Mr. McKinley's Letter of Acceptance.

Mr. McKinley, the Republican candidate for the Presidency of the United States, has issued his letter of acceptance. He directly antagonizes the position of his opponent, Mr. Bryan, on the silver question, taking the grounds now pretty familiar to those who have followed the discus-POR SALE — RESIDENCE OF LATE Sion. Sion. He points out strongly the impossibility of the United States going into the silver coinage on its own how, in the way advocated by the sion. He points out strongly the im-> affirmative attitude, though by no means tying himself up to all the details of his former celebrated tariff. Mr. McKinley sends into circulation some pithy sentences from his point of view:

> "You don't get consumers through the mints, you get them through the factories."

> "Free silver will not increase the demand for wheat, or make a single new customer."

"Not an increase of coin, but an increase of confidence." "Not more coinage, but a more ac-dive use of money coined." "Not open mints for the unlimited coinage of the silver of the world, but open mills for the full and unrestricted labor of American workingmen." Mr. McKinley favors Reciprocity of trade with other countries. Reciprocity is a word, however, of variable interpretation, and everything depends on the terms.

He also favors greater watchfulness in respect of foreign immigration.

ed judgment, and forbid us emptying sewage into the river.

The plan proposed is the work of three of the best sanitary engineers in Canada and the United States, and has the approval of the Provincial Board of Health.

Should the future requirements of the city demand other means of sewage disposal, the proposed system will simply have to be extended further, and the proposed works utilized as far as they go. Not a dollar of the present expenditure will be wasted.

Under the act, which provides the most just and equitable methods of meeting the cost, the annual rate of taxation will only be increased half a mill on the dollar. The man who pays $\frac{1}{2}$ io taxes will only have to pay 25 cents more. Let every ratepayer who desires to improve the city, and who wishes to save it from serious annoyance, as well as law costs and fines that will eventually amount to more than the expense of sewer construction, vote for the bylaw of Wednesday, the 2nd September, and then take a neighbor to the polls and see that he votes. Said Khalid Takes Refuge in the German Consulate.

His Forces Make a Gallant but Hopeless Defense.

Hoisting of the British Flag Over Zanzibar Means Freedom to 250,000 Slaves.

(Copyrighted by the Associated Press.) Zanzibar, Aug. 27.-The palace of the Sultan of Zanzibar was bombarded this morning, and at noon was a mass of blazing ruins. The usurping chieftain, Said Khalid and the commander of his forces, Said Sales, succeeded in place, but all real resistance has ceased. Shortly after 10 o'clock reinescaping to the German consulate, where they have sought refuge, and remain under the protection of the German flag. As cabled exclusively to the Associated Press yesterday afternoon, Rear Admiral Henry Rawson, C.B., in command of the British Cape of Good Hope and west coast of Africa station, and the British consul-general, Mr. A. H. Hardinge, C.B., after holding a conference yesterday, communicated by cable to the Government of Great Britain an outline of the situation of the affairs here, setting forth that Said Khalid, who seized the palace and proclaimed himself Sultan on the death, apparently by poison, of Sultin Hamed Bin Thwain Bin Said, had been strongly reinforced, and positively refused to surrender.

KHALID'S FORCES. He had with him at that time about well-armed and well-disciplined including 900 Askaris, who have been trained under British officers, plenty of ammunition and a number of field guns and other pieces of ar tillery, which were trained on the British warships. The latter, with the reinforcements which arrived yester-day were: The flagship St. George, Admiral Rawson, small quick-firing guns; 559 men; the third-class cruiser Philomel: the third-class cruiser Rac coon; the first-class gunboat Sparrow; the first-class gunboat Thrush.

Later in the day cabled instructions were received from London and another conference was held between the Admiral and Consul General, and eventually

AN ULTIMATUM was sent to Said Khalid ordering him notified to be on board Admiral Rawson's ships by 8 o'clock. During the past night there were a number of disturbances among the natives in the outskirts of the town; but they were promptly suppressed by the 350 British marines and sailors who had been landed to protect property and guard the consulate of Great Britain. It is understood, however, that Said received further ments from the slave dealers who flocked to his support as the formal oisting of the British flag over Zanzibar would mean the liberation of about 250,000 slaves and a death-blow to slavery in this part of East Africa. SUMMONED TO SURRENDER. Shortly before 9 o'clock a naval officer was sent to the palace square with another message for Said Khalid, asking him if he was prepared to surrender in accordance with the terms of the ultimatum, and again retifying him that the palace in which he had barricaded himself would be shelled at 9 o'clock promptly if he failed to haul down his flag before that time.

THE SAID'S REPLY. As before, the Said replied that he would die sooner than surrender. His answer was conveyed to Admiral Rawson and the British Consul General the crews of the ships, which had been prepared for action the day before when the guns ashore were trained on them, were sent to quar-

guns, and ten minutes later they had sent a storm of shell and shot into the palace, tearing big gaps in it, scattering death and confusion among its defenders, while dismounting some of the guns ashore, and putting to flight the gunners handling the pieces. The fire of the warships was admirably directed and smoke was soon seen to be issuing from several parts of the palace, During this time the St. George and the Philomel were held in reserve, although they occasionally plumped a shell into the enemy's camp, adding to the dismay of its defenders. The Raccoon, Thrush and Sparrow kept up the bombardment until 9:50, when the palace was tumbling in ruins and large rents had

Raikes notified Admiral Rawson that he was holding all the main roads. When the insurgents had been compelled to lay down their arms and were securely coralled by the marines and blue-jackets, the latter were ordered to try and extinguish the flames in the palace and in the other custom house which had been shelled and set on fire, as the insurgents had fortified it. But at noon, in spite of the efforts of the sailors the palace

A MASS OF LLAZING RUINS, the old custom house was laid in ashes, and a number of other buildings demolished or set on fire by exploding shells, were also in ashes. No casualties are reported among the British ashore, and though all business is at a standstill, order will be completely restored before nightfall; and the foreign residents will be able to return to their residences ashore. Temporary hospitals for the care of the native wounded have been established ashore, and they are receiving care from the surgeons of the war-ships. The dead will be buried this afternoon and for the present the government of the island will be administered by Admiral Rawson pending the receipt of further instruc-

