AUSTRIANS ON WEST FRONT NO SURPRISE TO THE ALLIES

Their Presence Indicates the Waning Man Power of Germany.

Paris, Aug. 26.—The appearance of Austro-Hungarian troops on the west-ern front did not surprise the newspapers, which declare that the presence of the Austrians behind the German lines was actually known for several months. The presence of the Austrians as fighting troops, at the request of Germany, is declared to be striking proof of the seriousness of the enemy's situation. The Petit Journal says that the Austrians captured by the French belonged to the Life Guards.

John Miller, Returned Soldier, Victim of Mysterious Shooting.

Hamilton, Aug. 26 .- Mrs. John Miller lies dead in the morgue at Waterdown, while her husband, a returned soldier, is in the city hospital with a bullet through his temple. Doctors say that he will recover, but lose his sight. The double tragedy occurred in the village at the home of Miller's fatherin-law, Augustine James, early this morning. Miller and his wife had been talking as late as 4 o'clock. The woman was dressed. Miller was in bed.

At 4:30 a shot rang out. One of the members of the household thought a members of the household thought a window had fallen and called to find out what had happened.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
The wild birds are beginning to find out Victoria Park. Tree creepers, wrens, blackbirds, woodpeckers and humming birds (later) are to be seen. Sometimes a squirrel pops from a tree and buries a nut. The trees, among which are some splendid ones, require more sustenance than they get from the almost exhausted ground. That should be in the form of manure dug in or placed around the roots this fall. Some of these trees have many dead branches, which tend to show that manure is required. Silks With the Goodness of Quality Coupled With Reasonable Prices--For Fall

It might be truly said that this is a presentation of "Golden Opportunities" for savings on seasonable merchandise. Many ask the question, "Why are you selling new and seasonable merchandise at such reasonable prices, when these very same lines cannot be replaced anywhere near the same money?" Our answer is very simple. Buying in the best markets direct when plenty of raw material was in the hands of the manufacturers, and then, when prices were away below today's quotations this store, being contented with but a fair return of profit, Smallman & Ingram will bring you more good merchandise for reasonable prices than you will witness for

CASE DISMISSED .- The case of John CASE DISMISSED.—The case of John Savalas, a Greek merchant of Kincardine, who was charged on August 19 with having no identification papers, was dismissed this morning as proof of his nationality was presented to the court. As he was allowed to go to his home last Monday, when his case was adjourned, he was not required to be present this morning. The necessary papers were received by his lawyer from the Greek consul at New York. ONLY TWO FIRES SNUDAY .- TWO only two fires snuday.—Two calls were answered on Sunday by the fire department, but neither fire caused much damage. A spark from the chimney set fire to the roof of the residence of James Oakes, 29 Muir street, at 11:30 in the morning, and about $10 damage was done. Only the Best Chosen.

Previous to the daring expedition to Zeebrugge, there were months of strenuous training to get the men into the plnk of condition. At the conclusion, only those who had attained the highest degree of efficiency were chosen. So fraught with dangerous possibilities was the task which lay before the men that when the roll was called, each was given a chance to back out if he wished to do so.

Concerning Telegrapher Beswick's own part in "The Day" at the Mole, he has nothing to say beyond the fact that the plane from which he was signalling was damaged by shrapnel. The pilot was untouched, but Beswick was wounded. It was possible, however, to make a landing.

"I went over the top with the rest," he adds, "and in the excitement, I didn't know I was wounded until my back got numb four hours later."

The wounds have healed, but the "touch of gas" has left effects which make recovery slow and tedious.

THE CARTOONIST AND THE WAR. THEY ALSO serve in this great war who ponder before drafting squares and set their India ink upon bristol board in order that the powerful influence of the pictured thought may reach the public. In every land men are endeavoring to express national consciousness by means of cartoons. And the war has served as an opportunity for the cartoonist to dignify his profession as nothing else could have done. The spirit of satire often fills a picture, but there are other times when some masterly thought finds its way on paper. The enemy has been lampooned most savagely, stung to the quick with an unmasking of his innermost nature and smashed between the eyes with some plain epic. A man sits down and portrays a slaughter house and labels it "The Butcher." Just a few figures and a word or two carry that designation first to thousands who are witnesses of the original publication, then to millions who see the drawing in its manifold reproductions. Every man who scans the picture declares himself either in sympathy with its lesson or is enraged by the implication it places upon his nationality. It makes resolution in the breasts of legions; perhaps only a vague shade of strength for a cause or perhaps a sufficient impulse to send a man to the colors to

