up to two. He's waiting for the other one, and then he probably won't be satisfied."

"You'd be warmer if you sat next the trunk on this side, away from the wind," she suggested. "I could keep off the cold on the other side." "You'd fall off," he objected wistfully, "for, of course, since you hate you wouldn't let me hold you on." There was no answer to this and Frazer deliberately opened his mouth that the sound of his clicking teeth might be more plainly heard. Dora stood it for ten minutes, then:

"What is it?" he asked. "Please come over," she pleaded. "I don't-hate you."

In a minute he was beside her, holding her steady on the limb. The teeth stopped chattering and Dora nestled "I shall not play with Mr. Bennings," she said timidly. "I would rather play "What reason can you give him now?" he demanded.

"Perhaps you might think of one," she suggested. "We could tell him that we were engaged,'

"But it wouldn't be true." "You could make it true," he reminded. "Will you, Dodo!"

It was twenty minutes afterward that those two came back to earth again. Beneath the tree all was quiet. "Where's King Champion?" asked. Frazer glanced down.

"I do believe he has gone," he cried.
"I suppose he got thirsty. The creek runs through the other field."

"I think he's are "I think he's an awfully nice bull," she said irrelevantly, as he helped her

They Were First Used Some Four Centuries Ago in Mexico.
To its northerly neighbors Mexico seems a land of contradiction. It was exploited by the Spanish conquerors a hundred years before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, and yet the American from the United States finds it a comparatively primitive and undeveloped country. In some respects it has gone back, losing the splendor of its early times, yet it is a land now stirring with youth and growth.

The carriage of goods affords an instance of these paradoxical conditions, for in Mexico, the first soil of the new world to be traveled by wheels, burdens are today largely borne on human backs. Says the New York Post:

"There was never a wheel turned on year 1523 or 1524, when Sebastian de Aparicio brought some ox carts over from Spain and began hauling freight and passengers between Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico. He grew wealthy, moved to Puebla, became a lay brother of the Franciscans and died full of years, piety and honors in 1600, ninety-eight years of age. He was canonized by the pope and later was adopted as patron saint of Puebla.

"Among the mountain and plateau tribes of Mexico, Central America and a large part of South America transportation methods are precisely the same today as they were in the days of Cortes, Alvarado and Pizarro. The cargado (freighter) and the aguador (water carrier) are still omnipresent. The size of their self imposed burdens compels notice from the least ob-

Crocodiles of Old.

The galaxy of lies about crocodiles The galaxy of iles about crocodiles found in old books dazzles the understanding even of the experienced reader of mediaeval natural history. He is a great worm. He is afraid of saffron. He eats honey. The crocodile runneth away from a man if he wink with his left eye and look steadfastly upon him with his right one. He exprise water with his right eye. He carries water in his mouth to make the roads slip-pery and so catches people alive. There is an amity and natural concord between swine and crocodiles and much more of the same kind. Herodotus' little ployer, which walks into the croco tle plover, which walks into the croco-dile's mouth and picks off the leeches, is changed by Bartholomew into fish, with crests like saws, and a fowl and a serpent, all of which walk about inside the crocodile's stomach as if it were a parlor and find him "right nesh and full tender."—London Spectator. mposing Memorial Erected At Ding wall to Famous Soldier.

This magnificent memorial at Dingwall, Ross-shire, which is the outcome of an appeal initiated by the Clan Macdonald Society in Glasgow, and responded to from all quarters of the globe, was opened recently by the Marquis of Tullibardine, M.V.O., D.S.O.

The memorial takes the form of an imposing tower in—the old Scottish baronial style of architecture, 100ft. in height and 350ft. above the sea level.

MACDONALD MEMORIAL.

It forms a conspicuous landmark, while the view from the top-most bal-cony, which embraces half a dozen of cony, which embraces half a dozen of the Northern counties, affords a panorama of rare beauty and grand-eur, the most interesting point in the landscape being the birthplace of the famous soldier.

The memorial, which was designed by Mr. J. Sandford Kay, architect, Glasgow, was selected from over 160 competitive places.

PUNTS VERSUS BATTLESHIPS. Cornish Smuggler Made Successful Attack On Cruiser.

