A weekly visit from The Guide-Advocate will help keep them in close touch with the old home community.

A good, practical education, including good trade, is a better outfit for a youth than a grand estate with the drawback of an empty mind. Many parents have slaved and pinched to leave their children rich, when half the sum thus lavished would have profited them much more had it been devoted to the cultivation of their minds, the enlargement of their capacity to think, observe and work. CORNER STONE LAID FOR TRINITY CHURCH.

His Lordship the Bishop of Huron Performs the Ceremony.

RECORDS PLACED IN THE STONE ADDRESSES BY VISITING CLERGY

Saying the words, "In the faith of Jesus Christ we lay this foundation sto in the name of God the Father, God t Son, and God the Holy Ghost," t Bishop of Huron on Thursday afternoon, laid the foundation stone of the Trinity Church now being erected on Main street.

The ceremony was a very impressive one and was witnessed by a large crowd of people. Early in the afternoon a temporary platform was erected for the clergy who took part, and seats arranged in front so as to accommodate as m as possible. The organ and choir were at the north of the platform and every point of vantage in the vicinity was taken early by persons anxious to see the cere-mony and hear the service. The service opened by singing the hymn "The Church's One Foundation is Jesus Christ

The rector, Rev. S. P. Irwin, B.A., then read a short history of the parish, which he placed in the cavity in the corner stone together with a copy of the following journals:—The Canadian Churchman, Church Life, the Synod Journal, and the Watford Guide-Advocate.

The corner stone was then well and The corner stone was then well and truly laid by the Bishop; of the Diocese. The clergy assisting in the service were Rev. F. S. Robinson, Rural Dean of Middlesex; Rev. W. M. Shore, rector of Marwick; Rev. H. R. Diehl, rector of Adelaide, and Rev. J. H. McLeod, rector of Alvinston.

The stone was laid on the portheses.

cation and wealth, but also spiritually. What was suitable fifty years ago in either private life, business life or spiritual life would not give satisfaction to-day. As time advanced people wanted things more beautiful in the physical life, and we should not stop at that but carry the beauty into the House of God. Beauty and comfort are desirable in a home and the same should apply to the church. The church reveals the people's idea of God iust the same as the home reveals the physical idea, and God should be given the best, the most beautiful, and the most costly things in our power to give. The life of the nation should be one of faith in God, and that faith should be exemplified in giving to him liberally of our substance, and making His house of our substance, and making His house a home of comfort and beauty.

His Lordship went on to show that no nation or community could prosper if it neglected worship; that every nation that had gone to decay had first neglected worship; and that the most powerful and wealthy nation would soon become extinct if worship was neglected. The extinct if worship was neglected. The church looked after the spiritual well-being of the community, and Canada being particularly favored with material blessings the people should give liberally of their substance for the support of their religion.

Each of the visiting clergy then addressed a few words to those assembled, dressed a few words to those assembled, but owing to the rapidly approaching rain storm, their remarks were forcibly made very short.

The ceremony concluded with the benediction by the Bishop.

The silver trowel with pearl handle, used by the Bishop, was loaned for the occasion by Mrs. George H. Taylor, of Ancaster. Ancaster.

The collection amounted to $220.70. The collection amounted to $220.70. Following is a copy of the History of the Parish placed in the corner stone:—
"The first Church of England services were held in Watford in a public hall over Stickle's store in the year 1867, conducted by the Rev. John Gibson, rector of Warwick The following year 1868, the present brick church was built under his ministry. In 1869 the Rev. R. Fletcher became rector of Warwick and Watford and it was largely through his Watford and it was largely through his efforts, by money which he collected in England, that the church was almost freed from debt. The Rev. P. E. Hyland was rector during the years 1879 to 1886, when Trinity church was detached from Warwick and together with St. James', Brooke, and Grace church, 4th line, became a new parish, with the Rev. Geo. Wye as rector. Three years later in the year 1889, the Rev. Arthur Murphy became rector for about one year, during which time extensive repairs were made which time extensive repairs were made. which time extensive repairs were made to the church. The Rev. Jas. Thompson was appointed rector in 1890 and was instrumental in having the present large rectory built; at the end of three years Mr. Thompson resigned and was followed by the Rev. John Downie who became rector in 1893, which position he held for over 12 years, when in the year 1905 the present rector (Rev. S. P. Irwin) was appointed. And there does not seem to be much danger of the price falling below a profitable point before three years have elapsed.

