LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XV.

What subtle change had come over everything? Lady Iris Fayne was driving home through the same green lanes, along the same white roads, with the same grand range of hills rising to the west, and yet to her the world was changed. The sunshine seemed to have grown brighter and more golden, and the music of the birds struck her as it had never done before.

She had gone out that morning without fear or anxiety, and had met with a disagreeable adventure, which had so far frightened her that she had fainted for the first time in her life; but that adventure seemed to have happened long since—it was impossible to have imagined that it had occurred that morning. She could not forget her protector's beautiful dark eloquent eyes. Why did they haunt her? There must be a reason for it. Suddenly it struck her what it was.

In the library at Chandos, her favorite room, hung a picture that had been painted by one of England's greatest artists. Lord Caledon had seen it in the Academy, and had been so struck with it that he had purchased it and had it hung up in the library. It was a magnificent painting of Sir Lancelot, and underneath it were these words—

"A bow-shot from her bower-eaves,
He rode between the barley-sheaves;
The sun came dazling through the leaves,
And flamed upon the brazen greaves
Of bold Sir Lancelot."

The painting was as perfect as the poem—

"The gemmy bride glittered free,
Like to some branch of stars we see
Hung in the golden Galaxy."

But the artist's skill had been chiefly lavished on the face of Sir Lancelot, so dark, so proud, so handsome,

"His broad clear brow in sunlight glowed;
On burnished hooves his war-horse
trode;
From underneath his helmet flowed
His coal black curls as on he rode,
As he rode down to Camelot."

The splendid dark face had an expression of high courage, and the dark eyes, as they gazed upon Camelot, had no fear in them. Sir Lancelot looked indeed a hero.

Yes, that was what had struck her. The face of the knight in the picture, which had always been her ideal of manly beauty, was exactly like the face of Captain Allan Osburn; the resemblance was perfect. Captain Osburn might have sat as the artist's model; he had the same dark eloquent eyes and the same fearless look. How remarkable it was that the face of a stranger should resemble that of the knight in the picture!

She blushed a hot crimson blush as she remembered how she had looked at that picture and had fancied that, if ever she loved anyone, it would be a hero with a face like Sir Lancelot—dark, full of pride and dignity, with gleams of tenderness in the eyes and round the curved lips.

"But," she had said to herself,

"Where is such a face to be found?"
When she reached Chandos, she went first to her own room to collect her thoughts which had gone a little astray—so it seemed to her—and then, haunted still by the dark eyes, she went to see the picture. It was the first thing that attracted attention on entering the room; nearly every visitor went at once to it and began to praise it.

As Lady Iris drew nearer to the painting, it seemed to her as though the dark-piercing eyes smiled and a ray of light escaped from them. She went close to it and studied it long and intently; there was no mistake—it was no fancy of hers—there was a most wonderful resemblance. What true steadfast eyes they were, and how any woman might trust her love, life, and honor in such hands! As she stood watching the picture, looking as she did so as beautiful as a poet's dream, with her fair hair and lovely face, she could not help repeating to herself the remainder of the lines—

"From the bank and from the river
He flashed into the crystal mirror;
'Tisra Iltra,' by the river,
Sung Sir Lancelot."

She said to herself that she had not noticed one half the beauties of the picture before; then suddenly, as though she were compelled to do it, she repeated aloud the words—

"She left the web, she left the loom,
She made three paces through the room,
She saw the water-lily bloom,
She saw the helmet and the plume,
She looked down to Camelot."

"Out flew the web and floated wide,
The mirror cracked, from side to side;
'The curse is come upon me!' cried
The Lady of Shalott."

"What words—" The curse is upon me! cried the Lady of Shalott! "The curse! What does that mean?"

Lady Iris stopped to ask herself the question. What curse fell upon the lovely Lady of Shalott when she saw Sir Lancelot ride out between the barley-sheaves? She looked at his face—the web flew, the mirror cracked, and the curse fell upon her! It could be but one thing, and that was love. But how could love be a curse?

Lady Iris smiled at her own fanciful thoughts; there seemed to be some strange analogy between her case and that of the lady in the poem. She had looked at the face of the stranger, she had heard his name, his dark eyes had smiled once into hers—and here she was in the same mood with the Lady of Shalott; she had left her web to pace the room. Had the curse, fallen upon her? Love could never be a curse!

Then she laughed aloud at her whimsical fancies. All this had arisen because she had met a stranger with a face like that in her favorite picture—she, who had been wooed by some of the handsomest men in England and now hardly remembered their features. If ever by any chance she should see him again, if by any accident he should ever come to Chandos she would show him this picture, and ask him if he detected the resemblance. She looked with a gay glad smile into the dark pictured face.

"God-by, Sir Lancelot!" she cried, as she was quitting the room.

She went back to the drawing-room, and for the first time felt something like a void in her life. In the distance she heard sounds that jarred upon her ear—the voices of men and the laughter of women; for Chandos at that time was full of visitors. She felt no desire to join them, no great interest in any of them; she wondered why she had to fill up her life with such dull, tame friendships, why her time must be occupied with duties that had in them no great pleasure. There was a sense of loneliness even in the midst of her gaiety, a sudden longing for some one in particular, a sudden awakening to the fact that she was young and that her heart asked for love.

She fled from the voices and the laughter out into the quiet lime-grove, and, bending her flushed face over a lily, she laughed while the tears stood in her eyes.

"What has come to me?" she cried. "I believe, dreadful as it is, that I want a Lancelot of my own—not a Lancelot in a poem or a picture, but a living, breathing Lancelot. 'The curse is come upon me!' cried the Lady of Shalott. I shall begin to think that I am like her soon. My face burns, my heart beats wildly, I can interest myself in nothing, and every one seems commonplace and uninteresting. It is all your fault, Sir Lancelot—not mine!"

Those who admired and loved her noticed that there was a change in her. She laughed and talked and was as brilliant as usual; but every now and then a thoughtful look came over the radiant face, tender gleams stole into the proud eyes, and sweeter music into the gentle voice.

That evening, when the guests had retired and she was alone with the earl, she longed to tell him of her adventure; but if she did so, she reminded herself, he would certainly never allow her to ride through the lanes alone again. One question she did venture to ask him—

"Are there any strangers about in the neighborhood, papa, any visitors anywhere?"—and she had to hide her face lest he should see the flush that had risen to it.

"No, my dear, none that I have heard of," he replied; and she wondered a little.

Before she went to rest she paid one more visit to the picture. The moonlight rested upon it, and there seemed to be a gleam of tenderness in the dark noble face.

Getting Out of a Difficulty.

Talbot O'Farrell, the widely known Irish singer and entertainer was among the passengers who returned to London on the Canadian Pacific "Empress of Scotland" recently. He left Liverpool in February of this year and has visited Australia, Java, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai and many other places in the Far East.

Mr. O'Farrell, a man of striking personality, is six feet of real merriment and humor and is a typical, homely Irishman, having been born in County Wicklow. He recalls with merriment an occasion when in Greenock, Scotland, he was called upon to sing for a local club; "I had no songs with me," said O'Farrell, "so being Irish, went to the music store to buy a budget of Scotch songs, among them being 'Annie Laurie' and 'Kind is My Mary.' 'Annie Laurie' I knew fairly well so decided to inflict that first, and having done so, was called upon to give a number two. 'That's torn if I said to myself, but there was nothing for it and I found myself in the throes of 'Kind is My Mary,' getting as far as 'Kind, kind and gentle is she' when I could not remember another word. In my agony I happened to spot a burly Scotsman up in the gallery laughing, so I took advantage of the opportunity to remark, 'If you think I'm here to be laughed at you're wrong' and immediately walked off the platform." "What's the matter, what's the matter?" whispered the manager. "Oh, nothing, I only forgot the words."

THE DOOMED SEVEN.

My seven cousins used to drive before my cottage door, and they seemed very much alive, but now they are no more. James Henry's car was trimmed with brass, and blithely it would flee; he stepped too fiercely on the gas and would it round a tree, John drove a car with faulty brakes—he would not fix the same; we fragments up, with garden rakes, the fragments of his frame. Ned was a glad and smiling wight; where is that spring-aid now? He ran without his lamps one night, and bumped against a cow. Charles tried to cross a railway track before a rushing train; there were nine fractures in his back, his head was rent in twain. And Joseph swung around a curve at fifty miles an hour; his monument you will observe hard by you old gray tower. Adolphus lit a match to see if he had gasoline, and by the mere and on the sea he is no longer seen. Theophilus was prone to race with other speeding boats, and over his quiet resting place now graze the village goats. No more their chugging vans I hear, no more their joyous whoops; oh, other men have cousins dear, but mine have looped the loops.

Pointed Pars.
It is better to be lonely than bored. Babies grievances grow larger by nursing. Difficulties are things that show what men are. It's the blunt man who makes the cutting remark. Any woman will look before she leaps if there is a mirror handy. Smiles are the sunshine of life, the trowns the cloudy weather. Every dog has his day, but it's not every dog that knows when he's having it. The girl who admits another girl is pretty must be sure of being much prettier herself.

