ST. JOHN ATHLETES WON ALL EVENTS AT MONCTON

Revival of Athletic Sports in the Railway Town Indicated by Most Successful Electric Light Sports Last Night—Sterling Covey and Brooks Were the Winners but Moncton Has Good Athletes.

The electric light sports held by the Moncton A. A. A., last evening were most successful, there being more than 500 people present, a very large crowd for the town.

It was the first time an athletic meet had been held in Moncton in four years, with the exception of the intercollegiate meets, and from the interest created it is evident that the revival of athletics in the railway town. The grounds were well lighted with nine big lamps. The meet was well handled, without a hitch of any kind, and all the events were run on without loss of time.

The entries of the Every Day Club team from St. John created a lot of interest. The St. John club's team carried off the honors, not only leading in front, but winning every event. Their performance was the subject of much commendation. Covey and Stirling were the star performers, their work being of a finished nature. The local men all made a creditable showing. Lea in the high jump was not in his form, though he gave a good exhibition. H. B. Murray, who ran under the colors of the Moncton Y. M. C. A., made his debut, and in the high jump gave great promise. As it was given Brooks of the St. John team a good contest. Cameron the Amherst runner, made a fine showing and with more experience will make the best of them. Though beaten by both Stubs and Stirling in the mile and five mile, he put up a game contest.

In the matter of points the Every Day Club, St. John, won out with 40; Spring Hill came next, with 35; Moncton with 25 and Amherst with 5. Covey and Stirling had 10 points each to their credit. Brooks had 5, Murray 2, and Edington 1. In the 100 and 200, and won both. Stirling entered in the mile and five mile, was the winner of both. Brooks entered in the high jump and 200, won the first, and won his heat in the latter. The St. John team also won the relay, in which the three teams of St. John, Moncton and Amherst. Stubs got second in both the mile and five mile. In the 100 and 200, Le Paul, of Spring Hill, proved a dangerous man, and gave Covey a hard struggle, being awarded second in the finals of the 100 and 200. In the former case, however, the decision of the judges was certainly at fault, as E. W. L. won the race.

Blanche of the Amherst Ramblers, also made a good showing, winning his heat in the 200 and third in the finals of that event. Bennett was off color and did not make his usual good showing.

The officials were: Referee, E. W. Givens; starter, James W. Humphrey; time-keeper, Frank L. Thompson; Andrew Dunn; judge, Dr. P. J. Gallagher. A. C. Selig, F. Richards; scorers, Geo. W. Maddison, W. R. Vye; clerk of the course, H. W. McWilly; time-keeper, W. N. Rippey; announcer, George W. Ackman.

Much credit is due Starter Humphrey for the prompt manner in which he pulled the events off.

The 100 Yards

The first event, the 100 yards dash, proved very exciting. In the first heat Covey was put back for beating the pistol, and as a result Paul, who had five feet on him, won the heat. In the second heat it was a pretty contest between Blanche and Ferguson, the former making the first position. The third heat was won by Brewster, who showed but fair form, with Cummings, a high school lad, second. The first and third heats were done in 10.4 s.

The 200 Yards

In the 200 there was a lot of excitement. Covey and Paul had a hot contest of it in the first heat, which the former won in 28 seconds. In the second heat Young Cummings set every one on ear by defeating Blanche, after a hair raising finish. In the third heat Brooks showed that he was a runner as well as a jumper, by taking the first place with Cormier second. The final of the event was a hair raiser. It brought together Covey, Paul, Cummings, Blanche, Brooks and Cormier. They were all bunched as they came to the tape, when Covey, by a fine burst of speed broke the twine two or three feet ahead of Paul, receiving hearty applause, the time being 23.94.

The Mile Run

The mile run proved a great race. Though Sterling won out fairly easy, he was given an uncomfortable time for a few laps by both Stubs and Cameron. All three men were popular with the crowd, "Jerry" seeming to have a particularly warm spot in the hearts of groups who gave him the glad hand. As they heard the last two laps of the four Stirling shot to the front, followed by Stubs and Cameron, and the race was over.

The Five Mile Run

The five-mile was the feature and it was freely stated that at that distance Cameron would be a stronger man. They got away all in a bunch, and on the first lap or coming into the second Stirling stumbled and fell, but soon recovered himself and was up in his place in a second. On the third lap Stirling was again in the lead, but Cameron second and Stubs third, going into the fourth lap Stubs spurred and passed Cameron, Brown and Hovey were by this time well in the rear, but the fourth lap Stirling spurred and had about ten yards between his and Cameron, and the latter and Cameron were close together.

The crowd now commenced to warm up, and both Stirling and Stubs were urged ahead. The pace was plainly telling on Hovey and White and they lagged well behind. On the fifth lap Stirling was in the lead and running beautifully, Stubs and Cameron continued to keep abreast, but Cameron was showing signs of being tired. Stirling had lapped Hovey and the crowd were all excitement. On the 7th lap Stirling had dropped White and started in after Stubs and Cameron. At the 9th lap he was in close proximity to his men and the crowd were on their feet. At the 12th lap he was less than a quarter of a lap from the pair. At the 16th lap he had still further closed. Hovey and White had dropped out in the 12th and 16th lap respectively, as the pace was too much for them. On the 18th lap Stubs spurred, followed by Cameron, who was showing fine determination and both pulled away from the rest.

HOW ST. JOHN INVESTORS LOST MILLIONS IN SHARES

The Sad Story of the Rise and Fall in the Value of Bear Gulch—Men Who Bought Hoping for a Fortune, Glad to Sell Their Shares for a Few Cents Each—Montreal and London and Montreal Gold Fields—A Rubber Proposition.

Since the story of Gold King mine was published on Saturday last the writer was informed of another project in which St. John people lost some money and which, though it hardly comes within the scope of these articles yet it is worth a passing reference, if merely to illustrate how easily some people have been relieved of their cash.

A St. John man, now residing in Boston, received information about six years ago that much money was to be made in the cultivation of rubber trees in Brazil. He had been on a visit to the Hub and while there had met a New York promoter who had a great scheme to get rich quickly and in which the St. John people could have sold their stock in this mine and made money, but he did not, and the result is they have a handsome certificate of no value.

It was decided to issue stock to pay expenses and put up a new mill. A stock of stock was issued and taken up by the stockholders at 35c, but since that time the mine has gone from bad to worse—although selling at one time almost as high as a dollar—and it is, today, said to be worthless. A large number of St. John people could have sold their stock in this mine and made money, but they did not, and the result is they have a handsome certificate of no value.

Two assessments, one a cent and the other half a cent per share have been called on this stock and paid by many of the stockholders. A proposition is now afoot for a settlement with the stockholders whereby St. John shareholders can receive about four or five cents per share for their stock, payable in about two years' time.

Beary Gulch Mine

But to return to the mining proposition. The mine after Gold King in which St. John people lost some money, was Beary Gulch. This mine made its first appearance here just after Gold King started to boom, and the promoter was thoroughly imbued with the mining fever and would be liable to buy almost any such proposition put up in front of him. Among the many "parades" offered to the public was Montreal and London. This mine was sold at 10c per share, and sold as high as 90c. Then it dropped back again to 10c. Around this time a number of St. John men advanced their money to the promoter on the advance to 80c, which occurred later, but others still have their stock, which has been called for, and they are now in a bad way.

Montreal and London: Montreal Gold Fields

About this time the mining promoters and those having stock of said recognized that the people of St. John were badly bitten with the mining fever, so on the 10th of the month, a proposition was offered to the public was Montreal and London. This mine was sold at 10c per share, and sold as high as 90c. Then it dropped back again to 10c. Around this time a number of St. John men advanced their money to the promoter on the advance to 80c, which occurred later, but others still have their stock, which has been called for, and they are now in a bad way.

Next week's article will deal with the story of Big Five, a Nova Scotia mine in which much money was lost.

A GOLDEN WEDDING

Captain and Mrs. Worden Celebrated Their Fiftieth Anniversary Last Night

A large number of friends gathered at the home of Captain Archibald Worden and Mrs. Worden, on the evening of Saturday last, to celebrate their golden wedding.

