TORONTO EXHIBITION

A Great Record

The achievements of the Independent Order of Foresters in the field of fraternal insurance societies after years of experience stand out as evidence of what may be accomplished by an organization guided by men having the highest interests of the Order at heart.

At the head of Society Row the deputies who have had charge of this great Order's tent, which stands in their expression of the successful two weeks they have had. They are somewhat tired after shaking hands with the many thousands members from all parts of the Foresteric world, yet they are most enthusiastic as to the future, and the good this tent has been, not only in advertising their Order, but in providing a place of rest, which has been very much appreciated.

Another grand feature of this Order's policy is its disability benefit, which practically means that when a member is permanently and totally disabled he is not burdened down with further assessments but receives 70 per cent of his policy, in three payments.

Another grand feature of this Order's work is the benefit it is to the young man who, owing to the demands of life, feels he is unable to open a bank account. The Order takes him by the hand and gives him an opportunity of paying a certain amount of money every month, which gives him the protection of a $1,000 policy with all the above benefits added.

Another feature of the Order is proud of is the fact that it is privileged to write a policy as high as $5,000. These policies are open to both men and women, combined with their splendid sick and funeral benefits, by which they have brought comfort to many thousands at a time of sickness, and the visitation of its members and the tender care of a nurse, who many times has been provided for by the Order before a member has been able to get to his feet.

The record of this great fraternal body is well worthy of investigation, and should be read by every thinking man and woman, and those in charge of the tent are loud in their expressions in claiming that they expect to have one of the greatest camps in the history of fraternal insurance societies, conducted during the fall and winter months.

Further information and literature can be obtained at the Independent Order of Foresters' Headquarters, Temple Building.

GASOLINE SHORTAGE

LONDON, Sept. 12 - A despatch from Bordeaux to Reuters' Telegram Company, says that The Temps repeats the report that the stock of gasoline in Germany is becoming exhausted, and adds that, as the German army depends largely on its motor transport of supplies of all sorts, this greatly aggravates the situation. The newspaper published by Georges Clemenceau, the former premier, L'Homme Libre, has appeared in Bordeaux.

WHAT UHLANS REALLY ARE

Daring Cavalrymen Made Reputation in Franco-Prussian War

The word "Uhlans" denotes a certain type of cavalryman in the German army. There are 26 regiments of them in the German army—19 from Prussia, three from Saxony, two from Bavaria and two from Wurtemberg.

The Uhlans are armed with lance, sabre, carbine and pistol. He is well mounted and his equipment is especially designed for the purpose for which he is employed—ready to fight or run, ride down outposts or scouting parties of the enemy, harass his flanks and screen the movements of his own main body.

The word "Uhlans" itself is of Polish origin and denotes a lancer. During the Franco-Prussian war these cavalrymen made a name for themselves for their quick dashes and raiding expeditions and the ruthless manner in which they ravaged the country through which they went.

SHORTAGE OF HORSES, NOTED IN OLD LAND

Strict Precaution Being Taken to Keep Supply Available.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 12.—Shortage of cavalry horses is causing British army officials much uneasiness.

In addition to buying desirable mounts in Ireland, continental armies have also exported many high breeds from Ireland and used them in bringing up the standard of their remount stables.

A general movement has been inaugurated by the press for fox hunting, in so far as such is declared to be necessary for the insurance of the supply of cavalry horses in the future.

The government is also urged to keep the mares it possibly can in England in connection with the home defence, sending geldings to the scene of the war.

A movement is also under way for the establishment of national studs in connection with the work of army reorganization.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 12.—A British private, who was wounded in the fight during the retreat from Mons tells the following story:

"It was Sunday and the British regiments at Mons were merry-making and enjoying themselves in leisure along the streets. Belgian ladies, returning from church handed the soldiers their prayer books as souvenirs, while the Belgian men gave the men cigarettes and tobacco.

"About noon, when the men dinner, a German aeroplane appeared, peering over the clouds and throwing out a cloud of black powder, which is one of their favorite methods of assisting distant batteries to get the range.

"No sooner had the powder cloud appeared than shrapnel began to burst overhead, and in a moment all was confusion and uproar. But it didn't take the regiments long to get into fighting the scene of operations, which was on the other side of the small canal in the suburbs. Here our outposts were engaging the enemy.

"The first reinforcements to arrive were posted in a glass factory, the walls of which were loop-holed and we doggedly held that position until nightfall when we fixed bayonets and lay in wait in case the enemy made an attempt to rush the position in the darkness.

"About the midnight orders came to retire over the canal, and two companies were left behind to keep the enemy in check temporarily. After the main body had crossed the bridge was blown up, leaving the two outpost companies to get across as best they could by boats or swimming.

"The main body retired from the town and fell back through open country, being kept moving all night. When daylight arrived it was apparent from higher ground that Mons had been practically blown away by the German artillery.

THE SITUATION

The news from the theatre of hostilities continues to be satisfactory, although once more it must be stated that nothing of a conclusive nature has yet transpired, except that the enemy has been balked in the attempted invasion of Paris. The Kaiser's troops in this regard, have been beaten, but not in the sense of disaster. They are falling back now, just as the allies did more than once during the earlier portion of hostilities, for strategic reasons. Their lines of communication, are threatened, and that term means in plain English a safe route from the base for supplies, ammunition and so on. The main point of the whole business is that the British and French lines, despite furious assaults, have held magnificently, and that they are now on the offensive.

A large new German army is now advancing against Russian troops in Prussia, and it seems to be evident that a portion of the German fleet is in the Baltic with the intention of attacking Russian coast cities.

THE SILVER BULLET.

Mr. Hon. David Lloyd-George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, spoke for a great many people when he gave the opinion that the British silver bullet would do much to end the present war, and perhaps would decide the contest. History supports that view, as well as experience.

This war is costing a huge sum of money. Estimates as to the cost are frequently made, but it is practically impossible to tell just how much money is being paid out by the rival nations. As time goes on, but will spend less at home and more abroad. The real test will come.

Street crowds cheer, the men in the offices and homes thrill and talk of what is going to be done, but somewhere back of all this there are men writing cheques to put up for it. When these men come to the end of their bank account, the tumult and the shouting will die a natural death. Modern war entails a huge expense, and that is why most experts do not look for a very long continuance of the present struggle.

Again, nations are to a great extent independent to-day in the economic sphere. Every moral and material force of non-combatant nations will be exerted to end the present war, at first, perhaps, passively, but, finally, actively and energetically. John Bull's huge wealth is his greatest asset in any international fight. He has given proof of his courage and his spirit, but his wealth is also amazing. Of all the nations engaged in war to-day he is most in his element. He braces himself against a world-structure. With his mighty commerce he spans the seas and taps the richest territories of earth. Every quarter of the globe contributes vigor to his arms.

When Britain swept the German commerce from the seas, she circumscribed the area of Germany's activity. Added to that, she went into a fight in which Germany was compelled to expend every able-bodied man. Much as the Kaiser may lament at this moment his failure to appreciate the sound facts on which Bismarck based his diplomacy in peace and war, he will lament his failure still more bitterly as time goes on. He has provoked to enmity the greatest and richest structure man has ever devised. He has taken Bismarck's idea and made it glitter like a dream. His will be a cruel awakening, and those who live to see his discomfiture will have reason to feel glad that his fall is a victory for justice and human liberty.

A COMMON SENSE LETTER

Admiral Mahan of the United States navy, is a recognized world authority on naval and military subjects. That is why the Courier reprints the following letter from the New York Times.

"In an editorial of Aug. 29, 'The American Example,' you urge that 'the unguarded frontier between the United States and Canada suggests the real reason why the United States has for a century maintained peace with Great Britain.' As developed, the argument runs that preparation for war leads to war.

The statement is one that is running trippingly from hundreds of pens at the present moment. Let us examine it in the light of history. In the last century the most protracted war, the one consequently the most expensive in blood and treasure was the war of secession between the North and South of our own country. In what way did 'guarded frontiers' or other preparation for war contribute to the outbreak? What trained soldiers what fortifications on either side, that in any way affected the determination to fight? The remote cause of the war was slavery; the immediate occasion popular emotion; fervid nationalism, patriotism, truly or falsely so-called, aroused on either side. In 1812 the United States declared war against Great Britain. To what extent did preparations affect this decision? Our unpreparedness was notorious, so that our own performance, except a few naval successes, was ludicrous, even grotesque, as an exhibition of military inadequacy. I know that was.

In 1846 we went to the war with Mexico. Where the determining causes when in any sense preparation for war. During the past winter I had the pleasure of reading twice George L. Rive's exhaustive and instructive work, 'Relations of the United States with Mexico.' If any one will read the same and find therein that sustained military armaments, beyond those originating with the immediate menace of war, had anything to do with bringing on that conflict, he will be more acute than I can flatter myself with being.

The war with Spain, which resulted in the liberation of Cuba, is of recent memory. In what sense, with respect to those originating with the immediate menace of war, had anything to do with bringing on that conflict, he will be more acute than I can flatter myself with being. In what sense, with respect to those originating with the immediate menace of war, had anything to do with bringing on that conflict, he will be more acute than I can flatter myself with being.

Per contra, the State whose name is the synonym for systematic preparation for war, Germany has had sustained peace for forty-three years—nearly a half century—despite her huge armament. Though armed to the teeth, the European Continent during the same period until 1912 did not see war, except between Russia and Turkey in 1877. Those who remember that war and the antecedent occurrences which led to it, will have difficulty in assigning preparation for war as a principal cause. I, myself, have always believed that not the Russian people, in that instance, forced hostilities on behalf of their persecuted co-religionists; men, too, of their own blood.

I am not prepared to maintain that armaments never cause war; but, if space permitted, I should be prepared to argue that they do so only when some other existing cause, either interest or national feeling, comes in to play. The hackneyed phrase 'Vital interests or national honor,' really sums up the motives that lead nations to war. Armament is simply the instrument of which such motives avail themselves. If there be no armament, there is war all the same. A MAHAN.

