JUMPS FROM HAY MOW TO TERRIBLE DEATH

Edwardsburg Farmer Impaled on End of Pitchfork.

Impaled on the splintered end of a pitchfork, Roland Martin a well known and highly respected farmer residing two and one half miles south of Spencerville, met a terrible death in a barn on his farm last-week.

Tuesday afternoon Mr. Martin went into his mow and threw down quantity of has for his horses and cattle. The fork he used was broken, the handle having been splintered as though run over by a heavy waggon. When he finished his chores Mr Martin threw the fork into the bay below it landing in an upright position. He then went to the other end of the mow to get some article and returning jumped into the hay below apparently not thinking of what he had done with the fork. His body landed fairly on the broken handle of the pitchfork, the abdomen being pierced in two or three places. The cries of the injured man attracted the attention of members of his family and he was removed to his home close Medical assistance was soon at his bedside, and everything pessible was done to alleviate his sufferings, but he

When is it spring? When spirits rise, Pure crocus-birds, where the snow dies when children play outdoors till dark; When the sap trickles up the bark; When bits of blue sky flit and sing, Playing at birds—then is it spring!

When is it spring? When the bee hums; When through the open window comes The breeze, and summer license claims To swing and toss the picture frames; When the walk dries; the robins call; The brown hens doze by the sunny wall. One foot drawn up to warm, or sing, With half-filmed eyes—then is it spring!

The Persian spends hours in the "hammams" (Turkish baths), which are very handsome buildings decor-ated with tiles and embellished with numerous exhortations as to the value of cleanliness. The smallest value of cleanliness. The smallest village in Persia has its hammam, and bathing is almost a religious function. When the hot room and massage are finished the Persian is shaved, and the whole top of his head is likewise shaved, though the hair over the ear is left and allowed to grow down to the neck. This strange coiffure has a religious meaning, for the two locks are meant for the angel of death to hold when he carries the believer to paradise.

ANTIQUES

The word "Nankin" is a name so long associated with pottery ware that it may justly be claimed as an antique To many the name would have significance only in regard to color, the Nankin blue of the Oriental potter, the tender azure of a sky just washed by gentle April rains," as Longfellow so beautifully describes it; to others it would mean the rice-bowls, the gingerjars, and the miscellanea of the Celestial home.

Nankin porcelain, and Nankin blue have been names to conjure with in the centuries from the tenth onward, not only so long as they remained ex-clusively Oriental products, but long afterwards, when the Delft wares of Holland were made in such vast quantities as reproductions. The large trade in porcelain between China and Europe was first begun in Holland. Patterns of the blue-willow, blue Nankin and the blue onion-later called the "Danish"—were the order of the day, in its first period of its introduc-day, in its first period of its introduc-tion, and it is worthy of note that these same designs are popular dec-erations to this day.

About the middle of the seventeeth century the Chinese were rigorously pushing their trade with Europe, and had then realized the necessity of pro-viding articles and forms appropriet viding articles and forms appropriate to the manners and customs of western life. Prior to this time, plates were made like saucers and cups were without handles, and such articles as tureens, vegetable dishes, sauce boats, rim plates, and handled teacups were to the Oriental, and must of necessity be provided if the volume of trade was to be increased, and the hold upon European markets maintained.

Applied embossments, to serve as handles and knobs, took a definite form; tureens were fitted with masks and grotesque heads of animals for these purposes; cups, jugs, etc.. re-ceived handles formed like twisted branches, springing from the body and continuing in foliated sprays over the surface, forming more or less ornamental designs, sometimes to be carried further by other methods of decora-

The Nankin porcelain originated in the town of King-te-Chin, in the Pro-vince of Keang-Su, and obtained its name from the fact that the shipping port of this district was Nanking. King-te-Chin had been the chief centre of the porcelain trade for many years. The importance of the city and the extent of its porcelain industry may be guessed from the fact of about one million people being employed. and three thousand firing kilns being operated. Longfellow thus writes of it in his "Keramos":

"And, bird-like, poised on balanced wing, Above the town of King-te-tching, A burning town, or seeming so, Three thousand furnaces that glow Incessantly, and fill the air With smoke uprising gyre on gyre, And painted by the lurid glare Of jets and flashes of red fire."

Fangs of a Snake.

Examine the finest cambric needle under a high power microscope and its point will look rough and blunt. A snake's fang similarly inspected an pears perfectly smooth and sharp. In each fang is a groove which connects by a tube with a sort of bag—the poison gland—just beneath the eye. When the snake strikes a muscular contraction simultaneously forces the venom out of the bag through the tube and along the groove into the flesh of the person attacked. Snake poison, generally speaking, has two distinct effects. It destroys in some mysterious way the fibrin of the blood, thereby causing the latter to behave as if di-luted and to filter through the walls of the veins and arteries. In addition, it paralyzes the nerve centres and so affects the heart, sometimes bringing death by suffocation.

Origin of the Clearing House.

In 1775 the bankers of London rent ed a house in Lombard street and fitted it with tables and desks for the use of their clerks as a place where bills, notes, drafts and other commer cial paper might be exchanged with-out the trouble of personal visits of employees to all the metropolitan banks. Transfer tickets were used, and by means of this simple plan transactions involving many millions were settled without a penny changing nands. The Bank of England and all other important banks in London are members of the Clearing House Asso ciation. The first clearing house in the United States was established by the associated banks of New York in 1853.

THE CURIOUS BANANA TREE.

Plant That Will Practically Grow While You Wait.

If a good sized, healthy banana tree is cut off a few feet above the ground dur-ing the wet season the trees will not die, but nine times out of ten will a new shoot from the centre of the trunk and will grow fast enough to make up for lost time, for within forty-eight hours t will rear waving green leaves triumph antly above the severed trunk.

The secret lies in the fact that the trunk of the banana tree is not hard and The secret lies in the fact that the trunk of the banana tree is not hard and woody like other trees, but is really composed of undeveloped leaves wrapped tightly together in a spiral form. When the tree grows these rolled up leaves push upward and merely unroll. Thus no time is lost in forming buds and growing leaves as to ordinary trees. When the trunk is cut off it doesn't interfere with the growth of the leaves, because they are always pushing up from the centre of the stalk. If you will roll a sheet of paper tightly and push against one end you will see exactly how the leaves are pushed up from the trunk of the banana tree, and if you cut the roll in two you will find that it doesn't prevent you from pushing out the centre of the roll as before.

Although the banana tree repairs an injury so rapidly and well, the shoot formed from the cut stalk seldom bears fruit or flowers. As these shoots are taller and stronger than the original trees, however, they are much better adapted to withstand wind and storms, and the natives frequently cut the banana trees in order to force them to produce the strong, fruitless prowth and to serve as windbreaks for other crops.

COMPULSION CARRIED BY A BIG VOTE

Second Reading Passed Bri tish House-328 for to 36 Against.

LLOYD GEORGE

Munitions Minister Makes Impassioned Speech for Measure.

London Cable.-The House of Commons to-night passed the second reading of the military service bill for immediate general military compul-zion. A motion by Richard D. Holt, Radical, to reject the bill was previously defeated by 32s to 36.

The debate on the bill developed no important new points. David Lloyd George, the Minister of Munitions, presented strong arguments in its favor, and declared that he would rather be driven out of the Liberal party, and even out of political life than to have upon his conscience the re-ponsibility of refusing the demands for men, which might constitute the difference between defeat and victory. Sir John Simon, the former Home

Secretary, in opposing the bill, reiterated that it was not alone a question for the military to decide. There was no evidence, he said, that the bill would really add to Great Britain's national force and strength. It would create a maximum amount of hard ship with minimum results.