Captain Worden has been in command of the steamer yacht Dream for some time, and is very well known in the north end. Mrs. Worden was formerly Miss White of the Narrows, Queens county. They were married 50 years ago, yesterday at Grand Lake, and both are enjoying excellent health and vigor.

During the evening, the bride was presented with a beautiful bouquet of carnations by the ladies of the north end. W. C. T. U., and Rev. B. H. Nobles, on behalf of those present, tendered a purse of gold. Numerous other gifts were received. A very pleasant evening was spent with speechmaking by Rev. Mr. Nobles, Captain Worden and others, and John Salmon gave several readings. Refreshments were served, and a good time generally was enjoyed.

Rev. B. H. Nobles will conduct both services in Victoria street Baptist church on Sunday. His subject in the morning will be "The Tenderness of Divine Knowledge," and in the evening "The Mission of Religion in a Young Man's Life."

There has been nothing out of the ordinary in the way of advertising attempted by the Tourist Association, as the reduction of the city grant has made it necessary to curtail in a large measure. However, about 20,000 of the provincial booklets have already been distributed through the eastern states and Canada and many of the enquiries are found to be direct from this source. There is, of course the advertising in many of the hunting papers, such as "Field and Stream," "Rod and Gun" and "Outlook." A very useful and pretty city guide is also being gotten out in which will be noted the points of interest, tide tables, etc. Up to the present time there has been no experiencing of a difficulty in putting up the prospective visitors, but what may happen at the present rate is hard to say.

WILL GO TO WORK NOW ON THE BIG DOMINION FAIR

A. O. Skinner Receives Authority to Government Grant Will Be F of Grounds—Extensive Tr

Plans for the Dominion Exhibition to be held in St. John in 1910 will be taken up in earnest next week when a meeting of the directors will be held. President A. O. Skinner has received official notification that the grant of $50,000 has been passed and will be paid to St. John and the association can now proceed to start the wheels going to prepare for the biggest, brightest and best fair, ever held in the Winterport of Canada. There is much to do in a year is none too much time to do it in. The question of grounds will have to be discussed, though according to President Skinner this matter should not need much discussion, as there is no place as central or convenient for the masses of the people as the present grounds. Moosaphat Park, the Gilbert property at Gilbert's Lane, and the site at Dalmeny and Fairview have been suggested but the big obstacle is taking care of the crowd—getting the people to and from the grounds quickly and comfortably.

When President Skinner asks the question—"What would you do with about 10,000 people on the grounds at any of these places, at 10 o'clock at night, when they are all anxious to get home?" the advocates of a change in grounds have to stop and ponder.

Mr. Skinner is firmly of the opinion that there is only one place in the city fair and that is the present location. The buildings are in good repair and with some minor improvements and painting should be ample for all purposes. Some changes may be made in the sheds for live stock and some small buildings erected, but in the main the accommodations now at the grounds should be ample for the big show.

LUMBER BUSINESS IS REPORTED DULL FROM APPEARANCES IT SHOULD BE GOOD BUT DEALERS SAY OTHERWISE

To the casual observer it would appear during the past week or so that the lumber business here was booming, as all the mills are working full time, logs are coming down river in large quantities and in the harbor upwards of a dozen vessels were taking on cargoes of boards and deals.

During the present week the steamer Adra, Trompsberg and Ada, and the three masted schooners, Geo. D. Jenkins, L. A. Thumner and the steamer Monarch, are expected to arrive. The latter is a large vessel and will take a large cargo of lumber and shingles, and the other larger vessels still in port, taking lumber cargoes are the steamers Monarch, Catalone, Comptroller, Manchester, Starbuck and Alheim.

While the vessels take away quite large cargoes of lumber and shingles, the lumber business is not by any means what the millmen and shippers would like to see. Logs are certainly coming down better than they did last year, but the market is anything but satisfactory. The trade is sluggish, dull, dormant or slack, whichever term one chooses to use, for the present.

Though the interest shown naturally grows out of an improvement in conditions, they are not over-enthusiastic in stating that better times are coming.

HUSBAND CUT HIS WIFE WITH SYTHE

Mrs. Fred Walters of Westfield, the victim of a Painful Accident Yesterday

Mrs. Fred Walters, of Westfield, met with a bad accident yesterday, being severely cut by a scythe in the back of her husband. It was done in a peculiar manner. Mr. Walters was moving in a field near his home, and Mrs. Walters, who was with him, was cutting grass. She was suddenly hurled into the bushes for the purpose of preventing her husband from cutting them. Mr. Walters, either not seeing her or not knowing she was there, cut her on the back of the scythe and inflicted a bad cut. Blood flowed profusely from the wound and needles to say Mr. Walters was horrified at the occurrence. She was ultimately hurried to the house and medical attention summoned. While the cut is not necessarily serious, Mrs. Walters is confined to her bed. It was found on examination that a ligament was severed.

RECENT RAIN DID WORLD OF GOOD TO THE GROWING CROPS

Reports from the country indicate that the recent rain has accomplished a world of good to the crops. The drought which prevailed prior to the rainfall retarded the growth of crops considerably. However, farmers now announce that vegetables are making up for lost time and grain also appears promising. Although the season is yet quite young, it is probable that potatoes will be abundant and of good quality this year. In a few weeks the first of the vegetables will be brought down the river to this city for distribution and from then until the close of navigation the river steamer will be busily engaged in transporting produce for the St. John trade.

Therefore, green peas, carrots, beets, lettuce and strawberries can be expected to follow somewhat later. United States strawberries are now on the market here at fifteen cents per box. However, the prudent housewife usually prefers to await the advent of the native strawberries before purchasing to any degree for eating or preserving. At the scenes of the forest fires the grass has been burned to some extent but as few of the fires were adjacent to St. John it is not believed that the crops or grass in this immediate vicinity have been interfered with. A little additional rain would be beneficial. In some sections of the province the apple and plum trees have been singed by the fires, but on the whole, the local fruits will probably be a large production of other years.

The keeping of bees is now practiced by a large number of farmers in York and Carleton counties who are receiving quite large profits from the bee industry, beehives furnishing their families with honey for the table.

ADVANCE PARTIES LEFT FOR CAMP SUSSEX THIS MORNING

The 7 o'clock train this morning, when it left the depot, had on board the first contingent for the militia camp at Sussex. The contingent for the militia camp at Sussex, consisting of the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 1st Canadian Infantry, the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles, the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 1st Canadian Trenchers, the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 1st Canadian Engineers, and the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 1st Canadian Artillery, will be under the command of Major A. E. Massey and the local body will be captained by Captain McKean.

No. H. Cumpany, Royal Canadian Regiment, is expected to pass through from Fredericton on the noon train today en route to the camp grounds. The service corps which went today, will be very busy from now until early next week, pitching tents, looking after the baggage and managing the details for the arrival of the main bodies of troops on Tuesday.

The ordnance corps will have all their things taken up with the evening of supplies such as tents, blankets, racks, etc., according to what the requisitions which they are required to fill, call for.

Advance parties of troops will go to camp on Monday, but the majority will not arrive until some time on Tuesday or early Wednesday morning. Sussex camp will be considerably under strength this year. About 2,500 men were under canvas last year, but barely 1,000 men will be in attendance this year, the various regiments being reduced in numbers from eight to six or four companies.

The three provincial camps will open on the same date, June 29th. The Woodstock Field Battery, the Royal Canadian Engineers, and the 6th regiment will bivouac at Woodstock this year. At Newmarket the battery of the place will camp while the remaining provincial corps will drill at Sussex. Owing to the smallness of the camp it is expected that the drill will consist largely of musketry and judging distance.

