OUR MORNING STROLL.

NO. II.

The invigorating breeze fanned our brow as, in the early dawn of Monday last, we took the reins in hand for a short drive into the country, which for the purpose of this article may be termed a morning stroll. As we drove along our eye caught glimpses of plenty and prosperity. The hay crop along the route has made wonderful progress during the past few days, and now appears to be nearly up to the average. The fast-growing grain presents encouraging prospects, and bids fair to produce an abundant harvest.

On reaching a slight elevation there burst suddenly upon our view a scene of surpassing loveliness. Who has not heard of the far-famed

PLUM HOLLOW
and its beauties? Near this romantic valley resides the seer to whose shrine thousands have come from the far distant town, city and homestead, to listen to the weird sayings which fell from her lips, in which nearly all could find some sentence of strange and mysterious import that thrilled their inmost being. An old Indian legend relates that this valley was the trysting place where savage warriors and dusky maidens met to plight their troth beside the Me-at-te-me-gha, or the Rippling Streamlet. Now all this is changed. The neat and commodious farm houses, the waving grain, the lowing cattle, and the busy husband-man, give evidence of an advanced civilization, and on all sides were sights to gladden the heart and delight the eye, for we have lived long enough to know that on the prosperity of the farmers—those lords of creation—depends the commercial well-being of the country. Our thoughts had wandered off into the romantic, and it is hard to tell where they would have ended had we not just at this moment reached the place for which we started.

JOSEPH KNAPP'S CHEESE FACTORY, standing on the brow of Plum Hollow hill. On driving into the yard, willing hands soon unhitched the horse, and after a short interchange of greetings at the farm house we passed on to the factory, to get a glimpse of the exterior and interior arrangements of this model cheese producing establishment.

The factory is situated on a side hill, giving a good incline for all waste water and whey to pass off, and is a new two-story frame structure 50 x 60 feet, with a 26 x 30 feet annex for storing purposes. At the front of the building are two weigh stands, at which was taken in on the morning of our visit over 18,000 lbs of milk. The motive power is a six-horse-power engine made by W. Stafford, of Lancaster.

Two wells furnish the water used in the factory. From one the water is drawn by the engine, and from the other by a Mallorytown windmill, recently erected. A large tank furnishes ample storage room for the water used. A room off the engine room serves as an office for the manager and patrons. In the make-room stand four large vats, capable of holding 5,200 lbs each, and around the sides of the rooms are arranged the presses, capable of pressing 32 cheese at once. Mr.
Knapp and three assistants were busy attending to their respective duties, and everything moved with the precision of clockwork. We watched the operations from the arrival of the first load of milk until the last load was delivered, and everything worked without a jar.

As soon as a vat was filled, the milk was brought to a proper temperature and the rennet added, when the vat was completely covered with a heavy cotton covering. This is a new departure in cheese-making, and one that Mr. Knapp thinks will be adopted by all first-class cheese factories.

During the flow of milk this factory makes from 28 to 32 cheese per day.
The process of manufacture is well known, and nearly all our readers are as conversant with the art as the writer is, and it is therefore quite unnecessary to go into the minor details of the process. Of enquiry we ascertained that Thos. Percival and Abel Wright send the largest quantity of milk to the factory. They keep 32

Lord's prayer, after which the men went to work with a right good will.
Our reporter only regrets the absence of the thrilling sounds of the bagpipe, the soft minstrelsy of the harp and the gentle notes of the guitar, in honor of the nations which have supplied us with those strong and hardy men.

IT'S AN ILL WIND THAT BLOWS NOBODY ANY GOOD.

Many years ago there stood a little cottage close by where the North Forland. Lighthouse now rears its lofty head. The modest building was a very unpretentious one; and as it was painted an intense white it served as a good landmark by day to those who "go down to the sea in ships," directly daylight began to leave the sky a lighted lamp was placed close to the diamond-paned window of the parlor, and this also quietly warned the toilers of the deep.

The inmates of the cottage were three in number—Ben Wheeler, as honest and hard-working a man as ever wore a sou'-wester and oil-skin clothes, Dame Wheeler, his wife; and Alice Harnot, a young girl of some fifteen summers, whom the worthy couple delighted to call their niece.

The wind blew great gusts from the south-west, and rattled away at the doors and windows of the cottage as though it strongly objected to such barriers to its onward rush. It shrieked through the crevices and sang a holes in plaintive strains, and sang it accompaniment to the lashing of the angry waves along the shore.

Ben Wheeler was busily employed overhauling his weather-clothes, in anticipation of shortly having to wear them, and Dame Wheeler stood close beside the fire, as she was busily engaged cooking something for the evening meal. Alice sat at the table with her needlework, but her eyes were too dimmed with tears to admit of her accomplishing much. The gale terrified her, and now she sobbed aloud. Ben walked across the room, and laying his hand hard upon the maiden's head exclaimed—

"Ye musn't cry, Allie; ye musn't cry! Don't ye know that the wind's tempered to the shorn lamb, and it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good?"