CRICKET. THE WANDERERS WIN. The Wanderers' Cricket Club, of Chioago, played a match with the asylum team yesterday morning, but the game was several times interrupted by bases. The reason, probably, is that showers, which compelled the players they do not are to take the chances to seek shelter and left the grounds in a bad condition. AQUATIC. THE CANADA VICTORIOUS. Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 26.-After an exciting contest, the Canada won her second race from the Vencedor today by the narrow margin of 26 seconds, corrected time, and with it captured the beautiful Toledo challenge cup, the international yacht racing championship of the lakes, and 60 per cent of the purse of $1,500 offered by the citizens of Toledo. The race was salled in a fine twenty-knot breeze, which ranged from southwest to west and while the Vencedor actually beat the Canada 3 minutes and 31 seconds over the course, and proved herself a wonder in a breeze, she had to allow the royal Canadian yacht a handicap of 3 minutes and 57 seconds. In spite of the Canada's big allowance, the Vencedor would have beaten her out but for the fact that her skipper made a number of unneces-sary tacks on the way to the home mark in the first round, and finally overstood it, losing nearly two min utes, which ultimately caused the American yacht's defeat. After considerable maneuvering for position, Capt. Barbour got the Vencedor over the line first, with the Can-ada 15 seconds behind. The course was five miles to leeward and return, sailed over twice, twenty miles in all. Skipper Jarvis commenced to luff the Canada in order to blanket the Vencedor, but the Chicago boat failed to be trapped, and slowly but surely drew ahead of the little black flyer from across the border. She soon had a lead of an eighth of a mile, and rounded the first mark at 12:09, followed by the Canada at 12:10:20. The Vencedor instantly went on the port tack as she rounded, while the Can-ada held straight for the home mark on the starboard tack. The Vence-dor, after a two-minute hitch to port, followed the Canada's example, and a few minutes later flew by the Canada to windward. It looked like Vencedor's race now, as she was footing faster than the Canada was. As the mark was now in sight, and the Canada, which was on the leeward board. was almost heading for it, everyone was surprised when the Vencedor made another extra hitch off the port at 12:45, and still a nother at 12:57:05, while the Canada held her original starboard tack until 12:57, and then came about to port and made the mark in one tack. The Vencedor, while she beat the Canada around, overstood the mark, and lost all she had gained on the way down, which caused her to lose the race eventually. Their times at this mark were: Vencedor, 12:59:15; Canada, 1:00:41. It was now a broad reach on the starboard tack to the outer mark, and as the Third race, 3-4 mile—Sobriquet (97); Twonet (90), 2; Austin (97), 3. Time. They timed, as they as follows: Vencedor, 1:33:30; Canada, 1:36:10. From here it was a close reach to the finish, where, after one of the most exciting contests ever seen on the lakes, the Canada won by the 26 seconds, corrected time. Their times at the finish were: Vencedor, 2:11:04; Canada, 2:14:35. ATHLETICS.

In Favor of the Proposed Sewerage System,

Matter That Must Not be Long Delayed.

Second Public Meeting in Advocacy of a Great Sanitary Measure-Explanations by Its Promoters.

The ratepayers of No. 3 ward gathered at Aberdeen school house last night to hear the proposed sewerage bylaw discussed. Mayor Little occupied the chair. This series of education meetings is very interesting. Last night several of the prominent residents in the ward said that the explanations by Dr. Campbell and the mayor convinced them that the scheme was a good one.

Dr. Campbell reviewed the question in all its details. He pointed out the advantages of the new system, and that in certain cases deaths could have been avoided if proper sewerage were had in the city of London. But they were not advocating this improved sewerage merely because of the benefits the city will derive. He then referred to the threatened execution of the judgments against the city. It was compulsory to do something, and only a short time was allowed to look may take a very different view around. The doctor then recommended the plan of intermittent filtration, saying that for inland towns there is no other system which will give the satisfaction it gives were sewage is taken to lands outside of the city. He then referred to the able authorities who were consulted and had advised this plan. The doctor concluded his remarks by asking the ratepayers to support the bylaw.

An opportunity was given for any-one in the audience to ask questions. Mr. W. H. Winnett-What will be the exact cost? Dr. Campbell-The sum will not exceed $200,000. We have taken the maximum estimate of everything, and it is quite probable that this amount is more than will be required. "That will be a wonder," said someone to whom such a thing seemed almost too good to hope for.

The mayor said that the aldermen present would bear him out in the statement that there had been several of those wonders lately, and instanced the London and Port Stanley bridges which had been estimated at $110,000. but which were built for $55,000. Ald. Skinner was called upon by the mayor, and spoke in favor of the new system. He emphatically denied that this matter had been brought about in a hole-and-corner manner. The council were forced into this position. He told the voters to judge for themselves. The newspapers had set the matter fairly before the public. Ald. Wm. Heaman then spoke. "Although not a member of the Board of Health," he said, "I am here in support of the plan proposed by Dr. Campbell. I am a member of the board of works, and that body will see that our own men will be emploved." Someone asked about the size of the main sewers, and the mayor explained that they were 24, 30 and 36 inches in diameter.

Ex-Ald. Winnett was called upon, and said he had come for the purpose of gaining information, and from the Mde. IRELAND, 211½ Dundas St information gained was of the opinion that the proposed scheme was the best thing to be done. "I sincerely hope this system will carry," said he in conclusion.

The mayor had heard and recognizvoice of ex-Ald. Thomas Jones and he was called upon to address the meeting. Mr. Jones was away at the rear of the room, quite retired from public view, but came forward to speak in favor of the scheme. He referred to when he was in the council, and made a comparison between that council and the present, which was very favorable to the latter. During his experience as an alderman this matter was staved off. The council would not undertake it. He commended the present council and Board of Health for the backbone they have shown in taking this action. Ald. Carrothers spoke strongly in favor of the scheme. Touching on the expense, he said we would get for 65 cents per foot what we now have to pay $1 60 per foot for. He was sorry to hear some people say it was a pet scheme, for that was not right. Dr. Campbell had always been a good citizen, and would not advocate anything to unnecessarily run the city into heavy debt. Mr. Thomas Rowe asked what would be the additional cost for running the new sewerage system.