VALCARTIER CAMP

The following is taken from the London (Ontario) Echo—

"It may be of some interest to the readers of the Echo to learn of a connecting link which exists between a Red Cross member of our city and the Valcartier camp near Quebec, which has so lately become familiar to us as the training camp for our Canadian volunteers. In the long ago of over fifty years, the little settlement, now a town, in the valley and partly straggling over the grand hills surrounding it, was known only to a few interested in its growth and progress. Two of these, Major Ranken, of the Royal Engineers and his friend, Mr. A. R. Roche, of the Canadian Civil Service spent much time and money in efforts for its development and in the building of a church which is probably standing to-day, not so very far from the camp while our Canadian soldiers are fitting themselves for service in the field. Major Ranken was almost the last officer killed in the battle at Sebastopol, he having stepped back to investigate the cause of a momentary delay in the firing of a train of gunpowder laid under his orders for the blowing up of the White Buildings—a service in which he would suffer that no other life but his own should run the risk. It is to the memory of this noble man that his friend, an almost brother placed the stained glass windows which are described in the item entrusted to us by Mrs. Boomer (at one time Mrs. A. R. Roche) who has never lost her interest in Valcartier though unable by circumstances, to give, of later years, any practical proof of it. The item printed in a Quebec paper half a century ago is as follows:—On Christmas Day, Christ Church, Valcartier, was formally opened. The church, which is exceedingly neat in its exterior, is built of stone, in the early English style, consisting of nave, 57x23 feet, chancel, 18x20 feet, and a south porch, with high pitched roof. The interior is filled with open pews. On the left of the porch entrance is a neat substantial front, the gift of the Rev. Chas. Hamilton of Quebec. The east window is a tripartite of richly stained glass, representing the Ascension. It was erected by Mr. A. Roche, of Toronto, to the memory of the late Major Ranken, R.E., who was killed at the close of the Crimean war. This window and the two side windows, also of stained glass, the gift of Mr. Roche, and the lofty open roof formed of a series of framed rafters and collared beams, presents a very pleasing effect. The Rev. E. C. Parken is the incumbent, who obtained his education in England for his church, in addition to liberal contributions from Mr. Roche and the late Major Ranken. Some five years ago the then newly appointed rector of Valcartier, having obtained Mrs. Boomer's address, wrote to ask her for information regarding the early history of the little church which she gave as best she could. In thanking her, the writer, the Rev. J. Lester Coles says:—'Last Monday we had a good gathering of the men of the congregation to clean up our churchyard, and I took the opportunity of reading to them the information you have so kindly given. They listened with great interest, for no one seemed to know anything of the opening of the church. It may interest you to know that all is in excellent condition and last Sunday 150 people attended service. We are placing a new wire fence around the churchyard at a cost of $500, a very large sum to raise locally. So I am hoping to find those to help us who are interested in our church at Valcartier.' Mrs. Boomer asks if we send copies of the Echo to London men at the camp, as if so perhaps one of them who knows her may be kind enough to find his way to the spot still so interesting to her and ascertain the name of the present incumbent; and whether there is any brass plate or tablet connecting the name of Major Ranken with the colored windows placed within the church to his memory over fifty years ago."

A War Made By Fear

(From the Springfield Republican) Thus it is easy to show what the main cause of the present explosion, putting aside the various racial and commercial rivalries which bred ill feeling, has been fear. Germany feared French revenge and sought to cow France by menaces. France feared a second invasion and sought support in the only possible quarter, Russia. Germany feared a hostile coalition and formed the triple alliance. England feared a German invasion and ensured against it by an entente with France. To this was added an entente with Russia, and Germany was alarmed by the menace of 'foes all round.' And with each fresh panic came a new demand for bigger standing armies, for greater fleets of bigger battleships. The outcome is a crushing exposure of the fallacy of seeking to keep the peace by big armaments; the advocates of that theory to allow for fear. It is hard to grant that Germany's fear of Slavic aggression was real; it can hardly have been more real than the fear which drove France into an "unnatural" alliance with Russia, and German diplomacy has perhaps not fully realized the extent to which the entente has been held together simply by fear of Germany's matchless army and rapidly growing fleet.

The Bismarck Archipelago, with an area of 18,000 square miles and a population of 200,000, is off the north coast of Australia and the southeast of the Philippine Islands. A BRAVE GIRL

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Among the wounded brought to Noisy-Le-Sec, a town in the department of the Seine and near the Oureq canal, was a young lass in a soldier's uniform. She had followed a company of Zouaves and had fought alongside of them in the trenches. Her identity was not discovered until she was wounded. Before sending her to the rear, the commanding officer complimented her on her bravery.

KITCHENER OF KHARTOUM

Some Sidelights on the Character of a Famous Warrior

Everything that Kitchener is he has made himself. A bachelor at 64, public opinion has called him a woman-hater. As Sirard of Egypt—really ruler of Egypt, for he has always ignored the Khedive—he would have only bachelors about him. In the thirteen years' war he waged in the Sudan, where he made his own military fame, he chose unmarried men for leadership wherever he could. "I don't want men around me who are always thinking of their wives and children," he said.

Black haired, with dark gray eyes that suggest lowering war clouds, six feet tall, and still straight as an Egyptian obelisk, he does not look like a man 64 years of age. When the British forces under General Buller had suffered three heart-sickening reverses in the Boer War "K. of K." was summoned to retrieve the military fortunes of his country. With Earl Roberts he took charge of the situation, and from that hour dated the British victories which resulted in the downfall of the Dutch republics.

Stern and relentless in war, Kitchener is generous to a defeated foe. When the Boers were forced to surrender he offered them terms of a magnanimity most overpowering than his victories had been. When Kitchener was in South Africa he was astonished and dismayed by the arrival at the British camp of a young English girl who had volunteered as a trained nurse in order to be near her hero. She found Kitchener in the hospital with camp fever and joyfully prepared to nurse him. But the sick man turned his cold gray eye upon her and remarked sternly: "Please go away; I am far too ill to be nursed." Next day she returned. This time the hero's face was to the wall. But a sign, written in large black letters, hung above his averted shoulders. "Too ill to be nursed." It read. "It was his thirteen years' campaign in the African Sudan, which won Kitchener his elevation to the peerage, and his supreme place in the affections of the British public and the British soldiers. The enemy he conquered was no easy foe. Tommy Atkins' respect for the Soudanese fighter was expressed in Kipling's poem, 'Fuzzy Wuzzy':

"You're a poor benighted heathen, but a first-class fighter man!"

Grimly, resolutely, Kitchener pursued the Khalifa and his fanatic hordes, laying a railroad through the desert as he advanced until at last he met and defeated him in the great battle of Omdurman, killing 17,000 in one day. He finished his job by blowing up the sacred tomb of the mahdi, scattering the prophet's bones over the desert sands. In England he was criticized for this action, which Kitchener explained by saying: "My instructions were to destroy the enemy. I destroyed also the resting place of the false prophet, for the war in the Sudan was a war of religious fanaticism, and so long as that tomb remained it would have been a rallying point for rebellion." Though Kitchener's god is the god of battles, he seeks tranquility of gardens. Flowers are his delight. When in Egypt he bought an island in the Nile and made of it an oasis of bloom. Even in war he has been known to dismount from his horse to pick a way's de blossom.

CRUISERS ARE CLOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The British cruiser Suffolk was steaming back and forth in front of the entrance to New York harbor to-day, according to observers at Atlantic Highlands. The cruiser appeared off the coast yesterday afternoon, and since that time has signalled several steamers bound in and out. Another British cruiser, believed to be the Glory, was sighted from Fire Island this forenoon. She was heading shoreward.

WIPED OUT 3,000 BY FINE CAVALRY MOVE

More British Troops Would Have Captured Big Part of Enemy.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) LONDON, Sept. 12.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Express learns from the front that in the attack on the Germans Wednesday afternoon, the British pushed the Prussian Guard in the severest possible manner. An entire Jaeger regiment of sharpshooters, numbering nearly 3,000, was completely wiped out.

"There is not the slightest doubt," says the correspondent, "that but for the superb handling of the German right by General Von Kluck, a great part of Emperor William's army would have been captured. The allied cavalry did wonders and three or four additional divisions of cavalry would have contributed toward a complete rout of the Germans."

GERMAN FLEET BUSY

LONDON, Sept. 12.—4.47 a.m.—A Copenhagen despatch to the Times says it is reported from Sandness, Sweden, a town 29 miles northeast of Stockholm, that a German fleet, consisting of 29 vessels, has been sighted between Gotska Sandon Island in the Baltic, and Koppargarne, nine miles north. The Swedish newspapers report that a tremendous cannonading has been heard on a line between Gotska Sandon Island and Nymo.

Keep Your Money in Canada. Never before has Canada as a nation needed the calm support of every Canadian more than at present. Everyone should voice the British slogan "Business as Usual" and keep the wheel of business moving. And while Canada's best are on the way to the aid of the Motherland, Canadians at home should patronize the industries supporting the wage-earners who are keeping Canadian homes together. The Brantford Laundry is prepared to share the burden. Skilled employees are being employed full time, at full wages. We hope to employ more. Brantford Laundry Service should be used by every loyal citizen. The money you spend in this way goes back to the employees in wages and to the manufacturers for materials—the money remains in Canada. Foreigners always send their earnings to their home country. SOCIAL SERVICE WORK IN BRANTFORD WILL BE WELL LOOKED AFTER THIS WINTER

Meeting Was Held Last Night in the City Hall—Co-operation of All Was Keynote of Gathering—Frank Cockshutt President.

The Social Service League, which will take up charitable work in its broadest sense was launched last night at a splendidly representative meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The new organization, which is really the old Associated Charities under a new cognomen, was formally given its status and will work in conjunction with the whirlwind campaign to be conducted by the Patriotic Committee for the raising of some $50,000.

Officers Elected. Mayor Spence was elected as Honorary President, and Mr. Frank Cockshutt was proclaimed president and as such took the chair. Mr. A. McFarland and Mr. T. H. Preston as second vice-president, while Harvey T. Watt was appointed Secretary-Treasurer.