"Ah!" chimed in Dame Wheeler, "it's an old song that the wind sings to-night, and its lullaby will hush many a one to sleep from which he won't wake again, maybe."

"Well, ye know, dame, when the boatswain pipes all hands must muster up," replied Ben, as he once more sought his sea clothes, "and that chap with his Cap'n, fine weather or foul."

"That's right, Ben," returned his spouse, "but ye know there's many sails under false colors."

The conversation was here interrupted by the startling report of a rocket across the sea, followed by a lurid glare in the dark sky.

"Ship in distress," muttered Ben, as he quickly encased himself in his waterproof apparel and made off towards the beach.

Allie now turned her attention to the lamp in the window, to see that it gave its greatest brilliancy. Wistfully she peered out into the darkness to try to watch the movements of her uncle; but the night proved too unkind.

"Auntie," said the girl, "dont the wind howl frightfully to-night. Will it last long?"

"Perhaps not, my dear. But you ought to be used to it by this time."

"I shall never grow to like it, for it always reminds me that I am a child of its adoption."

"So you are, my dear," replied Dame Wheeler, as she approached beside Allie to the window. "So you are, my dear; but your uncle and myself do all we can to make you happy."

"Yes, dear Auntie, yes!" passionately exclaimed the girl, as she threw her arms around the dame's neck. "I am sure you do, and I'm very grateful; but the wind always makes me sad. Don't you hear it talking?"

"Yes, my child. I hear its song in the evening breeze as it plays across the corn, and causes it to bow its proud head and do homage; as well as in the mighty tempest; and I recognize it both the voice of Him who made them."

"But Auntie, you are not like poor me. You have never been shipwrecked."

"No, my dear, and not likely to be, for I never leave home. Come child, dry your eyes; remember all's for the best. It was just such a night as this when Ben brought you home, Allie, and many a time since then have we thanked the wind for the gift."

Allie's reply was a kiss.

"It seems as though only last night, although thirteen years ago, Allie, all how the time flies. Ben brought you in wrapped up in a shawl. He sat up all night with you, fearing that you might not wake again unless he watched, and every now and then he would lean over and kiss your little pale face until you cried. Ben had this lamp placed alight in the window, to keep him company, and ever since then, when daylight fades, the same little beacon is set up, for your uncle says it may be of service."

A loud report was now heard close by the cottage. It was Ben firing the rocket apparatus. Dame Wheeler and Allie leaned their heads against the window panes, to watch him as much as possible; and Allie, full of gratitude for what had been done for her, now pleaded that her aunt would allow her to put on one of the oil-skin coats and caps and go to her uncle's assistance. It was in vain that Dame Wheeler remonstrated; for argument was met by argument, whilst the coat was tried on, and before many minutes had elapsed Allie was upon the beach.
Ben Wheeler was glad of assistance, for he had just made communication with the distressed ship.

"That's the style, lad!" he exclaimed, as Allie took hold of the winch handle. "You ain't a very big chap, but a little help is worth a deal of pity."

The life-saving basket was wound ashore, and in it were seated a lady and a baby. Ben quickly helped them from their nest, and caused the lady to take shelter under the lee of a lugger on the beach. The basket was returned seawards, and next returned bearing a strongly-built sailor.

"Hurrah!" shouted Ben, as the burden neared the beach; "now we shall work well. Go to the lad's side. Go to the lad. He needs help there more than me."

Excitement had preserved Allie's strength for a time, but now a relapse set in; and hardly had the stout arms of the sailor put the winch in motion before Allie gave a half stifled shriek and fainted.

St. Lawrence Central Camp Ground.

The Camp Meeting Committee of the Brookville District of the Methodist Church met in the Wall street church, Brookville, on the 17th inst., when it was unanimously decided to hold a four days' meeting for the promotion of holiness, on the above ground, commencing on Monday, July 10th, at 7 p. m. The Methodist Hymn Book and the Dominion Hymnal will be used in the service of song. Various topics related to the central theme will be discussed by several ministers of the District. A large, interesting and profitable meeting is confidently expected. The Rev. George McRitchie, Superintendent of the District, will preside.

Messrs. Easton & Campbell have dissolved partnership. Mr. Campbell retires, and Mr. Easton assumes control of the business.

During the heavy storm of last Thursday morning, your scribe having made an early start for Charleston, found shelter in the tent of Mr. G. M.
Bates, who is camping at the head of Deer Island. Mr. Bates, having given the charge of his farm to his son, intends spending most of his time at Charleston this summer, and has procured a fine tent for that purpose. A large string of fish was secured during the day.

Phillipsville.

JUNE 14.—Our unbelievers have concluded now that the railway is a sure thing, and quite an excitement prevails here. Men have arrived in the neighborhood to erect a shanty for a boarding house. Work commences tomorrow.

The lady evangelists are holding forth in the M. E. Church this week.
Curiosity brings quite a crowd every night.

