Yesterday was a great day for the Independent Order of Foresters. There were thousands of them on the grounds, and they all looked happy. Indeed, why shouldn't they? For a time it was Foresters' day. There were Foresters present from all over the country.

Dr. Oronhyatekha, M.D., S.C.D., drove to the grounds in the afternoon and was welcomed with a grand reception. The supreme chief ranger was met at the gate by the Foresters' Trumpet Band, under the command of Major Emery and a guard of honor, under the command of Major A. H. Brooker.

The great fanfare of trumpets soon attracted a large crowd, who formed in the procession to the Foresters' tent in Society Row. In the carriage with Dr. Oronhyatekha were his son, Dr. Adair Oronhyatekha, Brigadier-General W. W. Dunlop, and Dr. Milman.

Among those present at the reception were Major W. C. Wilkinson and Major McMurtry. On arriving at the tent, Dr. Oronhyatekha was met by thousands, who greeted him with a grand reception.

Somebody asked, "Doesn't his arm give a cold?" To be sure he does, but Dr. Oronhyatekha would shake hands all day and never utter a word of protest.

Dr. Oronhyatekha was also kept busy shaking hands with friends. In a few words, the supreme chief ranger spoke in the highest terms of the health and spirit of one of the most progressive years in his life. Lately he had attended many high court meetings and had been pleased to find the progress being made, both financially and numerically, most satisfactory.

The accumulated funds of the order are at the lowest point since the Orphan's Home and the excellent work during the first six months of the year was over 12,000. The supreme chief ranger spoke in the highest terms of the health and spirit of one of the most progressive years in his life.

In the first place, the courts collect the monthly assessments from the individual members and send them direct to the supreme secretary. The courts are authorized to send these remittances only by bank draft; each order must be made payable to the order of the bank selected by the executive council in which the current deposits are made.

Where this regulation is complied with, the orders remitted cannot be cashed and the money used by anyone, but must be deposited in the bank designated. After the funds are in the bank not a dollar can be withdrawn except on the order of the supreme chief ranger, supreme secretary and supreme treasurer.

Only a sufficient amount is kept in the bank on hand to meet claims promptly as they accrue; the balance of the funds is deposited in the insurance department of the Dominion of Canada, and the investments made by the I.O.F. are all "sure things." No chances are taken and the returns are always satisfactory.

The supreme court, under the provisions of the amendments to its Act of Incorporation, secured from the Parliament of Canada in 1896, maintains a government deposit of $100,000 in Canada. It has in addition a deposit of $66,000 in the United States, and $25,000 in Australia. The balance of the funds is deposited with or invested in securities of the highest quality.

WHERE GOD FISH RISE TO THE FLY.

There was a good fish rise of them, sportmen every one, and they were talking fishing with Mr. Lindsay, who has charge of the I.C.R. exhibit. There was an animated discussion as to the best known of these for salmon, and the relative merits of "Durham rangers," "silver doctors," and "Jock Scott's" were argued pro and con.

Mr. Lindsay related how, when casting for trout on a New Brunswick stream, he hooked a fifteen pound salmon and after an hour's struggle actually landed the fish. After the gentleman had glanced at each general discount, Mr. Lindsay asked if they ever heard of a codfish taking a fly. No one had, but all were prepared to be convinced.

During the fire at Halseybury the Carey's went thru the flames unscathed, and that adds to the record. The exhibit of these safes by Messrs. Ford and Featherstone in the manufacturers' building is unique and attractive.

At the exhibit may be seen safes of all sorts and sizes, but all durable and burglar proof. They are fitted with time locks and other modern appliances of latest and best design. Consequently the sales of this safe reach up into the thousands.

Brass Goods. The James Morrison Brass Goods Company have reached the acme of perfection in turning out household necessities, made of brass. There isn't an article that doesn't reflect credit on the company, and the patrons of this firm always speak in high terms of the quality offered. The exhibit in machinery hall is a sight to inspect carefully.