> The people of Ontario and through her the whole Dominion are to be congratulated on the maple leaf as a national anthem. It lends itself easily to every design, as, whether in its pristine green or in the hundred and one colors of autumn, it is ever beautiful. But where Canada is especially fortunate is in the fast that the maple leaf cannot be mistaken for any other leaf or thing. Even the school boy essaying his first drawing lesson seldom fails to make it look like a maple leaf. It may not be perfect, but few maple leaves are. This you will discover this fall when you go forth to make a collection of the beautiful things. There are scarcely two of exactly the same color or contour. They vary without limit, yet there is no mistaking the most imperfect for anything but a maple leaf.

In some respects the first volume of Canada's census is saddening, for it puts in concrete form—in figures which are beyond denial—the longacknowledged depopulation of many of Ontario's towns and villages. It is disheartening to note that out of or five of the scallop points is a little 140 incorporated villages, exactly vine effect. Loops of velvet matching half have decreased in population in the last decade. Out of 126 towns, 42-exactly one-third-show a similar decrease, and of the 84 which have remained stationary or grown, 31 are in Newer Ontario. The two great factors in the depopulation of dots and vines to match the collar. these smaller places are the migrations to the city and to the West.

The young folks are looking for excitement and big profits. Their departure from town, village and countryside results in poorly worked farms and business inertness in the smaller centres of population. It may be inevitable, but it is not altogether a desirable condition of affairs. There is a substantial and a certain living on many farms which the younger generations have deserted. With these repopulated, the trade in town and village would improve, and the falling off in population would be checked. Many of those who have left the farm for the lure of the city and the gold of the West would have done better, in the end, at home. And it would have been better for Ontario had they stayed there.

These do not affect the round numbers in which the equatorial velocity of Jupiter's rotation is usually stated—viz, about 28,000 miles per hour. But they furnish additional proof that the motions visible on the great planet's surface are not uniform from year to year. For about twelve years the equatorial region appears to have experienced an acceleration of velocity. Relatively to the surface some thirty degrees north or south Jupiter's equator rushes ahead with hurricane speed, between 200 and 800 miles an hour.-- Uncinnati Commercial

DARK ROOM TESTING

Every child on reaching the age of seven years should have the eyes examed. Many children have defective vised. Many children have defective visjon, and it often happens that one eye only is affected. This throws all the work on the better eye while the other through disuse frequently loses its function entirely. With proper lense correction this trouble will be wholly overcome.
If eccompanied by parents we will be glad to examine children's eyes free of charge.

Floating Dock for Montreal.

London, Sept. 1.—The huge floating dock, Duke of Connaught, built at Barrow for a Montreal shipyard, has started on its leisurely voyage across the Atlantic in tow of two powerful Dutch tugs.

It is the second largest dock in the world. Over 700 feet in length. It had to be launched in three sections. It is capable of receiving the largest battle-ship either built or planned.

Allowing for an average speed of five knots, the voyage to Montreal will take about six weeks, but should the weather be bad, two months or more will elapse before she reaches the other side. The more hawsers used for towing the dock are eighteen inches in circumference.
Wire cables also connect the tugs with the dock.

A party of the builders' workmen are making the voyage, some of them being housed on the dock, while others have quarters on the tugs. The dock also carries an extra cargo of coal, which can be supplied to the tugs in mid-ocean if necessary. Each tug carries provisions for six months and seventy tons of frozen water.

THE POPE'S BROTHER,

Is a Plain Unassuming Postman

and Swears by the Pontiff.

The pope's recent attack of illness and the comparative frequency with which such attacks occur have somewhat alarmed his family, although he has done his best to allay all anxiety. His brother, Angelo Sarto, being of the class who do not believe anything they hear, and only half of what they see, determined to come to Rome to judge for himself. He was accommodated by his sisters, who live a stone's throw from the Vatican, so they may spend the few leisure moments of the Pontiff with him.

These two venerable men, both and Swears by the Pontiff.

ments of the Pontiff with him.

These two venerable men, both handsome and with thick white hair, alike, and yet not alike, might have been seen walking the Vatican gardens when the air was warm and summerlike. The Pope sometimes leaned upon his sturdy brother's arm, gesticulating slightly as he talked, with those earnest eyes of his turned on the dome of the church he loves, or wandering over the city at his feet, of which he is so wonderful a part, but which he never sees any nearer.

It is whispered that certain persons at the Apostolic Palace were not overglad to see Signor Angelo back, for athough, on ordinary occasions, the mildest of men, when he see what he considers little omissions toward his adored brother, he becomes a lion. Pius X. is amiable almost to frugality in his personal life, and would never think of complaining indeed would.