The Scott Act, we think, is working very well. No "drunks" since the 1st of May.

[Unavoidably crowded out of last issue.]

PHILIPPSVILLE, June 21.—Geo. Haskins has bought an engine and boiler to run his cheese box factory and shingle saw during the season of low water.

The late rains have made the hay and grain. If the drought had continued only a week longer hay would not have been half a crop in this locality.

Mrs. Wm. Laisley arrived at her father's last week from Peterboro', where she has been for the last two months.

The contractors on the B. & W. R. have built a house on the farm of A.
Charles Griffin. About 40 men are on the spot, and broke sod on Saturday. A large crowd, from far and near, visited the railway camp on Sunday. There will be heavy cutting and filling on this section of the road, from Delta six miles west.

Front of Yelge.

JUNE 16.—The village of Malory-town has been set apart from the rest of the township, by the municipal council, for the purpose of local improvement. Home rule in miniature.

A very exciting lacrosse match took place last week between the Brookville Riversides and the Malorytown club, resulting in three straight games for the latter. Time for each game, two, four and three minutes respectively.

The License Inspector and Chief Mitchell of Brookville have just been making a tour through the cellars and hidden places of that town, and report that the Scott Act has even penetrated those subterranean chambers, as not one drop of the forbidden stuff was found.

The Caintown post office has been thoroughly renovated. The building is a new, tasty and convenient office, and improves the Caintown corner.
Under the supervision of Mr. Hoga-boom the business has considerably increased.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tennant and Miss M. Tennant have returned from Syracuse, where they spent a short time visiting friends and relatives. We are pleased to hear the ring of the anvil once more, and see James W. around.

S. H. Dickey, Esq., our local artist, is doing very fine work at present.

D. D. Tennant, Esq., commissioner of roads and bridges, has been examining the roads and bridges in this locality. The travelling public have in D. D. the right man in the right place.

We are happy to learn that J. W.
Lane, M. D., is convalescent.

Rev. D. C. Sanderson, on his return from Conference, was greeted with an enthusiastic reception by his many friends and church members. Bro. S. is appreciated here.

The Reporter is a welcome visitor in these parts, and has the ring of true metal in it. May it continue to enlarge its sphere of usefulness.

Ormond Gibson has made the first consignment of strawberries from these parts this season.

[Arrived too late for last week's Portland.

Dr. McGannon arrived last week, Mrs. B. Byington is quite ill at present.

The Newboro band have offered their services for the picnic on the 23d Austin & Marks are timing the road of Harrison's new store.

The Town Council of Smith's Falls intend an excursion, up the lake, soon.

Lewis & Wardrobe's "Hippolyphtarian" was here on Friday evening. The entertainment was not as good as expected. Tommy Oliver having injured himself in Newboro did not appear on the stage in his tumbling.
During the afternoon Prof. Lewis and the troupe enjoyed a sail over the lake in Mr. Scovill's sailing yacht.

SCOTT ACT NOTES.

A number of cases for infraction of the Scott Act in Brookville were up-before the Police Magistrate there on Monday and Tuesday.

Joseph Gallona was fined $50 and $5 costs, or 80 days.

Alex. Fraser, of the Golden Lion grocery, was charged with selling liquor between the 1st of May and 1st of June. Wm. Williams, of Greenbush, testified to ordering some whiskey in April, paying part down and taking some of the liquor home with him; got the rest from a house in town during May, paying Fraser balance then; sent the liquor home by D. Cold; did not know the man who let him have the liquor. D. Cold swore to bringing home a lot of stuff for Williams; did not know what the parcels contained. A son of Williams testified he saw the wagon with parcels for his father, but saw no liquor.
For the defence, Fraser swore that he sold Williams the liquor in April; had the portion Williams none of his portion removed to the house of his portion, where he sent Williams for it when he called. Case dismissed; costs, $10.10, to be paid by Inspector.

Antoine Welding was fined $50 and $5.25 costs, or 30 days.

The cases of M. Bourke and Rich.
Hudson were adjourned until Monday next.

Old Jones is Dead.

I sat in my window, half overhauled, and heard them say below in the street: 'I suppose you know old Jones is dead?'

Headlines were walking toward my door. 'Dead!' what more could there be to say? But I sat and pondered what it might mean.

Old Jones was a man of many years; yet his faithful assessor, time defied. And died in the days so distant and dear.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Man Who Has Not Been Able to Sleep for Twenty Years.

On a pillow in a little parlor at No. 710 Lexington avenue, New York, stands the intellectual head of Dr. Charles F. Reed, 56 years old, who has not been able to move hand or foot or say a word for more than two years.

He lives only in his head, for every joint in his body and limbs are wasted to the bone. His eyes are sightless, his neck stiff, his legs so close as to prevent him from taking any food unless it is in very soft or liquid form, and shoulder joints, elbows, wrists, finger joints, hips and knees are immovable.