HENRY FORD WINS FIRST PLACE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12. The racing fishermen of the United States fleet, competing for selection of the challenger to meet the Canadian champion Bluenose, had it out to-day. The first instalment of the elimination contests and the Henry Ford of Gloucester won. For a time it appeared that the Elizabeth Howard, capt. Ben Pine, of New York, would show her heels to the boats of Gloucester, but a broken tree trunk which unhipped the Howard's mast, after she had led by six minutes to the first turn, caused her to withdraw to seek repairs. Official timed times were: Henry Ford, Gloucester, Captain Clayton Morris, 7:51.20; L. A. Dutton, Boston, Capt. Felix Hogan, 8:08.30; Elizabeth Howard, New York, Captain Ben Pine, 8:14.00. The Howard beat the other boats to the start by a minute's advantage over the Henry Ford, the last across the line. The other vessels followed the Howard to the first mark, the latter gaining three minutes on the Ford in the first five miles. The worst of the New York boat was sailing her own in the close haul of the second reach of the second leg when her mainmast tumbled, causing a mass of wreckage. Under this handicap she struggled along the second leg of the ten miles, but Henry Ford, drawing to the limit her sail spread, for the first time came up and slipped through the Howard's lee. Capt. Pine then gave up, deeming it best to run home for repairs that he might race again.

SECOND RACE POSTPONED.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12. Tomorrow's scheduled second race of the United States elimination series has been postponed until Saturday to allow the Elizabeth Howard to complete repairs to her mainmast.

"CITY OF HONOLULU" LOST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. All passengers, officers and crew of the burning steamer City of Honolulu, abandoned this morning, are safe, according to wireless advices from the freight steamer West Faralon. The ship carried seventy-two passengers, and 145 officers and crew. The City of Honolulu, originally the German passenger liner Friedreich de Grosse, was built at Stettin in 1896, and was used in trans-Atlantic travel until 1914 when she was interned in the United States harbour. When the United States entered the war, she was renamed the Huron and used as a transport conveying troops.

Your Testing-Time.

When failure stares you in the face, with cold and steely eyes, When others pass you in the race, and others bag the prize, When bitter things are said of you, to ruin your renown, By those who leap ahead of you, and hit you when you're down, When all the joys of yesternight seem fled for evermore, And that inconstant friend, Delight, has turned and barred the door, When Life's no longer like a song, and all its sunshine dies, And when the selfish and the strong still seem to tyrannize, When first they take away your friends, and then your fortune, too; When all Ambition's aims and ends have vanished from your view, When every high endeavour fails, and men misunderstand, And one wide mist of gloom prevails to hide the Promised Land, When storms contend around your head, and you must fight alone; When all your being craves for bread, and life hands out a stone; When hopes are slaughtered in their prime and dreams have not come true, THIS, lad, is your testing-time. Stand firm; its up to you! They have stabbed you to your very soul, they've drugged the cup you drank, And broken is the golden bowl, and Life's a dreary blank. So—square your shoulders, lift your eyes, 'tis not without a plan, For out of all these things arise the making of a Man.

The Discovery of America.

OCTOBER 12, 1492. Christopher Columbus sailed from the Canary Islands on a westward course on September 8, 1492. His fleet comprising the Santa Maria, Pinta and Nina, the whole expedition including only one hundred and twenty men, who were without exception reduced to a state of terror by the variations of the magnetic needle of the Compass. However the master spirit of the chief dominated the whole crew, and on October 12, 1492, land was sighted—an island of the Bahama group, and named by Columbus San Salvador, now known as Watling Island. San Salvador (Saint or Holy Saviour) is the name of the day in the ecclesiastical calendar, hence the appellation bestowed by Columbus on his landfall.

Present Day Prices in Germany.

BERLIN—About the only thing that can be bought in Germany to-day for one mark is a wire nail. "Under the present quality standards of production," remarks a native pessimist, "the nail may or may not be strong enough to hang one's self on after he has looked over the increases in prices." Before the war a thousand marks would pay for twenty suits of clothes. To-day that sum will purchase a vest. A good piano could be bought for 900 marks, a sum now required for a pair of boy's shoes. Five hundred pre-war marks sufficed to build a small house, while now it scarcely foots the bills for two pairs of women's woolen stockings. Two pounds of butter can be found on the market to-day for 400 marks, or the pre-war price of a milk cow. One cannot get a spool of thread to-day for the former price of a sewing machine. Fifty marks once bought a lady's silk dress; now it will buy a cheap handkerchief. There was a time, some years ago, when one could get a bottle of champagne for what it costs now to ride on the subway. Two cigars are worth what a hundred of the same quality cost in 1914. To follow the daily rise in prices at the present time, the Berlin newspaper reader must pay six marks for a copy of his favourite journal. In the "good old days" the paper cost him sixty times less, or ten pennings. A shopkeeper in Darmstadt displays a five dollar bill in his window attached to the following notice: "For this note foreigners formerly obtained goods to the value of 26.25 marks; now they get wares worth 7,000 marks for it. Therefore I sell only to Germans."

Rich in Cream to the last drop

Every ounce in every can of Pet Milk is of uniform richness—no separation, no thin milk in the bottom. The last drop is as full of cream as the first.

Undiluted, Pet Milk is fine as cream. Diluted, one pint of Pet equals two pints of very rich milk or three pints of ordinary cooking milk.

Pet Milk perfectly meets the daily need for both milk and cream. It is economical and convenient. Ask for free copy of Pet Recipe Book. The Helvetia Company (Originators of the Evaporated Milk Industry) General Offices, St. Louis, Mo.

THE SAD FATE OF JOHNNY BURKE

It was a delight to sit in the blue-painted galley by the rusted range—shrieking nights with the ice devils whacking away at the ship's ribs—and listen to a jovial songster named Tom Pillyards. To strange-minored, droning tunes with the long-drawn notes here or there, he used to chant the melancholy episodes of many a wreck and drowning: The native ponies, by the way, are mostly lugubrious, and betwixt those of a race constantly bereaved by the Atlantic. Here's a good example:

It's a sad lamentation, de troot' you shall hear:
Been of a you' in de 'tes of 'is bloom,
'E 'as lost 'is sweet life in a watery tomb.
'E was not yet married, ner orvis (harvest) ner time,
Ner riches ner orvis could alter 'is mind.
Till crool sad misfortune, which caused 'im to sleep
On a cold bed of sand where de water run deep.
May curse on you, Uskan, an' ahl of your bress (breed)!
You would not help young Johnny in de time of 'is need.
You 'ave 'im to roll an' to tumble in de deep.

As we were a-walkin' in fear (fear) Courage Bay,
To view dose fine flowers, how dey ahl faith (faith) away,
Dere birds dey 'ave deir singin' an' de flowers dey do say,
While young Johnny lies drowned in fear Courage Bay.

Dere's de day of 'is funeral, 'is true de love came here,
Ahl dressed in rich robes an' her scarlet so fair,
Fer to view 'is dead body goin' down to de grave,
As a due to you, young Johnny, an' dey ahl took relief.

Dere's 'is friends an' relations lamentin' in de bay,
Likewise 'is tinder mudder, lamentin' fer 'er,
De lost of 'er dear son, widout spoth er stain,
Is de flower of 'er fam-bi-ly,
Johnny Burke was 'is name!

Then there was Willy March beginnin' to moan:

De home of 'is childhood, in Northern Bay,
'E quit it fer pleasure, much more dan fer pay,
On de ice fields 'e ventured, most youthful an' brave,
Whereon 'e sought death, but 'is life could not save. . . .

Poor Willy March was drowned too,
So are almost all de heroes of these Newfoundland ballads, Uncle Lukey's boat, The Bonavista Sigare, and Come On Down, Marine! are prime favourites; likewise Betsy Brennan's Blue Hen:

Good People attention to what I will mention
Of a little Blue Hen dat I bought in de fall.

Some villyun, 'e stole 'er to sharpen
A low dirty scoundrel wid plenty of gall!
Dis hen, I did pride 'er, though often she moulted 'er (eyes),
De universe round I would roam fer 'er, then,
But some wicked hobbage (savage), to grease 'is white cabbage,
Run off wid me dear little beautiful hen!

And so on, and so forth. There's no end to the Blue Hen; nor is there any end to the songs—but enough!

Some day a literary archaeologist will garner all 'is tidbits into print and preserve it before it perishes. What a treasure!

Among the sealers certain figures loom gigantic. Such a one is Cap'n Arthur Jackman, dead but never forgotten. Long before I reached Newfoundland, on the steamer from New York I began hearing about Jackman's incredible exploits. Many people in St. John's told me about him. And at the ice sealers were constantly recalling bits from the Jackman legend. Jackman seems almost a national hero.

It was Jackman, most famous of seal killers, who once, when he had an infected thumb called for a hatchet and calmly chopped that thumb off, "standin' dere on de ship's bridge, sir, barehanded and in a green split-tail coat." It was Jackman who once knocked a man down into the hold, jumped after him, flailed him around, whereupon the man sank all his teeth in Jackman's leg and went raving crazy.

The sealers tell you how Jackman was never drunk at sea or sober on land; how he used to trick all the other sealing captains and clean up the patch before they could reach it; how, one time, though short of coal himself, he dumped twenty tons on the ice for a rival captain to pick up; how another time, when his funnel was ripped off by a blizzard, he built a wooden tunnel and carried on to success.

"Toughest man in de world, sir, but inside of him was a real man; Seven foot high, he was, wid a hand like a bucket. Big-boned, sir, 'an hard as de devil's 'id. Only one man ever licked 'im—that was a Scotch engineer 'e locked into de cabin to give a beat-in' to. De engineer hammered 'im stiff, 'an Jackman loved 'im fer it."