The action of the bellicose minis-ter of the lonely Island of St. Kilda, who recently boarded a British cruis-er at the head of a boatload of memer at the head of a boatload or members of his flock, and endeavored to forcibly prevent her from carrying off as a prize a friendly trawler found fishing within prohibited waters, has had many parallels in the past.

One notorious case was that of a Cornish smuggler named Tabois, who, early in the last century fought a

He had fitted up a complete battery of cannon in a cave used for storing contraband goods, and from these he returned the fire of the man-of-war with considerable effect, killing and wounding a number of her craw.

with considerable effect, killing and wounding a number of her crew.

In revenge, her commander landed a boat's crew, who stormed and burnt the bold smuggler's stronghold, whereupon Tabois retaliated by boarding the cruiser by night from an old punt, and carrying off the captain's gold watch, and a number of other articles of value.

Far more remarkable, however, than even this dare-devil exploit, was the capture of the Spanish admiral's flagship in the West Indies by Peter (Pedro) Vello, afterwards nicknamed, on account of his achievement, "Peter the Great." The story is told in full in Esquemeling's "History of the Buccaneers," and makes thrilling reading.

Peter had peither arms money, no Peter had neither arms, money, nor even clothes to cover him. He was just an escaped slave, skulking naked in the forests of Hayti. Yet he managed to possess himself of an Indian dugout cance, and in this, with a dozen more desperadoes like himself dozen more desperadoes like himself at his back, he boarded the huge galleon, killed every one of her officers and crew with their own weapons, and captured, beside the ship herself, stores and booty worth something like a quarter of a million sterling.

After the preliminary fixture the eyelashes will remain in position for a month. At the end of that time they require a little attention. If they become loose the secret of refixing is to curl them with tongs slightly warmed, and touch them with, a special fluid.

FOR THE HOSTESS.

Piazza Teas Are Popular and May Be

Ornamental.

Now that the warm days are at hand a very enjoyable form of after noon entertainment is the piazza tea. Let your own circle of friends know Let your own circle of friends know that upon a certain afternoon of the week you will be glad to receive them and that a cup of tea and a "bite" may be expected and see how generally your invitation will be accepted.

It is no longer margly a cup of tea

It is no longer merely a cup of tea and a slice of thin bread and butter and a slice of thin bread and butter that may be expected between 4 and 5:30 o'clock. Jam has been added to the list, and often hot Scotch scones and English muffins. Beside the tea table proper there stands usually a sort of rack table, pyramidal in shape sort of rack table, pyramidal in snape and having three shelves, one above the other and round like plates. Each one is then covered with attractive china holding some fascinating biscuit or cake. Jam of one or two kinds is suggested in between them, and after hostess has ascertained which jam and biscuit her guest prefers she spreads it for him herself before passing it on a small plate. This little attention appears very gracious.

Among the biscuits those of "health food" reputation are often found, and the jam is spread over them to add to the jam is spread over them to add to their somewhat questionable tastiness. Other hostesses have fine, small flat waters of whole wheat covered with chocolate in their own kitchens bechocolate in their own kitchens before serving. They are then above.

Sliced lemon, which is preferred in general to cream or milk with after-noon tea, has also a little extra trimnoon tea, has also a little extra trim-ming. From two to three cloves are stuck in the soft part of each slice with the object of giving an extra fla-vor to the tea. It is desirable, how-ever, to test the brand of tea with the cloves before serving it to friends, as cloves before serving it to friends, as some blends of tea are affected much some blends of tea are affected much more agreeably by the addition of cloves than others. Again, sliced limes are served instead of lemon with delicately flavored teas. By many they are liked exceedingly, while others regard the innovation leniently as one of the genom's novelities. of the season's novelties.

When cake appears at afternoon tea, the fashion rages for a rich pound-cake, showing through it many large raisms. Europeans invariably refer to it as "American plum cake" and regard it as a specialty of this country. In entertaining foreigners, therefore, it is perhaps the most acceptable cake to offer.