Pius X. is amiable almost to frugality in his personal life, and would never think of complaining, indeed, would never notice it, if the soup were a little thin or the wine a little watered, but the lynx eyes of his brother note these things, and he speaks of them in no uncertain tones.

It is very amusing to see the determination with which Signer Angelement

It is very amusing to see the determination with which Signor Angelo put things right, especially where his sisters had failed, and the protests of the Pope that everything was just as it should be in this best of worlds. Many persons who do not know the sturdy independence of the Italian peasant have wondered that the only brother of the Pope should remain a humble postman, and, moreover, in ers of the present war in Tripoli.

So good an Italian is Signor Angelo, and so much does he hope for the triumph of Christianity, that he would feel only shame in being paid for idle-So he continues to carry letters for the King of Italy, not presuming one hair's breadth on his relationship with Pius X., as very well he might with impunity. In his little house — little in our eyes, and so comfortless — the most conspicuous object is an immense portrait of Piux X., painted and presented to him by a famous Hungarian artist. In another room are several excellent large photographs of the Pope with affectionate dedications, and a heaviting iroor requifix, given to Analysis. with affectionate dedications, and a beautiful ivory crucifix given to Angelo Sarto by his pontificial brother one Christmas. It is said to have come out of the Vatican; anyway, it is sixteenth century work, the figure of Christ being carved from one piece of ivory, and hung on an ebony cross.

A large boarding house caught fire during dinner, and much confusion reduring dinner, and much comission resulted. After the worst was over the landlady, who was a philosophical that the fire had not happened at night, as some life might have been lost. A little later the colored boy, who heard this, mysteriously called

The Father of Terror.

The Father of Terror.

"The father of terror" is the name the Arabs have given to the sphinx. It stands to-day even as it has done for thousands of years, though the exact date or century of its construction none can say. It is not only the oldest monument in the world, but the largest see well. It is carved wholly from a mass of solid natural rock, with the exception of the forepaws, which are built up with blocks of stone. It measures more than a hundred feet in length and is impressive and awe-inspiring because of its sive and awe-inspiring because of its stupendous size.

The expert burglar, disdaining the use of explosives, had attacked the lock itself.

"This may be a combination somewhat in restraint of my trade," he muttered, turning the knob slowly to the right again and listening intents, "busyou couldn't call it a case of unreasonable restraint."

Apparently his view was correct, for presently he was engaged in the unrestricted pursuit of his trade and reaping large profits, Things of 25 Years Ago.

Well, what's become of the moustache cup, for instance? Those china affairs made specially so gentlemen would not soil their lip adornments on their coffee. It seems only yesterday that Aunt Lizzie was sending them to all her best beaux for birthday presents. And the knitted mufflers around the necks? And oh, yes—what's become of the big mitts we used to wear with strings attached around our necks?

What's become of the mud scrapers on the doorsteps and the mats with the large "Welcome" on them that used to greet us all wherever we opened the door? What's become of all the red and white barred stockings all the little girls used to wear? What's become of the hand-painted neckties, the whatnots that used to adorn the parlor corner, the fringe on the parlor furniture, the old plush piano stool with the fringe on it, and the iron animals in the front garden? Then, there are the plush picture frames, the worsted mats for the lamp, made with a spool and four pins; strange glass canes that hung up in the parlor with colored waternside. What's become of them? What, too, of the big glass marbles with the little silver lamb inside that was the last word in knicknacks in every well-conducted home? Also the stuffed doves under the round glass case that used to stand just at the side of the door, and the everlasting flowers. And what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's hecome of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's hecome of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's hecome of the knitted wristlets you used to see along any main street, and what's hecome of the knitted wristlets you had hand-knitted stockings for men, the sealskin collars that has the case on the mantelpiece with the

What has become of the Austin sisters, the human flies, who used to walk on the ceiling? What's become of Zip, the mathematical marvel; Jack O'Brien and his six-day lady hike riders, the pure doe; the author bike riders; the pug dog, the author of "White Wings, They Never Grow Weary," the seven Sutherland sisters, and the wooden ship in the bottle that no self-respecting bar could be without? For that matter, what's become of the raw egg eating champion, the pic eating champion the pion, the pie eating champion, the oyster opening champion? Mother's canned preserves with the red sealing wax on top—are there any more anywhere? Don't you remember the butter dish in the shape of the hen sitting on eggs and the milk pitcher built in the shape of a cow? You never see them now. And how about those clegant tidies the girls used to move around so they would always not be back of our heads when we sat on the chairs and sofas? chairs and sofas?

