Another View of French Catholicity.

(Antigonish Oasker)

We recently published, from The London Catholic Times, the views of a traveller on the decadence of French Catholicity. A contrary view is expressed by a correspondent of The Sacred Heart Review as follows:

1. During a Lent in Paris, not long since, I attended some five church services for week-day evening Lent sermons,—for men only; women being admitted indeed, but not in the body of the church. The attendance of men, once a week, was from 500 in some churches, to 1,500 in others. As a rule there were no great, "fashionable" preachers. There was a dimly-lighted church; no gorgeous ceremonies; no music, but the men singing the benediction hymn altogether.

2. On Easter Sunday morning at Notre Dame de Paris, I have seen some 5,000 men at holy communion. They sing the Nicene creed in unison—as has been a custom at that general Easter communion, since the publication of Rahan's "Vie de Jesus."

3. Last year, at a northern water place in France, I saw 1,000 at holy communion—as the priest told me—on the Assumption. Of these 500 were men, 300 being the young men and boys of the colleges. The church holds only about 500. About 200 came daily to the Masses.

4. In a country district I saw a church seating a thousand, with a congregation of 1,200 of peasants and market-garden folk, at an ordinary Sunday Mass. The majority were men.

5. A like scene I witnessed among more fashionable people, at Clermont in Auvergne, far to the south.

6. At Boulogne-sur-Mer, also last year, the matelots and the matelotes streamed in and out of the cathedral all day—as if it belonged to them. [Said the Protestant Archbishop Benson: "I would that I could see in England what I see abroad; the cathedrals the churches of the people; where, the larger the church, the more the poor people seem to love it." Doubtless, when his Canterbury cathedral was Catholic, his Catholic predecessors saw a similar sight.]

8. Conversions among leaders in the intellectual world were never more common. Brunetiere is perhaps the leading literary critic of Europe; Coppee perhaps the most popular poet; Feuillet was one of the best novelists. These are converts from the Academy. Besides, there is Huysmans; not to say Bourget.

8. Thirty men, every night in the year, take part in the perpetual adoration at the church of the Sacred Heart looking over Montmartre.

The government is going to put a stop to this, you may say; and you may name all the other facts of what it has done, these times. But do not let us foreigners talk wildly or thoughtlessly. Let us recollect some more facts—I think well established:

(a) France gives more to the propagation of the faith than any nation; not to say than all other nations.

(b) Paris gives more to Catholic charities, than any other city.

(c) One-third of the Parisians pay twice for education, so as to send their children to the Catholic schools.

(d) France has some quarter of a million priests and religious.

(e) She gives her sons—some 8,000, out of the 13,000 Catholic missionaries to the heathen. The French men and women here suggested go to Mass, don't they? Remember the two Frances.—W. F. P. Stockley, in The Catholic Citizen.

at sea, or a violent outbreak of electrical energy, the dazzling forks and tongues of fire dealing death upon whomsoever they strike, while the detonating roar of the rolling thunder enhances the weird mystery of the aerial discord.

But of all manifestations of her wrath, without doubt the most terrifying and the most devastating of them all is when the ever glowing, mighty, roaring furnace, nearly eight thousand miles deep, never quiescent, never inactive, pent up beneath the shell of an egg, from time to time essays with frantic, almost irresistible energy to burst the frail

And at such times when these roaring, thousand-miled flames confined within that brittle, rocky crust gather up such overwhelming energy and force that at length they burst forth in all their fury; then, indeed, do we realize the might of Nature's stupendous forces. The side of a mountain is blown out, and from out the incandescent caldron of molten elements a great vivid cyclone of deadly blazing, lurid fire darts forth, and in a second of time has spread like a lightning gleam over the surrounding land, striking in death every living creature over whom it passes, leaving town and country but a calcined smoking ruin, and causing even the very sea itself to boil like a seething caldron. And now, gathering yet more energy, red hot rocks and stones are shot up miles high, dealing death and destruction wherever they fall; vast masses of ashes and dust are ejected into the upper regions of the air; here and there the earth opens her mouth and vomits fire and smoke; choking sulphurous gasses' over-spreading the country, and a sepulchral pall of darkness, a veritable darkness which may be felt, hangs threateningly over the desolation, and veils from view the horrors which have been enacted.

And when at length the gloomy shroud has been lifted, it is seen that the stricken victims of Nature's wrath have been buried by her hand, earth to earth, ashes to ashes; and the fair face of the heretofore smiling landscape is but an arid expanse of smoking ashes.

But what a scene will be presented when the tocsin sounds for the while earth to be burned up. Happy they who, having lived the life of the righteous, and having accepted the Savior of the world as their Redeemer, and having their names written in heaven, are borne by angels safe from harm, and can witness from afar the fiery destruction.

Rev. Frederic Alfred Ingle, B. A., of St. John's College, Oxford, lately curate of Great Ilford, Essex, and formerly of Falmouth, has been received into the Church at St. May's, Clapham.

A unique event occurred in the community of Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Ky., October 14, 15 and 16, when the venerable mother superior, Mary Cleophas Mills, and three of her Sisters in religion celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their profession.

The "Lanterne," a French Masonic sheet, has published an article entitled "After the Monk, the Priest," which concluded as follows: "Once the fate of the congregations has been settled, it will be necessary to settle accounts with the Church. The monks are not the only ones to be combated. We must not forget the parish priest."