Strawberry Ice Cream Panache. The term panache is given to a preparation made up of two kinds or more of the principal article, in this case ire cream and whipped cream. This dish might also be called individual strawberry charlotte glace, the ice cream being molded with lady fingers. To prepare this dish, cut lady fingers in halves crosswise; set five pieces or more into a paper case, then fill the case with ice cream to the top of the lady fingers (put the rounded end of the lady fingers at the bottom of the mold, and it will be at the top of the cream when unmolded). Set the filled cases into a mold or pail from which salt water may be excluded. By putting a paper between two or more layers of cases can be put into one mold. Cover carefully and pack in about an hour unmold the cases on to small plates. Have ready (for eight) a cup of cream, half a teaspoonful of vanilla and three level tablespoonfuls of sugar, beaten firm. Pipe a little cream on to the top of each mold of ice cream. On this set a macaron and pipe a little cream above it. Also pipe cream around the base of the ice and decorate the cream with whole strawberries or slices of strawberries.

It is caused primarily by improper breathing—that is, breathing through the mouth instead of through the nostrils—so, first of all, care should be taken during waking hours to breather correctly. The habit once formed of keeping the mouth as firmly closed as possible, he will be less likely to sleep with it open. Then see that your troublesome snorer has a proper pillow. He should sleep with his head as flat as possible, for if his head is pushed forward and the neck bent the tongue drops back against the soft palate and forms an obstruction which makes all the unmusical sounds we hear when the air is forced past it.

The Sceptre

The first time a lifelike portrait of the dowager empress of China has been brought to France. Until very recently this most astute and most powerful of women sovereigns of modern times was strongly averse to being even seen by foreigners, much less pictured. But at a reception in the palaces she permitted an attache of one of the foreign legations to take a photograph of her with two or her maids of honor standing at her right and at her left the grand eunuch.

This picture was brought by Mme. Paul Cromby, a member of the Geographical Society of France, who has just returned from a long stay in the far east, visiting little-travelled regions of the celestial empire. Hitherto all published portraits of the mast rful first lady of China have made her look like an image, the head banded about with curious wrappings and decorations that robbed the face of all expression, while here the potency, the magnetism of the spectral of most women of the empires, includes a skirt.

Many June Bridesmaids Will Carry

There has of late been a tendency to branch out a little from prescribed lines for wedding decorations, and now startling changes.

In color schemes many recent brides seemed to have realized at last the pos-sibilities of blue as the prevailing tone in the wedding procession. Forgetmenots are particularly beautiful in early June, and no prettier effect can be imagined than bridesmaids in sheer imagined than bridesmands in sneet, white frocks carrying hat baskets of forgetmenots tied with blue satin ribbon. They might wear leghorn hats trimmed with forgetmenots and small pink rosebuds, or lingerie hats if pre-ferred. The sashes may be blue. In this case a pretty variation would Again, all the bridesmaids may wear blue. If the solid blue does not seem desirable, blue marquisette or net over white taffeta foundations gives a paler shade. In this case the flowers should be white—as, for instance, white peo-nies or roses. The maid of honor in this case might wear a white frock made exactly like the others and carry the

It's The Tone That Proves the Quality Of A Piano . . . .

In outward appearance one make of piano may resemble another very closely. The real difference lies in the tone, which is concealed within the case.

It's the tone every time that proves the quality of a piano. Run your fingers over the keyboard of a "Nordheimer and just listen to the superb tone. No doubt about the quality of the "Nordheimer" piano with such a tone as it

Not one of them is forgotten before God."

What are God's providences?

Well," you answer, "to use plain, simple, practical, intelligible English, they mean God's watchful and protecting care over his creatures. For instance, I have a little baby born into the world. I do not go and leave may little one as a foundling upon some doorstep, with the cold snow for a pillow and with the whistling January winds for a lullaby. But I, as a loving parent, take care that she has a soft crib in which to sleep. As the grows older I care for her and provides for her until at last she is able to take care of herself. Now, if I do all this for my child I do a father's cluty and prove myself a provident parent. When we speak about the divine Father's care for his human offspring and for the preservation of his animal, vegetable and mineral world."