Did you ever see the alligator cuspider? It was a weird-looking apparatus, and maybe you're lucky to foratus, and maybe you're lucky to forget it. But they used to be almost everywhere that the gentle habit was practiced. You reached out a foot and stepped on the 'gator cuspidor. Promptly it gaped cavernously. Then you expectorated. You removed your foot and the jaws closed. It was truly a wonderful thing. It raised that particular habit to the dignity of a ceremony, although many kept on preferring a knothole to the 'gator cuspidor.

Just for Recreation.

During the coal strike many miners were idle, and the city authorities, taking advantage of the fact, had a lot of work done putting in had a lot of work done putting in sewers, paving streets and laying wires underground. An old Irishman by the name of Mike Dooley had been employed in the mines, but took a temporary job digging ditches in the streets. One morning his friend Pat Hooligan saw Mike at work and ex-"Hello, Mike! What in the devil are you doing there?"

Mike leaned on his pick, looked up and said smilingly:
"Oh, I thought I would work while I was idle."

The Evil Eye. Belief in the evil eye exists in all lends but services in Italy. It ex isted in ancient Egypt. The "eye" is seen on the prows of Spanish and Italian ships and on Mexican bucklers. It is seen on amulets taken from the ashes of Herculaneum and Pompeii. In some places it is surrounded by elephants, serpents and scorpions, animals that were supposed to hold a talismanic power against it. Many celebrities of history—Napoleon among others—believed in the evil eye and feared it. Among the masses of the eastern and European nations the belief is almost universal.

Drawing the Line.

"Before we were married you said you would die for me!"
"I know I did, and I would, but wearing that necktie you selected out on the street is different. I won't do that."

Buried Bottle Glass. Very old bottle glass that has been in the ground for a long time presents most beautiful features. The action of the damp earth causes a portion of the glass to flake, and what remains is iridescent.

Accounted Fer.

"Pa, why was 'Mary, Mary, quite contrary?" "Mary is a woman's name, my son."

Holland's Ways, Sea fishing is one of Holland's prin-cipal industries, and large fleets of sturdy looking fishing boats are seen at the seaside villages and hamlets, so no doubt this and the almost amphibi-ous life the Dutchman leads among his canals and ditches account for the popularity of the fishing rod and line. The country villages with their white and green painted houses and pretty gardens are made more attractive by the survival in Holland of the pucturesque old time costumes of the people. Quaint linen headdresses and numerous ample skirts mark the women. Equally ample trousers—several pairs—clothe the men. The chilare miniature copies of their parents in dress as in everything else, even to the pipe or cigar in the case of boys. #### AUTUMN SOWN CROPS.

Results of Experiments Throughout Ontario.

Three hundred and twenty-eight farm ers throughout Ontario conducted experiers throughout Ontario conducted experiments with autumn sown crops during the past year. Reports have been received from thirty-one counties of the Province. The average results of the carefully conducted experiments with autumn sown crops are hereby presented in a very concise form.

Winter Wheat.—Five varieties of winter wheat were distributed last autumn to those formers who wished to test some of those farmers who wished to test some of the leading varieties on their own farms. The average yields per acre of straw and of grain are as follows: Imperial amber, ot grain are as follows: Imperial amber, 1.5 tons, 24.3 bus.; American Wonder, 1.5 tons, 21.8 bus.; Crimean Red, 1.9 tons, 21.5 bus.; Banatka, 1.4 tons, 21.2 bus.; and Tasmania Red, 1.8 tons, 21.0

It will be seen that the Imperial Amber has again given good results throughout Ontario as well as at the Ontario Agricultural College. The American Wonder, which gave an average of 2½ bushels less than the Imperial Amber is a white grained variety resembling very closely the Dawson's Golden Chaff. The Crimean Red winter wheat has been grown at the College for ten years, and is one which yields very well indeed. It possesses wheat of excellent quality, but the straw is somewhat weak. The Banatka produces grain of excellent quality for bread production. Ontario as well as at the Ontario Agriculread production.

Winter Rye.—Two varieties of winter rye were distributed in the autumn of 1911. The results show that the Manmoth White variety came at the head o the list in yield of grain with an average of 23.9 bushels per acre. In experiments throughout Outario for the last six years, the Mammoth White surpassed the common tye by an annual average of fully four bushels per acre.

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keen well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. ## YOU CARE FOR YOUR HAIR?

Of course you do—every man and woman does. That's why no one likes to lose his hair.

