AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS.

Twelve Seniors and Twenty-three Juniors Successful in Passing Examinations.—Six Students From Annapolis County

The winter session of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College at Truro was concluded on April 15th, and the students have since returned to their own homes. Fourteen students wrote final examinations of the senior year of whom twelve will receive the Associate Diploma of the Agricultural College. Of the remaining two, one will receive the diploma when he has written off the subjects which were unavoidably missed through sickness at home.

Twenty-seven wrote the final examinations of the Junior year, and of these twenty-three passed. The remaining ones will be advanced to the second year on passing such supplemental examinations as they actually failed in, or in one of the two cases, such examinations as were missed through absence or sickness.

Jere McAuliffe Brings Suit Against I. C. R.

It is learned that suit is to be brought against the I. C. R. in the exchequer court of Canada by Jere McAuliffe, the well-known actor, on behalf of his fifteen-year-old son. The sum of $15,000 is to be claimed from the government as compensation for the accident with which the lad, Gene McAuliffe, met in June last. His leg was amputated at the hospital in St. John, and he is still in the general public hospital, where his condition is reported as much improved. It will be remembered that the boy was run over by a passenger train as he was alighting from the rear end of it in the Union depot, St. John. His case was a particularly sad one, owing to his youth. Mr. McAuliffe has engaged John A. Barry as his solicitor and Daniel Mullin as counsel, and these gentlemen are now taking the preliminary proceedings in the case, says the St. John Standard.

Six Bandits Held-up Passenger Train

Spokane, Wa., May 16—After the holdup of a Great Northern Passenger train by six bandits between Colbert and Mead, last night, twelve persons were injured when the locomotive and the mail car, cut off from the rest of the train, ran back wild after the bandits had rifled the mail of an unknown amount, and collided with the rest of the train which had been left standing where the robbers took possession.

Having taken the detached mail car down the track some distance, the robbers looted the registered mail and reversing the engine, sent the locomotive and car crashing back into the passenger coach.

The conductor saw the wild cars backing down the track at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, and he and another trainman placed a tie on the track to stop their flight, but the cars, although partly stopped by these means, plunged into the coaches, throwing the passengers from their seats, and cutting them with glass from broken windows. A trainman, nerved to the task, sprang aboard the locomotive at the time of the collision, and shut off the steam, stopping the havoc.

Bright Outlook for the Sydney Steel Corporation

Montreal, May 14—Mr. Rodolph Forget, M. P., is very optimistic as regards Dominion Steel and Iron securities. He predicts that before long they will show a substantial advance. Especially is this true as regards the common stock.

"I do not hesitate to say," remarked Mr. Forget to the Witness, "that in my opinion everything points to a most profitable year for the Steel Corporation, and if I am informed correctly the company will show about 6 per cent. earned on the common stock. There is no reason why we should not experience an advance in these issues. Look for a minute across the border and note what is going on there. The demand for steel is improving with prices showing every evidence of advancing. In Canada we see the same thing. Business is increasing, more railways are being built and the demand for our own steel both here and abroad is said to be very active. We need expect no cut in price. To me it appears that we are about to enjoy a bull market for steel. At present quotations steel common in my opinion is a pretty good purchase.

"The steel plant at Sydney," concluded Mr. Forget, "is just beginning to grow and is becoming a considerable factor in the manufacture of steel rails on this continent."

Whole West was Shaken By Earthquake

Toronto, May 16—A Winnipeg despatch says that the whole of Western Canada, from here to Medicine Hat, was shaken by earthquake about ten-thirty last night. The tremor extended from Prince Albert southerly throughout Dakota, Minnesota, and Montana. No damage is reported at Winnipeg yet, although in some sections of the country dishes and merchandise were shaken from the shelves, causing great alarm.

This shock was foretold by Dr. Eunice D. Kinney, a native of the Canadian provinces, and at present the leading female physician of the North Shore, living at 155 Shirley Avenue, Revere, Mass., who predicted on May 7th that there would be a violent earthquake shock in lower Canada, in the vicinity of Quebec.

This is the woman who has become notorious through predicting earthquakes and during the last twenty-five years has foretold all the seismic disturbances of any importance, predicting the San Francisco and Messina shocks. She says: "During the past twelve hours the sky has had a very peculiar appearance that indicates an approaching earthquake shock. The sky is as heavy as it was before the San Francisco shock. The emanations from the ground cast a shadow on the horizon which I have been studying for twelve hours. The shock will be in the vicinity of lower Canada."

She was, however, a week ahead of the date of occurrence in her forecast.

Shot at Target Practice

Carelessness in handling a rifle caused the death of Reginald McKenzie, a youthful militiaman at the Bedford rifle range on Saturday. He was a recruit in the 63rd Rifles and was at target practice for the first time. He was leaning on his rifle after shooting when it went off. Bullet and brass foresight protector penetrated his heart and he sank to the ground dead. The deceased was only sixteen years old. He was a son of Kenneth McKenzie, of Eastern Passage, and was also a student at the Dartmouth High School.

It was the first time that McKenzie had ever used a rifle. At the inquest, Col. Serjt. Bowie, in charge of the 63rd Armoury, said that he had not left to his discretion he would not have issued a rifle as he did not think the deceased had a thorough knowledge of its care, but as he produced an order from the Captain of his Company, he was obliged to do so.

Views of H. J. Crowe Upon Con- federation of Newfoundland With Canada.

While declaring himself strongly in favor of the union of Newfoundland and Canada, H. J. Crowe, in an interview in Montreal, positively denied that he is commissioned as a go-between by Sir Robert Bond or any one else to effect any steps toward consolidation. Papers in Newfoundland have accused Mr. Crowe of acting as agent for factions in the Dominion and the Ancient Colony in favor of a union.

"Such an accusation is absurd," said Mr. Crowe. "I am a firm adherent of the union idea, however, and do not wish to hide my feelings in this regard. It is ridiculous to say I am authorized by either the Dominion or the Ancient Colony to negotiate toward the uniting of the two, as the Newfoundland papers assert.

"While I am much averse to the amount of publicity this matter has received of late in the Newfoundland press," continued Mr. Crowe, "yet it is possible that much good may result for the cause. The benefits have been shown the public, and at least the idea of a union fairly launched."

Mr. Crowe's friends are inclined to think, says the Montreal Star, that he had some status in Newfoundland. They point out that during the past six years of his operations in the island he had induced capitalistic ventures there to the extent of $10,000,000. Further he had built up an export lumber trade which averaged $80,000,000 in the same period. The time was long past when lumber was imported from Canada into Newfoundland. Much had been done by Mr. Crowe's relations with Mr. Downey, who was elected as a Morris supporter and afterwards had negotiations with Mr. Crowe, ostensibly looking to an understanding with Sir Robert Bond. In that connection attention is drawn to an Edward Morris, when the former passage in Mr. Downey's letter to Sir Crowe correspondence, reading as follows: "I have only further to add that I entirely absolve Mr. Crowe from any sinister motive in seeking to secure my addition to the Bond party. He is interested in the country's development, and is fully convinced that Confederation on the terms proposed would be entirely advantageous."

Would Be the Largest Land-owner in the World

St. John's, Nfld., May 13—Negotiations are said to be going on between Lord Northcliffe (Alfred Harmsworth of Daily Mail and other journalistic fame) and the Reid-Newfoundland Co. looking to the transfer of the Newfoundland interests of the latter company to the former.

Should the bargain be completed, it would make Lord Northcliffe the largest land owner in the world, larger by far even than the Reids are at present, and they are reputed to be the largest, as to their land properties he would add his own enormous holdings.

Lord Northcliffe's present holdings in Newfoundland amount to about 3000 square miles, or an area as large as Cape Breton island, made up for the most part of timber and pulp wood areas. The Reid areas are larger, comprising lands in different parts of the island. The railway lands include a strip a mile wide, the whole length of the Reid-Nfld. line, or something over 500 miles.

The interests of the Reids, besides the railways, lands, steamship lines, etc., include nearly all the public utilities of the colony, such as street railways, electric light and power systems, and dry docks. If Lord Northcliffe can manage to add these properties to his already large possessions he will be in a fair way to become a greater power in the island than even the late Sir R. G. Reid.

How far the deal has gone is not known. It is known at any rate that the Reids want to sell out their Newfoundland interests, not however because these interests are unremunerative, but because they do not wish to take up their residence permanently in the colony.

Bridgetown Boy a Successful Pastor

A social and reception was given in the North Baptist church, Gottingen street, to the new members who have come into the church by baptism and letter since the beginning of this year. Such a sight as was witnessed on this occasion has never been experienced at any other period of the church history, says a city exchange.

Since the coming of Rev. A. F. Newcomb to the North church new inspiration and zeal have been exercised in all departments of church work, and the church has been made to rejoice because of the spiritual uplift of the people.