The movement to erect a new Catholic hospital of the South Side, Pittsburg, has taken definite shape. A building site of three acres has been secured. It lies between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets, and cost $100,000. The name selected is that of St. Joseph. Ground will not be broken until next spring, when commenced, will be pushed so as to have the building ready in the fall of 1903.

hand, it is a notorious fact that a number of propagandists of anarchy in the mining region, during the recent strike, were themselves of the Good Shepherd, of Pittsburg have been approved. It will be a three-story and mansard, brick, and occupy the centre of the Ross farm, just beyond the Lincoln avenue bridge, East End, city. Eleven acres of ground have been purchased. Only one wing will be built at first at an estimated cost of $80,000. The centre structure when completed as planned will cost $300,000. Work on the foundations will be begun early in the spring.

A French journalist recently wrote for "Le Martin" a long account of an interview which he alleged to have had with the very Rev. Father David Fleming, vicar general of the Order of Minors, who is represented as having expressed himself in anything but a respectful or even Christian manner towards the religious orders recently expelled from France, accusing them of jbery and comparing them to the merchants within the temple, whose expulston was not only justifiable, but desirable. Father Fleming repudiates the interview as "utterly false and apocryphal."

In view, no doubt, of the false rumors of failure of the cause of the canonization of Joan of Arc, the "Annales Religieuses," of the Diocese of Orleans, where knowledge of the matter must be trustworthy, publishes a statement by the Bishop of Orleans that "the cause is not even suspended, still less abandoned, but follows its course with the slowest imposed by the Roman regulations for the canonization of saints." He also attests the fact of a recent miraculous cure, and counsels the priests to make novenas to Venerable Joan of Arc for the favor of the necessary miracles.

The death of the Rev. James Lawless, who for twenty years has been in charge of the Mission of St. Joseph, Poplar, London, has caused the deepest sorrow amongst the people to whom he ministered. The mission is one of the largest in the Archdiocese of Westminster, the congregation being almost exclusively Irish. Father Lawless was the personal friend of every one of his parishioners. Not only was he a spiritual director and adviser whom they revered, but he was their confidant and confident in all their affairs. He was very prominent during the great dock strike twelve years ago, and keenly interested himself in every movement which aimed at benefiting his people.

On Wednesday, October 15, the new novitiate of the Little Sisters of the Poor was dedicated by Bishop McDonnell, in the presence of many priests and friends of the institution. It is situated at Queens, Queens county, east of Jamaica, N. Y. Formerly the candidates wishing to join the Little Sisters of the Poor, whose aim is to provide a permanent home for respectable destitute old people of both sexes, had to go to some novitiate in Europe. Owing to the rapid extension of the order, few novitiates, besides the one at the mother house near Rennes, France, had been opened in Rome, Madrid, Antwerp, Melbourne, Australia, and Brooklyn.

"President Eliot," of Harvard University," says the New York Freeman's Journal," declares that the American school system is insufficient because it fails to train up good citizens. He says it has failed to train citizens so that they can vote intelligently; failed to stamp out gambling; failed to curb mob law and crimes of violence; failed to cultivate sufficient restoring power in employers and employed to prevent strikes, violence and loss; and failed to abolish the demoralizing spoils system in the civil service. If Harvard's president is correct in his statements it follows very evidently that our school system has proved a failure, after a long and costly trial. Having proved this, it is strange that President Eliot can find no better remedy than to make the system costly. It does not seem to have occurred to him that the absence of religious teaching and moral training may have been the reason why our public school system has failed to make good, reliable citizens."

Writing of President Eliot's recent criticism of the public schools and the remedy he puts forward to make them better, the New World comments: "Yet what is the remedy proposed? More schools, more teachers and better pay for the teachers. From this a logical mind must dissent. The cause does not seem to lie in a fawness of teachers,—rather in something lacking in the system itself. It is significant, for instance, that those employers who oppress their employees most pitilessly usually are men who have enjoyed the advantages of the best high schools. On the other product of the best public high schools abroad, just as Chicago was a product of the public schools of this country. View the outlook as we may, we can not believe there will be any lessening of the evils Professor Eliot deplores until some way is found of Christianizing education here in America."

The Catholic Union and Times says: "Catholics, naturally, are especially pleased that the President named Bishop Scully as a member of the Commission. In the whole American hierarchy no happier action could be made, for the venerable Peoria prelate is particularly qualified by virtue of special study and judicial cast of mind to consider the momentous questions the Commission is called upon to adjudicate. While the good Bishop will weigh the evidence submitted with strict impartiality, we can well believe that his sympathies are with the toilers; that they count on him as a firm friend is well known."

"The man who seeks office and those who are in office have no especial regard for the views or the rights of those who do not show themselves a power to be counted with in politics," says the Catholic Union. "In addition to this, the right of suffrage implies its exercise. The virtuous citizen must be active in politics to fulfill his civic duty. The German Catholics, bishops, priests and people, are not afraid to become factors in politics. Had they been timid, the Center Party would not have been represented by a solid phalanx in the Reichstag, and Bismarck would not have gone to Canossa. Has the activity of the German Catholics in matters political lost them the respect of their opponents? When a strong man armed guards his rights, those things are in peace which he possesses."

"Some few are mindful of their obligation and pray for their dead," says the Pittsburg Observer. "But the city of the dead contains souls neglected since the funeral dirge. The ecstacy of a mother for the souls of her children commands the Church observe All Soul's Day. No soul can be neglected in the watchful eye of the Church. Praying constantly and offering the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass for them is her mission as well as to save souls, in season and out of season admonishing the faithful to pray for the dead, to heed their plea, 'Have mercy on me, have mercy on me, at least you, my friends, for the hand of the Lord hath touched me! That no soul shall be neglected, the feast of All Souls is made obligatory on all priests and people who celebrate and attend Mass that day; for is it not a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins? How the faithful should gather to pray and offer sacrifices and imitate their example the Church. When the once loved ones have forgotten the object of their love and busied themselves with the needs and distractions of life, the Church remains faithful to her trust."