Nobody who had heard Mr. Lloyd George to-day, he commented, would suppose that he was the same man who a year ago emphasized the part Britain must play in the economics of Arthur Henderson, President of the Board of Education, and leader of the Leborites, in winding up the debate for the Government, said that in the secret session the Government had convinced a majority of the House that the military situation required more men, and the Government had decided that 200,000 was the number that could be spared from industry. The Government had not allowed the general staff to override its views, and he was personally convinced that the alternative to conscription was defeat. LLOYD GEORGE URGES COMPCL-

SION. Speaking on a motion to reject the military service bill, David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, said that he would rather be driven out of the Liberal party, even out of political life altogether, than have upon his conscience the responsibility of refusing the demands of the military authorities for men, which might make all the difference between defeat and victory.

Those who asserted that if the war lested until 1917 the nation could not "stay the course," were both inaccurate and injudicious. He had consulted the leading financiers of the country, and they had not the least hesitation in affirming that, however long the war lasted, it could outstay anything Germany could do, but in any case it was wise to apply its full power forthwith.

Mr. Lloyd George argued that un-til Russia had completed her equipment so as to employ her immense reserves of men it was essential that France and Great Britain put every available man in the field. Germany, said, was well aware of the danger of this country failing to take the utmost share it possibly could of this year's burdens immediately, and he ventured to say that the passage of this bill would be in itself about the worst news the German General Staff

Mr. Lloyd George, pointing out that all the allies were defending their countries by compulsory service, ar-gued that if Great Britain had summoned men to her colors throughout the Empire in the same proportion as France there would have been twice as many men in service. He appreciated fully Great Britain's re-sponsibilities in financing the allies and in maintaining trade as well as the transport difficulties, but taking everything into account Great Britain had still a substantial margin of available men, and he wanted both Germany and the Entente allies to know that if it would constitute the difference between liberty and sub-mission, this country would summon the whole of that margin to the col-ors to defend itself.

The Minister ridiculed the idea that conscription involved unrest among the working classes and protested against the notion that the working cople were to be regarded as a sort of doubtful neutrals

"The elemental virtues," he declared, "knew no class, and patriot ism is one of the greatest of them.

Replying to the opponents of bill, who had predicted that the sults of the measure would be insignificant, he could tell the House that at the battle of Ypres one division of fresh troops to relieve the exhausted men on either side would have con-clusively decided the issue of the

"The working classes." said Mr. Lloyd George. "know that in struggle for liberty they would lose more by Prussian domination than any other class in the country. The group system of recruiting un-der the Derby scheme was reopened to-day by the War Office to give unattested married men and unmarried men a chance to enlist before general enscription goes into effect.

U. S. Diplomat Arrested for Share in Revolt.

London Cable-The story of the uprising in Enniscorthy is similar to that in Dublin, but it was carried out on a smaller scale. At 2 o'clock Thursday morning 200 Sinn Feiners seized the Athenaeum, one of the principal buildings of the town, and converted it into a headquarters for the insur-gent staff, welle other forces guarded and patrolled all the thoroughfares.

At 6 o'clock ammunition was served out to the rebel recruits, and the Republican flag was hoisted on head-quarters. The telegraph and telephone lines were cut and the railway tracks torn up, thus severing communication with the outside world. A proclama tion was issued that the town was in the hands of the Republican forces; all the public houses were closed and business was stopped except the bak-eries and such work as was required for the rebels.

Fighting began between 7 and 8 o'clock. The insurgents stormed the constabulary barracks, but failed to take it, and several other attempts to capture the barracks met with no greater success. populace, terrified, was obliged to keep indoors.

The situation was the same on Fri-day. But on Saturday, food becoming scarce, the insurgents scoured country for miles around. They seized the post-office and police barracks at Ferns, six miles from Enniscorthy.

It became known to day that James M. Sullivan, of New York, former United States Minister to San Domingo, was arrested in Dublin in connec-tion with the Sinn Fein revolt, and that he was at once transported to England, where he is now held. The arrest of the American ex-diplomat had been kept closely se-

Enemy Plans for an Offensive Collapse.

Petrograd Cable, via London Cable. Since the fall of Trebizond, the three Russian groups in Asia Minor have been making steady progress toward Baibert, Erzingan and Diarbekr, and it seems highly probable that these three objectives of the Caucasus armies will be reached in the near future.

A majority of the Turkish forces and reinforcements are concentrated against the armies of the Russian centre prepared to defend Irzingan, and the next important engagement probably will be fought in this neighbor-hood. A remarkable feature of the Russian operations in this theatre has been the close co-operation and the even character of the advance achievbeen the close co-operation and the even character of the advance achieved by separate army groups from the Black Sea coast to Bitlis. Although separated by high mountain ranges, and embarrassed by all sorts of topographical difficulties, the Russians have succeeded in conducting their movements in perfect unison, defeating all Turkish designs to flank and cut off the sea coast forces from those operating elsewhere.

The daring Turkish plans for a resumption of the offensive and the recapture of lost territory in Armenia, now appear to have collapsed, and the Turkish campaign seemingly has become purely a defensive one. The sole aim of the Turks at present apparently is to defend the three strongly formers.

While German Efforts Were All Failures.

Paris Cable,-The new French position at Le Mort Homme, which resulted from the gains made in yesterday's attack, was enlarged and consolidated last night. GOING HOME.

Duke of Connaught to Leave Canada This Year.

Ottawa, Report.—H.R.H. the Duke of Connaugnt, Governor-General of Canada since September, 1911, will, it is understood, terminate his sojourn in Canada Fall and return to England.

A new Governor-General will be named about Midayimmer.

The Duke of Connaught assumed office in Canada on the 18th of October, 1911, just after the change of Government, having been appointed in March of that year. He has performed the duties of his office in a manner which has won general commendation in Canada, and has entered into the democratic splitt of the Dominion with a readiness equalled by few of his predecessors.

It was the intention that his Royal Highness would return to England in 1914, and Frince Alexander of Teck, brother of her Majesty the Queen, was nominated as his successor. On the outbreak of the war the departure of the Duke was deferred indefinitely, and Prince Alexander went to the front. Since that time his Royal Highness has, by his counsel, given most valuable assistance to the Dominion, in all matters pertaining to the war, and has displayed the keenest interest in all that Canada has done ward the successful prosecution of the wer. He is now completing his fifth year as Governor-General of Canada, ordinarily a full gubernatorial term.

It is not expected that the arrangements under which Prince Alexander of Teck was to have succeeded the Duke of Connaught will be adhered to, under the present circumstances, but that the next appointee will be a personage not named hitherto.

TOWNSHEND'S LAST MESSAGE

Did Everything Possible Before They Surrendered.

Kitchener Paid High Tribute to Their Bravery.

London table .- In the House of Lords to-day Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, the Secretary for War, warmly eulogized General Townshend and the defenders of Kut-el-Amara, and read General Townshend's last despatch, which is as tollows: "We are pleased to know that we have done our duty and recognize that have done our duty and recognize that cur situation is one of the fortunes of war. We thank you, General Gorringe (commander of the British relief army), and all ranks of the Tigris force, for the great efforts you have made to save us."