As a result of this effort seventy-one persons were received into the membership and fellowship of this church, and, as they stood within a circle in the church vestry, supported by pastor and deacons, they were given a cordial welcome, tendered in words by Deacon Charles Graham and responded to on behalf of the new members by J. H. W. Beach. While all were standing, the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds" was sung, and those present gave a hearty hand-shake and expressed their pleasure to each one in being a part in the circle which would widen for helpfulness and activity in the Christian life as the days go by.

Learning Not to Spit in Public

(Montreal Star.)

The determination of the city police authorities to enforce the law as outlined in by-laws 323, 326, with regard to the spitting habit, is already having a marked effect in improving the conditions of the sidewalks, street cars and public places generally.

"About thirty arrests have been made in the streets during the last two days," said a police inspector this morning. "Every station in the city has two or four plain clothes men detailed for this special duty." Although the nuisance is still in evidence to some extent, it has ceased altogether at street corners downtown, where the warning signs are most in evidence, and it is a matter of a few days only before it will be practically stamped out. The superintendent of the Street Railway said that in the cars there had been a big improvement.

Fundy Power Co. Done

The Fundy Tidal Power Company's bill has been refused a second reading by the Senate. The chief objection seemed to be that a company with a quarter of a million capital could hardly build dams costing over seven millions.

TOWN MEETING CALLED TO DISCUSS LIGHTING

Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Co. Submit Terms of Sale to Town.—Other Matters of Interest Discussed in Council

A meeting of the town council of the town of Bridgetown was held in the council chamber the 17th day of May, at 7:30 p. m., with Mayor Ruggles in the chair. The following councillors were present: Dixon, de Witt, F. and Chute. A number of applications had been received and after considering them all and making enquiries the committee recommended the appointment of Mr. G. Lightly, at present of Bridgewater, N. S., who offered to accept the various offices for $600.00 and uniform, and upon motion it was resolved that the police committee arrange to have Mr. G. Lightly come at once and upon the best terms that could be made with him.

Mr. deWitt reported that the tire for a fire alarm had come and was to be put up at once.

Mr. Dixon reported verbally that he had engaged men to fill up some holes in the street.

His Worship the Mayor reported verbally for the water committee upon the subject of water meters, but the further consideration thereof was deferred.

A petition was read by the Mayor from a number of citizens asking that a meeting of the ratepayers be called to discuss the question of lighting and a letter from the Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Company was read offering its property for $30,000, and after some discussion it was resolved that the prayer of the petition be granted and that a meeting of the rate payers be called for the evening of the 25th inst., for the purpose of discussing the question of lighting either by purchasing the plant of this company or by adopting another system of lighting.

Following is the petition of the citizens and also the letter from the Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Company:

To the Mayor and Town-Council of the Town of Bridgetown:—
The petition of the undersigned residents and ratepayers of the town humbly sheweth,

For Canada's Navy

Mr. Edmund Bristol, M. P., for Center Toronto, who was tendered a reception by the Center and South Toronto Conservative association on the occasion of his return from Europe, delivered a brief address on Imperial defence.

"If Great Britain should have to face European conflict," began Mr. Bristol, "Canada should be in a position to do her share on land and sea. The time is opportune for the formation of an Imperial council to enable Canada to have a voice in the declaration of war and discuss military matters generally.

"We have our own coast to protect," continued Mr. Bristol. "Canada is no longer a dependent but a part of the Empire. The fishing grounds of a country are the natural recruiting grounds for the naval defence of a nation. We have them right here in Canada. In Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia we have the material for a great navy. I think we can build in Canada as good ships as anywhere in the world. In Sydney, C. B., we have the steel and the coal and if the Dominion government co-operated with the British government, we could build a dozen Dreadnoughts."

Australian Apples

The Australian apple season in London began with the recent arrival of the P. and O. steamship Mooltan, and will last until the end of May. The growers of South Australia, Victoria and Tasmania have engaged freight to London for 517,970 cases, and are also sending large consignments direct to Germany, where for the past two or three years an expanding market has been found for apples. It is estimated that London could always take a million cases of apples, provided they are of good quality, properly graded, and carefully packed.

In Favor of the Woman

The Herald recently referred to a case tried by Mr. Justice Longley at the last civil sittings in North Sydney, to which special interest attaches. It was a case in which the court had to decide as to the legality of the appointment of a woman (Miss Holland) to the office of town clerk and treasurer. Miss Holland, who holds those offices, recently issued a warrant for distraint for taxes, and the party against whom the warrant was issued, claimed that she was not legally appointed—substantially because she was a woman.

Judge Longley filed judgment Saturday to the effect, that Miss Holland was legally appointed, and that she had the right to act.

Friends in Time of Need

(By Annie A. Preston, in the Sunday Republican)

"When the city was young all the circuses and shows of that sort that came to town pitched their tents in the centre of that plot about where the brick church stands," said the large-framed, large-hearted man of affairs, who was driving with country visitors showing them his home city. "And among the many incidents connected with those shows was one that if written out would make as good a story as many that get into print, and every word true."

"Why do you not write it?" "Haven't the gift, I can't tell it and get it all in. It was this way: The first property I owned was over across there on River street,—I will drive that way when we reach the corner. Here we are." This is the house I built,—the white one,—here is where my wife and I began, and where the children were born. I set out every one of the trees with my own hands, and many of those in the next yard. Governor Lee lived there then, a fine man and a good neighbor. He was Judge Lee then.

"In this small house I lived a man who had two little lads in the family, doing chores and going to school. One was the nephew of his wife, an orphan, and the other was his sister's boy, who had the sort of a father that made him worse off than any orphan could be. They evened things up that way: If she did for her family, he was going to do for his family. They didn't get along first-rate, and the two little lads, having no one else in particular to love, loved each other, and finding no sympathy at home got into the habit of running into my yard at off hours—where my wife was fond of pottering among the plants and flowers, and, being a genuine child lover she gave them all the mothering they ever had, and after a while if they did not find her in the grounds or on the veranda they would come shyly along by the side door into the living room, where they were always very quiet and well behaved.

"It was at the time—doubtless you will recall it—when there was a fashion—we should say now a fad—for boxes, pails and trunks of japanned tin in bright colors. For a time nearly every family had more or fewer of these things around, my wife had a little pail of blue enamel with a wreath of scarlet roses, which I had bought in New York. The first time the boat went out for the ice the ice went out of the river. She appropriated it for her mission money and kept it on her writing desk, where the boys often saw it and had their little joke about her giving away mission money by the pailful, and as they were both in her Sunday School class they knew more or less about missions, as Sunday School children do.

"One day a circus came along and I should have obeyed my first impulse to give those poor little fellows money to gratify their curiosity, for they were circus crazy, not being able to talk of anything else; but if I had this story would have been spoiled.

"Early that afternoon, as affairs were getting under way on the park something suggested to me to leave my store on Main street and slip down the alley on which stood my barn to make sure that everything was all right there, it being so near the park that it was easy for the crowd that was congregating to spill over upon my grounds. Making a short cut, short but not inviting, and crossing the weedy backyard of my neighbor, where the two little lads lived, my foot hit against something and rolled it out of the way, that, as I glanced down I saw instantly was that little painted pail. I knew the pail at once, and as I stooped to pick it up I thought: "Those little fellows have stolen my wife's mission money" to pay their way into the circus."

"Leaving the barn to care for itself I vaulted the fence—I was not as heavy then as I am now—and mingling in the crowd, thinking to ask the man at the ticket office if he had sold tickets for bright cents and three-cent pieces to two boys, I nearly ran over the little culprits. Seizing one by each hand I hustled them right along to Judge Lee's office, my near neighbor, you know, who knew the boys as well as I did.

"As I opened the door and caught his eye as he glanced up from his writing, I gave him a wink as I said: "The boys have some money here that they desire to turn over to you before they are tempted to spend it. It belongs in this pail," and I took the bright painted toy from the pocket of my loose linen coat.

"The judge knew the pail and divined instantly what had happened. "I think there should be $3.20," he said. It seemed he had heard his wife and my wife count it the night before in planning to make out some report, but the boys fancied he had the power to look straight through their garments and into their pockets.

"Dirty hands pulled the money out of small pockets and placed the shining change upon the judge's desk, while he counted it solemnly and put it back into the pail. "Here are $3.30," he said, and I explained that I had given my wife ten bright pennies that morning for the mission fund. "Yes," he said, "here they are. The money is all right. Now, tell your story," he said, looking at the boys in a way that made them sure that he could look straight through them and divine their every thought.

"With tears and sobs the story was told just as you would imagine. They wanted to go to the circus, they had no money, they knew of the change in the little pail and they took it.

"Breaking and entering," said the judge sternly. "It looks bad," it points towards the reform school or the jail," and he went on talking to the two children in a way that brought tears to my own eyes as I saw their contrition and distress.

"It is terrible, to be sure, judge," I said, after a while, "but isn't there any way out of it?"

"We could, I suppose, put them under bonds to be good boys, and they could do chores after school to earn money, so they will not be tempted again to steal. I can find work for one of them."