POLICE COURT

Several Cases Were Speedily Disposed of This Morning

This morning, McAnulty pleaded not guilty to instigation and resistance, but denied strenuously that he was a frequent visitor to the premises. Patrolman Marshall testified that he arrested McAnulty from the O'Brien domicile shortly after midnight and at the request of the woman who complained in an altercation with James Ferish, a neighbor who was liberated from Dorchester jail on Tuesday where he was awaiting a second trial for theft of silverware at Elgin and Moncton. The facts encountered on the police station, Marshall asserted that McAnulty demolished a door in the rear of the house. On the journey to the police station, Marshall and another officer struggled to free himself and barred the officer in profane terms. Marshall added that McAnulty was a constant frequenting of the house of O'Brien, who was arrested by Amelia Francis and another disreputable room owned by Margaret Francis. The two are negroes and Ethel McAnulty had a preference for the Ethiopian gentry is further attested to by the fact that she was seen in the company of a fine of $2 or four months was imposed for resistance and $8 or two months for infraction.

On the charge of frequenting the house of ill repute, McAnulty was fined $10 or two months in the house of ill repute, which he remanded as his honor remarked that if he sentenced McAnulty this morning the penalty would be nine months in jail. He instructed the police to arrest the prisoner and his kind at night on Sheffield street. His honor then asked the waster of Sheffield street, who was charged with the theft of a watch and a ring, and a young man bearing the initials stamp of dissonance by Patriman Marshall being arrested by Joseph McAnulty, a young man bearing the initials stamp of dissonance by Patriman Marshall being arrested by Joseph McAnulty.

MONTEAL AND LONDON: MONTREAL GOLD FIELDS

While the writer was in Prince William street a few days ago he met a number of shareholders of Bear Gulch mine who were about to hand their stock, and immediately advanced to 30c. This mine was sold at 10c per share, and sold as high as 90c. Then it dropped back again to 10c. Around this time a number of St. John men advanced their money to the promoter on the advance to 80c, which occurred later, but others still have their stock, which has been called for, and they are now in a bad way.

Next week's article will deal with the story of Big Five, a Nova Scotia mine in which much money was lost.

THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

HIRAM SOOTHS JAMESJEY.

Our esteemed fellow citizen, Mr. James Jeay, was much worried this morning when he had been reading the Standard. The Standard had quoted an article from the Sun, and served it up with black type and quotation marks and other trimmings, as the dying message of the Liberal party in this constituency. James was afraid somebody would read it and believe it for in some ways he is a simple-minded man. He met Mr. Hiram Hornbeam and talked counsel with him.

"I really think," said James, "that something should be done at once to meet this attack. The public may be deceived." But Hiram was not impressed. He walked over to the sidewalk and spit on the gutter (for Hiram would not spit on the sidewalk) then came back again and tapped James on the shoulder.

"Keep your shirt on," said Hiram. "No body is fooled by that little news. Did you ever hear an Injun say 'No! Well, air, I have been out afore now at night, an' I'd almost swear I heard a child cryin' in the woods last night. But I never paid no attention to it. I knowed what it was. It was an Injun-bird. If I'd been fool enough to go into the woods lookin' for that child, I might-a found a critter jumpin' on me. Friend—the Injun-bird is in politics."

MR. HAM WILL NOT ASCEND.

Mr. George H. Ham informed the Times new reporter yesterday that he had probably made his last touring trip across the continent for the C. P. R.

"You see," said Mr. Ham, "the C. P. R. being the greatest corporation in the world, will be the first to adopt the aeroplane, or aeroplane, for touring parties across the continent. I have always been afraid of the air. If I got on board, the machine might light out for Mars, and I don't know what the people of Mars could stand to do with me. I think I will come down and settle on Lancaster Heights, and commune with solitude and the stars from that vantage ground and watch the growth of the winter snow."

Mr. Ham will not ascend.

DANISH WOMAN TELLS OF VALUE OF PLAYGROUNDS

Playgrounds Ward Off Disease and Form One of the Great Safe-Guards Against Tuberculosis—Play is Needed for all Classes of People—The List of Yesterday's Speakers and Their Subjects

Toronto, June 25.—"In a civilized country more and more attention is being paid to education," was the conclusion reached by Froken Eline Hansen, of Denmark, in her paper read before a joint meeting of education, philanthropy and social and moral reform sections of the quinquennial congress of the National Council of Women this morning.

Froken Eline Hansen, of Denmark, read a paper which dealt with educational development in Denmark, where ideal conditions now obtain in many instances. With special reference to "Town Children's holidays in the country," Froken Hansen said many children sent by the municipalities to the country, often return when they are grown to stay permanently, thus rendering congestion in the crowded capitals less troublesome.

"The subject of play in these modern days, when we think we have more leisure than there was 50 or 100 years ago, is worthy of study," began Miss Sadie American, of New York, who spoke on "Play Grounds."

"Play is needed not only for children, but for grown people as well, in city and country alike," she continued. The other day when I was from about your city, I noticed a long row of houses close together. They say there are large back yards. I didn't see any back yards, even if there are then we need playgrounds."

"I am going to unburden my heart of something which has been weighing me down since I came here. I'm stopping at the King Edward. I see every night boys from five to nine years of age sitting on the street. I think that no child of that age should have to see papers. At midnight one night I saw them sitting on the street, one by one, step. Use your imagination and your influence as that when we come back to Toronto to see the same thing for five and six years of age." (Applause.)

"The truth about a delinquent child is not that he, but we are responsible for his condition. There ought to be playgrounds where the child is trespassing on his own property, and these ought to be more than a quarter of a mile from his home. For it has been found that the average child will not go more than a quarter of a mile from home. Who is responsible for all these automobile or railway fatalities where children are killed or maimed? People realize that when they were young there were no automobiles and less trains and vehicles of all kinds. Let me plead for the small girl. We need playgrounds for the small girl. A boy's tumble about in the mud and it will wash off, he will be accepted anywhere. Let a spot the size of a flat set on the dress of the girl and she is scolded because of it."

"When a child is forced out of the school yard as soon as school is over, because the janitor is to make up for some other such equally excellent reason, it is time to emphasize the need for playgrounds," she declared.

"We have to learn team work. Team work for men and women—they have to get together something about tuberculosis and all the rest of it. You just talk playgrounds for children," she advised. My idea for preventing tuberculosis is to make a child so strong and sturdy and healthy that such disease will have no chance of development. Therefore, I say, playgrounds form one of the great safeguards against tuberculosis.

"You talk about virtue. Virtue is not the absence of not having done something wrong. Virtue is not innocence. Virtue is strength which comes of having combated evil successfully. Give the boys and girls a chance. Give them opportunity to fight against disease, against the handicap of the condition in which they were born," she pleaded in conclusion.

Architecture as a profession for women was advocated by Mrs. Stanton of Halifax, at the morning session of the professional section, but perhaps the most profitable to mankind was their work of scientific research. It would be of value in the development of the sex, whose minds were not apt to be honest, were most biased and needed to cultivate honesty of observation. Two necessary qualities for women engaged in scientific work, whether domestic science or practical research, were the natural desire to learn and willingness to undergo a thorough course of training.

from Sterling. On the 17th Sterling spurted and overhauled Cameron, who was forced to capitulate after a game fight.

Stubbis electrified the crowd by a magnificent spurt and showed that he was not to be lapped by his old time rival without a struggle. He had spurted to late, however, and though he gained about a quarter of a mile, Sterling made an easy winner, finishing with a fine spurt amid cheers.

The Relay Race

In the relay race the St. John team won after some very pretty racing. The contest provoked a lot of interest. The summary follows:

RELAY RACE.

Won by E. D. C. team, St. John, Stubbis, Brooks, Giggly and Covey.

After Thoughts

While no records were to smash, some splendid time was made.

One result of the meet was the unanimous opinion that Stirling should go to the Canadian championships, as he would stand a excellent chance of winning. His time was much better than that of any other runner in the province.

Stubbis ran well, but it seems that he is not in the very best of condition, in fact, not in the shape that he has been in. The St. John men speak in the highest manner of the treatment accorded them by both the Moncton athletes, members of the Moncton A. A. and officials of the meet. There was no complaint in any shape or form, and all expressed a desire to come back to St. John.

Somebody said to Paul, the speedy Springfield man, who gave Covey the heartburn in the dashes: "What was the matter with you?" and he replied, "There was nothing the matter with me, only I was second to Covey every time, and I considered that honor enough." Paul thought Covey should go to the Canadian champs, and there were others who thought so, too.