Lord Kitchener said he was glad of the opportunity to pay tribute to Gen-Townshend and his troops, se dogged determination and eral courage had earned for srlendid them so honorable a record.

After a series of brilliantly-fought engagements, continued Lord Kitch-ener, General Townshend decided to hold the strategically important posi-tion at Kut-el-Amara, and it would not be forgotten that his dispositions for the defence of the place were so excellent that the Turks, notwithstanding their numerical superiority, were not able to penetrate his lines.
The House would not fail to realize, the War Minister believed, how tense was the strain upon these troops, which for more than twenty weeks held their positions under conditions of abnormal climatic difficulty and on rations calculated for protraction to the farthest period until, as it proved, imminent starvation compelled their capitulation.

Gen. Townshend and his troops in their honorable captivity, added Lord Kitchener, would have the satisfaction of knowing that in the opinion of their comrades, which was shared by the House and the country, they did all that was humanly possible to resist to the last, and their surrender reflected no discredit on the record of the British and Indian armies.

Every effort had been made, said Lord Kitchener, to relieve the beleaguered garrison, and adverse ele-nents alone were responsible for the lack of success. Constant rain and the consequent floods had not only impeded the advance, but had compelled, in place of a turning move ent, direct attack upon an impossibly narrow front. No praise would appear extravagant for the troops upon Generals Lake and Gorringe, and that they did not reap the fruit of their courage and devotion was solely due to cir-cumstances which fought against them. A large reinforced concrete pon-toon is working successfully as a landing stage in an Australian forry. Children Cry for Fletcher's

German Appeals For Peace a Sign of the End?

Lord Robert Cecil Dealing with Teuton Expressions of Peaceful Desires, Says Entente Allies Cannot Stop Until Aim is Achieved-Pope Sends an Appeal for Peace

LONDON, May 8.-Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, and Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in a statement given to the Associated Press, deals with the charges against Great Britain and Germany's avowed desire for peace as contained in the German reply to the note of the United States on submarine warfare.

After recalling alleged inhumane practices by Germany, through employment of submarines, Zeppelins, poisoned gas, and high-explosive shells, Lord Robert, on the issue of peace says: "Of the German peace overtures, if such they are to be called, I will say little. It was only in last December that their Chancellor declared that we believed it to be in our interests to attribute falsely to them peace proposals. Yet the Cerman Government now says that twice within the last faw months. last few months Germany has an-nounced before the world her readiness to make peace. Which is the

'It may be that the Germans want peace. If so, it is because they fear defeat. It may be only that they want to appear peaceful.

"For us it matters not. Our atti-tude, at any rate, is unchanged. We drew the sword unwillingly. We shall sheathe it gladly, but we should be untrue to our trust, we should be betraying civilization, if we abandoned our task until we have re-established in Europe the supremacy of law, the sanctity of treaties, and the right of all nations, great and small, to live their lives, to fulfil their destinies, free from the intolerable menace of Prussian militarism."

The statement is a defence of the British blockade on the sea. In re-ference to the German claim of the ference to the German claim of the British intention to starve millions of women and children, "who by their sufferings will force the victorious armies of the central powers into ignominious capitulation," Lord Robert quotes remarks of the German Chancellor last month in the Reichstag, in which the declaration was made that Germany had sufficient food for all with a surplus, and which made that Germany had sumcient food for all with a surplus, and which concluded: "We have not run short of anything in the past, nor shall we run short of anything in the future."

Statements by Prince Bismarck and Count Caprivi, dealing with the rights of belligerents to cut off the food supplies of any enemy, are also contained in the communication as a defence of the British stand.

Pope Seeks Peace. WASHINGTON, May 8 .- A new appeal for peace from Pope Benedict to President Wilson was delivered at the White House Saturday by the Papal Delegate, Monsignor Giovanni Bonzano. The Pope urged the Pre-sident to maintain his neutrality and to do his utmost by mediation to bring peace to Europe. Coming only 24 hours after the German note, in which similar hints appear, officials decided that the message was based on appeals from the Central Empires.

The President did not see Monsignor Bonsano, and it is unlikely that he will heed either the appeal of the Pope or the obscure hints of the German Government. He notified the belligerents early in the war that he was ready to act as mediator on the request of any one of them, but he has refused to interfere of his own initiative or on suggestions from out-

The President read with careful attention Sunday the portion of the note touching on peace. Unusual sig-nificance was attached to that part of the note because it was taken to indithe note because it was taken to indi-cate officially that recent speeches of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg before the Reichstag were intended as notices to the world that Germany was ready for peace on certain terms. The note says: "The German Government, conscious of Germany's strength, twice within the last few months announced before the world months announced before the world its readiness to make peace on a basis safeguarding Germany's vital interests, thus indicating it is not Germany's fault if peace is still withheld from the nations of Europe.

Wheat and Flour. It takes about four and a half bushels of wheat to make a parrel of flour, but different wheats vary from this estimate. A hard wheat produces more flour to the bushel than a soft wheat. Generally speaking, a bushel of wheat will yield from 70 to 75 per cent of flour of different grades, distributed about as follows: Patent flour, 55 to 60 per cent; bakers' flour, 8 to 10 per cent; red dog, 5 per cent, making approxi-mately 70 to 75 per cent of flour and leaving 25 to 30 per cent of feedstuffthat is bran, shorts etc. -

INSECT MARVELS.

What the Hop Aphie Unchecked Would Do In One Year. Few persons, writes James Buckland in a report of the Smithsonian institution, realize how enormous is the num ber of insect species or how amazing is their power of multiplication. The number of insect species is greater by far than that of the species of all other living creatures combined. More than 300,000 have been described, and probably twice that number remain to be examined. Virtually all living animals, as well as most plants, supply food for these incomputable hordes. The fecun-dity of certain insect forms is astound-

Riley once computed that the progeny of the hop aphis, which sees thirteen generations born to it in a single year, would, if unchecked to the end of the twelfth generation, multiply to the in-conceivable number of ten sextillions of individuals. Supplementing that cal-culation, Forbush says that if this brood were marshaled in line, ten to the inch, it would extend to a point so sunk in the profundity of space that light from the head of the procession traveling at the rate of 184,000 miles a second, would take 2,500 years to reach

Kirkland has computed that in eight years the progeny of one pair of gypsy moths could destroy all the foliage in the United States. A Canadian ento-mologist declares that in one season the descendants of a pair of potato bugs would, if unchecked, number 60,-

The voracity of insects is almost as astounding as their power of reproduction. The daily ration in leaves of a caterpillar is equal to twice its own weight. If a horse were to eat as much he would require a ton of hay every twenty-four hours. Forbush says that a certain flesh eating larva will con-sume in twenty-four hours 200 times its original weight. A human child, to do as well, would have to eat in the first day of its life 1,500 pounds of beef.

Trouvelot, who made a special study of the subject, affirms that the food taken by a single silkworm in fifty-six days equals 86,000 times its original weight at hatching. What destruction this one insect would cause if even a one-hundredth part of its eggs ever hatched! The facts show how great is the value to man of the insect eating

AUSTIN G. L. TRIBUTE, EDITOR AND PROP

The Town Hall a Fire Trap

Seemingly, everyone agrees that the Athens Town Hall is a very precarious place to spend an evening. Now that the people realize how much chance there would be of getting out of the auditorium in case of a fire, they will not care to go there very often in search of amusement. The public is long suffering, but its temperament is something to reckoned with. The people murmur first; then they storm. Powerful indeed are they when their voices are raised in unison. They demand an assurance of safety. Is it not

The town hall, the capacity of which is about 700, is certainly not provided with adequate fire escapes. The two fire-escape ladders are placed in such a position that they are practically useless. An acrobat might use them if not excited, but women and children would certainly have to jump. Without a fire-brigade, and without an officer of the law to enforce some kind of order, what would happen to the audience in case of fire? The undertaker, provided he were not in the hall, would enjoy a period of increased prosperity.