Thousands of artists who have mastered the technique of black and white are striving to express the morality of the war, to create something that will lift up the world, to visualize the drama of every development in modern life. To draw a picture every day seems a simple thing. Yet to create a thought that will live even for an hour is the most difficult of all arts. The writer is not required to express original ideas in everything he produces; he may draw conclusions and illuminate events more as a recorder than as a commentator. But the picture maker must have a new model for each day. He can only attain greatness if he determine to achieve anew and more fully realize that his personality and his skill are a combination to be developed through the deepest study and the most intense industry.

Every week they come into newspaper offices, men who believe they can some day sit among the great cartoonists. Often their efforts are crude; they have not realized that there is no royal road to success in the art that beckons them on. They are conscious of a striving for big thoughts, and while they find themselves hampered and held back for years until they shall have graduated as draftsmen, scores of them are fighting on, employing every spare moment, enlisting the scientific assistance that a score or more of honest schools can give, and in many cases succeeding. The road of the aspiring cartoonist is to be likened to mit of Bullfrog Swamp. an obstacle race. He must first learn what he does not know about drawing, but he must also remember that no great cartoonist achieved distinction until after he had gone through the grind of the art school, the sketching explorations, the arduous hours of practice work that seemed such a waste of time and talent, and as a climax, when one had fitted himself, the wearying and discouraging laying of his work upon the knees of many gods. But, like the writer, let him once make his name stand out among artists and his and white artists in this war shows how far this school of art has advanced. Pick up almost any American or English magazine and you will find some masterpieces. The war has searched the souls of many workers with pen and crayon and found therein the inspiration and the will to ex- intending to have the ceremony performed by a judge at tremendous struggles.

OUR TROOPS AND PUBLICITY.

WITHOUT SEEKING to make comparisons, let it be said that the style of J. F. B. Livesay, now acting as correspondent of the Canadian Press, Limited, with the forces in France, best suits the needs of the newspapers he is serving. He sends home news rather than Cross auxiliary to advance paleface civilization in Central views, and he does not bury his points in wordi- Europe. ness. Perhaps Mr. Livesay is at heart a reporter rather than an editorial writer. The reporter at the war is Philip Gibbs: the editor on the same task is H. G. Wells, or Arnold Bennett, or George Bernard Shaw. The reporter photographs what to lighten the portions again. he sees and tries to bring out the high lights; the editor is going to paint the picture himself. While many excellent dispatches have come from the Canadian newspapermen at the front, the work done by Mr. Livesay has been most satisfactory to those men at home who handle the news for the public, and who want something that will justify a headline each day and who feel that it can be found by the right man. And it does seem that the Canadian forces ought to provide a good story every day. Where is the star reporter, who, while not regarding himself as a war correspondent, would not jump at the chance to make good on the belief that he could find a graphic incident or a tremendous narrative each 24 hours?

One handicap under which the Canadian correspondents have labored is the extreme rigidity of the censorship. For instance in a dispatch describing the winning of a Victoria Cross by a sergeant in a Saskatchewan battalion, the name of the hero is not mentioned. All very well to say from what province he came, but put the soft pedal on his name. The Germans might find out that this V. C. winner was in a certain part of the line and move up several divisions just when the line and move up several divisions just when the beautiful to be a severe penalty for an alarm clock it was hoped to launch the brave westerner over striking a blue note. One of these things got Willie out of American newspapers are practically unrestricted in the use of all and every kind of military deeds ILL UP WITH DAD - - By Fontaine Fox and works, at the front and at home. Column after column appears describing the exploits of certain battalions or batteries. Names of officers who have commanded are published, and in fact the other extreme in wide open publicity is reached by our next door Allies. Canada goes on in the old way. Only the name of a soldier and his regimental number may be printed. On a strict interpretation of the censorship it may not be stated with what battalion a man enlisted and went overseas, even though the identity of that battalion is long since lost.

Publicity properly applied has a big value in the war. Mostly the work of the Canadians at the front is cloaked in such terms as "imperishable gallantry" and messages from commanders. Secrecy no doubt has its place, but if it means the loss of much war enthusiasm, it may be a detriment when overdone. The Americans are not failing to tell everyone in the home town what the boys are doing, and they want the Germans to know it, too.