The "Freeman's Journal," of Sydney, New South Wales, says in its issue of September 6: "A telegram received at St. Bridget's Rectory, Marickville, on Friday evening, 20th ultimo, bore the announcement that the Rev. Father Alfred, O. P., had that day been drowned while swimming with two companions in the public swimming bath, Adelaide. Beyond this no information has yet reached the fathers as to the circumstances surrounding the sad event. The Rev. Father Alfred Reginald Rees was born in London of Protestant parents in the year 1865. In early manhood he came under the same religious influences as turned the attention of Newman, Manning, Faber and so many others to the grand old Church. Some years after his conversion he decided to try his vocation in the religious life, and chose the Passionist congregation as being most suitable to the bent of his mind and character. This was decidedly towards the ascetic, and an ascetic he lived, and the end which in the ways of Providence crowned his career was in harmony with the severity of his life."

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia for years, and tried every remedy I heard of, but never got anything that gave me relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I cannot praise this medicine too highly for the good it has done me. It always takes me in the spring and fall and would not be without it." W. A. Newzer, Belleville, Ont.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't eat and can't get your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted. Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

AFTER three weeks delay and much consultation with his political friends in Montreal and Ottawa, Sir Wilfrid has called Mr. Prefontaine, ex-Mayor of Montreal to the Cabinet. He takes the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries and Mr. Sutherland is transferred to the Public Works Department. The new Minister was sworn in at noon yesterday. Mr. Prefontaine belongs to the aggressive wing of the Liberal party and in his management of the affairs of Montreal is credited with being rather unscrupulous. He and Mr. Tarte have not been good friends and it remains to be seen how the ex-Minister of Public Works will view the promotion of the ex-Mayor to a Cabinet position.

At a large meeting of the Board of Trade held on Thursday evening last, to discuss the question of a site for the contemplated new Railway Station for Charlottetown a resolution was unanimously adopted favoring the foot of Great George street, opposite the Hotel Davies as the most suitable place for the erection of a passenger depot. This property can be purchased for about $40,000, and there does not seem any good reason why the authorities should not secure it and erect the new station thereon. The present passenger station is located a long distance from the business portion of the city and is otherwise in an undesirable position. The matter of spending a few thousand dollars for a desirable and convenient site, earnestly requested by the people should not prevent the Government from going ahead with the work. They spend many times this amount in the matter of railway accommodation in places of less importance than Charlottetown; consequently if they do not go ahead with the new station at the place named, it will show that they are not desirous of the greatest good for the greatest number. A rumor has been circulated since the meeting that instead of commencing the new depot, the $30,000 voted last session towards that object, were to be expended in fixing up the old station. Can this be true?

Liberal-Conservative Convention.

A large and representative meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of King's County was held, according to notice, in the Town Hall, Georgetown, on Monday afternoon last. Hon. Daniel Gordon, President of the Association, occupied the chair and called the meeting to order. In his opening remarks he expressed his deep regret at the loss the Association had sustained in the death of Messrs. James Clow and John P. Sullivan, Vice-Presidents and Mr. Cyrus Shaw, its esteemed and honored Secretary. He was pleased to see a full meeting, and said the first business in order was the election of men to fill the vacancies mentioned. On motion of Mr. W. A. O. Morson, seconded by Mr. A. C. McDonald, Mr. John Dewar, of New Perth, was elected Secretary of the Association. On motion of Mr. A. C. McDonald, seconded by Mr. Richard Murley, Mr. George A. Poole was elected a Vice-President in place of the late James Clow. On motion of Mr. James E. McDonald, M. L. A., seconded by Mr. John A. Mathieson, M. L. A., Mr. James M. McIsaac, of Head St. Peter's Bay, was elected a Vice-President in place of the late John P. Sullivan. After this routine business had been disposed of a general discussion took place on the matter of organization. This was participated in by Mr. P. Konghan, Mr. Murley, Mr. George E. Saville, Mr. A. P. Prowse, Mr. John A. Mathieson, M. L. A., Mr. J. E. McEachern, Mr. Roderick McLellan, Mr. Daniel Morrisey, Mr. A. C. McDonald, ex-M. P., Mr. W. L. Coton, Mr. James McIsaac, Mr. John N. McDonald, and others. The following resolution was then moved by Mr. George E. Saville, seconded by Mr. A. P. Prowse, and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, that it is the opinion of this meeting that re-organization of the Liberal-Conservative party is necessary, and the adoption of a platform to suit the times; and that the President of the Liberal-Conservative conference be advised that a meeting be held in Charlottetown for that purpose at the earliest possible date, represented by delegates from each pole throughout the Province; and that a copy of this resolution be for-waged to the President and Secretary of the conference for P. E. Island."

It was then moved by Mr. Geo. E. Goff, seconded by Mr. John N. McDonald, supported by Mr. A. C. McDonald, Mr. John A. Dewar and several others, and unanimously

"Resolved, that this convention disapproves of the guarantee of the bonds of the Dominion Packing Company by the local Government."