How comforting is the thought of the divine care! Even Thomas Carlyle, the gloomy, despondent philosopher, left it. In a letter to a friend he wrote:

"Our will be done." What else can we say? The other night in my sleepless tossings about, which were growing more and more miserable, these words of that brief, grand prayer came strangely into my mind as if written and shining for me in mild, pure splendor on the black bosom of the night there. Then I, as it were, read them word by word with a sudden softness of composure which was unexpected. Not perhaps for thirty or lordy years had I once formally repeated that prayer—nay, I never felt before how intensely the voice of man's soul it is." What did Carlyle mean by those sentences? He meant that man as a helpless child was seaching up to God, because God, as a loving Father, was always reaching down toward his child, yet sometimes I am willful enough to blind my eyes to this divine fact. therefore Christ somes to me and says, "Child, I would have you learn the divine Father's love from a study in natural history." Then he takes me down into the busy markets of Jerusalem where food is bleding sold. He goes up to the counter of one of his little birds into a dark room, as some of us make our servants sleep in musty garrets or in unattractive outhouses. But God gives to his little birds the best best little. outhouses. But God gives to his little birds the best he has. He gives them the pure air of the mountains to fly in. He gives them the bright, sparkling waters of the brooks, glinted with sunshine and bubbling over the pebbled sands, to bathe in. He gives them the most beautiful of choir lofts, hidden among the leaves to size in He the most beautiful of choir lofts, hidden among the leaves, to sing in. He gives them the wild roses and brilliant tints of the spring and summer flowers for their gardens. He gives them the brilliant foliage of the forest for picture galleries. He surrounds them with the beauties of nature everywhere. No grandeur of the rocks is too grand for the birds. No symphonies of the winds are too sweet for their musical ears to hear. No exuberance of colors is too gorgeous for their musical ears to hear, No exuberance of colors is too gorgeous for their tapestries. Everywhere God seems to say to the birds, "Though you are insignificant, yet your fluttering hearts were set in motion by my hand, and the best that I have is yours."

Now, if the birds by their song thank God for the beautiful world in which they live, why should not we, God's children, thank him for the many temporal blessings with which he has surrounded us? Why should we not thank God for our clothes and our homes, for our food and firesides and

When we go into the home of nature? When we go into the home of a wealthy man and see his picture gallery we marvel at the masterpieces which the artists have painted for him. But the greatest of all artists have been but copyists. Do you want to see a more glorious sunset than a Rubens or a Turner has ever placed on canvas? Then this evening throw open your window toward the west. Would you see the models of an Edwin Landseer or a Rosa Bonheur? Then look at the living horses and dogs by your side. Brander Mercies Are Over All His Works—Comfort In Thought Of Divine Care—The

Weekly Sermon

But there is another fact which impresses me about the lives of the sparrows or of the other birds of the woods, and that is their ceaseless activity. They never seem to be still. If you are walking along the country road you see them always on the wing. If you try to read a book under an overhanging bough and you are covered up by a curtain of leaves so that they cannot see you they still keep on the move. You see them flying hither and thither. Now they are seeking food; now they are speeding keep on the move. You see them flying hither and thither. Now they are seeking food; now they are speeding away as if they were going to visit some friends. They are flying—yes, nearly always flying. During the intense heat of the day some of them may rest for a little while in the cool shade of a leafy bower. But for the most part they are on the wing and moving this way and that.

While you watch this ceaseless activity of the bird you may say to me.
"If God is good and God is kind, why does he not make life easier for the sparrows?" Then I would say: "It is a good God who keeps the little birds on the move. It would be a cruel God who would allow the sparrow to sit still and do nothing." Supposing I should go out to-day and eatch a little sparrow and shut him in a golden cage as some women do with their sweet-throated canaries. Then, supposing I should fill the seed cup of that cage with the most enticing bird food and put the clearest, purest water into the cup. Then, supposing I should say to this caged bird: ing bird food and put the clearest, purest water into the cup. Then, supposing I should say to this caged bird: "Now, sparrow, I am going to make your life a life of joy, for it shall be a life of ease. I will give you all the sunlight you want, all the food you want and all the drink you want. I shall clean out the cage at least twice a day, so no dirt shall be about you. All that you need to do is to sit upon a perch, just as you sit upon a tree branch, and twitter and talk and talk and twitter." What would be the result? Why, soon, very soon, the plumage of that sparrow would be ruffled. Then his head would droop, and he would sicken and die. Ah, the sparrow does not find health and strength and happiness in doing nothing! God blesses his creatures by giwing them blesses his creatures by giving them opportunity for ceaseless activity. He never blesses a life by never ending ease.