It is not practicable to train the audience to a fire drill. In case of fire, an audience must have easy exits or it goes mad with fright. A trained fire brigade with ladders would be able to save many. There is no prospect of Athens ever having such a brigade; so what is the alternative?

Just this . The town hall must be provided with adequate fire escapes. It is better to bankrupt the town than to mairtain such a well-prepared opportunity for a holocaust.

Co-operation is the foundation of a good home paper. The city dailies, even, do not depend on their reportorial staffs for personal items. These items are sent in by people who wish to honor their visitors. Pretence aside, there is much gratification in the fact that the newspaper has reported one's movements. The number of one's movements. people who are coming closer in touch with the Reporter is growing. The county newspaper bas a different field to its larger brother of the city. The daily is full of national questions, fearsome tragedies, and things of extraordinary import, while the home paper deals with questions and with people nearer the heart than the most onal story ever featured mighty metropolitan edition.

"Speculation, I suppose?"
"Yes; sure thing at first and then "The usual story."

The lawyer thought deeply. Enderby watched him in terrible anxiety. It was he who finally broke the silence "You know that Texas land I have?"

"It may be worth a great deal of money in a short time

"I have investigated it," said Beatty, "for some of my clients who have holdings there. It is worth nothing now, but it is possible, if the railroad project goes through, that it may ventually sell for a good round sum. "Yes, and if it is worth anything my

"If you will get me out of this I will give you a deed to the land." "As a fee?" asked the lawyer coolly, his eyes very bright and hard.

"I hadn't thought of it that way." faltered Enderby. "I meant it as restitution, to pay back what I had-

"Well, that has saved your life, Enderby. If you had offered me that money to compound a felony, by heaven I would have kicked you out of the office. But if you are willing to deed that land to me to hold in trust and if anything is realized out of it to pay it I'll try to get you out."

"I am glad to do it," said Enderby earnestly. "And whatever you are going to do, judge, will have to be done quickly. The bank examiners will be here tomorrow, and I can't cover it up

"How much money will there be in the vaults when you close tonight?"
"I don't know exactly, possibly $60,-

"Why, of course. I can take every-thing in the bank."

"Yes," said Enderby, producing a bulky package of bills, "here it is."
The lawyer took the package, counted the bills methodically, satisfying himself that the full amount had been handed to him.

"It's all right," he said. "Now the deed for this land." "Here it is," said Enderby again, handing the paper to him.

"Good," said Beatty after properly examining it. "Now you go home, don't come down to the bank in the morning, get sick, go to bed, keep

The next morning, very early indeed—about 6 o'clock, in fact—the officers and directors of the Home Savings bank, except the president, who was ill and confined to his bed, were summoned peremptorily to meet immediately at the law office of Judge Beatty, the leading attorney of the town.

The character of the messages each received was such as to bring them all there without delay, some of them coming without waiting for the formality of breakfast even.

"Gentlemen." said Judge Beatty when they were all assembled, "I have news of a most distressing character to communicate to you as officers and directors of the Home Savings bank." "We are not all here yet," said Fow-ler, the vice president. "Mr. Enderby, our president, is ill." "I know it. He won't be here, and it is because of that fact that I took the liberty of asking you to meet me here hefore the bank opened."

"What evidence have we got of that?" asked the vice president.

"But aren't we all compounding a felony ?" asked Director Williams. "Well," answered the lawyer, "I am afraid, if you ask for a legal opinion on that point, that we are. For my part I don't mind telling you frankly that I am doing it to save the deposi-fors in this bank." "Mr. Vice President," said a director, "I move you that we accept Judge one of the directors.

"Leave Enderby to me," said Judge Beatty. "He is suffering enough now, and I think he has had a lesson that will last him. I believe that he will pay back all that he took, too, but that's in the future. Good morning. gentlemen."

"Now," said the judge to himself after they had departed as he sat down at the desk and stared at the Texas land deed-which, to anticipate, did finally bring enough to cover the defalcation—"I certainly broke the law of the land. Have I transgressed the moral law, or have I not? I have undoubtedly saved Enderby; I have saved the small depositors; I have saved the bank. Has the end in this instance justified the means, I wonder?"

Lesson vii. "Lo. We Turn to the Gentiles." Acts 13: 13-52.

Commentary.-I. The Apostles in An tioch of Pisidia (vs. 13-15.) 13. Paul and his company-Paul now become the central figure in this group. We note that when the church at Antiech sent forth the two apostles on this journey, they were spoken of as "Barnabas and Saul," but after the judgment that came upon Elymas and the conversion of Sergius Paulus through Paul's ministry, Paul became the leader and is henceforward recognized as such. The apostles sailed in northwesterly direction to Perga, capital of the province of Pamphylia. Perga was situated on the southern coast of Asia Minor, about midway between the east and west extremities of the coast-line. Pamphylia contained a great variety of inhabitants, as it was the dividing region between the East and the West. The record does not state whether the apostles preached in Perga at this time or not, but they on their return visit (14: 25.) John departing from them returned to Jerusalem—This was John Mark, the writer of the second Gospel. No reason is assigned for his departure, and Paul was not pleased at his course (15: 38.) It has been conjectured that his meth-er in Jerusalem needed him or that he was afraid of the unhealthful climate or that he shrank from the hardships incident to missionary work in Pamphylia and Pisidia. These, however, are mere conjectures, and we learn that later John Mark was ready for missionary work (15: 37-40.) Paul speaks of him with tender affection in Col. 4: 10 and 2 Tim. 4: 11.

14. Antioch in Pisidia—Antioch lay of Perga. It is thought that it may have been on this journey that Paul was in perils of robbers (2 Cor. 11: 26.) It was a mountainous region and was infested by brigands. Antioch in Pisidia was built by Seleucus and was one of the sixteen Antiochs which he founded, and named after his father. Synagogue-Though he is the apostle of the Gentiles, it is ever to the syna-gogue that Saint Paul first finds his ay. For the law of Moses ought to a better schoolmaster to bring men to Christ than the law of nature .-Cam. Bib. There was but one synagogue nere and both Jews and Gengogue nere and both Jews and Gentiles attended its services, though the Gentiles who came were probably Stephen's, delivered before the Santhose who were inclined toward Judahler in. It was a brief, historical ism. Sat down—As ordinary worship-pers. 15. The law and the prophets— It became the practise of the Jews to read a portion of the Pentateuch, or the law, each Sabbath and also a se-lection from the phophets. Rulers of the synagogue—Those who had charge of the synagogue service. Sent unto them—The rulers observed the pre-sence of the strangers and noticed that they were dignified and devoted

II. Paul's discourse (vs. 16-41). Paul arose in his place and, beckoning with his hand for the attention of the audience, addressed them by the honorable title, "Men of Israel." He related the early history of the Jewish race and declared that Jesus, who sprang from the lineage of David, was the Messiah. He told of the preaching of John the Baptist and of the hatred of the Jews toward Jesus, who had been unjustly put to death. God raised him from the dead and salvation was proclaimed in His name to all the world. Paul warned the congregation of the consequences of rejecting Jesus.