Glass Blowers. Thousands of people visited the Glass Blowers on the Midway yesterday. The exhibit of these safes by Messrs. Ford and Featherstone in the manufacturers' building is unique and attractive.

ly entrusted to carry out the wishes of the people in their demand for cheap power? If these questions are pertinent they call for answers, quick and full. It is irritating enough to have doubt thrown on the capacity of the power commission by partisan and hiring newspapers, without having the stamp of the government placed on the curtailment of the powers and the prestige of that body.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane may have an explanation. If he has been carrying out what he is entitled to do by law, then that law must be changed. Now that the matter has been brought up, let all the facts be known.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane says that he thinks Niagara Falls power is the limit of the hydro-electric power commissioner's energies, but this is not the view of the people of Ontario. In as much as this view limits the scope of the power commission, so does it ignore the commission.

The people of Ontario expect from Premier Whitney and his colleagues the most determined and consistent loyalty to the proposal for cheap and wide-spread distribution of electrical energy in Ontario, and this means everlasting backing up of the hydro-electric power commissioners, in whose hands has been placed the task of satisfying the demands of the municipalities of Ontario.

From all appearances the Healy Falls matter should be re-opened at once, and a way found to make it come more fully under the authority of the power commission.

WHAT ONTARIO GAINED.

Strenuous effort is being made in the press organs of the late Ross government and the Niagara power companies, to convince the citizens of Ontario that the second franchise of 125,000 horse-power proposed to be given gratuitously to the Electrical Development Company was a concession making for the public benefit. A double ground is taken—first, that the course of the present negotiations with the United States apparently warrants the belief that the additional power supply then provided for will now be lost, and, second, that the people and municipalities of Ontario were sufficiently protected by the stipulation requiring the price to be fixed by the lieutenant-governor in council. Neither of these specious pleas has any real force. The right to grant a further water supply for the use of municipalities is expressly reserved to the Ontario government, and besides, arguments based on circumstances emerging since ratification of the new franchise was refused have no real bearing on the question of its propriety. As for the safeguard supposed to be provided by the reference to the lieutenant-governor in council it was in matter of fact illusory and worthless.

Had the reference to the lieutenant-governor in council been accompanied by the provision of efficient protection against stock watering and the other forms of financial manipulation leading directly to excessive capitalization, there might have been something to be said for it. But as it stood it meant practically nothing more than a certain optional power on the part of the government of the day to limit the percentage of profit to be paid on the capital of the company after the usual juggling processes had been completed. What that power would have amounted to in the persons of the Ross ministry scarcely needs to be elaborated. They were bound hand and foot to the corporation charters, and as regards stock watering the public know from their own mouths that Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, a prominent member of the present Dominion government, holds the process to be perfectly proper and defensible. That contention, it is needless to say, could only come from one prepared to prefer the interests of a predatory corporation to the right of the people to have a public franchise operated at the lowest possible cost consistent with a fair profit on legitimate capital expenditure. Public ownership and operation conducted on right business lines ensures that desirable result, and its possibility in the case of Niagara power is the only efficient weapon the people possess. The second franchise grant of 125,000 horse-power passed by the Ross cabinet would have materially weakened the position of the municipalities, involved a further raid on public property and was rightly disallowed by the present provincial government.

ARE THE WHITE COAL BARONS IN SIGHT?

You know what hard coal is. You know it well, because you have to pay $6 and $7 a ton for it, and people in Winnipeg the Cold have had to pay $12 a ton for it. It makes the most agreeable heat known, and, therefore, is valuable. The supply is limited, and worse than its limited stores is the fact that these stores have passed into the hands of the strongest monopoly known in America. The great railways that run thru the hard coal areas and the coal barons are combined into a hard coal trust that regulates the output, fixes the price of the coal and fixes the wages of the miners. It makes the price to the wholesaler and fixes the local dealer who disobeys his rules in regard to retail selling—even to the bushel. The hard coal of the United States, as long as it lasts, could be profitably mined and distributed at $2 a ton; it is over $6. All this overplus goes to the coal barons and the railways.