FRENCH COLONIZING GENIUS.

N THE ENTRANCE hall of the public library there hangs a map of Canada drawn for the Duke de Bourgogne and printed at Paris in 1696. Away to the north and west of Lake Superior and James Bay there are marked the advance posts of those intrepid voyageurs and explorers, who, at a time when the English colonies barely fringed the Atlantic coast, were carrying the banner of their king and country into the remotest wildernesses of New France. The old map, with its colors still fresh, is a witness to the genius of the race for colonization. For it was not a decadent France that lost this empire in America, it was a decadent monarchy, just as it was a decadent form of monarchy that less than a hundred years later was to lose for Britain an empire in America. In the present war there has been further eloquent testimony to this same genius on the part of France. Losing her American possessions "At my airplane I can't get mad." in the eighteenth century, France in the nineteenth century turned to Asia and Africa and there has built up for herself new colonies which in her hour of distress and agony have borne witness to their belief in her honor and her fidelity. So Mrs. Van Deusen went away feeling that she had scored a triumph, and took great pleasure in telling her associates in the patriotic work how she had argued Farmer Rogers into taking the step he had taken. By the next day at nine the portable shack was on its way from the nearest city. The girls were learning their task in the orchard under the guidance of Mr. Rogers' one and only "hired man," and the chaperone, Miss Phoebe Ferris, by profession if not by natural inclination a public school teacher, was working miracles in the old farmhouse. Incidentally she was making mental comments on the domestic arrangements of bachelors, but that these thoughts were not unkind you could tell from the amused smile that played around her mouth as she put up white swiss curtains at the upstairs windows, rearranged heavy old pieces of furniture and added a hundred and one touches to the place that were to crooning to herself the satisfaction she felt in doing this, her share, in bringing comfort to the eight girls now in the orchard.

Mrs. Van Deusen did not forget her responsibility and, though she did not forget that Miss Ferris was all of thirty-five and did not miss an opportunity to tell her associates that she was a "plain little motherly body who would be safe anywhere," still she hovered around the farm with what seemed to Mr. Rogers to be unnecessary frequency. He could see quite clearly that she was going to take full personal credit for the bumper crop of peaches his orchard was yielding, and she did seem to forget entirely that by the arrangements he was making he was paying very full value for the amount of labor he received. She apparently forgot that the rent of his house had been a gift since he paid the girls wages that did not take into consideration their shelter. Apparently Mrs. Van Deusen wanted to make perfectly sure that Mr. Rogers kept entirely at the far end of the farm. She even stipulated to Miss Ferris that he should never take a meal in the house, "and I want to be sure," she told her, "that he shows no signs of attention to any of the girls. It is your responsibility and mine," she said condescendingly. "So please make a point to be with the girls as much as possible when he is with them. You would have a restraining influence. I am sure."

stead she looked very grave and as sured Mrs. Van Deusen that she would keep a motherly eye on everything. All were impressed, the prime mindeled to Mrs. Van Deusen made it quite clear to Mrs. Rogers himself that he was not even to cross the threshold of his own house; hence arose within Mr. Rogers' breast an insatiable desire to do just that thing. The fact was, from glimpses he had secured from outside, a marvelous transformation had been wrought in the Interior of that house. The swiss curtains in the windows swaping back and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the aliriness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the aliriness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the aliriness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the aliriness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the aliriness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the signal victory which they recently won in the successful offensive of a few weeks ago. Miss Ferris did not take the trouble policy of preserving complete freedom to remind Mrs. Van Deusen that as Mr. Rogers was staid and studious and forty and the girls were for the most part uneducated young Polak girls on their vacations from factories it was not likely that he would find much to interest him in their presence. Instead she looked very grave and assured Mrs. Van Deusen that she would keep a motherly eve on everything.

No doubt Mr. Rogers was sorely tempted; at any rate, he fell and, forgotting his promise to Mrs. Van Deusen, sneaked into that transformed house of his, one day when Miss Ferris was in the orchard with the glris, and looked around. What had been done he could not say, but that the house had been transformed into a home, he knew, and it was only by dint of firm resolve—and fear of being caught by Miss Ferris, or worse still, by Mrs. Van Deusen—that he tore himself from the charming rooms.

Britain's Mighty Effort.