111. The effect of Paul's preaching

(vs. 42-52), 42. As they went out, they besought (R. V.)—The best manuscripts do not include the words Jews and Gentiles. The meaning seems to be that when the apostles were leav-ing the synagogue, there were those who requested them to give them another discourse on the subject that had just been presented to them. They were eager to hear the gospel. 43. Jews and religious preselytes followed— Their hearts were touched by Paul's message, and Paul and Barnabas en-couraged them to give heed to the convictions they had received. The grace of God had been extended so far to them that they were hungering after righteousness. If they continued to seek the Lord, they would find Him in His saving power. 44. Came almost the whole city-The preaching of the gos pel had aroused great interest and an excellent opportunity came for the excellent opportunity came for the further declaration of the truth. 45. The Jews ... Spake against those things—The Jews were envious when they saw that the multitudes were in terested in the apostles' preaching, and undertook to turn the people against the new doctrine. They could not bear to hear the declaration that Gentiles were included in the plan of sal-46. Waxed bold--Paul and Barnabas were not intimidated by the rage of their opposer, but were inspired by the Holy Spirit to speak forth the word with greater plainness and boldness. First...spoken to you As the Jews were God's special people, the gospel was to be offered first to them. Ye put it from you—The language shows that the Jews of Antioch rudely and violently thrust from them the offers of mercy. Judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life—While they thought that they alone, of all tions, were worthy of eternal life, their conduct they declared that they were unworthy, since they had reject ed Christ, the only Saviour. Everlast ing life belongs to both worlds; it has a place in those who are saved re, and it reaches out into eternity of turn to the Gentiles—The apostles that their duty to Jews was done and the way was fully opened to proclaim the gospel directly to the Gentiles. 47. The Lord commanded us-The command to which the apostles referred is found in Isa. 49. 6. Thee—The Messiah. Unto the ends of the earth—Jesus came as a Saviour to all nations. 48. The Gentiles... were glad—The gcspel came as good news to them. They appreci-ated the great blessing that had come as good news to them. They appreciated the great blessing that had come to them and rejoiced. Glorified the of the truth. For all their hardships word of the Lord—They readily accepted the word and rejoiced in it.

They honored it by conforming their lives to it. As many as were ordained to eternal life believed —This expression is in contrast to the one in verse 46, applying to the Jews who had judged themselves unworthy of eternal life by rejecting Jesus. Those who were disposed to receive eternal life through Jesus Christ believed and were converted. 49. Published throughout all the region—The apostles proclaimed the gospel and those who were converted aided greatly in making it known.

50. Devout and honorable women—

50, Devout and honorable women— It is noted in the history of these times that many pagan women of the higher ranks were predisposed to-ward Judaism.—Whedon. The Jews enlisted their efforts against the apostles. Expelled them out of their coasts—"Cast them out of their borders." R. V.—In casting out the apostles the people of Antioch were rejecting Jesus and the salvation which he offered them. 51. Shook off the dust of their feet—This was off the dust of their feet-This was in accordance with the command that Jesus gave to His disciples when He sent them forth on their mission (Matt. 10;14). Iconium—A city in Pisidia, east of Antioch. 52. Filled with joy—They were entering upon the blessedness promised by the Master (Matt. 5; 10-12). They were persecuted and blessed.
QUESTIONS.—Where did the apostles go from Paphos—Who letf them at that point? To what city did they next so?

next go? Where did they go on the Sabbath? What invitation was ex-Sabbath? What invitation was extended to them? Give an outline on Paul's sermon. What occurred on the next Sabbath? How did the preaching affect the Jews? What effect had it upon the Gentiles? Why did the apostles turn to the Gentiles? To what place did the apostles go from Antioch? What were their feelings?

PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic-Christ, the world's Savior. I. Foretold in Jewish history.

II. Rejected by Jewish leaders.

Foretold in Jewish history. Paul and Barnabas exhibited the most unfaltering conviction that the gospel was fully adequate to grapple every form of opposition that the heathen world might offer. They were a small force numerically to advance upon the intrenched idolat-rous host of Asia Minor. The lesson before us presents one of those syna-gogue scenes, which are of so much interest in connection with the early progress of Christianity. By the courtesy of his countrymen Paul was permitted to speak. That was an event in his history, the beginning of a battle which concluded with his survey of Israel, a true picture of that highly favored nation, the history of the kingdom of God. The main purpose of Paul's sermon was to prove the Messiahship of Jesus and thereby proclaim the gates of life open to all men. In portraying the providential course of Israel's history, Paul outlined briefly those distinctive features which revealed the fact that from the beginning God's eye was fixed uncertainty. ed upon the uppermost parts of the earth, as well as upon the land of his chosen people. In his review Paul noted the divine selection of a people, their wonderful deliverance, their de-sert discipline, the expulsion of the Canaanites, the foundation of a set-tled system of government, the epoch of kings. This recital was pleasing to the listening Jews. Paul further declared that in Jesus the line of Is rael's greatness was continued: that without the crowning fact of his resurrection the rest would have been incomplete. II. Rejected by Jewish leaders. Paul's tact was most remarkable. He desired to impress the fact that the Hebrew scriptures which were the basis of their faith as a people, contained the promise of a Messiah; that the Messtali predicted in their scriptures had actually appeared upon earth, and that he was the Mediator through whom the world was to be saved. Paul's mode of preaching was, first of all, to appeal to the understand with a cient exposition of truth, and then to impress that truth with earnest exhorta Paul's power as a speaker lay in the intensity of his convictions and in his strong sympathy with his ence, which made him quick to adapt himself to them and to press home his thought. He offered proofs of his statements which were within the comprehension of his audience. The gospel message which Paul presented put his hearers to the test. He warned them of the fatal consequences of rejecting the offer of salvation. The results of Paul's appeal were seen in a general spirit of religious inquiry, the con-version of many, great excitement among the classes, the stirring up of hitter persecution, the increased power Jews were made jealeus of their new leaders and of the hold they and their dectrine were getting. They refused to admit that the redemption of the Gentiles was a part of God's plan of salvation. They said, in effect, if the Gentiles were to receive the gospel. they would not. Paul made plain their own responsibility for their attitude toward the gospel. They had learned its central truths and formed their own decision. They decreed their own sentence of condemnation. They put from themselves the word of God and thus judged themselves. To the Gentlles it was the early dawn of the promised day. They needed comfort. They greet ed the good news and were blessed by it. The mixed audience of Jews, proselvtes and Gentiles had the golden opportunity of listening to Paul, the profound interpreter of scripture, the large-hearted apostle to the Gentiles. the truly evangelical preacher of the Christian faith, the undaunted witness to the truth. The Jews had a great opportunity. In every possible place grace was held out to them, nevertheless they spurned it all, and forced the apostles to leave their city under the ban of the law, but with no revenge in their hearts. They grew greater in the presence of difficulties and brave as perils thickened around them. Th Jews disgraced themselves, but they the apostles had an abounding toy. T. R. A.

Everything is good in its place. The bile, which, under certain conditions, causes so much distress, is of the greatest value as an antiseptic and cathartic when it is properly handled by the liver.