"Honest as de sun he was, an' true as steel! He had prayers every night, sir, an' 'is he had a calendar printed without no Sunday on 'em, at ahl, so dere wouldn't be no Sunday's aboard."

He'd put de Sunday men on de ice, an' keep 'em dere all day.
"Very polite he could be too. One time he says to a man he was fightin' wid, 'Please don't come a-nigh me or I'll have to split you wid dis hatchet!'"
Oh, Jackman was 'id of 'em ahl. He made up to seven thousand dollars a year—fabulous wealth, for Newfoundland—'an' died clean broke. Gave every cent away, he did. His funeral procession was de laagest ever seen in St. John's. Oh, dere never was nary un like Cap'n Jackman!"
The Jackman epic is interminable. Jackman is by way of becoming a Newfoundland solar myth.

PICTURES NOT YET PAINTED.

The reference to Sunday men requires explanation. Before the Sabbath law went into effect certain men refused to kill seals on Sunday, and these were Sunday men. To-day, seal killing is taboo on Sunday. One day in seven no drop of blood must be spilled. Even though the ships toil through ice and storm for six days, finding nothing, and then on Sunday run into a wondrous spot of fat, the seals are safe. By Monday they may be all gone again; no matter. The law holds like iron.

The rest of the day is observed by merely towing in sculps—often over miles of rough ice—by talking down, shifting coal, bumping ballast, and in general doing harder work than would kill the average American. Saturday night there's a general clean-up, that means little more than a shave. A rare sight, that is, by the smoky light of lanterns in the castles, the "tween-decks and the tungoon. The preacher—every ship carries one—shaves many. He strops his razor deftly on the leg of his Esquimaux skin boot, lathers off terrible stubble, while the men, seated on their "blue sea" chests, hold a tiny mirror and squint at themselves with approving eye. Just the shave suffices. The rest of the person does not matter. That clean sweep of the chin, letting the ruddy skin glow through the black is startling.

Ah, we have to be able to paint some color on canvas than a sealing vessel has to offer. I feel irritated that painters flock to Provincetown or Gloucester and waste pigment on foolish little dories, lobster traps and fish sheds, or that Winslow Homer should have achieved fame with the Banks codders and skippers, when the North is glowing, burning with scenes that utterly defy words, that simply ache to be painted.

One of these days some painter will brave the ice fields and will leap to instant fame by catching a tinge of yellow in the night far across what the sealers have to offer. But note well, he must carry buckets of red paint and must know how to slap it on thick. He must know how to limn black interiors, where lamp gleams hint at coal-faced, crimson-handed men. He must catch the play of grotesque shadows, the drift of the pipe smoke, the glint of hold eyes, the flash of teeth, the atmosphere of lurking tragedy, the mystery and vagueness, the elemental, gorgeous barbarism of it all.

It must interpret the spirit as well as the letter. The North is waiting for its all-revealing genius. Who will he be?

THE SIMPLE CHURCH SERVICE.

One of the finest scenes, I think, is worship in the ice; the church service of these simple, devoutly pious men. Something profoundly touching stirs your heart as you stand on the reeking deck where gel dust and seal oil ooze up from between the rough planks; and out of the dim-glowing forward companion hear full-throated hymns—There is an Anchor Kept for the Soul, or Nearer my God to Thee, or In the night far across vast white gloom. The ship is less in the ice, her engines muted services. She lies there, a ghost in a world of ghostliness; or, like a beak with wings and rig agleeting, she under the white blaze of a moon, the hard gleam of stars such as know not here. And from her deck the voices of men ascend in prayer, in those far places of frozen world.

It is a vision unforgettable to come down into the tween-decks, to see securely in a corner on a sea of ice to watch these Vikings of the North at worship. But yesterday they were gory butchers. This night they bow with sincerity that thrills the Power they feel very near; through the hatch the pole stars peer, and not far off the stars thunders all along a drifting sea. Dim-seen, hazy, colking, besting, sea boots, gaffs, knives, tools. On smoky beams stand pots and pans, the crude ware from which the men feed in gangs, huddled about chests. Tin lamps on stanchions yellow blotches in the darkness, lighting on floors, boxes, bunks, the men listen with profound attention, the reading, painfully halting, at Word.

Now they all stand, and with vigor join in I Need Thee O Hour, led by preacher Levi Butt, whose face is a crimson-handled stanzas by stanza. None sing all carry the air. The very timber green-heart oak quiver with the tenacity of their fervor. With stirring quivers and quick up the hymn bursts forth. One voice dominates the rest; but it comes from out of what cannot tell, black corner, you cannot tell, bogs, the cracked, and little things red light on uncouth sea. Yes, this should be painted, truth all the world to see.

To be continued. A striking frock features a black velvet panel with bright lining at hipband, and deep armholes sleeves of black georgette.

Bazaar Closes.

CATHEDRAL SALE WAS GREAT SUCCESS.

The two days Bazaar organized by the Ladies of the Cathedral Parish, closed last night when Mr. Reg Dowling auctioned the unsold goods which fetched excellent prices. The bazaar was the most successful that the organization has ever held. The second session of the sale opened at 2 p.m. yesterday and there was a constant flow of visitors throughout the day. Another entertainment similar to Wednesday's in which Mrs. H. Outerbridge presided another triumph, entertained the visitors. The C.L.B. Band was present and discoursed sweet music throughout the evening. Viewed from the promenade the aspect of the floor was very pretty, the multi-colored cushions, flags, and ribbons harmonized perfectly with the decorations of the stalls.

The stallholders were:—China, Ice Cream and Grabs, Miss Stick; Fancy Goods, Mrs. Taylor; (Pantry & Co., Mrs. R. Hayward, Girls' Club; Vegetable, Mrs. G. The Great Gale of 13th October, 1885.

A Record of Losses.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

During the past century our fishermen on the coast of Labrador have been subjected to many trying adventures and many sad disasters, and in looking up old records I find that the terrible gale of the 13th October, 1885, was one of the most destructive in our country's history. Much has been written about the great gale of the 8th October, 1867, when our famous sealingsmaster, the late Capt. Wm. Jackman, proved himself such a hero, but very little has been written of the great gale of 1885. Among the many vessels lost in the gale of 1885, was the famous brig, Terra Nova, Capt. John Kehoe. She was totally lost, at Indian Tickle. The Terra Nova was formerly the barque Rothesay, built by Michael Kearney, and launched at Harbor Grace on January 21st, 1852. She was built three years before the idea, which was launched on January 30th, 1855. The Ida was built on the site, where the General Post Office now stands. The Rothesay was built at the junction of Victoria and Water Streets, Harbor Grace, and like the Ida, in St. John's, was launched across Water Street into the waters of the harbor. The Rothesay was acknowledged to be "Kearney's chief oeuvre. Judging from the following list, it would appear that the loss of life and property in 1885 exceeds that of any other recorded disaster on the coast of Labrador. The following list, which I have no reason to doubt as being correct, will give a good idea as to the number of vessels lost, damaged or driven ashore, as well as the number of our countrymen, women and children, who lost their lives during the great storm:—

THE GALE OF JUNE 7th.
It would appear from the old diary in my possession that the year 1885 was a memorable year in the annals of Newfoundland history, because the destruction to property was not confined to the great gale of 13th October of that year. I find that on Sunday, June 7th, 1885, the wind which previously had been blowing smartly from the North East, and everything exposed seemed to feel the effects of the gale. Not since the disastrous hurricane of September, 1845 was there anything to equal the gale of the above date. The banking schooner Mary Jane, belonging to Mr. Power of Odeon, Pilepoint Bay, Capt. John Connor, lost 2 doreys, and the men, The A. K. Walters, P. L. Whitten, I. W. Roberts, suffered heavily. At St. Mary's 12 boats were lost and 5 boats at Bonavista, and the barquentine Christabel, Capt. Olson, owned by Balne Johnston & Co., lying in an anchor at Bonavista, had to have her masts cut away to save the ship from drifting ashore. One of the crew named Douglas was drowned. The banker A. H. C. Capt. Murphy, owned by James Vincombe of St. John's, became a total wreck off Mobile-crew saved. The schooners Ida May, Sunburst, Minnie, First Trial, Mary and another from Goose Bay belonging to Goodfellow were wrecked. Bird Island schooners suffered great damage; also Catalina and Green Bay crafts bound to Twillingate with cargoes. The Mary belonging to Richard Fowlow, a schooner of 62 tons, was the greatest loss in Trinity. While on shore the gale was from the North East. On Whale's Deep, Grand Banks, the wind blew North North West, and on the Flemish Cap, the Eastern end of the Banks, it blew East North East. Part out to sea it blew a gale of North East. It was a hurricane long remembered by the fishermen.