"And I will hire the other," I said. "I am needing a boy, and this dreadful affair need not go into the papers. I won't even tell my wife about it, but will take the little poppy pail back and place it on the desk again where she left it, when she and the judge's wife went away to the mission meeting this morning."

"And," said the judge to his prisoners—"when you see the jail or the reform school you can think: If I hadn't had friends I might be in there. And when you see rough, low, bad men, you can say: If I hadn't had friends I might have been like that!"

"Years passed and those little lads kept to the good. The judge sold out and went up on High street, and I sold my River street property, and moved down town, building the house where I live now, and we saw much less of each other, although we generally met at church on Sundays and the boys kept on in my wife's Sunday School class just the same. They found employment in the city as they grew older, reached twenty-one and were made voters and were to vote for the first time at the fall election.

"There was a great contest over the nomination for mayor, and one evening those two young men came to my house and asked if Judge Lee would not take the nomination. "If he will not take it," they said, "he will not be defeated," they said.

"What is wanted is a good, clean, straight man. If any other sort is nominated the young men of the party will not vote. We want our city to progress, and not go on in the old saloon-keeping, pool-selling fashion, and that is why we want the judge for mayor—to start things in the right direction."

"Go and ask him," I said.

"No," they replied, "you go."

"The judge was much touched when I told him the story. "It is a perfect surprise," he said, "but I will stand."

"He did and won. It was a hot time. The next night the judge gave a spread for those who had helped him to win out so handsomely. I was standing by him as those two fine young fellows came up to shake hands. There we were again, the four of us together, and just at that moment the defeated candidate passed under the trees on the handsome lawn of the judge's residence. "Let me tell you something," said the judge, to break the strain—for it was easy to see that we all remembered that far-away day of the circus.

"Do you see—passing? Well, if I had not had friends I should have been like him to-night, the defeated candidate—and I think there were tears in the eyes of the four of us as we clasped hands in a circle of loyalty, that meant more to us all than any spoken word or elaborately prepared pledge."

HOW TO PACK AWAY FURS.

The greatest possible care should be exercised in packing away furs. A cedar chest with a perfectly fitting lid is probably the best receptacle for these garments during the summer months, and although for some reason or other the larger chest is not at present in favor, smaller ones of all manner of shapes are steadily gaining in popularity.

Sprinkle turpentine or camphor balls in the box or chest, and also saturate the paper in which the fur is to be wrapped with one of these preventives against moths.

To prevent the acid of the camphor from injuring the skin, let the first wrapping be of tissue paper. Remember, however, that neither chinchilla nor sable may be packed away in camphor, as it will make both furs a hideous yellow.

All white furs, such as ermine, fox or lynx, should be wrapped in blue tissue paper, never white, nor yellow for the acid in the camphor will cause these furs to take on a yellowish tinge.

Other excellent preventives against moths are bruised chillies, freshly-ground coffee and an occasional sprinkling with benzoline, white news paper, without anything else, is an excellent anti-moth material, for they have a strong aversion to printer's ink.

THE TROUT BROOK.

The air that blew from the brink of day

Were fresh and wet with the breath of May.

I heard the babble of brown brooks falling

And golden wings in the woodside calling.

Big drops hung from the sparkling caves;

And through the screen of the thin young leaves

A glint of ripples, a whirl of foam,

Lured and beckoned me out from home;

My feet grew eager, my eyes grew wide,

And I was off by the brown brook's side,

Down in the swamp bottom, cool and dim,

I cut me an alder sapling slim.

With nimble fingers I tied my line,

Clear as a sunbeam, strong and fine.

My fly was a tiny glittering thing

With tinsel body and partridge wing.

With noiseless steps I treaded the wood,

Glad of the sun-pierced solitude,

Chattered the kingfisher, fierce and shy,

As like a shadow I drifted by.

Lurked in the watery lairs the trout,

But, silver and scarlet, I lured them out;

Wary were they, but warier still

My cunning wrist and my cast of skill.

I whipped the red pools under the beaches;

I whipped the yellow and dancing reaches;

The purple eddy, smooth like oil

And the tail of the rapid yielded spoil.

So all day long, till the day was done,

I followed the stream, I followed the sun,

Then homeward over the ridge I went,

The wandering heart of me well content.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY ARSENIC MINE.

The Amherst News publishes the statement that a valuable arsenic mine has been discovered in Cumberland County. Four years ago a number of Amherst men became interested in prospecting, who have been quietly developing and securing assays until they became convinced that there is a great deposit of arsenic of fine quality. A company with $100,000 capital is being formed to be known as the Nova Scotia Arsenic and Mining Co. Edgar Filmore is president and W. A. Lowerison the secretary. All are Amherst men, but the intention now is to seek outside capital to develop the property.

When Doctors Differ

The London Nation sees peace, but the London Spectator sees war, and who shall decide when such eminent doctors differ?

The Nation asserts that it is "the building of men, not Dreadnoughts, of which this country stands most in need." But, happily for the world, war is not coming. Light-minded as some of our people may be, their ruling men are not so bad as to rush from a war which cost us 250 millions and much of the present depression of trade into a war which may double the national debt and divide up our sea trade among our rivals. The real "preparation" of all civilized countries, conscious or half-conscious, is not for war, but for a truer conception of their relations to each other, and a more harmonious interior life. Therefore, in spite of German and British ingenuity who quote each others articles, feed each their respective treasures—there will be no such "struggle" as the Spectator imagines. On our side the Liberal and Labor parties, on the German side Social Democracy—with its twenty per cent. of soldiers, in the German army—will stop both it and the growth of European armaments. "Moral force," the Nation adds, "is not dead in Europe, and in the confusion overtaking all these calculations of material strength we have a sign that it is the only thing which is alive."

The Spectator asks: "Is there any good reason why wars must continue and battle remain the last argument of nations?" And it answers "Yes," and proceeds:

"We are far from denying that war is a terrible evil. That it dominates the world as it does, is a riddle which we have not the power to solve and which we will make no pretence at explaining. All we can do is to point out to our countrymen that they must face the fact that war is the law of the civilized world quite as much as of the uncivilized, and that mankind has as yet found no other way of settling which will be to prevail when what we have termed a clash of wills takes place between communities who believe themselves equal in physical force. Such clash of wills among nations is as certain to take place from time to time in the future as in the past. We delude ourselves if we think that arbitration and the reign of peace and reason constitute one of the ways by which the British nation may escape from the anxieties and difficulties which now beset it.

"That door is closed, at any rate, for this generation, and," in the Spectator's opinion, "he is no true friend of his country who pretends otherwise."

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me, I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Elizabeth M. Kilbourne, of Winstead, Ct., claims to be the first woman who ever took a stitch on the sewing machine. She was formerly a teacher in Hartford, where she visited Elias Howe's shop and was given a chance to try his new invention.

Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Viceroy of Ireland, is pretty certain to continue as president of the International council as long as she will consent, as this official must have the following qualifications possessed by Lady Aberdeen. She must speak three languages, English, French and German; must have sufficient social prestige to compel the respect of all affiliated countries; must possess a full knowledge of the wide and varied work of the council; must be able to serve without salary, and pay most of the expenses of the office.

Miss Mary Adele Case, of Portland, Ore., who has been studying two years in Paris, has won the competition among English and American concert singers for the place of vocal soloists on the program of Harold Bauer, the pianist. FRIGHTFUL STOMACH TROUBLE

For Four Long Years He Suffered—Then "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

Stratford Centre, Wolfe Co., Que. May 14th, 1908.
I have been completely cured of a frightful condition of my stomach through this wonderful medicine, "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for four long years with this trouble. My head ached incessantly, I could not eat anything but what I suffered, awful pains from indigestion. I used every known remedy and was treated by physicians, but the dyspepsia and headaches persisted in spite of the treatment.

I was told to try "Fruit-a-tives," and I sent for six boxes, and this was the only medicine that did me any good. I am now entirely well, I can eat ordinary food and I never have a headache, and for this reason I thank this wonderful remedy "Fruit-a-tives." My case is well known in this vicinity and you may publish this statement.

ALCIDIE HEBERT.

Honored Annapolis County Politician Passes Away

Clementsport, May 10.—The death occurred at his home to-day of the Hon. William Hallett Ray, M. L. C., and one of the best known men in Nova Scotia. Colonel Ray had been in ill health for several years, and his death though sudden was not unexpected.

Born at Clementsport, Annapolis county, in 1825, he went to New York at an early age, and there studied medicine. Before he had finished his course, ill health compelled him to return home to Nova Scotia. He then engaged in a mercantile career in which he was eminently successful.

Mr. Ray was a life-long liberal. In 1860 he first entered the political arena and ran for the local house, but was defeated by the late Judge Johnstone. At the election of 1860 he was successful, and was elected to the house of assembly as member for Annapolis county. In 1867 he entered federal politics, and was elected to the house of commons, where he continued to sit until defeated by J. B. Mills in 1886. He was the man appointed to the legislative council, and up to the last year was one of the most active members of that house.

Colonel Ray was a man of sterling character, honored and respected by a wide circle of friends of both political parties, and his death will be greatly regretted. In religion he was a Methodist.