Moncton has some promising material in the athletic line. There were some young lads there who can certainly run, and they also possess a pair of jumpers.

The relay team, Stubbis, Covey, Giggly, Brooks, was all right. My, but how Covey and Brooks did go.

Say that Covey can more than go, said the crowd.

"I would like to see Jerry win," was an expression heard from not a few.

"Make a record Stirling," said the crowd, in a very earnest way.

The Transcript will say today that the Every Day Club team from St. John was a strong one, and deserved the victory. The Moncton crowd had rendered a cordial programme, and marched to the grounds.

Stirling was accompanied by his trainer, Harry Day, who also took charge of other members of the team. Day is a good one, and knows his business. Paul, Stirling announces that it is probable he will go to the Canadian Champs.

THE PASSING OF THE OLDTIME SAILORS AND THE OLDTIME SHIPS

Those who live in the large sea coast cities of this country and catch glimpses of the shipping of the seven seas from wharf fronts and ferry boats probably do not realize as they see at rare intervals a sailing ship leaving or entering port how near they are to witnessing the final disappearance of the "square rigger," as a factor of international commerce.

Ten years ago statistics showed that there was a slight increase in the number of sailing ships built, particularly in England, and some shipping agents declared that steam won't ever entirely drive out sail, as a motive power for freight ships covering long distances, owing to the great saving in coal consumption in cases where the cargo was not perishable and time was not of prime importance. These views have been borne out by the development of marine commerce, however. The perfection of these supplying world's produce to get their goods to market with as little delay as possible, have made it harder and harder for the owners of deep draught sailing ships to compete with the square riggers, which need many hands to man the rigging.

It is not so true in the case of schooners, which require small crews, as it is of square riggers, which need many hands to man the rigging. The writing on the wall is so plain that the who do not wish to believe it

A MILTONIC CONCEPTION

"St. John has not an ideal harbor for motor boating, as when the tides fall the bottom is nothing more than a huge series of mud flats with little rivulets of water flowing through narrow and ragged canals."

The above statement appears in the June number of The Motor Magazine of Canada, which also informs its readers that "motoring out about two miles from St. John the tourist arrives at Rockaway Park."

MR. SEWARD'S FORESIGHT

An editorial in the Montreal Gazette recalls the memory of the man (Hon. W. H. Seward) who secured Alaska for the United States, and thus prevented Canada from expansion northward by purchase of a region which President Roosevelt declared some years ago would in the time of persons then living have a population as large and as gifted as that of the Scandinavian peninsula—a people who, by their brains and energies, had influenced the greater part of Europe. Alaska has over and over again repaid to the United States what it cost that country, although at the time of the purchase Mr. Seward was sharply criticized for his bargain with Russia.

may right soon to be taken on by the federal union, without materially changing or affecting its condition or development. I have dropped this opinion as a national conceit. I see in British America . . . a region grand enough for the seat of a great empire."

THE CRETAN SITUATION

The Athens correspondent of the New York Times gives that paper a very interesting account of the present situation in Europe with regard to the island of Crete, over which it was feared Turkey and Greece would come to blows. We quote: "Although the anxiety existing here with regard to possible developments of the Cretan question has by no means subsided, a calmer feeling now prevails and the opinion gains ground that a settlement in accordance with the desires of Greece and Crete will ultimately be effected. In responsible quarters here it is not believed that the forces from Crete, have no intention of abandoning the island to its fate and will not permit the employment of force on the part either of Turkey or Greece."

THE CABLE RATES

The imperial press conference yesterday voted unanimously in favor of state-owned electrical communication between Canada and Great Britain. The present cable rates are practically prohibitive as far as a good daily press service is concerned, and they are kept up to make profits for the companies. All the governments concerned will be asked to take action in the matter. The surprising thing in the reports received by cable last night is the statement relating to Pacific cable rates. The Pacific cable board has offered to greatly reduce the rates on press messages, if the New Zealand government would do the same regarding terminal charges. Mr. Brierly of Montreal pointed out that this proposed reduction was the strongest argument for a state-owned cable. The cable reports of this discussion are not quite clear on all points, but the proposal of the Pacific cable board does not weaken the case for state ownership. The people have been paying too much, and the concessions now offered are made in the interests of companies which see a fine source of profit threatened by free competition. The Hon. Mr. Marconi offers a great reduction by his wireless method, but while this may serve its purpose, it is not a permanent demand a state-owned system of communication.

The parish delegates to the county Liberal convention were chosen last night and the convention will be held on Monday evening in Berryman's Hall. The reports received show that the party is strong and united, and that the government candidate has not gained any voting strength since he was defeated in the general elections.

A REQUEST

To the Rev. B. Beatty, St. John, N. B. Sir,—Will you kindly use your influence with your "Bro. Jones," the present owner of the hall on Waterloo street, to have the sign "People's Mission" removed from the roof of the building. It is very aggravating to those who have to pass that way, and who subscribed to the hall upon your plea that it was to be used "to the glory of God and the salvation of souls," and which you dedicated "to the Lord as a place from which the hallowed influences of the gospel should for ever emanate." And to see the sign "People's Mission" on the roof and the "Empire Theatre" on the door is to say the least contradictory terms.

PROVINCIAL NEWS

New Brunswick Miss Dorothy Manning, of Wolfville, who took the government's medal at Acadia this spring, has accepted a position as teacher of languages at the Baptist College at Atlantic.

The Richibucto Review says—The long spell of dry weather has already greatly retarded the progress of the crops. While the rest of the province and even other portions of Kent County have had considerably more rain recently, there has been no rain fall of any extent in the central portion. The hay crop especially needs rain at once or it is likely to be very short.

ON HIS DIGNITY

The postoffice at Sand Creek, Long Island is for the accommodation of 20 families, and the salary of the postmaster is $26 a year. I went in to buy my mail, a postal card and found him there in all his dignity. He wasn't inclined to conversation, but I asked: "I suppose you were in Washington for the inauguration?"

"No sir!" was the emphatic reply. "There was a big turnout, I understand." "There may have been." "Anyone got from around here?" "No, I believe not."

"Did you find it impossible to get away from your onerous duties?" "But you just didn't go?" "I didn't! I said that I didn't go!" He was so stiff about the thing that I determined to have one more shot at him, and after a moment I said: "And why didn't you, an office-holder under the party, go to the inauguration?"

"Sir, I am postmaster at Sand Creek!" he replied, as he drew himself up. "Yes!" "And as Mr. Taft didn't invite me to the inauguration I stood on my dignity, and am standing there yet."

"But you may be bounced for not showing up." "Then, sir, then I will also be bounced on my dignity!"

NO APOLOGY NECESSARY

"Sir," he began as he met an acquaintance on the street, "I have not been you since the day before election."

"During the campaign I was for Bryan and you for Taft."

"I was a very bitter partisan. On the day before election you and I were discussing the situation and I called Mr. Taft a big guy."

"I said he wasn't fit for the place. I said it was a farce to elect such a man."

"Yes, you did." "I said that he was a biased judge on the bench and a grafter in the Philippines."

"Just so." "I said that if the people of the United States made him president they would be sorry for it forever after."

"I think you did." "And, sir, to wind up with, I referred to him as a hunchback and a drunkard, or recall that I did, don't you?" "Oh, yes, I recall it."

"Well, sir, I want to apologize to you for my words. I have changed my opinion, and I want to say—"

"Oh, my dear sir, no apologies are necessary—at all—not at all."

NOVA SCOTIA STARTED THE TEMPERANCE AGITATION

(Toronto Mail and Empire) By the Boston Transcript attention is directed to the fact that it was in June, 1890, that the first temperance association was formed. A village in New York saw the beginning of the campaign against King Alcohol, and from that village the fight spread until the movement was practically world-wide. After the United States had entered upon the struggle the agitation passed to Ireland, then to Scotland, and then to England. It was in Lancashire that the anti-liquor people came to be known as "teetotalers." A stuttering native of that county is alleged to have declared that he did not believe in half measures and therefore leave gin and its brother beverages "to-totally" and his brother beverages "to-totally" alone. And so the "teetotalers" came into prominence.