"But the most pathetic incident of all occurred during the great gale of October 13th, 1885, at the White Bear Islands, Labrador, when the topsail schooner Release, Capt. Hayden, went ashore and 25 lives were lost. In fact it could be written to read like a romance, and is undoubtedly one of the most pitiful stories I have ever heard. The story in brief is as follows:—Matthew Kelloway, of Salmon Cove, Bay de Verde, was one of the fishermen on board the Release, and had a shipped girl to look after the household duties for his crew during the fishing season on Labrador. When the storm came on Kelloway spoke to Capt. Richd. Hayden, and suggested that as there was every indication of a hurricane it would be prudent to get a strong hawser in case the anchors and chains would part. He was of opinion that the chain would be the first to part, and then there would be nothing to check the ship, and swing her into the little cove where they would have a chance for their lives. Captain Hayden was a most experienced master, and was not adverse to listening to advice, more especially as it was coming from a man thoroughly versed in nautical affairs, and who, during many years on the Labrador coast, had many trying adventures and hairbreadth escapes. Orders were then given to cut the spare out of the ship, which was done as quickly as possible. The girl who was in the employ of Kelloway called him down to her bedside, and said with tears in her eyes: "Shipper, if you save your own life, will you promise to save mine?" Kelloway, with the spirit of a true Newfoundland hero, inured to hardship and danger, fearless and calm in all emergencies replied: "Yes, if my life is saved, so shall yours be, or it will not be my fault." And shortly after the long-looked-for and terrible moment arrived when the chains parted and the ship struck the rocks. Nearly all hands were on deck, and Kelloway rushed up the companion, seized the girl by the hand, and the two of them jumped together in the raging sea. They were driven by the sea over a neck of land into a salt water pool. He picked up his companion in an unconscious state, never for a moment doubting that it was his poor servant girl, and started in the dark for the Labrador hut, and it was only then, upon striking a light, that Kelloway was astounded to find that the girl he had rescued was not his own domestic servant, but an entire stranger to him. Many and many a time, as brave Kelloway told the story, did the tears stream down his weather-beaten cheeks depicting the unhappy state of his mind over the unfortunate occurrence which prevented him from keeping his promise and saving the life of the poor girl. He had pledged his word—he had performed all that a brave man could do to carry out his promise, and it may be that the stolid girl overheard that promise and took the place of the domestic thus having her life saved at the sacrifice of the other, and causing life-long regret to the brave fellow who risked his life to fulfill his pledged word. Such acts of heroism should live forever in the annals of our country and I could relate many such, both at home on Labrador and in foreign countries; in fact, I have related scores of them in the Telegram and elsewhere during the past half a century. The Release was built by old Mr. Warren at Harbor Grace, and was noted as one of the smartest vessels in our trade—especially in her early days when commanded by Capt. William Kehoe. Her passengers to and from West Indies, in which trade she was employed for several years, have seldom been equalled, and certainly have never been beaten. I think I am safe in saying that she made the run to Barbados, discharged, loaded molasses and was back to port in a month.

Viewed With Apprehension.

The Turkish situation is viewed with much more apprehension in Washington and United States, generally, than might be imagined, even though a clash between the Kemalists and British would not involve America. It is recognized, however, that if open war should break out between the forces named, there are all kinds of dangerous possibilities in it, one being that Russia will be inevitably drawn in, and that the struggle may assume the proportions of another world war. It has been well understood for a long time, in the American Capital that the Russian Army organized by Trotsky is a formidable force, and not so very long ago a high authority declared that its strength was a million and a half of men. While these figures may be somewhat inflated, there is no doubt of the power of the Reds, and none can say with any degree of certainty that this army might not be aligned with the Turks. Should such a war break out, and Canada send forces to aid Imperial troops, there will be a rush of U. S. Army men many of them veterans of the late war, to volunteer for service with the Canadians. Already much talk of this nature is heard throughout United States, and Canada has only to give the sign that she would welcome, or not turn down United States volunteers, and they will enlist by thousands. Such a proceeding would naturally have its tendency to involve the Republic. The dispatch of a strong squadron of U.S. destroyers to the Near East clearly indicates that the situation is looked upon with much concern. If, therefore, by any chance the threatened trouble between Great Britain and the Turks should take on the form of an alignment, in which Russia's Army supports Kemal Pasha, and the Islamic army seems likely to be reestablished in South Eastern Europe, perhaps with the support also of Germany, United States would find the position to be extremely embarrassing. "In theory," says Canadian Press, "it would be easy to stand by and preserve strict neutrality, in fact the pressure on Washington to go in would be tremendous."

The Archbishop Sacreotal Silver Jubilee.

CATHOLIC LADY MAKE PRESENTATION.

Last evening after prayers at the R. C. Cathedral, the Catholic Citizens Committee presented his Grace Archbishop Roche with an address and purse in commemoration of his Sacreotal Silver Jubilee. The presentation was made in the K. of C. Memorial School, the Auditorium being filled with a large gathering, which included the officers of the various Catholic organizations and the priests of the Archdiocese. Hon. J. D. Ryan, K.C., S.G., Chairman of the Committee, presided, and, explaining the object of the gathering, called upon Mr. J. C. Pippy as Secretary to read the following address:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE:

The happy occasion of the 25th anniversary of Your Grace's ordination to the Priesthood, together with our high appreciation of Your Grace's qualities and achievements, move us, the Catholic lady of this City, to approach you to-day with congratulations upon your attainment of your Silver Jubilee and with a renewal of those assurances of loyalty and esteem with which we greeted you upon your appointment to the Metropolitan See of St. John's.

It is seldom that such high dignity is reached by one so young in years. It is correspondingly uncommon for a Prelate of such degree as that attained by Your Grace to have years of opportunity to prove the wisdom of the choice for this exalted office, ere you had accomplished the second decade of your priesthood.

The burdens and responsibilities of the Archdiocese have been many and onerous, but have been cheerfully and masterfully taken up by Your Grace and in a manner which compels all the greater our admiration, because we realize that Your Grace's health has not at all times been good. In spite, however, of the magnitude of your task and of the obstacles that have intervened to make it more difficult, we, Catholics, realize and appreciate the ability and energy which have characterized Your Grace's conduct of the affairs of the Archdiocese, and at all times and under all circumstances Your Grace has evidenced a patient, cheerful, and practical mind adorned with rare wisdom, eloquence and learning.

Barely seven years have elapsed since Your Grace was placed upon the Archiepiscopal Throne—seven years of trouble and trial during which the upheaval and disruption caused by the Great War and its aftermath, has affected every community in the civilized world, not excepting our own. Notwithstanding the abnormal conditions that have obtained during Your Grace's period of office, the Church in the Archdiocese of St. John's has, under your skillful guidance made marked progress. New buildings for religious, educational and philanthropic purposes have been raised, not only in this city of St. John's, but in many other places outside. Large and unwieldy parishes have been re-arranged and the ordination of some twenty young and zealous priests has made possible a more thorough ministrations of the spiritual wants of our people. The increased number of young ladies who have adopted the religious life has enabled the good work carried on by the Saintly Sisters of the several religious orders to be greatly extended.

St. Joseph's Church and Schools, the completion of St. Bride's College at Littledale, additions to Cathedral Square and Military Road Convents, the Knights of Columbus Memorial School, the new schools at St. Patrick's, the repairs to the Cathedral and the restoration of the Palace, are but part of the programme of which your Grace may be well proud, and reviewing so much of it as has already been accomplished, we feel that we have here ample justification for our hope and confidence that Your Grace will be able to successfully complete the great many works which have yet to be performed.

In tendering to Your Grace our very genuine and sincere congratulations upon the attainment of your Silver Jubilee, we beg to request that Your Grace will be pleased to accept this accompanying gift, together with our warmest expressions of loyalty and good wishes.

We pray also that Your Grace's health may continue to improve and that you may be spared for many years to preside over the Archdiocese of St. John's and to guide its destinies. On behalf of the Catholic citizens of St. John's:

J. D. RYAN, Chairman. C. W. RYAN, Treasurer. J. C. PIPPY, Secretary.

Following the reading of the address cheers were given for his Grace and Treasurer Charles Ryan passed over the check which was for a substantial amount. His Grace in thanking the Lady for their cordial greetings and splendid gift on the 25th anniversary of his ordination, said if he had his own choice the event would have passed quietly, but as the congregation wished to mark the occasion in a special manner, he felt that he could not but submerge his own feelings. Norway Confiscates British Cutter Carrying Liquor.

CHRISTIANIA—The Norwegian government, under laws recently enacted, may now seize a vessel of less than 100 tons found within the common territorial frontier carrying liquor in excess of the actual requirements of those on board. Application was made a short time ago—in the case of the motor boat cutter "Lisbeth" of Cuxhaven, England. This boat was stopped off Fisser by the custom authorities and found to have over 300 quarts of liquor on board. The captain was fined, and the cutter and her cargo of spirits confiscated.

British Landowners Warned to Mend Their Ways. LONDON—The big landowners of England have been told in substance that as a class they have made a bad mess of the land business and that if they did not do better in the future the country would take the land from them and turn them adrift. The speaker was Lord Bledisloe, himself a landowner who, during the war, helped the government manage the food supplies of the country. The occasion was an address before the British Association. "The British agricultural landowner to-day is on his trial," Lord Bledisloe asserted. "Unless he justifies himself, as such, the nationalization of the Emergency Exits in St. John's Theatres.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—My attention has been drawn to a letter appearing in Wednesday's issue of the Evening Telegram under heading of "Emergency Exits" and signed "Parent." The letter deals with a matter of public importance, but as it refers directly to Moving Picture Theatres, and as I manage the St. Patrick's Nickel, the Casino and Crescent Theatres I want to make a statement as to these and to place the facts definitely before the public.

I do this because in his letter "Parent" states that it was lucky that a recent fire took place near the Majestic Theatre rather than any other, thereby implying that the other theatres were more dangerous in the event of fire to those who patronized them. It is needless for me to say that I have no desire whatever to say anything as to the Majestic Theatre, as I have no interest in it, and merely refer to it because the writer of the letter thought it well to draw attention to the theatre in the manner that I have described.