Of course you do—every man and woman does. That's why no one likes to lose his hair.

One of the greatest enemies of the hair is dandruff.
Dandruff is not merely an unsightly nuisance—it's a real menace. It indicates a diseased scalp. And a diseased scalp can't nourish the hair properly. When the hair fails to get proper nourishment it dies and falls out. Its perfectly simple when you understand it.

And still people say "I can't see why my hair comes out."
Dandruff—a sluggish circulation of the blood through the scalp—impaired vitality of the hair follicles—and the hair dies.

Nyal's Hair Restorer gets at the root of the trouble, by overcoming the dandruff. After a few applications, according to the explicit directions accompanying each bottle, the dandruff is seen to be very much diminished in quantity and continued use banishes it entirely.

At the same time the use of Nyal's Hair Restorer stimulates the scalp and promotes the vitality of the roots of the hair, causing a more healthy growth.

We do not claim that this will restore hair in case of complete baldness, but it will keep you from losing what hair you have.

Besides that, it's a delightful toilet article, and very agreeable for daily use in dressing the hair. It does not become sticky, neither does it make the hair harsh and dry. On the contrary by regulating the natural flow of oil from the scalp it keeps the hair soft and glossy.

It's made from a good old formula—so good that after years of use the people prefer it to any other sort of hair tonic.

Sells for 75c a big bottle.

The Tick of the Clock

> There Was a Legend About It

By EMERSON MARBLE ***************

There is coming about a singular mingling of American wealth and European ancestral abodes. It is now quite the fashion for an American multimillionaire to buy an old castle, repair it, decorate it and keep it for one of his homes. I am not exactly a multimillionaire. Indeed, I am scarcely a millionaire, but plenty rich enough to have bought a castle-a small one-and put it in habitable order.

It is a veritable feudal castle, situated in Pomerania between the towns of Dievenow and Kolberg, on the Baltic sea. It stands on an eminence overlooking the sea and altogether makes a delightful summer residence. As to winter-well, I can't say how pleasant it is in winter, for the moment the winds grow the least bleak in autumn I invariably leave, like the birds, for a warmer climate, but I should fancy it would be very desolate.

With the castle I bought what of the furniture remained in it. There were not many pieces, but what there was was very old. There was an elaborate bedstead with the arms of the family that built the castle carved upon the framework set on the posts supporting the canopy. There was the original dining table of massive oak. No wonder it remained. It was too heavy to be easily taken away. There was a spinning wheel that had spun all the material worn by the members of the inhabitant family for centuries.

At a turn in the great staircase leading to the rooms above stood one of the first clocks ever made. It was seven feet high and large in proportion. The machinery was crude, the weights heavy and the hands warped out of shape with age. But they were not moving. Indeed, they had not moved for many years. The pendulum was unhooked and standing in the case just below where it had ticked away a number of generations. A baby would be born, live to threescore years and ten, die, and meanwhile the pendulum would swing slowly back and forth, as the poet has beautifully expressed it, saying, "Never, forever; forever, nev-

Of course there was a legend about the clock. There always is a legend about an old timepiece like that. A musty record book went with the premises, giving the history of the castle in entries that had been made from time to time. I went to live there in the early spring, intending to spend the summer, and one of my principal musements from the first over this old record. Certain entries I found scattered here and there interested me exceedingly. These are sam-

Dec. 12, 1654.

At midnight the clock stopped. All knew that it would likely begin to swing at the next midnight and that it would mark the hour of our good Sir Olaf's death, who is lying sorely distempered.

Dec. 13, 1854.
The clock began again to tick at midnight and gave twenty-five ticks, when it stopped again. Sir Olaf will die on Christmas day. The clock will not begin to tick again till after his death.

A later entry was as follows:

Though the pendulum of the clock has been detached for forty years last midnight, a loud ticking was heard in the castle. All counted seven ticks. Poor little Hubert is very low. We look for his spirit to pass away in three days.

From a previous entry recording the birth of Hubert I judged that the lord of the castle and his wife had been married long without a child and Hubert had come to them a great blessing. After his death—he seems to have died in childhood-the entries for some twenty years are very meager, and the castle appears to have been seldom occupied.

I wondered at the superstitions of these people, who seemed to look upon the supposed or reported or dreamed ticking of a rusty clock whose pendu-lum had been detached for forty years as no more unusual than one would consider the appearance of a comet in the heavens. Nevertheless I never passed the old clock as I went up and down stairs without something akin to dread. I attributed this feeling to the superstition prevailing among my own ancestors centuries ago, the rudiments of which still exist in me.