The Province of Ontario has immense stores of "white coal," otherwise called electrical energy, generated from water falls. The beauty of this immense store of white coal is that it is perpetual and well-nigh inexhaustible. It is easily now converted into light, as coal is converted into gas, only it is ever so much better a light, and into power, as coal is converted into steam, and power, only it is ever so much better a power than steam; and there is every hope that scientists will find a way of economically converting "white coal" into house heat, because it is ever so much better a heat than the heat of coal, and so clean and so free of all trouble. Well, this magnificent thing, this white coal, so charged with such magnificent actual virtues to mankind, is in immediate sight of the same fate that befalls the hard coal stores of the United States. As cold-blooded a ring as is the coal ring of the United States is seeking to control the white coal of Ontario. They are better organized than is the coal ring of Pennsylvania. They have improved on its methods—they are more up-to-date. They are laying their supplies now to tie up our water supplies, to get control of all the advantageous positions. They are in politics; they seek to handle the party in power and to keep a string on the opposition. They are willing to be friends of both. The electric ring—the white coal ring of Ontario, had the Ross government, the Ross commission that handled the Niagara power franchise in their hands. They worked thru ministers of the crown, thru members of the legislature, thru lawyers, thru the newspaper press. They had and have lawyers, politicians and newspapers on both sides of politics in their service. They kept Ross in power for years when he should have come out, and they were only too glad to accept Whitney when he came in—if he were willing to be their man.

They are working day and night in all kinds of devious ways to head off public ownership of white coal. They want to become the white coal barons of Ontario, like the hard coal barons of Pennsylvania. For once the public who are interested in correcting the natural heritage of the people in a great emergency, pass into the hands of a ring, and we actually have in Ontario to-day a government that is pledged to keep this white coal for the people, and we have an enlightened opinion behind them. But a most secret and most active organization is at work to beat the public in this matter. The men who do this secret work can hardly be seen, and are hardly known, but, as we said above, they work thru newspapers, and thru lawyers, and thru "clean skaters," as they are called.

Let us take, for instance, the conduct of The Toronto Globe, which, The World repeats, and has said time and again in its columns of late, is controlled by the men who are interested in correcting the white coal of this province. It professes to be friendly to the public distribution of electrical energy, and yet in the same, or in the next issue, it proposes that the generation of the electrical energy shall remain in the hands of the ring, and says, furthermore, that there is no necessity for the government and the people keeping absolute control of the stores of white coal, but that they should recognize the ring, that they should recognize it, and hold the powers of expropriation merely as a whip over their heads. At the same time it is doing its best to discredit Mr. Whitney as a public ownership man. It says that his efforts are not sincere. It charges, yesterday, Mr. Whitney's power that he is not sincere. It charges, yesterday, Mr. Whitney's power that he is not sincere. It charges, yesterday, Mr. Whitney's power that he is not sincere.

A CANADIAN ROAD THAT CAN GIVE TWO CENTS TRAVEL.

In the annual report of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the year ended June 30, 1906, and now issued in pamphlet form, the operations are thus condensed:

Gross earnings.....	$62,000,000
Gross expenses.....	39,000,000
Net earnings.....	23,000,000

Other earnings make the total twenty-five millions.

From this fixed charges of nearly eight and a half millions have to be deducted, leaving a surplus of over sixteen and a half millions. Out of this, dividends of six per cent, on common stock and four per cent on preferred were paid, leaving a net surplus carried forward of over five millions of dollars.

Surely a company that makes such profits could stand a reduction in passenger rates to a two-cent-a-mile minimum. Here is a road that has been paying for years, whose income from passengers is steadily increasing, that could well afford to do better by the travelling public and at the same time make money.

AID THE COMMISSIONERS.

The Globe of yesterday announced that water power privileges of Healey's Falls have been leased to the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, contrary to the declared policy of the Whitney government, in favor of distributing cheap electrical energy all over the province thru the hydro-power commission.