I have had very considerable experience in the management of theatres and in all matters bearing upon same, and in particular with the protection and care of those who attend theatres, and I have no hesitation whatever in saying that the Nickel Theatre at St. Patrick's Hall is as safe from fire and the evils resulting therefrom as is possible. The Hall can accommodate at the most seven hundred and fifty (750) people, the greater number of whom are on the main floor. There are altogether six exits in different directions and it is an easy matter for theatre-goers, even when the Hall is filled, to make an orderly exit and have the Hall empty in a very little space of time.

With reference to the Casino Theatre: This has been for very many years a popular hall. There are four doors on the side and one in the rear by which people can leave the Hall. The boiler to which reference is made in "Parent's" letter is always very carefully attended to when a performance is in progress. The Crescent Theatre can be emptied in an exceedingly short space of time and I consider that there is absolutely no risk to theatre-goers who patronize this building. They can file down the aisles directly to the exits and there is little possibility of a panic leading to congestion at the entrance.

It must be borne in mind that a panic is a panic and that if people become excited and a sufficient number rush to one exit there is bound to be confusion, no matter how big or small a hall may be. In the event of a fire if there are twenty-five exits and there is a panic there is bound to be some congestion at one of the exits. The whole question comes down to the ability of theatre-goers to keep their heads and to keep cool. Notwithstanding what "Parent" has said in his letter I am fully convinced that anyone of the three theatres managed by me could have been emptied as promptly and as easily as was the theatre to which he refers in his letter.

I feel sure I can speak for all theatre managers in the city when I say that they are the parties who are most concerned in this matter. If there is a panic at any time and loss of life results it will be to them that the general public will look for proper explanation, and it is to them that theatre-goers look for protection. For many years letters such as "Parent" has written have appeared at different times in the Press. As I have already said nobody can object to precautions being taken, but I resent very strongly the implication that the theatres managed by me are less safe to the general public than any other theatre in the city. Thanking you Mr. Editor for your space.

Yours truly,
J. P. KIRBY.

Fox Star Scores Hit in Photoplay.

Dustin Farnum scored a very positive hit at the Majestic Theatre last night in "The Primal Law," a William Fox photoplay which provides the popular star with splendid opportunities to appear at his best.

The thrilling story, filled with nerve fighting and fast action, begins with the delightful portrayal of a friendship between a big, strong man and a sentimental small boy. It is because the interests of the boy are attacked by a gang of murderous plotters that much of the fighting later occurs.

The entry of a charming girl from the East gives promise of a love theme, and this develops under difficulties in the midst of exciting events. The story holds the attention and the interest throughout, and is one of the most entertaining that has been seen here.

The play is ably supported by Mary Thurman, Harry Dunkinson, Philo McCullough, Mme. Marston, Frankie Lee and others. The work of directing the production has been performed effectively by Bernard Durning.

EXCESSIVE SMOKING HARMFUL TO WOMEN.

The enormous increase of cigarette smoking among women, says the medical correspondent of the London Times, calls for some protest by the medical profession. He declares the habit in many instances is passing beyond a pleasure and becoming a vice. "The absorption of nicotine, which is the danger element in the matter," the correspondent proceeds, "produces a condition of nervous distress that is frequently painful to observe. From this proceed palpitations and exhaustion, and outbursts of emotion. Woman's delicate nervous organism was certainly not intended to endure large doses of this poison. Her functions as a mother cannot but be interfered with when she indulges in it to excess." It is the habit of many English women and girls to smoke cigarettes in public, and not a few may be seen in restaurants and hotels, smoking long, slender pipes. Women's organizations and social improvement societies have begun a crusade against this "inelegant and unwomanly practice."

CREEDS.

I care not what his creed may be
Nor what his caste or clan,
He still shall me a friend to me
If he but play the man.

No barrier of creed shall sting
The honest man who comes to bring
His friendship to my door.

If he be gentle, brave and true,
And stand with head erect,
This much he is entitled to,
My friendship and respect.

And if he is ill-mannered here,
Selfish and speak the lie,
I shall not hold his conscience clear
Because he prays as I.

I shall not bother with the shame
Of any sinful deed,
Or seek to gloss a tarnished name
With lustre of a creed.

I shall not ask his form of prayer
Nor what his church may be,
The good man, kind and just and fair,
Shall find a friend in me.

As an illustration of the great hold that the St. Leger has upon the entire population of the neighborhood for many miles around, there is a well authenticated story told of an old-

Household Notes.

Desserts such as tapioca, junket, baked apple, apple sauce, cornstarch or sage pudding, prune pulp or stewed apricots may be fed to most babies in their second year.

If a child has grown tired of milk and complains that it is distasteful to him, let him sip it through a straw or a stick of macaroni. The novelty often solves the problem.

Colored candle-wax stains can be removed from table linens, etc., with a warm iron and blotting paper. When the wax is absorbed use de-natured alcohol to remove the color.

Many women dislike to grass horse-radish, but if a wet towel is placed over meat chopper so that it will not interfere with handle the process will not be so painful.

If hardwood is cut into cubes, excellent play blocks may be made by pasting on colored pictures of letters of the alphabet. Finish with a coat of varnish that is sure to dry hard.

To store celery for winter set up right closely in boxes in which is enough sand to cover roots well. A ventilation section should be left every four feet. Keep moist by watering.

If a child has no playroom and must keep his toys in the living room, give him the tray of a trunk, so that he may gather them up and slide tray under living-room couch when tired of playing.

The Story of St. Leger.

The St. Leger, one of England's classic races, dates back to 1774, when it was founded by one Colonel St. Leger, who lived at Park Hill, a short distance from Doncaster. Thus it is an older race than either the Oaks or the Derby, and, as any Yorkshireman will inform you, of infinitely greater importance. It was originally a sweepstake for three-year-olds, over a distance of two miles, and the first winner was a horse owned by Lord Rockingham, named Samson. Subsequently the course was shortened to a little over one mile six furlongs, and at this it has remained ever since.

Looking back over the lengthy history of this race, one notices that the names of many of the most famous horses in the history of the British turf are inscribed among its winners. Among those who have carried off the "Triple Crown" of the racing world, i.e., the Two Thousand Guineas, the Derby, and the St. Leger, are such "giants of the turf" as West Australian (1853), Gladiator (1865), Stockwell (1866), Ormonde (1866), Common (1891), Diamond Jubilee (1900), and Rock Sand (1903). This was the last occasion upon which the "Triple Crown" was won, and is a feat that cannot be repeated this year.

It is worthy of note that though King Edward won the Derby three times—with Persimmon, Diamond Jubilee, and Mincor—he only triumphed twice in the St. Leger, the last-named finishing fifth in the great Yorkshire race. Doncaster has, however, never been a very happy hunting ground for horses carrying the royal colors, since, in addition to the annoyance of the careful housewife, and although there are plenty of butter coolers on sale the really good kind are expensive. Why not, then, make your own?

It is quite simple. All you need is a good-sized flower pot and a large saucer.

Pour a little water into the saucer and stand the plate with the butter inside. Now invert the pot over the whole, so that its rim rests in the water, close the hole at the top with a cork and your butter cooler is complete.

Owing to the porous nature of the pot the water in the saucer is soaked up by it slowly, so that it is constantly damp, and your butter is kept beautifully cool, even in the hottest weather.

It is well to have two flower-pots, so that they can be changed every two or three days and scoured out. The saucer needs refilling at intervals, and every morning the water that remains in it should be thrown away and a fresh lot poured in.

Stand your home-made butter cooler in a shady position in the larder, and, whenever possible, on a stone or cement floor; or, failing this, on a shelf where there is a free current of air.

Keep the Butter Hard.

During the hot weather butter is very apt to "run" much to the annoyance of the careful housewife, and although there are plenty of butter coolers on sale the really good kind are expensive. Why not, then, make your own?

Had Him Both Ways.

Sir Edward Sullivan tells a good story of two farmers in the west of Ireland who had a dispute over some land. The case came to the High Court.

The presiding judge tried to throw oil on the troubled waters, and addressing the plaintiff when in witness box, he said:—

"This is a trivial case. Why not settle it? You men have got to be neighbours all your lives. Now I suppose that apart from this trespass, you consider the defendant a very decent man?"

The plaintiff scratched his head, and hesitatingly said: "Well, he is, sir, but he sometimes gets as drunk as a judge."

"You mean as drunk as a lord," remarked the president of the court.

"Yes, my lord," was the unthought-for answer.

Esquimaux Murderers.

SPECIAL COURT AT HERSCHELL ISLAND.

OTTAWA, Ont. (By Canadian Press)—Eskimo philosophy, failing to comprehend "White Man's Justice" as punishment for crimes, is likely to put an end, for a time at least, to the bringing of natives of the Far North out to civilization for trial for murder. The Eskimo, especially when he or one of his fellows, have admitted killing a white man, finds it extremely difficult to understand why the red-coated Mounted Police, representative of the White Man's Law, should not shoot him on sight, but instead he should take him out to civilization where a big white chief, dressed like a woman, sits on the bench and hears another white chief say, on the Eskimo's behalf, that though he killed the white man in question he should not be punished. Several natives having been brought out to civilization for trial, given good treatment, and then returned to their own people faster than when they left, the Eskimo is unable to understand this situation and when all of the murderers' friends had given him up for dead, in some cases the men having confessed to the murders of the whites. Because of this confusion in the minds of the natives, it is likely that the alleged Eskimo murderers now being held at Herschell Island will be tried there, by a specially constructed court which will leave Edmonton next spring for the purpose. In the meantime the Eskimoes are being given their preliminary trials before Inspector Wood, of the R.C.M.P., who is in charge. One of the alleged murderers to be tried by special court next spring is Alikomik, who confessed to the murder of Corporal Doak and Otto Binder of the Hudson's Bay Co. According to the statement of Alikomik to Inspector Wood he had been arrested by Doak for his share in other murders, and determined that rather than to be taken out to civilization he would end his life. He therefore shot Doak while the latter was lying asleep, with the idea "that Doak would get mad, seize his revolver and shoot him (the Eskimo) dead."