Constitution. The constitution is the same as was published in the Spring and the whole will be under the control of a Board of Management, which will be selected one delegate from each of the societies who are affiliated to the Society.

An organizing committee was appointed and investigation was appointed and was as follows: Mesdames, T. H. Preston, W. C. Livingston, Digby, T. L. Wood, W. H. Whittaker and Cummings Nelles. They will have power to add to their number should they deem it necessary. The fee for membership is one dollar.

Rev. G. A. Woodside.

In opening the meeting the Reverend G. A. Woodside said he was pleased to greet such a fine gathering and briefly he went into the details of the proposed organization. They believed in preventative charity and not curative charity; they would aim by amalgamation to prevent any overlapping and also prevent indiscriminate charity. They were to be charitable in the broadest sense of the word and the new name would enable many to make of the benefits of the society, who would have previously refused because of the aspect of charity. They would seek to give men employment and thereby get away with the work of charity. A committee had been got together which was one of large interest and influence, and one which would help with sympathy as well as financially.

The character and constitution of the society would remain unchanged, but the name would be in future Social Service League. This was passed by those present unanimously.

Rev. A. E. Lavell.

Rev. A. E. Lavell said that from previous experience, he was conscious that a good and appropriate committee had been selected. There were others that might be as good but not improved upon. Paragraphs of the constitution might be taken out and altered, but he asked that the committee report stand as it was. Criticism might be made but he trusted that whatever criticism was offered, was constructive. He desired to see the churches would contribute while a city grant would be expected. The league was quite willing to work in harmony with the wishes of the Old Home Week representatives. As to the establishing of a central dispensing place where the whole of the charities of the city might be dealt with. That was for the city to deal with. It was not for the league to suggest in any way.

The only remedy for all distress was not charity. Charity was a means of relief, it was not a cure. The remedy was work and our employers might do their part. Manufacturers might get their selling agents to work, but there was no doubt of it, a man could not make when he was not selling. Householders too could help in the unemployment question by attending to the small jobs around their homes. It was a time for solid thought. Let the league be an efficient instrument in the dispensation of the work in which it was concerned. He was sorry he could not do the subject justice, but he would ask the co-operation of all present.

Mr. T. H. Preston spoke briefly and complimented the members of the league on their selection of a president. He thought the change of name was one of the wisest and thanked the members for his election.

Mr. McFarland spoke briefly of the objects of the society and thanked those present for his election. The Mayor asked that the meeting endorse the action of the Patriotic society in raising funds for the wives and dependents of the soldiers and with enthusiasm this was done.

Valuable Suggestions. At the conclusion of the meeting the Mayor stated that a new cement road was being constructed between Toronto and Hamilton and he thought that with the aid of intermediate centres between Hamilton and Brantford it would be possible to have the road extended to Brantford. He asked all to work for this project in as much as if it went through work could immediately be commenced upon the Brantford end of this construction thus giving work to many men now unemployed.

This suggestion was very heartily received. The Women's Patriotic Society announced that they were willing to help any way they could and would readily waive all they could in the matter of clothing, etc.

Mayor Spence.

Mayor Spence said that he thought with proper organization there would not be a great deal of trouble in raising $50,000. A meeting of the patriotic committee had met in the Y. M. C. A. when an organization was effected which would carry through a whirlwind campaign. Co-operation with this committee was suggested and from enquiries which he and others had made in Hamilton it was found that co-operation by the two delegates were much encouraged by the information they had received.

The question of Old Home Week representatives upon the board was touched upon and it was unanimously decided to allow that body three representatives upon the board and Messrs. D. J. Waterous, J. J. Kelly and F. J. Calbeck were accepted.

Mrs. George Watts then announced that she was present to give the focus of the Junior Hospital Aid and Women's Patriotic Society.

The President, newly elected, was then called upon and he thanked those present for his election. He then explained at length the objects and aims of the Social Service League, dwelling upon the charitable and unemployment sides of this service. He also dealt upon the ladies' side of the work, whom he referred to as the queen of the home, touching upon their aptitude for sympathetic work.

ARE ON GUARD

Twenty From Dufferin Rifles Were Picked Out at Valcartier.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] VALCARTIER, Sept. 12.—Twenty of the smartest men in Valcartier Camp were required to go on a four days' guard at the big pumping station here. For this work only wide-awake soldiers are required, as the lives of the troops would be endangered if the water were tampered with.

The whole of the twenty men were picked from the 38th, Dufferin Rifles and when they paraded, ready to start, they looked "juss" so in their new brown boots, khaki greatcoats and considering that they were only given about half an hour's notice to get supper, wash, shave and pack their kit, this is certainly going some. Week. Sgt. Geo. Crouch was in charge of the Guard.

GERMAN ARMY LOOPED THE LOOP—BOTH GENERALS SHOWED GREAT RESOURCES

Joffre all but Won Greatest Military Victory in History—Enemy's Spirits Must be Depressed Retreating Over Line of Advance.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] PARIS, Sept. 12.—6.20 a. m.—The admirable discipline of the French forces at the beginning of the great battle, were the Germans. The latter learned of it none too soon, and their diversion from the route to Paris, heretofore attributed to fear of the Paris defense works, was simply a clever manoeuvre to escape a desperate situation. The Germans penetrated France in three columns, but the force consisted of five armies and at least 800,000 men. The plan attack on Paris by General Von Kluck, while the armies of Gen. Von Buelow, the princes of Wuerttemberg and Saxony and the crown prince dealt with the other armies of the allies. The audacious commander of the German right wing, surprised by the resistance of the allies at Guise and Compiègne, was rendered cautious, and must have discovered the presence of the army of Paris on his flank. He showed his resourcefulness by a sharp counter movement against this protecting force. The critics give Von Kluck full credit for skill as well as hardihood, and referring to General Joffre's plans, say it is a match between masters in the art of war. General Joffre failed, they believe, by the narrowest margin, in gaining one of the most brilliant victories in history. It is generally thought that this looping of the loop adds immensely to the dangers of Von Kluck's army. The worn out forces, doubling on their own tracks, necessarily must lose courage, it is argued, as well as strength, and serve to count, not only with the extraordinary endurance of the allies, but with the constant danger from the flying column of the comparatively fresh army of Paris.

DRIVING THEM BACK WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The following despatch from Bordeaux, dated yesterday, was received to-day at the French embassy. "The French general staff made it known to-day that the first German army continues its retirement. Three of its army corps were repulsed last night between Villers Collet and Seissons. We have in four days, gained from sixty to seventy-five kilometres. The second army of the tenth corps and the guards were driven back to Saint Gond Swamps and are also withdrawing. In the Champagne the third army is also retreating. The German centre is thus at last giving ground. After a hard fight in the region between Sezanne and Vitry in the Argonne, the fourth German army has been pushed

The news from the theatre of hostilities continues to be satisfactory, although once more it must be stated that nothing of a conclusive nature has yet transpired, except that the enemy has been balked in the attempted invasion of Paris. The Kaiser's troops in this regard, have been beaten, but not in the sense of disaster. They are falling back now, just as the allies did more than once during the earlier portion of hostilities, for strategic reasons. Their lines of communication, are threatened, and that term means in plain English a safe route from the base for supplies, ammunition and so on. The main point of the whole business is that the British and French lines, despite furious assaults, have held magnificently, and that they are now on the offensive.

A large new German army is now advancing against Russian troops in Prussia, and it seems to be evident that a portion of the German fleet is in the Baltic with the intention of attacking Russian coast cities.

THE SILVER BULLET

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd-George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, spoke for a great many people when he gave the opinion that the British silver bullet would do much to end the present war, and perhaps would decide the contest. History supports that view, as well as experience.

This war is costing a huge sum of money. Estimates as to the cost are frequently made, but it is practically impossible to tell just how much money is being paid out by the rival nations. As time goes on, they will spend less at home and more abroad. Then the real test will come.

Street crowds cheer, the men in the offices and homes thrill and talk of what is going to be done, but somewhere back of all this there are men writing cheques to put up for it. When these men come to the end of their bank account, the tumult and the shouting will die a natural death. Modern war entails a huge expense, and that is why most experts do not look for a very long continuance of the present struggle.

Again, nations are to a great extent interdependent to-day in the economic sphere. Every moral and material force of non-combatant nations will be exerted to end the present war, at first, perhaps, passively, but, finally, actively and energetically.

John Bull's huge wealth is his greatest asset in any international fight. He has given proof of his courage and his spirit, but his wealth is also amazing. Of all the nations engaged in war to-day he is most in his element. He braces himself against a world-structure. With his mighty commerce he spans the seas and taps the richest territories of earth. Every quarter of the globe contributes vigor to his arms.

When Britain swept the German commerce from the seas, she circumscribed the area of Germany's activity. Added to that, she went into a fight in which Germany was compelled to expend every able-bodied man. Much as the Kaiser may lament at this moment his failure to appreciate the sound facts on which Bismarck based his diplomacy in peace and war, he will lament his failure still more bitterly as time goes on. He has provoked to enmity the greatest and richest structure man has ever devised. He has taken Bismarck's idea and made it glitter like a dream. His will be a cruel awakening, and those who live to see his discomfiture will have reason to feel glad that his fall is a victory for justice and human liberty.

A COMMON SENSE LETTER

Admiral Mahan of the United States navy, is a recognized world authority on naval and military subjects. That is why the Courier reprints the following letter from the New York Times—

"In an editorial of Aug. 20, 'The American Example,' you urge that 'the unguarded frontier between the United States and Canada, suggests the real reason why the United States has for a century maintained peace with Great Britain.' As developed, the argument runs that preparation for war leads to war.

The statement is one that is running trippingly from hundreds of pens at the present moment. Let us examine it in the light of history. In the last century the most protracted war, the one consequently the most expensive in blood and treasure was the war of secession between the North and South of our own country. In what way did 'guarded frontiers' or other preparation for war contribute to the outbreak? What trained military men fortifications on either side, that in any way affected the determination to fight? The remote cause of the war was slavery; the immediate occasion, popular emotion; fervid nationalism, patriotism, truly or falsely so-called, aroused on either side.