I passed a delightful summer in my castle. I would sit all day looking at the ships now far out at sea, moving apparently so slowly that I could not detect their motion, just as we fail to perceive it in the passage of our lives. In the morning a sail would stand on the horizon, a mere spark of yellow sunlight, and by noon it would be of posite me. Sometimes when the wind was light it would be within my range of vision all day. On a terrace, at my window or on the battlements of a tow er I would dream dreams of the for mer denizens of my castle.

At one time I could see a viking ship pulled up to the shore below me. plum ed knights debark and, coming un to the drawbridge, stand and call to me to come down and lower it for them. At another men would be noisy in the court yard putting on armor and mounting flery steeds. There would be a sound of chains running through put levs, a thud of the drawbridge as it came down, then a clatter of horses' hoofs upon it as the warriors under their feudal lord went forth to do battle for the king. Then they go scampering over the winding road. their metal suits and armor shining in the sun, their plumes dancing on their heads, their forms growing less and less, horses and men passing into a gradual confusion until they are swallowed up in a green wood.

The summer passed altogether too quickly. September came and my children, preferring the gayer life of Berlin, departed and my wife was obliged to go with them. I preferred remain a few weeks longer. So I let them go, intending to content my-self with the companionship of those who, in my dreams, had centuries before peopled my castle. But the days had grown very short in that northern region by September and evening came all too early. I did my dreaming before the mammoth fireplace where I burned great logs, but, though they blazed and crackled and sputtered merrily. I did not like being alone. There were servants, to be sure, but I could have no companionship with them.

One night a dark cloud came up over the sea and brought a shower. I was lying in bed and heard the rain come down for a few minutes, after which all was still again. I was about dropping off to sleep when my attenwas arrested by what sounded exactly like the tick of a clock. Could it be the old timepiece on the stairs? I waited for a repetition. It was not a second, but what seemed ten seconds, when it came again. My heart stood still. Was the old machine about to predict the day of my death? I poohpoohed. There it is again, a third tick coming after the same interval. I tried to recall something in the old record book mentioning that the ticks marked more than a second of time. Nothing was said about this. but since they were phantom ticks by a pendulum that was not hung and since the weights were resting quietly in the bottom of the case an interval of one second was not to be expected. The seconds of eternity are some-

Why had I begun to count the ticks? would cease to do so. I tried, but failed. Four, five, six, seven, eight-I was obliged to count them. They would not permit me not to count them. Nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen—it was the 13th day of the month, and I hoped there might not be another tick. Then it would be no Warning! warning? That I was going to die some time during the month between the 13th and 31st? Nonsense!

times centuries in duration.

But my heart didn't say nonsense at all. It beat like a triphammer.

There it is-fourteen. Now I hoped it would tick on. If I must die I would rather have time for preparation. I continued counting the ticks. I had to continue counting them-fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty.

What was that moan?

Oh, that's the wind. I have heard that sough before. It comes from the current passing in a certain direction through openings. But how like a moan of one in suffering! It's the imagination that is working upon me. I wish morning would come. But it won't. The ticks always begin at midnight, and there has thus far been but twenty of them.

Twenty-one, twenty-two-it seems to me that there is a longer interval than at first—twenty-three, twenty-four. Surely they are coming to an end. There is now a long while between each. Like the breaths of one dying I counted twenty-seven, and there must have been half a minute before twenty-eight came. And it was the

Oh, heavens! I'm to die on the 28th of this month! What a night I spent. Would that my castle had been blown up by the Norsemen centuries ago and I had never seen it. Two weeks to live! Two weeks and one day! I would telegraph my wife the first thing in the morning. Telegraph what? That I was to be ticked out of existence by a rusty clock with no pendulum? How could I do that? Doubtless when light came again I would feel better about it.

And so I did. I arose, ate a good breakfast and got on pretty well till evening was coming on, when I called my seneschal—a fat, baldheaded Swede —and told him that I would take the wening train for Berlin.

"Why, Herr, I thought you would atay with us to the end of the month!" "The 28th? No. What am I talking about? I am going on the first train. And, Adolph, I wish you to take the old clock off the stair landing and put it down in the cellar. Bury it. No, don't do that. Don't do anything. I'll write you."

I seized my suit case and walked to the station, though it was two miles. I wished to put distance between me and that old clock. What shall I say when I reach Berlin? That I'm sick? Who'll believe me?