Why does the trout's fin look like a flake of silver as he leaps out of the eddy Because every morning and evening he finds his health and strength and joy through working and laboring in the currents of the brook to get his daily food. Why do the lower branches of a tree grow stronger and heavier? Because each lower branch has to reach out farther and farther in order to push its leaves lower branch has to reach out farther and farther in order to push its leaves into the sunlight. Why does the busy man find life an endless joy? Because as he works and keeps on working he not only wins a livelihood for his dear ones, but by that work he gets a clearer brain and purer blood and happier life. Oh, my friends, do not begrudge the sparrows their work! Do not say to me that it is a cruel God who would hide food for his little birds in the earth. Cruel indeed would be that God who would make life easy for his children and for his feathered friends.

But, though I am struck with many would be that God who would make life easy for his children and for his feathered friends.

But, though I am struck with many wonderful characteristics of the little birds of the woods, after all, their absences at certain seasons of the year impress me just as much as the blessings with which they are surrounded in the spring and the summer and the autumn. November slips into December. The beautiful tapestries of the woods have faded away and been destroyed. Now instead of the leaves of the trees rustling with gladness, each tree trunk covered with white snow looks like a column of spotless marble. Where are the birds? Where are the little birds that used to make the welkin ring with their never ending choruses? "Oh," you answer, "they have gone!" They have migrated. No sooner did the blizzards of the Arctic begin to howl than God seemed to call: "Come, little birds—come! I want you to come with me to the land of flowers. It is too cold for your little wings and your tender throats. Come with me to the sunny south." And away they fly. Yes, they fly out of Arctic colds. They fly away from the white shrouds of frost. They fly to where the sun is never clouded, where the sun is never clouded, where the sun is never clouded, where the springs and brooks are never turned into ice. They fly to where they will not shiver and where they will not die. Thus God has called to some of our little birds called children and some of our big birds called men and women. He called and said: "Come, father; come, mother; come, wife; come, husband; come, child. Come into the land of big birds called men and women. He called and said: "Come, father; come, mother; come, wife; come, husband; come, child. Come into the land of flowers. Come into the land of the eternal sunshine. Called heaven, how many of our dear ones are being blessed in thee! Oh, land of flowers, so far away and yet so near! How much thou hast rejoiced the redeemed of heaven with the infinite and never ending joys of Christ!

And will we never see our dear ones again as the silver trumpet of the spring brings back to us the little birds of the woods? Perhaps, brother. Perhaps, sister. They cannot come to you. But you may go to them, as David said he should one day go to meet his beloved son. Christ here and now stands ready to guide us to that land of eternal sunshine. The winter frosts are settling down for many of us. Christ is even now saying: "Child, will you go with me? Will you pluck the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley where the December frosts shall never palsy a leaf or bring a blush of sin to the cheek? Will you go, child? As I have cared for the sparrow, so I will care for you."

Will you go, sinner, to your dea ones and to the land of that eternal joy?

A Better Scheme.

"That house I have taken from you." said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly drafty. When I am sitting in the middle of the room my hair blows all

Opportunities for Service.

The great difficulty of many people in hesitating to serve God is that they feel that there is nothing great or heroic that they can attempt, and so they lose the humble opportunities which each recurring day brings with it. Traveling Bags With Leather Back Brush and Comb.

USEFUL ON SHORT TRIPS.

Smart Alligator and Seal Skins In Golden Brown Are Popular This Season. Hand Bags Are Small, Yet Large Enough to Hold a Few Clothes.

Traveling bags, only a trifle larger than leather purses used for shopping, are now fitted with small brushes, combs and tollet boxes, so that they are convenient to take on short trips out of town when one needs only a change of linen, etc., for the tollet articles are so neatly and closely held together on the sides of these minia-

Kitchen Linen.