"From these labors one gathers a vivid realization of Britain's mighty efforts in this war. Not only in the creation and organization of immense armies, but in financial aid to all concerned nations, in furnishing them with absolutely essential supplies and with the means of transportation, in providing equipment, munitions and implements of war, cannon, rifles, tanks, airplanes of a hundred different types, in the world-wide scope of naval operations, covering the immensity of the oceans, in the successful fight against the submarine menace, and in the construction of innumerable war craft and merchant ships, the effort has been stupendous. To give but one illustration, sixty per cent of the immense armies that have left the shores of the United States during the last five months have been transported in British ships, without which no such task could have been accomplished.

I visited camps at Bramshott, Frensham, Pond, Witley and Seaford, as well as some forestry camps in Great Britain and several railway construction camps in France. The railway construction corps and the forestry corps are exceedingly efficient, and both of them are giving remarkably fine servic. The same is true of the army medical corps. I visited many of the hospitals, both in England and France. Among those I saw the remains of the Canadian hospital at Etaples, which had been bombed by the Germans and at a Red Cross hospital for nurses at Buxton I had the privilege of seeing sixteen of the splendid women who survived the barbarous attacks upon the hospitals at Etaples and Boullenes, where they were carrying on their mission of mercy. Several of them were suffering from wounds and others from shock, but everyone of them was ready and willing to take up her work again, regardless of the danger.

Red Cross Appreciated.

"Everywhere I heard warmest appreciation of the splendid service given by the Canadian Red Cross Society, by the Young Men's Christian Associations. Among these the Maple Leaf Clubs should not be forgotten. They supply sleeping accommodations for 1,100 men as well as comfortable meals at very reasonable rates. The headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross Society at York Hotel, Berniers street, are much larger and more commodious than when I last visited them. A most interesting and important branch of the work there carried on is concerned with the comfort and welfare of prisoners of war. The organization is wonderfully thorough and complete. Parcels of food, clothing, and other necessaries are dispatched with absolute regularity and precise methods are employed to make certain that they reach their destination. The devoted womn who hav conscrated their labors to this task have nobly earned the gratitude of the Canadian people.

"Beaverhall, established by the Canadian Y. M. C. A., on the Strand, is commodious and well organized. It is daily thronged with hundreds of men on leave from the front, or from the various camps. The splendid work of the Y.M.C.A. can be seen everywhere in France and at all our camps in England.

Christian Giving. — Luke, 6:30-38; 21:1-4.
QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

1. Verse 30.—Must we literally give to all who ask, and let all who will steal our goods, or does Christ mean that we must be willing to do that, or any other unreasonable thing if God or the law of love so requires? law of love so requires?

2. Verses 31-33.—Wherein ought a Christian be better than a sinner in his treatment of his fellows?

3. Is it easy or difficult for a truly good man, and why, to literally treat others as he would like to be treated?

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of white still father, but her serving beat the core a dress of white still core and away by her father, wore a dress of white still core and away by her father, wore a dress of white still core and away and away and a dress of the standard s Golden Text—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus that he himself said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

GIVING IS BOTH DUTY AND PRIVILEGE.

One of the most distinguished things about God is that he is always giving, and the great characteristic of Jesus is that he gave himself for us, devoted himself while on the earth to the interests of his fellow-men without fee or reward, and finally gave his life for us. He is now giving his spirit to us and interceding for us at the throne of God. Knowing, therefore, the benefit of giving from experience, the Lord Jesus tells us that "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and he urges us to "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom." It will be seen therefore that giving is a serious duty, but a more glorious privilege.

Far From Dull.

Dear Miss Grey,—I hope you will not think me a great trouble, as this is the first time of my writing. I always read the Mail-Box; there are so many useful things to learn. Now, I am going to ask a few questions:

1. Would I have to be licensed to sell vegetables from my garden if I sent them around to neighbors' houses asking them to buy?

Will some reader let me know how

Ans.—My dear woman, anyone who can grow enough vegetables to supply six young lads, and in addition is able to raise two "piglets" for home consumption, is far removed from dullness. In fact, you are decidedly clever, I think, to achieve such things. I am going to ask some of our country Page-ties to write us advising as to best way of treating the hams, etc., for winter using, and in a few days I hope to have several replies to print for your benefit. In regard to a license, it is not neces-In regard to a license, it is not necessary to have one (I understand) unless your business nets an income thousand dollars yearly—scarcely likely unless your garden is of unusual size.