A WOMAN IN THE CASE.

After shooting Doak, the report states, the native waited outside the police building for some time for Doak to come out and shoot him. Then when he saw the Hudson's Bay men approaching the police quarters the native shot binder, and with the help of a native woman placed his body in the buildings and started for a seal camp, where other Mounted Police were located. Before reaching there he was persuaded by other Eskimoes to give himself again into custody and did so. A multiple killing affair is also reported by Inspector Wood at Kent Peninsula, when natives Ikiagaguis, Ipkukwak, Harmak and his wife, Pugnana and a child named Okolitana were killed and Anaiyviak was wounded by Pugnana, and Tatmanaga, referred to as the chief, was subsequently killed by Alikomik with the assistance of Tatmanaga, according to the native's story, because he wanted to kill more natives. Alikomik and Tatmanaga were arrested and brought to Tree River detachment, where the former committed the murder of the Corporal and Hudson's Bay official. The killing of the child was looked upon by the other natives as an act of kindness, according to the report received here, on the grounds that both the parents had already been killed by Pugnana. The bodies were disposed of by being thrown into a lake. Alikomik and Tatmanaga are both being held at Herschell Is. for their trial in the spring. A third case, an unusual "eternal triangle," is that of Ikiakpiak who was arrested and charged with the murder of Have-po-Ogak, the crime having been committed, it is alleged, because the former wished to secure sole possession of the woman Khatia, who was living with them as their joint wife. Khatia was one of the natives who assisted in the arrest of Ikiakpiak and bringing him to police headquarters.

The fourth case arises from the killing of Alkak by natives Olopekak and Amokuk and the woman Ekootuk. In this case it is alleged that Alkak in 1919 murdered a native named Aglutak and as a result had been strangled by the above named relatives of his alleged victim. Inspector Wood in his report states that there is some apprehension, among the whites, over the serious crimes in the Coronation Gulf area, where the natives are Copper Eskimos. He expects to have all the cases ready for trial by next spring, which, he states, is the earliest date by which a court from outside could reach the territory. Arrangements are now being made for the sending of a court to the Far North.

(Another case of particular interest to Newfoundlanders will be that of the trial of the Esquimaux held for the murder of Robert James, the Newfoundland trapper.)

An Old Masonic Lodge.

Bros. Lord Leyerhulme, P.G.W., and Sir Harry Lauder accompanied Bro. Alexander Naughty, Prov. Grand Master of Ross and Cromarty, on a Masonic visitation to the Fortress Lodge, No. 108, Stornoway, which was founded in 1767, on Thursday, 20th Sept. There was a large gathering of Brethren, and Lord Leyerhulme, in course of a speech, said that with the Lodge as a moving spirit it was possible to evolve out of a tangle of relatively mean streets a Venice of the Western Isles. Bro. Sir Harry Lauder, who sang two verses of a new song, "Just to try it on them," and remarked that they would have to pay for the rest, urged the Lodge to get in the men from the shielles to interest themselves in the Craft. Bro. Sir Harry Lauder had a great reception, sang several songs, and told several stories.—The Freemason, London, England.

Love Makes us Hungry.

The theory that young men and women had been explained. The newly-engaged pair who pre-fer men in love lost their appetites has for red to spend the quiet darkening hours of dinner-time on the lawn rather than partake of the meal in general company was the most prominent example that led up to the belief that lovers found food unnecessary. Now, however, doctors have proved that any emotion that creates pleasure, as love and hope, tends to stimulate the action of the heart and other organs.

Your Bit of Country.

There are few of us hardy enough to take a brisk walk of half a mile or so before breakfast. Usually we just manage to get out of bed, wash, have breakfast, and then dash to work. From the moment we get out of bed until we reach the office in the morning, there has hardly been time for a single thought. The usual result is that all yesterday's little worries are as strong and vivid as ever. Most people have worries, and most of us worry over them a deal too much. Inevitably the daily round becomes disasteful and very monotonous. And that means poor work. We can't all take a brisk walk before breakfast—a fine way to banish worry—but there are few of us unfortunate enough not to have some sort of a garden. What Money Is.

Is money any use to us? It sounds a foolish question, but if you think carefully about it, money, as money, is no good at all—we only want it for what it will buy. In the beginning of civilization, when people lived very simple lives and there were very few occupations, they had no money at all, but exchanged things by barter. Families grew their own crops, killed their own beasts, and so on. Rent they didn't have to pay, because they built their own houses. Rates, of course, didn't exist, because there was no proper village life.

It was very seldom that one family needed to do business with another. But when they did want something that they could not produce themselves, then they had to barter. If a man wanted a chain he would go to the nearest man who made the chains, and drive a bargain with him; so many yards of his chain for half a pig and so much flour. And after hours of bartering the deal would be clinched, and he would take home the chain.

Now, so long as the world lived very plainly, only asking for the bare necessities of existence, this plan worked fairly well, though at the best there was always a large margin of waste. But, as civilization got more complex, people wanted other things than the bare necessities, and they had to find some other way of exchanging their different goods. The means of exchange they called money—and "pecuniary" really means "in the way of cattle," because in the early times a man's wealth could be reckoned in the number of cattle he had.

Now, for money, they had to find something rare, but not too rare. It would be no use taking acorns of course, because everyone could help themselves. Neither would, say, radium be much good, because there isn't enough. Then they wanted something that would last fairly well, something that could not very easily be imitated, and also that could be fairly well controlled by the State, which means everyone.

Gold was found to meet these conditions better than anything else they could find, though many other things have been tried for money. So gold became the standard of the world's money. Then the next trouble was that gold wouldn't divide easily enough. So they took silver and copper to be "tokens" of subdivisions of gold. Silver and copper are not money at all; they are only, as it were, counters that represent such and such a part of gold. In fact, before the Senate began to coin enough of these, local tradesmen used to make their own. A man took a sovereign to his grocer to buy two shillingsworth of cheese, and the grocer would give the man a little disc for change, saying that he was good for eight or ten shillings at his shop. By and by the man passed on this "token" to other neighbours who lived near his grocer, and who knew that he was a sound trader, not likely to fail. So his "tokens" became almost money, till at last the State stepped in and took control.

The Primate at Work.

WHAT THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY HAS TO DO.

Dr. Randall Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, is one of the busiest men in the country, yet nine out of ten of us would probably be puzzled to explain exactly what an Archbishop has to do.

Well, as head of the Church of England, he has all the responsibilities that fall on the shoulders of the chief of an organization of about 25,000 clergy. But in addition to this there are few national and international questions on moral, educational or philanthropic issues on which his opinion is not asked.

The Archbishop does not travel much. For nine months of the year his work is done mainly at Lambeth.

The day at the Palace usually begins with family prayers, followed by a simple breakfast, after which the enormous mass of correspondence that pours in by every post, awaits attention.

All enormous Correspondence.

Some of the extent of this correspondence may be gathered from the fact that the staff for dealing with it comprises resident chaplains, a private secretary, two shorthand typists, with the further assistance of two legal secretaries.

Another department of the work at Lambeth which makes enormous claims on the Primate's time and energies is connected with the official hospitality which he has to dispense.

Half a dozen to a dozen guests will often be staying with him, and at lunch the number may be as many as forty. Apart from ties of friendship, they are there on business.

Bishops Come to Consult Him.

For instance, a bishop is home on furlough from one of the Dominions.

It is necessary that the Primate should have a report on what is being done, and the most convenient way is that the bishop in question should stay at Lambeth, and during meal-times and a few minutes afterwards give his account and seek advice.

There are bishops who wish the Primate's guidance on some vexed question, people who desire his opinion on some social or religious problem officials from Government offices who come to consult him.

Then there are the more public duties—sessions of the National Church Assembly or of convocation to preside over; Parliamentary debates to take part in; sermons to preach; public meetings to speak at; innumerable committee meetings and conferences to attend; and, occasionally, a Royal Commission to serve on.

In addition, Dr. Davidson has his own diocese—of Canterbury—and with the assistance of two assistant bishops he has to deal with the needs of his clergy and people.

It is a true saying that nothing of importance happens in the world without finding some echo at Lambeth, and the variety of the Archbishop's responsibilities is astonishing.

His Favourite Relaxation.

Except for the summer holiday of the ordinary professional man, he knows, even at the age of seventy-four, practically no relaxation, though he used at one time to play a little golf and squash racquets.

Now he likes best—what will probably happen this year: if a holiday proves possible in the midst of his many activities—to get away to the quiet of some place in Scotland (his native country) and to take his recreation in fishing.

Two Taft Tales.

One of the best jokes ever invented about ex-president Taft was fired off by Mr. Chauncey Depew, himself once a candidate for the Presidency, and one of the world's most brilliant raconteurs.