In 1812 the United States declared war against Great Britain. To what extent did preparations affect this decision? Our unpreparedness was notorious, so that our own performance and success, a few naval successes, was ludicrous, even grotesque, as an exhibition of military inadequacy. I know that war.

In 1876 we went to the war with Mexico. Where the determining causes when in any sense preparation for war. During the past winter I had the pleasure of reading twice George L. Rive's exhaustive and instructive work, 'Relations of the United States with Mexico.' If any one will read the same and find therein that sustained military armaments, beyond those originating with the immediate menace of war, had anything to do with bringing about the conflict, he will be more acute than I can flatter myself with being.

The war with Spain, which resulted in the liberation of Cuba, is of recent memory. In what sense, with any truth, can it be alleged that preparations for war—armaments—were an influential factor in that conflict? These instances are from our own history, and, naturally, unpreparedness for war is the American tradition and, to some extent, the American boast. In every instance the causes were of the class we call 'moral,' which, of course, includes immoral. That is, the motives which led to war were popular and national interests, convictions, emotions, and sympathies, although they may have been bad or good, wise or unwise, in any particular instance.

Per contra, the State whose name is the synonym for systematic preparation for war, Germany has had sustained peace for forty-three years—nearly a half century—despite her huge armament. Though armed to the teeth, the European Continent during the same period until 1914 did not see war, except between Russia and Turkey in 1877. Those who remember that war and the antecedent occurrences which led to it will have difficulty in assigning preparation for war as a principal cause. I, myself, have always believed that not the reluctant Czar, but the pugnacious Russian people, in that instance, forced hostilities on behalf of their persecuted co-religionists; men, too, of their own blood.

VALCARTIER CAMP

The following is taken from the London (Ontario) Echo:— "It may be of some interest to the readers of this paper to learn of a connecting link which exists between a Red Cross member of our city and the Valcartier camp near Quebec, which has so lately become familiar to us as the training camp for our Canadian volunteers. In the long ago of over fifty years, the little settlement, partly in the valley and partly straggling over the grand hills surrounding it, was known only to a few interested of these, Major Ranken, of the Royal Engineers and his friend, Mr. A. R. Roche, of the Canadian Civil Service spent much time and money in efforts for its development and in the building of a church which is probably standing to-day, not so very far from the camp while our Canadian soldiers are fitting themselves for service in the field. Major Ranken was the last officer killed in the battle at Sebastopol, he having stepped back to investigate the cause of a momentary delay in the firing of a train of gunpowder laid under his orders for the blowing up of the White Buildings—a service in which he would suffer that no other lie but his own should run the risk. It is to the memory of this noble man that his friend and almost brother placed the stained glass windows, which are described in the item entrusted to us by Mrs. Boomer (at one time Mrs. A. R. Roche), who has never lost her interest in Valcartier, though unable by circumstances, to give, of later years, any practical proof of it. The item printed in a Quebec paper half a century ago is as follows:—On Christmas Day, Christ Church, Valcartier, was formally opened. The church, which is exceedingly neat in its exterior, is built of stone, in the early English style, consisting of nave, 57x23 feet, chancel 18x20 feet, and south porch, with high pitched roof. The interior is filled with open pews. On the left of the porch entrance is a neat substantial font, the gift of the Rev. Chas. Hamilton of Quebec. The east window is a triple of rich stained glass, representing the Crucifixion, the Burial, the Ascension. It was erected by Mr. A. Roche, of Toronto, to the memory of the late Major Ranken, R.E., who was killed at the close of the Crimean war. This window and the two side windows, also of stained glass, the gift of Mr. Roche, and the lofty open tower, a series of framed rafters and collared beams, presents a very pleasing effect. The Rev. E. C. Parken is the incumbent, who obtained subscriptions in England for his church, in addition to liberal contributions from Mr. Roche and the late Major Ranken. Some five years ago he then newly appointed rector of Valcartier, having obtained Mrs. Boomer's address, wrote to ask her for information regarding the early history of the little church which she gave as best she could. In thanking her, the writer, the Rev. J. Lester Coles says—'Last Monday we had a good gathering of the men of the congregation to clean up our church-yard, and I took the opportunity of reading to them the information you have so kindly given. They listened with great interest, for no one seemed to know anything of the opening of the church. It may interest you to know that all is in excellent condition and last Sunday 12 people attended service. We are placing a new wire fence around the churchyard at a cost of $500, a very large sum to raise locally. So I am hoping to find those to help us who are interested in our church at Valcartier.' Mrs. Boomer asks if we send copies of the Echo to London men at the camp, as if so perhaps one of them who knows her may be kind enough to find his way to the spot still so interesting to her and ascertain the name of the present incumbent, and whether there is any brass plate or tablet connecting the name of Major Ranken with the colored windows placed within the church to his memory over fifty years ago."

Press Comment

A War Made By Fear

(From the Springfield Republican) Thus it is easy to show what the main cause of the present explosion, putting aside the various racial and commercial rivalries which bred ill feeling, has been fear. Germany feared French revenge and sought to cow France by menaces. France feared a second invasion, and sought support in the only possible quarter, Russia. Germany feared a hostile coalition and formed the triple alliance. England feared a German invasion, and ensured against it by an entente with France. To this was added an entente with Russia, and Germany was armed by the menace of "foes all round." And with each fresh panic came a new demand for bigger standing armies, for greater fleets of big-gun battleships. The outcome is a crushing exposure of the fallacy of seeking to keep the peace by big armaments; the advocates of that theory forgot to allow for fear. Let us grant that Germany's fear of Slavic aggression was real; it can hardly have been more real than the fear which drove France into the "unnatural" alliance with Russia, and German diplomacy has perhaps not fully realized the extent to which the "ring of enemies" was held together simply by fear of Germany's matchless army and rapidly growing fleet.

PEEBLE RESISTANCE

PARIS, Sept. 12, 3.03 p.m.—It was officially announced here this afternoon that the German forces to the east of Paris are generally retreating and that they are offering only a feeble resistance to the French and British troops.

A BRAVE GIRL

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Among the wounded brought to Noisy-Le-Sec, a town in the department of the Seine and near the Oureq canal, was a young laundress in a soldier's uniform. She had followed a company of Zouaves and had fought alongside of them in the trenches. Her identity was not discovered until she was wounded. Before sending her to the rear, the commanding officer complimented her on her bravery.

KITCHENER OF KHARTOUM

Some Sidelights on the Character of a Famous Warrior

Everything that Kitchener is he has made himself. A bachelor at 24, public opinion has called him a woman-hater. As Sirdar of Egypt—really ruler of Egypt, for he has always ignored the Khedive—he would have only bachelors about him. In the thirteen years' war he waged in the Soudan, where he made his own military fame, he chose unmarried men for leadership whenever he could. "I don't want men around me who are always thinking of their wives and children," he said.

Black haired, with dark gray eyes that suggest lowering war clouds, six feet tall, and still straight as an Egyptian obelisk, he does not look like a man 64 years old. When the British forces under General Buller had suffered three heart-breaking reverses in the Boer War "K. of K." was summoned to retrieve the military fortunes of his country. With Earl Roberts he took charge of the situation, and from that hour dated the British victories which resulted in the downfall of the Dutch republics.

Stern and relentless in war, Kitchener is generous to a defeated foe. When the Boers were forced to surrender he offered them terms of a magnanimity more overpowering than his victories had been.

When Kitchener was in South Africa he was astonished and dismayed by the arrival at the British camp of a young English girl who had volunteered as a trained nurse in order to be near her hero. She found Kitchener in the hospital with camp fever and joyfully prepared to nurse him. But the sick man turned his cold gray eye upon her and remarked sternly: "Please go away; I am far too ill to be nursed." Next day she returned. This time the hero's face was to the wall. But a sign, written in large black letters, hung above his averted shoulders. "Too ill to be nursed," it read. The poor girl never came back. It was his thirteen years' campaign in the African Soudan, which won Kitchener his elevation to the peerage, and his supreme place in the affections of the British public and the British soldiers. The enemy he conquered was no easy foe. Tommy Atkins' respect for the Soudanese fighter was expressed in Kipling's poem, "Fuzzy Wuzzy": "You're a poor benighted heathen, but a first-class fightin' man!"

CRUISERS ARE CLOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The British cruiser Suffolk was steaming back and forth in front of the entrance to New York harbor to-day, according to observers at Atlantic Highlands. The cruiser appeared off the coast yesterday afternoon, and since that time has signalled several steamers bound in and out. Another British cruiser, believed to be the Glory, was sighted from Fire Island this forenoon. She was heading shoreward.

WIPED OUT 3,000 BY FINE CAVALRY MOVE

More British Troops Would Have Captured Big Part of Enemy.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) LONDON, Sept. 12.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Express learns from the front that in the attack on the Germans Wednesday afternoon, the British pushed the Prussian Guard in the severest possible manner. An entire jaeger regiment of sharpshooters, numbering nearly 3,000, was completely wiped out.

"There is not the slightest doubt," says the correspondent, "that but for the superb handling of the German right by General Von Kluck, a great part of Emperor William's army would have been captured. The allied cavalry did wonders and three or four additional divisions of cavalry would have contributed toward a complete rout of the Germans."

GERMAN FLEET BUSY

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A Copenhagen despatch to the Times says it is reported from Sandhamn, Sweden, a town 20 miles northeast of Stockholm, that a German fleet, consisting of 29 vessels, has been sighted between Gotska Sandoen Island in the Baltic, and Kopparsarn, nine miles north. The Swedish newspapers report that a tremendous cannonading has been heard on the line between Gotska Sandoen Island and Nymo.

Keep Your Money in Canada

Never before has Canada as a nation needed the calm support of every Canadian more than at present. Everyone should voice the British slogan "Business as Usual" and keep the wheel of business moving.

And while Canada's best are on the way to the aid of the Motherland, Canadians at home should patronize the industries supporting the wage-earners who are keeping Canadian homes together.