In 1848 Mr. Ray married Henrietta Ditmars, daughter of the late Isaac Ditmars, of Clementsport, who predeceased him about seventeen years ago.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. George Corey, of Clementsport, and three sons—Otis Willet, of Sydney; James L., of Clementsport; and Charles F., of Salem, Mass.

A brother, James, of Deep Brook, and a sister, Mrs. Lockhart, of Menossa, New Hampshire, also survive. The funeral, which was held on Sunday afternoon, was conducted by the Annapolis Royal Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of which the deceased was a prominent member, and was attended by a very large concourse of people.

SIGN OF THE SEVEN DEVILS.

A distinguished doctor some time ago wrote to a professional friend saying: "I would rather see a patient with almost any other disease enter my consulting room, than one afflicted with the seven devils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia." That doctor knew exactly that indigestion is difficult to cure—that it poisons the blood, starves and weakens the body and nerves. But he didn't seem to know that Mother Seigel's Syrup has cured tens of thousands of cases of indigestion. Simon Briand, Cape August P.O., Richmond Co., N.S., wrote us on January 27th last, saying: "For over 3 years I suffered from Stomach troubles. The little food I ate gave no nourishment to my body. Three months ago, I tried Mother Seigel's Syrup and two bottles of it completely cured me." He adds that it also cured a number of his friends.—Price 60 cts. per bottle. A. J. White & Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Joker's Corner.

THE DISMANTLED HOME.

We used to have a basket meant to hold the paper scraps. And other waste that might have been flung all about, perhaps; The basket now has vanished, and the feather duster, too—Dear mother took them both, and with some ribbons and some clue she fixed them up until at last with a delighted smile. She vowed that she had copied the extreme Parisian style. You'd never recognize them now—in whispers be it said They've changed to a creation that adorns dear mother's head.

We used to have a dishpan that was made of gleaming tin. But it has left the kitchen since the day that sister Min decided that her headgear was extremely out of date—She smuggled out the dishpan and she worked with it till late; She spread on some enamel, and about it she entwined Some artificial flowers. If that dishpan you would find Go watch along the promenade, until sedately there You see it resting proudly on my sister's auburn hair.

The scuttle from the basement has been lost these past few weeks; A mention of it brings a blush to sister Lizzie's cheeks. One morning she just had to go to see a matinee And needed a new bonnet, but could not afford to pay The price they asked her for it—so the scuttle disappeared, And with some paint and ribbon it was soon completely repaired. It bears a London label, and is tied beneath her chin. But still it is the scuttle that once stood beside the bin.

The chopping bowl is missing—and we cherish lurking doubt That grandma could inform us as to its new whereabouts. But no one asks a question; and we only trust they'll give At least a morning's notice e'er they take the kitchen sieve. Poor father grows and grumbles, but he says that he is glad They've left enough to live with while they follow every fad. He says that every morning he is really full of cheer To notice that the bath tub is permitted to stay here!

MOTHER'S LOVE LETTERS.

(Philadelphia Post.)

Little Willie was missed by his mother for some time, and when he reappeared, she asked, "Where have you been, my pet?"

"Playing postman," replied her pet. "I gave a letter to all the houses in our road. Real letters, too."

"Where on earth did you get them?" questioned his mother, in amusement.

"They were those old ones in your wardrobe drawer, tied up with ribbon," said little Willie.

LITTLE WILLIE KNEW.

"This," said a teacher to her class of arithmeticians, "is a unit." She held up a pencil. "This book is a unit, too," said she. "And these are units." And she showed them a ruler, a flower and an apple. Then she peeled the apple and, holding up the peel, said, "Now, children, what is this?" Silence. "Come, you know what it is," she urged. Little Bill's hand went up slowly. "Well, William," said the teacher. "Pleathe, ma'am, the skin of a unit."

A SMALL SOUL.

A friend was once talking with a crazy woman, when a stingy man passed by.

"Do you see that man," said she, with a cunning smile. "You could blow his soul through a humming bird's bill, into a mosquito's eye, and the mosquito wouldn't wink."—Catholic News.

A GOOD FOUNDATION.

Mrs. Youngwed—"This is the first bread I ever made, darling."

Youngwed—"Well, dear, you ought to build up an excellent reputation as a housekeeper on it."

Mrs. Youngwed—"Why?"

Youngwed—"Because you have started with an almost indestructible foundation."

DIDN'T WANT MUCH.

Old Lady—"I want an umbrella for about fifty cents, young man."

Clerk—"Yes, ma'am. Have you any particular choice?"

Old Lady—"Oh, I'm not particular—just so it has a silk cover and a solid silver handle."

SINGING EVANGELIST CURED BY ZAM-BUK.

Wife also reaps Benefit

Mrs. Birdie Ellis Johnston, of 168 Christina Street, Sarnia, Ont., gives the following testimony of what Zam-Buk has done for herself and her husband:—

"Some time ago my husband was touring through Michigan on the car, 'Herald of Hope,' as a singing evangelist. The minister in the car had a son, who in some manner contracted a serious skin disease, and my husband, unaware of it, caught this from him. He was all broken out in sores, which gave great pain, and he tried first one remedy and then another, but none of them did him any good.

"When all else had failed, we finally decided to try Zam-Buk, and see if this balm would succeed in healing the sores and stopping the itching and irritation. I am pleased to say that a few applications of Zam-Buk effected a complete cure.

"About the same time sores also broke out all over my back, and spread rapidly, until my back seemed one big sore! This was very painful, and as Zam-Buk had proved so beneficial for my husband, I determined to give it another trial. My nurse rubbed my back well with Zam-Buk. We continued with this treatment, and in a remarkably short time, considering the seriousness of the case, my back was quite cleared of the awful sores.

"On still another occasion I had need to use Zam-Buk. While cooking something on the stove, I happened to burn my finger very badly. I applied Zam-Buk, and bound up the finger. In the morning the pain had ceased and the burn healed nicely."

For skin diseases, eczema, ringworm, blood-poisoning, and all kinds of eruptions, Zam-Buk is absolutely without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, scratches, ulcers, piles, salt rheum, prairie itch, etc. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

WOMAN SKILLED AS WOODWORKER.

Lady Colebrooke, who is famous alike for her beauty, accomplishments and skill as a political hostess possesses a wonderfully complete carpenter's and wood carving shop at Abington, Lanarkshire. Here she has not only turned out some clever pieces of work, but she has taught some of the village girls on her husband's estate how to fashion wood by hammer and chisel.

Lady Colebrooke is a clever sculptor too and has exhibited at the Paris Salon. She shares with her husband a love of all that is artistic and beautiful and to add to all these varied accomplishments she can drive a four-in-hand and a Russian droshky-and-three.

CHAMBERLAIN'S LINIMENT.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

THE DAYLIGHT SAVING BILL.

(Ottawa Citizen.) The special committee on the Daylight Saving Bill decided to report it favorably to the house. Whether it will go through this session is doubtful but at all events it will stand as a recommendation for next session. The act of which does not apply to the Yukon Territory has been somewhat amended and now provides that from 2 o'clock a. m. in the first Sunday of April till 2 a. m. in the first Sunday of November of each year the time shall be one hour in advance of the ordinary standard time now in use and shall be known as standard time. It is intended that the act shall come into force in 1910.

The committee has communicated with many municipalities and boards of trade on the subject. From municipalities favorable replies were received as follows: Manitoba 8, Ontario 14, Quebec 6, Nova Scotia 3, New Brunswick 1, Saskatchewan 2, Alberta 2. Nineteen boards of trade concur in the proposal while seven municipalities in different portions of the country protest against the innovation. The committee, after enquiry has reached the conclusion that there will be no difficulty about adjusting things to the proposed new conditions—moving ahead the clock in April and putting it back in November. Mr. E. Norman Lewis, of West Huron, is father of the bill and Mr. MacLean, of South Huron, chairman of the committee.

Joan of Arc Beatified.

Joan of Arc, a Maid of Orleans, the Liberator of her country, the little shepherdess, the heroine and martyr, was the latest object of the Church's judgment, and has been with much pomp and splendour solemnly declared Blessed in the great Basilica of St. Peter's. Nearly five centuries have passed since the little shepherdess of Domremy appeared before the Dauphin whom soon to deliver from his native and foreign foes and see crowned at Rheims as Charles VII, King of France. Never, perhaps, in history did a cause seem more desperate than that of the Dauphin, his kith and kin against him, the lords and nonles of his country disowning him, and the emissaries of the English King laying successful siege to the French nation. The Dauphin was in disguise and preparing flight when a young country maid, as one "sent of God," though never having seen him before, recognized him in his disguise, and made known to him her wonderly heaven-inspired mission, of delivering him from his enemies and seeing him crowned in his ancestral city of Rheims.