It turned, of course, as do all the Taft stories, on the latter's huge bulk. "My friend Taft," said Mr. Depew, "is the poltiest man in America. He has been seen to give up his seat in a tramcar to three ladies."

Another story relates how, on one of his visits to the Southern States, a negro cook, who had prepared dinner for him was asked if she did not feel highly honored at cooking for such an eminent man.

"Never done heard of him before," was aunty's reply. "Know nothin' about him, except he do look as if he been reg'lar at his meals."

QUIT TOBACCO

So easy to drop Cigarette, Cigar, or Chewing habit

No-To-Bac has helped thousands to break the costly, nerve-racking tobacco habit. Whenever you have a longing for a smoke or chew, just place a harmless No-To-Bac tablet in your mouth instead. All desire stops. Shortly the habit is completely broken, and you are better off mentally, physically, financially. It's so easy, so simple. Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

Many new frocks have their skirts drawn tightly across the back and hips in shallow folds which are held by a buckle in front.

Figures That Lie.

Whatever excuse there may be for the deceptive valuation placed upon agricultural products by the enumerator there can be no excuse whatever for the misleading of the Department of Agriculture in order to pad out and falsify the statement presented as a resume of the country's agricultural products. In this report not alone do we find prices inflated, but we find items appearing in the list of agricultural products that have no right to be there. For instance we find the item 16,145 horses, at $100.00.

Now a horse is not an agricultural product, neither is he an animal, however hardy he might be. How many of those horses are really farm horses and not truck and carriage or lumber-wood horses. How many of the 16,145 horses so listed are worth $100.00? By putting horses in the list the statement is falsified to the extent of $1,614,500.00. Live stock of whatever kind have no right to be put in a table designed to show the agricultural products of the country.

If we eliminate live stock from the calculation, which rightly should be done in an estimation of that kind, but include beef, mutton, pork, eggs, milk and wool we get a more just estimate of the value of our farm products, but still inflated beyond a just valuation. By taking the figures given in the Report and leaving out the above mentioned items we get $8,464,192.30, whereas the report places the value of agricultural products at $14,367,876.70.

It is known that the farmer regulates his prices by the ruling prices of the imported product and as duties, taxes, freights, etc., render these high, the price of the local product is unnaturally inflated. Potatoes are being sold in P.E.I. to-day for twenty-five cents a bushel. Allowing three bushels to the barrel that makes a barrel of P.E.I. potatoes seventy-five cents. Were I to import those same potatoes I should have to pay about fifty cents a barrel in duties, etc. The local farmer does not give us the advantage of this duty neither do we get any advantage from the fact that he is near his market and can save on carriage. The consumer pays the tax whether he buys local or imported products.

This must not be construed as an argument against the farmers, for whom I have a fellow feeling and warm sympathy, it is simply an argument to show up the superficial reasoning of the Agricultural Department, and its failure to accomplish anything for the good of the country in spite of its large expenditures. I believe farming could be put on a basis where the husbandman could make more money than he does to-day, and still give his potato a cheaper article for their table. If we maintain the same standard of ability in our Agricultural Department, in about one thousand years from now we shall have reached this stage of perfection.

Patience, therefore, we are making progress. Returning from this bright vision to take up the question of prices and values let us consider the item hay. Hay can be bought in Canada for about fifteen dollars a ton. It is presumed that even at this rate the farmer makes a profit. Local farmers are asking about $25.00 to $40.00. I ask the Department of Agriculture what profit this gives the farmer? What does it cost to raise a ton of hay? The local farmer has the advantage of such items as the following: A duty of $3.00 a ton, a 10 p.c. duty on that, a 25 p.c. duty on these, then a 5 p.c. sale tax and a freight charge of $12.00. Yet he is not making very much money. Why? But, imagine the irony presented in the statement made by the Department of Agriculture that our farm products are worth $14,367,876.70, when this is the way such bold figures are reached. Every item given in the glaring list is false and exaggerated. The purpose is plain. The report is false from Dr. Campbell's photograph to the index. It is a shameless hoax, a travesty on official truth and seriousness. As a result of this report the people of the public and deceive the people it caps the climax.—ARTHUR ENGLISH.

A Brave and Dashing Soldier.

On October 13, 1815, the gallant and dashing Joachim Murat, brother-in-law of Napoleon and ex-King of the Sicilies, was ignominiously shot as a disturber of the peace, in the kingdom over which he had once ruled, and in accordance with an enactment he had himself established. Murat was born in 1771, and was the son of an inn-keeper near Calors. His early life showed a taste for adventure and dissipation, and as a young man he occupied a variety of diverse situations. At one time he was a chasseur, at another a waiter in a Paris restaurant, then a member of Louis XVI's guard, then again in the chateaux during the stirring days of the Revolution, of which at one time he was a devoted supporter. In 1796 he became associated with Bonaparte, whom he accompanied in 1796 in the operation of "turning the flank of the Alps," and in that extraordinary campaign in Northern Italy which was the first brilliant example of Napoleon's military methods. Murat had his own personal share in the victories of those his deeds quite justified. In 1812, Murat took part in the disastrous Russian campaign, but after the French discomfiture at Leipzig, in October, 1813, he parted from his Imperial master in order to give attention to the affairs of his own kingdom. But there he was not to achieve great success, for an unwise quarrel with Austria led to a struggle with that power so that in three months' time he was irretrievably ruined, army, fleet, and treasures destroyed, and he himself a fugitive in Corsica. Here his restless spirit framed a daring project for the re-acquisition of his lost kingdom, which appeared to have settled down under the rule of the Bourbon King who had formerly dispossessed. With unwavering faith in the attachment of old subjects, Murat and a few faithful friends landed at Naples, but he was soon taken prisoner, hurriedly tried, and summarily shot, the fine feature of the whole affair being the dignity with which at the last he faced the soldierly and erect and unbending eyes, giving the signal for the fatal volley.

Harbor Breton Regatta.

Wednesday, September 6th will be long remembered by the inhabitants of Harbor Breton, for on that day, probably the best races in the history of the district were held. Prizes many, and varied from barrels of flour, tubs of butter to silk waists, and tobacco were generously donated by Hickman & Co. (McNulty), Harvey & Co. (Harvey Small), Hermitage Trading Co. Miss Emma Jensen, Hon. R. W. Warren, Capt. Blandford, Magistrate Parsons, Dr. Cockburn, Rev. Robbins, and Messrs. German, Squibb, Stone, Flander, Chaffer, Smith, Sedore, Jno. Rose, Condy, Boyce, Jensen, Hearn, Camp, Porter, and Geo. Rose. Fishermen, and merchant rose to the occasion, and the different competitions were largely contested, and were lively and exciting struggles.

The committee in charge consisted of Dr. G. L. Cockburn, Chairman, Chas. Stone, Secretary, ably assisted by Magistrate Parsons, Custom's Collector German, Constable Squibb, and Mr. Thomas Flander. Everything went as merry as a wedding bell, and from 3 p.m. when Official Starter Squibb with his breech loading shot gun pushed off the first race until 11 p.m. every minute was filled with some interesting event. The forty boats each adorned with a different code flag made the harbor take on a gala appearance. The judge's stand decorated with a huge ensign was on the front of Newmans' Old Wharf and within this roped enclosure, the committee assisted by Judge Chaffer, Codey, and Rev. Robbins, with timekeepers W. Hearn, and W. Smith, consulted, and announced their decisions. Thos. Flander, and Louis Ozon, Mgr. Bank of Montreal, Gaultois, occupied the umpire's boat and rendered yeoman service.

The prize winners were as follows—Men's Dory (Doubles)—1st. May, and Wm. Jno. Ashford; 2nd. Wm. Ashford and Spence; 3rd. Stone and Painter.

Women's Dory (Doubles)—1st. Skinner and Chapman; 2nd. Lovelace and Hart; 3rd. Hunt and Stickland; 4th. Piercy and Stickland.

Girls' Dory (Doubles)—1st. Monica Emberly and Martha Snyard; 2nd. Dorcas and Winnie Parsons; 3rd. Bridget McDonald and Rose Quann.

Boys' Dory (Doubles)—1st. Victor Parsons, and Len White; 2nd. Max Jensen and Len Hickey; 3rd. Wm. Parsons and Wm. Herritt.

After the boat races, boys running races were held, and men's one mile road race resulting, 1st. Hull; 2nd. Augot; 3rd. Painter. Following this a ladies walking race which created great amusement was held. This was won by a sixteen year old girl Rose Quann.

At night dancing competitions were held in the Parish Hall, making it a fitting climax to a great day. Many aspired to the honor of obtaining the Championship Belt for Fortune Bay District, and the Judges had their hands full in making their decisions. First honors, and championship ladies' step dancing went to Mrs. Susan Sheppard of Miller's Passage, a lady 78 years old, who had walked twelve miles to be in at the finish. First prize, and championship for men went to Richard Hearn, 52 years old, and with a stature of over six feet. Altogether it was a great day, the greatest day ever, and all are so enthused over it, that they intend to make it an annual event, with a 1923 Regatta as a beginning top notcher.

MANAGING A HOME

Is Much the Same as Managing a Business.

Most men do not realize that their wives have quite a business to run. The housekeeper is on a par with a purchasing agent, and also she has to fill the offices of efficiency expert, commissariat, superintendent, and general manager. She has to know what to buy, where to buy, and when to buy; and in a good many cases, her business is run as well as any other.