In connection with this resolution, Mr. James M. Aitken called attention to the importance of supporting and electing the opposition candidates in the by-elections, as a proof that the people of the Province are opposed to any guarantee of the bonds of private trading companies by the Government. Hon. Mr. Gordon then stated that he had some time ago promised to resign his position as President of the Association for King's County at the first meeting thereafter, and give way to a younger and more active man. He had been a member of the Conservative party of the Province for upwards of sixty years, and had invariably throughout that long period, except upon one occasion for one man, voted for the Conservative candidate. He felt that he might well resign the office now in order that one who is in a position to take a more active part in the work might be elected. So long as he had held the office of President of the Association and Leader of the party, he had received the warm, loyal and united support of its members, and for this he tendered his heartfelt thanks. Now he left the matter in the hands of the meeting. Mr. John A. Mathieson at once moved, seconded by Mr. A. C. McDonald, that the Hon. Mr. Gordon be re-appointed President of the Liberal-Conservative Association for King's County. After several gentlemen had expressed their high appreciation of the character and long service of the Hon. Mr. Gordon, the motion was put by Mr. Mathieson and carried unanimously. Mr. Gordon returned his sincere thanks for the kind feelings expressed, and the noble support he had always received. The meeting then adjourned.

Ottawa Weekly Letter.

CANADA FOR CANADIANS.
 "Canada for Canadians," the watchword of the Conservative party for a quarter of a century, breathes a spirit of national development to the realization of which Sir John A. Macdonald and his successors have devoted their best efforts. It is a policy, Canadian in the broadest sense. It has no special significance East or West, but stands for the advancement of interests best calculated to make Canada one of the leading commercial centers of civilization. It is based on a patriotism which is intolerant towards provincialism in federal questions. Its direct object is to make the West an important factor in the development of the East, and the East a guarantee of progress to the West. "Canada for Canadians" has a claim on all men of broadened ideas, and its realization depends altogether on insisting that our own affairs be paramount in the eyes of the administration.

"Canada for Canadians" has had many interpretations placed upon it. The Liberal press have systematically misrepresented the Conservative idea of its meaning and have appealed to petty sectional prejudices in their efforts to render it unpopular.

Let us see what "Canada for Canadians" really does signify? It is emblematic of a national life which has as its first thought the welfare of our own people. The Conservative party to-day, as in the past, in concerned with the advancement of the man who has his stake in this country. That the manufacturers, workmen and agriculturists of the United States find on this side of the line a ready market for $120,000,000 of their produce each year, taking in return goods to the value of $60,000,000 only, is to Conservatives an outrage. That our factories should be closed to provide work for British, German and other European workmen, as a result of a preference from which we derive no special benefit, is another source of alarm to those who support the principles involved in the claim that "Canada" must be "for Canadians."

The framing of a tariff which will make all classes more prosperous, is offered as a remedy for the growing evil of foreign competition. We have in Canada endless natural resources, and the Conservative party has faith in the ability of Canadians to develop those resources. It is enough that our government should concern itself with our own affairs, without lamenting over the troubles of the American, Yorkshire, or German artisan. Over 1,000,000 Canadians, who should be offered employment at home, are domiciled in the United States and their ranks are being augmented from the brain and sinew of Eastern Canada. That is not in keeping with a policy of "Canada for Canadians." What we need is the home market for Canadian wares, and this can only be secured under "adequate protection" for the manufacturer, artisan, laborer and farmer. The Conservative party is sincere in its appeal for our own people—and its one policy of "Canada for Canadians" is gaining friends as it is better understood.

SIR WILFRID KILLED CANADA'S CHANCE.

As was predicted during the last session of Parliament, Canada has secured nothing from Great Britain in return for the concessions granted to British goods under present tariff. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by his senseless attitude in 1897, when he told the home government that Canada was opposed to a preference for her goods in British markets, destroyed his own and his colleagues usefulness at the Coronation Conference. Canada's overtures for some concession for our produce was based on an offer that we would continue the 33 1/2 per cent. preference to British goods, and in addition still further reduce the duties on selected articles imported from the Motherland. Of course the supplementary concession meant little or nothing, and as Great Britain is already enjoying about all she can hope for, Canada's negotiations fell flat. The British are hardly fools, and kept Sir Wilfrid to his promise of 1897. Had it not been for that remarkable disregard of our interests, our representatives would have been in a good position to press their claims. As it is, all is lost for the present, and markets worth millions each year have been removed beyond reach. Sir Wilfrid's Cobden Medal seems to be about all that is left to us for our sacrifices in behalf of the manufactures of Europe. It is a pretty stiff price for a decoration which the owner so carefully conceals.

LIBERAL TRIBUTE TO MR. BORDEN

The Winnipeg Tribune, one of the Liberal journals in Canada to remember and support the best traditions of the party, pays Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, a high tribute, and incidentally denounces Hon. Clifford Sifton as a political traitor. In a recent issue it said, editorially:

"Asked at Morden whether he was in favor of increasing the tariff on agricultural implements, Mr. Borden replied that he believed the duty was high enough now. We should say it was. The incident, however, is instructive, because it has led Mr. Sifton's organ to repeat on behalf of the Liberal party, that the tariff on these articles 'is all right as it is.' The Manitoba farmer is now in a position to see exactly what the difference is, so far as regards that portion of the tariff which most concerns his pocket, between the high protection of the Conservatives and what Mr. Sifton in his efforts to humbug the electors, terms a revenue tariff. The Conservatives believe the duty is high enough; and the Liberals hold that the present tariff on these articles is all right as it is."

"So far at least, as agricultural implements are concerned, it appears that the Liberal policy is at least as protectionist as that of the Conservatives. The chief difference appears to be that Mr. Borden is frank and honest enough to describe himself as the supporter and advocate of protectionist duties, while Mr. Sifton dishonestly attempts to humbug the people by telling them that protectionist duties are revenue tariff duties. The one is the frank opponent of a revenue tariff, the other while equal to the enemy of a revenue tariff, treacherously professes friendship and essays to make the western farmer, whom he has betrayed, not only his victim, but his dupe and fool."

WILL MR. FISHER EXPLAIN?