The chief function of the liver seems to be the filtering of bile from the blood, where it acts as a poison, and pouring it into the intestines, where it hastens the course of the food mass through the alimentary canal, and by its antiseptic influence prevents fermentation of the food.

When you suffer from biliousness and indigestion and have a coated tongue, bitter taste in the mouth, headaches and loss of appetite, you will do well to look to the condition of the liver. Other symptoms are wind on the stomach, which causes belching, and the formation of gas, which gives rise to dizziness and pains about the heart.

Because the liver has failed, the food in the alimentary canal is fermenting instead of being digested, looseness and constipation of the bowels alternate, the whole digestive system is thrown out of order and the blood is poisoned.

By immediately awakening the action of the liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills affords relief for this condition most promptly. On this account they are generally recognized as the most effective cure for biliousness, liver complaint, indigestion, constipation, and the pains and aches which arise from poisons in the blood. The benefits are lasting because this medicine removes the cause of trouble.

THE CALVES TO KEEP.

From time to time, says one farm paper some exponent of more livestock rises to remark against *1.3 slaughter of the calves and not always is this without reason. We must agree that very often calves which should be kept in the herd for breeding purposes are turned away for real and their owner gets very little profit from them, and they are not permitted to do the good in the herd which they would have done if kept for breeding purposes. However, there are large numbers of calves raised each year which should go to the veal route, and many of those which are killed while very young would be of no use if kept in the herd as breeders.

The good dairyman has a basis upon which he works in seiling or keeping his calves as the case may be. used first of all, a pure-bred sire with milking propensities well marked in the blood of his ancestors. He keeps in his herd nothing but the best individual animals and the heavies milkers and he weighs the milk from each cow or heifer regularly and systematically, and, if necessary, has the milk tested for fat so he knows exactly what each of his cows is doing and whether or not the calves from that cow are likely to go on and make valuable animals to place in his herd. If the cow, mother of the calf, cannot, through milk production, justify her existence in the herd there is little reason why the calf from such a moth. er should be kept past veal age, and it is far better than such a calf should go to the butcher early in life than to prove a bill of expense, in fact, a rob ber, in the dairy herd.

There is little use of keeping an inferior dairy calf to the age of two or three years, because it will gen-erally cost more especially when grain is high in price, as it is now, to put meat on this wedge-shaped dairy car-cass than it is worth. It would be folly then to keep all colves without discrimination. Only the best should survive for breeding purposes, and the only man who know which are the best is the man who is using a proper sire of a heavy milking strain, and is weighing the milk regularly from the cows to which the sire is bred, and keeping the calves from those cows lead in milk production give enough to pay for all feed abor and leave a handsome profit be-

The point is to be able to pick out calves which should remain in the herd something must be known about the producing ability of their dams. and this cannot be estimated by the ordinary guess-work method. The scales and the tester should be made just as important in determining the prise the herd as in determining which cow now milking shall remain in the

It is important also that no faulty individuals as to conformation and type be kept in the herd. It is not enough that the sire be from good milking ancestry and the cow be a heavy milker herself. They must have such confirmation and prepotency that the calves show the desirable type of the milking threads. of the milking breeds.

Faulty calves should be discarded, though their ancestry be right. This close selection will send thousands of calves to the block as veal which would otherwise be kept in the herd at a loss It may be, after all, slaughtered young, but that there is not enough system followed in determining which shall go and which shall be kept. Undoubtedly, many are kept which should go, and equally true is it that many go which should be kept. The matter is in the hands of the dairyman, and the sooner he makes all his selections on conformation and type backed by production will it be righted.—Prairie Farm and barley, are excellent combinations for dairy forage. There are many cows in this country capable of producing 400 pounds of butter in a year, but not one of them, so far as we have knowledge, came from a scrub sire. Rev. V. B. Mayer, of Casenova, Va., has wintered a flock of milch goats in timber without bought feeds, getting three or four quarts of milk per day,

He claims to have saved several babtes with goats' milk, and has demon-strated the freedom of goats from tuberculosis and other diseases

Sore or chapped teats are due to ex-osure or cold, wet weather and rough handling. Treat with lard or vaseline.
When a bull 's stall fed he should have a plentiful supply of nitrogenous roughage, such as good, clean clover er peavine hav.

Spray pumps of many different sizes and types will give good results on the farm. Bucket pumps, knapsack sprayers and automatic sprayers will be useful in the garden and orchard, as well as in the hen house, although a larger hose or extension rod will be needed in the orchard. A barrel pump or power sprayer may be used with good results if it is already on hand, but is more expensive than the average farm needs for hen house work.

ECHO OF THE FLOODS.

Elephants' Pitiful Against Wabash's Rising Tide.

"Did you ever hear the terrorized trumpeting of a nerd of drowning elephants" asked W. J. Wilhams, or Yeru, ind., at ne Wilhiard. "If you never neard the piteous cries of dying beasts, you have escaped one of the most heartfeneng experiences that ever comes to civilized man. I was in Peru during the flood of 1913, when the Wabash fliver rose to unknown heights, causing tremendous destruction of property. Peru is the winter quarters of the Wallace and Hagenback circus, and when it was found that the water was coming higher than had ever been known before, the fourteen elephants in the circus were found that the water was coming higher than had ever been known before, the fourteen elephants in the circus were unchained and let go to take care of themselves. Three of them managed to reach a small mound where they stood in the water with their trunks elevated till the end of the flood, but the other eleven were drowned.

"With the water rushing through the streets, and the people of the city caroned in the second stories of the houses, the elephants swam around for hours, trumpeting in terror and sticking their trunks in the open windows of the houses in their efforts to and some spot of safety. They cried like children and one could almost understand their language as they pleaded for the help which could not be given them, for not one of them could be taken in through a door or window out of the flood They acted more like human beings than beasts, and it was almost as pitiful to see them go down under the muddy waters, one by one, as it was to see a human being washed from a roof.

"I shall never forget their dying cries as they sought the safety which could not be found in that flat country, where the whole surface of the earth was submerged.

"Back in the big circus menagerie, the whole surface of the earth was sub-merged.

"Back in the big circus menagerie, however, there was even a more tragic scene. When the water came up into the cages of the animals they all became frantic from fear.

"Lions and tigers roared and dashed themselves against the bars of their cages till it was feared thay would escape and swim to places of human refuge, where they would destroy many lives.

"Iron bars were bent by the bessa in

"Iron bars were bent by the beasts in their furry and as the water rose higher their terror and their strength increased. When it was seen that nothing could be done and that lives of persons in the city were being endangered the manager went from cage to cage with a rifle and shot one after another of the monarchs of the jungle till all were dead. It cost the circus a fortune but many lives were saved."—Washington Post.

Dark Stars.

It is reasonable to assume that the number of stars in space having a temperature so low that their radiations do not affect our eyes or photographic plates is extremely large. That these invisible stars are far more numerous than the luminous stars is suggested by F. A. Lindemann, who attempts in by F. A. Lindemann, who attempts in the Monthly otices a rough calculation of their relative number the assumption that new stars (novae are due to collusions. He concludes that there are about 4,000 times as many dark stars as bringht ones.

Man's Will is All His Own.

True education lies in learning to wish things to be as they actually are. It lies in learning to distinguish what is our own from what does not belong to us. But there is only one thing which is fully our own—that is our will or purpose. God, acting as a good king and a true father, has given us a will which cannot be restrained, com-pelled or thwarted. He has put it wholly in our power. * * * Nothing can ever force us to act against our will conquered it is because we have willed to be conquered.