In another column will be found the facts as The World could gather them yesterday. One of the things told us was that Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of crown lands, had given this lease without consulting his colleagues. It is his so The World can only say that it is high time that this practice of any single minister alienating any of the great assets of the province in the way of land, timber, water power, or concessions of any kind without the express approval of his colleagues sitting as the lieutenant-governor-in-council be forthwith stopped.

A single minister could upset the whole policy of the government if allowed to do this, and a single minister might in a short time give away for value or less than value the whole assets of the province. It was in this very thing that Mr. Sifton as a single minister gave away for nothing timber and other lands in the Northwest; and the public were not surprised to find that relatives of Mr. Sifton's were large beneficiaries of this one-man policy.

With the creation of the hydro-power commission it was expected that all matters touching on power generated in Ontario would be viewed by it. The contingencies of Healey's Falls were treated by the commission in its second report to the government, in which it is advised what should be done with Healey's Middle and Rainey's Falls of the Trent River. This advice apparently has been ignored. If looks as if the Northumberland-Durham Power Company has been given the Healey Falls franchise without any reference to the hydro-electric power commission, or to the rights of the interested municipalities.

If the power commission has been ignored, what minister is responsible for it? Who are the members of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company that they have grown so great? Why should the Hon. Adam Beck and his coadjutors on the hydro-electric power commission be slighted, and why should governmental action be taken inimical to the prestige of the public body pub-

Forty-Five Warships Roar Out a Tremendous Salute.

Oyster Bay, L.I., Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt reviewed to-day the greatest fleet of fighting ships ever assembled under the American flag.

Three long columns of men-of-war lay at anchor in the waters of Long Island Sound since noon yesterday. The forty-five vessels are all within range of Sagamore Hill and could claim 1173 guns on the main deck, 100 on the forecastle, 200 on the mainmast, and 45 on the stern.

The disappointing weather had no effect upon the crowd which gathered to witness the imposing spectacle.

NEXT SECRETARY OF LABOR MAY BE BOB HUNGERFORD

His Name is Prominently Mentioned in Connection With Vacancy.

Robert Hungerford, ex-president of the district trades and labor council, is to succeed Robert Glocking in charge of the provincial labor bureau. It is not at all unlikely that when the appointment is announced Mr. Hungerford will be found to have been selected for the post.

When spoken to by The World yesterday he stated that he was not working with that end in view, but rather allowed it to be inferred that he might at some not distant date.

He did not deny that he was "thinking about" the position, and that it would prove an acceptable one should it be offered but as to anything further than that, he "knew nothing about it."

What appears to lend color to the rumor is the recollection of the stand taken by Mr. Hungerford in the North Toronto campaign, in support of Mr. McNair, the services then rendered, it is thought, being deserving of some recognition. Then there is also the fact that Mr. Hungerford has lately resigned from some of his labor affiliations, which might be construed to mean that he was preparing himself for eligibility, as by his own statement, he has been aware for the last two months that Mr. Glocking intended to step out.

Mr. Hungerford's opinion is that the whole department needs reconstruction and will have it," said Mr. Hungerford.

NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

Let the greatest trouble have dyspepsia and his muscles weak a soon fall. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has insufficient food he loses strength.

Mr. Louis Pare, of Quebec, writes: "For years after my health began to fail my liver grew drier, eyes pained me, and my stomach was so weak that I could eat nothing."

WOMAN'S WORLD.

THE WORLD'S PATTERNS.

Autumn Tailor-Made to Be of Serge. First in interest among new modes come the new materials, and then the laces and trimmings, altho on some of the evening gowns it seems vice-versa, as if the trimmings had been selected first, and then some artist has woven the material to exactly harmonize, writes a Paris correspondent.

Here is where the great French dressmakers have the advantage of the rest of the world. Nowhere else is it so easy to have things made from your own ideas. American buyers seem to be getting more and more interested in the evening gowns made by the French.

Serge, plain, diagonal and herringbone, is the leading material for tailored suits. Some chevrot is shown, and Bedford cord, but very little broadcloth, unless for fancy coat suits, and, of course, for evening coats in light colors.