What the secret was which she whispered to Charles and which made him recognize her as the "messenger of God," has never been made known but from that moment the Dauphin followed her directions. He recognized her as the "chosen of God," with the double mission divinely inspired of freeing Orleans and crowning the King. She solved all difficulties, overcame all obstacles, set aside all objections, entered Orleans in triumph. This took but few days, and though the apparently insuperable barriers to the possession of Rheims, which had been for ages the crowning place of the Kings of France, took some weeks to overcome, yet one by one they fell before the wisdom and prowess of the marvellous Maid. The city was entered in triumph, and with Joan by his side holding on high her triumphant banner, Charles VII. was anointed and crowned King of France.

Joan's mission was completed, and no one knew that better than herself. Gladly would she have returned to the simple programme of her country life, but the King would not consent to this. She declared that Voices from St. Michael, St. Catherine, St. Margaret, had spoken to her for years and revealed to her a two-fold mission which was to be accomplished. The Voices ceased when she was crowned the King, and now she obeyed him in their stead. In her obedient service to him, she had to meet persecution, trial and death. Her judges have been rightly compared to Annas and Caiaphas who, with mock justice, condemned to death the Lord of life. At seventeen she was the Warrior-Maid, the deliverer of her country, the idol of the people; at nineteen she was persecuted, tried and condemned for witchcraft, and died a martyr at the stake. But twenty years afterwards her honor and her faith were vindicated by Pope Calixtus III, and since then, she has been the idolized heroine of France, the renowned Maid of Orleans. Forty years ago, the cause of her beatification was introduced by Pius IX, and last Sunday found its completion in the magnificent ceremony at St. Peter's, when Joan's sanctity was vindicated and proclaimed to the world, and she was declared Blessed.

Never before, perhaps, has any one been beatified with such singular appreciation of the universal world. It goes without saying that the Catholic heart of Christendom rejoices, and English Protestant opinion finds expression in a tribute of the London Times which is worth quoting: "Even those who deride or deny the claims of Rome to pronounce on such matters will allow that few more noble figures have ever been held up to the veneration of their fellows. In the whole history of the Middle Ages there is no story more simple or more splendid, no tragedy more mournful than that of the 'poor little shepherdess' who, by her passionate faith, raised her country from the depths of degradation and dejection, to die the cruellest and most shameful of all deaths at the hands of her enemies. The elevation and moral beauty of Joan's character have won the hearts of all men."—Eew Freeman.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1909.

The subject of town lighting has received considerable publicity during the past few weeks through the columns of the Monitor-Sentinel, and our citizens having both sides of the story are in a position to judge pretty closely as to the merits of the respective causes of the Light Company and the town.

During this discussion the Monitor-Sentinel has refrained from expressing any editorial opinion regarding the open antagonism that regrettably developed between the town council and the citizen who is the manager and controlling factor of the electric lighting company, because we believed that any interference could do no good and would contribute nothing toward the ultimate settlement of the question.

The Light Company having now made a definite offer of the sale of their plant to the town, and a meeting of the citizens having been called to consider the purchase of same, and also to confer upon the advisability of acquiring a new system of lighting, it is to be hoped that all prejudice or animosity if any such should exist may be laid aside, and a strong effort made to adjust difference of opinion so that justice may be done to all concerned.

While we cannot but believe that the procedure followed by our town council to bring about the present crisis was actuated solely through an endeavor to promote the best interests of our town and citizens, yet we trust that our citizens in casting a vote upon the question at issue will not fail to have due regard for the deference and concession due a citizen who has for upwards of forty years been identified with the progress and advancement of our town and who having given many years of labor and zealous care to the establishment of the present system, has his financial interests as a result largely bound up in the expensive and up-to-date system which in its successive stages has made Bridgetown one of the best-lighted towns in the province and the envy of other towns less fortunately situated.

Obituary

MRS. ALICE M. CLEMENTS.

Mrs. Alice M. Clements, the well-known milliner, passed away at her home in Yarmouth early on Wednesday morning, after an illness of only a few days. She had been employed for some weeks with Messrs J. D. Dennis & Co., and was at work on Friday last when she complained of being ill, and went home. No serious results were entertained until Tuesday, when alarming symptoms developed, which culminated fatally next morning, as above stated.

Mrs. Clements was the widow of the late Capt. Nehemiah Clements, and was formerly Miss Alice Maria Wade of Belleisle, Annapolis County. She came to Yarmouth when a young lady and carried on the millinery business with Miss Hattie A. Wyman in 1874, and a few years later on her own account, until a little over a year ago she retired and this spring entered the employ of Mr. Dennis.

She was possessed of a pleasing and happy disposition and was beloved by all who knew her. She was 63 years of age, and is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary B., who was in New Glasgow at the time of her death, and by one son, George, at home. She was a member of Holy Trinity church and a regular attendant at all its services. The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30, service being held at Holy Trinity church. The bearers were: Messrs. N. J. B. Tooker, A. W. Eakins, E. M. Viets, E. N. Clements.—Yarmouth Telegram.

MRS. ELIZA A. HICKS.

At the advanced age of ninety-three years Mrs. Eliza A. Hicks, widow of the late William Hicks, of Centrelea, closed her earthly career on Friday, 7th inst. She was the last representative in the community of a generation which has passed away; and she was esteemed as one of the most kind-hearted and amiable of her kindred. Her father was Ebenezer Messenger, whose family of eight children have all passed over to the unseen shores. Mrs. Hicks left four sons, Alfred, Major, Troop, and Wilbert; also twenty-two grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren. In all of these she manifested great interest, and she was greatly beloved by them all.

During the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Armstrong she united in fellowship with the Baptist church, and through out her long life she has been a warm friend of Christian workers. There was a beautiful simplicity in her religious life, a tenderness and earnestness indicative of her genuine faith. To her the future was radiant with hope, and the loss of physical vision only intensified the clearness of the inner and spiritual vision of a glorified life beyond. She longed for the delightful change which she felt assured would bring her to the beautiful mansion she had been taught to anticipate. Calmly and gently she entered into the new life.

Rev. W. H. Warren, her old and esteemed pastor, presided at the interment, and Rev. Mr. Johnson participated in the services. Appropriate and touching hymns were sung by the choir, and the form of the aged pilgrim was tenderly laid in its quiet and final resting place.

WHITMAN-GILLIATT.

An event of no little interest to many friends and acquaintances in Annapolis County and elsewhere took place at the residence of Mr. James Gilliatt on Wednesday evening, May 12th, when their eldest daughter, Miss Jennie May, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard P. Whitman, recently of Granville. A large number of invited guests from Brooklyn, Clarence, Bridgetown, Granville Ferry, and other points of the County were present.

The wedding was a very pretty one, the parlor being tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. Promptly at 7.30, to the strains of the time-honored Wedding March, rendered by Mrs. Burpee Chute, the happy pair took their places; being preceded by Miss Eva Gilliatt, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Burpee Gilliatt, brother of the bride, as best man. The usual ceremony was solemnly performed by Rev. W. H.

Warren. The bride was prettily and becomingly gowned in white silk organdie embellished with lace and silk ruching with the traditional veil and orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of white geraniums, pink roses and maiden hair fern, and Miss Eva presented a charming appearance gowned in dainty white muslin trimmed with lace. Directly after the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was served in which the Bridgetown Band also had a share and enlivened the evening's festivities by giving many choice selections, which were highly appreciated by those without as well as those within. The presents were numerous and well selected, consisting of money, silver, glass, linen, etc. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome parlor suite. Other handsome gifts were a bedroom suite from Mr. and Mrs. James Gilliatt, parents of the bride, and a handsome wicker chair from the groom's parents, and conspicuous among other gifts were a handsome parlor rug, silver spoons, handsome china toilet set, and many other gifts of equal value. The bride and groom are deservedly popular and many unite in wishing them long and happy years of wedded bliss.

A large tract of timber land in Annapolis County, at Four Mile Lake, twenty-five miles south of Annapolis, and owned principally by A. D. Hundreds of acres are being laid waste and timber to the value of thousands of dollars destroyed.

THE SPRING POET.

There's a spring poet lurking round: He thins his ditties are profound, And worthy of the Laureate crown'd. Alas! They're naught but empty sound.

Beware of him! He sings about the balmy breeze, The bleating lambs, the budding trees, The verdant grass, the cackling chickens, The blooming flowers, O, shade of Dickens! The man is surely getting crazy, His figures are so mixed and mazy, His figures are so mixed and mazy, Keep safe from him!

Clean out his brains with Castile soap, Or, bind him with a hempen rope, And, send him quickly to 'Mt. Hope.' There let him meditate and grope And versify and muse and trope With distich, anapest and trope; Mail his effusions to the Pope, That he may on the 'Index' place them, Or, in some other way disgrace them. Farewell to him!

Yes, let him not in Bridgetown linger, Lift citizens, the warning finger, To bid him from our town depart By train, or bicycle or cart, Wherever he may find a mart. But, this, I beg you, take to heart, Let him not here essay his art. Get rid of him! -IGNOTUS.