That some such movement was seriously needed at the beginning of the last century is admitted by all who have studied the customs of that period. Mankind has emerged from the three and four-bottle condition; but still much rum was consumed. It is said of New York State that the sale of a farm to satisfy a mortgage laid on to meet a liquor bill was not uncommon. When things reach this position it is certainly time for action. Perhaps, indeed, it would be better if something were done before arriving at that point. The movement began modestly at first: for the original temperance pledge permitted the use of liquors on holidays and at public dinners. This was the thin end of the wedge. The next step was a little more restrictive, until finally total abstinence became the rule. That the temperance crusade has done much good no one can doubt. It has altered the tone of society towards temperance, and has made the excessive use of liquors a disgrace. Many people think that the persuasive policy of the temperance organizations of years gone by did really more good than the legislative campaigns of the present moment are calculated to achieve. Certainly what the people do through conviction is more earnestly done than what they do by compulsion.

Our friends next door are claiming that the temperance movement began with them a century ago. We dispute their pretension. If we were to get at the actual beginning of the agitation we have to look to Nova Scotia. There, in 1783, the association against spirituous liquor was formed. The objects of the society were set forth in its programme. In the first place, the association deplored the excessive use of liquor "among the laboring poor to the ruin of their moral and their health. Then it protested against "the present enormous price of rum." Finally it bound its members, that to abstain themselves, but "to refrain from giving any sort of spirituous liquors to any servant or laborer in "our employment." The people who in 1783 devised this measure of reform in behalf of others were surely the first to occupy the temperance field.

SPRING SONG

Now winter sees his power wane, And rising up betimes, Departs with all his gloomy train, For more congenial climes; Throughout the rawskened land A milder reign is sung, And thus we clearly understand That "gentle spring" has "sprung."

The streamlet breaks the ice yash Wrought by the north wind keen, And nature with arctic hush, Now paints the landscape green; Upon the boughs the buds come out Where late icicles cling; Which goes to prove beyond a doubt, That "gentle spring" has "sprung."

The birds that vanished with the leaves Now daily appear, And chirp and chatter round the eaves Of summer's coming cheer, While each nest-building conference Affords conclusive evidence, That "gentle spring" has "sprung."

The Well-Dressed Woman

Drawn by Helen Hulme

THE POPULARITY OF FOULARDS—By Marion Morris

FOULARD silks are in high favor. This may not seem an important statement in itself. But it will be cheering news for the observant on-looker, for it hints that women are at last showing a glimmer of sanity in a year of extraordinary eccentricity and lack of fitness in the matter of dress. Foulard silks are always more or less "in."

In other years if a woman thought she needed an extra dress or two, some of those simple little affairs, designed for no especial occasion, one of them was quite likely to be of foulard.

But this year there is a change. She is quite likely to say "What ever I have, I must have a foulard."

And this applies to women of almost every class, from Madame, who strolls in and orders a dress pattern of the exquisite bordered foulard at forty-five yards—"charge it, please"—to the girl who sells that same silk in the shop and herself saves up to buy a foulard silk at fifty cents a yard, from which a dress is constructed that is the pride of her heart of Sundays.

And how wise are these women in their choice! For foulard silk has much to recommend its wear in this climate. Like the magical bottle we are advised to take on picnic, which keeps the contents cold in hot weather and hot in cold weather, foulard silk has a wonderful faculty for accommodating itself to the temperature and that is something to be considered in a climate where winds blow first hot and then cold.

And if you scorn its practicality, I'm sure the charm of the designs and colorings of this year's importations will win your heart.

Quite unlike the familiar silks of other years they are. This season there are no polka-dotted or coin-spotted varieties on view—or if there are, let me whisper that they are "left-overs" from the stock of past seasons.

Instead we find silks of quite original patterns. The patterns are not as a rule large, but they make up in peculiarity what they lack in size.

Very often the background is in wide shaded stripes of one color—old, soft blue or a soft taupe—and on this is splashed, indistinctly what looks like small flashes of lightning in white. This goes zigzagging all over in the silk in quite a startling way, but so faintly is it suggested that the wearer is guaranteed against shock.

That, of course, is only one of the many patterns. Satin foulards are the choice for gowns intended for luncheon and afternoon wear, while the foulards resembling India silk are usually worn for runabout frocks in the morning.

Tones of damask flax or Irish croquet lace—which is fast becoming impressively common—with touches of satin are usually employed as trimming on the more simple foulard dresses.

The bordered satin foulards are, of course, a trimming in themselves. Some of these bordered silks are really quite indescribably charming. They are here in all fashionable colors of the season, but with a depth and softness of coloring quite lacking in any other fabric save plain satin.

Green patterns form many of the borders, while some have queer Egyptian-looking hieroglyphics that suggest their having been borrowed from inscriptions on the pyramids. These borders afford great opportunities for effective use as overskirts and draperies, as well as being used as trimming on the waists.

Black and white foulard has had such a great and unexpected vogue that the shops have been taken unawares and many are completely sold out. The subdued colorings are most fashionable this year, pronounced shades in foulards being rarely seen.

DESCRIPTION OF GOWNS IN THE ABOVE ILLUSTRATION

The gown on the left is of white net with pale blue dot thrown upon surface. Collarless yoke and undersleeves of the same. The short bolero-like waist is of white net embroidered with blue soutache and trimmed with bands of blue satin. A blue silk slip is worn with the gown. The front is shown on the figure leaning against the pillar.

The gown on the extreme right is of amethyst-colored linen, embroidered in self-toned heavy floss in Wall of Troy Design. A shield-shaped piece of linen stitched at the edges falls to the waist both front and back and it is held in place by a girde to match in color, which runs through openings in the linen. The back is shown on the remaining figure.

In France they are making foulard dresses with amazingly full skirts—some of them measure ten yards around the hem and are gathered—actually gathered—into the waist! But these haven't arrived at that here yet, although a very pronounced fullness is creeping into the skirts.

A popular way of making the skirt of foulard dresses is with a deep plaited flounce, which rises to just below the hips and there joins the plain fitted upper portion of the skirt.

This upper part of the skirt may be cut all in one, with the rest of the dress, with long uninterrupted line from neck to hip, true type of the Moyen Age. Or it may be broken by some arrangement of belt or girde, or trimming, simulating ether, at the waistline. But if the skirt flounce be kilted the plait must be pressed absolutely flat, although a gathered flounce is sometimes used. The deep skirt flounce is the entirely new and striking part of the design.

Little one-piece dresses of foulard, trimmed only with big satin-covered buttons, and having turndown collar and deep cuffs of lace or lingerie effect are beloved of the younger element this year. They make delightfully cool and light little dresses to run about in and do not crush or soil as do linens.

Some women have made the happy discovery that a gown of foulard, of course, unlined and made on a negligee model, is an ideal garment for the dreary night in the sleeping car.

Made up of dark colored foulard silk, amply full, opening down the front and having a hood which can be drawn up over disheveled hair, the wearer can make her way to the dressing room in the morning with the assurance that she does not look, as most women do at this trying hour, a "fright."

A gown of this description takes up very little room in the traveling bag and, if made of good quality silk, will not crush easily.

Many women have these traveling negligees made of black China silk. An exclusive New York establishment has called to the attention of their patrons a "Pullman robe," which they have had designed.

This is made of striped silk, in a somewhat complicated model, with wide shoulders, cape and buckled belt. With it goes a canopied bag, made of the same silk, in which you are supposed to carry the necessary toilet articles to the dressing room. But for lightness and simplicity the traveling robe of foulard is to be recommended.

Again this season foulards are used as linings for traveling or motoring wraps of cloth or silk.

I saw an automobiling coat of Shantung silk in natural color the other day at a very smart tailor's. It had a lining of black foulard silk printed with little polka dots of white the size of small butter plates. But this was an extreme style, which would appeal only to extreme taste.

Traveling and steamer coats of blue serge have linings of gaily-colored foulard silks, which make a pleasant contrast. Motoring coats of pongee or Shantung or Rajah silk are made with linings of plain foulards in Chinese blue, soft green or rose color. A touch of the same color is repeated as trimming on collar, cuffs or elsewhere on the coat.