WORLD SERIES STARTS SEPT. 4

First Three Games To Be Played at Ground of Chicago Cubs.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25 .- The first three games of the world's series will be games of the world's series will be played in Chicago starting Wednesday. September 4, it was announced last night by President Johnson, of the American League. The remaining contests, if any, will be played on the home grounds of the American League pennant-winning team. War charities will share in the receipts of the games, President Johnson said.

Details for the annual classic were announced by President Johnson after official sanction for the games had been given by Secretary of War Baker. The secretary, as a result of an appeal from the National Baseball Commission, granted an extension of fifteen days on the "work or fight" order as it affects baseball players, so the series could be played. Under the new ruling players on the two contesting clubs must be engaged in some essential occupation by September 15.

Baseball is expected to contribute between $30,000 and $40,000 toward war charities under the plan suggested by the commission which agreed to donate 10 per cent of its revenue from the games and recommended that each league, as well as the contesting clubs, participating players, officials and owners, contribute a like amount. President Johnson also announced that the commission would cable report and features of each game to the American and Candain troops overseas.

George Hildebrand and Clarence Owen were the American League umpires chosen, to officiate in the series, played in Chicago starting Wednesday,

African City Boys Break Tie by Taking Odd Fixture

CHATHAM, Aug. 25.—The Chatham baseball team was victorious over the famous W.O.R. nine of London today, breaking the tie. The score was 6 to 5. The last half of the contest was a real bail game, but in the first part there was some ragged playing on both sides. Dumond was in the box for the visitors and was in good trim except in the fourth inning, when he issued a pass with the bases full, and then three runs were scored, two on a double and one on a single. Dumond issued four passes in as many innings, while McCoig kept his walk list down to two.

The X-Ray a Sure Way to Find Real Backache Causes

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.

When your back ached did some kind friend ever tell you it was "lumbago"?
Or did you read a pamphlet that convinced you it was Bright's disease?

When your back ache suddenly develops only to persist, the X-ray may show the presence of the thickened area in the lumbar region.

the illum and other bones in and around the spot which aches are changed in position or relation to each other, an X-ray picture quickly discloses the fact. Treatment of such a backache is then dependent upon a restoration of the bones and joints. Mere manipulation may do the work. Personally, if I were the victim, I should prefer to have X-ray pictures made several times a week by an orthopedic surgeon whose fingers were thus scientifically guided.

A spur or spicule or bone from one of the layers of the spine—osteoasthritis—has caused troublesome backaches. The X-ray negative exhibits this as well as erosions, spots and bony projections.

Excellent on Shifter Drives

Power Belting has -now it is worn to 4 inches. proved itself on the strenuous drives of Canadian plants. In mines, quarries, sawmills, flour mills, shell factories, paper millsand also on the farm. Hundreds of testimonials and rapidly mounting sales prove this.

But Goodyear Extra Power is better belting for general shop use, too.

Note the two Goodyear Belts pictured here. They are on a steel planer in the plant of the Globe Engineering Company. They answer conclusively the two questions: Will Extra Power work with shifters? Will the plies come apart if the outer fabric is worn through?

TIME and again These belts were put on two years ago. The straight Goodyear Extra belt was then 41 inches wide The cross belt has worn on the edges, and where the shifter catches the belt four plies have worn through. Neither belt shows the least sign of ply separation.

The belts shift on an average of seven times a minuteand they work over 150 hours a month-net working time.

Mr. Gough, of the Globe Engineering Company, concludes his letter to us by saying, "We are installing Extra Power on all our new drives and replacements."

And that is the result of every "show-me" test of Goodyear Extra Power Belting. For greater flexibility on the pulleys, for longer life, for absence of stretching and slipping - ask the nearest Goodyear Branch to show you some Extra Power records. Write or telephone to-day.

Lillian and Dorothy Gish, at favorites among the movie "fans," ompanied Mr. Griffith on all these meeting he sustained the reputation he has earned during his tour of Canadian cities, as a "famous Irish orator." The theme of his Sunday address was religion of war time. It was his motive to bring a message of religion for these troublous times. Religion, he dedescribed, as duty impelled by love, a binding of the soul to God. It is said that the German soldiers and men in training have been instructed to replace the morning prayer by deep breathing exercises, a step which will profit them nothing, since prayer, as the deep breath of the soul, is more important to their welfare.