So they ran on, the current of their conversation threatening never to run dry, until the dressing-bell rang the knell summoning them to their respective apartments.

"You will not make me miserable for such a cause. If you have the slightest feeling or even friendship for me, you will give up the idea—you will pro-mise me never to think of it again."

"And if I do give this promise?" asked Miss Sylverton, softly. She was experiencing a slightly subdued sensation, born of the deep anxiety expressed both in his tone and bearing. Her usual perversity had deserted her in this her hour of need, and she found herself nearer to ack nowledging a master than she had

At length the night arrived that was decided on for the representation of the theatricals, and found King's Abbott in a state of confusion impossi-ble and hopeless to describe, the most remarkable feature in the whole case being that nobody seemed in a proper frame of mind, the spirits of all being either too high or too low to suit the part allotted them, so that a sensation of mingled terror and delight prevailed through every dressingroom in the house.

There had been numerous meeting and rehearsals, for the most part pleasurable, although here and there disputes had arisen about trifles light as air, and everything had been ranged as the most approved principles. Nevertheless, even now at the last moment, when all was finally settled, not a man amongst them but felt convinced that he could perform his neighbor's role with greater honor and eclat then his own, and that his talents were miserably thrown away in the scenes assigned to nim. How ever, it was too late now for further alterations or objections, so with the best grace they possessed they made themselves "ready for the fray."

The guests were assembled in the large drawing-room, facing the folding-doors, behind which, in a small back apartment, the stage had been erected. Already were the younger members of the audience showing signs of impatience, when the doors were thrown open, the curtain rose, and in the centre of the stage Mildred Trevanion as Marguerite stood

At least so thought the spectators, who, as the curtain fell, cealing her from view, applauded long

After this followed Miss Sylverton and Charlie in the 'Black Brunswicker,' and Mabel and Roy Blount as Lancelot and Elaine, which also was much admired and applauded, indeed, all the "Idyls" passed off remarkably well, save and except that in which Lord Lyndon figured. had to appear as Geraina, when Enid stands before him in her pretty old-world finery; but, instead of looking, as he should looked, all disappoint ment and anxiety, for the redonning of the faded silk, he burst out into an uncotnrollable laugh, incited thereto by Eddie, who, with his back well turned to the audience, and a goodly amount of white beard and padding showing, was doing the 'heavy father

Then came "The United Kingdom," when Frances Sylverton, as "Ireland," undoubtedly carried off the crown of victory. Perhaps altogether Miss Sylverton might have been termed the great success of the evening, as in all her movements and looks she was one piece of beautiful sparkling life. The tableaux terminated with a cene from the Court of Louis XIV. the dresses for which, as most of the others, were sent down from London. It was charmingly arranged, and might have been considered faultless but for "Sonny" Sunnerly, who, coming on in frantic haste at the last moment, appeared flushed but complacent, as usual, with his Louis Quatorze wig carefully ar-ranged with the back to the front. This circumstance, in itself so ludic-rous, was considerably heightened in effect by "Sonny's" rosy cheeks, which convulsed the beholders, while sending a thrill of anguish largely commingled with hysteria through his fellow-players. However, in spite of this unlucky contretemps, the scene was declared to be most successful, little Sunnerly finishing his part erenely grave and sweetly unconscious to the end.

After the tableaux followed a ball, to effect a change of raiment for which soon caused the rapid emptying of the impromptu theatre.

Denzil, who scarcely felt in humor for balls or any other sort of amuse ment just then, passed through the library door which opened off the late scene of merriment, and sunk wearily into an armchair beside the fireplace.

He was feeling sadly dispirited and out of place, amidst all the galety surrounding him; a sense of miser-able depression was weighing him down. His one thought was Mildred: his one deep abiding pain, the fear of hearing her engagement to Lyndon openly acknowledged.

For the past week this pain had been growing almost past endurance, as he witnessed the apparently satistied manner in which she accepted his lordship's marked attentions. He hated himself for this fatuity-this meanness, as it appeared to him—that compelled him to love and long for a woman who showed him plainly every hour of the day how little she valued either him or his devotion. Still he could not conquer it.

As these thoughts rose once more unbidden to his mind and took possession of him, he roused himself determinedly, and, getting up from his chair, threw out his arms with a quick impulse from him, as though resolved upon the moment to be free.

Just then the door opened, and Mildred entered. She came in swiftly, and advanced so rapidly toward the chimney-piece that, until she was within a foot of him, she was not aware of his pre-sence there and acknowledged her surprise by a sudden start and exclama-tion of alarm. "I beg your pardon." he said; "I did not mean to frighten you."

Even as he spoke a wild determination to know the worst from her own lips without loss of time seized hold

"I came for a book," explained Mildred, hurfledly. "Ah, here it is! In the confusion I hardly remembered where I had left it.' "Can you spare me a few minutes?" asked Denzil, without giving himself

Now that the time has come, you shall not prevent me from speaking." He paused. ent on again in a tone completely changed, low and imploringly. "Reject me—despise ma. if you will," he said—"only hear me."

To this, although he waited as if in expectation, she made no answer. Perhaps, had she then once more forbidden him, he might forever have held his peace. But she kept complete si-lence, standing opposite him with folded hands and eyes steadily directed toward his, as though attracted by some magnetic influence

Why Boiled Water Freezes Easily

Water which is hot, of course, cannot freeze until it has parted with its heat, but water that has been boiled will, other things being equal, freeze sooner than water which has not been boiled. A slight disturbance of water disposes it to freeze more rapidly, and this is the cause which accelerates the freezing of boiled water. The water that has been boiled has lost the air naturally contained in it, which posure to the atmosphere it begins again to attract and absorb. During this process of absorption a motion necessarily produced among its parti-cles, slight certainly and impercept-ible, yet probably sufficient to accelerate its congelation. In unboiled ter this disturbance does not exist. Indeed, water when kept perfectly still can be reduced several degrees below the freezing point without its becom-

REINFORCEMENTS FOR PRINCESS PATRICIA'S CANADIAN LIGHT INFANTRY.

Canadians, of whatever nationality, thrill as they recall the wonderful record made by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Fetubert, at Ypres, and many other battlefields in Belgium; how, in the battiefields in Belgium; how, in the face of overwhelming odds, they heid their positions by their courage, steadienss and dogged perseverance. For nearly a year the P. P. C. L. I. (as the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Intantry is known in military circles) has been reinforced by a steady flow of recruits of the very finest of our Canadian manhood. finest of our Canadian manhood. These recruits, many now veterans, are determined that this fine batta! ion shall not lose its high record but with their help shall have added honor and prestige in the future.

The reinforcements The reinforcements have drawn from all over Canada, an the universities of Canada made this battalion their care. Canada hay ready 1,350 officers and men have gone forward under the title of the Universities Companies, and are do-ing their "bit" at the front or at Shorncliffe. Five Universities Com-

The number of men volunteering from the West has been simply wonderful. So much so that the author ities of the Western Canadian Uni versities decided to send overseas a battalion composed of students of the Western Universities and members of the teaching staff. This battalion is now recruiting and is called the 196th Western Universities Battalion,

The object of the Western Univer-sities Battalion and of the Universities Companies is the same in that it provides a means for men to get to the front in congenial company, but though their paths are parallel, they are not identical in this respect. The Western Universities Battalien is for overseas service as a battalion, and the Universities Companies are reinforcing the Princess Patricias Canadian Light Infantry.