The Brantford Laundry is prepared to share the burden. Skilled employees are being employed full time, at full wages. We hope to employ more.

should be used by every loyal citizen. The money you spend in this way goes back to the employees in wages and to the manufacturers for materials—the money remains in Canada. Foreigners always send their earnings to their home country. Canada should be for the Canadians!

The Brantford Laundry can and will do your laundry work right. We merit your support. If heretofore you have been indifferent as regards where your laundry is sent, now is the time to choose a laundry employing Canadians.

SOCIAL SERVICE BRANTFORD LOOKED AT

Meeting Was Held Last operation of All Was Frank Cook

The Social Service League, which will take up charitable work in a broadest sense was launched last night at a splendidly representative meeting held in the V. M. C. A. auditorium. The new organization, which is really the old Associated Charities under a new cognomen, was formally given its status and will work in conjunction with the whirlwind campaign to be conducted by the Patriotic Committee for the raising of some $50,000.

Officers Elected. Mayor Spence was elected as Honorary President and Mr. Frank Cook as president. Mr. A. M. Farland was chosen First Vice-President and Mr. T. H. Preston as secretary. Mr. W. C. Livingston was appointed Secretary-Treasurer.

The constitution is the same as published in the Spring and will be under the control of a Board of Management, which will be selected one delegate from each of the societies who are affiliated to the Social Service League.

An organizing committee for visitation and investigation was appointed and was as follows: Mesdames, T. L. Wood, W. H. Whittaker, a Cummings Nelles. They will have power to add to their number should it be deemed necessary. The fee membership is one dollar.

Rev. G. A. Woodside. In opening the meeting the Rev. G. A. Woodside said he was pleased to greet such a fine gathering and briefly he went into the details of the proposed organization. They believe in preventative charity and not curative charity; they would aim by amalgamation to prevent any overlapping of charity. They were to be charitable, the broadest sense of the word, and the new name would enable many mistakes of the past to be avoided. Those who would have previously retired because of the aspect of charity, they would seek to give employment and thereby to work with the root of charity. A committee had been formed together which was one of interest and influence, and one who would help with sympathy as well as financially.

The character and constitution of the society would remain unchanged but the name would be in the future Social Service League. This was adopted by those present unanimously.

Rev. A. E. Lavell. Rev. A. E. Lavell said that from previous experience, he was convinced that a good and appropriate committee had been selected. There were others that might be as good but improved upon. Paragraphs of constitution might be taken out or altered, but he asked that the committee might be made but he trusts that whatever criticism was offered was constructive. He desired to

SOCIAL SERVICE WORK IN BRANTFORD WILL BE WELL LOOKED AFTER THIS WINTER

Meeting Was Held Last Night in the City Hall—Co-operation of All Was Keynote of Gathering—Frank Cockshutt President.

The Social Service League, which will take up charitable work in its broadest sense was launched last night at a splendidly representative meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The new organization, which is really the old Associated Charities under a new cognomen, was formally given its status and will work in conjunction with the whirlwind campaign to be conducted by the Patriotic Committee for the raising of some $50,000.

Officers Elected. Mayor Spence was elected as Honorary President, and Mr. Frank Cockshutt was proclaimed president and as such took the chair. Mr. A. McFarland was chosen First Vice President and Mr. T. H. Preston as second vice-president, while Harvey T. Watt was appointed Secretary-Treasurer.

The constitution is the same as was published in the Spring and the whole will be under the control of a Board of Management, which will be selected one delegate from each of the societies who are affiliated to the Society. An organizing committee for visitation and investigation was appointed and was as follows: Mesdames, T. H. Preston, W. C. Livingston, Digby, T. L. Wood, W. H. Whittaker and Cummings Nelles. They will have power to add to their number should they deem it necessary. The fee for membership is one dollar.

Rev. G. A. Woodside. In opening the meeting the Reverend G. A. Woodside said he was pleased to greet such a fine gathering and briefly he went into the details of the proposed organization. They believed in preventative charity and not curative charity; they would aim by amalgamation to prevent any overlapping and also prevent indiscriminate charity. They were to be charitable in the broadest sense of the word, and the new name would enable many to partake of the benefits of the society, who would have previously refused because of the aspect of charity. They would seek to give men employment and thereby do away with the root of charity. A committee had been formed to look after the financial interest and influence, and one which would help with sympathy as well as financially.

The character and constitution of the society would remain unchanged, but the name would be in future, Social Service League. This was passed by those present unanimously. Rev. A. E. Lavell. Rev. A. E. Lavell said that from previous experience, he was conscious that a good and appropriate committee had been selected. There were others that might be as good but not improved upon. Paragraphs of the constitution might be taken out and altered, but he asked that the committee report stand as it was. Criticisms might be made but he trusted that whatever criticism was offered, was constructive. He desired to see the churches would contribute while a city grant would be expected. The league was quite willing to work in harmony with the wishes of the Old Home Week representatives. As to the establishing of a central dispensing place where the whole of the charities of the city might be dealt with. That was for the league to deal with. It was not for the league to suggest in any way.

The only remedy for all distress was not charity. Charity was a means of relief, it was not a cure. The remedy was work and our employers might do their part. Manufacturers might get their selling agents to work, but there was no doubt of it, a man could not make when he was not selling. Householders too could help in the unemployment question by attending to the small jobs around their homes. It was a time for solid thought. Let the league be an efficient instrument in the dispensation of the work in which it was concerned. He was sorry he could not do the subject justice, but he would ask the co-operation of all present.

Mr. T. H. Preston spoke briefly and complimented the members of the league on their selection of a president. He thought the change of name was one of the best and thanked the members for his election. Mr. McFarland spoke briefly of the objects of the society and thanked those present for his election. The Mayor asked that the meeting endorse the action of the Patriotic Society in raising funds for the wives and dependents of the soldiers and with enthusiasm this was done.

Valuable Suggestion. At the conclusion of the meeting the Mayor stated that a new cement road was being constructed between Toronto and Hamilton and he thought that with the aid of intermediate centres between Hamilton and Brantford it would be possible to have the road extended to Brantford. He asked all to work for this project in as much as it went through work could immediately be commenced upon the Brantford end of this construction thus giving work to many men now unemployed.

This suggestion was very heartily received.

COLLEGIATE BOARD Account for County Pupils' Attendance is Still a Live Question.

The Collegiate School Board met last night, when a rather lengthy session resulted, principally caused by various items on the county account being discussed. Some dissension was manifest when the county account, which has not yet been presented, was under review. The latter learned of it none too soon, and some of the board were in favor of refusing the county pupils admission to the school, so unsatisfied did they feel with the account. Eventually the matter was left over.

The accounts passed amounted to over $500. Four new teachers were included in the report of the school management committee. They were: W. Martin, at a salary of $1500; R. Goring, at $1200; C. T. Bell and S. J. Devitt, at salaries of $1300.

Miss McCallum, who has been absent from duties for a year reported, and was enrolled upon the staff once again. Miss Ryan was promoted from the commercial classes to be modern teacher, while Miss Edith Good will take the position vacated by Miss Ryan.

The attendance at the school this year has broken all records, and the average number of scholars attending is 440. Those present were Chairman Lahey, E. Sweet, R. E. Ryerson, Gary Pickles, W. B. Scace, Dr. Palmer and Principal Burt.

ARE ON GUARD

Twenty From Dufferin Rifles Were Picked Out at Valcartier.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) VALCARTIER, Sept. 12.—Twenty of the smartest men in the Valcartier Camp were required to go on a four days' guard at the big pumping station here. For this work, only wide awake soldiers are required, as the lives of the troops would be endangered if the water were tampered with. The whole of the twenty men were picked from the 38th Dufferin Rifles and when they paraded, ready to start, they looked "just so" in their new brown boots, khaki greatcoats and armed with new Ross Rifles. Considering that they were only given about half an hour's notice to get supper, wash, shave and pack their kit, this is certainly going some. Sergt. Geo. Crouch was in charge of the Guard.

FAREWELL SOCIAL. The members of the church and congregation attending Park Baptist church will hold a farewell social for their pastor, Rev. C. W. Rose on Wednesday evening, Sept. 16. It is hoped that all who can will attend.

Hon. Dr. Eyne severely wrenched his knee in a fall from a street car step in Toronto.

GERMAN ARMY LOOPED THE LOOP—BOTH GENERALS SHOWED GREAT RESOURCES

Joffre all but Won Greatest Military Victory in History—Enemy's Spirits Must be Depressed Retreating Over Line of Advance.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) PARIS, Sept. 12.—6.20 a. m.—The admirable discipline of the censorship was revealed by yesterday's communications, which showed that only one outside of the military authorities, who knew the whereabouts of the French forces at the beginning of the great battle, were the Germans. The latter learned of it none too soon, and their diversion from the route to Paris, heretofore attributed to fear of the Paris defense works, was simply a clever manoeuvre to escape a clever man. The Germans penetrated France in three columns, but the force consisted of five armies and evidently was for a quick, direct attack on Paris by General Von Kluck, while the armies of Gen. Von Buelow, the princes of Wurtemberg and Saxony and the crown prince dealt with the other armies of the allies. The audacious commander of the German right wing, surprised by the resistance of the allies at Guise and Compiègne, was rendered cautious, and must have discovered the presence of the army of Paris on his flank. He showed his resourcefulness by a sharp counter movement against this protecting force. The critics give Von Kluck full credit for skill as well as hardihood, and referring to General Joffre's plans, say it is a match between two generals in the art of war. General Joffre failed, they believe, by the narrow margin, in gaining one of the most brilliant victories in history. It is generally thought that this looping of the loop adds immensely to the dangers of Von Kluck's army. The worn out forces, doubling on their own tracks, necessarily must lose courage, it is argued, as well as strength, and serve to count, not only with the extraordinary endurance of the allies, but with the constant danger from the flying column of the comparatively fresh army of Paris.