This season there is no excuse for the woman who does not at least look attractive when she goes motoring.

For most charming things in the way of motoring bonnets have been provided for her use. Quaint, early-Victorian things they are, flattering even to a plain face and absolutely ravishing when framing a face of dainty coloring and piquante features.

All kinds of unexpected materials are called upon for their construction. Out-cloth, which is made for military purposes, soft and supple as satin, is sometimes used for whole bonnets. While it has the recommendation of being water-proof and non-fadeable, it does not appeal to the aesthetic taste in any way. But hats from the most fashionable milliners are being trimmed with this queer shiny stuff, a piping of brilliant color outlining bows and folds.

Raffia has been used to form some of the most charming motoring bonnets I have seen. They are made on the close-fitting bonnet shape, which fits in tightly at the back of the neck and flares around the face. Lined with water-proofed silk in a becoming color and draped with water-proofed chiffon veiling (When, I wonder, shall we follow in the process and become water-proofed, too!), they tie under the chin with wide ribbons in most coquetish fashion. Big rosettes of ribbon fasten the chiffon draperies over each ear or rosettes of the chiffon itself, made to simulate full-blown roses, are used for the purpose.

For these chiffon draping are not the ordinary chiffon veils of other years, but are really part of the trimming of the bonnets and intended to "stay put." Large rosettes, made to represent big chrysanthemums, with many loops of straw braid, fasten down the veil on either side on some models.

Crestons is sometimes the choice as a fabric from which to fashion motoring bonnets. But, while it is picturesque and becoming, when it is fresh it soon becomes soiled and worn-looking, when it loses any charm it had.

Suede is another out-of-the-ordinary material this year called upon for motoring bonnets. Its fine, velvety surface is attractive and it comes in colors most exquisite and difficult to obtain in woven fabrics.

Quaint little nosegays of flowers, water-proof and weather-proof of course, are to be had to further beautify these bonnets. Little stiff bunches of button-roses and forget-me-nots are tucked in among the folds of chiffon or a tiny wreath of pale pink roses, in diminutive size, is placed inside the brim of the bonnet, circling the face.

All kinds of queer masks to protect the face when rushing through the air and yet not interfere with the vision are to be had.

One of the latest inventions is a shroud of clear mica, which fastens to the veil on either side and completely protects the upper part of the face. It ends in a wide fringe of white lace, which depends over the chin and gives an exhilarating sense of being on the way to a masked ball, although of what practical benefit it is I couldn't quite see.

Chiffon veils, with bits of mica inserted to fit over the eyes, are not new, but have been proved to be most satisfactory in the way of protecting the eyes. But, alas, all these contrivances are anything but beautiful, and I had hoped that the problem of "How to be beautiful through automobiling" was about to be solved!

For so long women seem to have believed that going out motoring was synonymous with looking as hideous as possible; that the thought that one could hope to see visions of loveliness and not ugliness descending from motor cars was a great relief.

A Fascinating Hand Bag.

A hand bag that is delightfully Summery can be made from heavy white flax net with an all-over embroidered scroll running over it done in narrow white soutache braid. The net is doubled at the bottom and sloped at each end toward the top, which is at least two inches narrower than the bottom. Wedge shape ends of flax are sewed in. The bag is made up over white linen, and the handle is of a heavy white braid

Delegates to Liberals Nominating Convention Chosen Last Night By Parish Meetings—Some Speeches

Judging from the nature of the reports of the parish meetings held last night, the Liberal electors of St. John county are thoroughly aroused.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of Liberals was held in the Masonic hall, St. Martins, last evening for the purpose of electing delegates to the convention.

There is no evidence that Mr. Mosher is as strong as he was in the general election, while on the other hand it is pointed out that many who voted for him then have signified their intention to work and vote for the nominees of the Liberal party.

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED BY DIPLOMACY'S SUNNY SMILE

A Year's Work for International Amity Between Canada and the United States—Five Treaties Were Made—All Have Been Ratified Except Waterways—Practically Every Possible Source of Friction Between the Two Nations Has Been Removed—Better Than the Building of Warships

Ottawa, June 25—When other nations are talking "Dreadnought" armaments and land defenses, it need not be regarded as any interference with the trend of that discussion if one takes a glance at what the "sunny smile" has accomplished during the past fiscal year between Canada and the United States—two nations, separated only by a boundary line, which for three thousand miles has no other protection against hostilities than the fixed and settled determination of both peoples to pursue, in peace if possible, but at any rate to pursue the different paths which they have been treading for more than one hundred years.

Two or three years ago Mr. Eihu Rot, then secretary of state at Washington, visited Ottawa, and in conversation with his friends said that if he and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had their way they would settle every outstanding question of dispute between the two countries, so that all sources of irritation would be speedily and finally removed. In the old days Ottawa looked to Washington; now it is Washington that comes to Ottawa.

Looking over the record of the past year, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Root—who retired from the United States executive along with President Roosevelt, but who is now a member of the senate—ought to be proud of what they have accomplished. No less than five treaties between Great Britain and the United States were negotiated, signed and ratified; a sixth awaits ratification, and a seventh is almost completed.

VIENNA THE BEAUTIFUL CAPITAL OF AUSTRIA

By Della Austriana

The Parliament Building

Vienna, one of the oldest cities in Europe, is also one of the most attractive. When Paris was a small town on an island Vienna had been for centuries a large thrifty and attractive town. Even then there were few cities in Europe who dared to proclaim themselves as rivals and the reason is easily understood. Its natural position made it a good fort, and more than once served as an impenetrable frontier when the Moslems made a wild attack on Europe. It was then a flourishing town, having been founded by the Romans before the Christian era.

Many a nobleman made this splendid frontier town his home, and even Vienna of today boasts as having had Marcus Aurelius as a citizen. But it required centuries of planning and working to change this old city into one of the handsomest capitals of Europe. The Austrian Alps had the broad, clear Danube were faithful inspiration to make the poetic Viennese long to enlarge and beautify their city. Though it grew and developed rapidly, by much of its modern beauty is the work of the Emperor Franz Joseph. Less than a century ago the capital was surrounded by exceedingly high walls and a deep moat. But this strong fortification was out of harmony with the modern beauty of the city. Therefore the ramparts were taken down and the moat was filled with water.

Where the ancient fortifications once stood a large boulevard called the Ringstrasse was laid out, covering no small part of the city. This street is to Vienna what the Champs Elysees is to Paris. Though the Ringstrasse is shorter it is certainly the more unusual. It is a great circle, dividing old and new Vienna, richly enhanced by equestrian roads, large shade trees and magnificent public structures. Each building has enough space to show their individuality and still they all blend to make a harmonious whole. Of these, the house of parliament is among the most spacious and attractive. It is a splendid example of Austrian architecture. The exterior is adorned with heavy Ionic columns—exquisitely delicate base reliefs, and colossal bronze groups of gods and goddesses driving light, graceful steeds through midair. The interior, though not so much ornamented, is exquisitely delicate and beautiful. The long and broad staircases are made of purest Carrara marble, which is also used as wall casement, while the ceilings are decorated with fres-are so exquisitely carved they suggest the finest lace work; the wide roadway is banked on both sides with large trees and heavy shrubbery. Half hidden by this foliage are large ponds with cascades sending up great jets of water to cool the air. A great deal of labor and money has been spent in making this building magically beautiful. Seven million dollars is put as a conservative statement of its cost. The massive tower, more than 300 feet in height, is exquisitely carved and surmounted with a large gilded statue.

The further suggestion of the Gothic is carried out in the seven large arcades which look much like old cloisters. At either end of the building are staircases of white marble ornamented with gilt balustrades, which lead to the floor above.

Another pretty part of the Ringstrasse is the Palace Garden, adorned with two gigantic structures. The Garden is carefully laid out with deep rows of shade trees, flower beds, that harmonize and contrast, and rare shrubbery gathered from many parts of the globe. The most striking feature of this garden is the Maria Theresa Denkmal. The statue surmounts a great pedestal ornamented with a dozen or more marble steps. At the four corners of the pedestal are large equestrian statues of Maria Theresa's foremost generals, while figures of able statesmen are shown in bas relief. Surrounding the Queen are four female figures representing Justice, Law, Wisdom and Virtue.