The mayor said the crop would pay for the expense. He then imparted the information about the car shops, which is given in full elsewhere. He then referred to the statement that the scheme was a money-making one. "The man who sees dishonest work going on in every public job must be dis-honest himself. Personally the speaker was not troubled by the present sewerage system! "I would have been better satisfied," said the mayor, "to have got through my term of office without dealing with this matter; but we are forced into it. It has been said we are hurrying it through, but the before Sept. 5, and the vote is not to be taken till Sept. 2. All possible speed has been made in getting the information. Telegram after telegram was sent to hurry up the state engineer, and information was obtained from the very best quarters. We can not possibly avoid dealing with this question at once. Some have criticised the minor details of engineering, but they are subject to change." Someone thought London South was getting all the plums. The mayor explained that such was not the case. At the conclusion of Mr. Little's remarks the meeting ad-

In addition to the Parliamentary fledglings, two old members of the Conservative party participated in the discussion—Sir Adolphe Caron and Mr. Dupont. A feature of the day was the disclaimer of Sir Adolphe and Rev. Geo. Jackson, of London, preached two very able discourses at Mr. Monk, the member for Jacques Cartier, of any sympathy with the French domination cry raised by their political brethren in Ontario. Quinn (Con.), Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick (the new Solicitor-General), Sir Adolphe Caron, Mr. Monk (Con.), Mr. Frost (Lib.), and Mr. Casgrain (Con), Mr. Chauvin (Con.), Mr. Hackett (Con.), and Mr. Dupont (Con.). Sir Adolphe's speech was the most remarkable. On the school question he said, he stood where he stood as a member of the Bowell Government. He took that position because he believed it would position because he believed it would be best for Confederation. He believed the constitution guaranteed the rights to the minority in Manitoba, and that it was the duty of this Parand that it was the duty of this Parliament to do what it could to secure those rights. He would not be satisfied until these rights had been restored. If the rights could be restored amicably he would be glad, but he could not imagine upon what basis the divisions in the Liberal party could be brought together. Sir Adolphe condemned the criticisms of Mr. Laurier because he is a French Pre-Laurier because he is a French Premier. He thought that Canada had outgrown that sentiment. Canada had outgrown parish politics. He did not want office to be given to a man because of his race, but he was proud as a French-Canadian to see in the place of Premier one of Quebec's most gifted sons. But they wanted not merely a French-Canadian, but a policy that would develop the country. NOT BORN TO BE HANGED

Sutton Sentenced to Death Six Time

but Finally Pardoned. Richmond, .Va., Aug. 27 .- Gov. O'Ferrall yesterday pardoned Wayman Sut-ton, of Wytheville, charged with killing Peter Harvel. Sutton shot Harvel from ambush in 1892. Sutton was tried, convicted, and sentenced to be hanged. His friends formed a mob and rescued him from prison. Sutton then went out to the State of Washington and became a Sunday school teacher and a member of a military company. He was brought back to Richmond and resentenced.

It was found that he was sentenced on Sunday, and the prisoner had to be tried and sentenced for the third time. This time the judge failed to give the condemned man 30 days from the time of trial to the time of execution, according to law and Sutton had to be resentenced.

A technicality in two cases necessitated the man being sentenced twice more, and then Gov. McKinney commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment. The testimony of the chief witnesses against the prisoner in a subsequent trial was impeached, and upon this ground Gov. O'Ferrall pardoned Sutton. He has served two years in the penitentiary. He left last night to join his wife and family in Tennessee.

Wanted - An Insolvency Law. The Canadian Freeman makes strong plea for the passage by the on Parliament of an insolvent law. Our contemporary puts the matter with force and eloquence in the following passage: "We do not plead for an insolvency act on the grounds of money, but on the grounds of justice. The ball and chain that bound | As a disturber of old parties, a paththe negro to his task was no more cruel than the law that claims for the benefit of one man the earnings of his fellow, therefore our new Parliament should extend to our debt-laden multitudes such a measure of relief that will give them new heart to labor in their own land rather than remain useless incumbrances on the commonwealth or seek homes in other lands where their energies are not paralvzed by the knowledge that they can never hope to be free or legally own aught but the raiment that covers their bodies. Yet there are people who claim that Canada is a land where the highest laws of humanity prevail and where Christianity and all its blessed influences moulds the legislation of Parliament. We have no right to claim to be either a humane or just people so long as we not alone strip the debtor of all his possessions, but put him in bondage to his creditors and deprive him of that hope which alone sustains man in the battle of

We fear Sir Charles Tupper, senior, is falling from heroic grace, and becoming a politician of the swivel type, capable of turning easily in any direction. It is not many moons since Sir Charles declared he was willing even to die for the so-called Remedial Bill. In Parliament this week he confessed he was now considerably less keen for his pet measure. He evidently has no intention of dying for it; would he even go a stomach-che for it?

"Mark Twain."

We observe that the daughter of pathy will be felt for Mr. Clemens, now in England. Any who ed the impression of "Mark Twain," that he is merely a boisterous humorist, have little idea of the real person. He is a man of wide culture, tender affections, and unbending integrity. A few years ago, because of the actions of others, the publishing enterprise in which Mr. Clemens was a partner, had to suspend. "Mark Twain" made a resolve that no one, If possible, should be a loser by him. and he has but recently returned from a lecturing tour throughout the world, and has succeeded, as we understand. by the proceeds of his lectures and writings, in largely wiping out the debt for which he chose to hold himself responsible. The Advertiser had an opportunity of meeting "Mark Twain" at close quarters sometime since in New York. A more charming or manly man it would be impossible to know.