The kitchen department should re-ceive the same careful attention that is lavished on the more showy table

The homely things of the kitchen may not be quite as apparent to your guests as the napkins and doilies, but there is a great peace and self respect for the housekeeper in the knowledge of neat piles of towels and dusters

A dozen crash towels of two grades, coarse for kitchen utensils and finer for china; a dozen glass towels for silver, glass and porcelain; a half dozen ver, gass and porcenan; a nair dozen heavy crash floor cloths; a half dozen dishcloths; a dozen dusters of cheese-cloth or, as some greatly prefer, silka-line; a half dozen roller towels; two or three canton fiannel bags to pin over the broom in dusting polished floers, and three chamois skins for polishing silver or brass, all these hemmed by machine if need be, by hand if possi-ble, and marked with red cross stitch in a uniform manner—all these are essential to neat work in the kitchen.

Beauty Won by Proper Breathing.

If you want to be fully developed, with an easy grace of motion that tells of the perfect control of every muscle, then take to rhythmic breathing. It will make a new woman of you. The hollows in your cheeks and your neek will fill up as if by magic. The in creasing heaviness of your walk will, disappear. You will acquire a complete command of your body.

plete command of your body.

Any flabbiness or angularity comes from breathing with only the upper part of one's lungs. Double chins and other deformitles are due to the same causes.

A clever woman doctor advocates the corset, though she deprecates tight lacing. She believes the support helps to educate the muscles. Support where it is needed, no constriction, good food, plenty of fresh air and a complete understanding of how to breathe properly would result in something very nearly approaching absolute physical perfection.

"Sometimes I wonder if this is not the way nature has of marking up the bad fellows so that they may be known, just as we put striped suits on the impossibly bad of the human kind. Take hyenas, for instance. They come under the head of a dog species. How seldom you ever hear of a dog snipping the hand that feeds it! These ugly things are llable to do it any time. "Zebras are pudgy little horses with stripes that give away their temperament. Every now and then you hear of zebras broken to harness. Well, I have seen a few of these; but they didn't go far before something else was broken besides the zebra's mean nature. They are strong and good looking, but so infernally cussed that there is no doing anything with them. "Sometimes a lion's mane is marked with uneven black circles. If you let others do your bragging for you, it isn't so apt to be overdone. When authority spoils a man, it is also apt to be hard on those over whom it extends.

Careful comparison makes any oth-er heritage look insignificant compared with common sense

You often hear impolite children criticised. Ever realize that there are a good many impolite grown people? Some houses are so prim and orderly they remind one of the systematic ar-rangement of the tombstones in a well kept graveyard.

If you want to know how people speak of you behind your backs, listen to the reckless manner in which they pitch into others.

CHEER UP DOPE.

Do not go about, my brother,
Every single blessed day
In your home or at the office
With a grouch glued on to stay.
It would be so inexpensive
To be pleasant for a spell,
Though at first of course the neighbors.

ors it conclude you were not well.

There is nothing so delightful
As a sweet and sunny smile.
If you try a sample package
You will find it well worth while.
Though the effort may be painful
And may hurt your face a bit,
Strain yourself and keep on trying
Until you can get a fit.

There is neither gain nor pleasure,
Has been very truly said,
To be every moment biting
Off a fellow mortal's head,
For a soft and pleasant answer
Is the picture of a cinch
And will get you where you're going
Without fighting every inch.

Rise up, then, and for the woodshed Measure straight, determined tracks. Take your grouch in hand and give it Gentle treatment with the ax. Take the old cheer up prescription After every blessed meal, And you'll be surprised to notice How much better you will feel.

A LOST SWORD.

It Was Frederick the Great's and Was Confiscated by Napoleon.

While Prussia was at his feet after the battle of Jena, Bonaparte visited Potsdam, and there he saw the sword of Frederick the Great. He took possession of it, saying, "I value this sword more than all the treasures of Prussia." It was deposited at the Invalides on May 17, 1807, with military pomp and ceremony, to the immense gratification of the people of Paris. But there came the black days of 1814, and with the allies on the point of entering the French capital the of entering the French capital the gov-ernor of the Invalides, Marshal Ser-rurier, received orders to take steps for the preservation of the precis trophies there collected, especially the sword of Frederick the Great. Interpreting this instruction in a peculiar fashion, the governor took effective Several Kingsten Conductors Have Out the Job.