Quite as colorfully grand are the two large museums of granite. One of these buildings is devoted to natural history, and is rich in mineral collections, precious stones, meteorites and fossil remains. The other building contains a valuable art collection of the imperial family, which was formerly scattered in the different palaces.

In the same square are the Royal Stables, filled with horses of many breeds. The snow-white Spanish horses are used for the coachmen of the Emperor, and the splendid-looking black ones at full gallop.

Though Vienna cannot boast of having a great gallery, it has a large collection and many of these are really worth while. The best pictures are by Dutch masters, more especially Van Dyke and Rubens. There is a large museum made up of three departments. The first is the Imperial Library, which includes nearly 400,000 books. The second has 20,000 manuscripts and many volumes of music. The third represents a splendid collection of cameos, bronzes and coins. Many treasures from the Napoleonic era are seen here, including the crown of Napoleon, the famous pearl and gold cradle of the king of Italy, besides the scepter, sword and crown of Charlemagne. One of the most valuable treasures is the famous diamond crown of the king of Burgundy. It weighs 130 carats and is valued at $200,000.

The Viennese have worked conscientiously to make their city one of the most attractive capitals in Europe. They are continually adding new statues, fountains and small parks to make the city more complete and attractive. At one end of the Ringstrasse is a massive portal called the Palace Gate, which leads into the Heroes Square, ornamented with two equestrian statues. One of these is a colossal figure of Archduke Charles, the ablest of the Austrian generals. The other is the statue of Prince Eugene, one of the great generals of the eighteenth century.

There are a number of beautiful fountains in Vienna, though certainly none is more attractive than the one to Franz Joseph. On a strong pedestal are two figures, one of Franz Joseph and the other of his consort. From this pedestal the water gushes into a basin beneath while in the niches on either side are two handsome figures of Wisdom and Justice.

But the finest piece of statuary in the Viennese capital is the tomb of the Archduchess Christina, daughter of Maria Theresa, in the Church of Augustines. It is a product of Canova's genius and the sculptor's tomb in Vienna is an exact copy of this magnificent model. The symbolism and the carving are equally grand. The monument has the form of a pyramid and is approached by a flight of steps. The door is slightly ajar to receive a group of approaching guests—symbolizing Virtue, Benevolence, Childhood and Old Age.

During the last 25 years many of the old buildings have been torn down and more modern attractive structures have been reared in their stead. Most of the people live in apartments, only families of great wealth enjoying private mansions.

Much attention is given to the planning of the great shops and public offices; they must comply with certain definite regulations as to height, decoration and that the architecture conform with their use. Nowhere, not even in Paris, is comeliness of architecture so severe and exacting.

In erecting public buildings the esthetic side and community benefits are never sacrificed to individual taste and artistic whims. The height of buildings are always estimated in proportion to the breadth of the streets, so skyscrapers are really unknown. This desire for civic improvement is carried to a point that prizes are given to encourage citizens in erecting buildings on certain streets and squares.

However commonplace the building, it is certain to be excellently proportioned and to have definite features of beauty. Like in Paris, every public building as well as decorative feature is placed in relation to a harmonious whole. The most practical buildings, such as the railway station and the arsenal, are made in such splendid marble that it is difficult to realize that they are not government buildings.

The streets, besides being well paved, are well kept; they are swept and watered every day. This does not only mean the front streets, every effort is exerted to keep the poorest quarters neat and orderly. The lighting of the streets is another civic feature that receives plenty of attention. Every street and bridge is well lighted; some of the finer have ornamental lamp posts. The same care is given to the placing of bill-boards. The signs must be neat looking and attractive, and posted on attractive signboards.

The Viennese value their sidewalks as much as the foyers of their theatres. During the spring and summer months they love to come down from their warm balconies to promenade, to meet their friends, chat and dine at the street restaurants.

The bridges are another feature considered important in this worship of civic beauty. Some of the bridges are of iron, but the most artistic are of stone, ornamented with marble pediments and finely carved bas reliefs.

The churches with their tall Gothic spires give much beauty and poetry to the city. The Votive Church is the finest in Vienna and one of the handsomest in Europe. The tower is designed and carved in the most exquisite Gothic style and is more than 300 feet in height.

The parks and gardens likewise play an important part in making the city attractive. There is one large park and a number of smaller ones in the heart of the city. Anyone seeing the Austrian capital long remembers the Prater and the Venedig with pleasant recollections.

But the crowning glory of all this splendor is Schonbrunn, the summer residence of the imperial family. Interesting though the palace is, it is the park that is absorbing and beautiful, only to be surpassed by the Garden of Versailles. In summer time the place is brilliant in foliage and beautiful flowers and the air is heavy with a delicate perfume. From one point is an elevation overlooking the extensive grounds called the Gloriette. From this vantage point one sees long walls of foliage, lovers' lanes, half-hidden statues, splashing fountains and the beautiful outlines of the spires of Austrian churches off in the distance.

THEY SPENT THEIR HONEYMOON IN BREAKING BALLOON RECORD

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Burnham of Brookline Had a Thrilling Experience on Their Wedding Trip

Brookline, Mass., June 20—The "aerial honeymooners," Mr. and Mrs. Roger Burnham, are here tonight, resting after one of the most exciting getaway trips that newlyweds ever took. After a thrilling start in the darkness from Pittsfield, they journeyed around about the state for nearly four hours in the big balloon, Heart of the Berkshires. Then they landed at daybreak, on a farm in Holbrook, just fourteen miles from Boston Common. They tumbled here later in the day. Besides breaking the record for unique honeymoons, Mr. and Mrs. Burnham also broke a ballooning record. A Boston newspaper offering a trophy for the balloon which starting from Pittsfield, would come nearest to the Capitol within the year. Hitherto the nearest landing has been twenty-six miles from the Capitol and the time is nearly up. There was excitement about the honeymoon trip from the very start. Although it was 12:45 o'clock this morning when the bride and groom stepped into the basket, a crowd of more than five hundred persons pressed about them, breaking down the lines the Pittsfield police had established. Many men were smoking and there was grave danger that an explosion might follow the contact of a cigar ember with escaping gas. But some marvel of luck averted this. The balloon shot almost straight up when cut away and the honeymooners exchanging shouts of "Good-bye and good luck!" soon reached an altitude of 2,533 feet and began to drift in a northerly direction. The voyagers could make out the lights of Adams and North Adams in a short while. It was chilly and they wrapped themselves in stonewool rugs. As the town lights disappeared, real peril appeared all of a sudden. Below everything was inky black. William Van Sleet, the professional ascendant turned to his static scope to see whether the big bag was rising or falling. To his horror he found the instrument was out of order. The balloon for all he knew, might be grazing tree tops or ascending to dangerous heights. "If I had some tissue paper to throw over or down," he said to Mr. Burnham.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF SPORT

"I never saw Tom Longboat so much in earnest over a race in my life," remarked Tom Flanagan in discussing the Longboat-Shrubb 20-mile race at Hanlan's Point, Toronto, scheduled for tonight. "When he came back from Buffalo he came in to see Tim O'Rourke, talked a few minutes, and then hustled out home. He is happy and contented in his new home, and is doing his own training. I think, too, he has lost the swollen head. The people have quit making an idol of him after his last couple of defeats, and he is quick enough to see that he must win to retain his popularity. Taking his 4.37 mile with Stone and his Nebraska 10 miles in 33:11 4-8 into consideration, I am beginning to think he will walk through any race he enters. I don't think there will be any runaway anywhere, for Shrubb cannot do 53 for 10 miles, and as strong as the Indian for the next 10. They will do the 20 mile around 1:55 if nothing happens to either one before 10 miles. It will be a great race."