Hon. Sidney Fisher's organ, the Montreal Herald, much exercised about the reign of corruption at St. Louis, observes:

"A convicted delegate will spend his time in prison writing a book of personal reminiscences under the title: 'Twenty Years in the House of Delegates of St. Louis.' It has been suggested that he add a subtitle: 'Or How to Save $10,000 a Year on a Salary of $500.'"

It is a pity that Mr. Fisher should waste valuable space on the troubles in St. Louis, when so many golden opportunities offer nearer home. Why not have the Minister of Agriculture enlighten the readers of his paper as to the similar achievements of certain of his colleagues?

HARD ON MR. PREFONTAINE.

The Montreal Witness of respect, able Liberal antecedents, takes a shy at Mr. Raymond Prefontaine, which will afford Canadians an opportunity of sizing up the kind of timber Sir Wilfrid Laurier examines for his cabinet repairs:

"There is terror in the ranks of the respectable non-political Liberals lest Mr. Prefontaine should force himself on the Cabinet as Minister of Public Works. We cannot think there can be any ground for this fear. Mr. Prefontaine is not, as Mr. Tarte was, a professional penitent escaped from a den of corruption. So far as the public has heard he still adheres to his well known principles. He would still be the advocate of the party with whom the public is dealing, rather than the trustee of the public. Should he carry those principles into a larger sphere at the call of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, no one will be able to say that it was not to be expected. Mr. Prefontaine has not lived in a corner. Every one knows just where he stands. There are many who have no objection whatever to his record, or to committing the public interests to his hands, but there are, as they say, those who are in terror of this, both for the country's sake and for that of the party, which to many is as dear as the country itself." Sir Wilfrid knows all this, and is not going to face the whole Dominion with such a proposal, or to hand down his name to posterity as responsible for it."

STILL "FIGHTING LIKE BLAZES."

The solving of the Tarte-Sifton row has been the least of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's troubles, since his return home. The retirement of Mr. Tarte was the signal for all sorts of pranks on the part of the premier's solid (?) following. Hon. L. P. Bourdeur, Mr. Raymond Prefontaine, and Hon. James Sutherland immediately started in to seize the vacant portfolio. All have friends, and the several factions are having a right royal fight as to who shall control the great spending department. Of course Sir Wilfrid is getting the full benefit of all this din, and in the meantime public business is looking after itself to a very considerably extent. Some arrangement will be made so as to effect a temporary truce at least, but the ultimate effect of the appointment of one or other of the contestants is bound to be felt. The Liberal party has a whole lot of things to straight out when it all gets together again.

 A sudden death occurred on Monday in connection with the Hillsboro Bridge Construction. Wm. Lally, one of the oppressed air workers in casement No. 5, had been working as usual that morning for about an hour and a half. He seemed all right till a change in the air pressure was made. As he was being out of the casement he was seized with the "bends," and throwing up his arms he exclaimed: "I am a gone man," and fainted away. All efforts to resuscitate him proved unavailing, and the unfortunate man passed away at 2.30 p.m. yesterday morning, in the City Hospital, whither he had been removed. Mr. Lally was 47 years of age and had been engaged in compressed air work for about 20 years. At the time of his death his air pressure was about 37 pounds to the square inch. Mr. Lally was a native of Green Bay, Wisconsin, but came here from Quebec. His funeral took place from St. Dunstan's Cathedral this morning.

JAMES McNICOLL, aged 19, one of the crew of the schooner Britannia was drowned off Whitepoint, Ontario, on Sunday, having been knocked overboard by being struck by the main boom. The schooner was brought to and a dory put out, but before it reached him the unfortunate young fellow sank beneath the waves and was seen no more. The Britannia was bound to Halifax from Charlottetown.

DANIEL LOBER was arrested at Summerside last week by J. A. Simpson, Chief of Police of Amherst, N. S., on a charge of stealing cash and clothing from boarders in the house of Philip Cormier, Amherst. It is alleged that he was wearing a stolen overcoat when arrested. He was taken to Amherst. She was bound from Chatham to Miramichi. The tug F. C. Batt went to her assistance on Saturday night, but as she was very high up with only six feet of water under her, did not attempt to move her. The residence of Mr. Charles Hughes, Covehead, was destroyed by fire on Monday evening. Most of the furniture and household effects were saved, by the efforts of neighbors, but they were not in time to save the house. The rails consequently could not be stored properly on the scow. In the heavy sea they shifted and came to lie and dump them into the sea. Mr. McDonald says he is not to blame for the accident, but those who had left the plates in the scow before. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

Halifax Chronicle: This is the latest shuffle: Brodeur for Public Works, Jette for the Senate, Prefontaine for Lieut.-Governor, Lemieux, for Speaker. That bunch may be all right, but what has become of the Smiths, and O'Rafferty, and McTavishes who used to live in Canada.

Never mind, Mr. Beachcomber, the last shuffle gives the Public Works job to a Mr. Sutherland. That seems to have been the best they could do for you.

There was a wavering in the ranks of the temperance party in an English town, and a famous temperance-advocating bishop was asked to speak. A local paper in briefly noticing the meeting stated that the bishop had exhorted his hearers on no account to give up the bottle. The "u" in the last word was a typographical error, of course, and should have been an "a."

The older inhabitants of Concord, Mass., are very fond of telling stories about the great men who have made their town famous, and its dreamy philosopher, Amos Bronson Alcott, is the hero of many of their reminiscences.

He always preached the doctrine of love to all creatures and was never known to harm any living thing; thus it was a great source of wonder to his neighbor that, while his potatoes were overrun with bugs, Alcott's were remarkably free.

One day the mystery was solved, for the philosopher was detected carefully removing the bugs from his plants and throwing them over the fence.—N. Y. Times.