The P P. C. L. I. is now composed mainly of men from the Universities Companies, and the steady flow of reinforcements for this battalion reinforcements for this must not be allowed to stop, and fur-ther, the standard of the recruits must always be the "best that Can ada can offer."

There are many men of the Univer sity type whose hearts grow warm as they read and hear the name of the Princess Pats, for they have broth-ers, relatives and friends in it, and they wish they could have an opportunity of joining it. To these men the news that a sixth company is being recruited, under Major McKergow, at McGill University, in Montreal, will be welcome.

The sixth company is in comfort. able quarters at McGill University and has all the advantages of the use of the McGill Campus and the University building, including the McCill tudents' Union.

The Universities Companies have been almost overwhelmed with the hospitality of the residents of Montreal and its suburbs

The training of the companies has been of an exceptionally efficient character, and has been of a nature to develop specialists, some at mus-ketry, others at signaffing, others at tactical exercises, and again others in physical training, bayonet fighting and bombing.

The great advantage of these companies is that men of the same social status go forward together, and join a battalion in which they will find a large number of congenial spirits. Another advantage is the with which they go forward to the front. The training in Montreal usually takes about three months, and after two months further training in England they take their place in the firing line without unnecessary delay.
The reason for this is the fact that these companies reinforce a battalion already at the front.

A considerable number of the men A considerable number of the lines who have joined the Universities Companies have, upon reaching England, obtained commissions in the British and Canadian units. It is, of course, impossible to make any guar antee as to promotion of this charac ter, but the nature of the training ceived and the reputation of the Universities Companies make the chanc es of promotion excellent for the of men that the Universities Companies accept.

Intending recruits are examined lo cally by an army medical officer, re-ceive their transportation to Montreal, and immediately obtain their uniform, and start their training without delay. Readers are invited to make known to their friends this company, McGill University, Montreal, will be glad to supply any further information that may be read to ther information that may be requir-

ENVIRONMENT

Stronger Than Heredity in Its Influence On Life.

A short time before the Civil War a New York policeman took in charge a ten-year-old boy whom he had noticed loitering about the streets and sleeping on park benches. The little fellow was a typical waif of the slums, bearing the marks of neglect, ill usage, bearing the marks of neglect, in usage, and a deplorable family history. Investigation showed that he had no home, his mother being dead, and his father, a degenerate ne'er-do-well, having deserted him.

So far as the authorities could ascertain, the boy himself, an undersized, shrewd-looking youngster, had not as yet developed any criminal or seriously vicious traits. But the facts of his pedigree seemed to tell heavily in his disfavor, forecasting the day when he would become in some sort an offender against society. The im-mediate problem was how to dispose of him, and this was solved by turnlously vicious traits. But the facts of ing him over to a charitable organi-

It so happened that about this time an Indiana farmer and his wife de-termined to adopt a boy. Chance—or Providence, as I prefer to put it— brought together the farmer and an agent for the society that then had the deserted ten-year-old boy in its keep-ing. The upshot of their meeting was that John Brady found a home with Mr. and Mrs. John Green, of Tipton, Indiana. Great was the astonishment in the aeighborhood when people learned what the Greens had done. Even the most optimistic agreed that they were "taking a big chance," while not a few gloomily predicted that they would rue the day when they had taken into their house a New York street urchin of dubious ancestry. But Mr. and Mrs. Green, refusing to be terrorized by the bogey of heredity, devoted themselves bogey of heredity, devoted themselves to the upbringing of the little John. They gave him love and they gave him discipline; through the work of the farm and the power or good example they trained him to be useful, diligent, and efficient, and they sent him to the red school-house at the cross-roads to gain the elementary education he should have received while a child in New York.

At nineteen he struck out for him-self, beginning his life-work by teaching school. Three years later, having practised the most rigid self-denial to save the necessary funds, he re-Yale. Brought Down the House.

On one occasion, when Arthur Roberts, the English actor, was performing the part of Captain Crosstress in the burlesque of "Black Eyed Susan" at Glasgow, he converted an awkward ontretemps into a bit. In one of the scenes Crosstress entered supposed to be inebriated and staggered about the stage. In doing so Mr. Roberts accidentally came in contact with the ry of the inn, bringing the whol set down. The curtain had to be lowered, and the vivacious comedian came to the front and said, 'Ladies and gentlemen, you see when we come o Glasgow we always bring down the ouse.'

Halcyon Days.

The expression "halcyon days" originated with the ancient Sicilians. They firmly believed in an old legand that during the seven days preceding and the seven following the winter solstice Dec. 21-the halcyon, or kingfisher, brooded over her young in a nest afloat on the surface of the water and that during these fourteen days the seas would be calm and safe for the mariner; hence the name "halcyon days," when, according to Milton, birds of color sat brooding on the charmed wave."

COMMERCE RAIDER OUT.

Liner Reports Being Cha by German Craft.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The arrival bere Sunday of the steamship Venbere Sunday of the steamship Venezia, of the Fabre Line, with the news that she had been chased and fired upon by a German commerce destroyer caused considerable uneasiness in shipping circles.

The Venezia was formerly a passenger steamship plying between Marselles and New York, but since the

While the commander of the Vencia, Captain Boniface, refuses to discuss the pursuit of his ship by the commerce destroyer, one of the crew volunteered the information that the enemy appeared suddenly while they were off the Azores and about three days out from Bordeaux. He says the strange vessel loomed up without any flag showing, and bore down on the Venezia.

The raiding craft kept up with the apparent intention of getting closer to the Venezia, but the absence of her flag made Captain Boniface susher flag made Captain Boniface sus-picious, and he made preparations for a sudden dash. The approaching steamship signaled to the Venezia to slow down, but Captain Boniface made out several guns on her deck and was convinced she was a German commerce destroyer and signaled for full speed.

As the Venezia started to bear away a shot passed over her. This was followed by another, which dropped close to the Venezia. Before a third shot was fired the Venezia had increased the distance between her and the commerce destroyer, so that the efforts to overhaul her proved unsuccessful.

NEW MILITARY CAMP.

Twenty Thousand Acres Purchased at Pine Plain, Near Barrie.

TORONTO, May 8 .- Ontario is to have a new military camp that will far surpass Valcartier in every re-spect as an ideal place for the training of troops for overseas service. It will supersede Niagara and other camps in the western part of the Province. The new camp will be at Pine Plain, in Simcoe County, some ten miles from Barrie, where the Government has acquired a site of 20,000 acres, approximately 28 square miles. Construction work is to be started immediately and rushed with all possible speed. Everything must be completed and ready for the reception of 25,000 troops by June 1 next. This was the definite announcement made by General Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, Sunday night on his return to the city after making an inspection of the property. It is about equi-distant from Barrie and Alliston, west and south from the village of Angus. The soil is of a sandy nature, and was form-erly heavily timbered with pine. It has good natural drainage and two rivers, the Dam and Pine, and Bear Creek, run through it. It is approached by the Grand Trunk Railway, Collingwood branch, and the company will construct additional tracks and sidings into the camp. There are a number of farms on the site, but it is not anticipated there will be any difficulty in getting the owners to vacate immediately. The new camp may also be reached by the C. P. R., which is not far from its western boundary, but, according to the present expressions of the present expressions. sent arrangements, the Grand Trunk will be the only company having direct access to it.