Dr. Reed is a philosopher, and his cheerful disposition, in spite of the extreme hardness of his lot, has made him the wonder of everybody who knows him. Those who have lost friends call to learn a lesson in fortitude, and all who meet the doctor say they go away with new ideas of life and the worth of existence.

Dr. Reed was married in 1868, and during all his suffering his wife has remained faithful to him, and night after night she has held his hand, and she has been a great comfort to him. She has been a great comfort to him.

Rev. Mr. Rainford's New Method of Teaching New Yorkers.

A New York letter to the Buffalo Courier says: As it is only a step or so from Tammany Hall to St. George's Church, the mention of Tammany reminds me that the energetic six-foot rector of St. George's, the Rev. Mr. Rainford, has quite an undertaking on his hands just now.

How Girls Can Take Care of Their Hair.

Every housekeeper knows how careful treatment keeps her hair and household furniture, says Good Cheer. Girls do not always know or remember the great care of their own little possessions will often enable them to dress nicely on very little money.

Old Jones is dead. I sat in my window, half-overcast. And heard them say, below in the street: "I suppose you know old Jones is dead."

Headlines walking their onward way. "Dead!" what more could there be to say?

But I sat and pondered what it might mean. Thus to be dead while the world went by: Did Jones see further than what we see?

Was he one with the stars in the watching sky? Or down under the growing grass Did he hear the feet of the daylight pass?

A REMARKABLE CASE. A Man Who Has Not Been Able to Move His Hand or Feet for Twenty-two Years.

On a pillow in a little back parlor at No. 719 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, says the New York World, rests the intellectual head of Dr. Charles F. Reed, 56 years old, who has not been able to move hand or foot for twenty-two years.

He lives only in his head, for every joint in his body and his limbs are wasted to stumps. His eyes are sightless, his joints, elbows, wrists, fingers, joints, hips, knees and toes are immovable. The knees are drawn up, the left knee joint is almost thrown from its socket, the right knee is turned far outward, and he cannot turn backward. A white moustache and beard that Rip Van Winkle would have envied cover the lower part of his face.

Dr. Reed is a philosopher, and his cheerful disposition, in spite of the extreme hardship of his lot, has made him the wonder of all who know him. He has lost all his friends and all who learn a lesson in his fortitude, and all who meet the doctor say they go away with new ideas of life and its purpose. He is well read in every branch of literature. Dr. Reed was born in Woburn, Mass., and worked on a farm until he was 25, when he began the study of medicine, which he continued in New York and Cleveland. In 1864 he was in charge of a sanitarium at Kenosha, Wis., and in 1865 he was in charge of a life in the midst of death, first came upon him at Kenosha. He had inherited rheumatism, and contracted malaria in the West.

He was married in 1858, and during all his suffering his wife has remained by his side, and night after night she has held his hand. At first two men were required to lift him. The money saved from a lucrative practice devoted to the relief of the afflicted of the case the doctor invented a kind of derrick, with two arms and hoisting cranks, by means of which his wife could move him from the bed while it is being made. Bands and straps are placed under him and he is raised above the bed. He was brought to New York by his wife in 1868. Before the bones of his spine were affected, and as the trouble slowly worked upward the muscles of the body contracted and compressed his ribs so that at one time he could not breathe. He was brought to New York by his wife in 1868. MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC. The Mad King and His Vocalists.

At 18, King Louis of Bavaria (who included the other day) was frail and slender, fair haired and handsome. At this time he witnessed his first stage representation, Wagner's "Lohengrin," and it fascinated him. He sent for the composer and showed him with favors the costliest kind. This was perhaps the beginning of the mad King's extravagance. Wagner took up the residence in Munich, his neck, and a fortune was spent by the great composer to be produced in magnificent style. He himself made drawings for the scenery, and a fortune was spent by the mad King on costumes and accessories. The courtiers became jealous of the King's devotion to the composer, and Wagner was finally sent away. But he was made rich by Louis's favors, and their friendship never broke.

Then the King said he was going home, but he supposed she knew the mad King's name. He stepped over the side of the boat into the water, which was not more than three feet deep, and calmly waded ashore and walked to his castle. The artist said in the ward of his castle. THE CARICATURE PLANT. A Botanic Development That May Assist Artists and Mimics.

One of the most remarkable plants in the whole vegetable kingdom is that known to botanists as the caricature plant, which has also been named the caricature plant, says the Boston Herald. At first sight, it appears to be a heavy, large-leaved plant with purple blossoms, chiefly remarkable for the light yellow centers of its dark green leaves. When first saw the caricature plant, I was thinking what a sickly, blighted appearance the queer, yellow stains gave it. I was suddenly impressed with the fact that the plant was "making faces" at me. And my first impression was correct. This curious shrub had indeed occupied itself in growing up in ridiculous caricatures of the human face.

A CURIOUS CHURCH ANNEX. Rev. Mr. Rainford's New Method of Preaching New York.