Chiffon velvet is shown as much as last year, and seems still softer. This, combined with net or chiffon cloth, is used again and again for dress costumes, both with a wrap and without.

Velvet is a close rival and seems to be the most popular. Silks and soft satins, having self-colored stripes, and plain, with a new silk poplin, are shown in high-necked evening gowns. The pattern is mostly of lace, net galore and our old-time favorite choffoncloth, or "nain."

As it is much under the one color scheme than the French woman. Even with brown, green is used for trimming, or our old burnt orange in tiny touches.

All the wine shades, a dark mode that blends with sable, a peculiar peat color blue and many checks, with black of course, about complete the list.

Vogue of Scotch Plaid. The fad of the fall is Scotch plaid. For autumn winter hats are trimmed with plaid velvet and silk, whole dresses are made of plaid cloth or silk, whole suits are made of plaid stuffs, and the most fascinating blouses are made of soft tafeta, plaid in the prettiest designs of the various classes.

The blouses are especially lovely. A fascinating importation in a plaid chiffon tafeta, blue and green predominating, is the most interesting of plain green tafeta, on which are French knots done in green. It is cut low in the neck and the sleeves, which do not reach the elbow, are slit up the outside. This clever bit of a blouse is worn over a gumpie, which may be of lace for afternoon and of embroidered linen for morning.

These blouses (they may be high-necked and long-sleeved) are a charming feature of the fall fashions.

The New Raincoat. Among the smartest of this season's raincoats are those of black and white checked silk, of black-breasted, or either loose or semi-fitting. They are trimmed with a deep turnover collar and cuffs of black leather or satin and large white buttons, and nearly all have two large breast pockets.

Pockets Are Popular. It is interesting to ascend of the immortal lady who lost her pocket has been found in one of the aforementioned tweed suits. For sack of one, just think of the dozens of handkerchiefs we've lost in a year, to say nothing of such trifles as purses!

The military trick of tucking one's handkerchief into the gowns has been all very well with some people, but on or about July 24, 1906, are required to send or deliver to the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 41 King St. East, Toronto, the executors of the will of said deceased, on or before Sept. 24, 1906, the names and descriptions of all real and personal property of said deceased, and particulars of their claims or demands, and proofs thereof, and of the nature of the securities, if any, held by them.

These big fellows at all, just a very common editor. Then he sat down and proved himself ungodly good at commonness—with his fine sensibilities—the last thing he could possess. He's a boy all thru, with a man's understanding and part of a woman's as well. For he is sensitively poised and knows things—the finer ones.

But you feel rather sorry that he is misplaced himself in newspaper work. It has been too great a strain on him round and round, and he has been with it. The whiskers are somewhat grayed, the close hair, while before, is now thinning, and the cheeks are blanched with a delicate network of cross-vein around the eyes. In peculiar opposition to the falling in love eyes finer than most beauties, and perfectly arched by dark brows. Delicacy must have been extremely handsome. You can imagine a mother looking in that face with pride. She could still do so—anything later that has been written there. But the next story I write of a young girl falling in love choose that head. The brain inside it can never grow old if the hair was twice as gray.

At the Liverpool Grain Exchange—Chicago and Other U.S. Markets Are Closed.

World Office, Monday Evening, Sept. 3. Canadian and American stock exchanges were closed to-day. The London market was open, and quotations for American stocks were firm.

To the many Toronto speculators who bought American Wool several months ago around 45 on the premises that an early dividend would be forthcoming, the following despatch from Boston will be interesting:

Boston—The 40 plants of the American Wool Company are today yielding about 85 per cent. capacity, and the company is to-day doing a gross business at the rate of $22,000,000 per year.

This tremendous expansion in gross business has necessitated a very large increase in working capital requirements, but it is doubtful if from now on the growth in the business approach that of the woolen industry made yearly since 1898.

While common stock dividends must be deferred for the present, the policy of the company in making large sales at a manufacturing profit of one cent, this situation which is very active, must eventually accrue to the benefit of the common stockholders.