The New York Times has recently been reorganized. Mr. Alfred F. Ochs. of Chattanooga, is to become the publisher and general manager, while Mr. Charles R. Miller will continue in the position which he has so long adorned as editor. Mr. Ochs is an able and energetic journalist of the younger generation, and not unknown in Canada. Under his management, we have no doubt that the great history of the New York Times in the past will be more than reduplicated in the future.

Canadian Representation on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The London correspondent of one of the leading New York journals is authority for the statement that Mr. Lau recommended to the Imperial ward Blake as a suitable person to represent Canada on the judicial committee of the Privy Council under the scheme for the constitution of that distinguished body-the highest court in the Empire. The same correspondent also states that Mr. Blake has declined the honor, although a salary of $30,000 a year attaches to it, the men who carried the Chicago platform were self-respecting American citizens, who detest anarchy, abhor repudiation, and for the reason that having enlisted for occupy their present attitude with the the reform of the government of Ireland, he feels it to be his supreme duty to remain at his post until the cause of home rule is won. It is high praise for Mr. Blake that the position should have been offered to him, and higher praise that he declined it for the reason given. But Canada has other sons to Chicago to control the convention fitted to occupy a seat on the bench of in the interest of their cause, and not the judicial committee of the Privy Council. Either Sir Oliver Mowat or Hon. David Mills is eminently qualified for the position,

Suicide No Remedy.

Our telegraphic dispatches tell of he case of a man and his wife, who, that the same nerve and deliberation were not summoned to face the music and meet the worst. If everybody a little hard up were to follow this foolish couple's foolish example, the price of powder and shot would go up with a jump. Better suffer the ills one knows than fly to others that one knows not of.

The Presidential Contest.

In the latest number of the Review of Reviews, Dr. Albert Shaw gives a somewhat more understandable sum mary of the conditions that have fin ally placed in the field a presidential candidate pledged to silver. We give Dr. Shaw's remarks in full:

About two years ago there appeared in Chicago a little book entitled "Coin's Financial School." Its author was a certain Mr. Harvey, at that time unknown to fame. Mr. Harvey's fame, however, is now secure enough. finder where political issues were mixed and mazy, an agitator with a genius for exposition so great as to sway public opinion from the Alleghanies to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, Mr. Harvey has made it certain and inevitable that his name must be forever connected with one of the most remarkable chapters in the political history of his country. Never since 1860perhaps it might be true to say that not even then, or at any previous time in our political life—has there been a great party gathering comparable, for intensity of feeling, for concentration of purpose, for superiority to mere personal aims or to mere traditional party prejudices, and for genuine fervor in behalf of specific proposals touching public policy, with the recent Democratic convention at Chicago. As a precipitant and a crystallising reagent nothing else was half so effective as the entry of Mr. Harvey with his little yellow-covered The real center of education and influence was Mr. Harvey with his little book; and if there was any conscious forethought or method in the evolution of the great wave of freesilver enthusiasm which has swept across the South and West, it consisted chiefly in the multiplication of the presses which were printing Mr. Harvey's books, and in the systematic dissemination of copies by the million instead of the hundred thousand. So far as the question of silver, pure and simple, is concerned-apart from vague unrest and general discontent, and apart from a widespread belief that some sont of monetary and financial reforms are needed—there has never been a time since the battle of the standards began several decades ago when the cause of silver seemed so hopeless and so little justified by facts and circumstances as it seemed only the day before yesterday, so to speak. The outlook for pealed. The two great parties were both committed by their platforms of 1892 to the maintenance of such as the suc "Mark Twain," who had been seriously ing. The Sherman Act had been re-1892 to the maintenance of every dollar issued by the Government at full par, with gold. The free silver sentiment seemed to be confined to the Western mining camps and to the Populists of the sub-arid belt. Mr. Cleveland's administration was congratulating itself that it had forever vanguished the free-silver forces, had established the gold standard beyond the possibility of dangerous assault, and had brilliantly preserved the public credit. Under all these circumstances, who would have supposed that out of the smouldering embers of an apparently suppressed fire there should suddenly break forth a new and almost resistless conflagration? It was Mr. Harvey's book that rekindled the fire; and when the silver leaders perceived the greatness of the opportunity, they did not fail to fan the flames, and the fuel was only too abundant everywhere.

The times have been very cruel for ern discontent and disheartenment wanted an argument, a creed, and a rallying cry. "Coin's Financial tween two peoples, but only as be-School" furnished the argument; free tween two neighborhoods. The man silver sufficed for the creed, and "Six-teen to One" became the cry. For the moment, other penaceas were for-"Sixteen to One" was on everybody's tongue. The argument in its essentials is a very simple one. Silver was lawful money of "ultimate redemption" up to 1873, and is held to have constitutional sanction. There was no proper reason for demonetising it in 1873, and such action was criminally wrong. The value of silver has kept relatively close to the value of staple products in general, and if the real truth were perceived everyone would understand that, instead of the silver dollar having declined so that it is worth only fifty cents, the gold dollar has in fact appreciated until it is worth about two hundred cents. Thus the producer must raise twice as much wheat or corn or cotton to pay each dollar's indebtedness, because with silver demonetised the purchasing power of money has constantly increased. Such is the outline of the argument. The great mass of Southern and Western free silver men religiously believe that this is all true. They are persuaded that the re-opening of the mints to the free coinage of silver would a just and righteous act, and that would very soon if not immediatebring about an equilibrium between gold and silver, the one metal advancing and the other declining in the bullion market until they should reach a fixed level at the ratio established by law. To call these men repudiationists, anarchists, and other disagreeable names reflecting upon their motives and their honor, is either to trifle with the situation or else totally to misconvictions that have swayed political action at any time for many years. Let the facts be fairly faced and told. Against the earnestness openness, and almost fanatical intensity of the free-silver majority the calculating politicians were simply helpless. The silver men had gone to wrangle about the rival claims of candidates. The great consideration with them was to make sure of the platform. After that they were willing to trust to the wisdom of the hour for a standard-bearer. When we express these opinions of the marvelous representation at Chicago of a certain type of American citizenship lifted to the height of an almost matchless enthusiasm under the spell of an idea passionately entertained, it does not follow for a moment that we consider enthusiasm to be a safe guide in the field of monetary science. guide in the field of monetary scientification

THE NEGLECTED ALTAR. Believing that much of the increasing neglect of family worship is due to the difficulty encountered in hastily selecting passages of Scripture of a suitable devotional character, Sylvanus Stall, D.D., a careful Bible student, and the author of several valuable books, has prepared a volume of 365 selections from the Bible for daily devotions, asd the Funk & Wagnalls Company, of New York, will publish the same in a few days in a neat dollar volume. The selections are also for use in the chapel services of colleges, the opening devotions in the public schools, and for the daily use of Christian Endeavorers and members of other societies of young people.