A New York letter to the Buffalo Courier says: As it is only a step or so from Tammany Hall to St. George's Church, the energetic six-foot pastor of St. George's, the Rev. Mr. Rainford, has quite an undertaking on his hands just now. Of course there is nothing else in or about the church. The enterprise that Mr. Rainford has on hand bears some resemblance to the project carried out by Elmiria several years ago by the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher. St. George's ran down a good deal during the latter years of the rectorship of the late Dr. Tyng, who grew old in it, and held it too long. Many of the old parishioners dropped off, and the affairs of the church were in rather a bad way when Tyng was finally retired on full salary. Mr. Rainford believes in new ideas and new methods. He came to New York from Canada, but whether he is a Canadian or an Englishman I do not know. His new project is a large building, a sort of annex to the church, which contains a dispensary, a library, a gymnasium, a school-room, rooms for the aged parishioners dropped off, and the affairs of the church were in rather a bad way when Tyng was finally retired on full salary.

MAKING THINGS LAST. How Girls Can Take Care of Their Husbands & Husbands.

Every housekeeper knows how careful I treatment keeps table linen and household articles, says the Courier. Girls do not always know or remember the great care of their own little possessions will often enable them to do so. When I was a girl I used to see my mother's great care for her things. Her dresses were brushed and folded away carefully, and the slightest spot on them was removed as soon as it was discovered. Her hat was wrapped in an old pocket handkerchief, and she put away in a box as soon as done with. The strings and laces being stretched and rolled out most symmetrically each time. Her gloves were never laid flat in a box, one upon the other, but they were used, the thickest being, mended almost before it had time to show itself. But the thing that impressed me most was the care she bestowed on her ribbons. When making up bows she used to line the upper part of the ribbon with paper, and she never stretched the ribbon from becoming limp and creased, but kept it clean, so that when the bow was made on one side she could turn the ribbon, and the part that had been covered came out looking new and fresh. This girl married and brought up a large family. Her husband was a good man, but he was so heavily, and was naturally successful for he became wealthy. But his property was due quite as much to his wife's care and industry as to his own. It was his in making it.

ORANGE AND CATHOLIC.

An Eye-witness Graphic Description of the Belfast Riot.

The Factory Girls Taking up the Quarrel - They Stopped their Catholic sisters - How at an Instant.

Last night (Wednesday) Belfast was again rioting here and there. They wrecked one hundred houses in the city, two of which they burned. The rioters have broken into several whiskey stores and possessed themselves of the contents. Numbers of men are lying about the gutters drunk. Others, made desperate by drink, are prowling about the streets crying out, "To hell with the Pope." In the various assaults made by the police upon the rioters twenty-five of the latter were severely wounded. The police were ordered to fire ball to ball in the event of any general renewal of the rioting.

Last night a mob of Orangemen made an attack upon the tavern kept by a Catholic named Duffy. The police were promptly called to the scene, and after a stubborn contest, during which they used their clubs and drove the mob away in disorder, the rioters reassembled with increased strength and again attacked Duffy's place, this time overpowering the police and driving them from the place. In the first assault Chief of Police Carr was wounded. He was carried away in a sedan chair to the hospital. When the Orangemen returned to the fight they were accompanied by a large number of factory girls, who goaded or threatened the mob. The police were also present, and the rioters were driven back. The girls were running and everybody was invited to help himself according to his taste. All the barrels of liquor found in stock were carried into the street, lit and left to burn until they broke and liberated their contents. All the furniture was carried out, piled in the center of the roadway and burned to furnish the rioters with fuel during their debauch. Men, youth and girls drank until they fell helpless in the gutters, the girls singing with greater fury during the earlier stages of the riot than the men. The noise, profanity and disorder were terrible. The mob used their work tools for throwing stones, and the rioters were further incited by the shouting of the latter. These rioters after a while congregated around the police station and started to march to the town. They were fired. They then marched down to another tavern. The police hastened to the spot in advance of them and attempted to prevent the march. But they were overpowered and driven away. The mob left in possession treated the tavern as they treated Duffy's, and on the same day broke the fall bars in the street, made a bonfire of the furniture, and finally set fire to the building. The police returned, and this time got the rioters at a time of the mob, whose ranks were depleted by the scores who had fallen away in drunkenness, and extinguished the flames before they could gain any considerable headway. But the officers were unable to drive the rioters from the locality, and they remained and dominated until morning. During the riot the rioters were fired at by the police. The rioters were killed during the riot at Lurgan last night, was a well known local politician. He was killed in the face of a Home Rule mob which was attacking the Orange lodge, and his Orange enemies. During the riot the situation at one time became very dangerous. The rioters were local Orange leader, publicly declared that unless the authorities did their duty he and a thousand armed Orangemen would take charge of the riot. The rioters were the point of carrying out his threat when the military appeared. To day there has been a little show throwing in Lurgan, but otherwise the rioting has been quiet. A number of policemen were so badly injured last night at Lurgan that they are yet in the hospital. Twenty rioters are now in prison arrested in two districts. The rioters named Hart and Mason were arrested to day for the murder of Thomas Gallagher, who was shot last night during the rioting at Lurgan.