President Wood himself is one of the largest holders of the common stock and he will not listen to appeals for common stock dividends yet awhile.

J. S. Bache & Co. in their weekly circular say: The main announcement of a bull market was in evidence this week. The shake-out on the reaction, also hurting many light weight speculators, removed a dangerous menace to the situation and strengthened the market technically.

Money on call advances to 8 per cent., and the market does not suffer from chills, but when a dividend is increased prices advance by leaps and bounds.

Following along, or rather leading the procession, are the wonderful reports of railway earnings coming to hand.

The stock market will not only keep up with the prosperous sentiment by the country at large, but as reported in the past, will go far beyond what is reasonable and conservative.

R. R. Gamey, M.L.A., was in Winnipeg Thursday and was interviewed by The Telegram.

"People may think that I am a faddist regarding New Ontario," he said; "but with all respect for my fellow-members there is not yet that interest or knowledge displayed towards the resources of what I distinctly regard as my own country by the majority of the members that the situation deserves. I am not, I hope, influenced by either local feeling or the spirit of sectionalism when I say that the most important public affairs in our province is the development of the resources of that great country by the majority of the members that the situation deserves. WASHING BIG BEN.

For the first time in three years Big Ben at Westminster is having his hands and face washed. The process occupies three weeks, for each of the dials has a diameter of 22 feet; the figures are two feet long, and the spaces between each minute are a foot square. The work has necessarily to be thoroughly done for probably three years more will elapse before the soot and grime deposited by London's atmosphere is again removed.

The dial on which the men are working to-day is the dirtiest of the four. It is the one which looks on to Westminster Bridge. The change, that has been wrought almost startles the citizen who takes his time from the great clock and has perhaps forgotten that the face is set in a gilded frame. Two dwarves—who are in reality burly men—swing in a "cradle" a hundred and eighty feet above the pavement. They are the cleaners.

Actually, Big Ben's hands have not been washed for eighteen years. They have been taken down from the southern dial, and they will be painted before they are put back in their place. From the street people have the impression that they are black; as a matter of fact, however, their color is dark blue. Before this work is completed a good deal of paint will have been used, for each of the minute-hands is 14 feet long, and weighs about 224 pounds.

PATHOS AND HUMOR AT THE CONSERVATOIRE

A Captivating Sidelight Into the Ways of Life in the Gay Capital of France—

When I stopped at the concierge's lodge to get my mail the other morning I saw a beautiful creature of some twenty summers and winters, sitting therein, dressed in white satin, flushed of face and radiant of eye.

It was some moments before I recognized, in this apotheosis, the daughter of the concierge herself. I have been accustomed to see her entering or leaving the house in modest garb, with a music-roll under her arm, which I always thought contained her lund (American inventions catch on so quickly over here).

My evident surprise brought an explanation at once: "So Monsieur does not know that Gabrielle competes for the first prize of opera at the Conservatoire to-day?"

Monsieur had not even known that Mlle. Gabrielle attended the Conservatoire, which, as you know, is the old time-honored school which turns out the musical and dramatic artists of France. It is true I did not often find her at home in the daytime, but then I never looked for her; it appeared also true that this young woman had aspired to musical honors of an official nature for some years past, so many, in fact, that she was now about to enter a competition before the greatest judges of the art in France with a view to a professional engagement.

This was interesting, and I asked if I might ride a few rods down the street with the white satin vision, for there was a carriage at the door to take her to the Opera Comique, where the event was to occur. Before I began to question her she took a ticket from her pocket and offered it to me. "Poor man! at the last minute could not go. The landlord is coming, this day of all days! If you like, Monsieur, this ticket will take you inside, where you may understand all better than I can tell."

In another quarter hour I had, indeed, been admitted to this ceremony, one of the most sought-after experiences of the French yearly program. To see the future Bernhards and Alvaroses Aktes and Coquelets at the very earliest budding of their genius! Mlle. Gabrielle, humble daughter of a Paris concierge, had been able to do this for me! There should be at least one pair of hands to applaud her when her ordeal should come.