The New Glasgow, N. S., Chronicle has the virtue of being outspoken. It says: The Free Lance, while giving a list of the achievements of Rev. Mr. Crowdis, of the congregation of Green Hill and Durham, states that in August Mr. Crowdis expects to go to Germany. We may presume that his object there is further study in theology. If so, may God save him, or he will come back saturated with the science brand so common now-a-days. If young clergymen would betake themselves to prayer instead of to Germany it would be healthier for them.

Most Photographed American Boy Dead

Chicago, May 7.—Four-year-old Paul Maurice Montford, who was killed yesterday by falling through a window of a south elevated train to the sidewalk, was known among his friends as "The most photographed boy in America." His father A. W. Montford, is a photographer, who does a large amount of commercial work, and whenever a firm wished a baby boy's picture to advertise its goods Mr. Montford used his little son as a model.

Some of the firms using the boy's picture are National Advertisers and through the happy face has looked from street cars, newspapers, magazines and billboards upon residents of hundreds of cities and towns. In one of his most widely known poses the boy is smiling as a brand of Talcum powder is being shaken over him. In another noted pose he is playing with a safety razor and laughing. Millions of persons have seen his picture taken while seated upon a tin bath tub, amusing himself with a cake of soap.

Yesterday he climbed upon the seat of the elevated car and placing his hands trustfully against what he imagined to be the window pane, plunged to the stone sidewalk, thirty-five feet below, and died two hours later. His skull was crushed in like an egg shell. The boy had just boarded the train accompanied by his mother. The frenzied and screaming mother was carried to the next station by the train. When told that her boy was dead she was with difficulty prevented from doing herself bodily injury.

WHOOPIING COUGH.
This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelg, of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL; and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

OTTAWA LOOKS FOR SUPPLY

The civic health department has issued a list of rules and regulations to be posted in all dairies, and which must be observed by all farmers and dairymen in the care of cows and handling of milk shipped to the city of Ottawa. The keeping clean of milk cows, the lighting, ventilation, and draining of floors are emphasized in the report. Care of the milk house, personal cleanliness of the milkers and care in the keeping clean of utensils used are also urged. In regard to the milk, the notice contains six strict rules for its care. Cooling and straining at proper temperature, and keeping it away from all dust or odor are two of the most important.

LOOK AFTER YOUR PROPERTY.

It is a safe rule in this world to look carefully after the details of your own property. Be sure your title deeds are recorded, that your insurance is kept up, that you alone have the key to your strong box in the safety vault. Do not leave your securities with your broker. If he is doing a conservative business he has no need of them. If he isn't you don't want him to handle your property. The wonder is that with all the confidence reposed in financial matters there are so few defalcations. There is no use in making it easy for some one to get your property. In this world it is hard for most persons to acquire anything, and they should be careful to the last degree in seeing that they are fully protected in it.

Horrible details continue to come from Armenia. The river at Mersina continues to carry down the bodies of dead Christians, and on Thursday, among the ghastly sights there was seen floating down the stream the mutilated body of a woman nailed to a cross. Around Marash many villages are in ruins. In one place twenty-two Armenian pastors on their way to a district meeting in Adana, were overtaken by a storm and took refuge in a church. The Mohammedans surrounded the building, set it on fire and shot the men as they came out.

THE CHILD'S BIRTHRIGHT.

There was printed on Saturday a part of an article from the London Telegraph which ought to interest parents who are teachers of children. What should be done with the child whose mind and nature lead him in the direction of romance? What should be done with the romance which leads children to the cultivation of fancy? There are honest people who think that the child should be taught nothing but what is real and true, for much that is not true, for much that is not real and true has to be unlearned. But in the most matter-of-fact lives there are often lessons to be unlearned, lessons to be forgotten, although at one time that which was taught seemed and was real and true. Christ often spoke to the people in parables. The parables were interesting and worth listening to, and were effective, though they may not have been relations of actual occurrences. Do the pleasant stories and fairy tales with which the literature of childhood abounds make more difficult or more easy for the young child acceptance of the scriptural relations regarding the Christ child and all the Man-Christ did? Does the cultivation of the imagination help or hinder? Take the stories of Walter Scott, not merely the novels, but more particularly the poetry in which the noble deed, the striking adventure is related, and the weird doings of magician entrance us, have these a good or bad influence upon the mind of the youth? Should children be prohibited from reading these? No doubt the tendency of the teaching of the day is to frown upon romance, and to exalt only that which is literally true. We all know that truth is mighty and must in the end prevail. But while truth is pulling on its boots there can be no harm in imagination running away. We know sadly enough that it will be run down all too soon by the stern realities of life. In other words, let the children enjoy the pleasures of the imagination even though they may be illusive. Is the most practical life of the most hard-headed of philosophers anything more?—Ex.

UTILIZE BARREN LAND.

Thirty-five years ago the town of Andover, Mass., contained as fine groves of pines and other woods as there were in the state. From the top of Institution hill, look whichever way you might, beautiful groves were to be seen.

Today from the same point it is like looking across an almost barren plain, says a writer in Horticulture. The woods have nearly disappeared, and few trees have been planted in their places.

The brooks where once a string of trout could be caught contain water only a few weeks in the spring or during heavy fall rains; the rest of the year they are dry, or nearly so.

What is going on in this town is going on in almost every town in the state, and if the subject of tree planting is not taken in hand either by the government or private parties Massachusetts will soon be a treeless state.

There are thousands of acres of land that are unfit for cultivation, yet this same land has been covered with good growths of timber and wood and could be again so covered. There is no better investment an owner could leave his children than to plant his barren lands with trees, besides benefitting the state and the country in which he lives.

Great Change in Sentiment Regarding Automobile

(By L. H. Perlman in New York Herald.)

Looking backward a few short years and remembering the hatred that was manifested against motor cars and their drivers, one cannot help but marvel at the great change that has come over the general public in regard to automobiles. The change has been gradual, but still it is very pronounced.

Three or four years ago the farmers and villagers used to assume a most belligerent attitude toward the automobile and its driver. It was not so much the "man with the hoe" as the man with the pitchfork that we were in dread of when touring through rural districts. The occasional cross trail of broken glass upon the road was not calculated to inspire us with confidence in our tires, nor were the shouts and imprecations that greeted us when we had to dismount and remove carefully placed obstacles in the roadway very pleasing.

The stamp of positive disapproval was upon the face of fully ninety per cent. of the people who jeered at us along the way, and I am free to admit that at that time I often entertained doubts as to whether the rural population would ever reconcile itself to automobilism along the country highways. Certainly the hostile demonstrations that were frequently made in those days were anything but reassuring to the motor car driver.

But year after year there has been a gradual decrease of what I might properly call "motorphobia" and an increasing interest on the part of the rural public in the makes and speeds and other performances of automobiles. Some farmers have actually ceased to worry for the safety of their wandering pigs and poultry and no longer consider the motor car an "engine of slaughter" that ought to be "blown up" or burned.

Open hostility has now given way to playful banter on the part of the country people whenever an accident causes a breakdown. Good natured chaff takes the place of the former mutterings. When such halts become necessary now there is a willingness to assist or render aid, and the curious crowds become deeply interested in the machinery and the process of making necessary repairs.

What a contrast between the temper of the people then and now! One can hardly believe it is the same old public that has hurled all kinds of anathemas—and some even harder missiles—at us as our speeding wheels converted the straying hen or too venturesome pig into mincemeat. The farmers used to fire volley after volley of abuse at us—and anything else they could lay their hands on at the time.

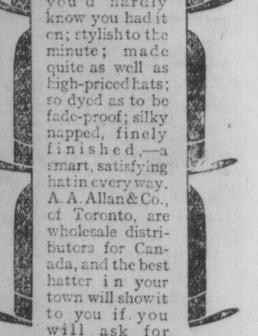

But the rural population of to-day has become entirely reconciled to automobiles and many country people are now buying and operating them themselves. The farmer's prejudices have been overcome and he appreciates at last the fact that the motor car has come to stay, and that it must necessarily supersede the horse as a means of quick and easy transportation. Moreover, he realizes that the popularity of automobiles means the success of a gigantic industry which is giving employment to hundreds of thousands of workers who might otherwise be idle.

It is not among the rural population alone that these facts have become apparent. The bulk of the people in the big towns and cities are distinctly friendly to motor cars—partly because they know and look upon them as an evidence of prosperity and partly because they recognize them now as a necessity. Objections are being rapidly overcome on all sides, and if it were not for the reckless or incompetent driving of some so-called chauffeurs, "motorphobia" would rapidly die out. Sensible people, however, do not blame the machine for the fault of the man driving it, and though the recent "epidemic" of accidents naturally caused considerable public indignation and comment, both were directed against reckless speeding and not against automobilism in the abstract.

The public wrath on the occasions of unnecessary accidents is perfectly justified, and should, I think, find answer in swift legislation that will relegate the fool-hardy speeder and incompetent driver to the oblivion to which they belong. It will, in my opinion, be the first right step toward eliminating "motorphobia" from the public mind when laws are passed that will compel every chauffeur or driver to carry a license that has been actually earned by practical test and not merely by so much money paid down for the certificate.