THE CARDINAL NEEDS OF THE NEGRO. Booker T. Washington, in the September Atlantic. Roughly, these needs may be stated as food, clothing, shelter, education, proper habits, and a settlement of race relations. The seven millions of colored people of the South cannot be reached directly by any missionary agency, but they can be reached by sending out among them strong, selected young men and women, with the proper training of head, hand, and heart, who will live among these and heart, who will live among these masses and show them how to lift themselves up.

The problem that the Tuskegee Institute keeps before itself constantly is how to prepare these leaders. From the first, in connection with religious and academic training, it has emphasized industrial or hand training as a means of finding the way out of present conditions. First we have found the industrial teaching useful

Most of all we find the industrial system valuable in teaching economy, thrift, and the dignity of labor, and in giving moral backbone to students. The fact that a student goes out into the world conscious of his power to build a house or a wagon, or to make a harness, gives to him a certain confidence and moral independence that he would not possess without such training.

The Atlantic for September contains two articles that have a timely bearing on the political situation. In "The Problem of the West," Prof. Frederick J. Turner, of the University of Wisconsin, traces the growth of Western characteristics and opinseveral years, and Western and South- ion historically and logically. If there is a sharp sectional feeling, he shows that it is not a feeling as be-"Coin's Financial tween two peoples, but only as bethoughtful and practical article is followed by the historian John B McMaster's article on "The Election of the President." There are two articles suggestive of the most startling chapter perhaps in human history—the story of the unparalleled success and effect of Uncle Tom's Cabin, told by Charles Dudley Warner, immediately followed by an article on "The Awakening of Negro," by Booker T. Washington, who explains the revolutionary work done at Tuskegee, Alabama. He shows, too, how the Tuskegee method of teaching thrift strikes at the very root of all the misfortunes of South, and has in it the seeds of a revolution for whites as well as blacks.

The farmer had a pair left and Mrs. Paladino looked at them and made some remarks about them. Mr. Gustin then spoke up, and said "Well, Mistress, if you don't like them, don't buy them." Mrs. Paladino said her remarks were not addressed to him, and told him to mind his own business. She said Gustin called her a bad woman, and she told him not to talk saucy to her. Mr. Gustin's story was that he had told her not to take them if she didn't like them, because she was finding fault with him. He said she threatened to slap his mouth, and he told her that if she did he would probably hit her back. When she struck him he just tossed the chicken round her neck, and that when she went to pick up her parasol he just put out his foot, and that there was not two pounds pressure in the kick.

Joshua Brock was Mr. Gustin's only witness. He told a similar story to that of Gustin, but admitted that Mr. Gustin struck and kicked her, and that he started the row.

Mr. J. McEvoy appeared for Mrs. Paladino, but Mr. Gustin defended his own case. When the former ventured to interrupt, Mr. Gustin said: "I am not talking to you. A Building Batch.

A Number of Permits Taken Out at the Engineer's Office.

An Addition to the Bennet Works-The Robinson Warehouse-Other Buildings.

A batch of building permits was taken out at the city engineer's office this morning, another indication of activity in that line this fall.

The Bennet Furniture Manufacturing Company secured a permit for a $2,000 brick addition to their factory in the East End. It will be 66x63 feet in dimensions, and two stories in height. The addition is necessary meet the company's increasing trade, their market being mostly in Europe. Thomas Robinson, Sons & Co., of Hartlepool, England, have taken out the permit, through Mr. H. C. Mc-Bride, for their branch warehouse on Bathurst street, between William and Adelaide street, of which extended mention was made in last night's Ad-

NO ASSETS.

The Sensational Failure in Chicago-Bad Showing for the Moore Bros.

Chicago, Aug. 27.-The special committee appointed by the Stock Exchange some time ago to make an investigation into the failure of W. H. & A. J. Moore, the Monroe street lawyers, who attempted to run a corner in the stocks of Diamond Match and New York Biscuit Company, has made its report. A thorough investigation of the books of the two manipulators of the big deal has failed to bring to light any tangible assets whatever. The most important fact disclosed by report is that $755,000 of Diamond Match funds were used without authority as margins in the speculative purchase of Diamond Match stock.

The report fully establishes the fact that there was a pool of wealthy men behind the Moore brothers in the match deal, and it holds out the distant hope that members of the pool can be forced to assume a full share of responsibility to brokers and others on account of the deal. Not only has the entire surplus of the match company been practically wiped out, but there is a loss of more than $1,000,000 on the stock carried by the pool.

Behind the Country's Growth, The result of the recent census than 20 per cent in the ten years bethat rate had fallen to 10.4 per cent, of a general decline; it is peculiar to London, and seems to indicate that the huge overgrowth of the metropolis has begun to cure itself. The "wen" has passed its zenith in relation to the rest of the country, and now represents a diminishing proportion of the whole population. Hitherto-that | marriages: is, up to 1881—although London was growing at a less rapid pace than it had once done, it nevertheless kept continuously ahead of the rest of the country, and decade after decade a larger share of the total claimed population. Thus, in the year 1801, out of every 100 persons in England 1881, out of every 100, no fewer than 14.69 lived in London; the proportion has risen steadily with every successive census. But by 1891 the corner had been turned, and for the first time 'on record the London share showed a fall, slight, but significant. The provinces are now increasing faster than the metropolis.