CLIPPERS WON IN GOOD GAME

They Defeated the Marathons Yesterday By a Score of 8 to 2 in the Sixth Game of the Series

The Clippers got back at the Marathons on the Victoria grounds last evening to the tune of 8 to 2. The game was marked by frequent hitting by the Clippers and almost total fielding on the part of the Marathons. The Marathons managed to connect with the leather safely only twice, although one of these proved good for a home run. On the other hand the Clippers landed seven safe ones. Their fielding was excellent, only one error being made, that by Crosby. From the start, the Clippers were in force. They banged the ball at every opportunity and they, after the second inning, combined favorably for them with the altogether too frequent errors of the Marathons. They put eight into their play which was held on the part of their opponents. Board pitched for the Clippers. He had six strike outs and only sent one man on a pass. Nesbit was in the box for the Marathons. He worked hard but his odds were too much against him. Nine errors in six innings are too much for any man to pitch against. The score was:

MARATHONS LOST THE FIRST GAME

Defeated By the Quoddy Indians Yesterday By a Score of 6 to 5—Play Two More Games Today.

In a game marked by altogether too many errors, the Quoddy Indians defeated the Marathons on the Victoria grounds yesterday afternoon by a score of 6 to 5. This was the first appearance of the Eastport boys on the diamond and quite a lot of interest was shown. They showed good form in stick work, throwing and running bases, but were a little bit off in fielding. The local boys had an off day, too, especially Harrigan at third. Titus was in the box for the Marathons. He worked hard and had four strike-outs, but was bunched too closely. Dana pitched for the Quoddy's. His control was good. He had nine strike-outs. With the exception of one inning, very good ball was played all through the game. The score was:

"CAN I GET WELL?"

If Your Trouble comes from the Kidneys, or from Kidney Poisons in the Blood, YES!

And if you have been ailing a long time don't lose your courage. It takes a little time—takes some constitutional longer than others. But Don's Kidney Pills will gradually drain the poisons out of your system; the pain in your back will stop; the sediment in the urine will cease; there will be no rheumatic pains; you will feel fresher, and brighter, and when the last of the poisons have gone you will be well.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in doing this as Don's Kidney Pills.

Mr. W. Perkins, South Maitland, N.S., writes: "I feel as if I had to tell you of the greatest cure I have obtained by using Don's Kidney Pills. For six months I could not obtain a good night's rest, and to get up four or five times to urinate, and the urine was very thick and red. I commenced using Don's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was able to have found so speedy a cure."

MR. GOULD TO GET $3,000 PER MONTH

The Court Awards Her a Legal Separation and This Allowance New York, June 25—Katherine Clemmons Gould obtained a legal separation with alimony from her husband, Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould, by a decision of Justice Dowling in the supreme court today after a trial which had lasted nearly three weeks. With the exception of alimony, her victory was complete, but in this phase of the case the court decided that $3,000 a year was sufficient, though in her suit Mrs. Gould asked for $20,000. She has been receiving $25,000 a year from Mr. Gould so that the amount fixed by the court is but a slight increase over what she had previously allowed her and is but a small fraction of the amount named in her suit. It was in the vindication of charges of intoxication and her alleged relation with Dustin Farmum, the actor, that Mrs. Gould scored most strongly, for notwithstanding the long array of witnesses for Mr. Gould, who gave such testimony as to make Mrs. Gould appear at times as defendant rather than plaintiff the court held that the "intoxication" may have been due to excitement. As to Dustin Farmum, it was held that her association with him came after Mr. and Mrs. Gould separated and that the husband apparently made no objection. Immediately after the decision, Delaney Nicoll, for Mr. Gould, asked for a sixty days stay of judgment, but Clarence J. Egan, for the plaintiff, asked for an immediate judgment. Justice Dowling compromised by making the stay thirty days. Mr. Shearn then asked for an extra allowance for counsel fees and the court gave him $2,000. This, together with the $10,000 allowed recently and the original allowance of $5,000, will bring his fees to $17,000, with an additional sum of $3,000 for expenses.

ST. JOHN MAN WAS AMONG THOSE DROWNED

R. C. Loughhead, Drowned in Lake Killarney, Was a Resident of Boston, But a Native of St. John.

R. C. Loughhead, one of a tourist party, drowned in the Lakes of Killarney this week, was a resident of Boston, but a native of St. John.

Robert Crothers Loughhead was born in a house that stood near the present corner school on Waterloo street fifty-seven years ago. He was a cousin of Samuel Crothers of the old firm of Crothers & Wilson. The Loughhead family moved to Boston after the war. There Robert married a Miss Butler and became manager of the Butler forwarding company, and made money.

He had several brothers. Of these Joseph, who frequently visited here, died in Cambridgeport about two years ago. William T. lives at Wollaston Heights, Mass. John is an actor and lives in California.

E. W. Paul of this city remembers the family well, and years ago groomed for a time with one of the brothers.

TO HALIFAX IN AUGUST

Many Local Members of the Knights of Pythias Will Attend Grand Lodge Convention

Many members of the order of Knights of Pythias in St. John are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the convention of grand lodge which will this year be held in Halifax on August 17 and 18. The last time that the grand lodge met in the sister city was in 1897 and those who visited there, on that occasion cannot say enough about the good time that was given them. Judging from the reports received about the plan being made for the entertainment of the visiting Knights and their ladies at the approaching gathering, a rare good time may be expected.

The Halifax lodge, which extended the invitation to the grand lodge to meet there, has secured the privileges of using the historic Legislative Council Chamber in which to hold their meetings.

Invitations have been sent to various supreme lodge officers and it is expected that Supreme Chancellor Barnes and Supreme Vice-Chancellor Hanson will be among the guests. Major General Stobart, the commander of the uniform rank, may also attend.

It is probable that Victoria and Cygnit Companies of the uniform rank in St. John will attend and probably Frontier Co. of St. Stephen, Monseye Co. of Moncton, and Fowler Co. of Fredericton will be represented.

ST. JOHN HAS THE BASEBALL FEVER

There Should Be Large Crowds at the Marathon-Quoddy Games Today.

The base ball fever has struck St. John. There were large crowds at the Every Day Club grounds yesterday afternoon to see the games between the Marathons and the Indian team from Eastport, and last evening to see the Marathons play the Clippers.

The Marathons play the Indian team two games today, afternoon and evening. The afternoon game will begin at 3 o'clock. The Quoddy are a strong team, and present a fine appearance in their red uniforms. They have an advantage over their opponents in the matter of signs, as the Quoddy cannot understand the Indian tongue. The Indians are great runners.

Last night's game with the Clippers roused the crowd to great enthusiasm, as there is keen rivalry between the Marathons and Clippers in this championship series. Such a noise has not come out of the grand stand for many years as greeted every good play last evening. Compared with the number of people who went to see the games last year, this year's crowd of patrons is very much larger, and the very grand stand is a great convenience.

The Marathons played two games yesterday and will play two today. They are certainly getting their share of invigorating exercise.

Carson of the Clippers is a great favorite. In last night's game, and in that of Wednesday night, he captured a high fly in left field without moving out of his tracks. He simply measured the course of the ball with his eye from the moment it left the bat, and stood perfectly still. His eye was good, and the ball came into his hands.

Miss Hersey from Jersey Will Be Repeated at the Opera House This Afternoon and Evening.

Another overflowing house greeted "Miss Hersey from Jersey," by the St. John Dramatic Club last evening. Everything was early sold out and the S. R. O. was the order, many were glad to get the opportunity to stand throughout. The piece received another excellent production, in fact it seemed hardly conceivable that a amateur company could be so wonderfully successful. It was not here or there but everywhere and every one handed his or her part in a finished manner; in other words it was a perfectly balanced company, and that so large a cast can be gotten together here to handle a production so successfully speaks volumes for the talent. That they pleased so at once and always evident by the continuous applause. Curtain calls were the order and so high ran the enthusiasm that it was necessary to respond time after time.

As a mark of appreciation a number of bouquets were passed up over the foot lights to lady members of the cast. A laughable feature was the presentation to one of the male members of the cast. A laudable feature was the presentation to one of the male members of the cast. A laudable feature was the presentation to one of the male members of the cast.

This afternoon and evening the performance will be repeated and all indications point to a repetition of the large attendance.