Now then, Mrs. Business Woman, there is something new on the market that will enable you to run your home better than ever before.

STEAMER REFLAGGED.
HAVANA, Oct. 13. The steamer Santiago, which went around east of Sagua la Grande, last week, was floated yesterday according to a message received last night. The ship suffered but little damage.

VIOLENT PROTEST.
BELFAST, Oct. 13. Armed men, thought to be protesting against a recent pronouncement of the Irish Hierarchy, against an anti-treaty rebellion, invaded Maynooth Village, Kildare, last night, tore up railway tracks, blocked the Galway bound mail train, and blew up the railway bridge.

ONE ONLY STOCKED UP.
LONDON, Oct. 13. The United States Line steamer, George Washington, left Southampton yesterday for New York with no liquor aboard. The Cunard Liner Scythia departed from Liverpool for New York carrying the customary stores of alcoholic beverages, regardless of the Daugherty ruling.

NEW W.S.D. LINER.
MONTREAL, Oct. 13. It has been announced here that the White Star Dominion Liner, Doric, sister ship to the Regina, will make an early May, 1923, sailing to Montreal, and will thereafter be placed permanently on this route.

NEW SERUM CURE.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13. The unqualified success of Serum, as a remedy for diabetes, prepared by physiologists of the University of Toronto was announced last night by Alfred Stengel, Professor in Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, to which a small quantity of serum had been sent for experimental purposes.

ALL SAFELY TRANSFERRED.

A TYPICALLY AMERICAN SCENE.

If I were an artist and wanted to paint a picture of a typically American scene, there are two subjects that I should choose. One would be the crowd at the Harvard-Yale game. I suppose it would be difficult to catch the spirit of that vast gathering, but if one could get something of the vastness, the enthusiasm, the extravagance, the intensity, one would get something typically American.

And the other typically American scene would be the station at some summer resort at the time of the morning train on which the men go to work or the evening train when they "come back."

Is Your Station Like This?

I think I like the morning scene best. At our own particular station there is a lovely background of trees covered hill. The little country station is ugly, to be sure, but being old and weather beaten it does not offend the landscape like new ugliness. The men who have come over in the bus stand around the platform in little groups laughing and jolly each other. Private machines drive up from time to time, the man gets out, the woman takes the wheel, two or three youngsters swarm over the back seat to kiss daddy good-bye. Some of the wives sit there waiting for the train, others set trimly shoes on electric starters throw back a smile to their knights of the modern joust, give the wheel a competent twist and are gone back to their duties or pleasure.

A Fine Lot Of Men.
 The men are a fine looking lot, clean shaven, well groomed, well dressed, but not too well-dressed. They are men at their best age, mostly between 30 and 50—men of force and drive (else they would not have won through to sufficient success to make two homes a possibility,) men of that fine middle class molded by the discipline of hard work but not crushed by the grind of a monotonous poverty.

I Like These Men.
 I love the way they jolly each other and the bus man who brings them over and the pretty girl who sells the tickets. I love their boyish laughs and their good carriage and their clean cut American good looks. And I love the generosity which makes them willing to spend three hours of their day on trains and busses that their women and children may be kept from the burden and heat of the city.

I don't know whether it would be possible for an artist to put some of this feeling into a picture. Perhaps it wouldn't produce an artistic effect. I don't know. Come to think of it an artist did do something of the sort once and it was a very popular picture. Do you remember Gibson's "Monday morning?" (Don't confess being that old you don't feel like it.) Haven't we someone who can do a companion piece to that? I should like to hang it on my wall.

C.C.C. Band Promenade Concert, Prince's Rink at 8.30 to-night. Hear the new Waltzes "Closer" and "Bluebird Land." Admission 20c. Total attendance 23000 people last week. Larger attendance expected this week.

Colleen Moore Discovers a Pair of Dancing Feet.

"COME ON OVER" REQUIRED NOVELTY IN STEPS.

Colleen Moore had to do three things with her feet when she worked in "Come On Over," an Irish comedy by Robert Hughes, coming to the Nickel Theatre commencing Monday.

The first thing was to abandon ball room dancing steps. The next thing was to take daily morning lessons from her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Kelly, in the intricacies of the Irish jig, which she performs in the picture, and the third thing was to take daily afternoon lessons from Theodore Kosloff, the well-known Russian ballet master.

With Kosloff Miss Moore studies for dancing, for a later Rupert Hughes photo-play. Considering that all this followed her appearance in "The Wall Flower," in which Colleen was not supposed to know how to dance anything, she said mischievously:

"I guess Mr. Hughes thinks I have more talent in my feet than in my head!"

Dyed a Sweater and Skirt with Diamond Dyes

Very "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any wool, faded garment or drapery a new rich color that will not streak, spot, fade or run. Perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old wools, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything!

Young Venetian Girl Located Hidden Springs.

ROME—Augusta Del Pio Luogo, a beautiful young girl of Venice, is now looking forward to a period of profitable and pleasant employment. Italy is particularly interested just now in two things, the location of petroleum, for all the world wants oil, and the finding of water, for the drought of the past summer is said to be but the beginning of a long dry spell. To Augusta Del Pio Luogo is ascribed the ability to locate the deposit, within the earth, of both oil and water, and her success here has been so remarkable that her services are being sought by companies interested in oil production and irrigation. Augusta first noticed her ability when a child. When walking in the country she would notice little shocks passing from her feet to her head, causing her distinct pain. In 1909 she met a famous water diviner, Chialera, and found that his divining rod acted as well for her as it did for him. A year later she went to Argentina and, making use of her powers indicated a number of places where water would be found, sometimes at a depth of 600 feet. In each case water was found, but in some instances it turned out to be salt. Back in Italy after the war Augusta, in the presence of two engineers, has located not only water, but petroleum and deposits of pyrites. She no longer uses the divining rod, but a chronometer. It is said that thus equipped she can tell with remarkable accuracy the depth at which the water will be discovered, and whether it is scanty or abundant.

Wesley Church Orphan Aid.

SOCK CONCERT A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Sock Concert at the S.S. Room of Wesley Church promoted by the young ladies of the Choir, in proposing to provide stockings for the forty-seven girls of the Methodist Orphanage, was a great success. The music lovers and seniors greatly enjoyed the splendid songs of Mrs. G. Christian, Misses Chafe, Russell, Taylor; Messrs. Courtney and King, and the duet by Miss Thistle, Teacher at the Battery School and Mr. Harry Chaplin so pleased everybody that an encore had to be conceded. All the singers were redemanded, but the Chairman pleaded that a programme of twenty-one items meant a late hour closing. Apart from high class music, the motion songs of the Orphan girls so well trained by the Lady Supt. were given with a taste and precision that was just charming, while the dialogue and other exercises by the Battery School were well rendered. As a reciter Miss Estella Barnes has few equals. She had to respond with a second piece. Mr. Brett's violin solo was enjoyed, and Mr. Skirving's ditty about how he "got shaved" greatly amused the boys. Fred Gushue's caricaturing of "The Dutchman" and later of "A Frenchman," created hearty laughter. The inspiring selections of the Guards Band kept enthusiasm to a high pitch. Everybody seemed sociable and happy, and the receipts were announced as approximately one hundred and thirty dollars. The promoters feel very gratified by the generous patronage accorded their efforts to give warm feet to the kiddies at the institution, and to Gordon Christian, A.T.C.M., and Mrs. Geo. King for their valuable assistance as accompanists at the piano. Rev. Mr. Joyce makes an excellent chairman and had a chance to see how sympathy can cause a rally for a good object.

Leaming Lodge L. O. A.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING.

Considerable business was transacted at the regular meeting of the above Lodge, held in Victoria Hall last night. W.M. Bro. G. T. Phillips occupied the chair, with all his assistant officers in their places. Much discussion took place and helpful instructions and counsel was given by several Past Masters of other Primary Lodges. Arrangements are being made to have a Lodge Rally shortly, to be followed by an official visit by the B.W.G.M. and the Grand Lodge Executive.

CAUTION!

The Heart is the seat of life. It has more responsible work to do than any other organ in the body of human life.

Why do you neglect it? Don't you read in the papers of the many deaths that are caused by the failure of the heart? Keep it in good order. Help it to be strong and prolong life. Dr. F. G. Kinaman's Heart Tablets has been tested and recommended by thousands of people to be the only remedy that could keep your heart in good order. These Tablets are in town and are sold by every Drug Store at $1.00 per box. Buy a box and you will be convinced of their good.

Have You Seen the JEWETT CAR?
 THE JEWETT IS PAIGE BUILT.

The new Jewett is of Paige conception, designed and built by Paige engineers and mechanics in the Paige shops. From its Paige origin the Jewett inherits those unmistakable marks of Quality, characterizing the work of a group of men, who for ten years past, have been building the fine six-cylinder cars, bearing the Paige monogram.

Let us demonstrate to you its remarkable power and quality—5 passenger touring—$2200; Sedan $2850.

GOOD MATERIAL SPEAKS RIGHT OUT LOUD.

When the first electric lamp was invented, in 1873, it consisted of a glass bulb, from which the air had been exhausted, with a coiled filament of bamboo inside. From this evolved the filament lamp, the gem, the tantalum, the tungsten, and finally the MAZDA Lamp, which to-day practically represents perfection in lamp manufacture.

 ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS?
 WHEN WE HAVE THE BEST.