"Now, I rather pride myself on my ability to read character," said the man who was given to buying detective tales, "and yet why should I? It is really a very simple thing—and requires nothing but close observation. For instance, it is very easy to tell a man's occupation. His facial expression, his actions, even his dress, are stamped by his daily work. You see that man sitting opposite me? Well, I'm just as sure as though he had told me that he is a barber."

"You are mistaken," replied his friend. "That man is a butcher."

"Impossible," exclaimed the amateur detective. "You never saw a butcher with a thin, white hands like his."

"Perhaps not," admitted the other, "but he is a butcher just the same."

"How do you know he is?"

"How do I know? Why, the scoundrel shaved me once."

BEWARE!

We are onto his necktie like a thousand of brick and have hired a human cyclone who on the first opportunity will take this narrow contracted, hump-footed heap of uselessness, by the scruff of his unwashed neck, and give him snob a mauling that all that will be recognizable the next a. m. wouldn't be worth calling for a post mortem.

FRIENDS.

When a fellow's kind of wobbly and uncertain on his feet,

And has to work like sixty to get both ends to meet—

When he's got that much account and has to take what he can get—

The people don't come flockin' to be friends of his, but!

They don't come sayin': 'Pardner, I'm the only friend you've got.'

And, 'Remember that we're brothers,' and that kind of Tommyrot,

No, indeed!

And they don't get jealous over you when friends are what you need.

If a fellow's kind of lonesome and would like a friend or two,

Just to come around and jolly him when things are lookin' blue!

If the shirt that he is wearin' is the only one he's got,

And he's never showed the public that he's Johany on the spot,

They don't come crowdin' round him, nor stink out their hands an' say:

'We're your friends, old man; we love you, we're the same blood, anyway.'

No, indeed!

But they watch to give the boot to you when friends are what you need.

When things have got to comin' in a few wan' wan' on to,

When his pockets are all bulgin' and his clo's are fine and new;

When he steps out proud and lordly and ain't got a thing to fear,

There's a sudden change comes over folks that used to wink an' sneer.

They come ramin' then to tell you, that they're all your friends, an' say:

That they've always been dead anxious for to help you out some way—

Yes, indeed!

Friends are always mighty plentiful when friends ain't what you need.

A CLOSE RESULT.

As a result of the recent elections parties in the United States House of Representatives, which corresponds with our House of Commons, will be pretty evenly divided. The returns so far, with three districts in doubt, give the Republicans 205 and the Democrats 179, a republican majority of 26, which is not a large figure in a House of nearly 400 members, though with a friendly President and a small majority in the Senate it is workable.

A feature of election contests across the border, though not new and even less marked at present than some time ago, is the large number of states that return solid contingents to the House of Representatives either in support of one party or the other. Thus in the recent election, of the forty-five states, no less than twenty-nine are in this category, fourteen sending solid Democratic contingents and fifteen solid Republican.

The Democratic states are in the South chiefly, being Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, North Carolina, South Carolina, Rhode Island and Texas, while the solid Republican states are Connecticut, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio send almost solid Republican contingents, 28 to four, 11 to one, 8 to one and 17 to four, while Kentucky, Missouri and Virginia send but one Republican each, these states having respectively eleven, fifteen and ten representatives. Massachusetts sends 10 Republicans and 4 Democrats, and New York 20 to 17. The other divided states California, Indiana, Maryland, Nebraska, New Jersey and Tennessee.—Exc.

The new East River Bridge in process of construction between New York and Brooklyn was damaged to the amount of half a million dollars Monday night by a fire that for four hours raged at the height of 355 feet in the air, on the summit of the great steel tower on the New York side.

A London despatch states that on Monday for the first time in the history of London town the Lord Mayor's procession travelled an unfashionable thoroughfare, Petticoat Lane, in the heart of the Ghetto, in recognition of the Jewish ancestry of Sir Marcus Samuel, the New Lord Mayor. Jewish London especially celebrated the event. The poorest inhabitants of Whitechapel and Houndsditch were banquetted at the expense of their wealthier co-religionists.

REID'S TRYON

FACTORY-MADE CLOTHS!

Blanketing, Drugget, Shirting and Factory-Made Yarns.

Tryon tweeds are the best on the Island, and they are made from P. E. I. wool—no shoddy, but pure, genuine wool. We have purchased a big stock of All-wool Tweeds, every yard guaranteed. Reid's double and twisted tweeds weigh heavier, is better made and better soiled and better finished than any tweed imported into P. E. I. That is why we buy it and sell it. There is no better blanketing, Drugget, Flannel or Yarn for the farmer made. In factory flannels we carry a stock of browns, greys and greens at 33 cents per yard. Wool is bringing a small price this year, and so we are asking a small price for our goods. This quality of flannel generally brings 42 cents elsewhere. Our All-wool Druggets and flannels for mens' underwear are selling at 35 cents. Some people ask 45 cents for imported stuff that will not wear as well. Remember to encourage home industry every time when the price is lower and the goods better.

Factory Blanketing in white union, two yards wide, 66 cents; Grey Union Blanketing 66 cents, White All-wool Blanketing 80 cents, sold elsewhere at 90; Tryon White Blanketing, two yards wide, no better made anywhere, 85 cents; Big snap in Grey Factory Flannel at 33 cents; big shipment of Factory Yarn, heavy, suitable for footing leggings—big hank of Black, Grey or Red Yarn for 12 cents. Other people ask 15 cents for this yarn; Stanfield's famous Stockingette 12, 14, and 16 cents per yard cashmere stockingette 25 and 30 cents per yard; Factory-made Stockings for ladies and girls or boys, will make a splendid overall, 20 cts. a pair; Factory Cloth all wool Tweeds—40, 50, 60, and 75 cents per yard, in a dozen different patterns; big shipment of the famous Double and Twisted.