The speaker emphasized the paramount need in these days for self-sacrifice, and the opportunity those at home have for emulation of the gallant, altruistic spirit of the men who are fighting and dying in Europe. He outlined the three great principles for

LIVE TROLLY WIRE ON STREET MAKES WALKING DANGEROUS

WALKING DANGEROUS

A street railway wire at a point just west of The Advertiser office on Dundas street, broke at 8:45 o'clock Saturday night and several persons were saved from possible electrocution by a narrow margin.

The dangerous strand was quickly taken charge of by street railway officers and the police, but as it lay for sixty feet, and the streets were crowded, many people started to walk across the pavement and were stopped in the nick of time.

One woman with a child was saved by a soldier, just as she was about to step on the wire. The man in khaki saw their danger and ran toward them shouting at the top of his voice. A dozen others were speechless, but the shouting at the top of his voice. A dozen others were speechless, but the shouting attracted the woman and the child, and they were headed off in time.

REV. HUGH JOHNSON IN METHODIST PULPIT

Rev. Hugh Johnston, D.D., of Baltimore, occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist Church on Sunday. Rev. Dr. R. G. Peever, who has been away on his vacation is expected to take charge of the work again next Sunday. of the work again next Sunday.

Preaching from the text "What think ye of Christ," Dr. Johnston in the evening sermon pictured the world as it will be after the period of reconstruction which will follow the war. The truction which will follow the war. The lemocracy of the future must be, a burer one than has heretofore existed. Oppression of the poor and the granting of too much power to wealth, which he speaker thinks have been prevalent luring the present period, will not be allowed in the future. This change will be brought about as a result of the influence of Christ, the speaker injurated.

home have for emulation of the gallant, altruistic spirit of the men who are fighting and dying in Europe. He outlined the three great principles for which Britain and her Allies are fighting—the sanctity of international law, the standard of right and the spirit of freedom. He spoke of the defeat that has always been given in succeeding centuries to any attempt on the part of a single ruler for world domination, mentioning the part England played in the overthrow of Philip II. of Spain, Louis XIV. of France and Napoleon.

More Than Any Other.

Dr. Davidson was given prolonged applause when he stated that Canada's contribution to the world's fighting force had been more per capita than that of any other nation, and again when he referred to the tender thoughtfulness of the French in placing maple leaves on the graves of fallen Canadians.

Short Explanation.

Following Dr. Davidson was a short explanation by Raymond Swink, professor of English and public speaking in Ohlo Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohlo. Mr. Swink travels with the Chautauqua as a Bible study class at Lake Chautauqua, New York, and traced its growth to the present huge organization, with over six thousand Chautauquas in the United States alone. It is an institution of democracy to cooperate with the schools, the churches, the newspapers and the libraries in providing instruction and entertainment to all classes and ages, he said.

New Musical Program.

The musical program today will be provided by Miss Madge Williamson, pianist; Miss Martha Alexander, violinist, and Hartwell de Mille, a celebrated Canadian baritone. In the afternoon Dr. Frank Bohn will speak on "The Federation of the World." and in the evening his address will be one of value and interest, "The Mind of Germany."

Work of Navy.

At the conclusion of the program, Rev. J. T. Conn made a strong appeal

15,000 MERCHANT MARINE MEN MAKE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE

Germany and her dastardly submarine campaign never have prevented, and never will prevent, our brave seamen from "carrying on." Transports sail the seas unceasingly; merchant vessels carry the food vital to the success of our cause.

Many of our seamen have been on torpedoed ships, not once only, but several times. Death lurks in the way of every ship. The submarine and loathsome mine have claimed over 15,000 men of our Merchant Marine They died for us!

What of their dependents—the widows and orphans? Governments make no provision for them because the Merchant Marine is not a recognized arm of the service, like the Army and Navy. That is why we hold

SAILORS'WEEK

SEPTEMBER 1st to 7th INCLUSIVE

That is why you are asked to give—and give liberally. The soldier goes into battle knowing his dependents are provided for and will be cared for if anything happens. Our 300,000 merchant seamen face peril just as great, in a service just as vital. A grateful public must look after their families, and keep their dependents from want.

Think of the crime of the Lusitania! Shall the dependents of her lost crew live in poverty? Think of Capt. Fryatt, "Murdered by Wilhelm the Damned" on July 30th, 1916! Think of the 176 merchant ships of which all trace has been lost, since war began!