"One says that the jury is severer than ever this year," remarked Gabrielle, as we rolled along. "Perhaps there will be no first prize!" She trembled a little. And here we were at the door.

Building on Success.
Inside we found groups of well-known men and women chatting together. They were the professional and intellectual aristocracy of Paris; the other aristocracy knows nothing of this grand fête. As they were discussing the chances of the different candidates that were omnipresent as if this were the most important thing in the world. The day was given up to piano and soprano voices. Yesterday was flute and double bass, to-morrow tragedy and the French horn, next day comedy and the viola.

The score of rivals were here, too, some evidently nervous, others anxious for the bell to ring up and start things. I noticed half a dozen young women gorgeously dressed who descended from automobiles before entering. I asked Gabrielle who they were.

"Mlle. Monsieur, they are pupils, too, and are to compete. They are in the tragedy and comedy classes. They are not of us—we other musicians!"
"And I understood, from the tone of her voice, the truth. The newcomers are not officially actresses at all yet, but certain of the privileges of a candidate they have taken on already. Certainly nothing else could explain the luxury in which they live and their equipages and automobiles and fine retinues."

"Oh!" exclaimed Gabrielle, divining my thoughts from my expression. "I suppose," they say it must be that way in their profession. And then, in order to go to the Conservatoire at all, that one with the mouseline de soie skirt had to run away from home. Her father is a rich doctor, the one with her who has the red hair, never had any parents. She was raised by the Assistance Publique, and Monsieur knows what that means! Oh, it is not all gay here. But one always has the hope of success."

A Solemn Ceremony.
When I reached my place in the first row of lodges upstairs, the first sounds of the piano concerto chosen for the competition of piano students were beginning. It was played, superbly, I thought, by a youth of fifteen who had all the self-confidence of a Paderewski, and certainly more "speaking," as the Germans call it. Then came a girl with a pretty white muslin dress to her ankles, and yellow braids down her back.

"She is thirty if a day!" some one whispered near me (a woman, of course). "She dresses that way to impose on the jury. They are mostly old men."
By the time the fifth competitor had played the piece it had become frightfully familiar. After the tenth time it became almost unbearable.

You remember Berlioz's story? Thirty-one students played the same concerto over in succession on the same afternoon.

He was one of the judges, so he had to stay; but as he tells it, after the first twenty-five had played, the keys began dancing of themselves, and finally the piano had to be taken out into the courtyard and demolished with an axe.

Even that did no good! The fragments continued to bob up and down, until in fright the jurors and pupils alike fled, and the great concert was over for that year.

The prize was finally awarded to a young man of twenty. He will be great some day.

When the jury has selected the premier prix you may be sure he will be heard from before very long in the very front rank of artists of his class, if he lives.

There are exceptions to this rule, but few. If the happy competitor, not always get the limelight success, they earn solid musical reputations and a solid livelihood as can be obtained by musical artists in France.

roles. All those in a given competition would sing the same role, with obliging and already "arrived" singers sustaining the other parts.

I saw little Gabrielle go thru her part admirably. It was a long time before I recognized her, for she had on a yellow wig and something that looked like white bunting in the role of Margaret.

Its modesty, timidity, purity, suited her, and I saw she was making an effect with her clear, high voice, with a note of childlikeness in it which is rare in these competitions.

There was later a superb young Jewess who sang "Carmen," and seemed to menace the audience and the jury, to threaten to storm, and to try to put a metaphorical hand upon the judicial throat. A chorus of "Ah! ah!" and a bit of relief greeted her finish, but I heard afterwards she had something they call an "accessit," or kind of honorable mention that means probable success the next time.

There were some tenors with fine voices who knew nothing about acting. Then she dried her eyes in a business-like way and set up, "There!" she cried, cheerfully, "it is all over. I cannot try again. We have no more money to support me while I study. Pauvre maman! I must begin to find some pupils to-morrow. But it would have been 20 francs."