Tryon Tweed made for the farmers of P. E. Island.

By a P. E. Islander for a gentleman to wear. The patterns are copies of the famous Bannockburn designs. Every thread, warp and weft is double and twisted. You won't find amongst any of our double and twisted every alternate thread plain. We guarantee every thread to be twisted. We have even twisted the price down from $1.00 to 80 cents per yard. Farmers, don't pay $1 a yard for imported Double and twist, when you can buy the same goods at 80 cents. We guarantee you a saving of 20 cents a yard, (single width) and 40 cents double width on imported goods.—You must have them, we will give you the famous Tryon make for 75 cents.

A Bargain in the Ready-Made Department.

About 50 Suits worth from $7. 88. $9., you can have your choice as long as they are here for a five dollar bill. Now Mr. Farmer, hurry up and come to the farmer's store where you will get Blanketing, Drugget and Ready-made Suits at a price you never heard tell of before.

"It was that spiteful Essex, who could not forgive me for breaking his tooth," said Frith.

"Shortly after we were both summoned to the Queen's presence. She was in a very bad temper, as is often the case, now that she is getting old; besides the new French seamstress whom Catherine de Medici sent as her request, had not made a gown to her liking. She asked us in no very pleasant manner, whether we did not know that every one at her Court must hold the same religious belief as herself? She was the Supreme Head of the Church in England, and she required us to reject the Popish superstition about purgatory, of which not a word was to be found in the Bible. I did not know what to answer, but my little friend was by no means abashed. With more candour than prudence, he boldly replied that he should be very sorry not to believe in a place of purgatory, as there was but one Heaven and one Hell, and Holy Scripture declared that nothing unclean could enter Heaven. According to the new doctrine, almost every one must go to hell, for not many people were so free from sin and guilt at their death, that they could go straight to Heaven. Then the Queen said one drop of the Saviour's blood was enough to wash away the guilt of sin. 'Yes,' the boy replied, 'in this life. But when sin is forgotten, the penalty is not done away with. King David suffered punishment for his sin, although it had been pardoned.' Elizabeth grew furious being contradicted. 'What,' she almost screamed, 'do you say I should not go straight to Heaven?' To my horror, Frith gravely shook his head and answered: 'Your Majesty must know best about that. But I should wish for you to make a good confession before death.' And with that out that I should go to purgatory," continued the Queen. 'I fear not,' the boy replied.

Then Elizabeth was so exasperated that she would have struck the child, had not some of the Lords interposed, and said doubtless it was a slip of the tongue, and he meant to say 'I hope not.' They had some difficulty in pacifying her, and Frith was delivered over to the jailer to receive a sound caning. I tried to slip away unnoticed, but the Queen sent word to me that on the next day, when the Court was to remove to Windsor, I must either give her an unequivocal assurance of my adhesion to the reformed religion, or be confined to the Tower. Her Secretary Davidson should inform immediately of what had occurred. I felt that the time for action had come. There was nothing for me but to seek safety in flight and Frith too, must not be left at the Queen's mercy. So during the night I collected all my jewels together, and cut off all the pearls and precious stones which were, after the extravagant fashion of the day, sewn upon the stomacher of my Court dresses. They would, I thought, furnish me with the means of escaping to the continent, where I could live in seclusion and in peace. I also wrote to my father telling him what I was doing for conscience's sake, and bidding him farewell. I said much the same in a few lines addressed to her Majesty.

The next morning in the bustle and confusion of the preparations for removal, we two culprits were not thought of. This just coincided with my plans. No sooner had the Queen left the Palace than I went to the jailer who knew me well by sight, and saying that the Page Belamy had orders to accompany me, obtained Frith's release. Poor boy! he forgot his sore back in the joy of being again free, and on his way home, when he only thought of severe punishments were in store for him."

Then Frith in his turn related how they walked through the park together, how they were ferried over the river at Putney, dined at the "Golden Bell," and finally asked their way across the fields to Woxindon. They had not long entered St. John's Wood before the tempest began, and such was the violence of wind and rain, thunder and lightning, that they almost despaired of reaching the house.

We congratulated them heartily on their escape from the fury of the elements. But presently it occurred to grandmother, and to Father Weston likewise, that a far worse storm than that which was still raging around our walls, would soon burst over the two fugitives, and that the most formidable thunderbolts would be directed against Woxindon. Father Weston inquired of Miss Cecil when she thought the report of her fight would reach the ears of the Queen and of her father. She replied that the Queen would most likely bear of it at Windsor next evening, and her father perhaps the day after.

"If that be so, continued Father Weston, 'in all probability, before two days are past, Lord Barghley, or his representative, will be down on us like a swarm of pursuivants. Before that time, therefore, we must contrive that you, Miss Cecil, and my young friend here, and myself, should be in some place of safety, as far distant as possible. We will rest to-night and to-morrow, and when evening comes again, we must start anew on our wanderings."

Miss Cecil began to apologize for the trouble her coming had caused us, but grandmother, cutting her short, proposed that the young lady and the child should be concealed in the house, or in the ruined Castle, without going further afield. But the Jesuit negated this decisively, saying that as it was a question of discovering Lord Barghley's daughter, the house would be more thoroughly and systematically searched than it ever had been before. We could not deny the justice of what he said.

Then Miss Cecil turned to him and said: "Reverend Father, I cannot doubt that it is the hand of an all-mighty God which had led me to Woxindon while you are here. I do not know when I may have another opportunity of speaking to a Catholic priest, or what may befall me in these troublesome times. I beg you therefore, in your charity, to regard me as your daughter, and if you see fit, to receive me into the Catholic Church."