The best days of the automobile industry are in the future. "Time has worked wonders" in softening the erstwhile harsh temper of the public against the motor car and its drivers. All innovations have had to conquer public prejudice before they became acceptable or popular. Stephenson was mobbed when his first locomotive was run in the streets of Darlington, yet every civilized country in the world has its railroad engines today. The people are beginning to realize that the motor car is a necessity that has come to stay with us permanently, and they are now reconciled to the fact.

FREDERICTON BOY MEETS TRAGIC DEATH.

Fredricton, May 6.—Victor, the four-year-old son of Samuel Cameron of St. Mary's, met a tragic death this afternoon at his home. While playing with another boy in a yard, they started to climb through a hole in the woodshed. His companion got through safely, but Cameron slipped and fell, catching by the chin on a board at the bottom of the hole. His chin, being unable to release him, rushed to the house for the boy's mother, and when she arrived her child was dead. The doctor decided shock killed him.

THE HOME

THE NEW GUEST BOOK.

One of the stock subjects for writers in our household papers has always been: Guests—How to Prepare for Them: How to Entertain Them: How, in short, to be the Perfect Hostess. And who has read have taken the lessons to heart and followed out the suggestions, even to the transforming of our homes and habits for each new visitor.

The guest room is not only swept and dusted when company is at hand—dusted even to the casters on the bed—but it is also garnished. We have purchased the writing desk we said we could not afford, for the sitting-room, and fitted it up with the best inks and our own slender stock of note paper, a cherished pearl and gold pen, and the box of stamps which all articles in the Guest Room declare is essential to perfection. We have laid hands on the cologne bottles and silver from each bedroom in the house and set forth the dressing-table; we have decked the windows with fresh curtains, bought linen and blankets better than we ought, and furnished the bed. Then we have added the vase of flowers we have been told is needed as the finishing touch, and gone downstairs to see what could be done elsewhere.

In the parlors we have moved the furniture to hide the worn places in the carpet and re-hung the pictures to cover the spots on the paper; we have made new sofa pillows and purchased a better shade for the lamp. In the dining-room we have set out the best dessert plates, knowing they will infallibly be nicked by Bridget, and burnished up the cut-glass bowl, realizing that it will meet certain destruction at the same hands.

Then we have made salad and cake, cooked chickens, whipped cream, and finally, exhausted but smiling, have met the guest at the station and escorted her home. While she unpacked we have hastily read over again the latest "hints" on Entertaining Visitors, and made notes of the coming concerts and of the ships which offer bargains.

Of course we have done all this: the belief that we must do as much is now ingrained in us, after years of being assured that it is the very latest.

At least we can do by way of becoming that most desirable thing, the Perfect Hostess. But why, should we be asked to do more? Can flesh and blood accomplish anything beyond?

It would appear that we must take on new burdens, for nowadays we are told that even to draw near the ideal to which we aspire we must keep a Guest Book for our private instruction, and therein set down from time to time, as memory serves or experience teaches, the preferences of our guests, past, present and to come, and be ruled accordingly. The pages of this book are to read something like this:

"Aunt Maria: Cannot eat veal; hates cats; will not sleep in cotton sheets; dislikes shopping; loves to drive."

"Helen Smith: Likes walking; fond of being read to aloud; does not eat eggs in any form; sits up late; expects to meet the neighbors socially. "Cousin James: Hates to see current magazines about; fond of a pipe after dinner, but must be urged; will not eat anything canned; won't ride in trolley cars; cannot bear to hear annexation spoken of; hobby, restricted immigration."

And so on, through all one's possible visitors. But must we submit to this new exacting? Was not life difficult enough before, and are our friends in truth Juggernauts? Must everything be laid on the altar of our guests' whims and fancies?

Suppose for a moment we could reverse things. Imagine a guest room furnished in keeping with the rest of the bedrooms of the house, with plain things and worn things and pretty things, as is our own; suppose the sitting-room should be left in its everyday condition, with no effort to hide the spots in the carpet; suppose we use the ordinary china and serve the ordinary food, and, most extravagant supposition of all, only suppose that the guest should keep a Book of Hostesses, and that one page should read like this:

Mrs. Smith.
Make your own bed; only one maid kept.
Help darn stockings on Fridays; read aloud when Mrs. S. sews.
Pay attention to the children and assist them in their lessons.
Get self-stamped envelopes and stylographic pen.
Go to the missionary meeting; Mrs. S. President.
Stay in guest room long enough every day to rest Mrs. S.
Eat everything offered; digestive tablets in trunk if necessary.
Probably none of us will ever know what it is to entertain an owner of such a book, nor would we ever be willing to offer anything but our very best. We will continue as hostesses to have everything at high-water mark in our homes and to amuse our company from dawn till dark, if it kills us. But oh, what popular visitors we would become when it came our turn if we could only convince our friends that we truly preferred the simple table and plain rooms and everyday habits of the family rather than the company ways, and if we were guided by the suggestions we had already set down in our private book under the heading, How to Become the Perfect Guest!

THE WISDOM OF LOUISE—ON HOSPITALITY.

"Didn't we have a nice time?" I asked Louise, as the door closed behind us and we started rilly down the street.

"Of course!" she replied cheerfully. "Why 'O' course? Sometimes we don't."

"Oh! because she didn't expect us, and hadn't got ready for company. That was the charm. Don't you know that it half kills a good time when one is invited? It does for me. I always think of funereal best rooms and a table loaded with cakes, pies, jams, and all sorts of indigestible compounds."

"You are 'invited' to tea, and the minute you enter the hall you are aware of the fact, for everything is in immaculate order, your hostess is dressed in her best and even if you do fall into a free-and-easy conversation, or perhaps get out a bit of needwork and begin to wax social, the fact is impressed upon you by the sounds in the other rooms, preparatory to the imposing ceremony of going to the table. You can hear whispered admonitions to the children, and you know that your hostess's husband, instead of coming in with a hearty 'Hello, going to stay?' has had an extra five minutes of primping after coming home, as well as wifely injunctions to be sure and help that particular portion of the chicken tongue, or whatever it is, to the 'guest.' And by the time you are well seated and have begun to eat, you can't half enjoy the good things which are too plentifully provided, and you know your hostess is disappointed. Oh, save me from the regulation being 'invited out!'"

"Now, to-day," she went on, "we just happened to call near a meal time, and it seemed just cordial and natural that she should ask us to stay, and what a good time! The table wasn't immaculate—but what of that? She was so easy and gracious and you enjoyed every moment of it, especially when the muffins gave out before our onslaught, and she said we would have to fill up on crackers."

"I tell you, Harriet, that is hospitality. Just opening your house and heart in ready welcome to whatever comes along."

"It isn't hospitality to just invite people once in a while out of duty. People make so much work of having company that it spoils all the blessed sense of hospitality."

"What is it we like to stop at a friend's house for? Certainly not the food we eat. It is a little glimpse we get into the lives of our friends, and that little glimpse is wholly annihilated by the kind of accepted hospitality I spoke of. We like to drop in, as they say, and partake of what our friends are having."

"The person who truly extends hospitality is the one who takes you right in with a smile, morning, noon or night, and never lets you feel for the moment that your call is ill-timed. It isn't always easy and that is why there isn't so much true hospitality in the world. We need a revolution and general shaking up along these lines. We ought to realize that it is us, and our home life for which our friends care—not for clean table-cloths and dusted parlors and just be easy and happy whenever one comes, and give them just what we have and let them join in the home feeling—that's what we want. That's what people are hungry for—the home atmosphere, and when we get it, no matter how or what the conditions, that is when we are satisfied, and feel that we have really partaken of hospitality. The place I love best to go, don't tell!—she bent and whispered: "they have table oilcloth on the table and eat in the kitchen, but they love to have you come, and they talk about things—not watch you eat. I love to go."

She shook her head defiantly. "Come home to supper with me," I begged. "If you like, I can remove the tablecloth, and there is to be hot apple sauce."

"Thanks! I love it!"

WHAT FOOD WILL DO.

Caroline Lee Harris in the Union and Times gives some pointed truths about what food is to the body. All those foolish people who think that it doesn't matter what they eat, should read her words with care and hold them for future reference. Mrs. Harris wrote:

"Years ago, a hysterical woman was laughed at; and anyone giving way to her nerves was rather ashamed of herself. But nowadays the talk about nerves goes glibly and no one is ashamed of owning a neurasthenia or any other of the diseases to which nerves can reduce a woman. There are excuses for these troubles which are so common. The rush of the day's work, the pace that all have to take to keep in step, the hurry and worry over getting a decent living, the failure of plans, all tend toward the breakdown of the delicate nervous system. It is something which comes—that is all. What to do about it in the way of cure is another matter."