When the riot was renewed here this evening, and the riot act was again read, the mob increased in size and the rioting was at its height. The latter first killed one person, one of whom was a woman who was looking out of a tavern window as the fighting. The mob then turned to brick battlement and kept up for twenty minutes. Soldiers are now parading the streets to assist the police in case of emergency.

THE MOB DROVE A FORCE OF 1500 POLICEMEN INTO THE BARRACKS AND THEN ATTACKED THE BUILDING, FIRING REVOLVERS AND STONES AT THE POLICE. THE MOB WAS WITH STONES PRIED UP PAVING STONES AND BROKE THEM INTO SUITABLE SIZES FOR THE USE OF THE RIOTERS. THE POLICE WERE PROMPTLY CALLED TO THE SCENE AND ATTEMPTED TO PREVENT THE MARCH. BUT THEY WERE OVERPOWERED AND DRIVEN AWAY. THE MOB LEFT IN POSSESSION TREATED THE TAVERN AS THEY TREATED DUFFY'S, AND ON THE SAME DAY BROKE THE FALL BARS IN THE STREET, MADE A BONFIRE OF THE FURNITURE, AND FINALLY SET FIRE TO THE BUILDING. THE POLICE RETURNED, AND THIS TIME GOT THE RIOTERS AT A TIME OF THE MOB, WHOSE RANKS WERE DEPLETED BY THE SCORES WHO HAD FALLEN AWAY IN DRUNKENNESS, AND EXTINGUISHED THE FLAMES BEFORE THEY COULD GAIN ANY CONSIDERABLE HEADWAY. BUT THE OFFICERS WERE UNABLE TO DRIVE THE RIOTERS FROM THE LOCALITY, AND THEY REMAINED AND DOMINATED UNTIL MORNING. DURING THE RIOT THE RIOTERS WERE FIRED AT BY THE POLICE. THE RIOTERS WERE KILLED DURING THE RIOT AT LURGAN LAST NIGHT, WAS A WELL KNOWN LOCAL POLITICIAN. HE WAS KILLED IN THE FACE OF A HOME RULE MOB WHICH WAS ATTACKING THE ORANGE LODGE, AND HIS ORANGE ENEMIES. DURING THE RIOT THE SITUATION AT ONE TIME BECAME VERY DANGEROUS. THE RIOTERS WERE LOCAL ORANGE LEADER, PUBLICLY DECLARED THAT UNLESS THE AUTHORITIES DID THEIR DUTY HE AND A THOUSAND ARMED ORANGEMEN WOULD TAKE CHARGE OF THE RIOT. THE RIOTERS WERE THE POINT OF CARRYING OUT HIS THREAT WHEN THE MILITARY APPEARED. TO DAY THERE HAS BEEN A LITTLE SHOW THROWING IN LURGAN, BUT OTHERWISE THE RIOTING HAS BEEN QUIET. A NUMBER OF POLICEMEN WERE SO BADLY INJURED LAST NIGHT AT LURGAN THAT THEY ARE YET IN THE HOSPITAL. TWENTY RIOTERS ARE NOW IN PRISON ARRESTED IN TWO DISTRICTS. THE RIOTERS NAMED HART AND MASON WERE ARRESTED TO DAY FOR THE MURDER OF THOMAS GALLAGHER, WHO WAS SHOT LAST NIGHT DURING THE RIOTING AT LURGAN.

THE RIOT WAS RE-NEWED HERE THIS EVENING, AND THE RIOT ACT WAS AGAIN READ, THE MOB INCREASED IN SIZE AND THE RIOTING WAS AT ITS HEIGHT. THE LATTER FIRST KILLED ONE PERSON, ONE OF WHOM WAS A WOMAN WHO WAS LOOKING OUT OF A TAVERN WINDOW AS THE FIGHTING. THE MOB THEN TURNED TO BRICK BATTLEMENT AND KEPT UP FOR TWENTY MINUTES. SOLDIERS ARE NOW PARADING THE STREETS TO ASSIST THE POLICE IN CASE OF EMERGENCY.

GLADSTONE'S MANIFESTO.

The Grand Old Man Appeals to His Scotch Constituents.

AN ELUQUENT PLEA FOR IRELAND.

Joseph Arch and Other Liberal Appeals for the Home Rule.

SALISBURY FOR THE UNION. LONDON, June 11.—Mr. Gladstone has issued the following manifesto to the electors of Midlothian:

THE PEOPLE AT THE SHAKHILL ROAD MEETING TO-DAY ATTACKED THE POLICE. THE MILITARY WERE SUMMONED AND THE CROWD DISPERSED. IT IS NOW STATED THAT THE MEETING WAS SUMMONED TO DENOUNCE THE POLICE AND ALSO OTHER PERSONS FOR ATTACKING THE HOUSES AND PROPERTY OF PEACEABLE PEOPLE, AND TO URGE UPON THE CITIZENS THEIR DUTY TO DO THE POLITICAL AND RELIGIOUS SENTIMENT OF THE TURBERS OF THE PEACE TO JUSTICE, IRRESPECTIVE OF CREED OR PARTY.