Nobody did. I told my wife what and scared me away from the castle, but we kept it from the others. "Why, I always thought you had such a contempt for superstition!" she "So I have till I see a ghost myself," i replied.

I thanked heaven when the 28th of September had passed and I still lived. There is a sequel to this story, but it didn't transpire for a long while. One night when my wife and I were at our castle it rained. I awakened her.
"What is it?" she asked.

"The clock is ticking." She listened to the first tick, then turned over and was going to sleep. "Well?" I observed.

"That's a dripping of water!" This time the clock ticked all night.

HAWKER WAS ECCENTRIC.

An English Poet and Clergyman Who Married His Godmother.

Robert Steven Hawker, poet and vicar of Norwenstow, England, was an eccentric person. In his younger days he used to daub the village physician's horse with stripes of paint until the animal looked like a zebra and then summon the physician hastily to an urgent case miles away in the country. Two elderly women whom he disliked he is said to have driven out of the town by sending all the undertakers in Plymouth to measure them for their coffins.

His marriage, too, was out of the ordinary. It happened while he was at Oxford. His father told him that he could not afford to keep him there any longer. Hawker at once set out to the home of his godmother, Miss Charlotte l'Ans, twenty-one years his senior and ssor of an annuity of $1,000. the possessor of an annuity of $1,000. He is said to have "run from Stratton to Bude, arriving hot and blown," and proposed to her. She accepted him. He returned to Oxford a married man and won a fellowship. The marriage was a happy one.

When his wife died Hawker wore at her funeral a pink hat without a brim. But this was in no disrespect to her memory. It so happened that it was his usual headgear at that time.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that 98 per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce or his able staff, have been absolutely and/altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult us by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printice, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Sash an Attractive Factor In Summer Frocks.

THE NEW PORCH FURNITURE.

Baronial Brown the Latest Approved Shade-Sun Has Less Effect Upon It Than Green or Paler Tints-Paper Party For the Kiddies.

Dear Elsa-You know, or probably you may not know, what an important factor the sash is going to be on frocks this summer. And for this reason I am sending you news of the latest girdle fixings-the new folded waist bands of soft satin which will be worn with day and evening dresses. A simple sash of this kind that I am making is of broad black satin ribbon merely folded around the waist and fastened at the back, where it is met by a flat panel of the satin stitched on the belt so that it hangs down straight at the back to about twenty inches from the hem of the skirt. This perpendicular panel of the ribbon is bordered with a jet fringe, and I have worked a design in jet beads above the hem of the panel.

Another stunning belt that I am making for a white voile frock is of tather heavy white satin ribbon, which goes straight around the waist and finishes at the back in two short ends, each terminating in a point. In each point a design of sun rays is carried out in soft, dull emerald green beads. The sash is bordered with a tiny frilling of emerald green velvet. When making a beaded pattern it is best and easiest to thread the beads on sewing silk, these being carried along the design and sewed to it with another needle threaded with fine silk. Many of the quaint sashes have long tassels of beads at the ends. Indeed, they are reminiscent of the knitted purses of our great-grandmothers' days, which were made of steel beads and finished with long tassels.

Porch Furniture.

You wrote me that you were going to buy green rustic porch furniture. Now, if you want to be in the front rank of fashion get baronial brown. which is a much newer and smarter color. It wears much better, too, the sun having less effect upon it, and even the paper furniture is being stained this rich brown. Paper furniture, you say? Aghast at such a notion? Well, this furniture is not a joke, but a very attractive reality, and very likely you have sat in a paper chair without knowing it and found it quite com-fortable at that. You may have taken it for willow, for the two are not unlike in appearance.

The paper is treated by a special chemical process, twisted into strong strands and made up into all kinds of usual shapes in furniture. Then it is table of conventional appearance, waterproof, durable and ready for any ordinary usage.

A little oddity in porch furnishings that will come in handy when there are guests on lawn or porch is the lemonade "moat," a sort of wide bas-ket with a handle made of the same material as the rest of the furniture, be it willow, paper or the prairie grass varieties. The "moat" has a large space in the center to hold the lemonade pitcher, jug or thermos bottle and a series of rings—usually about ten—all round this to hold glasses. For an informal lawn party this little con-trivance is extremely convenient.

And, in connection with paper, why not give Rosalie on her birthday a "paper party" and you will afford the tots the time of their lives.

All the guests should be asked to wear paper costumes over the plainest of muslin foundations or old substantial dresses, and your favors should be of paper. Naturally if there is a spread for the kiddies-and what would a party be without "eats?"-the table decorations, napkins, ice cases, candy bas-kets, etc., should be of paper.