DRIVING THEM BACK. WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The following despatch from Bordeaux, dated yesterday, was received today at the French embassy. "The French general staff made it known today that the first German army continues its retirement. Three of its army corps were repulsed last night between Villers, Colletres and Seissons. We have in four days gained from sixty to seventy-five kilometres. The second army of the tenth corps and the guards were driven back to Saint Gond Swamps and are also withdrawing. In the Champagne the third army is thus at last giving ground. After a hard fight in the region between Sezanne and Vitry in the Argonne, the fourth German army has been pushed back to the north of the Troisfontaines forest. A fifth German army after attempting a very serious effort on our right wing" was thrown back. Our troops occupy Evassinourt. The general situation has thus been modified to our advantage during these last four days. On the other side the Austrian army attacked near Comarow was forced to a disastrous retreat. The whole army has been pushed back to the west of Rawa Ruska and the Dniester River. The Russians besieged Grodek." London's relief fund campaign aiming at $100,000, brought in $120,350 as a result of systematic canvass. Hamilton has obtained $180,000 in three days the aim being $150,000. The Ottawa branch of the Patriotic Fund has raised a total of $180,850.

Women's New Tailored Suits For Autumn Have a Wonderful Charm

Most of them were inspired from Paris models. There is a Bernard copy at $35.00 which shows the new flare coat—the whole costume carried out in roughish tweed. And at the same price a Ceruit model of taupe gabardine has a Redingote with cassock collar. $32.50. But they are just the "high light"—for there are suits of all kinds and all styles, with the short, medium and long coats—and ranging in price from $10 to $25. —Second Floor.

Marabou Sets

They're warm—and so soft and becoming! Inexpensive, too. Many women like them for the early Fall and in place of furs. And there are ever so many women who wear them all Winter. Marabou and Ostrich Ruffles, Stoles and Muffs. They are warm, stylish, dainty and becoming for early Fall wear. Marabou Ruffle, 2 1/2 yards long, finished with Marabou Tassel, shades Black, Mode and Natural. $4.50 to $7.50. Ruffle and Muff to match in natural Marabou and Ostrich combinations. Set. $12. All Black Marabou Stole, 2 1/2 yards long, with large muff to match. $11.50 to $12. Small Ruffles and Collars of Marabou and Ostrich, finished with pretty ribbon bows or silk tassels to match, shades Cadet, Black, White, Mole, Light, Grey, Brown, Black and White, Brown and White and Tango, variously. $2.50 to $5.50. —Centre Aisle.

A Little Showing of Early Autumn Millinery

A few copies of French hats and a large number of black velvet hats made up in our own workrooms. They include large shapes and small. Some are trimmed with touches of gold and silver, others with velvet flowers—roses, gardenias, white poppies, and so on. Prices are very moderate, there being many hats at $10; others go up to $25. —Second Floor.

Engagement Cancelled. The engagement of James Hackett, who was to marry Helen Othello next Saturday night was cancelled this morning.

Gas Bill. The city gas bill for last month amounted to $2.85, and the actual cost to the city will be 40 cents as the rest has already been paid on a former account.

Creditors Met. The creditors of Louis Shalit met yesterday at the office of the assignee, M. F. Muir, when the liabilities were estimated at $4,000, with assets of about $2000. The principal creditors are Toronto firms.

Visit of Inspection. The Brantford Street Railway Commissioners paid a visit of inspection to London yesterday when they gained much information upon the system of the city.

More Unemployed. The unemployment question at the moment is very acute and evidence of this fact is to be seen every morning in the line up of the unemployed in the Engineers' office, where daily there is a line up of out-of-work men.

Hilton Wilkes Writes. Major Gordon Smith this morning received a letter from Lieutenant Hilton Wilkes, who says that the eight horses he has written for are being sent to him by the 2nd Battalion, Dragoons, which is given a company of the 4th Battalion. He speaks well of the behaviour of the boys.

Splendid Work This. An old Brantford lady aged 82 years surprised and pleased everybody at the Children's Shelter yesterday by presenting a pair of stockings. They are to go with other goods to the Brantford soldiers. Little incidents such as these are continually being done in the work all over the city and they show a patriotism of stern stuff among all classes. The ladies are meeting again Tuesday at the large auditorium and sang very enthusiastically a patriotic song and other selections, returning to their room with marked order. The meeting was principally business, where help was most needed. A piano duet by the Misses Hargraves was much appreciated. Paper on "The Rights of Women" was very ably given by Miss Carrow, and contained much information and truth. A most lamentable fact was mentioned, that Canadian children are not as obedient or reverent as the children of the Old Land. The home training and government is not what it was in the past. WAS KILLED AT CROSSING ST. PAUL AVE.

Local Foreigner Met His Death This Morning on the G. T. R.

An unknown man was struck and killed upon the Grand Trunk tracks a short distance from the St. Paul's Avenue crossing, about a quarter to eleven this morning.

It appears to be a Russian Pole of about 26 years of age, and he has for some time resided in the city at 24 Pearl street, and also at 89 Pearl street. Several people who were gathering apples at this point saw the accident, and from the most reliable accounts it seems that the dead man was gathering apples and was walking along the track when he was struck from behind by an engine and thrown bodily forward to fall upon his back.

One account says that the man got out of the track of one train and stepped in front of another which was eastbound for London. The injuries are a dislocated neck and badly bruised face, and death was apparently instantaneous.

In his clothing, which was the poorest description, a small notebook was found, which indicated that this is the man's name. In the book was the name Olchsa Polabruck, 89 Pearl St., Brantford, but it is not definitely known that this is the man's name. His gang number was marked 11,332, and suggests employment with a railway gang.

There is little doubt that the deceased was in a starving condition, and he only yesterday was supplied with bread by Louis Stander, and he has several times visited the missionary's home, and the fact that he was gathering apples when he was killed, denotes that he was in the poorest circumstances. In his pockets a number of apples were found as well as a handkerchief full of them by his side.

Up to the time of going to press he had not been identified, but while it was known to many local foreigners his name was not generally known. Some foreigners saw him this morning but none of them knew his name.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 12.-via Paris, Sept. 12.-Since the outbreak of the war about 50 German officers and men have been forced to take refuge in Switzerland. The rumor that General Von Deimling is a prisoner in Switzerland, is untrue.

Prince William of Wied continues to stay at Lugano, where he has arrived from Albania. Diplomats of the various nations are his principal callers.

The total of Toronto's assessment is $570,444.50, an increase of $63,000.00 and the population 470,144.

Interesting Letter of Doings at Valcartier

Valcartier Camp, Sept. 8, 1914. Editor of the Courier:

Sir,—I did not think it would come amiss to send you a few lines, briefly outlining the existing conditions at Valcartier Camp.

At the present time I am attached to the 21st Essex Regiment of Windsor, which after to-day will be known as the 1st Ontario. This outfit, as in the case of many others, contains many men who have never seen service before, and at the beginning their knowledge of drill and military life was extremely crude.

To one who has not visited the camp it is impossible to believe that one month ago it was a vast farm tract devoted entirely to the raising of crops. Now it is a city of tents, with a population of over 40,000 men, with more arriving each day.

At night the place is brilliantly lighted by electricity, and the engineer corps have put in busy hours making roadways. The sanitary system is excellent, and as yet not one case of fever has been reported.

Bordeaux is the Capital for the Second Time

War of 1914 is Repeating the History of Prussian War of 1870.

(By George Dufresne) The removal of the French capital from Paris to Bordeaux affords only another of the striking instances in which the war of 1914 is repeating the history of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870.

In 1871, after the defeat of MacMahon, the capture of Napoleon III, and the establishment of the Third Republic, the capital of France was removed to Bordeaux, which remained the French capital until the conclusion of peace.

When the former siege of Paris by the Prussians was seen to be inevitable shortly after the proclamation of the Third Republic in September, 1870, the provisional government caused the capital to be removed to Tours. It remained there until that city was in danger of investment by the Germans.

When the government and the archbishop fled to Bordeaux, that city remained the capital of the provisional government for three months, when the national assembly convened there and formed a permanent government. Preliminary terms of peace were formulated in Bordeaux, and the French government did not return to Paris until peace was finally and formally concluded at Frankfurt.

Fourth Saragat in France Bordeaux is 350 miles southwest of Paris, on the Orleans railway. It is a city of 240,000 inhabitants, situated on the left bank of the river Garonne, 60 miles from the sea, in the center of the wine-growing district of Medoc.

But before Bordeaux became the seat of government in 1871, it had been prominent in the affairs of turbulent France, and it was the head of the Girondist movement in the revolution and suffered much in the Reign of Terror.

As in 1871, the present removal of this seat of government was announced simply as a "matter of precaution" and was promised to be only temporary. The Prussians held the north of France and were at the very gates of Paris, and the defeat at Sedan, September 1, 1870, the people rose up against Napoleon, who was a prisoner in a Prussian castle. A government of national defense was formed to carry on the forlorn campaign against the Prussians. Its head was Leon Gambetta.

From this government of national defense arose a third Empire, and the first session of the national assembly was held at Bordeaux.

The situation to-day is much the same as forty-four years ago, except that there is no possibility that the French form of government will be overturned. The Germans crossed the northern frontier despite the stubborn resistance of the allies, and arrived within a few miles of Paris.

The German right wing steadily pushed back the French left and when the capital was ordered moved to Bordeaux, the nearest Germans were only some forty miles from Paris.

Some government, in announcing the removal, said there was no danger of the Germans taking Paris, but it was deemed advisable to move the seat of government and the archives.

As in 1871, the inhabitants of Paris were advised to keep calm, that there was no real danger. They were told that, in the opinion of the government, the enemy would not get near enough to besiege the city and, if they did, they could not take it. French people were advised to stay in Paris, but all foreigners, including at least 6,000 Americans, were warned to leave for the United States or England.

In the meantime Paris was in a state that reminded veterans of the stirring days of 1871. Everywhere stern preparations were being made to withstand a siege, while even those making the preparations solemnly declared they had no idea a siege would come. Everywhere trenches were dug, ramparts thrown up and cannon planted to supplement the defenses of the wall of Paris and the eighty miles of costly and powerful forts that encircle the city.