Inside, the concierge was scribbling the title pavement.

Lenahan Inquest.
Coroner Orr opened an enquiry in the police court last night as to the death of James Lenahan, the young man who was killed by a street car on Yonge-street, near Grosvenor, Saturday afternoon.

As more evidence is needed the inquest was adjourned until next Monday.

O'DONOGHUE FOR ST. MARY'S

Toronto Man Nominated for Administration for Commons.

Montreal, Sept. 3.—(Special.)—J. G. O'Donoghue, barrister, of Toronto, and general counsel for the Trades and Labor Council, has been approached by certain labor representatives with a view to that gentleman's candidature in St. Mary's.

It has been thought in certain quarters that the different factories might unite on Mr. O'Donoghue, and as he is a liberal and would give the Laurier government an independent support he might be accepted by the powers that be.

Some of those who have discussed the matter say, however, that St. Mary's being largely French, that nationality might not enthuse over the Irish-Canadian lawyer from Toronto. Mr. O'Donoghue spoke at several places in Maisonneuve for Mr. Verreille, and was highly thought of.

WRITING AND SPELLING.
Winnipeg Telegram: Canadians, especially those of us of Manitoba and Ontario, are prone to speak with pride of the educational systems instituted in the various provinces, and claim that what may practically be called the Canadian educational system surpasses in effectiveness even that of the Scotch system, upon which it was to some extent modeled.

In the face of this conviction the frequent statements of business and professional men come somewhat as a surprise, that great difficulty is found in procuring clerks, assistants and employees generally among the young men and women of Canada who have been trained in the public schools, who are capable of spelling with a fair degree of correctness the ordinary words of their own language.

Business offices show that despite our vaunted educational system, its modern methods and improved facilities, that the product of the Canadian public schools is frequently neither competent to spell efficiently or write readily and legibly.

Business men in business offices show that despite our vaunted educational system, its modern methods and improved facilities, that the product of the Canadian public schools is frequently neither competent to spell efficiently or write readily and legibly. The question is, what a large proportion of the applicants for positions in the public schools are incompetent in the first two qualifications necessary to their clerical usefulness?

The three "R's" were the traditional necessities of any form of school education of our forefathers, and the introduction of a more extended curriculum of study, with music, botany, object lessons, physiology, etc., overshadowing such unattractive branches as spelling and writing, that many of the young people of both sexes attempt short cuts to fortune without being able to spell? It cannot be, as pessimists say, evidence of the indifference and inaccuracy of the age.

The tendency is, however, towards phonetic spelling among advanced educationists. It is embarrassing, however, when the young men and women of the land start to spell, and each on his or her own account and according to individual ideas. It may be necessary to return to the methods of our forefathers, and despite the theories of the modern schools, letters should then be spelled and written in a manner understood. As it is there is a growing impression in western Canada that the letter of the clerk trained in Great Britain is too frequently misspelled and illegible when written than one by the native-born Canadian.

Game Protection in Canada.
Prince Edward Island is the latest of the Canadian provinces to adopt modern methods of game protection. Its recent statute, enacted this year, fixes the season, provides for a 15 non-resident license, creates the office of game inspector, incorporates an auxiliary body, the Prince Edward Island Game Protection Association, to cooperate in the enforcement of game laws, and prohibits export, this law and a statute passed by Quebec, which requires that all shipments of game be tagged with game in export packages that have heretofore existed, so that now every state in the Union and practically every province in Canada places more or less restriction on the shipment of game beyond its boundaries.

Quebec has substituted a uniform 150 non-resident license for the graded system. Canada also establishes two new game preserves, one of 16 sections in the Province of Alberta, about 30 miles northeast of Edmonton, the other on the Gaspe Peninsula in Quebec. The latter, to be known as the Gaspesian Preserve, has an area of about 200 square miles, thus taking rank with the Laurentides National Park in Quebec (2400 square miles), the Algonquin Park in Ontario (about 2000 square miles), and the Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming (3348 square miles).