A lamp shade costume would be very cute for Rosalie to wear, and a dress of this kind is easy to make, consisting as It does of printed Japanese paper over plain colored frills with a paper ruche to border the bodice and skirt.

Or perhaps you would prefer a "Christmas cracker" dress, which is quite original. This costume has a rather full bodice and plain skirt tied in tightly at the waist with ribbons. The skirt is cut in a deep fringe over a different colored red petticoat, and the sleeves are fringed likewise. Yours

Needle Points.

When sewing a hem on heavy linen keep a glass of warm water at hand and frequently dip the fingers into it. This will cause the stiffness of the linen to yield, and the work will be found much less difficult.

Accurate placing and pinning together of seams, etc., are most important when making up a dress. The right and left sides, too, must be made to match unless the figure is badly one sided, when a special fitting of both sides will be necessary.

Put the skirt on, fasten it round the waist, then, standing erect, get some one to mark at intervals with a piece of chalk the exact place where the skirt touches the floor. Remove the skirt and turn up the required hem (two or three inches from the ground being a most comfortable length in wear) beyond the chalk mark, measuring carefully all round

The New Silk Stocking. There is a new silk stocking which is warranted not to "run" in the ag-gravating "ladders" which are so difficult to darn neatly and which, darned or undarned, ruin the effect of the stocking. The top of the stocking, where the garter is attached is woven separately and is attached to the sheer thread silk portion by a strong machine stitch past which the possible " caused by the garter cannot get. Flesh colored silk hose or a pale champagne color are smarter than black now with the neatly fitting buttoned boot of satin, buckskin or dull

An epidemic of hog cholera is reported in Essex and unless the disease is checked in the next few days it is feared a large percentage of swine will have to be killed. Dr. F. A. Jones, Government Live Stock Inspector, has directed the destruction of 150 hogs during the past 2 mo days.

A quiet wedding took place Wednesday in the Strathroy Methodist church, where Miss Mary A. Knight and Cecil Dennis, both of Strathroy, were married by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Grahami B.A.

The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of grey whip cord with hat to match. The couple were unattended. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dennis left on the noon train for eastern points.

COMMUNICATIONS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for opinion expressed by correspondents].

Dear Editor .-Would you be kind enough to give me a little space in the next issue of your paper? The ministers in the town have just received a letter from England telling of the coming of Rev. W. J. Mayers, the Senior Deputation Secretary and one of the late Dr. Barnard's closest friends in the great week among the destitute in the great work among the destitute children of the old land.

Mr. Mayers is bringing with him a good company of boy trained musicians from the home, and asks for the warm co-operation of all the churches in arranging meetings, and Mr. Mayerstells of work being done and to secure the warm, practical help of the Canadian people. The band bell ringing, vocal and instrumental music given by the boys and instrumental music given by the boys under their trained leader, Mr. Henry Aaron, is a great musical treat, and to hear Rev. Mr. Mayers' story will never hear Rev. Mr. Mayers' story will never be forgotten. Mr. Mayers comes to Can-ada with the highest recommendation from all the churches. Australia and New Zealand has given them a warm wel-come. Canada I am sure will do the same. Knowing something of this work, I commend it very warmly to our minis-ters and churches engageting was may be ters and churches, suggesting we may be able to arrange a united meeting in the town and give Mr. Mayers and his boys a royal welcome. Hoping my letter may meet the warm approval of many who will be glad to help to make this meeting possible.

Thanking you in anticipation. T. M. MEAD.

THE TRUE CAUSE

OF RHEUMATISM

Due to Acid in the Blood-Can Only be Cured Through the Blood.

Blood.

Not many years ago even doctors thought that rheumatism was only a local pain caused by exposure to cold or wet. Now they know that the trouble is caused by the blood becoming tainted with uric acid. This condition of the blood causes the muscles to contract, stiffens the joints and irritates the nerves. If not properly treated the stiffiness spreads and pain grows worse until you are a helpless cripple, tortured day and night. If the disease touches the heart it means sudden death. You cannot cure rheumatism with liniments, plasters or hot cloths, as so many try to do. You must go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. The scientific way to cure rheumatism is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make new, rich blood that goes right to the root of the trouble. They sweep out the poisonous acid, loosen the aching joints and muscles and bring ease and freedom where before had been pain and misery.

Miss Beulah Sheppy, Morpeth, Ont., says:—"Following an attack of measles I took inflammatory rheumatism. My joints became swollen and the pain was