Kingston, July 19.—For some time the Street Railway management has suspected that the fares collected were not coming into the treasury.

A detective was brought here from Montreal, and in a couple of days he was able to report where the leakage was. He found that several of the conductors were accustomed to collect the three cent fares from the children, and instead of putting a yellow ticket into the fare box, as they were instructed to do, they withheld it and, in each case, were, of making a bonfire of them, and it was said that he threw Frederick's sword into the flames. This statement was confirmed as late as 1857 by an eyewitness. Thus per-ished, as was attested in 1830, when an official inquiry was made into the matter, between 1,500 and 1,600 war flags and other memorials of victory. The ashes and remains were thrown into the Seine at the mouth of a sewer. The sword could not, of course, have been destroyed in the conflagration, but it was never seen again. It happened that in 1815 an engineer, having ascertained the precise spot where the debris from the fire had been put into the river, made a search and recovered The great and growing popularity of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual mdicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is from the bottom a considerable num ber of bronze and copper articles which were returned to the Invalides. But the sword of Frederick was not found.

One would like to think that it was not the fate of this historic weapon to rust away in foul mud, but that it he the noble transformation of being turned into some implement of peaceful industry. Of this, however, there is no evidence.—London News.

An old Lowlander had been persistently asked by his son, who was doing very well in London, to pay him a visit. To get a subscription from Stephen Girard, founder of Girard college in Philadelphia, was not an easy matter. It required tact and the right introduc tion, and many failed, while few succeeded. It is told by the author of "Th French Blood In America" that Samuel Coates, a genial Quaker, was one of the few men who knew how to approach the eccentric millionaire. He was a manager of the Pennsyl

"Give me back my check, and I will change it," said Girard after a moment's pause

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, thee knows, Stephen," mildly replied the Quaker. Without another word Girard sat down and wrote him out a second check for $5,000.

His farm on the outskirts of Philadelphia was one of the best in the country, and while living in town he often drove out before breakfast to se that all was going well. He was very exacting with his hired hands and never trusted the management of his farm to any one else, but ran it himself, as he did all his affairs. Arriving one morning a little earlier than usual, he was greatly annoyed at not finding his man work on a fence that he was building. The man's wife, noticing Girard approaching the house, hurriedly awoke her husband and sent him to his duties by way of the back door. After visiting the house Girard returned to the fence and, seeing the man at his post, reprimanded him for being late.

"I'd been here, sir, but went back for spade," said the workman.
"No, you hadn't. I went and put my hand in your bed and found it warm, replied Girard, and he discharged the man on the spot.

Americans Greatest of Travelers.

Americans are rightfully called the greatest travelers in the world. They all seem imbued with the spirit of Columbus, and when we think of that venturer across strange waters in search of he knew not what we can scarcely associate him with any other country as a native than ours. It is a noticeable fact that in every resort of prominence in England and on the continent there are to be seen among the tourists during the season at least two Americans to every one represent-ative of any other country, and in the African cities Americans are even more in predominance over travelers of other nationalities.

Chief Holmes Talks About Geo. Heyward Tells About the Way Immigrants Arrive Here

for Them - Great Misrepresentation

A few days ago this Great Home Journal gave the facts of the un-fortunate circumstances which pre-vailed at the C. P. R. station last we.k, when a number of English immigrants were dumped into this city with no place to go, and absolutely no provision mads for their present or future needs. Anyone who had occasion to pay a visit to the C. P. R. d-pot on the morning in question would have been instantly convinced of the unquestionable grounds for criticism of the actions of the pone who were reactions of the prople who were responsible for these Englishmen being unceremoniously dumped off in the Maple City, Mr. James Waugh, the agent of the Dominion Governnent, whose duty it is to find em-ment, whose duty it is to find employment for these immigrants, and locate them in the best homes obtainable, was given no warning that this lot of men and women was coming, and, as a result, he found it absolutely impossible to look after all of their needs at once.