Whether this has taken place in obedience to a true demographic law, or whether it is due to accidental causes, we have not yet sufficient data to determine: but there are reasons for thinking that the present point has been reached by a continuous and regular process of very long duration, and that it was mathematically certain that a time would come when the increase of the general population would overtake that of the metropolis. No town can go on growing indefinitely, and even Londonmonstrous as it is-has not fulfilled the expectations of earlier statisti-Two hundred years ago it.apcians peared to be growing so fast that Sir William Petty, one of the earliest pioneers in geographical research, koned that by 1840 the population would reach ten millions, supposing it to continue at the same rate. He thought, however, that a natural limit would be reached before then, and placed it in the year 1800, by which time he calculated London would con- Nashville main track, and tain something over five million inonly four and a half. He was very nearly right about the total, which London only accounted for one of ed the maximum, which, curiously seems likely to prove a real natural limit.

A growing number of persons who used to live in town now make their homes altogether outside the outer most ring, in the home counties and still further away at the seaside. They have their work in town and come up every day or perhaps two or three times a week, so that from a business point of view there has not this season that fine red astrachans been the same check to the growth of London, and if a day census were taken the results would probably be To restore gray hair to its natural different. However, these people have color as in youth, cause it to grow taken their families to live elsewhere,

Has London Reached a Limit? England, and to have range on the adverse times which followed. This fact suggests the conclusion that the rural population has been attracted The Census Shows That it is Falling But, altogether apart from this question of migration, a second explanation of the slower increase is to be found in the falling birth rate which shows that during the last five years is very clearly brought out in the rethe population of London has in- cently issued annual report of the creased somewhat less rapidly than For the four years 1871-74 the averit did in the previous ten-1881-1891. age birth rate was 35.2, for the four The number of people turned out to years 1891-94 it was only 30.9. -Truly, truth is stranger than fiction. A scene at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets about noon today reminded one of the actions of Mr. Hyde, in Stevenson's strange thee of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. At the close of the week-ly prayer-meeting last night, Dr. Hodge, on behalf of the session and management committee, and in name of the congregation, expressed to Mr. Faskin the pleasure and helpfulness which had been derived from the ministrations both of Mr. John Clark and himself, and hoped that he would meet with much success in whatever charge he might be called to labor. Mr. Faskin in reply thanked the congregation for their kind words, which, he said, had done him good, and would not soon be forgotten. CAR BURGLARS ARRESTED.

Chief Skirving and his aides made a good capture last night about 12:30 Iday, have been scouring around the neighborhood of the station for tramps, and on the arrivel of a freight train from this city, at the hour mentioned, they discovered that a sealed car had been broken open and some of the packages tampered with. Two deadheads were found in the car and arrested. They gave their names as George C. Underwood, of Houston, Texas, and Norman Murray, of Brantford. The intruders tried to esand Norman Murray, of cape, but their efforts were unavailing. The pair were remanded to await the return to Ingersoll of the train conductor and the official who sealed the car.

The plans are at present in the Richmond street office of Bridge Inspector Lucas. They are not yet open for inspection, but contractors will be permitted to examine them in a day or two, it is understood.

The new car shops will not be scattered around as were the old ones. Most of the work will be done under one immense roof. The new shops will be shaped like three sides of a square-something like the Military Barracks. There will be two large wings, each 616 feet long and 80 feet They will be about 360 feet apart and will be joined at one end by another stretch also 80 feet in depth. The Dead Meat Scheme Not Likely. to Pass.

Sir Charles Tupper Chosen as Opposition Leader, for a Time at Least.

(C. P. R. Special to The Advertiser.) Ottawa, Aug. 27.-The dead meat scheme will not pass, judging from the present outlook. At an interview of the members today, with Messrs. Laurier and Fisher, the western members of Ontario again opposed it. Dr. Wood, of Hamilton, attacked the scheme on account of its financial aspects. Messrs. Lister, McMillan and McMullen also opposed it.

> A REMARKABLI REASON. There is an uptown lady, the owner of a number of dwellings, who feels that in one instance at least the bicycling craze is going too far. She has a tenant, a rather shiftless per-son, who is always behind in his rent. The landlady has dealt mildly with the family, and they have pro-fessed to feel grateful. They owed her three months' rent, and when she wrote them a rather sharp note-feeling that her good nature was imposed upon-they made profuse promises that they would give her something on account the very next rent day. The day came round, and bright and early the daughter of the tenant came around to the landlady's house. But she didn't bring the expected cash. No, she only brought this message:

"Please, ma'am, we can't pay no rent today, 'cause ma's bought a new bicycle, an' she's got to make a payon it tomorrer." - Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"To whom?" "She does not say."

"Ah! well, all I can say is that if head her. you drop in at the Army and Navy Stores, somewhere between 12 and 1, on your way to the count's studio, you may see something to interest you." "Do you mean that they meet there?" asked Beryl, with flashing meet

"Go and see," said Lady Lorimer, rising; "and now, good-bye. Thank you so much for the address. By the way, I don't think I'd tell anyone else about my adventure yesterday afternoon if I were you."

"But, Marion, what am I to do?" "Go to the Stores, my dear. They've some charming new things in the thing more about last night—except jewelry department. Good-bye!" that you forgive me!" she whispered, More quickly than she would have deemed it possible, Mrs. Jocelyn was dressed for her walk, and spinning away to Victoria street as fast as a hansom could carry her. All the way thither she persuaded herself that Lady Lorimer was an old gossip whom had been foolish to listen to or confide in, and that this expedition was a mere wild goose chase.