"A severe case of nervous breakdown was known to the writer, and its care and beneficial treatment is of interest. Food, simple, well cooked, ample in quantity and served at frequent intervals did far more than medicine to work a cure. Before food was served the sufferer would be unable to control herself. By the time the meal was half over, she would be perfectly calm. The effect of increasing the number of meals was tried with success. The keeping up of her strength and possibly the increasing of the work of the digestive organs conquered her nerves. This is the treatment at the Weir Mitchell Sanatorium; over-feeding cures a larger percentage of patients than is known of by other methods of treatment."

"It is a well proved fact also that good, substantial food, well cooked and attractively and pleasantly served, will overcome the drink habit. The craving for liquor produces, or is, a faint gnawing feeling in the stomach, an all-gone sensation which suggests a drink. A meal, an apple, an orange, even a glass of water will sometimes stop this craving. The longer the craving goes un-satisfied, the longer the patient can be kept sober. If the habit of keeping sober can be established, the work is done."

"We hear a great deal of the sorrow of the wife of a drinker; it is a fate to be dreaded. But if a woman finds that she has such a terrible thing to grapple with, she must do her best to conquer it. If she will drop all other interests, all that can be dropped, and set herself to cure that case of disease, she will do it. She cannot do anything by 'fresing her mind,' nothing by quarreling, nothing by neglect; she must realize the situation, and rid herself for the battle with the devil of drunkenness. She will do well to hold her tongue; to keep herself tidy in appearance; to keep her house as attractive as possible; to life all things of a disagreeable nature; to be ready with a cup of coffee (taken for her own benefit of course), a glass of lemonade, ready for a game of cards or checkers, ready for a stroll. Longer and longer apart the falls will come; and when her beloved is himself again, she will have her reward. Then she will be paid for all her toil and self-denial, then her children will not have to blush for the father she has given them."

BODIES PILLED LIKE CORDWOOD—ADANA.

Constantinople, May 1.—A letter from Tarsus, written by Dr. Thomas C. Christie, of Hartford, Conn., dated April 20th, says: "We breakfast, dine and supper on horrors. I never would have believed men capable of such cruelties, the sight of which I saw Saturday morning. As the train on which I was riding moved through the vineyards and gardens this side of Adana they reminded me of Shiloh, of Corinth, of Vicksburg, of Atlanta. Here were bodies lying where they had fallen. There was a heap of ten or twenty piled up like cordwood. I suppose in preparation for burial. In Adana cartloads were being dumped into the river. In the long street leading up from the station I counted in the quarter of a mile I traversed over thirty bodies that had not yet been removed."

"There were two whole days of bitter street fighting, of massacre of the defenceless and of burnings."

THE NORTH MOUNTAIN.

(By E. F. Neville.)

Oh, dark browed mountain, thou art fair When tinged with Summer's green, Or, when through Autumn's bracing air Thy painted sides are seen.

Or yet when Winter's hoary face O'er all thy length extends, And the squat fir trees at thy base With snowy burden bend.

The sun behind thy ramparts falls, And when his light is quenched Thy burly shape and grey trap walls With deepest gloom are drenched.

But when again he shows his face Across the eastern hills, He greets thee glad, while each dark place With light and warmth he fills.

From stormy Fundy's fiercest blast The valley thou dost shield, A barrier bold, with anchor fast Deep 'neath the smiling field.

From out the Bay the rolling fogs Bombard thy northern side, But at thy summit, in the fray, Thy scatter far and wide.

From Blomidon to Digby Gut Extends thy wood crowned crest, While ravines and dark hollows cut Thy step rough southern breast.

For ages thou hast stretched thy length Along the valley's edge, Like sleeping giant, in thy strength Of rocky spur and ledge.

We puny mortals fade away, Our pathways moist with tears, While over thee tonight, the day, Shall pass for ever years.

A St. John Stone Mason Cured of Rheumatism

By "Father Morriscy's No. 7" After Seven Doctors Had Failed.

647 Main St., St. John, N.B. FATHER MORRISCY MEDICINE CO., LTD. I am writing to tell you I have been a victim to Rheumatism for several years, and have been treated by seven doctors without finding any permanent relief until I got Father Morriscy's medicine. It has cured me so I am able to do my work and find I am as well as ever in my life.

Yours truly, JOHN CRAWFORD.

Rheumatism is caused by sluggish Kidneys failing to take the Uric Acid out of the blood. The whole system becomes loaded with poison, which gathers in joints and muscles, causing agony at every movement. "Father Morriscy's No. 7" Tablets act directly on the Kidneys, stimulating them to vigorous work. They dissolve the Uric Acid in the blood and free the whole system of the poison. Then, of course, the Rheumatism leaves. Price 50 cents at your dealer's, or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 18

HEIR TO THRONE OF NETHERLANDS.

The Hague, April 30.—Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands, gave birth to a daughter this morning. The condition of her majesty is most satisfactory, the infant princess is doing well, and Holland is celebrating the happy event from one end of the country to the other with expressions of joy and gratification such as seldom before have been witnessed on the part of this placid people.

The political significance of the occurrence lies in the fact that there is now an heir to the throne of the Netherlands—a circumstance that very greatly enhances the chances of the country for continued independence.

STORMS IN THE WEST.

Chicago, April 29.—A violent storm accompanied by thunder, lightning, and rain, struck this city shortly after midnight.

Kansas and Iowa have experienced wind storms approaching tornadoes in violence. Telegraph and telephone wires have been blown down for miles southwest of Des Moines. Lightning and hail have caused much damage. A tornado has wrecked a portion of Douglas, Kansas, killing one person and injuring a dozen others. Snow heavy enough to cause a blockade is reported from Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and is general throughout the northwest. In Iowa, near Mason City, three inches are reported.

ANGLO-SAXON ALLIANCE.

(Toronto News.)

The extreme improbability of war between the British Empire and the United States enables the British Government to disregard the American navy in its estimates for the two-power standard. In all likelihood the United States would stand by Great Britain in any emergency, as Great Britain stood by the United States when during the war with Spain a combination of European powers threatened the Republic. It fairly may be hoped that some day we may see a world-wide defensive alliance of the Anglo-Saxon races.

The fishermen on vessels will soon all be equipped with gasoline power boats which facilitates the work by half.

Our people, who have been on tip-toe of expectation have had their hopeful anticipations fully realized in the new ferry boat, the "Port Wade." The management, having been delayed in getting the boat inspected, have been running free trips each day of the past week to the "Tourist City," giving all ample opportunity of testing the reliability and comfort of the boat. Her size, which is presumed will be adequate for a few years, is length 59 feet, beam 12 feet, draft 4 feet, fitted with twin screws, and 24 h. p. engine reversible, built by the Phoenix Foundry Co., St. John, N. B. Her cabin will seat 25, and has capacity of 75 in all. The public will find Captains McGrath and Keans very courteous and obliging, even with management up-to-date in every detail.

FARMERS IN ONTARIO ALMOST IN DESPAIR.

St. Mary's, May 17.—Farmers in Western Ontario are almost in despair at the late spring and almost constant rains. Scarcely any have more than twenty acres sown, while hundreds have not sown an acre. A young lady had a candy pull the other night, and invited some of her friends. A tray of candy was set outside to cool, and somebody a good deal cooler than a north wind in January walked away with the whole business. The taking of the candy might have been overlooked, but when it came to smashing the tray the joke ceased and the affair assumed the form of a very mean trick.

The remains of the late Charles Pinkney, who died in Boston last Tuesday, arrived here on Saturday last for interment. Rev. Mr. Carter met them at Bear River station where a procession formed and the body was taken direct to the cemetery. On Sunday afternoon the funeral sermon was preached in the church to a large congregation, Mr. Carter being the preacher, and his remarks were impressive and eloquent. The remains were accompanied from Boston by Mrs. John Winchester and her son, John, daughter and grandson of the dear dead.

E. R. Thomas has a hen story that knocks the spot off the best fish episode ever related. In brief it is this: A few weeks ago he set a hen on sixteen eggs, and she hatched out eighteen chickens. The goose that laid the golden eggs was not a patch to this hen, because an egg can be turned into gold, but when a hen starts working miracles of this nature, the wisdom of the sages sinks into insignificance. They have always held that if nothing is taken from nothing, nothing remains, but Brother Thomas' hen has exploded all that by producing two chickens from nothing, and the aforesaid brother is in hopes that all his hens will get the same habit so that eggs can be dispensed with altogether so far as the raising of chickens is concerned.

A COWBOY'S IDEA.

A converted cowboy once gave this very sensible idea of what religion is: "Lots of folks, that would really like to do right, think that servin' the Lord means shoutin' themselves hoarse praisin' His name. Now I'll tell you how I look at that. I'm workin' here for Jim. Now if I'd sit around the house here, tellin' what a good fellow Jim is, and singin' songs to him, and gettin' up in the night to serenade him, I'd be doin' just like what lots of Christians do; but I wouldn't suit Jim, and I'd get fired mighty quick. But when I buckle on my straps and hustle among the hills, and see that Jim's herd is all right, and not sufferin' for water or feed, or bein' run off the range and branded by cattle thieves, then I'm servin' Jim as he wants to be served."