The incident has aroused considerable feeling locally against the Government and immigradtion agencies who allow this sort of business to flourish. Chief of Police Holmes, who, through the position he holds, comes in contact with many cases of distress and want among the immigrants who arrive here, made a few interesting statements during the course of a conversation with a Planet representative yesterday morning. The subject was introducting ame at the same time. a Planet representative yesterday morning. The subject was introduced when a couple of English women were seen walking across the street. Both women were carrying babies, and the chief happened to remark that he knew for a fact that they were at the present time practically destitute in a strange land. Their husbands were unable to get any work that they can do, and they are also unable to find houses in which to live. At present both of them and their husbands and families of small children are atted mercy of an English family tho took should fight a duel. The place of should be settled, and so it was arranged that we should fight a duel. The place of should be settled. He Also Instals Drinking families of small children are at the mercy of an English family the took pity on their unfortunate condition and offered to let them enter their house for the time being. They are given permission to sleep on the floors, and the immigrants are glad to receive such kindness.

"It is pitiful to see these people when they arrive," said the chief. "Matters are certainly misrepresented to them. They know nothing about farming. When they get here they have to shift for themselves under these discouraging conditions. There is not even shelter provided for them. The women, have to walk the streets—generally carrying bahis share to keep the Maple City to the fore in signs of progressive-ness and at the same time declare his ability as a business man of the hour.

Ever since Mr. Ball first came to Chatham and opened up in the stand formerly occupied by Thibodeau & Company, he has in every act shown himself to be a business man of keen judgment and insight. His store is run on the very latest of improved systems and he carried a line of goods which he is able to offer to his many patrons at prices the streets—generally carrying ba-bies in their arms—and the men have to get out into competition with men who have them handicap-ped because they know the ways of offer to his many patrons at prices which are within the reach of evwith men who have them handicapped because they know the ways of the country. Those Englishmen who come out here are made to expect to almost find money on the streets. They think that there will be a couple of men waiting for them at ghe dock to get them to accept positions on farms, and their ideas of the farm is a garden to look after and a warm, well-furnished house waiting for them to occupy.

"One thing I do admire, however," continued the chief, "is that when they finally know what they are up against they are willing to do any kind of work that is suitable to them in order to-earn a living.

"I was watching a lot of Euglishmen working on the pavement on Adelaids street this morning, and the thing that surprised me was to see how many of them smoke cigaretts. They make them themselves and they are certainly adepts at it. They pull out a piece of paper and roll tobacco into it quicker than any small boy on the street can do it. mr. Ball's latest move has been to Mr. Ball's latest move has been to establish an automobile parcel delivery, and to-day on the streets of Chatham can be heard the "toot! toot!" of his new auto, which will be used solely for business purposes, and which promises to be kept the busiest machine in Chatham. This is the first automobile in Chatham to be used for business purposes only. It is a fine new machine and is built purposely for carrying parcels.

INDIANS WERE WON OVER

Sarnia, July 19.—The Indians of Sarnia reserve by their votes last night confirmed by a vote this afternoon at the Kettle Point reserve made it possible for Sarnia to secure.

Toll tobacco into it quicker than any small boy on the street can do it. It doesn't make; any difference whether the wind is blowing or not; they manage to light their eigarettes, and to all appearances they enjoy the smoke as well as they would if they were back in England."

CROPS LOOK GOOD made it possible for Sarnia to secure the works of the Standard Chain Company, which for a time was trembling in the balance.

To works of the Standard Chain Company, which for a time was trembling in the balance.

Two weeks ago a by-law was passed granting this company, which is an American concern of great magnitude, certain favors, including a sresite. The only site the Chain Company would consider was a section of the Indian reserve, which bounds the town on the south, and it was anticipated that it could be secured without difficulty.

After the by-law was passed the Indians held a meeting and refused to surrender the property. The Kettle Point section of the tribe did the same. This unlooked for action coursed deep concern to the business men, particularly when it was found that there was no recourse from the decision of the Indians. Owing to the formate fact that the antisurrender vote was east by less than half the voters on the reserve, it was found that a new meeting could be called, and in the meantime every argument was used with the Indians to persuade them to sell.

Two thousand dollars was offered for about four acres of land, and abouts to pay for the removal of serting to become being plentfull on the reserve from unknown sources.