Troops were poured into the forts and everything was put in readiness for the coming of the invaders. Strangely enough there was no panic noticeable. Even while bombardments in German aeroplanes became matters of daily and nightly occurrence, houses were set on fire and people killed and wounded by these missiles from the sky, the people of Paris became calmer and more cheerful. They exhibited a stoicism in great contrast to the traditional volatile excitability of the French nation.

LOVE MESSAGES Sent Out on Each Shell by the British Jack Tars.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) LONDON, Sept. 12.—3.31 a.m.—The projectiles which we sent into the German ships in the Heligoland battle were covered with chalked messages and "Regards from England," writes Gunner George Brown in a letter received in London to-day with mail from the fleet.

"Love to the Kaiser" and "Regards from England," writes Gunner George Brown in a letter received in London to-day with mail from the fleet. "The sight of the sinking of German ships was gloriously terrible. There was not a sign of fright on the part of any of our crew. From the youngest to the oldest, every man did his duty bravely and eagerly and with a smile on his face. We finished them off in fine style."

The fruit-growers of Clarkson shipped two carloads of fruit and vegetables to the soldiers at Valcartier camp.

Made in Canada Campaign

Organ of the Canadian Manufacturers Association Has a Few Suggestions to Offer Thereon.

"Industrial Canada," the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, in the current month's issue, has a somewhat lengthy article to Canada manufacturers and consumers in which is outlined a scheme to boost the sale of "made in Canada" goods, and incidentally to acquire new markets for their output, taking advantage of the war now raging in continental Europe which it is claimed offers golden opportunities to the Dominion to extend its overseas commerce. The Courier hereby makes free to reproduce, in part, some of the suggestions and arguments advanced thereon. Industrial Canada starts out with the proposition that:

"While we are in this state of war certain duties develop upon citizens which must be loyally discharged. It is the duty of manufacturers to do all they can to keep their plants in operation; it is the duty of consumers to buy Canadian-made goods in preference to any other goods; and it is the duty of manufacturers, consumers and the government to see that reasonable prices are maintained. Our commercial energies should be directed along three main channels: home industry, establishment of new industries, and capture of export trade."

This is no longer a commercial appeal. It is the rallying cry of combatants fired with imperial and national patriotism. We must furnish British and our friends at war with food and supplies. More land should be brought under cultivation, and part of our urban population transferred to the task of bringing wealth out of the soil. The money received for our products will go far to provide for our necessities and, if wisely circulated in our own country, will alleviate distress from unemployment. This is the perfect circle that will benefit our farmers, keep poor factories in operation, provide employment, maintain credit, and retain money. It is the duty of Canadian citizens to spend every possible dollar at home during the war.

The support of the local press, public officials and consumers should be enlisted. It is evident that a flood of goods from neutral countries, deflected from the ports of belligerent nations will threaten to overwhelm our markets. While our fellow-countrymen fight in Europe, let us fight at home to develop the sources of our national wealth so that they may strengthen us in time of need. The tremendous struggle is only begun. The end is shrouded in uncertainty. The struggle and its after-effects will tax us to the limit of endurance. Canadian producers and consumers must stand together, watchful of one another's interests, ready to sacrifice personal inclination, willing to incur inconvenience. This is no time to indulge whims, prejudices or fancies in favor of foreign manufactures. Neither should citizens who have means economize too severely; spend now, and they will escape the inevitable levies and possible confiscation which must follow wide-spread unemployment.

The above is excellent advice, and if the manufacturers do their part in the aforesaid article, and do all in their power for our city here to keep men employed, and to do as far as is possible to do, the cutting of the worker's wages or the shortening of the hours of labor, because they must bear in mind the fact that in not one single instance has the price been lowered on the commodities which the workingman has to buy in order to enable him to live, but that they have, on the other hand, in a great many instances advanced in a great degree, making it impossible, with his lessened wages, to buy as much as he otherwise would. The manufacturer can depend on this, that if they give the men work and fair wages, they can their part, can be relied upon to buy none but "made in Canada" goods. It is up to the employers of labor in the first instance, the workers will do their share.

Soldier Boy

Do you hear the bugle sounding, Soldier Boy?
Don't it make your heart beat faster,
Just for joy,
Britain wants her sons to fight,
For honor, truth and all that's right,
And face the foe with all your might,
Soldier Boy.

Keep the old flag flying, lads;
It's the honor of your Dads,
Who died for England in the days
Of your birthright, your defending,
'Tis your birthright, your defending,
Should the strife be never ending,
Keep the old flag flying, lads, etc.

Do you hear the call to duty, Sailor Boy?
It is answered with a hearty "Ship Ahoy!"
We're the boys in navy blue,
Who ride the waves, and we'll be true to old Britannia, and we'll show them how!

Keep the old flag flying, lads, etc.
Do you hear the call for help, City Boy?
Will they call for you in vain? or annoy?
You to leave the desk or plough
To help the red line, show them how Britannia's sons can fight, right now,
City Boy.

Keep the old flag flying, lads, etc.
—Mrs. J. Richard Jones,
Sturgeon Creek.

World of Labor

There are more than one million miners employed in the United States. The Arkansas State Federation of Labor is pressing the legislature for an anti-child labor law.

After years of agitation the Missouri state legislature is to enact a workmen's compensation act.

Over four hundred coal handlers along the Mississippi river docks are on strike for increased wages.

Massachusetts Journeyman Barbers have decided to agitate for state legislation regulating the hours of labor in barber shops, and that all journeymen shall pass an examination for efficiency.

Over three thousand employees of the Baltimore Street Railway Company have received an advance in wages. The new schedule gives an average raise of 25 cents per day to motormen and conductors.

There never was a time when there was such a large supply of flour in Great Britain as at the present time. Yet, instead of bread becoming cheaper, the cost of living is advancing, and bread has gone up to seven pence a loaf.

The City Council of Duluth, Minn., has offered the Edison Electrical Light Company an even million dollars for its plant and equipment. If the corporation refuses the offer the city will carry out the advice of its engineers and construct a plant of its own.

All indications point to the success of the New York fur workers, who, to the number of four thousand, are on strike for better conditions. Already more than two-thirds of the members of the Fur Manufacturers' Association have signed upon agreements, about three hundred shops in all having been affected. The chief demands of the union is for a forty-nine hour week, the closed shop and the stopping of all home work. The immediate success of the strike has made the workers jubilant, and the of-

James K. Hackett in Othello

Mr. James K. Hackett is one of the most popular English-speaking actors of the stage, and the announcement of his coming is always sure to inspire interest, for it insures an evening of rare delight. Fine acting and artistic stage presentation are qualities not too often met in the theatre, but are always present in any production which bears the Hackett name. Memory runs back to his many great successes which have earned a universal public, notably "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Ride of Jennico," "Rupert of Hentzau," "John Glade's Honor," "Don Caesar's Return," "Samson," "A Grain of Dust" and "The Bishop's Candlestick." What roles could have offered a finer apprenticeship for the great characters of tragedy. And what finer opportunity for an actor of Mr. Hackett's personal and artistic attainments than in the character of the immortal Shakespeare's jealous Moor. For a strictly limited tour, and to establish it in his permanent repertoire, this excellent actor is to play Othello. The opportunity is one which no true theatre-goer will venture to overlook and the star will surely be welcomed by capacity houses when he appears at the Grand Opera House next Saturday, Sept. 19.

THE STORY OF Waitstill Baxter

CHAPTER XVI.

A State of Maine Proverb.

SUMMER was dying hard, for although it had passed, by the calendar, Mother Nature was still keeping up her customary attitude.

There had been a soft rain in the night, and every spear of grass was brilliantly green and tipped with crystal. The smoke bushes in the garden plot and the asparagus-bed beyond them looked misty as the sun rose higher, drying the soaked earth and dripping branches. Spiders' webs, invisible of late, dotted the short grass under the apple tree. Every dower that had a fragrance was pouring it gratefully into the air; every bird with a joyous note in its voice gave it more joyously from a bursting throat, and the river laughed and rippled in the distance at the foot of Town House Hill. The dawn grew into full morning, and streams of blue smoke rose here and there from the Edgewood chimneys. The world was alive and so beautiful that Waitstill felt like going down on her knees in gratitude for having been born into it and given the chance of serving it in any humble way whatsoever.

Wherever there was a barn, in Riverton or Edgewood, one could have lifted the three-legged stools being lifted from the pegs, and then would begin the music of the milk pails; first the resonant sound of the stream in the bottom of the tin pail, then the soft, delicious purring of the cascade into the full bucket, while the cows serenely chewed their cud and whisked away the flies with swinging tails. Deacon Baxter was taking his cows to a pasture far over the hill. The feed having grown too short in his own fields, Patty was washing dishes in the kitchen and Waitstill was in the dairy house at the butter making, one of her chief delights. She worked with speed and with beautiful sureness, patting, squeezing, rolling the golden mass like the true artist she was, then turning the sweet-scented waxen balls out of the mould onto the big stone china platter that stood waiting. She had been up early, and for the last hour she had toiled with devouring eagerness that she might have a little time to herself. It was here now, for Patty would be busy with the beds after she finished the dishes, so she drew a fold-

She Sat Down to Read the First Communication She Had Ever Received in Ivory's Handwriting.

My Dear Waitstill—Rodman will take his pocket and leave it with you when he finds opportunity. It is not in any real sense a letter, so I am in no danger of incurring your father's displeasure. You will probably have heard new rumors concerning my father during the past few days, for Peter Morrill had been to Zealand, N. H., where he says letters have been received stating that my father died in Cortland, O., more than five years ago. I shall do what I can to substantiate this best report, as I have always done with all the previous ones, but I have little hope of securing reliable information at this distance and after this length of time. I do not know when I can ever start on a personal quest myself, for even if the money I could not leave home until Rodman is much older and fitted for greater responsibility. Oh, Waitstill, how you have helped my poor, dear mother! Would that I were free to tell you how I value your friendship! It is something more than mere friendship. What you are doing is like throwing a life line to a sinking man. Two or three times of late mother has forgotten to set out the supper things for my father. Her ten years' incessant waiting for him seems to have subsided a little, and in his place she watches for you. Ivory had written "watches for her daughter," but carefully erased the last two words. You come but seldom, but her heart feeds on the sight of you. What she needed, it seems, was the magical touch of youth and health and strength and sympathy, the qualities you possess in such great measure.