It was just 12:30 as she made her way up to the center staircase, and turned to her right into the jewelry department. There was a press people, and it was impossible to dis-tinguish individuals as she stood on the threshold and swept the place with her glance. She advanced a little. No, of course, there was no sign of Tom. stupid old soul, he was as faithful as ever. She heaved a sigh of relief, and immediately, with consistency, turned thoughts to her visit to the studio. She would just have time to get lunch elsewhere, and --- she stopped short, a peculiarly hearty laugh close beside her struck her ear. There was only one person in London who could laugh like that! Beryl turned sharply round and then gave a little gasp as she saw, within a few yards of her, bending together over a tray of diamond ornaments-Tom and Lady Alicia! They were so evidently engrossed in each other and in their occupation that she ran no risk of being seen. She remained a moment watching them. It was true then! She felt a momentary impulse to pounce on them then and there, and speak her mind; but the memory of last night's scene flashed before her, and she walked quietly out of the department, and, leaving the Stores, went into St. James' Park appear. Of course, it was all perfectly clear, and she ought to have seen it long ago! Why hadn't Tom married Alicia when her husband died? Some lover's quarrel, probably, and, who knows, his marriage with her, Beryl, was very possibly due to pique. As for the letter about the engagement, that was all nonsense, a ruse to lull any suspicions she might have! Well that was all nonsense, a ruse to lull any suspicions she might have! Well, anyhow, now she was free to do as she pleased, for now Tom could not— her thoughts came to a sudden standstill, a most alarming possibility had just presented itself to her mind. What if her husband should wish her to compromise herself so hopelessly that he should have it in his power at any time to effect his freedom? She had put the weapon into his hand with her mad freak of yesterday. She had but to give him a few more ophad but to give him a few more op-portunities, and Tom would soon have as good a case as ever went before a short-sighted jury and a scandal-lov-ing public! Hideous visions of "Fashionable Divorce Case" rose before her, and memories flitted through her brain of reports of cross-examina-tions; she heard her own maid detailing with circumstantial exactness events which had never taken place and then the end-herself-neither fortune nor position, living on the continent in the society of Madams de la Cruche-Cassee & Co. Her wild imagination carried her on relentlessly, and she had just seen herself, rouged and haggard, an habitue of the tables of Monte Carlo, when she reached her own door.

"What was she to do?" she asked herself, as she sank forlornly into a chair in her boudoir; it was useless to tell Tom she saw through his plan, equally useless to beg his pardon and promise amendment; with exaggerated distinctness she saw the capital he could make out of last night's confession. Was there nothing she could do to bring him back to her feet? She raised her eyes and eaught sight of herself in the mirror; surely no man could hesitate between the woman re-flected there and Lady Alicia!

She rose and surveyed herself critically; her contemplation of her own pretty face seemed to soothe her nerves, her brow cleared, her lips smiled again, and when in the late afternoon her husband entered the room a sweeter, daintier, more sunny little person than Beryl Jocelyn it would have been difficult to find as she reclined in the crispest of tea gowns in her basket chair.

"Tom!" she called softly as he seated himself at a little distance from her with a paper, "Tom, I wish you'd come and talk to me." "Oh! I thought you were asleep."

"No, I was only thinking; do put down that horrid paper and come

"What do you want?" he asked, as he obeyed, reluctantly. "I want you to be nice to me, dear," she said, coaxingly, drawing nearer him. "I-I think you were right, you knew. I've knocked myself up.' 'Oh! well, you'd better rest a bit; have a sleep before dinner. Where are we going tonight, by the way?" "Nowhere—at least, I'd rather not; I'm so tired," she added, leaning her head against him as he stood beside

"I've been thinking," she continued, as he did not speak, "that if you don't mind, we might take in Paris on our way. I'd like to get some things before we start.'

"Start? Where to?" "Why, to join your uncle, of course. "Oh! I've arranged all that. We can get out of it all right." "But I don't want to get out of it, Tom! I want to go, most awfully. "Really? Last night you wouldn't hear of it."

"Don't, Tom; please don't say any-Tom did not, however, receive this remark in the spirit she hoped. He

"My dear Beryl, you are perfectly ridiculous. You told me last night you could not possibly go on this You refused to consider the point. Very well, now we must abide by your decision and stay in London.' "Oh, but Tom! you know I didn't mean it. I shall be ill if I have to stay here, I know I shall. You don't know how much I want to go away now, at once. Oh! I'd like to go this very minute!" "That would be impossible-your engagements?"

"As if they mattered! I can put them all off with a few notes. What does it matter to these people whether I go to their balls or not? and you know your uncle Lawrence matters very much if you offend him." And regardless of her husband's righteous indignation at the tone she adopted, Beryl argued on, until he exclaimed impatiently, "Very well, then, "And we'll start at once tomorrow." "Impossible."

But ce que femme veut, Dieu le out, and, after half an hour's cajolery, Beryl had drawn from her husband a reluctant promise they should start tomorrow at 11 for Paris.

"Such an abominable rush," grumbled, as he left her to make his arrangements, "all one's plans upset." "I think I've scored off Alicia this ' murmured Beryl, as she rang for her maid.

"Isn't this better than stuffy London" asked Mrs. Jocelyn, as they sat sipping their coffee by the open window of their salon in an hotel in the "My dear Beryl, you forget I was

"No, I don't."
"Or Cicely Grant?"

"But you don't object to Lady Lori-"On the contrary, she's a sensible woman. I'm very fond of Lady Lori-

"Oh, are you?" said Beryl, with a little laugh. "Certainly; I don't know a more reliable, trustworthy—"
"Oh! oh! oh!" Mrs. Jocelyn's laugh rang through the room.
"Exactly! Yes, dear, she is,

"Exactly! Yes, dear, she is, but not in the way you mean."

"What do you mean, Beryl?"

"I mean, dear, that if she hadn't told me of a certain little habit of yours, we shouldn't be here tonight."

And in a few words Mrs. Jocelyn recepitulated her conversation with liver ills. 25 cents.

"You didn't look at the Morning Post before we started, dear. I be-lieve there's something that may interest you. And he pointed to a paragraph: "A marriage has been arranged to

"Did you know this, Tom?"
"Not till this morning. She would not tell me her fiancee's name. When you saw us at the Stores she was choosing her wedding present."
"But," said Beryl, dubiously, "how could Lady Lorimer know if—
"Oh, because I told her."
"You told her!"