We were deeply touched and greatly consoled by this request. Father Weston declared himself only too happy to render her any assistance, and asked her if there was any point of Catholic doctrine upon which she still had doubts. On her answering, not one, he told her that she had better prepare herself at once for confession; he would then receive her into the Church, and the next morning at an early hour she could hear Mass and receive Holy Communion. To this she agreed, but I could see that she felt great apprehension at the prospect of making her confession, as is always the case with adults who go to confession for the first time, and have never experienced the solace this Sacrament of Penance brings to the souls of those who approach it.

When Frith heard that Miss Cecil was to make her First Communion on the morrow, he pleaded earnestly that the like happiness might be granted to him also. Although grandmother would have preferred a longer time of preparation for him, yet at uncle Barth's and my request she allowed us to refer the decision to Father Weston. To our great delight he assented readily to our petition, as he considered the boy's courageous defence of his faith proved him to be sufficiently prepared.

Then Father Weston gave us a beautiful instruction on the Sacrament of Penance, dwelling on the fact that it was instituted by the Saviour on the day of His glorious Ascension, as the most inestimable and richest means of grace that he could bestow upon His people. "For, when during that first Easter-tide He came and stood in the midst of His Apostles, the door being shut, showed them the wounds in His hands and in His side, the price and pledge of the forgiveness of sins, twice He greeted them with the words: 'Peace be to you.' And He said: 'As the Father hath sent me, so send I you.' And when he had said this, He breathed on them; and he said to them: 'Receive ye the Holy Ghost. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained.'" (St. John XX, 21, 22, 23)

With such unctious did the good Father expound these words that Miss Cecil's tears flowed freely at the thought of the goodness of the Saviour in bestowing to His priests this divine power of forgiveness. Father Weston then helped us to examine our conscience, and awaken contrition and resolution of amendment, after which he heard us in confession one after another.

When this was over, he addressed, all together once more, taking Holy Communion for his subject; and then, as it was already late, we separated for the night.

Soon after daybreak, I arranged the altar in the attic chamber, where the wonderful plant, whose blossoms had given place to five scarlet berries, hung down from the rafters and decorated it with beautiful flowers. Then I fetched Miss Cecil, to whom I had lent a white veil for the occasion. We were so on joined by Frith, who had scarcely slept for excitement and who was to serve the Mass. Presently in the stillness of the early morning, the Holy Sacrifice was offered, and our Blessed Lord, the source of all grace, indeed under the sacramental veil, vouchsafed to come and dwell in the heart of those who were prepared to receive him as their guest. This sacred Presence brought to us in the fullness of His mercy and loving kindness, consolation for past sorrows, strength for coming trials, and the confident hope of an eternal reward.

CHAPTER XXVI.

After some time spent in recollection and silent prayer, we assembled in the hall for breakfast. I wanted to take Miss Cecil into the garden, and show her Woxindon, but Father Weston put a veto upon this proposal, saying it was not without design, Providence had arranged that the two fugitives should come to us unperceived, under cover of the storm, and we must not unnecessarily expose them to observation. Grandmother said the same; accordingly we agreed to remain within door. This was no small privation for Frith for the cherries were ripe on the tree by the wall, and his grey pony was in the stable close by; but he acquiesced without a murmur in the wishes of his elders.

We then began seriously to deliberate upon the best means of placing our two fugitives beyond the reach of danger. Father Weston declared that nowhere in England would they be secure permanently, for it was obvious that the Queen and Lord Barghley would move heaven and earth to get Miss Cecil again into their power. It would therefore be advisable for them to cross the seas as soon as possible. He offered to furnish the boy with letters which would ensure his reception in one of the Jesuit colleges in France, or in Switzerland, where the celebrated Canisius had just opened a school in Freiburg. Miss Cecil might find a home in some convent in Brussels or elsewhere, or if she preferred, he would use his influence to procure for her the part of maid of honor at some Catholic Court. Until an opportunity for crossing the channel was found, he proposed to take them to Henley, where Lady Sturton was always ready to show hospitality to persecuted Catholics.

While we were discussing our plans, Uncle Remy suddenly came in, bringing the welcome news that Anne was desirous of returning to her parents' house. We regarded it as a truly providential circumstance, that on the very day of Frith's and Miss Cecil's First Communion, this consolation should be afforded us; and we scolded my uncle for not having brought her with him, as he knew she would be received with open arms. So he had told Anne, Uncle Remy replied; but the poor child was so downhearted about her fault, and really so far from well, that he could not persuade her to accompany him. It was agreed forthwith that in the afternoon I should ride to London with Uncle Barth, to assure my repentant sister of full forgiveness, and bring her to Woxindon. Grandmother promised to go as far as the cross roads to meet her, like the father of the Prodigal, who did not wait for his son at the house door, but ran to meet him when he was yet afar off.

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

THE MAN WHO WINS.

The man who wins is the man who works— The man who toils while the next man shirks; The man who stands in his deep distress— With his head held high in the deadly press— Yes, he is the man who wins. The man who wins is the man who knows The value of pain and the worth of woes— Who a lesson learns from the man who fails And a moral finds in his mournful wails; Yes, he is the man who wins. The man who wins is the man who stays In the unsought paths and the rocky ways; And, perhaps, who lingers, now and then, To help some failure to rise again. Ah he is the man who wins! And the man who wins is the man who hears The curse of the envious in his ears, But who goes his way with his head held high And passes the wrecks of the failures by— For he is the man who wins. —Henry Edward Warner, in Baltimore News.

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves, —November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for Catarrh.