THE FUGITIVE'S FUGITIVE. The fugitive of the name of Gallagher, the Orangeman who was shot and killed during the riot at Lurgan on Tuesday, took place to-day. The funeral procession was led by 100 Catholics and 200 Protestants. A mob of Catholics jeered the mourners and threatened to stop the hearse, but the police held them in check. The political and religious sentiment is leading to dangerous quarrels among women in the factories at Lurgan. At one factory the Protestant females have struck the women of the other factory, and the police are endeavoring to prevent the disturbance of the peace.

HOW ETNA LOOKS IN ERUPTION.

A Sublime and Awful Scene Presented to Tourists.

THE SEA OF MOLTEN FIRE. A letter from Catania, dated May 24th, says: You have probably heard of the eruption of Etna which is going on. I left Catania on Saturday, and came here to see it. We left there about 3 o'clock (six o'clock in English), on Saturday afternoon, and went to Nicolosi, which we reached about 6 o'clock. There were crowds of people going there, but we took a different road and went up much higher than the general crowd. We had a guide with us, and after about three hours' climbing we got within a couple of miles of the crater itself.

The funeral procession was led by 100 Catholics and 200 Protestants. A mob of Catholics jeered the mourners and threatened to stop the hearse, but the police held them in check. The political and religious sentiment is leading to dangerous quarrels among women in the factories at Lurgan. At one factory the Protestant females have struck the women of the other factory, and the police are endeavoring to prevent the disturbance of the peace.

CORRECTION.

We stated in our initial number of the new series of the REPORTER that the "Independent" list for Leeds had been transferred to us. When we wrote that statement negotiations were in progress with that object in view. Since then we have failed to arrange the matter satisfactorily to all parties as there are quite a few of the old subscribers to the REPORTER who wish to continue to take the "Independent" also. It is therefore arranged that there will be no transfer of the list.

Parties can take either paper they wish, and those wishing to take both papers can have them one year for $1.25, in advance. As previously intimated, the old REPORTER subscribers who continued to take the "Independent" are to pay to us; and all those in arrears will please send in the same to us at once.

The second annual picnic will be held at Lake Loyola on Thursday, the 24th inst. Dinner will be served at noon. The Farmersville brass band is one of the attractions billed. The proceeds (voluntary contributions) will be devoted to the benefit of the Misses Mason and Birdsell, evangelists.

Fatal Accident.
On Wednesday last the little son, aged eight years, of G. W. Carpenter, of North Augusta, met with a terribly fatal accident. The boy, full of life and spirits, jumped on a load of manure driven by a neighbor, when a rut or obstruction caused a heavy lurch of the wagon, throwing the poor little fellow off the load. A hind wheel passed over his head, causing almost instant death.

Grain-saver Syndicate Meeting.
A meeting of the Directors of the Addison Steam Thresher Syndicate was held at the residence of Rufus Taplin, Esq., on Saturday evening last, a large number of the shareholders being present. Richard Kerr, President, occupied the chair. The Sec. Treas., R. Taplin, presented a report showing the net earnings to be $528.03, and the expenditure $304, leaving a dividend of $18.40 per $100 share. The report was received as satisfactory. The election of officers and managers for the present season resulted as follows: Rich. Kerr, Pres.; O. P. Arnold, Sec. Treas.; John Lovrin, John C. Blanchard and John Bourne, Managers. The Managers were instructed to put the machine in first-class running order at once, and to engage the necessary help to run the machine during the season. After discussion, it was decided to fix the rates for threshing the same as last year.

Directors' Meeting.

The Directors of the Unionville Fair met at Forth's hotel on Friday last, for the appointment of judges on growing crops and other business. The following were present: Wm. Neilson, Pres.; N. H. Beecher, Vice-Pres.; B. Loverin, Sec.; E. Davis, Treas.; L. M. Shipman, Raney Loncks, John Forth, John M. Keefer, John B. Barry, and Henry Lee, Directors. The minutes of previous meeting being read, the following appointments of judges for growing field crops were made: 1st class, Elijah Bowser and Robt. Sturgeon; 2nd class, George Lee and John Johnston; 3rd class, Jno. Dickey and Robt. Armstrong. On motion, Messrs. Beecher and Davis were appointed a committee on printing large posters. On motion, the Secretary was instructed to ask for sealed tenders from the different brass bands in this section, for their services during one and a half days of the fair. Bands tendering must state number of players, and will have to defray all their own expenses excepting admission to the grounds. The Secretary reported the receipt of a number of special prizes. It was agreed that as soon as all the special prizes are arranged, they will appear in the REPORTER, and in the Advance Courier. The REPORTER was adopted as the official organ of the society. All the business meetings of the Directors will be reported in this paper, and each of the Directors will be furnished with a copy for the year.