"Yes, dear: I saw it wouldn't be any use arguing with you, so I decided that I couldn't do better than give you something else to think about. I went to Marion Lorimer, and asked her to be good enough to help me in our little plan, and put you on our track at the Stores! Don't you see, darling, I thought if I kept you busy looking after me, you would not have much time to get into mischief on your own account?" sing had simply landed her just where her husband intended her to stand! A fig for diplomacy!

Sir Richard Cartwright Riddles Sir Charles Tupper's Contention.

That the Conservatives Polled More Votes Than the Liberals.

Sir Charles' Peculiar Figuring - The Liberals Shown to be Away Ahead.

In the course of his brilliant speech on the address on Tuesday, Sir Richard Cartwright exposed, in his own pungent style, the absurdity if Sir Charles Tupper's contention that the Conservatives had polled 19,000 more votes than the Liberals in the last election. Sir Richard's reply is summen were good enough to declare that they had a majority of 19,000 over the vote polled for the Liberal party at the last elections. In Ontario they claimwas obtained in part by claiming for themselves all the votes recorded in favor of an eminent member of the House against whom Sir Charles Tupper had set up a candidate. They admit that a large proportion of ronto West all told 10,200 votes were polled by both parties. Yet the Conservatives claimed of this 10,200 votes polled in Toronto West 10.517. could understand that the Legislature might give one voter two votes, but he did not think the power of the Legislature was able to turn one man who had two votes into two individuals. It remained for those who were the compilers of election figures to do that. Sir Charles had said that the Liberal party stood as the representative of the minority. The hongentleman had arrived at that by eliminating about 66,000 votes, all of which were cast at any rate against the late Government, because, as he right well knew, the votes recorded for the Patron candidates and the candidates of Mr. McCarthy were most decidedly east in opposition to the late Conservative Government. were 73 cases in Ontario in which Conservatives and Liberals were opposed to each other. What was the sult? In these 73 counties the total Conservative vote was 149,350, and the Liberal vote 161,000, giving the Liberals a majority of 12,000 votes. Then it must be remembered that there were seventeen constituencies in which neither the Liberals nor Conservatives put up candidates. In 1891 in these seventeen constituencies the Liberal party polled well-nigh 30,000 votes, and they would have polled more in 1896. If they would discount the vote of Mr. Wallace, place to the credit of the Conservative party the actual number of votes polled for the Conservative candidates in West Toronto, and give the Liberals credit for the votes actually polled on the occasion of the last election, it would be seen that the majority of 25,000 was much more likely to be a minority of 15,000. If they would put together the votes polled against the Government lhey would have something like 227, 000 against the 191,000 which they claimed, but did not poll. That resul in Ontario was obtained in the teeth of the gerrymander act, which had cost the Liberals at least eight or ten seats, and in spite of the fran-chise act, by which thousands of men who were entitled to vote in this election were not allowed to cast their ballots. Continuing, Sir Richard pointed out that while there were 42 or 43 members from Ontario who would support the Opposition, 48 or 49 would support the policy of the leader of the Government.

But of the 50 seats on the Liberal side not even malice had been able to insinuate that one single one of us holds his seat by virtue of corrupt practices—(laughter and applause) while of those members from Ontario sitting opposite one in three stands impeached for having obtained their places by corrupt means. When, I ask, in the annals of Parliament was it ever known that fifty men had suc-ceeded in gaining their seats on this side of the House, and not a soul could be found to lay a charge against

THE TOBACCO HABIT CURED.

In the interest of the masses, for whom these reports are compiled, the United States Health Reports have examined and investigated many preparations having for their object the cure of the tobacco habit, but among them all we have no hesitancy in giving the editorial and official endorsement of these reports to the remedy known as "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure," manufactured by the Keystone Remedy Company, at 218 La Salle street. Chicago. They are distributing literature this week all through the city, and in the light of our examinations and tests of "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure." we are but performing a duty we owe the public when we indorse the same, and stamp it as the crowning achievement of the nineteenth century, in the way of destroying a habit as disgusting as it is common (For Only $1) hence we earnestly advise you to read full particulars, and if you have not seen circulars to call at W. S. Bryers Bark-well's, wholesole and retail agents for Canada, 288 Dundas street, London.

A Trolley Victim.

Another of Waldock's Delivery Wagons Meets Its Doom,

The Boy Drivers Have a Narrow Escape From Death-Badly Hurt.

W. M. Waldock's parcel delivery wer to Dr. Nelles' office. The wagon was a covered one, and this prevented the boys from seeing the trolley, which was fast bearing down upon them from the east. The boys turned to cross the track, when the car was only a few feet away, and the result was inevitable. The horse had just got clear of the rails, when the car crashed into the hind part of the wagon, and smashed it to atoms, throwing the two boys out with great force on the pavement twenty feet away. The horse broke away from wreck, and bolted into the stables. The two boys were taken across to Dr. Nelles for repairs. Jack Mercer had a nasty scalp wound about the size of a quarter, and was badly bruised about the head and body. His little brother received more painful injuries. His right arm was badly cut, a hole being made in the muscular portion clean to the bone. His legs were also badly bruised and scar-red, and some of the blood vessels ruptured. The injuries, though painful, are not of a serious nature. consider the escape of the boys from death a marvel. J. Redmond was in charge of the motor, and had no idea secretary of the London Bicycle Club, the boys would turn so short. He kept his car under control as much

THE BRITISH NORTH ATLANTIC SQUADRON. Halifax, N. S., Aug. 27.-It is asserted to be the settled policy of the British Admiralty to raise the entire North Atlantic squadron to its old-time efficiency and power. Not only the United States but France has to be kept in sight. The announcement was made in French papers some time ago that both divisions of the French fleet in American waters were to be strengthened by the addition of modern ships. A St. Pierre gentleman in Halifax says an unusually large num-ber of sailors had lately been drafted from the St. Pierre fishing fleet and sent home to France to man war-ships. St. Pierre is a nursery for seamen for the French fleet. No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint in they have a bot-tle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly, and rauses a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.