If I had proof of my father's death I think now perhaps that I might try to break it gently to my mother, as if it were fresh news, and see if possibly I might thus remove her principal affliction. You see now, do you not, how sane she is in many—indeed in most ways—how sweet and lovable, even how sensible?

To help you better to understand the influence that has robbed me of both father and mother and made me and mine the subject of town and tavern gossip for years, I have written for you just a sketch of the "Cochrane craze," the romantic story of a man who swayed the wills of his fellow creatures in a truly marvellous manner. Some local historians of his time will doubtless give him more space. My wish is to have you know something more of the circumstances that have made me a prisoner in life instead of a free man. But, prisoner as I am at the moment, I am sustained just now by a new courage. I read to my copy of David last night. "The best of weapons is the undaunted heart." This will help you, too, in your hard life, for yours is the most undaunted heart in all the world.

IVORY BOYNTON.

The chronicle of Jacob Cochrane's career in the little villages near the Saco river has no such interest for the general reader as it had for Waitstill Baxter. She hung upon every word that Ivory had written for her and read more clearly than ever before in the shadow that had followed him since early boyhood—the same shadow that had fallen across his mother's mind and left continual twilight there.

No one really knew, it seemed, why or from whence Jacob Cochrane had come to Edgewood. He simply appeared at the old tavern a stranger, with satchel in hand, to seek entertainment. Uncle Bart had often described this scene to Waitstill, for he was one of those sitting about the great open fire at the time. The man easily slipped into the group and soon took the lead in conversation, delighting all with his agreeable personality, his nimble tongue and graceful speech. At supper time the hostess and the rest of the family took their places at the long table, as was the custom, and he astonished them by his knowledge of our town history, but of village matters they had supposed unknown to any one.

When the stranger had finished his supper and returned to the barroom he had to pass through a long entry, and the landlady, whispering to her daughter, said:

"Beetey, you go up to the chamber closest and get the silver and bring it down. This man is afraid to sleep there, and I am afraid of him. He must be a fortune teller, and the Lord only knows what else!"

In going to the chamber the daughter had to pass through the barroom. As she was moving quietly through it, hoping to escape the notice of the newcomer, he turned in his chair and, looking her full in the face, suddenly said:

"Madam, you needn't touch your silver. I don't want it. I am a gentleman."

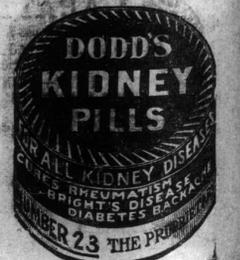

Whereupon the bewildered Betty scouted back to her mother and told her the strange guest was indeed a fortune teller.

Of Cochrane's initial appearance as a preacher Ivory had told Waitstill in their talk in the churchyard early in the summer. It was at a child's funeral that the new prophet created his sensation, and it was on that day that Aaron and Lois Boynton first came under his spell. The whole countryside had been just then wrought up to a state of religious excitement by revival meetings, and Cochrane gained the benefit of this definite preparation for his work. He claimed that all his sayings were from divine inspiration and that those who embraced his doctrine received direct communication from the Almighty. He disdained formal creeds and all manner of church organizations, declaring that sectarian names were marks of the beast and all church members to be in Babylon. He introduced reprobated, but symbolic, names from sectarian stains, and after some months advanced a proposition that his flock hold all things in common. He put a sudden end to the solemn "decoating out" and droning of psalm tunes and grafted on to his hands and whirling his daisy chain the progress of which the most hysterical converts or the most fully "Cochranized" would swoon upon the floor, or, in obeying their leader's instructions to "become as little children," would sometimes go through the most extraordinary and unmeaning antics.

It was not until he had converted hundreds to the new faith that he added more startling revelations to his gospel. He was in turn bold, mystical, eloquent, audacious, persuasive, apocalyptic, and even when his self-sufficiency and even when his self-sufficiency "communications from the heavens" controverted all that his hearers had formerly held to be his right, he still magnified or hypnotized them into an unwilling assent to his beliefs. There was finally a proclamation to the effect that marriage vows were to be annulled when advisable and that complete spiritual liberty was to follow—a liberty in which a new affinity might be sought and a spiritual union begun upon earth, as a union as nearly approximate to God's standards as faulty human beings could manage to attain.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—4.55 a.m. —The Paris correspondent of the Express thinks that there is a distinct possibility of a German attack by the extreme right of their army coming towards Paris from the south of Amiens.

The masses of the German armies seem not to have been seriously engaged thus far, he says. They came very close to Paris and are now being pushed back with great ease by the British army and all the allied forces toward the east, thus removing them from Paris and exposing them to the danger of running their heads into a prepared position.

THE DESTRUCTION OF MYSTIC BABYLON

"Babylon Is Fallen! Come Out Of Her, My People"

SIGNIFICANT NAME OF THE CITY

Tower of Babel Typical—Ancient Babylon—Typical of a Spiritual Babylon—Babylon, Mother and Daughters—Golden Cup In Her Hand—Wine of False Doctrine—Antitypical River Euphrates—Antitypical Waters Drying Up—"Hlee Out of Babylon."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Sept. 6.—The Photo-Drama of Creation is still being wonderfully used of the Lord to interest the public in Bible study.

Under the figure of "a woman clothed in purple and scarlet" the Mother System of Babylon long centuries ago "made all the nations drunk with her wine."

It is not necessary to suppose that every doctrine of the Papacy is wrong and intoxicating. The thought is, rather, that a stupefying potion was put into the wine already in the Cup.

The Protestant denominations were all born of the intoxicating wine, so now, in the hour of Mystic Babylon's fall, we may expect something to correspond to this—a spirit of boastfulness, of pride, of intolerance.

Each system professes to be the Bride of Christ, yet each knows that the marriage of the Lamb is to take place at the Second Coming of Christ.

It is not to be expected that either the Mother or the Daughters, who are still her daughters, will make any claim that she is a great City; that she is a great Kingdom; that she has a great wall of Divine salvation and protection.

In the Revelation Jesus prophetically pictured the greatness of this City, this spiritual Empire. It is essentially religious, although it includes the great Kingdoms of earth, which are styled Christendom.

As this great "city" includes the chief kingdoms of Europe, so under another figure Babylon, Papacy, is represented as a woman, in whose forehead is found the name "Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots."

We all remember the history of the ancient city of Babylon, with its most wonderful walls and its hanging gardens. We all remember the Babylon which flowed through its centre and which was supposed to protect it fully from the hazard of invasion.

Mystic Babylon, Christendom of our day, is a most masterly organization. Its walls are built of ignorance and superstition, whose great foundations were laid centuries ago.

It should be remembered in discussing this subject that the Scriptural language is figurative—that it does not signify that either the Church of Rome or her Protestant Daughters are immoral. The correct thought is this: Primarily the Church of Christ was a "virgin" company of persons, called out, separated from the world, its aims and its ambitions—called to be saints and joint-heirs with Christ in His Kingdom.

In the Revelation not merely is the name Babylon used long after the ancient city was so blotted out of existence that for centuries it was unknown, but the symbolic description includes also the River Euphrates. Of that great river we read: "The water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the East might be prepared." (16:12)

It is in full accord with this Divine prediction of what is yet to come that we hear cries of distress rising from all denominations, Catholic and Protestant, to the effect that the revenues of the churches are being "dried up," and this at a time when the world is larger in population and in wealth than ever before.

As then they were using the golden vessels of the Lord's wine, so now, in the hour of Mystic Babylon's fall, we may expect something to correspond to this—a spirit of boastfulness, of pride, of intolerance.

At this moment of their exuberance there appeared in Belshazzar's banquet-hall a band, who wrote words: "Mene, Tekel, Upharasin"—the days of your rule have been numbered by God and are fulfilled; you are weighed in the balances and found wanting; you are divided and given to the Medes and the Persians.

When foretelling the disaster upon Babylon the Prophets of Israel gave to God's people the message: "Flee out of Babylon; deliver every man his soul;—his life—and a terrible description, unless we view the matter from the standpoint already suggested—that the experiences of the ancient city were figurative and prophetic of the much more serious experience of Mystic Babylon, then were required to demonstrate that Mystic Babylon represents a great city, a city of which it is said: "Come Revelation, my people, that ye be partakers of her sins and that ye receive not of her plagues."

This call must be heard and heeded before the disaster comes; for it will come suddenly, as in an hour. Those who do not stand aloof will be involved in the disaster. And it is God's will that the truth be revealed, after seeing the truth respecting Babylon and her character, they are not enthusiastically opposed to her deceptions and intoxicating false doctrines.

Huge Loss of Life. Loss of life in the battles of the last two weeks have been the most appalling in the history of warfare. Of 6,000 men in two German regiments in Belgium, only 600 survived. All but 30 of 2,000 British soldiers were killed by German artillery before Nancy. The French have found 2,500 German dead and before Vitrimont 4,500.

Lesson XI.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 13, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxv, 1-13. Memory Verses, 1-4—Golden Text, Matt. xxv, 13—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Notwithstanding all His teaching and His many mighty works, the question of Isa. III, 1, still remained: "Who hath believed our report?" Many of the chief rulers believed on Him, but because of the Pharisees did not confess Him for fear of being put out of the synagogue, for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God (John xii, 42, 43).

Instead of admiring the magnificence of the temple, as His disciples desired Him to do, He said that the whole thing would be thrown down and not one stone be left upon another. As He sat upon the Mount of Olives against the temple Peter and James and John and Andrew asked Him privately of the end of the age and when these things would be (Matt. xxiv, 1-3; Mark xiii, 1-4; Luke xxi, 5-7).

It is in full accord with this Divine prediction of what is yet to come that we hear cries of distress rising from all denominations, Catholic and Protestant, to the effect that the revenues of the churches are being "dried up," and this at a time when the world is larger in population and in wealth than ever before.