CURIOUS AND SENSATIONAL.

She Must have been Tongue-Tied.
A divorce case is soon to come up in a Maine court, the outgrowth of a trifling quarrel between a man and his wife twenty-five years ago. Since that time, although living together, neither has spoken to the other, until a few weeks ago, when in the excitement of house-cleaning the woman said to the man "Where's the nails?" The man looked at the woman calmly and did not answer.

Gabriel Wasn't Welcome.

Over twenty years ago there lived in Tipton, Ia., two boys, who could distance Peck's bad boy and give him four miles the start. At that time there was much talk of the end of the world and many timid people were in an agony of fear lest the last day would come in the night and catch them in their shortstop clothes, their hair on tins and their ascension robes in the wash. John and George, the two juvenile angels in question, concluded to add to the interest and see how much truth there was in the assertion of some of the overly pious that Gabriel couldn't spring trumps on them too quick; so they procured an enormous gourd, scraped it out quite thin, and carved the most hideous face upon it that ever was sketched by a mortal hand. They put a candle inside of it, attached it to a kite, and when darkness enveloped that portion of the earth they betook themselves to a corn patch in the centre of the town, lit the candle and sent the infernal thing aloft. It looked like a drunken comet with the face of the devil. Stir up the town? In ten minutes there was music by the entire orchestra. Women fainted, children cried, and men prayed who had no idea they knew how. Such an awful banner as that in the sky could only mean that time was but time would proceed to go into bankruptcy in the immediate future. Men confessed their sins and women their frailties, and there was enough scandal afloat in fifteen minutes to amuse London, if any one had time to attend to it. An old bald-headed deacon who had often prayed for the final winding up, was sorry for it, and down through the trees his bald head went glimmering, as he sought safety from the wrath to come. He was pulled out of a hollow log next day and confessed thief of church moneys. When the awful uproar was at its height the kite string broke, and the boys went into the country a few days for their health.

A Vicksburg Story of Bravado.

"Talking about nerve," said one of the veterans, on his way to attend the Army of the Tennessee Reunion, "let me tell you a little army story. I was at Vicksburg. When the work there got down to pretty close range, the Johnnies showed us what kind of sharpshooters they had. They were clever fellows, those sharpshooters, and they would pick a man off as quick as a wink if he once showed his head up. They were always on the lookout for that kind of game, and even at night it was not safe for a man to get up on top of the earthworks. In our company was an Irishman, Tim McCarthy, and of all the dare-devils he was the worst I ever saw. He was passionately fond of smoking, and if anybody would give him a cigar at night he would light it and climb up on the works and puff away. Of course the ashes would obscure the fire, but every once in a while he would knock the ashes off, leaving a bright light for the sharpshooters to aim at. At first I noticed that with all his dare-deviltry there was something of method in his madness, for he would never climb up until the ashes had formed over the fire. Then when he knocked the ashes off he would hold the cigar at arm's length. Whenever he did this, crack, crack, went the Johnnies, and we could hear the bullets whistling over our heads. But after a while he became so reckless that he would knock the ashes off his cigar while holding it in his mouth. Nobody ever saw such nerve as that man had, but not a bullet ever touched him, though several went through his hat and marked his clothing."

Modern Progress.

Let the studious mind look back one hundred years and see the improvements in the methods of work, and the rapid progress of the century in the mechanical arts will be apparent. In 1793 Eli Whitney, a mere lad in obscure circumstances, was led to the idea of inventing the cotton gin, a machine for picking the cotton from the seed. For some time he labored with but little success, but being of a determined turn of mind he eventually mastered it. The result, as we all know, was to make cotton king and to create a great source of wealth to the United States. Again, Fulton's application of steam to navigation, in 1807, deserves special mention as one of the greatest inventions of the age; and although the first steam boat went up the Hudson at the rapid rate of four miles an hour, yet in those days it was a good model, and had many points of excellence still cling to by our modern ship builders. Morse's invention of the electric telegraph (1835), although instantly proved upon from time to time, was certainly a mark of great progress. While the inhalation of ether, as a preventative of pain, introduced by modern Wills and Jackson, was not of so much importance to the commercial world, yet it can well truly be called the greatest boon ever derived by science upon the human race. Not perhaps no invention of the present century has produced such wide spread social and business changes as that of steam locomotion. While the electric light, the telephone, the phonograph and the microphone can truly be termed the four new wonders of the world, there are many other inventions of note that could well be spoken of. But what are all these compared with the new Davis Vertical-feed Sewing Machine? This new machine entirely dispenses with the old under-feed, and consequently entirely obviates the necessity of basting. It has a less number of working parts, and is therefore the easiest running and most durable. It is fine in appearance, and for range of work, in light or heavy goods, we boldly defy competition. J. L. GALLAGHER, agent.
